Annual report given on Library

Trustees of Bell Memorial Public Library in Mentone received the annual report from librarian Madeleine Fisher at the January 25th meeting. Contained in the report was a comparison between circulation figures for 1980 and 1981. The library, which houses approximately twenty-three thouand books, increased its circulation by over nine thousand items last year.

The number of periodicals of-fered has climbed to fifty-four (thirteen over the previous year) and circulated over sixteen hundred magazines. A new record collection started last July circulated over six hundred.

Many variables determine circu. figures, but Mrs. Fisher es the expanded library lation believes the expanded library hours have contributed most to the increase of library usage. The library is now open from nine to five Monday through Saturday, whereas it was formerly open only five hours five days a week.

THE AKRON-MENTONE NEWS - February 3, 1982

by James J. Treires

"Work expands so as to fill the time available for its completion." In these few words, C. Northcote Parkinson formulated his famous law.

If there were any lingering doubts about the genius of this witty British civil servant, the United States Congress has removed them. What has happened in the years since the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 was passed could serve as a textbook example of Parkinson's Law.

The major objective of the 1974 law was to give Congress better control over the budget process so it could balance the budget and set overall spending priorities in a rational matter. To accomplish these ends, the Act set up Budget Commit-tees in both Houses and a new Congressional Budget Office to provide these committees and the Congress as a whole with better information on budget issues.

While they were at it, the Congressmen also changed the beginning date of the fiscal year from July 1 to October 7. Experience had shown that they were almost always late in making appropriations, financing many agencies with "continuing resolutions" that allowed them to operate at the same level as last year from June 30 to whenever they got around to approving the current year's funding. The new law allowed the legislators an extra three months to get the job done. How have all these improvements affected the budget process? Don't ask. Here's a recent report from the Washington Post: "When fiscal 1982 dawned Oct. 1, only one branch of the federal government was funded on a permanent basis for the new year: Congress, and its affiliated agencies. For the first time in history, the whole rest of the government has been operating under a 'continuing resolution' of Congress ... "

With three more months to work on the budget, with two new professionally staffed committees, with economist Alice Rivlin's assemblage of high-class professionals at the Con-gressional Budget Office providing technical support, our legislators have managed the worst delinquency in the history of preparing federal budgets.

And that's not the worst of it. When we look at how this new system has worked to provide a check on reckless spending and contribute to a balanced budget, we find these appalling statistics: In fiscal years 1977 through 1981, the years in which this "streamlined" budget process has been operating, the United States has run an unbroken string of huge deficits totaling almost $240 billion, the largest by far in our peacetime history

The long-suffering taxpayer may think there is a simple solution to the problem. He may reason that since the budget is now more unbalanced than before 1974, and the Congress is farther behind schedule than it was in the old days, the obvious remedy is to abolish the Budget Committees, close down the Congressional Budget Office, and go back to the old timetable. if Congress was two months late back in the Sixties, at least the budget was settled by September first. Now President Reagan is in the awkward position of presenting his fiscal 1983 budget in January before action on the 1982 budget has been completed. Unfortunately, Washington has never been a good place for simple solutions, especially those that require firing instead of hiring.

Visitors to Capitol Hill will find a beautiful new marble palace designed to house U.S. Senators in the style to which they have accustomed themselves. On the other side of the Hill, they may accustomed themselves. On the other side of the finit, they may tour the massive, still-shiny Rayburn Building housing some of our Representatives. These magnificent structures are an uncomfortable reminder of another Parkinson observation: When an institution moves into a new building specially designed to house its functions, you can be sure it's on the point of collapse

We're going that extra mile to avoid shutting off anyone's electric service

Last month's record-breaking temperatures and extreme chill factors will result in some very high electric bills. We know that those higher-than-usual bills may pose payment problems for a number of families. That's why we're working harder, going that extra mile to avoid service shutoffs-especially if there is a legitimate hardship.

Consumer services personnel will work closely with individual customers having payment problems. If you have such a problem, let us know as soon as possible so we can be of greatest help. We may be able to tailor a payment schedule to your budget or recommend an energy assistance program.

We have special concern for the sick and the elderly. Any customer with an illness can forestall a service shutoff for at least 10 days by presenting a physician's confirmation. We can also arrange for a third party to be notified in the future should an electric bill become delinquent.

Our lenient policy on service shutoffs includes these points:

- No shutoff will be made during periods of freezing weather or on weekends and holidays or after noon on days when the office will not be open the following day.
- Even partial payment on a past-due bill and mutual agreement for paying the balance will prevent a shutoff.
- No shutoff will be made without the specific approval of a manager or supervisor.

Why don't we simply ban all service shutoffs in winter? We believe a case-by-case handling of individual problems is the best way to deal compassionately with the problem and be fair to all other customers who are able to pay their bills on time.

We're not uncaring. And we're not eager to shut anyone's service off. We're ready to go that extra mile to prove it.

As I walked up to the house I noticed a large group of birds huddled in the lee side of our discarded Christmas tree, which had been placed next to one of our bird feeders. The birds now were not as oblivious to the cold and were making good use of the available shelter.

Randy Rickman is supervisor of the predrying kiln. There are no employees actually working inside the predryer, except for lift trucks which haul lumber in and out of the building. (News Photo)

Larry Hunter, production manager at Pike Lumber explains that conditions inside the predryer are monitored through various controls and display panels in the control room of the predrying kiln. These controls register temperature and humidity from inside the building, through sensors located in different areas of the predryer. (News Photo)

When the temperature drops inside the building, steam goes through heat coils and the air running through these coils pick up radia-

Pike Lumber now in full

BY JANET BOWEN

Pike Lumber Company, located on the southeast side of Akron, is a fourth and fifth generation business, incorporated in 1904 by John Schooley Pike in Wabash, Indiana.

In 1927, Durward A. Pike, grandson of John, moved to Akron and p urchased the old Bill Bright sawmill. Since then, many changes and additions have been made to make Pike Lumber one of the largest of its kind in the m iddle west.

Helen Pike Utter, daughter of Durward A. and Eva B. Pike became the fourth generation to become involved in the lumber business. In January 19 34, she married Howard Utter, now co-owner and company president. Fam ily members now involved in the operations of Pike Lumber include Howard 1 ter, company president; Helen Utter, vice president and secretary-treasur Channing Utter, plant manager; and Lynne Utter Northrop.

Dean Baker, who is manager of the timberland operation is also a comparing official and stockholder.

LATEST ADDITION

Pike Lumber Company's latest innovation at the Akron site is the inclusion of a building called a predryer, which is designed to increase the amount of lumber dried, mainly the hard to dry items such as red or white oak and thick hard maple.

The predrying kiln simulates ideal drying conditions similar to those y ou would find on a hot summer day, only better, because the predryer simula tes those conditions seven days a week, 24 hours a day, 52 weeks out of every year. Lumber stored in the predrying kiln is brighter and flatter than nature illy seasoned lumber, and the predrying eliminates the weathering effect. With out the convenience of predrying, lumber would have to be kept outdoors, explosed to all kinds of weather conditions, until it is dry enough to be put into a dry kiln.

The predryer is an 80 by 160 foot structure with a capacity of 400 thousa and board feet of lumber. It's walls are made of concrete blocks, 12 inches the ick and the floor of the building is eight inches of solid concrete. Metal roof par hels and rafters are covered with a special epoxy paint which helps keep them from corroding. Electronic overhead doors allow lumber to be brought in and our of the building at either end.

Outside air is brought into the building through radiators, which preheat the air. (News Photo)

nber Co. addition 1 full operation

At the top of the building are two rows, each with 23 fans which create air currents with a circular effect throughout the building, drying the lumber. Exhaust fans pull the humid air out and new air enters through radiators that heat air up.

Randy Rickman is a supervisor at Pike Lumber and in charge of the predrying kiln. Sensors are situated throughout the building which regulate the temperatures and humidities, and Rickman monitors these conditions in the control room of the predryer.

The predryer is a two zone kiln, which means that half of the building can run on different conditions than the other half. Larry Hunter, production manager, explained that all lumber does not dry the same, with some types taking longer than others. This is the reason behind having two different control zones.

Inside the predryer, there is a steady temperature of 90 degrees, with 55 percent relative humidity. The lumber is stacked up to 19 feet high and left to dry an average of 35 days. From there, the lumber is taken to the dry kilns, with temperatures ranging from 100 to 180 degrees, where it is dried from seven to ten days. Without the predryer, most lumber would have to be kept in the dry kiln two or three times as long.

Hunter says that the predryer creates ideal conditions which increase productivity. This in turn has helped their employment because of the increase in dry lumber, and the need for more people to help process that lumber.

Money used to finance the construction of the predryer was obtained through EDC bonds, with the help of the Rochester City Council.

FUTURE PLANS

Future plans for Pike Lumber are already underway with a new circle mill being built in Carbon, Indiana, located approximately 20 miles northeast of Terre Haute. Lumber cut there will be transported back to Akron for grading, drying and distribution; transporting sawn lumber rather than uncut logs from the Carbon area reduces the amount of waste that would other wise be transported to Akron.

After the mill is completed, a few men from Akron may be sent to the Carbon area for a period of 60 to 90 days to help train new employees. Pike Lumber owns timberland in Southern Indiana, as well as timberland in Northern and Central Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Larry Hunter and Randy Rickman stand in front of stacked lumber inside the predryer, which is stacked up to 19 feet high. (News Photo)

Most of the lumber inside the predryer is hard-to-dry lumber, such as oak and maple. Using the predryer has doubled or even tripled their capacity to process that lumber. (News Photo)

Before lumber can be stored in the predryer, it must at first be trimmed at both ends, then graded according to the amount of clear lumber in each piece. It then goes to stackers and is placed on ¼ inch sticks between layers to allow air flow between the boards for drying purposes. (News Photo)

Vikes win at Eastern

After more than two weeks of After more than two weeks of postponed games due to unrelent-ing weather, since the Vikings had played a game and the last practice five days before, but Tippecanoe Valley recalled enough knowledge to defeat winless Eastern 59-53 last Tuesday night in a rescheduled game which was originally plan-game which was originally plan-ned for January 22nd. The Vikings, now 4-6 for the season and 3-2 in the Three Rivers Conference, were led in scoring by Senior guard Todd Leckrone with 22 points on 8 field goals and 100 percent free throw shooting for 6 of Valley's 17 free throws. Adding 16 points, half on free throws, was another Viking guard, Jeff Webb. Both guards seemed to pick apart Eastern's 2-3 zone from the inside and on the permieters. Continuing the battle of the guards in scoring, Eastern's Doug Seagraves was at the top of his team with 18 points on 8 field goals and 2 from the charity strike. For the Vikings, it had been their last game since a Jan. 8 loss to Southwood 62-60. All together three games, Wawasee, Eastern and Maconaquah had been postponed. Also, because of school regulations prohibiting all sports practice when school is clesed due to inclement weather, Valley's last prectice had been 5 days earlier on Thursday. The battle started out with a 2 point lead for the Vikings by the end of the first quarter, 12-10. By the half, though, Eastern had tied the score at 30. Both teams scored exactly the same amount as in the first section of play and Valley had a small cushion of 2 points for the last quarter.

Either team could have won the contest but in the final minutes as Eastern had to foul for a chance of a rebound Webb hit 5 out of 6 free throws which allowed the Vikings to outscore their oppon-ents by 4 and win handily 59-53. Looking at percentages, Eastern made 21 of 46 field goal attempts made for 46 percent and was 11 of 16 at the line. Valley hit 21 of 44 for 48 percent and 17 of 25 for 68 percent off foul shots. The Vikings also won the junior varsity contest rather outright 42-28 Individual statistics were as follo

"Farmers who have not submit-"Farmers who have not submit-ted acreage reports for oats need to do so as soon as possible," Robert Herrold, Chairman of the Fulton County Agricultural Stabili-zation and Conservation committee, said.

In addition to wheat and other feed grains, the recently enacted Agriculture and Food Act of 1981 requires farmers to file acreage reports for oats to participate in 1982 programs.

"Farm owners and operators are required to report their oats acreage by Feb. 5 so that yield and base acreage work can be completed on time," Herrold said. The oats report should include planted acreage and crop use such as hay, grain, grazing, etc., for 1980 and 1981 crop years.

Herrold said the reports should be accurate to avoid eligibility problems. ASCS will randomly check farms to verify that acreage he reports are correct and will also provide aerial photographs for farmers to identify their fields.

Herrold urges farmers to sub-mit their acreage reports for oats by the Feb. 5 deadline. The county ASCS office is open from 7.45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The word "honeymoon" is derived from the fact that the Germans formerly drank mead-a sweet liquid made from honey--for thirty days after the wedding. THE MENTONE GAZETTE, SATURDAY, AUGUST 16, 1890 THE SHELBY COUNTY VOLCANO The frightened lahabitants moving out, while thousands of clifzens are visiting the place. On last Monday morning about 9 o'clock the people living in the vicinity of Ogden Cemetery on the banks of Flat Rock River, about forty miles south-west of Indianapolis, were startled by several loud explosions accompanied by an upheaval of the earth and river-bed. A family living close to the scene heard the noise and felt the shock, and rushing toward the river, they were confronted by sheets of flames 200 feet high and the heat became so intense that they had to retreat to the house for protection. Then followed one explosion after another in quick succession and outbursts of fire, stone and water from many points up and down the river for more than a quarter of a mile. Twenty acres of land was shattered and filled with fractures ranging from two to fifteen feet in width, Gas, smoke and heat gush from the earth and the river hit itself in the crater. Thirty tons of stone were thrown heavenward and precipitated near the graveyard. Fissures half a mile long wind through the fields, and there are caverns large enough to admit a horse and buggy, the bottom of which cannot be seen. Muddy water and steam exude from the geyser-like fractures. The gas continues to come from the holes in the earth and it is reported that explosions recur every few hours. Thousands of people have visited the scenes and all view it with wonder and curiosity. Tuesday large numbers of people here were from Franklin and other points. All the buggies, hacks and vehicles of every description were in use conveying people to the young volcano. It at times seems to gather new force and throws the water higher than at others, thus indicating convulsions within. As the disturbance was caused by the explosion of natural gas, it is thought

California, is making preparations to take out a section of a big red-wood tree for the purpose of exhibiting it at the World's Fair in 1893. This will be the largest section of any big tree ever taken from "California. The tree measures 99 feet in circumference. The section cut out will be 9 feet in height, and 60 feet in circumference. It will be divided into three cuts. The World's Fair big tree is to be taken from "Mammoth Forest, Tulare County, California, which is located 52 miles east of Tulare City at an altitude of 6325 feet above the level of the sea. The work of felling the tree has already begun. Ten skilled workmen neve been engaged and are busy at work. The saw to be used in getting out these sections is 22 feet in length, and was made to order by the Pacific Saw Company, of San Francisco. It is said to be the largest cross-cut saw, ever made of one piece of steel, and is supposed to require eight men at least two months to complete all the work to be done. Three flat cars will be necessary for transportation as the total weight will be not less than 65,000 pounds. THE MENTONE GAZETTE, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1890 THE GOLD SPIKE

THE MENTONE GAZETTE, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1890 THE GOLD SPIKE Mr. John Mitchell, one of the directors of the Gold Spike, in an interview this, morning, stated that he had no information of the movement of the contractor of the road and could not say whether the prospects of the line were flattering or otherwise. But he had considerable faith in the project and believed it would be built sooner or later. The fact of there being a general demand for it might hasten matters some. He considered it an extremely tedious matter to raise the necessary money required for the enterprise. All that can be learned of the situation is about as definite as the above, and we must be satisfied with it until somebody, born for the occasion, rises up and builds the road.-road.-

Heart attack

Volunteers are urgently needed to help combat America's number one killer, atherosclerosis. This disease is primarily responsible for heart attacks, strokes, and related fatal diseases that account annually for almost one million deaths or 51% of all deaths in the United States. The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute is conducting a program at four participating medical institutions, including the University of Minnesota, to deter-mine whether lowering blood cholesterol levels will reduce the risk of heart attacks. The Univer-sity is seeking persons 29 through sity is seeking persons 29 through 64 years of age, who have had only one heart attack in the past 5 years with no history of heart surgery, diabetes or stroke. All such persons are urged to call the University of Minnesota Hyperli-pidemia Study collect at 612-376-4494 for more information. The number again is 612-376-4494.

You're almost 50 and still working. You hope to retire in 10 or 15 years and your company has a generous pension plan.

You may think you don't need an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) because you're already well-covered and you're confident your company pension plan will take care of you when you retire. "The fact is, you could be in for an unpleasant surprise," says Doris Tarrant, chairperson of the Banking Advisor program for the American Bankers Association (ABA). "If you're laid off, fired or forced to retire early due to health reasons before you reach age 65 or 70, you could end up with less than you expected.

"There is one way to be absolutely certain that you'll have money in your retirement years and that is by providing for your own retirement. One of the best ways to do this is by opening a tax-sheltered IRA," says Tarrant.

"Using a sample interest rate of 12 percent, if you save $2,000 a year for 10 years, you could end up with $39,309," says Tarrant. "That's almost double your investment. Interest rates may vary and you should talk to your banker about what to expect

If you have a non-working spouse, you can contribute $2,250 a year to your IRA. After 10 years that adds up to $44,223 for your $22,500 contribution. And all this money is tax free until you withdraw it after age 591/2. The amount you contribute to your IRA can be deducted from your gross income before you figure your taxes. You have 10 years to begin withdrawing the money after you retire, but you are only taxed on the money as you withdraw it. In the meantime, you've sheltered your money for several Married women over 50 should take special note of the IRAs. So many women who have stayed home to take care of a family are shocked to find, when they are divorced or widowed, that their husbands' Social Security and company pension plan do not cover them adequately.

"The IBA is one retirement fund that homemakers can depend on," says Tarrant. A couple which includes a non-working spouse can save up to $2,250 per year tax free in a "spousal" IRA. Each year, the contribution to the spousal account is divided at the couple's discretion and credited to each spouse's portion of the account, with no more than $2,000 per year credited to either one of the couple. No matter hat happens to the marriage, the amount in the non-working spouse's account belongs to the non-

The Good News Report

By Thomas W. Pauker Director of ACTION

Good news isn't hard to find, but sometimes to find it you have to look around a little. Jim Griffin of Hialeah, Florida, can tell you that. It began with bad news for him. He was 62 when the doctor him. He was 62 when the doctor told him he'd have to quit work, and for a man who had never been sick a day in his life, a man who prided himself on his physi-cal activities, the blow was a hard one. What to do? He wasn't going to sit around and feed the pigeons

This is a nation-wide program sponsored by ACTION "which places senior citizens who have time and love to spare with children who need and thrive on that love." The result was that Jim took a bus out to Sunland Training Center for mentally re-tarded youngsters. Now two laters he is one of more than 100 foster grandparents giving his time (two to four hours daily) at schools and hospitals and centers like Sunland which offer training and inspira-tion to 225 disadvantaged young people in Dade County. A few days ago, as Grandpa Griffin guided Charles, his foster grandson, out to the play area, he commented, "This program means so much to me. I need these kids a lot more than they need me." And that's his good news. He found a purpose in life.

But it's Charlie's good news, too, because Grandpa⁻⁶ Griffin's knowing and love has brought Charlie out of a dark place and helped him to see the sunlight in a way he hasn't seen it before.

Dorothy Rollins, who is the project director of the Dade County Community Action Agen-cy, summed it up best when she observed: "It takes very special people to work with these kids. A lot of people think these kids can't respond to anyone. That simply isn't true. Some of them had never walked until a foster grand-narent sneut time with them and parent spent time with them and gently prodded them until they ed to take the first step. And as you know, that first step for everyone is good news.

Harry, Bradway, the voice of WASK radio in Lafayette is retiring after almost 30 years on the air. His voice is considered a part of Lafayette. He has delivered daily sports news, providing play-by-play and color commentary for high school and Purdue football and basketball games. Harry is an institution in Lafayette sports.

sports. Retirement will be a real change in the life of the man who made Lafayette the permanent home of the Colt World Series. He has retired from his ad sales job at WASK. He retired from the daily sports-news show he has done since 1952, but he might continue to do play-by-play for Jeff High School basketball through this season -- as he's done for 30 years.

Career Begins Harry, known around the Akron community as "Tedgie." turned 62 last November. Born November 20, 1919 to Earl and Clio Bradway, the family lived in the brick home located just south of the Lions Den. Tedgie attended Akron High School, enderstice 1927.

From the time he was 12 years old until he graduated from high school, Harry worked in Arter's Drug Store which was owned at the time by Earl and Lena Arter. His sports broadcasting began at the Akron High School basketball games when he wire recorded the games for Wayne Groninger, who suffered from polic and was hospitalized, so Wayne could "see" his brother Dwight play. Tedgie was very active in organizing, playing and coaching softball and basketball teams through the late 30's and 40's. He liked broadcasting more than his writing and made up his mind that he wanted to make his living doing something in sports.

"It was very exciting being a part of Lafayette Jeff, especially when they had their great teams of the middle 50's and 60's, winning State championships and all." Mentone Board to work on ordinances

Mentone's water tank is going to get a revamp -- on the inside. Mentone Town Board President, Frank Hardesty, during last week's town board meeting signed a contract with Leary Con-struction Co. of Greenfield, Indistruction Co. of Greenfield, Indi-ana to repaint, degrease and repair the inside of the town water tank at an estimated cost of $4,650.00 The firm is the same one who made repairs and re-painted the tank inside and out in 1979. Hardesty said the warranty on the outside paint job, included a regular three-year update on the inside of the tank. He noted if the tank is kept repaired, it would be cheaper in the long run and Trustee Tombaugh agreed. Steve Shand, Superintendent of the Street and Water Department, reported he had received a partial reported he had received a partial order of the foam rubber "blan-kets" made especially for water meters, and is-using them on the meters they have had the most trouble with. Clerk Kate Whetstone said she had already taken this matter into consideration. Attorney Lee Bazini reported a hearing set in small claims court for Tuesday, February 16 in re-gard to a delinquent water bill.

Those attending the board meeting gave a special commend-ation to Steve Shank and Bruce Baker for the time and effort given toward keeping Mentone's streets open during the last few weeks. Hardesty said, "they have spent a lot of time and lost a lot of sleep to keep us moving and we want to thank them."

Shand requested that a street light be installed on the north end of Franklin Street and another on East Jackson at the intersection. He said there also needed to be a fire hydrant installed on Franklin.

The clerk is to inquire about charges on the street lights with NIPSCO. Board members gave Shand permission to hire some younger town residents when they need help is heaving the first hydroxit. help in keeping the fire hydrants cleared of snow. Shand stated that NIPSCO reminds customers that higher service bills -- reflecting both gas and electric usage -- are the result of this greater demand, coupled with higher rates for those services.

The Company stated that, in The Company stated that, in addition to greater consumption, current bills include a 9.87 per-cent average electric rate increase for residential customers approved by the Public Service Commission of Indiana in October, and an approximate 15 percent average annual increase in natural gas costs due to higher wholesale natural gas prices, which NIPSCO is allowed to pass on to customers when those prices have been approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. NIPSCO has not had a general gas rate increase since 1978.

AN AMERICAN FABLE

by James J. Treires

Once upon a time in the kingdom between the seas there lived a happy people whose wealth grew greater each day. By bulding roads and bridges, the good citizens made it possible for each village to do the things it could do best, and by exchanging the bounties of their farms and workshops, they enjoyed a much better life than their forebears.

But as the population grew and the roads were lengthened and the great rivers were bridged and the workshops grew larger, it became harder and harder to maintain the balance between the things that were made and the things that were needed. And though it was plain to see that working was the only way to make the goods people wanted, and that many people needed more goods than they had, it came to pass that a great idleness came over the land. Men and women without tools or workplaces sat with hands folded outside closed factories and fallow farms, yearning all the while for the very goods they would themselves have produced in the early years of the kingdom.

As times grew worse and tempers grew shorter, a great cry arose among the people. "King Herbert, the Hoover," they shouted, "deliver us from this evil state!" Smiling benignly and adding more incerse to the flaming.

vessel before him, King Herbert replied, "It is not I who have brought this plague upon the land, dear citizens. It is the Lord of Economics who rules on high. We must trust in His mercy and continue on our present course. And as St. Adam, the Smith, has written in the Holy Scriptures, we shall come to the Magic Corner, around which we shall find Prosperity."

And so the people followed for days that stretched into months and then into years, past many hundreds of corners, but, never, alas, the Magical One.

One day, as the people were growing weary of their long, fruitless journey, they encountered a sprightly gentleman in a wheel chair. As they recounted their woes, his fatherly smile turned into an angry scowl, and he spoke thus unto them: "The King is a fink. It is not the Lord of Economics who has closed the factories and the farms. It is a few greedy men who cannot see past the ends of their noses. If I were King, I would free the land from their evil grasp." And lo, the people believed him, and they rose up and cast

Herbert from the throne and crowned their new King, Franklin, the Fearless

For eight long years Franklin struggled to repair the roads and strengthen the bridges. But when he tried to reopen the factories and farms, the owners refused to give him the keys.

This struggle was still unresolved when, from out of the blue, Adolf, the Aggressor, and Hiro, the Hito, joined forces to attack the depleted land of the free.

And then it occurred, the miracle of miracles. In a trice, all the factories and farms were reopened, and all the young men went forth and slew the attackers. The cure that the valiant Franklin had sought vainly for eight long years had been sitting there right in front of him: spend and spend, and tax and tax.

But it was not meet for a people schooled in the virtues of hard work and frugality to depend on the King's prodigality. And as Franklin was succeeded in turn by Harry and Dwight and John and Lyndon and Richard and Gerald and Jimmy and Ronald, a way was found to make the King's spending always appear to be absolutely necessary.

What is more important than protection from foreign attackers? And on what can the King spend as much money as he wishes without arousing the ire of his subjects? National defense, of course

And so it came to pass that a new foreign threat, Ivan, the Underminer, was elevated to the defeated Adolf's position on the King's Enemies List, and the problems of Herbert and Franklin seemed solved as the kingdom spent more and more of its substance on ever more powerful weapons.

But in the mysterious ways of Kings, Adolf, the Aggressor, was succeeded by Mercedes, the Merchant, and Hiro, the Hito, by Sony, the Reliable. And they went peacefully into the world and sold many things and prospered mightily.

When the good citizens in King Ronald's land observed the fine clothes and shiny new toys of these upstart foreigners and compared them with their own deteriorating possessions, they banded together to ask the King. "If the people of Mercedes and Sony can spend the King's money on goods for the people and not weapons of war, why can't we?" And the unruffled Ronald. the Restorer, replied, in the language only kings understand "Don't you know there's a war on?

There were three Saint Valentines, all living in the second half of the third century: one is thought to have been a priest of Rome, another was a bishop and little is known of the other. But they were all martyrs and were connected in the popular mind with the people. Later, in Middle Ages Europe, the day known as St. Valentine's Day was associated with lovers. In the fifteenth century, English writers refer to the day as one when birds (and maybe humans!) choose mates.

However it came about, boys and girls soon began exchanging Valentines. And hearts still beat faster when one's best girl, or best beau, sends an especially lovely Valentine. The custom has spread to husbands and wives and others, and is a nice one-even if over-commercialized.

It's good to be remembered and loved and Valentine's Day prompts such expressions. The world needs more love, and less hatred, and that is, in part, the message of February 14.

Doing MORE...With LESS! THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS HOW TO CUT VETERINARY BILLS! V LIERCHIVART I DIALASI If you've got animals around your place, they're bound to become ill now and then. So, veterinarian Randy Kidd has given us a few hints to pass along to help you cut down on ex-pensive vet bills. First of all, there will often be a considerable gap among fees various animal doctors charge for the same services. Ask neighbors, or some one alse who's raising backyard livestock, "who's worth it and who sin t''. Many times, a vet may be esteemed for some one also who's raising backyard investoda, "who's work it and who in it"." Many times, a vet may be esteemed for some speciality. Your laying hens, hutch rabbits, or milk goat may call for the services of one "all purpose" vet. But, if one of your prize Aire-dales gets sick, you might take it to a small animal clinic in the city which has better facilities. You can save still more time by having the patient ready before the vet arrives. Don't wait until he or she knocks on your door to chase down the animal. If you can, put the critter indoors and have a good light available ... have a halter ready, too. And remember to provide warm water so the vet can wash his or her hands. In other words, you should try to be prepared with whatever equipment might be needed for any development. any development any development. It's also a good idea to have your livestock records on hand. A listless dog—with a high fever and no appetite—that's already been vaccinated for distemper, for exam-ple, might be disgnosed differently than would such a beast that hasn't had the vaccine. When the cause of an animal's trouble isn't immediately apparent, learn how to take its temperature regularly and keep a record of it until the vet arrives—or till you get the animal to the clinic—so you'll be able to tell the doctor whether it's steady, rising, or falling or railing. Finally, make the beast as comfortable as possible, and avoid causing it any more stress than is absolutely necessary. Be ready to assist your patient in any way you can. Vaccinations, worming, and normal births are typical things that, with practice, the successful animal lover should be capable of managing without professional sid. And, of course, a good veterinary guide is a must in any backyard homesteader's reference library.

of course, a good veterinary guide is a must in any backynd holiesteaut i stelatinte library. Prevention, though, is still the best medicine. It's important to give your charges good food, exercise, and lots of sunlight. Provide a dry, clean place for them to sleep ... keep their food and water pans washed ... and rotate your pastures or keep their quarters clear, so the creatures won't walk in manure or have only ground-level grass

No matter what you do, though, you're still going to need the help of a vet from time to time. And, when you do get that bill, be satisfied in the knowledge that you did all you could to help your animals, and to keep the cost to a minimum.

MENTONE GAZETTE, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1890 AN EGG BOILING LAKE. About one hundred miles north of Oroville, at the foot of old Lassen, in California, there is a boiling lake covering several acres. The depth of the lake is unknown, but its entire surface constantly boils like a huge kettle. It will boil an egg in four minutes. The smell of sulfur pervades the atmosphere about the lake and around its border pervades the atmosphere about the take and atoutd its botch something like sulfur can be scraped up in handsful. This lake is near Hot Spring Falley at the base of Mount Lassen. Between it and the mountain there are perhaps a thousand boiling, bubbling, hot springs, and in tramping about these springs the soles of a person's shoes become uncomfortably warm. The North Feather River, at the base of Lassen, in its trikkle source and springs, end in a cold and beautiful stream but a few feet wide flows through this community community. Some of these springs bubble up boiling water within a span of the river. Standing in the midst of these springs, a peculiar sensation is experienced. At a thousand places the earth emits a vapor of smoke, while under the surface there is a jarring, roaring noise as if hundreds of steam engines were in operation, and the ominus trembling of the earth produces a feeling of uncertainty. A short distance south of Boiling Lake and near Willow Lake, which is described and choose there are serveral enverse that short up

When Mr. Wanamaker addresses himself again to Congress he will no doubt give

We will find a strong point in his favor in the comparison with the reduction of postage made in 1883 from three to two² cents, which eventually resulted in an increase instead of a reduction of postage. KILLED BY THE CARS Ed. Ramsey of Burket Literally Ground to Atoms.

Ed. Ramsey of Barket Literally Ground to Atoms. On yesterday morning (Friday, November 6) the section men from Burket brought the news to Mentone that the mutilated remains of a man were scattered along the railroad a short distance east of town. An investigation soon proved the victim to be E.B. Ramsey, section boss, who lived at Burket. He and some of his workingmen had been at Mentone on the evening before, and Ramsey had been the last one to start to return home to Burket. It seems that about 11 of clock p.m., he him until his remains were found as above stated. It appears that a fraicht train from the west, which nassed through soon after, called freight train from the west, which passed through soon after, caught him in the cattle guards at the crossing one mile east of Mentone. Here the first blood was seen, and his watch chain, keys, and some shreds of clothing were found. It seems that he had been carried some rods before getting under the wheels of the train which ground him to pieces and scattered his remains for nearly half a mile along the track. The anu scattered nis remains tor nearly nai a mile along the track. The shreds of clothing and a few trinkets from his pockets furnished the only means of identification. The parts were gathered up and brought to Mentone and the coroner notified. The inquest was held in the afternoon and the verdict was "killed by the cars."

Mr. Ramsey was about thirty-eight years of age. He leaves a wife and three children who have the sympathy of all who know them. Funeral services and interment will take place at Monroeville, Indiana, Mr. Ramsey's former home.

Indiana highways safer

Forty-one people have died on Indiana highways as of 9 a.m. January 29, 1982, as compared to 72 on the same date last year. The Indiana State Police consider this a significant downward trend in fatalities that they want to continue.

continue." Superintendent Shettle stated that he believes several factors have contributed to this major decline in Indiana traffic fatalities. The increased efforts of Indiana law enforcement agencies in stop-ping speeders and drunk drivers have been a factor in this decline, Shettle says.

The Indiana State Police and other law enforcement agencies other law enforcement agencies have increased their public educa-tion efforts concerning s af e driving and with the cooperation of the media, these safety mes-sages have been effectively re-layed to the public. The media has communicated to the public that treopers are scioning more that troopers are stopping more drunk drivers and speeders, and that they want people to wear their seatbelts.

their seatbelts. The public has been listening to these messages and have been practicing safe driving and some are beginning to wear their seat-belts. It has been shown that driving 55 mph and wearing your seatbelts has decreased traffic fatalities and injuries. Of the 1,159 people who died on Indiana highways in 1981, 290 of those would be alive today had they worn their seatbelts. The Indiana State Police are pleased that the State Police are pleased that the public is beginning to assist law enforcement officials in their efforts to decrease the number of fatalities on Indiana highways. The Indiana State Police strongly encourage everyone to continue these life saving steps. Let's save lives on Indiana highways. Drive safely and always wear your seatbelts.

VALENTINE'S DAY

The custom in the United States of exchanging valentines on Febto the ruary 14 can be traced English poet, Geoffrey Chaucer. Years ago, people held many beliefs in connection with Valenbeiefs in connection with valer-time's Day. One of the oldest beliefs was that birds choose their mates on February 14. An old English superstition warned that it was bad luck to bring snow-drops into the house before Valen-time's Day. tine's Day if unmarried girls in the home hoped to be married before the end of the year.

In Derbyshire, England young women circled the church 12 times at midnight and repeated the words, "I sow hempseed hempseed, I sow, he that love me best come after me now. Valentine's Day comes on the feast day of two different Chris-tian martyrs named Valentine, but the customs connected with the day have nothing to do with the lives of the saints. They probably came from an ancient Roman festival called Lupercolia which took place every February 15. The festival honored Juno, the Roman Goddess of Women and Marriage,

In some schools, the children hold a classroom party and place all the valentines in an attractive box which they have made. The teacher or one child distributes the valentines. Older students enjoy Valentine's Day dances and parties. Men often send their wives or sweet-hearts flowers or boxes of candy instead of valentine greeting cards.

The oldest valentine in America are some small cards with Ger-man script, probably made by nuns and monks in the early 1700's

The Kate Greenaway type of valentine which usually featured valentine which usually reatured pictures of children and a lacy border, became popular in the late 1800's. A decorated satin center framed by a raised design of English lace appeared on a 1850 valentine by Esther Howland, the first American manufac-turer of valentines. The comic valentines of 1850 and 1870 were printed on cheap paper and some-times called "Penny Dreadfuls." These probably started in Amerivalentines had

Last month's record low temperatures and severe weather will peratures and severe weather will produce some very high electric bills. And Public Service Indiana says it would go "the extra mile" to-avoid shutting off any cus-tomer, especially those with a horitimete headbhird legitimate hardship.

Lloyd M Griffin senior vice president of consumer services, said upcoming electric bills will be substantially higher because cus-tomers used record amounts of

THE AKRON-MENTONE NEWS - February 10, 1982 USDA announces for 1982 wheat program Secretary of Agriculture John

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block recently of Agriculture John R. Block recently implemented and outlined the provisions for a voluntary 15 percent acreage re-duction program for the 1982 wheat crop. He also said USDA would allow immediate entry of the 1987 area into the former the 1982 crop into the farmer-owned grain reserve. To become eligible for govern-

To become engine to govern-ment price support loans, target price protection and the farmer-owned reserve program, farmers must reduce their plantings 15 percent from an established base. No direct payments will be made for the oregone reduction

No direct payments will be made for the acreage reduction. The target price for 1982 wheat will be $4.05 per bushel. Loan rates will be $3.55 per bushel for grain placed under the regular loan program and $4.00 per bushel for 1982-crop wheat en-tered into the farmer-owned re-serve serve.

Farmers can enter the 1982 crop immediately into the reserve without waiting for their regular loans to mature. USDA storage payments will be 26¹/₂ cents per bushel for wheat placed in the reserve. Wheat will be released from the reserve when the average price received by farmers reaches $4.65 per bushel. Block said U.S. wheat supplies are 14 percent above last year and next June's carryover is expected to be nearly 1 billion bushels. This is the result of two successive record U.S. wheat crops and a record-setting 1981 world harvest. Block said the reduced acreage program -- coupled with an aggressive export program -- will strengthen prices by reducing the 1982-83 marketing year supplies.

Participating farmers must reduce their acreage of wheat planted for harvest by at least 15 percent from an established wheat base. Generally, the base will be the higher of either the 1981 wheat average or the average of the 1980-81 wheat acreages. How-ever, for farms that have been following a definite crop rotation pattern, the base will reflect such rotations.

The acreage taken from produc tion must be devoted to conserva-tion uses. For example, a farmer with a 1981 planted acreage of 100 acres must plant no more than 85 acres of wheat for 1982 harvest, for program eligibility. The remaining 15 acres (17.65 percent of 85 acres) must be devoted to conservation.

If the farmer plants fewer than If the farmer plants lewer than the permitted 85 acres, he or she will be permitted to devote fewer acres to conservation. For ex-ample, if only 50 acres are planted, only 8.8 acres (17.65 percent of 50) will have to go to conservation.

The land taken from production and devoted to conservation must be eligible cropland protected from wind and water erosion. Acreage which has already been planted to wheat, and then desig-nated as reduced acreage, may be cut for hay or grazed.

Otherwise, acreage designated to meet the conservation require-ment may not be mechanically harvested and grazing will not be permitted during the six principal growing months. No payments will be made for land devoted to conservation

Also, participation in the wheat program is not required to qualify for program benefits on other crops grown on the farm

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block recently announced a voluntary 10 percent reduced acreage program for 1982-crop feed grains. He also announced that 1982 feed grains may be entered immediately into the far-entered immediately into the far-mer-owned reserve. "This action will strenghten feed grain prices by reducing supplies for the 1982-83 marketing year," Block said. Participants will be required to devote the reduced acreage to conservation uses, he said. Block said a number of market factors, including the record 1981 U.S. corn harvest of 8.2 billion bushels and instability in the export market, make the reduced acreage program advisable. Feed grain supplies are about 13 percent above last year. Corn carryout at the begining of the next marketing year (Oct. 1, 1982) could be around 2 billion bushels, largest since 1960.

Only those who participate will be eligible for program benefits such as target price protection and Commodity Credit Corporation commodity loans. Participating farmers must reduce their acreage planted to feed grains (barley, corn, oats, sor-ghum) by at least 10 percent from the established feed grain bases. Two bases will be established --one for corn and sorghum, the second for barley and oats. Gener-ally, the bases will be the higher of the 1981 base acreage or the average of the 1980-81 base acreages. However, for farms that have been following a definite rotation pattern, the bases will reflect such rotations.

Participating producers will re-ceive the following target price (per bushel) protection: corn, $2.70; sorghum, $2.60; barley, $2.60; oats, $1.50. Participants will be eligible for the following

CCC loan rates: corn, $2.55; sorghum, $2.42; barley, $2.08; oats, $1.31.

Here is an example of how the programs will work. A farmer with a base of 100 acres must plant no more than 90 acres of feed grains for 1982 harvest. The acres reduced (11.11 percent of 90 acres) must be devoted to a conservation use. Farmers plant-ing less than the full 90 acres to feed grains would be permitted to devote fewer acres to conserva-tion. If only 50 acres were planted, only 5.55 acres (11.11% of 50) would have to go to conservation. The land taken from production and devoted to conservation uses must be eligible cropland and protected from wind and water protected from wind and water erosion. The land may not be mechanically harvested. Farmers will be permitted to graze this acreage, except during the six principal growing months. Neither offsetting compliance nor cross compliance is a require-ment under this program. This means that farmers owning or operating more than one farm will not be required to participate 'on be required to participate on all farms in order to obtain program benefits on participating farms. Also, participation in the feed grain program is not re-quired to qualify for program benefits on other crops grown on the farm.

Block said that 1982 feed grain placed under CCC loan would be eligible for immediate entry into the farmer-owned grain reserve at loan levels higher than for regular loan levels higher than for regular CCC loans. The reserve loan rates per bushel will be: corn, $2.90; sorghum, $2.75; barley, $2.37; oats, $1.49. Market price trigger levels at which farmers may take their grain out of the reserve without penalty will be: corn, $3.25; sorghum, $3.10; barley, $2.65; oats, $1.65.

William Henry Harrison

One of the least known American presidents was William Henry Harrison. He was born in Charles County, Virginia, on February 9 in 1773, the son of Benjamin Harrison, governor of Virginia. But William was to be more closely associated with Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

He studied medicine in Richmond and Philadelphia, then entered the army, serving in the Northwest Territory. He was appointed Secretary of the Territory and then elected as its first delegate to Congress. He was influential in having Congress pass a bill setting up the territories of Ohio and Indiana. Appointed governor of Indiana, he signed treaties with the Indians giving the U.S. vast Indian lands in Indiana and Illinois. When the Indians, under Tecumseh, later resented the white influx and resisted, Harrison led an armed force against them and defeated them. In the War of 1812, he led the force that defeated the British and ended their influence in the Northwest. He resigned from the army to live on his farm at North Bend, Ohio. He was then elected to the Congress, first as representative and then senator.

Congress, first as representative and then senator. After three years he served as envoy to Colombia. And shortly after that-in 1836-he was nominated for president by the Whigs. He lost the race in 1836 but was nominated again in 1840 and elected. The three major Whig candidates were Daniel Webster, Henry Clay and Harrison. Webster withdrew and threw his weight to Harrison, as did Thurlow Week of New York, and this elected him. Indiana faces serious times in 1982. Our unemployment rate is intolerable, and many national analysts predict that Indiana and the rest of the Midwest are destined to a long period of stagnation and transition to some undefined new economic base.

Although we have set in motion a number of new progrowth policies to spur pro-ductivity and job creation, there are some who warn that the Great Lakes area in-cluding Indiana will not share in any recovery that may await the rest of the nation.

Now is the time to reject the conventional wisdom that predicts decline. We have great advantages in Indiana, that, properly nurtured can provide a great future of opportunity. On some of the world's richest farm land we have a rebirth of the farming spirit. After four decades of de-cline, the number of farms in cultivation grew in Indiana last year. We need to be watchful that our federal tax laws, reformed last year, never again become an never again become an obstacle to family farm ownership.

We enjoy a tremendous advantage over our com-petitors in the so-called Sunbelt in our access to a plentiful water supply. The rush of industry westward is already running up against a scarcity of this precious commodity. Industry will turn back to us in the years ahead, provided that we can break a pattern of federal public works spending and direct public subsidies which historically have cushioned the Western states against the effects of their water pro-

'82 Girls' Sectional action sees Wawasee victors

By Jerry Kindig

During Girls' Sectional action last Thursday and Saturday, the female Vikings pushed all the way to the finish but just couldn't find the extra precision for the third and final round against the Wa-wasee Warriors who had soundly defeated the Valley squad earlier in the regular season. After the 35-67 loss the Sectional runner-up game ball was given to team captain Sara Harrell and the Vikes slowly went to the locker room with the hope for next season.

The Vikes realized they were in for a fight down to the finish as the Trogans took a one point, 15-14 lead during the first quarter but Valley came back and out-scored Triton by 137 percent, 8-19, during second period action for a Viking 10 point, 33-23, haftime lead. The Valley squad stretched its lead by two more in third period play, but as the Vikings downgraded their attack with substitutions, Triton went to a 2-3 press and dwindled the lead down to six points with 240 to go until the final buzzer. After a Valley free throw line violation the Valley free throw line violation the Trogans had a possibility of coming within four, but the Triton Shot was off the mark and Guard Lori Tilden sunk 1 of 2 free throws for a 51-44 Valley victory. Tilden and Tammy Cooper led the Vikes with 15 and 14 points, respectively. Also near double figures was Carleen Clampitt with nine points on 4 field goals and one free throw.

After a third period lead of 13 points, 36-23, the action was allowed to proceed for almost any reason and Valley coasted to a 53-30 sound defeat of the Dragons Dragons.

Cooper and Tilden again led the Valley squad trading point totals from the Triton game. Center Sara Harrell also reached double figures with 11 points spread evenly over the four quarters. The Vikings out rebounded Argos 39-24 and along with 19 and 15 more percentage points in the areas of field goals and free throws soundly handed out the defeat to the Argos Dragons.

Wawasee

The regular season game versus these two teams saw the Wa-wasee Warriors on the victory wasee Warriors side and just recalling a previous loss could be devastating. Both teams emerged from their respec

Wawasee jumped out to a quick 10-2 lead with both teams starting out in zone defenses and the out in zone defenses and the Warriors began to control the game. By the end of the half the Vikes had fallen behind by 19 points, 10-29, almost twice their total first half ender whice total first half scoring output. The third period of action evolved only a small bit better for the Vikings as eight points were put onto the scoreboard but Wa-wasee moved further away with 15 third quarter points. the Warrior offensive output, because the shots wouldn't fall for Valley, left an unobtainable goal and the Wawasee Warriors became the 1982 Warsaw Section-Cla Champions with a 67-35 victory at Champions with a 67-35 victory. Damaged goods not quaranteed as safe

Patricia M. Rathbun Extension Home Economist Kosciusko County

In an attempt to reduce food bills, some consumers willingly purchase products in dented cans, slit packages, and items that have sat on the shelf past their expira-tion dates. Saving money may be a prime concern, but think twice a prime concern, but trink twice before buying dented cans re-duced in price. Even if you can't see a leak in the can, air may be getting in. When this happens, the product's safety cannot be guaranteed.

Often, products beyond marketing dates are reduced for quick sale. The temperature at which the product has been stored and the processing it received will determine if the product is safe to use after its recommended date. TAXES-7.7¢

Like everyone else, NIPSCO pays taxes to federal, state and local governments. We are one of the largest taxpayers in the State of Indiana.

PAYROLL-8.5¢ To assure our employees competitive wages, tringe benefits and good working conditions, 8% cents was allocated to payroll. We operate in an area with the hinhest averace wage rates in the State.

OPERATIONS AND MAINTENANCE-6.60 OPERATIONS AND MAINTENANCE – 6.60 NIPSCO must maintain pyore $2.5 billion of generating plants, substations, ges storage facilities, transmission and distribution service facilitios. We must also pay for the installation and maintenance of millions of dollars worth of environmental equipment

INTEREST AND OTHER DEDUCTIONS - 3.6¢ DEDUCTIONS - 3.6¢ To operate on both day-to-day and long term bases, we must go to the competitive money market and borrow money by selling bonds, debentures or the sector

tures or through term loans. DEPRECIATION-4.70 A certain amount of each dollar is set aside to replace worn-out, in-efficient equipment. The percent of depreciation is set by the Public Service Commission of Indiana.

RETAINED IN THE BUSINESS-0.40 After dividends to stockholders are deducted from net income, the remainder is "plowed back" into the Company and added to borrowed funds to help finance the Company's construction of needed new facilities.

That's good to know!

This is where your NIPSCO gas and electric dollar goes. Please note that almost two-thirds of each gas and electric revenue dollar you pay us goes for the purchase of fuel (natural gas or coal) and to pay interest on borrowed money -items whose prices are either set by market forces or authorized by Federal agencies. In addition, we must pay taxes and continue to install expensive, nonproductive environmental controls. As these major costs and all our other costs increase with inflation, so must your NIPSCO gas and electric service bills. That's good to know.

BIG OIL'S BIG SWITCH

by James J. Treires

Do you remember the big fight about deregulating the price of oil? A few years ago, Jimmy Carter and the oil companies told us that abolishing price controls would bring a big new supply of oil by giving the industry a lot more money to invest in new exploration and drilling. Everybody knew that higher prices would bring huge additional profits to these companies; after all, they were all making good money at the old prices. That's why the deal was sweetened a little by the "windfall profits tax." This amounted to a weak attempt to return to the U.S. Treasury a small percentage of the bonanza the government was giving away to the oil companies at the expense of consumers

You know what happened after that. Gasoline prices doubled, the oil companies reaped a multibillion dollar harvest, and the windfall profits tax turned out to be a joke. While the public's back was turned. Congress quietly weakened the laws to let the companies keep more and more of the money.

As for increasing supply, it turned out that at $1.40 a gallon for gasoline and comparable prices for fuel oil, there wasn't any need to. Consumption went down enough to create a world glut of the precious stuff. Millions of Americans have learned that a twenty-mile trip to the shopping center costs two dollars in gas, so they don't make as many trips.

So here we are in 1982, paying a lot more money for the same amount of petroleum products. And what great benefit has come to the U.S. economy as a result of the new free market for oil? Simply this: The big oil companies now have enough money to buy up other big companies.

We all know the public memory is short, but is it as short as the Mobil Corporation apparently believes? Not long ago that company was telling us how expensive it was to find and produce new oil, and how vitally important it was to have high profits to finance these efforts.

Now Mobil makes no effort to hide the fact that its extra billions are going in search of new companies to buy, not new oil to produce. And it isn't even embarassed about the fact that the companies it wants most are other oil companies.

Last summer Mobil made a strong effort to buy Conoco, Inc This transaction would have combined the second largest oil company with the ninth largest. But E.I. du Pont de Nemours, the country's largest chemical firm, made Conoco a better offer. Undaunted, Mobil returned to the merger market in the fall, and the new target was another petroleum producer, Marathon Oil Co. This time the role of spoiler was played by U.S. Steel Corporation, that venerable company that invented the idea of expansion through combination.

Something seems to be out of whack in our competitive free economy. The industrial marvels of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries were companies that manufactured one product at lower cost than their competitors and undersold them in the free market. The efficient and cost-conscious survived while the high-cost producers went out of business. Now the only dynamism in the system seems to be creative combinations of existing firms that increase returns to investors without adding any productive capacity.

Economic growth through mergers and take-overs is a perversion of free enterprise. Companies like Marathon that have valuable assets are pounced upon by cash-heavy super-corporations that have no particular interest in the efficiency of the business itself. The only advantage these monsters have is their ability to resist the market forces that are supposed to insure the efficiency of the free enterprise system. This makes their stockholders happy. It makes German and Japanese competitors even happier

THE AKRON-MENTONE NEWS - February 17, 1982 Hillis announces candidacy for Indiana Fifth District

Elwood H. Hillis officially announced his candidacy for re-election to Congress from Ind-iana's Fifth Congressional District this week.

Official Release

Utilicial Kelease I am happy to have served the 5th District in Washington for the past six terms, and I would like very much to serve the "New Fifth District." Subject to the elections of this year. With Indiana's loss of one con-gressional seat, the boundaries of all districts have had to be re-drawn. Needless to say, there has been considerable change in the fifth, with more than 200,000 resients voting in this district for the first time.

The new Fifth District is less industrialized than the old, with a greater agricultural base. In my early visits to the new areas of the district, however, I have found that the people have that same desire for a solution to our national problems. They are well aware of the excesses which have marked our Federal Bureaucracy the past few decades. There is a consensus that the Federal Government has grown too big: that the Federal Government has been spending too much; and that overregulation had become an awene burden that was far too disrupting the lives of all often Americans

The high rates of inflation, and the problems of the national econ-omy, have left their impact on the people of this area, as elsewhere, It is also my feeling that the great majority of the residents of great majority of the residents of the Fifth District want to give President Reagan an opportunity to put his plan into effect and to give it a chance to succeed. In this manner, we could achieve a real and lasting economic recovery to a greater with the suggest to go along with the success to date in the reduction in inflation. I also believe that congress must deal decisively with a number of important issues in the years ahead. As chairman of the Con-gressional Auto Task Force and a gressional Auto Task Force and a member of the Congressional Steel Caucus, I am deeply con-cerned about the growing trade imbalance which our country has developed with Japan. We must developed with Japan. We must ensure that trade with all countries is fair, as well as free. I support the vigorous enforcement of our anti-dumping laws and a removal of trade restrictions which the Janpanese have im-posed to limit imports into their country

At the same time. I am convinced that we can pursue a much strönger policy of exporting American agriculture products overseas. This would help aleviate the problem of depressed farm prices which, coupled with high interest rates, are severely affect-ing American farmers. I strongly In addition, I want to stress my strong, personal commitment to the survival of social security. I will do all that I can in the years ahead to ensure that the benefits to which our senior citizens are intitled are fully enforced. I plan to continue to maintain my residence in the Fifth District and to travel back here every week-end when Congress is not in end when Congress is not in session. I have always believed that an important part of being a representative is to be available to assist people in dealing with their problems with the Federal Government. I will continue to emphasize strong constituent service if I am re-elected. I also feel that, because of my experience, I am well prepared to participate in finding solutions to the major challenges on a series of important national issues tinuing support for a strong national defense. In my judge-national defense. In my judge-ment, America must maintain a national defense which is second to no other world power. However, I believe that the Pentagon needs to be subject to the same tough budget scrutiny as other agencies of the Federal Government. Waste, fraud, and mismanagement in the Department of Defense must be mismanagement in the Department of Defense must be eliminated and I have written the Secretary of Defense to urge him to make this a high priority.

1982 is an important year for Congress and the American people. We will face important challenges and tough problems, but I am optimistic that these challenges can be met and these problems can be solved.

I look forward to the opportun-ity of serving the people of Indiana's Fifth District, in the 98th Congress.

Glaring The faults of others are like the headlights on an automobile. They only seem more glaring than our own.

When you face the large display of cheese in the grocery store, you may find it quite disconcerting to select the one you want. But your visit to the cheese counter can become an adventure if you learn about the kinds of cheeses and how they differ.

Indiana's Hoosier Record Buck Program was initiated in 1975 to Program was initiated in 1975 to recognize and establish a perman-ent record of trophy deer taken by hunters within the state. Any deer legally taken in Indiana is eli-gible and all hunters having deer racks that qualify will receive a handsome certificate and have their names added to the official register.

According to the information gathered through our state-wide checking stations, nearly 17,500 deer were harvested during the deer were harvested during the 1981 hunting season. It seemed to be an especially good year for large bucks, which means there are many antlers awaiting entry into the record book. The measuring system used in the Hoosier Record Buck Program follows that established by the Boone and Crocket Club, a nation-al record organization, but Indiana does not require as high a score to qualify. A very large, symmet-rical eight-point rack will some-times meet the minimum score of 140 points. Antlers of non-typical form must meet a 160 point mini-mum.

This year, Record Buck meas-uring sessions will be held on Feb. 20 at Norway Bait & Tackle, Monticello; Feb. 27 at Floyd's Gun Shop, Logansport; March 14 at Alley Bait & Tackle, Kokomo; and March 27 at Albertson's Sports, Warsaw. Tax tips...

Did you know that Hoosiers have filed about 180,000 federal income tax returns so far this year? And that those folks getting refunds are averaging about $659 each? So says the Internal Revenue Service. If you're one of the many Indiana taxpayers who have not filed your return yet, the Internal Rev-enue Service wants to ask you a few things. Like, did you know that

•Using the proper filing status (married, single, etc.) can make a big difference in how much you in taxes?

•If you pay for the care of your child so you can work, you can claim a tax credit of up to $400 ($800 for two or more kids)? •If you paid for insulation of your home or other energy saving devices, you may be eligible to claim a tax credit for those expenses?

•If you received interest or divident income, the first $200 or $400 if you're married, is not taxed?

•If you are 65 or older, you can take an extra $1000 exemption for take an extra $1000 exemption for age on your tax return? •If you have any questions, you can call the Internal Revenue Ser-vice toll free at 1-800-382-9740? Yes, you can!

Taxpayers On The Move May

Deduct Moving Expenses Taxpayers who moved in 1981, or who plan on moving this year. may be able to deduct costly moving expenses on their fedeal income tax returns, if they are able to meet certain requirements. the Internal Revenue Service said. Expenditures such as househunt-ing trips before the move, the disposal of the former home. traveling to the new location and moving household goods and personal items may all be de-ducted as moving expenses.

HARRISON & SON PLUMBING & HEATING Residential & Commercial KITCHEN & BATHROOM REMODELING DRAIN CLEANING Phone: 491-3523 (Day or Evening) Burket, Indiana

To qualify to deduct moving ex-penses, a taxpayer must work full-time for at least 39 weeks during the 12 months following his or her move. If self-employed, the tax-payer must work full time for 39 weeks during the first 12 months end for at least 78 weeks during and for at least 78 weeks during the 24 months immediately follow ing his or her move. The IRS also said expenses could be deducted only if the taxpayer's new pri-mary job location is at least 35 miles farther from the prior resi-dence than was the old primary job location. Taxpayers wishing to deduct their moving expenses should obtain IRS Form 3903, "Moving Expense Adjustment," and Publi-cation 521, "Moving Expenses." These may be obtained by visiting your local IRS office; or by calling the IRS toll free at 1-800-382-9740

Copies Of Old Returns

Make Good Tax Records Copies of federal income tax returns from prior years not only serve as good financial records, but they can serve as guides for filling out future returns as well, the Internal Revenue Service said. A good deal of information may be utilized from old copies, es-pecially for those taxpayers whose financial situations stay almost the same from year to year, according to the IRS.

Being able to refer to completed returns could also be helpful to taxpayers who might later wish to amend their returns or income average. They will also be help-ful if the IRS should call you in for a tax examination. Taxpayers claiming the energy credit might also find copies of completed re-turns useful in figuring the amount of unused credit which they can carry over to later tax vears.

Choice Of Tax Return Preparer An Important Decision

The choosing of a paid income tax return preparer by taxpayers should be done carefully and wisely, the Internal Revenue wisely, the Service says

Most tax return preparers are honest and do not deliberately attempt to defraud either their clients or the IRS. However, a few abuse the trust placed in them by taxpayers; and the IRS has suggestions on how to identify these present hese preparets. Taxpayers should not sign a plank return, or one which is partially completed, or one blank partially completed, or one prepared in pencil. These could be altered by the preparer. Preparers should be asked to sign return in the taxpayer's pres ence, and give his or her identi-fication number, as required by law. The taxpayer must be given an copy of the completed return. Preparers who promise a refund, claim a special relationship with the IRS, or boast of ways to beat the tax system should be avoided the tax system should be avoided by taxpayers. The choosing of a preparer is particularly important because the taxpayer, not the preparer, is responsible for the accuracy of the tax return. As much care should go into the choosing of a tax preparer as the selection of an attorney, doctor or other professan ional person, according to the IRS

The working press periodically adopts an eye-catching phrase and runs with it. media has helped stir opposition to test tube fertilization.

Actually, test tube fertilization is a new hope for mothers who desire babies but can't have them because their tubes are blocked. It's not un-like artificial insemination, in that a man-made process is used to produce normal child growth in the mother's womb.

Babies produced with the help of test tube fertilization--that's what it is are normal babies developing in their mother's womb just like any other baby. The tiny is what is fertilized in egg test tube and then placed in the prospective mother. That's no more objectionable than a number of other female examinations, operations, etc

Couples can now hope to become parents with the aid of the May's fertilization of an egg removed and replaced--permitting normal baby growth.

Why Not?

President Reagan recently submitted tax recommendations to Congress and one of the more interesting proposals was the request for a minimum tax on corporations.

Most Americans support this proposal and the closing of other tax loopholes, several of which were also suggested by the president. And if there is to be a minimum tax on corporations, and there should be, when profits are made, why not a minimum tax on individuals?

As tax laws are written, the wealthy can enjoy incomes from tax-free bonds and other tax-free securities to an unlimited degree. That is, if a taxpayer converts his money and assets into interest-free bonds, even if he or she earns millions the federal government collects no taxes.

Every citizen earning a sizeable sum of money from whatever source-should pay a minimum tax. It's obviously unfair to deduct taxes from workers' pay checks and require all those without tax free income to pay a high rate, while those fortunate enough or clever enough to take advantage of today's laws pay nothing.

By Jerry Kindig, II Despite excellent shooting per-centages and all round good basketball, the Tippecanoe Valley High School boys' varsity squad dropped two weekend games by only a six point deficit when tallied together. After Holmes snagged the foul shots, Todd Wagoner sank two straight buckets to the it at 54 and the Bremen center hit a field goal and two shots from the field goal and two shots from the line for a 58-54 Lion advantage with just 2:45 left in the game.

THE AKRON-MENTONE NEWS - February 17, 1982 Report from State Rep. Musselman

The President of the United States came to Indianapolis Tues-day to more fully explain his "New Federalism" proposal to the Indiana General Assembly. President Reagan brought to Indi-ana something more than national attention a n d prestige. He brought a message of new re-sponsibilities for state and local governments

President Reagan's plan repre-President Reagan's plan repre-sents a major reshaping of the fiscal relationship between the federal government and the states. If approved by Congress, "New Federalism" would challenge each state to accept re-sponsibility for programs affecting its citizens, and then to tailor those programs to its citizens' needs

In effect, New Federalism

In effect, New Federalism would bring government closer to home, where it belongs. The President's proposal would bring a full federal takeover of the Medicaid program in, exchange for state takeover of the Food Stamp and Aid to Families with Depenand Aid to Families with Depen-dent Children programs. This would take place by 1984 under the President's plan. Beginning the same year a series of options would be available to the states turnback to the states of about 40 grant programs in the areas of education community developeducation, community develop-ment, transportation and social services; creation of a new $28 billion trust fund for the states' use in assuming federal programs; and gradual phase-out of federal excise taxes, with the states given the choice to create their own funding mechanisms or reduce program costs. The need for these 'swaps of government services is evident from the dimensions the federal government has taken in the past several decades. It has grown to an unmanageable size. In 1960 an unmanageable size. In 1900 federal grant outlays to state and local government were $7 billion; by 1981 they were about $95 bil on. In the same period of time the number of grant programs to hour $00. In Congress along it bout 500. In Congress alone it ikes 166 committees to keep ack of the programs.

As the size of federal assistance ograms increases, the states' iy-so in the spending of federal rogram imposes from 300 to 500 parate requirements and manlates on state and local govern tents as a condition for receipt of nds. The programs come to the ates with too many strings at-

Under the President's plan. however, the states would be able to decide whether or not they need specific federal programs. If they want to continue receiving some or all federal grants that are earmarked for the turnback plan, they can use their share of the $28 million trust fund to reimburse federal agencies and continue to abide by federal conditions. Or, if the states do not want to

Or, if the states do not want to continue participating in the fed-eral programs, they can use their trust fund money for the same or other purposes -- with a stipula-tion that part of the money be passed on to local governments. This aspect of New Federalism is especially attractive to us in Indiana. Hoosier tax-payers have for two long seen a nalty. Felure

Indiana, Hoosier tax-payers nave for too long seen a pality return on their federal tax dollars. According to the Community Ser-vices Agency, Indiana ranks 49th out of 50 states in per capita federal spending; we get only 74 cents back for every dollar sent to Washington The next of Lodeney. Washington. The rest of Indiana's tax dollars pay for programs that benefit residents of the 49 other states. There is no excuse for this peculiar form of Hoosier hospitality. The effect of the President's plan would be to bring Indiana tax dollars back to Indiana to fulfill Hoosiers' needs. Over a ten-year roosters needs, over a tenyear period the states would be given the opportunity to create their own funding mechanisms to pay for their own programs. Officials at all levels of Indiana govern-ment would be challenged to meet the needs of their constituents. I think the result will be a more meaningful, responsive form of government for all Hoosiers.

The President offered Indiana The President offered Indiana lawmakers the first close look at his daring proposal. "New Feder-alism deserves careful scrutiny, and as a member of the Indiana General Assembly, I am proud that President Reagan turned first to Indiana in his attempt to bring government back home to the states.

single conversation Α across the table with a wise man is better than ten years' study of books. -H.W. Longfellow.

Rebound?

President Reagan is putting the best face possible on the current recession, and the prospect of large deficits for the next few years. He says the economy will begin to show signs of recovery in the first half of the year, and that things will steadily improve there-

But many economists and investors are waiting to see if the Reagan forecast or the view that this is to be a longer and deeper recession is correct. Mr. Reagan should know in a few months whether such optimism is justified. By March or April economic indicators will show whether the recession is bottoming out or whether it is still accelerating. If it turns out that Mr. Reagan has under-estimated the severity of the current dip, then defense spending should be spread over more years, some taxes levied to reduce the deficit. and every tax loophole closed; these and other revenueraising steps will be urgent by March if there is no change visible in the trend of the economy.

If Mr. Reagan fails to act quickly this spring, if economic events prove him wrong, it's unlikely that he or a Republican majority in the House will be elected in 1984. Already, hopes of Republicans gains in the lower house in 1982 are dimmed.

THE COUPON CLIPPER

How to find double and triple discounts

By June Fuller

Do companies really make coupon and refund offers on the same product at the same time? Yes, they do - and more often than most shoppers ealize realize. Occasionally a company makes both a coupon dis-count and a refund offer as part of the same promotion. More often, manufacturers publish a coupon that will not expire for a year or more and several months later make a refund offer on the same product. If you have a file of coupons and refund forms that you check each time that you check each time you make up your shopping list, you will find double and triple discount opportunities just as these readers did: Rosa Fields of Hephzibah, Ga., found Pepsodent tooth-brushes advertised at four for $1. She went to her coupon file and found two coupons that saved her an additional 40 cents. She also found a Pensodent refund found a Pepsodent refund form that offered her a $1 refund in exchange for three Universal Product Codes.

Universal Product Codes. Lymne Kinsey of San Jose, Calif., was checking the spe-cials in her newspaper when she saw that 16-ounce Wisk was on sale for 96 cents. In her coupon file, she found a 40 cent coupon and a $1 ner coupon file, she found a 40-cent coupon and a $1 refund offer. Her planning was further rewarded when she got to the store and found that it was offering double coupons⁴ double coupons! Mrs. F.E. Janvrin of Stewartville, Minn., was delighted to see a discount store advertise Nestea for store advertise Nestea for $1; the usual price in her area is $2.67. She then went to her coupon file and found a 75-cent coupon. More searching produced a $1 Nestea refund offer that required only one proof of purchase. "I actually made 75

"I actually made 75 cents," says Mrs. Janvrin.

When her supermarket offered to double the value of manufacturers' coupons, Betty Peirog of Willow Springs, III., decided that she wanted to give Uncle Ben's Rice Fries a try. She remembered that she had two 50-cent coupons but was two 50-cent coupons but was surprised to also discover a $1 refund form in her files.

She used her coupons to purchase two packages for 19 cents each. After she received her $1 refund, she received her $1 refund, she had made a "home run" profit of 62 cents. "It is an exciting way to go shopping," she says. Pat Smith of Mantua, Ohio, was pleased to find Aunt Jemina Pancake Mix on sale for 99 cents. She then went to her file and found a 40-cent coupon and an offer of a free bottle of Aunt Jem-ima Svrup in return for one or a free bottle of Aunt Jenn-ima Syrup in return for one proof of purchase. "The free syrup more than paid for my pancake mix and made eating them all the more delicious," she all the more delicious," she says. Combining supermarket specials with coupons and refunds is without a doubt the most exciting and profit-able supermarket game in town. If you haven't tried it, you certainly should. All the smart shoppers mentioned in this column will receive a copy of the refunding magazine, The National Supermarket Shopper. Interplanting Black Walnut Successfully

WEST I AFAYETTE, Ind.

Maps Indiana woodlands on good sites contain few, if any, black walnut trees, yet these sites are capable of growing high-quality timber, according to a Purdue University extension forester.

These areas not only can sup-port good timber, but are capable of producing it at a rapid rate, said W. L. Fix, the forester. He added that many Hoosier woodland owners are missing out by not stocking such sites with this high-value species. The most obvious way to introduce black walnut is to plant them in openings in woods following a harvest cut, the forester said. He agreed, however, that seedlings planted in recently clearcut areas must compete with fast-growing trees and shrubs that have estab-lished root systems. Therefore, to establish valuable species such as black walnut, the seedlings must be kept free of competition. In a study where competition was controlled within a 3-foot radius of the seedlings, survival averaged 61 percent compared with 11 per-cent in the untreated area, Fix said. Average height of growth over the first 13 years in the treated area was 24 feet compared with 14 feet where competing vegetation was not controlled.

Researchers believe, the specialist concluded, that even better survival and growth would be ob-tained if competition were con-trolled on a larger than 3-foot radius and if the treatments were continued at three-to-four-year Pickles, French Fries, Applesauce. Thursday-Fish and Chips, Cole

SLOW COOKING IN NATURE'S KITCHEN

Jim McClarin recently told us how he found. out that his compost heap could slow-cook food...without electricity. One evening, when his refrigerator want on the blink. Jim decided to make yogurt rather than let some fresh milk go sour. He had heated the milk. cooled it down, and added a helping of already-made yo-gurt to get the recipe started when he was un-repectedly invited out to dinner. Jim says that at this point he remembered reading that the ancient Chineses sometimes cooked eggs in compost. So, he placed the cooking container likel with yogurt to be in his backyrad heap. hoping it'd keep warm enough to work. When He fitted the lid the next day, though, Jim found not yogurt but a crude cheese! He guessed that his humus plie had been too hot for the job, so after that first ex-periment Jim decided to be more pick. McClarin reports "since my initial attempt. I've learned to probe carefully in the 'working' mound until I find a spot with just the argular part of my diet."

February 17, 1982 - THE AKRON-MENTONE NEWS

right warmth to create successful compost-cookd yogurt . . . a dish that has become a regular part of my diet." Jim's next cooking effort involved a nice fresh egg safely enclosed in a plastic bag. He found a "just right" hot spot in the compost, dropped in the sack with a rope at-tached, and overed it over again. "Then sarly the next day. I peeled and ate the most mouthwatering hard-boiled egg of my life . . . except, of course, the taste treat hadn't been boiled. Now, whenever I hanker for a read breakfast treat, I drop a few aggs into the compost heap in the eve-ning and look forward to a morning feast." Before long, Jim got around to trying to cook meat dishes in his organic "oven". The first roast, alsa, was a failure. His newly built compost pile hadn't warmed up enough yet, and the established heap was a bit too cool. Undaunted, Jim bought an other roast. . . along with a meat thermometer. Once the new heap had gotten "up to heat", a second piece of beef was placed inside the yogurt pail (to keep it sealed against bacteria) and buried in the hottest part of the pile (where Jim tested out the temperature at 155°F).

neet, a second piece of been was paced insute the yogurt pan to keep it escated against bacteria and buried in the holtest part of the pile (where Jim tested out the temperature at 156°F). "Thirteen hours later," the experimenter says, "a brief taste of the meat trapped in its own broth convinced me that compost is the only way to roast! I served the tender, juicy viand to friends at lunch that day, and they all agreed it was superb. "In no time at all, a duck with orange juice and apricots found its way into the hot heap. It stayed buried in its sealed container for 23 hours at 155-165°F... and was perfect when I served it with wine and wild plum sauce." Jim has found that there are some limitations to this unusual cooking method, how-ever. Soybeans and pinto beans never really softened, and he had no better luck with potatoes and carrots. But, if you work it right, your compost mound can provide lots more than the organ-ic fertilizer it's famous for. It can cook your supper for you!

ELVIS AND HIS CRITICS

by James J. Treires

The recent trial of Elvis Presley's physician for overprescribing drugs and the publication of another biography have generated a wave of critical articles and commentaries. Most of the by-lined pieces try to make the case that Elvis was not a very nice person, and he could not therefore be a great artist or a great man. Like a pack of mongrel's nipping at the heels of a thoroughbred, critics attempt to drag this idol of millions down into the common mire. In this effort, they reveal more about themselves than the target of their hatchet jobs. As an artist, Elvis Presley needs no defense. What he was, and is, to hundreds of millions of people throughout the world is apparent to anyone who listens to his recordings. Nothing about the way he lived his brief and turbulent life can tarnish the purity of his art. To paraphrase Abraham Lincoln, Elvis Presley's achievements are far above any writer's poor power to add or detract.

For every good artist, there are a thousand good critics. Reflecting on, evaluating, responding to somebody else's creation is child's play compared to the creative act itself. Men and women with university training, a veneer of sophistication and a certain facility with words dominate the press and the electronic media. Like the on-the-scene TV reporter who ends his story with "This is Tom Cipher in Baltimore," media flacks tend to clothe themselves in the importance of the stories they cover, forgetting that most people respond to their tag-line with an unspoken, "So who gives a damn?" Marshall McLuhan to the contrary, the medium is not the message. All the electronic technology in the world cannot create a new Presley recording. Imitators copy every intonation, phrasing and stage mannerism, but even the best of them serve only to remind us of what we have lost.

I have no hero-worshipping illusions about Elvis Presley the man. He was a poor Southern boy, unsophisticated, not very well educated, and not very wise about handling fame and fortune. But for all the bizarre aspects of his private life, Mr. Presley retained something that most of his critics sold on their way up the ladder-integrity. He never pretended to be anything but what he was, a young man from the working-class South. He never became a talk-show personality, never took himself seriously as anything other than a singer of songs, never exploited the American tendency to regard any celebrity as an authority on everything.

To the millions of Americans whose lives are a long, grueling, chaotic struggle against economic adversity, Elvis Presley was a victory and a fulfilment. In his songs and movies, he communicated a special warmth for the ordinary men and women whose labors keep the nation strong and free. In the midst of his multimillions, he never lost contact with his own people. Were he alive today, Elvis would probably deny these were ne anve today, EIVIS would probably deny these virtues. Like most great artists, Presley never knew what he had or why it affected people the way it did. He only knew he wanted to sing, and he wanted to sing his way. No market research company established that there was a potential sudiance (or his much least the state of t audience for his music. He sang first; the audience came later.

I was well beyond my teens when Elvis Presley began his career, and I was largely unaware of his earliest efforts. But when I heard him sing "Love Mc Tender," I began to understand his unique appeal. Now as I listen to his music, I sense what the teenagers of his day felt immediately and instinctively. He somehow communicates the power, the passion and the pain of living in a way that no other popular vocalist approaches. Like Mario Lanza, another giant, Elvis Presley was perhaps too deeply aware of life to have endured too much of it. This dark, brooding quality is in his music, and those who do not women? Did he play with guns? Was he rude to his friends?

Who cares? All that matters is that he created music that will live long after we are gone. Somehow in that beautiful tangle of guitar chords, drums, orchestral backgrounds and the fantastic voice that moved effortlessly from the tender, touching highs to the primitive, powerful lower depths of the soul, there is contained all the turmoil, torment and passion that makes life the glory that it is.

Dear Louisa

I have been going steady with a boy for two years and now he has moved to another town and I don't see him as often as I used to. We saw each other every day when he lived here because we went to the same school and games, etc. Now my problem is this--I was satisfied with this situation when he was here but I never got to be with other boys. Now, altho' we still consider ourselves bound to each other I have gotten to know other boys at games and parties and I have to and parties and 1 have to admit that like the change. I hate to break up with H bcause we made promises so I don't know what to do. I am afraid I will break his heart if I go back on my word. What must I do? P P_W Ve P.P.--W. Va

Answer:

W

There are certainly two sides to this problem of going steady with one person when a girl or boy is very young. The advantage, of course, is in always knowing that one has a date for special ocsions that come up and h someone you like. The disadvantage for a casions that com with son girl is that other people con-sider her H's girl and she never gets to compare him with other boys as these boys will not ask her for a date. Another disadvantage is that our tastes change as we grow older and the boy we thought wonderful when we were fifteen may seem something else when we add on a few years. If I were you, I would have a good talk with my friend. It may be that he is thinking the same way you are.

ON THE HARMONICA! Playing the harmonica is one of life's little pleasures. Then rotate your hands one way or the other (whichever feels most comfortable to you) so that one winds up with the fin-gers on top of the mouth harp and the thumb on the high notes should be to your right. This print creates a sort of "chamber" around the harmonic. The maner in which chams 'norund the harmonic the best way to get a pure note from your harp is to ex-periment and practice until you've trained your light and your torgee to direct a breath of air (either in or out) through just one of the openings in your instru-ment at a time. This will produce one steady, clean tone for another which is what basic harmonics n...feelings ster another which is what basic harmonica playing is really all about. Next, you'll want to get some emotions ... feelings ... into your music. The simplest way to add this flayor to your tunnes is by varying the volume at which you play. Make your harp's sound rise and fall according to the character of the song. Expression can also be added to harmonica music by soulful use of the wavering tones made possible when using the "ten-finger sendwich" grip. Of course, when you really want to add something special, you'll just have to teach yourself to play some chords on your o'l harmogica. To do so, you'll need to open your lips enough to allow you to blow through four of the organ's openings at once. At the same time, though, precess your tongue up against the wooden partitions on the instrument's front and use it to cover either the three holes to the left (if you want to add a high chord). And then—while one corner or the other of your mouth concentrates on blowing a steady tone through the single hole that's uncovered—your tongue is moved (in rhythm!) to cover and uncover the other high or low chord. That's right: To play chords you have to be able to do two things at once. It isn't easy ... but it sure can determe or corner or the other or corner or corner or con the other or corner do and uncover the other high or ow chord.

Hats

Do you use your head during the winter? It's estimated that 40 per cent of the heat your body loses escapes through the head. It is important to keep your head properly covered in both very hot and very cold weather to either let the heat escape or to hold it in.

During cold weather a hood or hat that covers the head and neck will keep the head warm and help send heat to fingers and toes send near to tingers and toes. Hats such as balaclavas or toques, which cover the entire head and neck except the face, give the most complete protection against cold. A stocking cap that can be rolled down over the ears or even down on the heads of the near it. down on to the back of the neck is also good.

Leather caps or hunter's caps are popular particularly those that have fold-down ear flaps. Wool berets also keep the head warm. AM BELIEVERS PRAYER

The following article was writ-ten and submitted by Marietta Fuller, 1313 Sportsman Dr., Jef-fersonville, In. 47130.

THE MODEL PRAYER

[Matt. 6:9-13] And one of His disciples seeing the illuminated face of Jesus and the power of His prayer life as He praved in the mountains, in the desert, in the homes, on the streets, and on the Sea of Galilea, (Luke 11:1) And the Lord taught them not the Lord's prayer but the believer's prayer. The Lord's prayer for you and me is beautiful and it is to be found in John 17. But the Lord did teach us a model prayer; and, as we become familiar with it, other prayers can be uttered with the same essential elements. Also, portions from it can be used at other times. The so-called Lord's prayer can become nothing but a ritual and the saying of the words; and hence not from the heart. A good way for you and me to enrich our lives of prayer and to become more spirit filled is to begin the day with this prayer, stopping after the first verse and talking to God about it, then finishing the entire prayer. Another morning, advance to the second stanza, etc. proceeding at your own speed. For a while, you may have to start from the beginning in order to finish the Lord's prayer. Be sure to do your homework the previous night by looking up the words I "Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name."

heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name." This is a prayer only for believers, for "Christ in us" makes it possible to call a Holy God, "Our Father." It is a time to express adoration, to recognize His deity, and to thank Him for savation through the shed blood of Jesus. Using a concordance, find all the "I Am's" and talk to God about a different one each day, as "I am "I Am s and tak to God about a different one each day: as "I am the Good Shepherd.." Thank you God, for finding me a sheep lost in sins and darkness and through the light of the Gospel, giving me not only everlasting but also an abundant life on earth.

Ask for both physical and spiritual needs for the day, re-membering the Scripture: "But membering the Scripture: but my God shall supply all your need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus." (Phil. 4:19; And don't forget to thank Him when these needs have been met! Use this portion for thanking God in for thanking God in this portion for thanking out in the Name of Jesus before par-taking of food. And forgive us our debts (trespasses or sins), as we forgive our debtors (those who trespass or sin against us). This is one of the many prayers found in the Bible for the cleansing of sins. Say, "I hold no grudge against anyone, O Lord," or "Please help me to get rid of ill will towards.." "For if ye forgive men their trespasses (or wrongs done to you), your hea-venly Father will also forgive venly Father will and you." (Matt. 6:14) "And lead us not into temptation (testing), but deliver us from evil." I pray that I won't need to be tested today for I have put on my "Armour of God." (Eph. 6:11-17) I have been clothed in the robe of righteousness" or "right standing" with God as Jesus forgave my sins; and I am going to have faith in God and His Word, to pray without going to have rath in God and His Word, to pray without ceasing, and to obey His com-mandments today. "Show me Thy ways, teach me Thy paths." (Ps. 25:4) O Lord, for they are good, and then I will not walk in evil

"For thine is the kingdom and the power, and the glory, forever, Amen." This is a prayer of exaltation and praise and can be used during the day as one prays, when prayers have been answer-ed as you see His glories of creation, when He blesses you, and as you grow in the knowledge of His love of His love. Since the Holy Spirti acts upon the words of the Bible, you will soon be "praying in the spirit" such beautiful prayers; and you can be assured that they are reaching the throne of God!

Cheese battles cavities

Scientists have uncovered a link in humans between eating certain kinds of cheese and prevention of dental decay. Charles Schachtele, a University of Minnesota professor of denti-stry and microbiology, reported that aged Cheddar, Swiss and that aged Cheddar, Swiss and Montercy Jack cheeses apparently battle cavities by preventing sugar from forming an acid layer on teeth. These cheeses, he said, are the only foods known to have this property.

According to Marcella Ellett, Executive Director for Dairy Council of Northern Indiana, Inc. these studies show that singling these studies show that singing out the protein, fat, mineral or other component gives these cheeses their shielding ability. This important fact may lead to sweeping changes at the dinner table, the professor pointed out.

'Once we define what makes the cheese apparently anticario-genic (anticavity) we possibly could put the same substance into other foods." he said "It could other open the door to the creation of whole line of foods that don't cause tooth decay." Cavities form when colonies of bacteria called dental plaque stick to the teeth. The bacteria break down the carbohydrates in foods, down the carbonyurates in 1000s, changing sugars to plaque acid. The plaque adheres this acid to the teeth, where it attacks the tooth enamel and eventually causes decay. Schachtele's studies followed Schachter's studies followed earlier experiments with labora-tory rats suggesting that aged Cheddar might be an effective cavity fighter. His work is the first indication that all three cheeses have this protective effect in hu-

In his research. Schachtele labeled seven cheeses he tested as "friendly to teeth" because they produced little or no plaque

Tax tips for Hoosiers

If you are one of the 2 million so Hoosiers who has not yet filed your federal income tax return, the Internal Revenue Service wants to remind you about a few of the things you may be able to deduct. For example:

'I would say these cheeses are clearly among the few foods you can eat and be sure they won't damage your teeth." Schachtele said

Additional tests revealed something even more surprising. Aged Cheddar, Monterey Jack and Swiss blocked an approximate 1,000-fold increase in tooth acid that normally would be triggered sugar water. Schachtele measured 'plaque by acid production of the cheeses in three human subjects by attaching tiny acid sensors to their molars. He then tested each cheese to determine it could shield the teeth from plaque acid.

The results were consistent: Aged Cheddar, Swiss and Monter-ey Jack blocked the sugar from producing acid that could lead to decay producing acid that could lead to decay. "We were totally surprised by the reaction." Schachtele said. "We don't know yet if the plaque just didn't produce acid because of the checse or if the acid was rapidly neutralized by it." Schachtele is now trying to Schachtele is now trying to determine what enables these cheeses to act like "dietary toothbrushes.

"Our goal is to nail it down thin a year," Schachtele exwithin a year," Schachtele ex-plained. Schachtele's study is one of 32 research projects sponsored by National Dairy Council in 1982, Through the grant program, which began in 1941. $399 Roundtrip!

With the demise of Laker Airlines, it's refreshing to know that there's still a safe, efficient air route to central Europe at reasonable cost. Icelandair, a good and experienced airline and the one that many years ago pioneered low-cost flights to Europe, has just announced a $399 roundtrip fare to Europe.

That's for a departure from New York by the 23rd of next month and return by May 31. The reason Icelandair can offer a bargain fare is that it is not a member of IATA fare-fixing agreements. Fortunately, Luxem-

THE AKRON-MENTONE NEWS - February 24, 1982 Valley suffers two loses, Oak Hill and Plymouth

By Jerry Kindig II

The Tippecanoe Valley boys basketball team ran head on into two tough clubs and suffered losses both evenings during last weekend's matchups. Traveling into Pilgrim territory, Valley lost it's second game of the weekend 41-90. The Viking record falls to 6-13 and Tippecanoe Valley finishes the TRC with three victories and 4 losses.

Oak Hill

After simply putting it all to-gether in the first stanza of action at the Eagles nest, Oakhill opened a 20-3 first quarter lead, the TRC foe coasted down hill to a 64-46 victory during the Viking's Friday night game. The first period saw the Valley squad unable to connect on 12 of 13 field goal attempts and commit seven turnovers for an unchal lenged 20-3 Oak Hill lead. Unaffected by opening jitters, the Eagles turned the rim red hot with 64 percent from the field in same period.

Both teams went into the contest with statistically the same fire-power, but the Vikings were cold after two close games losing by a total of six points the weekend before to Bremen and South Bend Riley. Oak Hill hit 49 percent (24 of 49) of their attempted field goals while Valley threw 65 shots toward the bucket but only 20 hit the mark for 31 percent. The junior varsity contest was brighter for the Valley fans as they won a close 47-46 matchup. Tippecance Valley traveled to top of the priority list. They included, along with the need for a 2-way radio for the town truck, the need for a new Scott air-pack, estimated at approximately $800. The Scott air-pack is the oxygen tank used by firemen when enter-ing a smoke filled building which has a continuous organ supply a continuous oxygen supply for the wearer.

motion was made and seconded to allow the volunteers radio and Scott air-pack for the town fire truck, and present bills to Smith for payment. Zimmerman stated that the de-partment was looking into a feasibility study to improve the department so they could improve the fire rating for the town and township, noting several things they would have to do to begin with, such as increase the number of volunteers and possibly in-crease the phone alarm system to more units

Town ordinances

Police officer Dave Kruger, told board members the county prosecutor had requested a copy of the town ordinances. Kruger said the bank offered to make three copies each ordinance at a cost of or each orginance at a cost of $10. Clerk Smith stated the ordin-ances need revised and after much discussion of the ordin-ances, everyone agreed with Smith Smith.

President Fenimore told other embers of the board that the quit claim deed for Lot 17, North Addition, has been recorded.

In answer to a question about now the lots donated by Dr. Hoff how would be used. Fenimore stated that board members propose to use the land for a new fire house sometime in the future.

To burn or not to burn

Trash pickup was discussed by board members again, reason being the amount of paper trash being carried. Town residents are asked to please burn all the paper trash and burnables, so pick can be completed in the one day allowed to do the job. Ferimore stated if it took more than one day, residents might have to be charged for the service

Clerk Smith stated that there is NO ordinance against burning in the Town of Akron, as long as the burning is done between sunrise burning is done between sunfise and sunset on your own property. Discussion also included the problem of one of the town's businesses having no place to deposit trash to hold if for the pick up day. A suggestion was made by a town pattorn to have residents town patron to have residents separate trash so the town could burn part of it at the town dump instead of hauling all of it to the county landfill, whose future remains to be seen.

Need more sewer lines

Discussion on what could be done to alleviate the problem at Sunset Acres Trailer Court when it comes time to do sewer work this spring took place after Joe Day stated the sewage from the present 23 trailers has to travel approximately 550 feet south across the trailer court, Water Street and over the Stout property to reach the sewer lines on Walnut Street. He stated that there are no lines on Water Street, east of Maple. The board agreed something should be done. Board members signed a proposal and payment agreemen repay to the sewage fund the amount of funds borrowed to purchase and remodel the build which houses the town hall. Th amount, approximately $36,000, will be repaid in monthly installaccording to the ments. agreement.

Clerk Smith said he had been informed by the State Auditor that informed by the State Auditor that the Akron Town Board was in violation of a state code (conflict of interest) by hiring Ron Fenimore to do work for the town since he is a member of the board. Trustee Charles Miller made a motion that a resolution be written and signed by board members that is arrecable to the members that is agreeable to the board that Fenimore he hired at a minimum hourly wage to work town projects. Trustee B Waymire seconded the motion. Bud Other business were lower than last years were lower than many probut duction costs for school projects in a survey made by ProMaCon on building costs for this area; the building costs for this area; the highest being $71.03 sq. ft on an elementary building program under a general contractor, to a low of $54.26 on high school project being built using a con-struction manager from struction managers firm.

Sullivan stated the present market on new construction was running at about $57. per square foot.

Lease Rental Agreement Attorney Rakestraw told the board members the lease rental agreement had been completed with the Tippecanoe Valley Ele-mentary School Building Corpora-tion which was formed during last year's attempt at the project. The corporation members are Joe Crill Guy Guy Alspaugh, Dick Woods, J. Randall Leininger and John Mallott.

The amount of the proposed lease rental agreement is slightly lower this time, set at $850,000 lower this time, set at $850,000 for a maximum term of 18 years on the lease. Last year's figure was $860,000, the difference being made by the lower bids. Rakestraw said the amount could be reduced after the bond sale is completed but could not go over 850,000 on the agreement. the

The board was asked to approve the lease so the notice of the hearing could be published in the of the next paper. Noting the legalities which have to be followed to get the projects going, Rakestraw stated there had to be a 30 day notice given of the lease hearing, another public notice given before the bond sale, and the bond sale conducted, so the time was limitif they are to stay within the 150 day limit on the bids.

"If everything goes smoothly this time," he said, "you can begin construction in July.

Debug construction in July. The board adopted the resolu-tion for the lease rental agree-ment with Norris. Snipes and Shewman voting yes and Richard Long voting against the motion.

Additional Appropriation the board

In other action, the board approved a notice to taxpayers of additional appropriation in the cumulative building fund in the amount of $96,500 for matching the energy grant provided by the Federal government for energy conservation measures to be taken at Mentone School.

The proposed measures include lowering the ceiling of the third floor and adding a six inch layer of insulation above the ceiling, replacing light fixtures in many areas and using florescent bulbs, replacing windows with thermo-pane or insulated panes, installing night heating controls on thermo stats which might mean installing time clocks for night temperatures

Superintendent Paige stated that we could use our own people to do most of the labor, but the do most of the labor, but the areas including windows and heat controls will have to be con-tracted out. By using some of the corporation employees, it will allow extra funds for the energy projects themselves.

He said the Federal grant time has expired and we must get it renewed before going ahead, so if the board would show interest by approving the transfer of funds, and making money available for the project, it would show interest the project, it would show interest in going ahead with energy conservation projects. The board agreed by making the motion to advertise notice to taxpayers on a 4-0 vote.

His presentation was prompted by the Fulton County Council when he County approached them for funds for the project. Morton said in order to get the funds from the County Council he was requested to get input from the schools in the county as to whether they would Nearly eight out of ten of those surveyed think their edu-cation has been good and 61% report they have access to aca-demic programs to meet their needs. When asked how they would adjust for school budget cuts, more than half suggested charging for summer school and 51% opted for cutting the number of administrators. Despite their assessment of school troubles, the high achiev-ers are forging ahead. Almost all (95%) are college bound and all (35%) are college bound and more than six out of ten have already factored a graduate de-gree into their future plans. Note too that warsaw and syracuse met in the championship game with Syracuse coming away with the championship – Warsaw and Wawasee are in opposite brackets and could meet in the 1982 championship game!

About basketball

When the game of basketball was first invented, its designers never dreamed giants well over seven feet tall would come to predominate on the court, and that basketball would become the number-one spectator sport in the nation.

hetome the humber-one spectator sport in the nation. Thus the baskets were not placed higher. As things have developed, today we see players so tall that when they jump for the basket, they pop the bail down through the netting. Perhaps it would now be appropriate to raise the height of the baskets so that — to a greater degree at least — shooting skill would count more than height of players. Or, perhaps, teams could be classified by height. This, it would seem, would give more people a chance to play the game, and not limit it o the beaples which today dominate the sport. Nothing personal. Who loves you, tall fellows?

Sectional will be well balanced this year says Zebra Coach Greene:

Rick Greene, head coach at Rochester High School stated, "I feel we'll have a good shot at the Sectional this year, Warsaw was not doing too well earlier in the season, but are playing better now; Wawasee is having a good year; Tippecanoe Valley is one of our loses; Triton is playing well, so I think our Sectional is more balanced this year than any other year in the past few."

"The one team to beat will be Wawasee who has played well all season," stated Greene. "There should be some good games; of course in the past maybe Rochester was favored to win, or Warsaw as they were last year, but this year, I don't think there is any favorite at the beginning."

"Our team is a good group of kids, intelligent and hard working," said Greene, who admits his team is stronger on defensive than offensive, "if you work hard as a team you can usually play good defense."

He noted that having Aaron Hoover on the team averaging 28 points per game and with the team's record on foul shots, and the team's working capacity, Rochester's Zebras will add a lot of interest to this year's Sectional.

Tempo the key for Tippe Valley

By JERRY KINDIG II

We're playing well now and have become closer as a team. We have four players who produce a balanced effort," emphasized Roland Fletcher, head coach of the Tippecanoe Valley varsity basketball team, "with the fifth coming from possibly two players " basketball team, "with the fifth coming from possibly two players." "Right now we're about right," further commented Coach Fletcher. The Vikings after only four hours of practice during a three week period due to unrelenting weather conditions have visibly brought their team together in a solid machine.

period due to unrelenting weather conditions have visibly brought their team together in a solid machine. The coach continued, "as far as I'm concerned every team goes into the sectional even." Later on he brought up the point that "the sectional will be won on the draw."

raw." Valley is an all-round team with offense and defense playing almost equal parts. One area the Vikings contain in their bag of tricks is game control "If we can control the tempo we will win," citing the closeness of the South Bend Riley game.

There haven't been any major injuries plaguing the team this year which can strike quickly and change the whole outcome of a tournament. The Vikes look's healthy and ready to give any team a game they will long remember "It's a little like Russian roulette. If you win, your season continues but, if you lose, that's it," Coach Fletcher added.

Top players for the Vikings include Andy Alspaugh at the forward position averaging 54 per cent from the field; guard Todd Leckrone with a team high 79 per cent from the charity stripe; guard Jeff Webb – point guard position and general of ensive coordinator; and senior Don Studebaker in the rebounding category.

Other members of the team adding depth to the Valley squad are: Don Flenar, guard; Brian Angin, guard; Ray Davis, guard; Pat Lafferty, forward; Shawn Stokes, forward and Tod Utter, forward.

With the improvement accomplished and invaluable experience gained since the beginning of the season, the Tippecanoe Valley Vikings are ready and eager to enter the sectional, win and have fun doing it.

Almost every local basketball fan is aware of the outstanding record Floyd Henson compiled coaching youngsters at the hoop game.

But late in April the ex-Tippecanoe Valley head cage coach will be inducted into the Illinois Basketball Hall of Fame for his skill at playing the roundball game.

Henson was informed of the honor by letter Wednesday, but he said he had been contacted before that he would be inducted. "I appreciated it," the ever-modest Henson said.

Henson played for Paris, Ill., High School in the years 1935-39 and helped lead his team to the state tournament three of those four years, including a runnerup spot to champion Rockford in Henson's senior year of 1939.

In his final season, Henson tallied 506 points and averaged about 12 points a game. He was also the leading scorer in the state tournament. In those years Illinois high schools played close to 40 games a season.

In his junior year the Paris team advanced to the semifinal round before being eliminated by Dundee.

Henson went on to become leading scorer on the freshman team at Bradley University before World War II and military service beckoned. After being discharged from duty, Henson attended and graduated from Indiana State University, but did not play basketball at Terre Haute.

His 30-year coaching career mark of 421 wins and 213 losses spanned both Illinois and Indiana and included four years at Linton, Ind., three years at Odon, Ind., three years at Effingham, Ill., three years at Tolono, Ill., and two years at Montezuma, Ind.

But Henson's longest coaching stint was in the Akron-Mentone area, with 11 years as mentor at Akron High School during which he compiled a 109-79 record.

When Akron and Mentone consolidated, Henson's record for four years at Tippecanoe Valley was 70-19 before he resigned following the 1977-78 year.

He has remained in teaching as an industrial arts instructor at the high school.
