Complaints about water heard by town board

Several town patrons attended the May meeting of the Akron Town Board as they met in regular session last week at town

Mr Charles Staniford, representing a group of citizens from the northwest corner of town, opened a discussion on the condi-tion of the water and Mr. Staniford presented as evidence, a filter which he had used in his line and which was filled with

It was decided the town employees responsible for flushing the hydrants should let the water the hydrants should let the water run longer to help rid the lines of a lot of rust since there were several months during the winter when no flushing was done due to extreme cold weather.

No objections to bond sale

There were no remonstrators present at the public hearing on the $200,000 bond issue for purchase of nine school buses which chase of nine school buses the Tippecanoe Valley School Cororation proposes.

Voting to go ahead with the appropriation resolution were Con Shewman, Don Snipes and Lee Norris in the absence of members

Dick Long and Vernon Meredith.

The hearing, held during the regular May board meeting had as an audience the three newly-elected board members Jim Royer, Cecil Miller and William Rogers, and several other school patrons.

The next step toward the bond sale for the school buses will come when the project is approved by the State Board of Tax Commissioners, after which the bond sale can be conducted.

Approve Resource Center Co-Op Plan

On a motion by Don Snipes, Rick Ralston, the corporation's ABE and community education director received the go ahead on his request that Tippecanoe Valley School Corporation become part of the North Central Adult Ed Resource Center Co-Op. Ralston said the resource center receives funds from the state (which have been cut for the corporation), for training instructors in Adult Basic Education and the Co-Op can also reimburse trainees for mileage, at no obligation to our corporation.

The Insurance Companies

The nation's mutual life insurance companies are rightly under increasing criticism for being unresponsive to the times and those who own the companies -the policy holders.

The long-standing complaint is that insurance companies too often automatically (and unjustifiably) hike panies too often automateany tanks they are charged with making excessive profits in some insuring fields. The new complaint is that too many top executives are enjoying very large salary increases in the recession.

In a recent survey of the scene, the Wall Street Journal found that in 1981 ten top executives of mutual insurance companies received salary hikes ranging from 34 percent to 49 percent!

The companies involved were Northwestern Mutual Life, Equitable Life Assurance, Mutual Life of N.Y., Mutual Benefit Life and New York Life (four from Equitable Life Assurance and two from Mutual Benefit Life).

In our free enterprise system, there's nothing immoral or illegal in raising executive salaries. But at a time when policy holders in many instances are having a hard time meeting payments, it's questionable whether management uses good judgment in such salary increases

Experts such as Joseph Belth, an Indiana University insurance professor, says policy holders, who own the companies (not stockholders) really have no effective voice in management. That's because they are so diversified and unorganized.

That, Belth charges, leads to inefficient management and cronyism at the top. Robert Hunter is quoted in the Journal as saying the bookkeepers are really running the companies. Hunter is president of the National Insurance Consumer Organization.

Many insurance company executives, of course, have not enjoyed such pay hikes. And most companies probably follow a realistic path in executive salary levels. But it may well be that the millions of policy holders who in theory own mutual insurance companies have little control over management, as charged.

Mutual insurance companies are regulated by the states in which they are located and not by the federal government. They are not required to send policy holders statements listing executive salaries. Policy holders theoretically elect management but many policy holders never get a ballot.

The Journal reports, for example, that policy The Journal reports, for example, that points holders of the biggest mutual insurer, Prudential, can't even nominate an opposing slate of directors. Most Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. policy holders (there are 24 million) don't receive ballots in the mail. The company, the article states, selects 100,000 policy holders at random, to get ballots.

Critics claim that mistakes like those made by management at Prudential, which lost $113 million probing the auto insurance field and $290 million in insurance, need closer scrutiny by policy holders. No editor can perfectly analyze the complicated picture and there is much to be said on both sides. But it can be said that a closer look at the industry and its management system is probably good for all concerned.

THANK YOU

Thanks to all of you good friends and relatives who were so good to me, while I was in the hospital and since I came home. The prayers, cards, visits, food and phone calls meant much to me. May God Bless you all.

Answer: Well, the oldest child is recognized as the first child with the perogatives which go with that title and the young one gets a great deal of petting and attention by being the baby of the family. The middle child is an in-The middle child is an in-between and the only way he can get his share of attention is by misbehaving. Parents should be very careful in seeing that each child gets his rightful share of love and attention.

Description:

Predictions about the size and form of a nuclear holocaust are really predictions about human decisions, and these are notoriously incalculable in advance — especially when the decisions in question are going to be made in the midst of unimaginable mayhem.

No generation before ours has ever held the life and death of the species in its hands. Buf if we hardly know how to comprehend the possible deaths in a holocaust of the billions of people who are already in life how are we to comprehend the life or death of the infinite number of possible people who do not yet exist at all? How are we, who are a part of human life, to step back from life and see it whole, in order to assess the meaning of its disappearance? To kill a human being is murder, and there are those who believe that to abort a fetus is also murder, but what crime is it to cancel the numberless multitude of unconceived people? In what court is such a crime to be judged? Against whom is it committed?

What standing should they have among us? How much should of unconceived people? In what court is such a climber to be Judged.

Against whom is it committed?

What standing should they have among us? How much should their needs count in competition with ours? How far should the living go in trying to secure their advantage, their happiness, their existence?

With the fate of the earth at stake, we are summoned as etizens and as officeholders to fresh thinking and fresh exertions.

We and our adversaries have so far had no better idea than to heap up more and more warheads, apparently in the hope of so thoroughly paralyzing ourselves with terror that we will hold back from taking the final, absurd step. Considering the wealth of our achievements as a species, this response is unworthy of us.

While the events that might trigger a holocaust would probably be political, the consequences would be deeper than any politics or political aims, bringing ruin to the hopes and plans of capitalists and socialists, rightists and leftists, conservatives and liberals alike.

If a lasting political solution seems almost beyond human powers, it may give us confidence to remember that what challenges us is simply our extraordinary success in another field of activity ... the scientific.

We have only to learn to live politically in the world in which we already live scientifically.

At present, most of us do nothing. We look away. We remain calm. We are silent. We take refuge in the hope that the holocaust won't happen, and turn back to our individual concerns. We deny the won't happen, and turn back to our individual concerns. We deny the truth that is all around us.

Such imponderables as the sum of human life, the integrity of the terrestrial creation, and the meaning of time, of history, and of the development of life on earth, which were once left to contemplation and spiritual understanding, are now at stake in the political realm and demand a political response from every person. As political actors, we must, like the contemplatives before us, delve to the bottom of the world, and Atlaslike, we must take the world on our shoulders.

In view of the rising concern over possible nuclear war, we are reprinting all of the excerpts from a series of articles which, according to U.S. Senator Alan Cranston [D., Calif.], "spell out in compelling detail as never before how a nuclear holocaust could indeed end a human life forever."

Cranston, the Senate Democratic Whip, selected and arranged the excerpts -- with the approval of the author, Jonathan Schell --from a 90,000-word piece that ran serially in the New Yorker magazine February 1, 8 and 15.

Cranston, again with Schell's approval, inserted the excerpts in the Congressional Record March 30.

The threat that nuclear war could exterminate the human race

According to the Bible, when Adam and Eve ate the fruit of the tree of knowledge God punished them by withdrawing from them the privilege of immortality and dooming them and their kind to die. Now our species has eaten more deeply of the fruit of the tree of knowledge, and has brought itself face to face with a second death -- the death of mankind.

There are some 50,000 nuclear warheads in the world. They are a pit in which the whole world can fall -- a nemesis of all human intentions, actions and hopes -- culminating in an absolute and eternal darkness in which no nation, no society, no ideology, no civilization, will remain; in which never again will a child be born; in which never will remain; in which never again will a child be born; in which never again will human beings appear on the earth, and there will be no one to remember that they ever did.

This threat of self-destruction and planetary destruction is not something that we will face one day in the future, if we fail to take certain precautions; it is here now, hanging over the heads of all of us at every moment. The machinery of destruction is complete, poised on a hair trigger, waiting for the "button" to be "pushed" by some misguided or deranged human being or for some faulty computer chip to send out the destruction to fire.

The most fateful of the possible consequences of a full-scale nuclear holocaust would be the extinction of mankind which could come about not because every human being would be killed by bombs directly but because the holocaust would destroy the global ecosphere on which human and other life depends. We have been warned that this could be the consequence by, among others, Einstein, Eisenhower, Kissinger and, more recently, Dr. Fred Ikle, Director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency under Presidents Nixon and Ford and now Under Secretary of Defense for Policy. A 1981 Soviet government publication reached the same conclusion. publication reached the same conclusion.

Control and Disarmament Agency under Presidents Nixon and Ford and now Under Secretary of Defense for Policy. A 1981 Soviet government publication reached the same conclusion.

Bearing in mind that the possible consequences of the detonations of thousands of megatons of nuclear explosives include the blinding of insects, birds, and beasts all over the world; the extinction of many ocean species, among them some at the base of the food chain; the temporary or permanent alteration of the climate of the globe, with the outside chance of "dramatic" and "major" alterations in the structure of the atmosphere; the pollution of the whole ecosphere with oxides of nitrogen; the incapacitation in ten minutes of unprotected people who go out into the sunlight; the blinding of people who go out into the sunlight; a significant decrease in photosynthesis in plants around the world; the scalding and killing of many crops; the increase in rates of cancer and mutation around the world, but especially in the targeted zones, and the attendant risk of global epidemics; the possible poisoning of all vertebrates by sharply increased levels of Vitamin D in their skin as a result of increased ultraviolet light; and the outright slaughter on all targeted continents of most human beings and other living things by the initial nuclear radiation, the fireballs, the thermal pulses, the blast waves, the mass fires, and the fallout from the explosions; and, considering that these consequences will all interact with one another in unguessable ways and, furthermore, are in all likelihood on incomplete list, which will be added to as our knowledge of the earth increases, one must conclude that a full-scale nuclear holocaust could lead to the extinction of mankind.

We are uncertain whether or not a holocaust would bring about human extinction, and this uncertainty cannot be remedied.

We cannot run experiments with the earth, because we have only one earth; we are not in possession of any spare earths that we might blow up in some universal, lab purpose but an abyss in which all human purposes would be drowned for all time.

Once we learn that a holocaust might lead to extinction we have no right to gamble, because if we lose, the game will be over, and neither we nor anyone else, will ever get another chance. We have no choice but to address the issue of nuclear weapons as though we knew for a certainty that their use would put an end to our species.

That so much should be balanced on so fine a point -- that the fruit of four and a half billion years can be undone in a careless moment -- is a fact against which belief rebels.

We have found it much easier to dig our own grave than to think about the fact that we are doing so. Almost everyone has acknowledged on some level that the peril exists, but the knowledge has been without consequences in our feelings and our actions, and the superpowers have proceeded with their nuclear buildups.

The use of nuclear arms was contemplated in past crises and will continue to be contemplated in future ones. The sequence of events once hostilities begin lies open. The state of mind of the decision-makers might be one of calm rationality, of hatred, of shock, of hysteria, or even of outright insanity.

decision-makers might be one of calm rationality, of natred, of shock, of hysteria, or even of outright insanity.

In the theoretically sophisticated but often humanly-deficient world of nuclear strategic theory, it is likely to be overlooked that the outbreak of nuclear hostilities in itself assumes the collapse of every usual restraint of reason and humanity. Once the mass killing of a nuclear holocaust has begun, the scruples, and even the reckonings of self-interest, that normally keep the actions of nations within certain bounds will be definition have been trampled down, and will probably

Some authorities believe the Romans named the month for Juno, the patron goddess of mar-riage. The month of June was dedicated to young men in Rome and some people believe that the name was taken from juniores, the Latin word for young men.
From early Roman times, June was believed to be the best time for marriages and it is still a popular month for weddings. Spring ends and summer begins in the Northern Hemisphere. Trees and shrubs are often at their freshest, and there are more flowers during June than at any other time. June is especially the month of roses. Bees move from flower to flower gathering nectar. "A swarm of bees in June is worth a silver spoon." says an old

GARDENING. . WITH NATURAL PEST CONTROLS!

More people are gardening in this country today than ever before . . . and more and more of those gardeners are discovering that they don't need chemical pesticides to control the insects that attack their vegetable plots.

There are many natural pest control methods that a wise gardener can use. To name only a few: companion planting and natural repellents, organic sprays and dusts, intoxicants, "good" microbic agents, insect predators and parasites, birds, poultry, small animals, resistant varieties of plants, and lizards and other reptiles. Nature works in wondrous ways . . . and, in most cases, it's worth trying a few of her "timetested" bug control ideas before dousing your future food with harsh, wide-spectrum, chlorinated hydrocarbon pesticides.

The larger "animated bug catchers" more than earn their keep around the vegetable patch. Geese, ducks, chickens, toads, snakes, birds, skunks, and other small feathered, scaled, and furry friends will constantly patrol the garden . . if well them.

For instance, a single house wren will feed 500 spiders and caterpillars to its young during one summer afternoon . . s swallow can devour 1,000 leaf hoppers in 12 hours . a Baltimore oriole can consume 17 hairy caterpillars a minute . . and a brown thrasher can eat over 6,000 insects a day!

Many insect pests are surprisingly fastidious eaters and are repelled by any plant thrasher can eat over 6,000 insects a day!

Many insect pests are surprisingly lastidious eaters and are repelled by any plant other than those they prefer to devour. You can help protect your vegetables, then, by interplanting them with borage, lavender, sage, parsley, dill, and other aromatic herbs. Marigolds seem especially distasteful to large numbers of bugs . . . so set out a goodly number of these flowers among your produce plantings.

Don't stop there, though . . . send your youngsters out to collect ladybugs and lacewings to live in your garden! Adult ladybugs and the larvae of lacewings have a voracious appetite for aphids, mealybugs, cottony-cushion scales, white flies, spider mites, and some thrips.

cious appetite for aphida, mealybugs, cottony-cushion scales, white flies, spider mites, and some thrips.

But how can you handle the pesky little snails and slugs, wet-weather critters that can cut your seedlings off before the plants even get a good start? Just remember that the slimy raiders are basically night operators—they like to hide during the day—and give them handy places to creep into: old grapefruit hulls placed round side up, perhaps, or little "caves" made of broken scraps of shingle. Then, every morning, make the rounds of these traps and destroy for at least deport) the troublesome gastropods, that have oozed their way under the collectors.

And don't forget that snails (the ones with shells) and slugs (the ones without) LOVE beer! Bury a few saucers or iids so that their upper edges are flush with the ground surface, and fill the containers half full of brew in the evening. By the following dawn, the receptacles will be as packed with drunken bodies as the doorways of any big city's skid row. And if the lids contain no slugs or snails . . . then your garden doesn't either. You've already caught them all.

Although much is made of the insect-eating ability of the praying mantis, few of its champions mention that this predator devours almost as many beneficial bugs as bad. At worst, however, the praying mantis is probably marginally beneficial in the "good versus bad" insect battle and—since it is a rather noble creature to have in the garden —should be protected. Just don't expect an egg case or two of mantises to exert any outstanding biological pest control in your vegetable pach.

Lawrence D. Bell Aircraft Museum announces official Dedication Ceremonies will be held Sunday afternoon, June 6, 3 p.m. at the museum, in Mentone. Housing the personal memorabilia of aviation pioneer Larry Bell, the museum honors the man whose accomplishments led to the dawn of the space age, and the growth of the versatile helicopters.

Donald J. Norton, author of LARRY: A Biography of Lawrence D. Bell, will be present to autograph copies. Placing Bell's story within its context of sweeping historical change, Norton has created a book that will appeal as strongly to American history buffs as it will to readers who are strictly interested in aviation history.

Charles Kreiner, of Buffalo, New York, will attend representing Bell

Aerospace Textron management.

Tippecanoe Valley High School Band, under the direction of Kim K. Metcalf, will open the event with a musical presentation at 2:30 p.m. on the museum lawn. In case of inclement weather, the concert and ceremonies will be held in the Mentone School Gymnasium.

The public is invited.

Color Prints Easier than Ever

I'll bet if I asked how many of you home darkroom aficionados are familiar with a company named Agnekolor, I'd get fewer than a handful of positive responses. Yet, within a very few years, I'll bet Agnekolor will be nearly as familiar a name as Beseler or Durst.

Why? Because Agnekolor currently sells the simplest-to-operate color print processor on the market. And, as a bonus, it's effective ... nearly foolproof. And .extremely simple in concept, durable in construction.

Will it do Cibachrome prints, someone wants

Will it do Cibachrome prints, someone wants to know? It sure will. Prints from negatives? Of course, In fact, it even makes black-and-white processing easier than ever. If you don't believe it, to know? It sure will. Prints from negatives? Of course. In fact, it even makes black-and-white processing easier than ever. If you don't believe it, read on.

The basis for all this effectiveness-through-simplicity is Agnekolor's Color Wedge. As the name implies, it's a wedge-shaped polyurethane tray with a light-tight lid. In the top of the lid is a well through which chemicals may be added. A drain spout is located on the upper right so that the chemicals empty from the covered Wedge when the unit is turned on end.

What makes the Color Wedge so easy to use is its radical departure from traditional color print processors. These competitors (you may already know, if you're into color printing at home) all utilize some sort of tube. After the color print has been exposed, the paper must be curled, slipped into the tube, and firmly seated against the tube's inner walls. Then the tube must be sealed with its cap before the room lights can be turned on.

The Color Wedge is a tray. After the color print has been exposed, the paper is simply dropped in and the cover replaced.

Chemicals are added to the Color Wedge in much the same way as a tube. The covered tray is tipped upward and the chemistry is poured through the light-tight well. It doesn't come in contact with the print until the Wedge is set back down, in order to facilitate accurate timing and provide for better control.

To agitate the Agnekolor Color Wedge, simply lift up on one corner and lower every few seconds during the timed processing. For longer processes or crucial color developing steps, the chemistry's temperature can be monitored by inserting a color thermometer through the well.

Sound too much like work? Well, then, you'll want to consider a companion Color Wedge Rocker. It takes the work out of agitation, tilting the Color Wedge on its back lip and its lefthand corner simultaneously by means of a unique motor and arm system in the Rocker base. The results are extremely uniform agitation (and thus repeatable results) with just six ounces of processors.

Cut film is a joy to process (in full room light), and-as with prints-the results are controlled and predictable.
Cleanup is as simple as rinsing with water. There's no time-consuming drying, as with color tubes. Lest you get the impression I think the Color Wedge is the next best thing to Polaroid's Time-Zero film, let me admit it has a couple of drawbacks. The chemical well could be larger, for instance, so that the chemistry could be poured in more quickly. And the drain hole could likewise be larger. As they stand, you'll need to begin pouring and draining chemicals a good 15 - 20 seconds prior to your timed processing steps. I'd like to see Magic Sam cut the time down to 5 - 10 seconds.

There is one more piece of good news. It's called price. The Color Wedge in 8 x 10 size lists for $22.50. The Rocker adds another $85.95 to the tab. Either way-with Rocker or without-you'll find your darkroom frustrations diminished and your success increased with the addition of a Color Wedge from Agnekolor.

"Oh," the lady explained sweetly, "we're having a chow-mein luncheton, and wanted something to preserve the spirit of the occasion."

"I see here," said the husband, glanc-ing up from his newspaper, "that The Ford Foundation just gave away $20,000,000!"

"Really?" gasped his wife. "What was the question?"

State Farm management tour

Six major operations located in Warren, Benton and Newton counties will be sites of the 1982 State Farm Management Tour Thursday and Friday, July 1 and 2, according to Dave Petritz, Purdue University extension econo-mist and secretary-treasurer of the Indiana Farm Management Association.

Association.

The annual Farm Management Tour, held in a different area of the state each year, is co-sponsored by the association and the Indiana Cooperative Extension Service.

The tour will begin at 12:30 p.m. on the Frank Clark farm near West Lebanon. This 1,500 acre grain and livestock operation includes a farrow-to-finish hog confinement system which produces 2,200 hogs annually and a cattle feedlot for 200 head. "The farm will provide visitors a chance to see a highly successful farm business where keeping costs low is not a new practice but a way of life," Petritz said.

The second stop will be A-Ptus life," Petritz said.

The second stop will be A-Plus Farms, Ltd.-a 2,300-acre grain operation near Pine Village. "Keys to this successful partner-ship, involving Robert Anderson and his sons, David and Alan, are a well-thought-out organization and specific delegation of responsibilities in production, finance and marketing," Petritz said.

Thursday evening's program

Thursday evening's program will be at Fowler Hall in Purdue's Stewart Center. J. William Uhrig, Purdue extension economist, will provide an agricultural outlook, then Will Erwin, Marshall County armer and former state senator and assistant U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, will speak on the topic, "Problems, Challenges and Opportunities in Agriculture During Periods of Stress."

Winning their second Three Rivers Conference tournament in three years the Viking golf team along with capturing the tournament set some records for T.V.H.S. golf. When the team tied a school record for nine holes, they also established an 18-hole school record and Leckrone's one-over par 73 made the tournament one to remeber for the coach, team and school. Leckrone finished four strokes

Annenberg, a former high government official, and a veteran in the publishing and broadcasting business, is impressively qualified to express his opinion.

He says most jounalists and commentators try to be objective but that many have taken up one of two postures--adversary journalism or advocacy. Because the so-called fourth branch of government has become so influential since the advent of television it is witally so influential since the advent of television, it is vitally so influential since the advent of television, it is vitally important that objectivity in news is pursued, if any administration is to be able to govern effectively.

Annenberg questions whether a president can govern or lead effectively if the media constantly opposes his policies and questions his motives. He notes that the president is an elected leader with responsibility while the media has even more power without each representation. without any responsibility or mandate from the people

And he notes that international negotiations or foreign policy secrets seem today to be fair game to be stolen and revealed, that every presidential action or report to the people is instantly followed on TV by often report to the people is instantly tonowed on 1 v y often misleading analysis or conjecture or interpretation.

Is it, then, possible for a president to lead or even win a second term under such circumstances? Is it possible for him to change the country's direction, in the face of such constant electronic opposition and criticism? Can any president ever reduce the welfare rolls and unjustified welfare spending, if the media portrays this as a deliberate assault on the poor and

These are all pertinent, urgent questions in this new TV age. It's not the place of the press, or the television media, to endorse or support any administration. The media's job is to report the news objectively and fairly and with balance. Too often that is not being done today on the three commercial television networks.

As U.S. relationships suffer in some central and south American countries, Soviet relationships may improve. The Russians have capitalized on their opportunity, have openly backed the Argentine dictatorship in its military aggression.

Thus, when the conflict is finally settled, the U.S. has some mending of relations to do. And because it is in Washington's interests to remain on friendly terms in Washington's interests to remain on friendly terms with both Britain and Argentina, every effort has been made by President Reagan and Secretary of State Haig to bring about a negotiated, peaceful settlement of the Washington can probably offset the damage done if there is a reasonably quick end to the crisis, and Russian penetration of the "Catholic continent" might not amount to much in that case. But a bitter, involved war opens the door to more grim repercussions from

The truth is that there was no other course for Washington to follow. Britain is a more important ally than Argentina, in addition to being the mother country. Arab nations have reportedly been impressed country. Arab nations have reportedly been impressed that this Washington Administration had the courage to take a positive position. Britain is also a democracy. And it is really inconceivable that naked, military aggression can be allowed to begin again, this time in this hemisphere, and not be met with determination from the democracies. If there had been no firm reaction, every U.S., British protectorate or ally in far-away places would come to be viewed as possible targets—when London or Washington was weak, distargets--when London or Washington was weak, distracted or at a disadvantage.

For Britain this relates to Gibraltar, Hong Kong, etc.; and for America, it refers to Puerto Rico, the Canal Zone, various Pacific islands and bases and protectorates in the Caribbean. Military aggression, if rewarded, is certain to be repeated and to be tried by other adventurous dictators. We learned that at heavy cost in the 1930's.

"Many homeowners may have an infestation of bagworms and not know it." according to Dr. Alberto R. Quisumbing, a research ento-mologist. The reason is that the bagworm carries a disguise in the form of a nest or bag that looks like a 1½ to 2-inch pine cone.

Because of the "pine cone" Because of the "pine cone" deception, the bagworm has no major natural predators. Also, there are few parasites or diseases that specifically attack the pest. As a result, the bagworm causes widespread damage and destruction to residential evergreens, trees and shrubs.

However, a company called Health-Chem is changing this. New products from the firm are specifically aimed at help-ing to control the bagworm at two critical life cycle stages.

A product called Spray N

1982's Vacation

Millions of Americans face summer with the conviction the entire family must be carted off, somewhere, on summer vaca-tion at the beach, mountains or with Aunt Hattie.

That's often needed by all and refreshing to all. But in recent years, with traffic, costs and congestion what they are today, vacations have sometimes left participants depleted.

Travel experts are now beginning to tell us vaca-tions needn't be far from home; in fact, they can be taken at home--if the routine can be broken.

And if vacations are to include travel, it's best not to undertake too much of it, or long travel tied to and schedules.

HARMLESS PINE CONES. OR ARE THEY? They look like pine cones, but the fact is they are bagworms. Many homeowners may have an infestation of bagworms and don't know it. The reason is the bagworm constructs a nest resembling a 1½ to 2-inch pine cone. Because of its disguise, it has no natural predators and causes widespread damage to about 128 types of plants. Now, for the first time, products are available from Health-Chem that are specifically aimed at controlling the bagworm. Spray N Kill¹⁰⁵ is applied to foliage from May through August to kill bagworm caterpillars, which do damage by feeding on leaf tissue. Mating starts around the beginning of August. During this stage utilize the Lure N Kill¹⁰⁵ bagworm moth traps. The traps are put out to capture and kill the male bagworm before he has a chance to mate.

Watch Your Language
A wealthy farmer decided to go to church one Sunday. After the services he ap to go to church one Sulday.

After the services he approached the preacher with much enthusiasm.
"Reverend, that was a damned good sermon you gave, damned good!"
"I'm satisfied that you liked it, but I wish you wouldn't use those terms in expressing yourself."
"I can't help it, Reverend. I still think it was a damned good sermon. So good that I was so impressed that I put a hundred dollar bill in the collection box."
"The hell you did!"

To His Ugly Face

Policeman: "Can you describe your assailant?"
Victim: "That's what I was doing when he hit me."

among eignty-nine officers who will graduate from the Indiana Law Enforcement Academy at 1 p.m., Friday, June 11, 1982. The Academy is located one-half mile southwest of Plainfield.

The Honorable J. Roberts Dailey, Speaker of the Indiana House of Representatives, will be principal speaker at the event. Colonel Arthur R. Raney Jr., the Academy's Executive Director; and Deputy David S. Kruger of the Akron Police Department, Class President, will also address the graduating officers, their families, and guests.

Indiana requires all non-elected law enforcement officers to successfully complete a minimum of four hundred hours of basic training within their first year of ing within their first year of service. Failure to complete the service. Failure to complete the training results in the officer losing the power of arrest.

It is interesting to note that tax money is not used to support this program. There is no charge to the officer or department; instead, the training is funded through court costs paid by traffic violators and persons charged with criminal offenses.

In line with the Academy's motto, "For All The People," civic groups and families are invited to tour the facility any Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Evening tours can also be arranged. Please call (317) 839-5191.

CCC seeks

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit corporation will offer to enter into additional extended storage agree ments with grain elevator operators and warehousemen for up to 75 million bushels more of grain storage space.

These agreements will be limited to two years, according to CCC Executive Vice President Everett Rank

Rank said CCC would be willing to enter into agreements with warehouse operators who are con-structing new facilities or renova-ting existing facilities, as well as with operators who already have available space covered by a uni-form grain storage agreement. However, at the time these new or renovated facilities become available for storage, the ware-house operators will be required to execute a uniform grain storage agreement, he said.

As of May 14, CCC had entered into extended storage agreements with approved grain elevator operators and warehousemen in ators and warehousemen in 21 states for 101 million bushels of grain storage space, Rank said.

Rank said inquiries about the offer should be directed to Paul King, director of USDA's transportation and storage division here at (202) 447-4018, or James Schlick director of USDA's Kans Schlick, director of USDA's Kansas City Commodity Office at (816) 926-6401 for copies of contractual materials.

Copies of contractual documents are available through Elbert Riddle at the Kansas City office at (816) 926-6444.

LOUISA'S LETTER

We have two teenage ghters and my friends daughters and my friends think I am very old fashioned because I insist on being at home at night when they are supposed to come in or when they have guests.

The girls say it is not necessary because they know right from wrong and know how to behave. Well, I have tried to make them understand that it is not because I don't trust them but I do this not only to protect them from bad situations that might occur if they were alone, but to give them the assurance that no matter what happens, I will be there waiting for them and there will be no question as to when they are expected as to when they are expected home. I think this gives the girls a scapegoat when others try to persuade them to go places they know they are not allowed to visit or to do things that they know they expelled: shouldn't.

What do you think about this?

Mother--Kan.

I think you are a wise mother and will find out that the things you give up today will probably save you a lot of trouble and heartache later

A Look at Hoosier
Conservation Clubs
There have been conservation organizations in Indiana since the early 1800's and possibly late 1700's. There were duck hunting clubs around the Kankakee in the late 1800's which demanded $500 late 1800's which demanded 5500 to $5000 for membership. There were numerous fish and game organizations, Adudubon Societies, Lzaak Walton League Chapters and related organizatins scattered throughout the state.

Through the early and mid-1900's Hoosier interest in conser-vation clubs continued to grow. By 1926 Indiana was better organ-ized among sportsmen and con-servationists, in proportion to popservationists, in proportion to population, than any other state, having 300 active organizations. By the late 1930's and early 1940's, there were more than 1050 clubs claiming a membership of 400,000. These groups had many activi-ties such as rearing and releasing game animals, planting trees, purchasing land and building club houses and shooting ranges. And there was a state organization known as the Indiana Fish, Game and Forest League which helped to keep the numerous county clubs in contact with the Indiana Conservation Department.

The Department of Conserva-tion was abolished in 1965 and replaced by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). As this Natural Resources (DNR). As this change occurred, the Indiana Fish, Game and Forest League was lost and club membership statewide was declining.

Today there are still numerous conservation clubs in Indiana, and while many remain very good and active, there are instances where club activities have become limactive, there are instances where club activities have become limited to playing cards and having fish frys. Many wildlife-oriented activities have gone by the wayside due in part to research proving the vanity of using penreared birds to replenish game populations. The way to game abundance is habitat development, and unfortunately, managing habitat requires land, and ment, and unturnately, mana-ging habitat requires land, and this single requirement leaves many clubs in the dark. And when there's lack of "see and do" activitites, there's a tendency to set up the tables and deal the cards.

Euchre is a good past time but sportsman clubs have a much more important role. First of all, there's not really a lack of good activities, only a lack of good activities, only a lack of good ideas. If you have an idea, please don't keep it to yourself but share it with the DNR. We're always looking for ideas and we may already have some that will interest you.

Secondly, although it may not sound entertaining to some there's a real need for organized sportsmen to regulary sit down together and review recent game research and laws affecting our wildlife resource. It's always good wildlife resource. It's always good to discuss current issues and learn to compromise within your club, and your organized questions and comments are needed and can be very influential when addressed to the DNIP. the DNR.

If you're a member of a sportsman's club 1 encourage you to recognize your group's potential and review your goals, if necessary. If you're not a member 1 encourage you to consider the value of being involved with an

A Day In June

One of the most significant events in the history of the western world is observed on the 15th, Magna Carta Day. On the 15th in 1215, the knights and barons of England forced the King to sign a document containing forty-eight demands.

This event is important to all who believe in democracy for it was the foundation stone on which most of the liberties of people have been built in the centuries since--in the western countries. Actually, King Henry had agreed to many of the provisions of King Henry had agreed to many of the provisions of Magna Carta in 1100 but subsequent kings disregarded his policy. Only when King John, a hundred and fifteen years later, was forced to sign Magna Carta did these freedoms become firmly established.

It's true, of course, that Magna Carta demands were primarily demands concerning the rights of the upper class. But also included in the concessions were -reaching guarantees of liberty and rights for all. After this, it was more than five hundred years before the American Declaration of Independence more firmly established individual rights. All free people, in whatever country, owe much to those who won their demands in 1215.

Teaching & Discipline

By now the nation should have learned--after watching declining test scores and learning levels in recent decades as discipline was lost-that learning and effective teaching require a minimum discipline in the Most of the modern theories about fun and natural inclination in the profession have their values and application, especially in individual or unique cases. But, basically speaking, the first prerequisite of learning is the proper climate in the classroom. That means

In our recent permissiveness binge, teachers, especially traditional or veteran teachers with common sense, were often hard pressed by parents who failed to teach their children any discipline and by modern theorists in school administration-often convinced their new ideas were better than the traditional wisdom of the centuries.

The pendulum has begun to swing back toward the basics and toward discipline in the classroom but damage has been done, and some schools have been almost ruined by excessive permissiveness, liberal theory and a failure to enforce academic and behavioral

No child is smart enough to know what is best for him during his or her early years. Adults have to show the way. And children will not always exert themselves to learn, in school, naturally. They must know that life requires some discipline. It should be administered with kindness and patience but there is no getting around the fact that it must be utilized.

Parents should realize this and support school administrators and teachers fighting the battle to rectify what has been a tragic era in education for America in the sixties and early seventies.

To The Editor:

Yesterday being the 30th day of May; the dedication and memorial services to those of our community who died serving our country, was held at the cemetery, with a small attendance. It's so hard to see so few people interested this very special Service, which only a matter of a few years ago was so well attended. Our high was so well attended. Our high school band had respect enough to care, and would march along with the American Legion, and other groups, such as the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, through the town and to the cemetery, where a large group of people would be gathered, wth cars lined up through the cemetery and back up the street. How sad it is that so small of a community could forget so soon those precious lives that were given in war, and those origet so soon those precious lives that were given in war, and those who are still in our Veterans Homes, so that we could live in peace and freedom. I'm beginning to wonder what this country and to wonder what this country and community defines as freedom, or if they even respect it? It cer-tainly does make one wonder, on a day like yesterday when so few were there at that service to thank were there at that service to thank God for those lives, and for the lives he chose to save of our service men. I for one, being the wife of one he brought back, and the mother of one who has served his country, and the sister of two his country, and the sister of two who survived; do thank God for my country, my community and people such as Bob Whetstone, George Welch, Wayne Baker, Pastor Jones, and the American Legion and War Mothers Unit 106.

Note: the letter below was sent to Kate Jennens, Akron. We thought some of our readers might be interested in reading about a former Akron teacher.

Dear Kate, Your kind letter and the invitation to the alumni gathering came while I was in Florida in April. Unfortunately it was mislaid. I am very sorry for the delay in answer-ing. I did enjoy hearing from you. I remember the Morris family.

You lived north of town and had horses to ride, which, among other things made you very pop-ular and such nice kids.

When I was in the Akron area in the fall of 1980 I had been in touch with Margaret Kindig's daughter, so some knew I was planning to come. I "ran into" a few other former pupils, but I was not there long enough to renew many old friendships. I doubt that Lean ever come again. Not without transportaion. It is much too far to drive myself. After all it is far to drive myself. After all it is over fifty years since I came to Akron to teach in 1929. I was there eight years.

Again I thank you. Friendly greetings to you and to all who remember me. Stop if you are ever in my area. It would be fiftee to see some of you.

Sincerely.

Thesbe A. Elion Hawks 318 N.W. .3rd Ave. Galva, Ill. 61434

I want to express my appreci ation for the appearance of the cemetery at Akron over the Memorial Day week-end. It was mowed and trimmed neatly, and it is good to see it taken such good

New books at Akron library

New Books at Akron Library
The following books are available for the public at the Akron
Carnegie Public Library:
North and South by John Jakes:—This is the compelling, panoramic novel of two families during twenty turbulent, troubled years that culminate in the shaftyears that culminate in the shat-tering Civil War. Here are the Mains, Carolina plantation Mains, Carolina plantation owners, proudly defending an aristocratic way of life; and the Hazards, Pennsylvania industrialists, descended from an English fugitive, and now caught up in the exciting world of invention and commerce. When their two sons meet at West Point and become fast friends, the lives of their families are irrevocably joined.

The Long Masquerade by Madeleine Brent---Emma Delaney knows nothing of life's shams.
She is without pretext assumes that a bright awaits her as the bride of the wealthy Oliver Foy. Too soon she discovers that her life is a masdiscovers that need to a manage querade and pretense her only salvation. This dynamic story takes us from the aristocratic world of Jamaica to the gambling world of London and back to Caribbean where the search for a hidden feture ends in a life and hidden fortune ends in a life and hidden fortune ends in a life and death struggle.

A Lady of Independence by Helen Argers--When Astera Claybourne's rich and loving parents died, they left her something most young nineteenth-century women never had - an independence, a portion of her fortune directly and solely for her own use. Her independent ways not only shock society but lead the Viscount on a merry and often frustrating chase. That spirited courtship which began on a fashionable English country estate takes on an overpowering intensity against the harsh beauties of sity against the harsh beauties of Greece, the even harsher realities of a Greece in revolt against

Turkish domination, and single-minded passion of Greek men for a pretty English face. The United Nations Conspirace by Robert W. Lee---In this book you will discover the powers that launched the UN and control it to this day. And, while you may still be disappointed by the UN's per-formance, you will be sure that true?

Because the postmaster's wife and I, a rural carrier's wife, are both avid refunders. We pester our husbands to death until the third-class bin is empty, and we are sure that all those refund checks are out and on their way to our mailboxes.

DEAR COUPON CLIPPER — Last weekend I attended my first refunders' convention, and it was great! I enjoyed it tremendously. It was amazing to see so many people who shared the same interest.

I once read in your column about a woman who said that if you've never been to a convention, you don't know what you're missing. That is the best way to put it.

During the convention's two trading sessions, I put together $45 worth of refund requests for cash and free products. The ticket for the convention cost me $9, so it paid for itself five times sover, and I'm not through saving yet! — Penny C. from Albany, N.Y.

Knoxville

The publicity about the world's fair at Knoxville has not been too good of late. One hears of long waiting lines, exorbitant prices, etc.

Some of this is inevitable, but the prices reported paid for some rather normal beverages and foods, and other prices are not helping the Fair's image.

The Knoxville fair is not, of course, a top-category world fair, but it is sanctioned as one of the lesser world's fairs but foreign pavilions always offer visitors things of interest and insights not usually available back home

It might be in order for the powers that be to use whatever influence is available to moderate overcharges and see if crowds can be more speedily accommodated (this might be a sign of success of popularity, of course).

Or, if publicity has been unfair, an effort is needed to point that out. Otherwise, some who might go might

POISON IVY

Home treatments for poison ivy and oak seem as plentiful and varied as the stars. Readers of THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS frequently write in to offer their own best' remedies for summer's "thorn in the flesh". These fellow sufferers all swear by their favorite potions and solutions, so maybe at least one of them will work for you. John Haille of Florence, S.C. recommends a solution of 1 oz. prepared phenol—carbolic acid—and 15 oz. water. (Phenol-containing Octagon soap, he says, works almost as well.) Washing with this mixture as soon as possible after exposure. John claims, will eliminate an itching attack. The same preparation can also be used for treatment: The solution stops itching, keeps the area clean, and lets it heal itself.

Jewelweed seems to be an especially popular home remedy. Mark Wilson,of Tewksbuy. Mass. says to crush this member of the balsam family (Impatiens biflora) in your hand and apply it directly on the rash several times a day until it clears. He suggests that a convenient way to store this healer is to boil down a quantity of the herb and make ice cubes of the juice. Then you can apply a cube any time the itchy plant strikes you.

and make ice cubes of the juice. Then you can apply a cube any time the itchy plant strikes you.

Lemon juice is a favorite with Stefni Dawn of Beloit, Wis. She suggests washing the exposed area, patting it dry with a soft towel, and then spreading on as much lemon juice as the skin will absorb. She says one treatment is sometimes enough to neutralize the poison. ... but if itching and swelling return, just apply more juice to the area. Stefni claims her therapy will clear up even a severe case within a few hours. Steve Morgan of Branson, Mo.—who says he's "gone through years of playing the hermit" because of poison ivy, even though he's tried all the medications on the market—has finally found his sure-fire remedy for the pesky plague: Salt. That's right ... wet the affected areas and sprinkle on a little bit of good old table salt! Steve warns that this treatment does burn and smart a bit, but for him it makes those itching, weeping bumps go away.

Along the same line as the lemon juice therapy, vinegar (apple cider vinegar gets lots of votes) is recommended by many. Nancy Kerson of Willow Creek, Calif, says, "Both my husband and I are very allergic to poison ivy and have found that vinegar is most effective if we use it when the very first signs of inflammation appear. Even if we wait until the rash is well developed, the vinegar still stops the tiching better than any of the creams and lotions from the drug store."

Well, all of these formulas sound good in theory—and if applied immediately after contact many of them may well work to prevent the poison rash—but according to a local pharmacist. we know, no acid formula is going to clear up the blisters once they've appeared.

local pharmacist, we know, no acid formula is going to clear up the blisters once they've appeared.

The poison ivy chemical that causes an allergic reaction in some 75% of the U.S. population—urushiol—does have an alkaline base. But once the poisonous substance gets into the blood, and causes redness and swelling, it can be counteracted only by medicines taken internally. Many of the folk remedies can relieve only the symptoms of your allergy. These potions, as well as commercial products designed for external use, the pharmacist says, merely soothe the itching and keep you from scratching and infecting the scree.

If you know you've been exposed to the poisonous plants and can quickly wash the areas with a strong soap, you may be able to remove the oils before they penetrate the underlayers of the skin. (By the way, poison ivy cannot be caught and spread by touching the rash unless some of these coils still remain on the skin.)

Winners of the Good Citizenship contest sponsored by the Anthony Nigo DAR are Tom Heltzel and Cindy Severns of Akron and Deron Manwaring and Angela Swihart of Mentone.

Angela Swihart of Mentone.

Each year a boy and girl of the eighth grade from both schools are selected by the staff as outstanding citizens. The qualifications used for selection are; honor, service, courage, leadership and patriotism. Their names are added to plaques placed in their respective schools. They are also presented with medals appropriate to the occasion.

The Good Citizenship Medal Project was designed to offer a concrete and tangible plan for training in American citizenship. Education of our youth in citizenship is of supreme importance. Patriotic education of our youth means building a stronger Nation for the future. The youth of today are going to be the leaders of tomorrow. We must give them a good understanding of the basic principles of our great Nation so that their gigantic responsibility will be made an easier task.

RECIPE

Fresh vegetables are at most markets and tender squash are quite versatile.

- 8 medium squash 4 strips of bacon
- 1 onion, chopped ½ green pepper, chopped 1½ c crushed saltine
- crackers
- 2 eggs, beaten well Butter Salt and pepper Paprika

Boil the squash in salted water until tender. Drain and chop. Fry bacon until crisp. Saute onion and green pep-per in drippings until tender. Add crumbled bacon, onion and green pepper to squash along with one cup of the crushed crackers, the beaten eggs, and salt and pepper to taste. Mix well and put into a greased casserole. Top with remaining cracker crumbs, dot with butter and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

About Fading Color Prints . . .

Q. I don't argue print stability. I, too, have many test reports. But in a recent article on color print fading, I believe you said Cibachrome prints fare less well than Kodak's Ektacolor 74RC prints. I believed the information I received that the azo dies used in Cibachrome are so stable that the prints are essentially permanent.

Of course, there's one very simple solution.

Publicize each manufacturer's warranty. I'll never see it, but I'd dearly love to read this article: WHO DOES NOT TELL THE PUBLIC THAT THEIR PRINTS FADE AND THAT THEY ARE NOT LIABLE?

F. P. - Milwaukee. WI
A. There's a little misunderstanding, here. In the article on fading color prints, I said that, according to research studies, Cibachrome's prints when stored in darkness were "essentially permanent." I added that, when the prints were exposed to light for long periods, they fared less well. Meaning less well than when stored in darkness, not less well than Kodak's 74RC prints. While it's true that no one has yet marketed a competitively priced color print with archival permanence, it's my understanding that Cibachrome prints are by and large the most permanent color prints available.

Q. I have a four-year-old Canon AE-1 which hasn't been abused. I recently tried to advance the film I was loading, and it advanced only twice before the shutter froze. I pushed the release several times after removing the lens and winder and let the camera sit a few days. Later, on the first try, it released, but then it froze again. What could the problem be? Batteries? Electronics? Demons?

M. E. - Santa Clara, CA

A. Probably weak batteries. Many cameras with electronically controlled shutters refuse to operate as the batteries weaken. Take the camera to the nearest photo dealer and see if new batteries don't, indeed, give you new life.

I recently took six rolls of film to a q. I recently took six rolls of film to a reputable photo lab for development. I shot them on a one-month trip to Italy. In due course, I received a package of photos. One of the sets wasn't mine, and one of my rolls was missing. I returned the stray set and requested that the lab check to see if my shots of Italy had been brought back. To date, I haven't received my photos.

Now, these shots were once-in-a-lifetime photographs. They cannot be replaced. The lab sent me a check for the pre-paid processing and price of a roll of film, which doesn't satisfy me. I want the shots I took on this very expensive trip. I'll probably never go to Italy again and, if I did, the circumstances won't be the same. I could have circumstances won't be the same. I could have sent my film to a mail-order lab and saved some money, but I felt I'd be better off dealing with these "pros" in St. Louis. I'd have been better off with "not-quite-so-good" pictures than with no pictures at all. What do you think? Isn't not-so-good better than none at all?

C. R. D. - Kimberking City. MO

A. Fortunately, mixups like this don't occur often. Unfortunately, this good news doesn't help you get your photos back. If I knew of a lab that could guarantee 100 percent perfection in processing. I'd share the name with you. You could.

cessing, I'd share the name with you. You could, of course, get into processing your own color photos, but then you run the risk of making mistake and ruining some shots, yourself.

About the best thing I can suggest is this: If anyone receives photos not belonging to you, return them at once to the processor. While they may be of little or no interest to you, they could be extremely important to the photographer who

Farm marketing guides

West Lafayette, Ind.-With the West Latayette, Ind. With the general economy marking time, farmers are being advised to sell corn on price rallies in the coming weeks, to watch for slight in-creases in soybean prices, and to creases in soybean prices, and to expect hogs to continue at their current level or a bit higher. Purdue University agricultural economists in providing their monthly marketing guides also predicted fed cattle prices would peak in June, then decline somewhaf, while feeder cattle would continue above year ago levels. Rallies in corn prices of 10 to 15 continue above year ago levels.

Rallies in corn prices of 10 to 15 cents are expected on both old and new crop corn during June and July, they said. Any cut in potential supplies could move grain prices higher, but stronger parkers based on the demand markers based on the demand side seem unlikely in the near future, economists said.

Rotation of corn in the Farm Rotation of corn in the Farm Held Reserve by late summer may cause the basis to widen and could depress prices. Higher loan rates for 1982 corn provide an incentive for producers to redeem old crop corn, sell it and make space for the 1982 crop. Placing the 1981 crop into the FHR is also an alternative, but marketing plans should provide for storage needs for the 1982 crop if this option is chosen.

A strong, expert showing is expected for soybeans during the remainder of the market year. Consider basis contracts at this remainder of the market year. Consider basis contracts at this time for old crop beans. Old crop futures have been in a narrow trading range, but a price move-ment to the $6.90 to $7 range in ment to the 36,90 to 3/ range in July is possible. This should allow pricing of cash beans in the $6.65 to $6.90 range, depending on local basis levels. New crop prices will be very responsive to growing conditions this summer, economists predicted.

Here's how they view other farm commodities:

Hogs - As supplies continue to decline, prices should increase slightly or continue at their cur-rent level. Producers should be alert for signals from the futures market regarding prices beyond 60 days, however. Opportunities exist for hedging in substantial exist for hedging in subsprofits in farrow-to-finish profits in farrow-to-fini operations through 1982.

Fed Cattle - Prices are expected fo peak in June, then decline to the mid-to-high $60s. As cash and future prices find their peak in the next 30 days, cattle feeders should evaluate forward pricing alternatives for cattle marketed during the last half of 1982.

Feeder Cattle - Some price

weakness is expected by July with the magnitude tied to the extent of the fed market, to interest rates or the fed market, to interest rates and grain prices, and to the outlook for meat prices in late 1982 and early 1983. Although prices will likely decline into the fall, price levels are expected to exceed year ago levels.

Dairy Products - Milk prices will remain near current levels for the next two months, but producers should assume that price supports will be reduced rather than increased sometime within next 12 months. With the continuing high budgetary cost of milk price support and related excess supplies, some type of readjustment must be anticipated.

Eggs - Seasonal increases are expected to take egg prices 7 to 10 cents higher during the next two months. Production is under a year ago but export business is Turkeys - Turkey prices should increase moderately during the next couple of months. Some increase has already begun. Production is down 4 percent or more from 1981 and higher retail prices for red meats will increase the demand for turkey meat.

Nursery school to open

Akron U.M. Nursery School Director Onda Good and assistant Patty Mims have announced their intentions to hold registration intentions to noid registration open until Friday. August 27 for the nursery school to be held at the church beginning the fall session, August 31st. The school will be a part of the church activities and be run by the church

Parents of children ages 3, 4, and 5 who are not eligible to attend kindergarten next fall are invited to enroll their children to prepare them for future learning reperiences.

The nursery school will correspond with the same holidays, vacations and also be run during the winter according to the weather (snow days) the same as weather (show days) the same as the Akron School system. Fees will be $35 per month. The school will be open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week from 9 to 11:30 a.m. in the a $10 registration fee. Students registered will have to have a medical examination by their family doctor.

Several field trips will be taken during the year to familiarize the students with the community and local offices.

The goals of the school will be placed on growth in emotional, physical, social and mental development, enabling the children to learn to get along with teachers

Everyone is a some stage of his and other children; develop health and other children; develop health and safety habits, learn to understand themselves, learn how to work and play with others, become self-reliant and develop self-discipline. Increasing their vocabulary will be one aim. The curriculum will include teaching the children their colors, holidays, health habits, addresses and health habits, addresses health habits, addresses and phone numbers, etc. For more information please contact: Onda good, 893-7263, Patty Mims, 893-7088 or Darlene Drudge, 893-7213.

June Weddings

Many may not know it, but May was formerly considered an unlucky month for marriage. June became the month of marriages because of the superstition concerning

When June arrived, a backlog of engaged couples had been created, thus producing a bumper crop of marriages in June. And thus June is -- for the merchant--a month to sell wedding gifts.

Everyone is a fool at some stage of his life.

MISS	AKRON	CONTEST	BLANK

Do you know where you live? This question may seem trite, but do you?? So many times people call the Fire Department, Police ent or EMS for help and giving correct directions to your residence at a time when you are upset or excited is very difficult to do-- so set yourself down-with your family members [living with you] and figure out the directions to give these people if you ever have need for them. It is very difficult for emergency personnel to find someone who tells them they live next to the big red barn, or around the corner from the or around the corner from the cement post, or you will leave the porch light on -- and all the neighbors wanting to know why the ambulance, fire engine, or police are going by -- all turn their porch lights on too!!

Write the dissections are sense.

Write the directions down -correct road numbers, street names, know which town you live closest too, and how many miles in which direction from that town Include any unusual directions it Include any unusual directions it takes to get these people to your location—it will help a lot if you ever need them—and personally—liget tired of hearing people complain how long it takes to get help—when they didn't give the correct directions.

Think about it!! -- then do it!!--it's YOUR duty to know where you live.

I suggest you place the directions in the back of your phone book near the phone.

I want to thank the ladies who mud wrestled and the men who participated in the beautiful legs contest last Saturday at the Akron School--it's been a long time since I saw so many people - young and old alike--laugh so much together. Thanks for a fun evening.

There's a little guy in Mentone-the article is in this issue-who I fell in love with last week-his name is Robby Carr and he needs name is Robby Carr and ne needs lots of help from people like you and me--you know the ones who are busy with our jobs, families, etc. and always make excuses that IF we had time we'd like ir we had time we'd like to———. Anyway, maybe I can't make it every week, but I'm going to tell his mother Linda that I would like to help with his training sessions anytime I can find time and they need me-join in and help Robby, you'll love him too!

I attended the B.J. Thomas Show last Tuesday evening at Valley--what a show! If you missed it, you goofed!! The Mentone Youth League sponsored the show, but Roger Moriarty and Rita Simpson were the "spurs" to the project. Thanks people.

The Mentone Centennial is over now. There were so many people who worked hard on this week-long celebration of a small town's long celebration of a small town's birthday-we can't begin to thank all of them, but I'm going to try. You too?? Appreciation seems so small a thing, but might make all that work seem worthwhile.

Advises 4-H'ers on preparing sheep for show

Four-H club members planning to exhibit sheep and lambs at county fairs and at the State Fair should begin preparing them for show now, says J.B. Outhouse, Purdue University extension animal scientist.

If the lambs are on pasture, they should be removed and placed in dry lot by July 1, says the specialist. This will get them accustomed to dry concentrates and roughages. Trim the feet of the lambs and train them to stand properly.

Market lambs should be shorn by July 1 or in accordance with county regulations, says Outhouse. Breeding ewes and lambs can be shorn in late May or early June to allow for a longer wool growth.

ol growth. Selections of ewes and rams for replacement or breeding should be based on performance records. Performance records can be ob-tained, without charge, from the Indiana Sheep Performance Test-ing Program, conducted by Pur-due's Denartment of Animal Sci-

ing Program, conducted by Put-due's Department of Animal Sci-ences, the specialist advises. Producers who wish to exhibit lambs in the Hoosier Gold Medal Program should weigh the lambs between 70 and 110 days of age and submit the records for summarization by June 15, he says. Exhibitor's cards can be obtained until July 15 from the Indiana Livestock Breeders Association for a small fee.

Welfare Costs

A national columnist recently pointed out that welfare as administered by the federal government is often overly costly. An example used, for the sake of argument, was housing aid, figures for a recent year showing that:

The cost of housing aid administered through the federal government was about $40,000 per family. For less than that, the federal government could have bought apartments for those on welfare and given them a deed and have been done with it.

The high cost of the bureacuracy in administering aid goes further. Cuts are usually applied in overwhelming proportion to recipients. Jobholders in the aid-administering bureaucracy usually hold on to their jobs. And sometimes even reduced aid budgets find the bureaucracy continuing to grow, while aid recipients

The American public has been fed a constant stream of commentary in the media in the last year to the effect that the Reagan Administration doesn't care about the poor, is a rich man's administration, etc. Many have accepted these indictments (which serve a political purpose) but there's a legitimate argument for cuts in welfare waste, jobs and cheating.

A similar situation exists concerning social security. The system will go broke by 1983 and obviously the government doesn't have the money to pour increasing billions into the social security fund, which is supposed to be self-sustaining. So something must be done.

The Reagan Administration suggested briefly, a year ago, that some present benefits be trimmed. Such a howl was raised the president withdrew his proposal. (Many Democrats made political hay out of this suggestion.) The president has now been on record for a year as opposed to cuts and Congressman Carroll Campbell (R-SC) recently released a letter from the president putting the chief executive on record oppos-ing cuts and supporting next month's 7.4 percent cost-of-living increase.

Yet the chorus from entertainment types, politicians and some in the media continues--that the president doesn't care about the poor, etc., and wants to cut doesn't care about the poor, circ, and wants of the benefits. The truth is that Congress has appointed a bi-partisan commission, to report later this year, to propose means to keep social security solvent.

This will involve some future adjustments, inevitably. It is that or watch the fund go broke. The politicians and all Americans should acknowledge this and cease misleading the gullible (and poor and ignorant). It's not a question of caring, but of simple honesty.

NOTICE:

The Akron-Mentone News will accept Letters to the Editor if the iter is signed, however you may request that your name be letter is withheld

Dear Editor:

Dear Editor:

I have pondered long and hard on the advisability of writing this letter, but I've never been one to take the easy course by avoiding difficult issues. My intention herein is not to attack, insult, or accuse anyone of deliberate wrong doing, but my feelings are so strong as to make this letter necessary if I am to continue to respect my own convictions.

The problem I'm having has to do with the recent women's mud wrestling exhibition at the Akron School. Let me say immediately that my objections to this activity are not religious or because I'm prudish or narrow-minded. My object strongly to the school being used for an activity that augments sexual discrimination.

Actually, I find mud wrestling distasteful in any form, but particularly so when endorsed by an educational body that supposedly is there to provide an example for our children and when held in a our children and when held in a public educational facility. By allowing this activity to be held in the school, the school board tacit-ly approved the "sport." I don't want my son to think an activity of this nature is appropri-ate or proper. I'd like to have him grow to respect women for more than their bodies, and he's hardly likely to do so in a room full of people laughing at and ogling some of the town's leading female citizens, who are sprawled in mud.

Let me reiterate my objections to this are that they held the event in the public school. Despite my personal feeling that mud wrestling is a tasteless activity, I wouldn't dream of imposing personal beliefs on anyone else. If they must mud wrestle, please do it someplace else. If they really feel it's an inoffensive activity. feel it's an inoffensive activity, let them do it in a church base-

I'm acquainted with several of the people who participated in this event, and I'm unable to believe any of them had less than honorable intentions. I realize the fund raiser was to assist the fund raiser was to assist the Fourth of July committee in providing the town with a lovely celebration next month, and I applaud them for their good intentions. Still. I'm dismayed they couldn't find a better means of doing so. Trust me, there are less offensive ways to raise big bucks!

offensive ways to raise big bucks!
I enjoy being a part of the Akron community; I am delighted with it, in fact. I appreciate the advantages and security of a small community for a child, as I was raised here when a small child.
However, that does not mean I must approve all the activities of the town, or that I should stifle my objections when I feel they are warranted. I honestly feel this latest exhibition earns the town
no credit. no credit

no credit.

I've probably now offended half the population of Akron, although this was not my intention. I sincerely hope the school board and next year's Fourth of July committee gives more careful con-sideration as to how they use the schools, however, I remain.

Respectfully yours,
Diana Streevey Bucher

Dear Editor:

Dear Editor:
Just wanted to let everyone know that the muddy, hairy event last Saturday night was hilarious. All those who participated in the mud wrestling need a big hearty thank you. Anyone who didn't see it, missed a lot of laughs, I laughed until my jaws ached. We need more of this "dirty" fun, it truly was worth $3 -- plus! I think this would be neat to have every year. Find someone my age and I year. Find someone my age and I would even try it.

LOUISA'S

Dear Louisa:

Dear Louisa:

I am planning to be married in August and will have a church wedding. My sister will be maid of honor and I had planned to have five of my friends as bridesmaids. Now my problem is this-my mother thinks I should ask the groom's sister to be one of the bridesmaids but we have never been good friends have never been good friends or had much to do with each other and I would rather have someone else in her place.

What do you think about this? Do you think it is necessary for me to include her? Gertrude--Miss.

I agree with your mother on this question for several reasons.

To begin with the relationship you establish with your husband's family will have much to do with your future happiness or grief later on and there is no better later on and there is no better time to begin being gracious to the members of his family than now. It is customary to ask the groom's sister to be in the wedding unless there in the wedding unless unless is some very good reason for not doing so and if you leave her out of the party you will probably build up resentment, not only from the girl, herself, but from other members of the family. Having as many bridesmaids as you are planning to have, you should certainly ask her to take part.

Louisa.

Indiana Republicans meet this week

Indianapolis, IN.,-Indiana Republicans will gather here June 17 and 18 for their 1982 State Convention. The 1,851 delegates will nominate four candidates for state offices including Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer and Clerk of the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals.

Thus far, the only persons to file to be candidates at the state convention are the incumbents in each of the four state offices. Secretary of State Ed Simcox will seek re-nomination as will Auditor Charles D. Loos, Treasurer Julian L. Ridlen and Clerk of the Courts Marjorie O'Laughlin.

All four have served in their respective offices since 1978. "Some have said that this year's convention will be dull since no contested races are anticipated," said Gordon K. Durnil, Republican state chairman. "However, can state chairman. "However, the 1982 Republican State Con-vention is important because it

Pre-convention activities begin on Thursday (June 17) with a 10 a.m. meeting of the Indiana Re-publican State Committee at GOP state headquarters.

Each of the candidates will hold an open house in their offices in the State House for convention delegates from 2 to 4 p.m. The 10 districts will hold separate caucuses for delegates at 6 p.m. in the Indiana Concention/Exposition

Center, the convention site.

The convention itself will be called to order at 10 a.m. Friday (June 18). Should no contests arise, the candidates may be elected by an acclamation vote of the delegates.

Employment office at new location

The Indiana Employment Security Division will begin operations at two new locations in Warsaw

Director Harry McFarland said that the division will process unmployment insurance claims at employment insurance claims at the Kosciusko County Courthouse between the hours of 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. each Monday and Wednesday beginning June 28. Claimants should use the west entrance on Lake Street and come to the first floor (basement.)

Job seekers can receive help in their search by visiting the divi-sion's new job service office at Cardinal Center, 504 North Bay Drive. The employment service vill operate full-time, the director said.

Permanent staff no needed at the new locations will be transferred to other Employment Security offices in the area, he added.

McFarland expressed his appr ciation to Kosciusko County officials and local employers who helped the agency obtain rent-free space for its operations.

The employment service has been located at 702 North Detroit St., Warsaw, but because of a $1,000 per month rent at the building and dwindling funds, it was decided to move and operate

e claims division only part-time. The move had been announced last month, but was made official with McFarland's announcement.

Property Damage Accidents Area police officers have inves-tigated the following automobile accidents:

Two cars driven by Daniel O. Greenfield, 34. Indianapolis, and Desra D. Signs, 18. Silver Lake, were traveling on U.S. 30 near Old Rd. 30 when they both passed a car, according to police reports. Greenfield then pulled into the right lane and attempted to pass Signs on the right side. The Signs vehicle pulled into the right lane, striking Greenfield. Damage to Greenfield's car was estimated at under $200. The Signs auto sustained between $200 and $1,000 in damage. Two cars driven by Daniel O. damage.

Incident Reports

Dennis L. Christman, Silver Lake, reported the theft of various items from his home on County Rd. 1150 South, west of County Rd. 700 West. Among the items taken were a stereo, color TV, tape deck, a power chainsaw, a rocking chair, two woodstoves, two chairs, two end tables, four lamps, a sewing machine and $40 in cash. Total value of the merchandise was unknown. Access to the home was apparently gained by breaking a window in the door

Historical Society receives grant

The Fulton County Historical Society received a grant of $200 from the Indiana Arts Commission for the Trial of Courag Rendezvous to be held S.ept. 18-19. This is a matching grant and must be matched dollar for dollar with money from the local community. The grant will be used to pay artistic salaries for performance at the rendezvous, a living history festival held annually. The artists include Nancy Eversole, Mishawaka, dulcimer and other stringed instruments; John Selch, stringed instruments; John Settin, Indianapolis, 18th century puppets and Kent Demmary, Indianapolis, cordwainer and blackjacker. The rare craft of blackjacking is the making of drinking vessels from

Demmary will be new to the Trail of Courage; the others were here before. Demmary is the only nere before. Demmary is the only registered cordwainer in the states of Indiana and Illinois. A teacher at Broadripple High School, Demmary has "been at the bench" for 17 years and his work is well known throught the midwest. He demonstrated for the State of Illinois for 10 years. His work has been on display in museums, art galleries and many museums, art galleries and many historial re-enactments in Indiana, Missouri, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Illinois. He will demonstrate and sell his wares at the Trail of Courage Rendezvous both days.

The Indiana Arts Commission is a State agency created by the Indiana General Assembly in 1969 to encourage and stimulate the arts, cultural resources and artistic freedom in Indiana. The agency ic freedom in Indiana. The agency is further authorized to make surveys and recommendations concerning appropriate methods to encourage participation in and appreciation of the arts.

Not-for-profit organizations which seek to achieve these purposes are eligible to apply for matching erants. For further info-matching grants. For further info-mation about the commission and its purposes, contact the Indiana Arts Commission, 155 East Market Street, Indianapolis, IN 46204, phone 317-232-1268.

Grow your own sprouts

The custom of sprouting seeds is more than twice as old as the Great Wall of China. Today many people are familiar with sprouts only in Chinese cuisine, and usually only bean sprouts. Sprouting possibilities are expanding from beans to a wide variety of seeds. Alfalfa, mung, soy, wheat and lentils are a few of the seeds which are easily sprouted, economical and tasty.

The individual characteristics of

The individual characteristics of sprouts should be considered when used for cooking. Alfalfa sprouts contain less water than other sprouts. On the palate they tend to feel string-like and may tend to cling together. Mung sprouts are larger than alfalfa sprouts and are those most often seen commercially. Soy sprouts are the largest of the sprouts commonly used. They are higher in fat content than the other two.

When sprouting, selection of

When sprouting, selection of the seeds is the first step. If you have never grown seeds for sprouting try mung beans. They have a high percentage of germin-ation, grow rapidly, and taste great.

Be sure to buy untreated seeds that are intended for eating. Never use seeds that were meant to be planted in gardens or on farms because they are treated with a fungicide.

There are many ways to grow sprouts, but the easiest method is using a wide-mouthed jar. Pre-soak the seeds in a clean quart jar and cover them with lukewarm water. Let them soak for 12 hours overnight. Drain the seeds ough a collander. Rinse through a thoroughly, pouring off any excess

Rinse the quart jar and put the seeds back in it for sprouting. Cover the mouth of the jar with a double thickness of cheesecloth and secure it with a rubber band. Place the jar mouth downward at Place the jar mouth downward at a 45 degree angle so the seeds are scattered in a single layer along the sides of the container. Place the jar in a bowl, then put the bowl and jar in a warm, dark the bowl and jar in a warm, dark place for the seeds to sprout. Seeds must be rinsed with water three to four times a day and excess water drained off. If seeds are not kept moist, the crop could be lost. Return to darkness after rinsing.

The sprouts should be ready to eat in three to five days. Remove them before tiny rootlets appear. They can be kept in a covered dish in the refrigerator for several

Sprouts supply some nutritional benefit, but not in large amounts. Two ounces of alfalfa sprouts provide 20 calories, 400 I U's vitamin A and trace amounts of the B A and trace amounts of the B Complex vitamin. The average adults requirement for vitamin A is in the range of 5,000 I. U's. Also 2 ounces of the tiny, thread-like alfalfa sprouts could cover an average dinner plate.

However, if you want something new and different to bright en up your meals, sprouts can fill the bill. Be careful not to overcook them. Part of their appeal is their crisp, crunchy texture. Overcooking can make them soggy. Plus they're fun to grow.

Outdoor barbeques

The days are getting longer, the weather's getting warmer, the snow shovel has finally been snow shovel has finally been packed away for another year and it's time to mow the lawn. And usually about now, dinner meals start seeming repetitious. Take advantage of the outdoors and start barbecuing!

The first thing to do is check your equipment and supplies. The grill should be absolutely clean and rust-free.

and rust-free.

If you will be barbecuing frequently, buy the largest bag of charcoal you can find-it's more economical. It's important to start the season with a fresh supply. Briquets stored over the winter usually have absorbed a lot of moisture and don't burn very well well.

Have a caddy handy with all the "Tools of the trade" easily within reach. These would include a long-handled spatula, a pair of tongs, a set of sharp cutting knives, padded mitts, wood matches, a spray bottle of water and some baking soda. To make clean-ups easier, line the bottom of the grill with heavy duty aluminum foil. Coat the rack with oil or a similar non-stick coating. oil or a similar non-stick coating.

How can you use a barbecue to make mealtime more interesting?

It's not only simple, but time-saving as well.

Anything tastes different and better when cooked out-of-doors. Even plain old hamburgers has a special flavor when grilled over the coals. To add an extra bit of pizzass, just before you put on the meat, sprinkle the coals with hickory flavoring or a handful of your favorite herbs (soaked first).

Farmers to study their main challenges

The current concerns of farmers in Indiana are mirrored in the topics announced for study and discussion by Indiana Farm Bureau, Inc., members who Bureau, Inc., members who attend their annual convention this December in Indianapolis, according to Marion Stackhouse, president of Hoosierland's largest farm organization.

At special interest conferences at the convention, approximately 3,000 farmers and their wives will zero in on soil erosion that removes valuable farm soil from food production; mining of shale for gas and oil; foreign trade needed for farm incomes and to help equalize the United States balance of trade deficit; credit that will enable farmers to continue their food production activities; consumerism, including labeling and generic foods; rates charged by electric, telephone and water utilities, as they affect food production; local governmental challenges, and other topics. "Save Your Soil" will be one of the foremost subjects. This topic was chosen because The Natural Resources Inventory reports in excess of 97.5 million tons of annual soil loss in Indiana.

It is estimated each year that America loses three million acres to erosion or enough land to make a coast-to-coast strip four miles wide. Presently, it requires 1.3 acres of land to feed one person. Losing eight million acres a year takes away food for about six million people

Pertussis is a serious childhood illness that still results in 1000 cases, and an average of 10 deaths annually among the unvaccinated popultaion. The dis-ease is characterized by severe coughing spells which may occur up to 40 times daily, often fol-lowed by vomiting. This condition may go on for a period of up to ten weeks, leaving the victim exhausted with possible, but infrequent complications like

The facts say there are occasional severe reactions associated with the DPT vaccine. They are, however, quite infrequent. The greatest risk to be demonstrated in actual vaccine duent. The greatest risk to be demonstrated in actual vaccine use is 1 in 1750 immunizations given, based on the 1978 U.C.L.A. study. No permanent brain damage or complications were ever noted among those who experienced these reactions in this study. The real risk of severe reactions resulting in permanent brain damage is probably between 1 in 300,000 to 1 in 400,000 based on several studies conducted throughout the world. Since 1978, the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta has monitored all adverse reactions reported thought to be connected with vaccine usage. Any vaccine or specific vaccine lot suspected of creating any type of problem is taken off the market.

It is important to realize the small risk of having a child im-munized against all childhood munized against all childhood diseases is far less than subjecting the child to those diseases and their possible consequences. Even though we have not seen whooping cough in north central Indiana recently, from May to December, 1980, Elkhart and Kosciusko counties experienced an unnecessary epidemic. Although no children died during this time, some were hospitalized, and many children suffered needlessly

HOME COOLING

Before air conditioning came along, venti-lation was the only way to cool a home. It still works today: You can set up ventila-tion air currents in your own home with a fan or by relying on natural powers of con-vection. Either way, the trick is to bring in cool air near or below ground level and ex-beaut if from the attir. haust it from the attic

Convection (or stack) cooling depends on

cool air near or below ground level and exhaust it from the attic.

Convection (or stack) cooling depends on allowing the hot air within your home to rise and create a chimney or stack effect that pulls air from below. For best results, open your basement windows to let in cool, close-to-the-ground air.

Once the cooler air is in the house, it should have an unrestricted upward flow path.
Open the door at the head of the basement steps, all interior passageways, and the door to the attic. (If your attic has no door—just a hatch or a folding staircase that will inconveniently block a hallway if it's left open—put a screened hatch in your upstairs ceiling.) Last, provide some way for hot air in the attic to escape. Roof vents, gable vents, ridge vents, or a turbine ventilator will help get the air moving.

If you decide to use fans or powered vents, it still pays to set your home up as described... the natural stack effect will encourage better airflow and relieve the fan of some of its work. Remember, though, natural or powered ventilation can help cool your home by getting rid of trapped heat, but it will not make your home any cooler than the temperature outside. On the other hand, the slight breeze created by the air flow system will make your home feet cooler than the thermometer might indicate.
Another way to capitalize on ventilation is to cool your house with your fireplace!
All you have to do is purchase an inexpensive square "window" fan. Then open the damper in your fireplace... position the fan in the opening (facing in)... close off the remaining portions of the fireplace's mouth (using anything on hand, such as scraps of cardboard, particle board, or plastic foam)... and—if you really want to go first class—make a three-sided, hinged wooden baffle that will limit the fan's draw to the particularly warm air near the ceiling.
Once you've assembled all the paraphernalia (and made sure that you don't have an upstairs fireplace or woodstove on the same flue... otherwise you'll stir up a hurricane the house roof, you can use it to trickle water down the roof and set up an evaporative cooling cycle. Connect the sprinkler to an outdoor bib and adjust the flow to use as little water as possible... just enough to keep the roof wet down to the eaves. For folks who don't have strategically located shade trees, a rooftop arbor can provide some relief. Grapevines or flowering runners like wisteria, planted along the south side of the house, should grow to roof height within two to three years. The shady clingers will provide natural cooling as well as food for the table or fragrant flowers. And if the plants' roots are watered from the outside, those underground shoots will grow away from the house.

Label NIPSCO management audit waste of money

VALPARAISO, IND,--Daniel J. Falvey Jr., United Research Com-pany's executive operations manager, labeled proposals for a NIPSCO management audit a waste of money. Falvey made his statements in sworn testimony presented before the Public Ser-vice Commission of Indiana, Wednesday, May 12, 1982.

In his filed testimony, Falvey noted that United Research, a nationally-known management consulting firm, was retained by NIPSCO in 1978 to conduct an extensive department-by-department review of the utility's General Engineering, District Engineering, District Engineering, District Engineering, Customer Service ing, Line Distribution, Gas Street Distribution, Customer Service, Garages, Meter Shops, Commer-cial Offices, Meter Reading and Electric Production departments. During the spring and summer of 1978, a careful on-site inspection of these departments was conduc-

After presentation of its findings to management, United Research was retained to design and assist in the implementation of a program of management systems control. This project took from December, 1978 to March,

As a result of this review, a number of specific changes were recommended aimed at enhancing NIPSCO's efficiency and productivity, including a totally new Management Systems Control department, formed in 1980, to oversee on a continuing basis the programs jointly developed and implemented by NIPSCO.

implemented by NIPSCO.

Among the observed findings was a reduction of 177 employees from the Line, Street, Service, Commercial and Meter Reading departments, resulting in an annual savings of approximately $5.6 million. Other documented Research recommendations are improved efficiency in the Meter Reading department, increased maintenance efficiency at the Mitchell and Michigan City generating stations, improved output at ting stations, improved output at the Schahfer Generating Station, and an overall improvement in productivity on a company-wide

Between September, 1981 and January, 1982, United Research returned at NIPSCO's request to conduct an audit review to determine whether the various recom-mendations were being implemented and utilized. Forced outages of the company's generating units at the Rollin M. Schahfer Generating Station decreased from 49 percent to 14.4 percent in Unit 14 and 46.8 percent to 16.4 percent in Unit 15 during the period 1979

June 16, 1982 · THE AKRON-MENTONE NEWS 19 to 1981. Additionally, the twelve to 1981. Additionally, the twelve month average heat rate of Unit 15 was reduced in 1981 to 10;967 BTU/KWH from the 1980 average heat rate of 11,930 BTU/KWH which represents an annualized savings of approximately $4.8 million.

"I believe that this increased availability and the improved average heat rate are due primarily to the preventive maintenance procedures and planned outage procedures which we implemented our 1980 management project,' Falvey said.

"Our audit also shows that the company has implemented almost all recommendations made by United Research in December of 1980 and, indeed, the Manage-ment Systems Control department has refined and expanded upon recommendations."

'In short, the audit shows strong company commitment to strong company commitment to increased productivity on a company-wide basis and that, in a relatively short period of time, significant cost savings have been achieved as a result of this commitment."

In sum Falvey concluded, NIPSCO has already undergone, at its own initiation, a thorough audit of its management practices.

To subject the company to another such examination would be duplicative, unduly disruptive and expensive.

Thoughts on public hearings

By: Joe Scheidler District Wildlife Biologist

District Wildlife Biologist
The process of modifying or introducing regulations affecting our wildlife resource includes public hearings which allow public comment regarding proposed regulation changes. This year, such hearings were held on the first three days of June at three differter locations around the state. I ent locations around the state. I attended a hearing at South Bend along with other DNR people and perhaps 100 concerned sportsmen.

Public hearings make available an excellent opportunity for sportsmen to express their con-cerns to DNR officials. Not only can comments made by sportsmen by very influential in the DNR's decision to adopt or dismiss a proposed regulation change, but getting sportsmen and concerned individuals together at one time to discuss wildlife regulations can be a very valuable lesson in the art of compromising. Hunters don't always like trapping regulations and vice versa, but nothing is gained when sportsmen quarrel with sportsmen about special interests. There are "anti" forces that would like to see all sporting activities that consume wild-life terminated. If we can't learn to give and take among ourselves, we only give the anti's more reason to rally.

All concerned sportsmen should make an effort to mingle with other sportsmen, has out differ-ences and arrive at peaceful settlements through compromise. and public hearings are good opporturnities to learn what other sportsmen and the DNR have on their minds

Landowners and Hunters

In a recent study 5,264 Missouri farmers were asked, among other farmers were asked, among other things, if they would be willing to accept assistance for improving their land for wildlife. More than half (53%) answered "no." When asked to explain why, the answer most frequently given was "don't want to attract hunters."

If a similar survey was conducted in Indiana, would the results

With Indiana's growing deer With Indiana's growing deer herd many farmers, concerned with crop depredation, are open-ing up their lands to hunting, which means new opportunities for sportsmen to demonstrate good hunting ethics. Let's get geared up to knock on doors this fall respect people and property fall, respect people and property, and reverse the downward trend in hunter/landowner relations.

Board hears more harassment charges

For the second time in two months during the regular Akron Town Board meetings, the Akron Police Department has been charged with harassment of town patrons.

Appearing before the board for the second time, Marvin and Carol Bahney owners of the Green Light charged police harassment was running their business out

At the beginning of their outburst against the department Mr. Bahney asked Town Board President Ron Fenimore what was going on in town last Saturday night (June 12). Police Chief Dave Kruger stated that the Indiana State Police came in for a license check at approximately 7:30-8 pm. Bahney claimed this act check at approximately 7:30-8 p.m. Bahney claimed this act drove business out of town for the rest of the evening. He asked Kruger if the police came by request and Kruger told him "no, they just come when they want. Fenimore suggested Bahney talk to the State Police about the matter.

Charges Excessive Tests

Charges Excessive Tests
Bahney made the statement that he thought police officer Jim Spangle was taking a lot of people to Rochester for the breathalizer test and asked how they had been testing. Kruger upon checking with Spangle answered that four out of five taken for the test had been arrested for DWI (driving while intoxicated), upon failing to pass the test.

pass the test.

Ask Change of Parking!

Carol Bahney stated that the taverns are the only businesses in town who are open after 6 p.m. town who are open after 6 p.m. and wanted to know what the police force is trying to do. Kruger answered her, saying that the department is trying to keep drunken drivers out of town. Mrs. Bahney claimed the police car parked in its parking place in front of the Green Light is driving out business, and wanted to know why it couldn't be parked in why it couldn't be parked in another place. Mr. Bahney said with one parking place marked off because of the fire station and another marked off for the police another marked off for the police car, only leaves one parking place open for their business; saying that a business needs parking space, he thought the police could park their car where there are no businesses open, like the doctor's businesses open, like the doctor's parking space or the post office parking spaces.

Board member Bud Waymire argued that the police car should be close to the police station. President Fenimore said there is plant of parking within one block. plenty of parking within one block of any business, people just don't want to walk anymore.

Customer Complaints

Claiming customers complaints about being watched closely by Spangle when they go into the taverns, Mrs. Bahney suggested that the police could return people to the taverns and ask the owners

Fireworks for the 4th?

Sparkling, noisy fireworks are a part of Independence Day celebrations every July 4. This festive and important holiday should not be dimmed by injuries caused by illegal fireworks. Limiting Busing

The U.S. Senate recently passed legislation which would limit the distance and time required to bus children away from neighborhood schools.

The intent of busing, all agree, was good. However, a majority of both black and white races is opposed to extreme busing. The Senate bill would limit school busing trips to 10 miles (or thirty minutes).

In the House, the stumbling block for passage of limiting busing bills in the past has been Representative Peter Rodino (D-NJ) who has bottled up such bills in his Judiciary Committee and prevented them from reaching the floor for a vote. Representative Skip Bafalis (R-Fla) and others have waged a long fight in the House to bring a limited busing bill to a vote. They appear about to succeed, via a discharge petition, which would, if signed by 218 members, move the bill out of Rodino's committee.

The Attorney General has expressed the view the legislation is not unconstitutional. Thus it is to be hoped the House will soon have a chance to vote on the

Make A Will

It's surprising, but legal spokesmen confirm that millions of married Americans have no will, that most single Americans have none.

Married couples and single men and women should make wills--to avoid inequities, complications and injustices, which occur daily in the United States.

Consider the case of a married couple killed in an automobile accident, only the breadwinner (the man in this example), having had a will. In many states if the wife survives a few hours longer than her husband, she has usually automatically inherited his assets. Her estate is then unnecessarily tied up. If there are minor children, they come under guardianship laws, involving complicated court orders, etc.

Single men and women also need wills. At death their assets go to parents, then blood relatives, in most states. But there are complications, delays and expenses even if this order of benefits is clear and accepted. A will eliminates such problems, and often taxes and expenses.

In many states one can execute his or her own will by having two witnesses, who understand that they are witnessing a will, sign a dated paper.

To My Fellow Americans

It is my firm belief that this nation is facing the deployment of troops on foreign soil possibility of all-out war in the very near future.

As a nation, we have again been rapidly stockpiling strategic materials since 1980. Everytime in the past that this has happened, it has lead to war. Registering of 18 year-olds is still in place and there are many other ominous signs.

Our leaders in the recent past have circumvented our Constitu-tion to get us into no-win wars, by calling them "police-actions" and then abandoning our boys left behind as prisoners, after it was decided to end the "police

Because of this past betrayal by our leaders, I consider it a state of emergency that you introduce the following legislation at once and do all in your power to get it

I. No U.S. troops to be sent to any foreign soil except by an act of Congress.

II. Upon the declaration of war on the deployment of any troops the full financial material and human resources of the United States will be employed to obtain a clear-cut victory.

III. That hostilities will not end until every American boy, dead or alive, shall be accounted for and that only Congress shall deter-mine when this provision is fulfilled.

IV That we will cease at once giving aid or doing business with Communist countries, as we are doing and have done in the past.

doing and have done in the past. They are our enemies.

V. That any person doing anything to aid and comfort the enemy (such as Jane Fonda's actions in Hanoi) shall be tried at once as a traitor. Upon conviction the sentence shall be death before a firing squad.

VI. To insure Congress takes their actions seriously, the following shall apply:

ing snail apply:

(a) That hereafter, upon a declaration of war, automatically, one senator from each state and half of all the representatives from each state "to be chosen by shall go to the armed forces for the duration;

(b) That the Vice-President and all living past presidents shall serve during the war, in the armed forces

VII. The above shall be made national policy with notice to be given to all foreign countries.

VIII. This national policy shall be posted at all times in every Federal Building, so that Americans everywhere shall know we mean business and we will never again stand to be destroyed by our own leaders.

IX. After this action has been passed by the Congress, one week shall be given to every person required to register for the draft, to do so. After this time and only then shall they be prosecuted for failure to register.

Until this done, how can this country penalize any young boy for failure to register; until we have guaranteed every American boy that if he should have to go to war, that all America is behind him and we will not quit until we have won and every soldier is accounted for.

I believe we have forfeited our right to require our boys to register until we can guarantee them, that if we send them to fight, we will go all out to win. We must guarantee them that we will enter into no foreign political deals to sell them out. We will not give aid to the enemy as we have in the past and as we are now doing. We must guarantee them that never again shall brave American boys rot in foreign prisons for years, forgotten by their country.

America can again assume her

America can again assume her America can again assume nel leadership as the strongest coun-try on the face of the earth. America can assure peace by being prepared for war, so that enemies will realize the full depth and measure of the consequences of their actions, should they attack our people anywhere in the world. impress upon our leaders that we are all through sacrificing our boys while they play games with foreign governments who are our foreign governments who are our onemies. They are reducing our once great country to a second or third-rate power that must grovel and beg for mercy before small banana republics and tiny Communist countries. Even the Communist regimes in China and Russia would collapse overnight if they ceased to receive heln and they ceased to receive help and aid from Washington. The people in China and in Russia want to be free from their Communist oppressors, but they cannot be as long as Washington is keeping their Communist governments in power. It is enough.

Bicycle Registration Begins
Police Chief Kruger noted that licensing of bicycles and motorized bicycles has begun in Akron licensing of bicycles and holorized bicycles has begun in Akron and although there have been some questions as to why this has to be done, he said when explained to, people have willingly gone ahead with the licensing. He said the purpose for registering and licensing is to provide the Police Department and other agencies the opportunity to rapidly return to the rightful owner all received lost and stolen bicycles and to provide the owner with a postive means of identification of his or her property. The ordinance deadline for licensing is August 1st.

The next meeting of the Akron Town Board will be Tuesday, July 20, 7:30 p.m. in the Akron Town Hall offices.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

We hear so many people bemoaning the good old times but most of those who do so forget the bad old

Many customs that were considered necessary in times past are treated quite casually today. One of these is the question of meals and formal dinners. Today one can invite friends in for a meal and serve grilled ham-burgers, etc., on the patio-with no servants or fancy plate settings.

Answer:

I agree that it is a nice thing that we are not obligated to have formal dinners for our friends unless we choose to do so.

However, it is a pleasant

However, it is a pleasant experience, occasionally, to sit down to a beautifully arranged table and to be served delicious food. But I am also glad that it is not a "must" of today.

Silver Lake to have hike in rates

Public Service Commission officials notified Silver Lake Clerk-Treasurer Tresa Howell last month that the town board's request for a 50 percent water rate increase has been appoved.

Water bills sent to customers in June will reflect the rate hike.

Town board members Louis Kinch, George Hopkins and Norman Krichbaum decided Saturday to raise the customer deposit from $15 to $25. Also, the service charge for restoration of service (shut off because of a delinquent bill) will be increased

Bob Crabill, an official of the Lake Association for Silver Lake, attended the meeting to inquire about the hydrant rental charge to the association. He commented that he feels the rental charge is too high. Action was tabled until the next meeting. In May, the question was raised whether the question was raised whether the residents of Neher Addition be-long to the Lake Association. Eddie Wright, town water and street superintendent, questioned

In other action, the board:

Discussed the possibility of annexing land into the town. They plan to discuss the matter with the town attorney.

Approved an ordinance to establish terms for the removal of vehicles from town streets for the purpose of snow removal.

Agreed to repave streets. They asked Wright to compile a list of streets that need repaired, begin-ning with those that are in the worst condition.

Approved a property owner's request to chop down a tree on the tree lawn in front of his property.

By June Fuller
There is no doubt in my mind that my readers are some of the smartest shoppers in the country.
Here are a few examples of why I can make this claim with certification.

with confidence:

Bennie Gray of Thornwood, N.Y., knew that she was on her way to big savings when she saw the 2-pound box of Aunt Jemima Pancake Mix advertised on sale for 79 cents. The regular price at her store is $1.29.

She checked.

She checked her coupon file and found two 25-cent coupons, which the store doubled. This gave her the two boxes for a total of 58 cents.

"The following week I bought two bottles of Aunt Jennima Pancake Syrup on sale for $1.59 (regulary $1.79) and used two 20-cent coupons, which the store again doubled," she reports.
"I ended up paying only $1.19 for each bottle.
"But the best part was

"But the best part was sending for an Aunt Jemima $2.20 refund using the four proofs of purchase. It was a fun and profitable experience!"

fun and profitable experience?"

Renee McCready of Charleston, Ore., writes that her local Payless Drug Store had Soft Sense hand lotion on sale for 99 cents. On the back of the bottle she discovered a "Buy One, Get One Free" offer.

So, she sent in the proof-of-purchase seal and got her free bottle. Then, she sent in the proof-of-purchase seal from the free bottle for a $1 Soft Sense refund.

"So, the company actually gave me two bottles free," she says. "I call that pretty good," Virginia Fights of Hartford City, Ind., saved money with Creamy DeLuxe frosting. The regular price is $1.39, but she saw it on sale at 99 cents.

"When she got home, we looked through the refund forms and found a $2 Enhance refund. So, my very smart morn wound up with four bottles of shampoo for a dime. How's that for a smart shopper?"

I am proud of all these smart shoppers and a fine daughter who took the time to write to me about her morn. Every reader whose smart shopping experience appears in my column receives a free copy of the refunding magazine, The National Supermarket Shopper.

Unemployment claims drop in Indiana

Indiana's unemployment insur ance claims total dropped by 3,445 last week to 116,477, the Employment Security Division re-

Harry T. McFarland, director, said initial claims increased by 185. However, continued claims declined at two-thirds of the agency's offices due to scattered recalls and benefit exhaustions. There were 2,394 new claims for extended benefits, he added.

McFarland said last week was the seventh consecutive week that the claims total decreased. He attributed the decline primarily to seasonal factors.

Mike Yazel wins Best of Show

Approximately 350 members of the public and guest artists attended the recent 25th Annual Spring Exhibit of Lakeland Art Association. The three day event, held at the "101 Center," Rd. 30 West of Warsaw, was judged by Steve Allen. Big Chapman Lake and Sara Robbins, Syracuse, professional art teachers. There were 84 adult entries and 14 student entries.

Ms. Robbins gave a Critique on the last day of the show, when the awards were given at 3 p.m. She made many favorable comments; some being "variety of subject material," "realism and depth," "well organized," "crisply and carefully done." "bold colors" and "subjects that mean much to our daily lines well expressed."

Robbins teaches Adult Education at Wawasee High School, has taught art in Kentucky and other Indiana schools as well. She holds a B.S. from Ball State and is presently working on her M.S. at U., Fort Wayne. She paints in oils, acrylic and water color.

Doing MORE...With LESS! hy the staff of THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

الم (دود Back around 1849, gold panning was the major source of income for thousands of prospectors, and the average daily find was about half an ounce per person. If you could do as well today (and there's no reason why you can't), such a seemingly small amount of metal would provide you with a pretty impressive day's wages, considering the current world prices of gold.

Your most important piece of 'mining' equipment is a good gold pan. Such a utensil can be as large as 18 inches across, but it's probably best to start with a 12-incher. There's a new plastic pan on the market that simplifies the art of gold panning a bit. In addition to being lightweight, the modern device has built-in ridges, which help to trun the gold.

In addition to being lightweight, the modern device has buttern the gold. Gold can be found—in large quantities—all over the western United States. Lesser known, however, are the gold fields of the eastern U.S... including some particularly rich deposits that have been reported in Georgia. North Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, and Pennsylvania.

The inside curve of a river or stream, crevices, tree roots, and rough bedrock can snare substantial amounts of gold, which is 20 times heavier than an equal volume of water. After you've located a promising spot, dig up a couple of handfuls of sand and gravel and put them in your pan. Then cover the accumulated grit with water and remove all the bigger rocks and pebbles, first making sure that no dirt (and, therefore, possibly gold) is sticking to them.

move all the bigger rocks and peoples, first making suite that ho during the possibly gold) is sticking to them. Now you're ready to pan. Hold the shallow receptacle, containing enough water to put all the ingredients in a state of liquid suspension, in one hand and tilt it away from you at about a 30-degree angle. Then move the pan rapidly back and forth with a slightly oval motion. (If you're using a plastic container, make your movement more like a seesaw.) Keep the action vigorous ... but be careful not to spill any sand. About 30 seconds of this agitation will sift all the gold and heavier materials to the bottom of your pan.

Next, find a calm stretch of water and submerge the container's sand-laden end.

Then draw the pan out slowly . . . allowing the water to carry the lighter sand, sticks, moss, etc. over its edge. You can usually do this about three times before you have to shake down the gold again. (It may take a few tries to get the hang of this panning technique).

e to remove any of the bigger pieces of rock, while you keep an eye out for Continue to remove any of the bigger pieces of rock, while you keep an eye out for nuggets. Work the contents of your pan down until you have mostly black sand left. Swish the sand back and forth, watching carefully for minute specks of "color". It's been said that seven flakes of gold in one pan is the mark of a good spot... and don't let the tiny size of those flakes get you down. They'll add up fast... ten troy ounces of gold take up only one cubic inch of space!

Use tweezers... a wet, narrow came! shair brush... or a wet Q-tip to remove each golden flake from your pan. Put your flakes and nuggets in a vial filled with water. Since gold is usually formed in quartz veins, always check for the metal in any pieces of quartz you run across. Such attractive gold-bearing rocks are particularly valuable to collectors and—like large nuggets—often bring in several times the price of pure gold.

valuable to conectors and the second of pure gold.

You can sell your panned riches to jewelers, collectors, rock shops, dentists, and various companies. You can make jewelry, with tiny flakes suspended in the inside fluid of clear, crystal lockets. Or, of course, you can simply save your bonanza and watch its value grow. After all... what else is "as good as gold"?

TAKEN FROM THE NORTHERN INDIANA CO-OP NEWS JUNE 24, 1942 40 YEARS AGO

June 21, 1892, the Farmers State Bank at Mentone received its first customer, and Saturday two beautiful baskets of flowers were received from two of the large Chicago banking firms with whom the local concern cooper-ates, honoring their 50th anniversary.

The original stockholders were E. M. Eddinger, M.E. Hire, A.C. Manwaring and L.D. Manwaring and the concern was located in the room now occupied by the Blue Barber Shop. Deposits in the bank have grown from a total of $29,797.51 at the end of the first ten years of the bank's existence to a total of $1,035,757.94 June 1, 1942.

Mahlon Mentzer, Dale Kelley and Chester Manwaring left Wed-nesday for Traverse City, Michigan where they planned to spend the balance of the week fishing. However, they may return sooner as all they took along to hold the fish was a large tub and they promised to come home when they had it filled with fish. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manwaring left for the same city earlier in the day and the two carloads will meet there.

Four percent pay raises approved

Plaques were presented to outgoing Tippecanoe Valley School Board members Don Snipes and Lee Norris during the regular meeting of the board Monday, June 14, in recognition of their services to the corporation. New board members Cecil Miller and William Rogers will be sworn in during the board's re-organization meeting set for July 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school lecture room.

p.m. in the high school recture room.

Norris on receiving his plaque thanked everyone who had worked with him while he was on the school board - saying it had been a very meaningful experience. He also thanked the voters in the last election who voted for him, realizing he lost the election because of his position on the school building program. Norris said that he thought it would be neglectful to ignore the need to update the corporation's buildings and expressed the hope that the period of change will not distract from the educational process.

Stating it had been a learning

Stating it had been a learning experience for him, Don Snipes, expressed his hope that the new board members will continue with the construction plans. He said he was glad to serve with all the results are the terff and hoped that people on the staff and hoped that people would realize how many people the corporation serves, saying it is impossible to satisfy all of them.

School Bus Bonds

Thursday, July 8 is the date set by attorney Fred Rakestraw for the sale of school bus bonds in the amount of $200,000. Anyone wishing to purchase the bonds may be at the high school lecture room at 1:30 p.m. on the above date to submit their sealed bids.

School board members and officials will travel to Indianapolis Wednesday, for the hearing set by the State Board of Tax Commissioners on the Akron-Burket project.

School Bus Conversion
Superintendent Baxter Paige re ported to board members on the conversion and comparison of two school buses using LP and one school bus which had a dual system of LP and gasoline. In a study made since the buses were switched to the new fuel systems during spring vaction this year, Paige reported the savings for the LP-gasoline conversion would project an average $345 savings per year, while the other buses converted to LP only, would save $369 and $478, the difference being in the mileage driven.

He noted the conversions would cost $1000 with an average recovery on the cost for conversions, through savings, being 2-3 years. The main issue for conversion is the reduction of maintenance on buses, the drivers having reported there was no significant change in performance.

On a motion by Lee Norris, the board voted to convert the preboard voted to convert the pre-sently owned newer buses (Fords) to the dual system; conversions to be done on the new buses when delivery is made. The motion also included the decision to purchase a 18,000 gallon LP tank and pump. pump.

hat time in Silver Lake. In 1950 the auto sales moved to its present location on State Road 15 South, under the management of Dean Kerlin and in 1975 the Tractor and Implement Sales moved to new facilities on State Road 15 North, managed by Kenneth and Ted Kerlin. The Kerlins also sell new and used school buses at their new facility on Road 15 North, managed by Ed Kerlin.

To commemorate their 55 years of service, the anniversary cele-bration will feature a 1955 Ford Thunderbird owned by Kirk Robinson, Akron. Robinson is the funeral director at Sheetz Funeral Home, Akron. The 1955 T-Bird is one of the most sought after automotive collector's items. Of the 16,000 T-Birds built in 1955, only about 6,000 are still in existance today.

Kirk and his friends spent approximately 4,000 hours assembling this car to new condition. The car will be on display through July 10 at Kerlin Motor company. Also on display is a 1927 Model Γ, owned by John Werstler of Pierceton, Indiana.

An Open House will complete the anniversary celebration on Saturday, July 10. Everyone is urged to attend the Open House and sign up for the drawing to be held in connection with Kerlin's 55 Anniversary.

The House Budget

Though the recently-passed House budget, a creation of conservative Democrats and Republicans, is not assured of adoption, it represents a victory for the Reagan Administration, and hopefully, for the Tardy as this action was, it indicates the majority in the House is still a Republican-fiscally conservative Democrat coalition which holds that President Reagan's program should be given a chance to work. As was true in England when Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher applied corrective fiscally-conservative policies to a sinking ship of state, the change took time to achieve results.

Many had thought that in this election year, liberal-spending Democrats (they say they care more and they do--for the votes of federal aid recipients) could exploit the continuing recession to stall the economic recovery program of the Republican Administration. But enough Democrats still favor letting the president's program have its chance.

Much credit in this belated, still tentative victory must be given to Mr. Reagan. With his constant, well-spoken criticism of obstructionists in the House. and his last-minute effort to split differences (rejected by Speaker Tip O'Neill), he succeeded in putting bigger spending Democrats on the defensive.

It was effective public relations leadership, which few have fully recognized even now.

What the nation deserves is a budget which holds the deficit to a reasonable figure (Mr. Reagan himself erred on this in his first proposals), quickly passed by Congress and enacted into law, before the August congressional recess.

If that is done, coupled with July pay hikes and Social Security increases, the economy might soon show improvement. Once an upward economic trend is established, buyer and investor confidence will add to

Gettysburg--July, 1863

The fateful struggle between the states in 1861-65 climaxed, in the east, at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. General Robert E. Lee was moving northward through southern Pennsylvania when he wheeled east and south to meet the approaching Union Army of General George Meade.

On July 1, 1863, the forces first clashed, with Confederates driving Federals through the town itself, a South Carolina regiment first raising the South's flag over that town. Meade thereafter conducted a shrewd, defensive battle and Lee lost his chance to win on the second day.

Confederate attacks on that second day uncoordinated, and late in beginning. Though they gained ground, Federal forces merely fell back to higher, stronger positions. General Lee fatally miscal-culated on July 3, sending 10,000 men on an impossible mission--an attack on the Union center across fields open to heavy rifle and artillery fire. The Southerners were decimated.

Lee graciously took the blame and retreated. Meade was criticized for not following up the retreat vigorously. But he had conducted a skillful battle and won.

But Lee was fighting to win. Had he beaten Meade he could have taken Washington and Baltimore. In fairness to Lee, he had asked Richmond for two more available divisions to insure success of the invasion but didn't get them. Meade only slightly outnumbered him att Gettysburg. The losses suffered in that battle could never be made up by the less populous and blockaded South. Gettysburg, then, was the turn of the tide-the last chance for the South to gain a military decision, independence.

For the North it was a glorious, decisive victory, which insured preservation of the Union, and checked the invasion of Maryland and Pennsylvania-aimed at Harrisburg.

New Chairman Of Joint Chiefs Says Army Improved; Tank Good

By Edward H. Sims

WASHINGTON, D. C. .. The new chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Army's General Jack Vessey, says the U.S. Army is much improved.

Commenting on reports that too many soldiers, especially in Germany, are or were drug addicts, or unmotivated,

When shout the Army's M-1 tank, which has been so

"I would say the Army today is the best it has been in many years."

What about the Army's M-1 tank, which has been so maligned by the media?

"The new tank is much better than media criticism would have you believe. It's a fine tank. The turbine engine is working well. I'm very happy with it."

Asked whether we are building enough tanks to compete with a potential enemy (the Russians are estimated to be building between five and ten thousand a year), Vessey noted that production was ninety tanks a month—a publicly released figure.

"'Of course we'd be happy to have more. If we cut back on production that would only be because we weren't given the money." (There are reports that ninety-per-month production might be cut to sixty by Congress.)

Vessey, who served as a GI in Italy and won a battlefield promotion, stresses competent personnel. He admits there was a time, a short while back, when the Army was being forced to accept undesirables to get the manpower it needed. That situation has happily improved, he says. The Army has raised its entrance standards and is getting better attract qualified enlistees.

Vessey thinks it's desirable to have a representative army, one which represents all the people and sections of the nation. He says military pay today is good and that this is helping to attract qualified enlistees.

"There was a time when we were taking anyone who could breathe," he remarked. That's not true today.

Vessey believes the volunteer army is improving and he is dedicated to doing the job, as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs, with volunteer forces. But he admits the draft helps bring in Americans from all walks of life and makes the services representative of the American people.

Likewise, as to roles and missions, Vessey is dedicated to the job of improving performance under the present agreement on roles and missions.

He believes the new Air Force chief of staff, a former fighter pilot, will-cooperate to provide ground troops with effective close air support.

effective close air support.

Vessey is not a defeatist, or an apologist, for U.S. armed forces. He approaches his new responsibility in a positive frame of mind, as a "can do" general. And Vessey is not a

When in Korea, he risked his job and future by speaking out against a reduction in U.S. Army troop strength, as was proposed by President Carter.

An aide who was with him at that time said he felt the general might be recalled at any time for speaking his mind, for it wasn't popular in some high circles. But he survived and President Reagan recently named him to the nation's top military post, the term beginning July 1.

On the Fourth of July the people of this country observe the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, one of the most important documents of history.

In it, Thomas Jefferson, the principal author, set forth the inalienable rights of man and the theory that governments are instituted by men, not by God, and, therefore, derive their powers from the consent of the governed.

This was a revolutionary doctrine in 1776. Moreover, the Declaration makes plain the right of the people to alter or abolish their government and to institute a new government in such a form as they may deem most likely to provide for their safety and happiness.

The historic Fourth has become identified as a day of leisure, marked by fireworks, accidents, games and amusement. There are also, appropriately, programs which point out the significance of the Declaration and the principles it expresses, which should not be forgotten.

July ushers in the second half of the calendar year. It's still the first month of the fiscal year for many.

July is named for Julius Caesar, a change from its former name of Quintilis, changed on the order of Mark Antony, being the month in which Caesar was born.

For Americans, July is an especially historic month.

Our independence is celebrated on the Fourth, of course, and the Battle of Gettysburg was fought during the first three days of July in 1863.

Three days of July in 1602.

Three of our presidents were born in July: John Quincy Adams, Calvin Coolidge and Gerald Ford. The first admiral in the U.S. Navy, David G. Farragut, was born on July 5, 1801. The Republican Party was founded July 6, 1854, at Jackson, Michigan.

A largely forgotten, though relatively recent, day is

July 10. On that day in 1943 the Allies invaded Europe for the first time in World War II. General Dwight Eisenhower led an amphibious invasion of Sicily.

July, the first full month of summer, is the month of vacations, holidays, swimming, boating and outdoor pleasures -- and too many highway deaths.

We are getting so sick and tired of reading about these tavern owners here in Akron complain we could scream. If they don't like the laws, let them take their hell-hole joints out in the country, here they'd have all the parking space needed and it's doubtful if the police will be at their door watching people go in and out.

Just let one of these owners

The Two-Edged Sword!

Have you ever wondered about the meaning of the two-edged sword as given in Heb. 4:12, which reads, "For the Word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the divid-ing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart?" Again, we see the Lord God using terms with which people were familiar. Through experimentation they had been seen to be a seen to the seen the seen that the found the five-bladed sword to be too heavy and others to not reach their marks, and so had developed the two-edged sword called 'Macharia.' The sword of the Word of God is even more powerful than the two-edged one cutting everywhere, in all places, at all times, and always in season His wonders and His will to achieve; but the words of the Bible are nothing in themselves for they must be activated by the Holy must be activated by the Holy Spirit to become powerful and this is why it is called the Sword of the Spirit. (Eph. 6:17)

"Faith (belief in Christ) cometh by hearing..." and hearts can be pricked by the powerful Word of God (Rom. 10:17) and (Acts 2:36-38) unto conviction and repentance. This is followed by sealing as our Lord shows that we belong to Him; similar to the branding of cattle or to circum-cision as the blood of Jesus cleanses or cuts out past sins and cleanses or cuts out past sima and as His Spirit then enters into the souls of the saved. (1 Jn. 5:12, Rom. 8:16, and Jn. 10:29) The Sword of the Spirit was likened unto a "rushing and mighty wind" (Acts 2:1) at Pentecost, for wind" (Acts 2:1) at Pentecost, for it was a penetrating force within the hearts of believers as it filled them with power and enabled them to witness boldly for the Lord. Paul said that his preach-ing was in demonstration of the Spirit and power." (I Cor. 2:4) In Gen. 1:2, the Spirit of God brooded over the water like a dove bringing things into order, dove bringing things into order, symbolizing harmlessness, gentle-ness, tenderness, love, security, and peace; but these cannot be ours without the Holy Comforter living His life through us, for Jesus said in Matt. 18:19: Jesus said in Matt. 18:19:

"...none is good save one and that is God." He spoke of Himself. Christ came to bring a sword

Water is a type of the Holy Spirit which cleanses us through the Word. (Eph. 5:26, Ps. 119:11, and Ezek. 36:25-27) Living waters were experienced by the woman of Samaria as she met and talked with Jesus, the Word, (Jm. 1:1, 12-14) at the well and came away thirsting no more. In Ezek. 47: 1-9, we see the movement and the flowing of the Spirit like unto waters, and according to the flowing of the Spirit like unto waters, and according to the degree that we have partaken of the words of the Bible: to the ankles (walking in the Spirit, Gal. 5:13-26 and 6); to the knees (prayer, Rom. 8:26-27); to the loins (girding for service, Jer. 17. 7,8); and to water deep enough for expiring indicates being for swimming indicates being filled with the Spirit which will cause living water to flow from us to others. (Jn. 7:38).

In those days they anointed their kings with oil; but today, Christ our King anoints the obedient believers with His indwelling Spirit to become the "lights of the world" (Matt. 5:14) as we witness and work for His glory.

Fire is a symbol of cleansing and judgement. The Sword of the Spirit will judge the works of believers after the rapture. (I Cor. 3:13-15) There is a description of the Lord in Rev. 1:13-16 with the two-edged sword (Word) in His mouth. His eyes as fire. feet like mouth. His eyes as fire. feet like brass..coming to smite unbelievers at Armageddon, later after the Millenium to judge all those rejecting Christ at the Great White Throne Judgement, casting them into hell fire forever (Rev. 20 and 21), to purify and destroy heaven and earth by fire (nuclear blast in II Peter 3:10-12), and to create a new heaven and a new earth. (Rev. 21). Then eternity sets in for all who belong to the Lord.

In order to have the full force of the mighty Sword of the Spirit within our lives, we need to feed within our lives, we need to feed sumptuously on the words of His Bible each day, to obey them and thus "to delight in the Lord" (Ps. 37:4) and receive His many bless-ings of an abundant life here on earth and also in the heavenlies.
The more we learn of Him, the more we love Him and know that truly He is a wonderful Lord God!

A special performance of "Brig-adoon" will be presented on Sun-day, July 18, at 2 p.m. at the Wagon Wheel Playhouse in War-saw. The Kosciusko County Nurses Society is spearheading the event for the mutual benefit of the American Lung Association of North Central Indiana and the Kosciusko County Nurses Society.

"Brigadoon," a bewitching musical by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, is the story of Prederick Loewe, is the story of two young Americans who begin on a hunting expedition in Scot-land. During the expedition, they stumble upon Brigadoon, an enchanged village in the High-lands that comes to life for only one day every hundred years.

The play is directed by Tom Roland and under the musical direction of Michael Golemo.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

We have been living in our new house for two years but my husband cares absolutely nothing about taking care of the yard. I like to work in the yard but I haven't the time as I do all of my own house work. house work.

house work.

Our place is not big but I love flowers and they take a lot of stooping and working. How can I interest my husband in the yard? The only thing he will do now is to mow the grass.

Likes Flowers-Okla.

Answer:
I think the answer to your problem will be to plant things that do not take much care in order to thrive or that do not have to be planted every year.

You say that your husband will mow the lawn so, if band will mow the lawn so, it I were you, I would concentrate my energies on having a lovely lawn with small shrubs around the house and bulbs for spring. Some roses take very little care and give a big return for your money.

Some men like to work with plants and do a wonder ful job when they are really interested, but you can just be happy if yours will keep the grass mowed.

A look at Indiana pheasants

By: Joe Scheidler District Wildlife Biologist A Look At Indiana Pheasants

A Look At Indiana Pneasants
Ring-necked pheasants in Indiana come from a line of birds originally inhabiting agricultural areas of China and neighboring countries. The birds were first brought to the U.S. in 1733 but a successful introduction was not made until 1881, in the state of Oregon.

The first documented release of 1899 The first documented release of ring-necks in Indiana was in 1899 when the Commissioner of Fisheries and Game imported 250 birds and released them in small flocks throughout the state. This and other releases in the early 1900's were ineffective, and by the close of the first World War, the pheasent was nearly extinct in Indiana.

of the first worth war, the phea-sant was nearly extinct in Indiana. However, during the period 1930-1958, over 1,500,000 phea-sants were released and began establishing colonies in some areas of Indiana. It soon became areas of Indiana. It soon became obvious that the pheasant's speci-fic habitat needs were not well understood because some birds were doing quite well in release areas while others seemingly could not gain a foot-hold. Generally, the southern-most extent of pheasant range did not exceed the boundary of the Wisconsin Glacier, which covered roughly the northern two-thirds of the state. And the areas that produced the most pheasants, the "prime range", closely matched the boundaries of the original Hoosier prairie in northwest Indiana. Likewise in other states, the best pheasant range became associated with dark, heavy soils that developed under prairie grasses or ally, the southern-most extent oped under prairie grasses or glacial lakes.

Like many game animals, pheasants responded favorably to early agricultural practices. In the middle of this century, land use in the prime pheasant range was defined prime pheasant range was ceilied as having at least 20 percent corn, 20 percent small grains, 10-20 percent in rotation hay and pasture and not more than 9 percent in rough pasture, wasteland and timber. This land use pattern provided quality habitat for a flourishing bird population through the 1960's and early 1970's. But through the 1970's a shift in land use to more intensive cultivation and fall plowing left little food and cover for Hoosier pheasants, and untimely severe winters in the late 1970's delivered deadly blows to a declining population.

Pheasants are hardy birds and will withstand inclimate winter weather if provided adequate habitat. Good stands of grasses and legumes offer food and nesting cover, but woody growth and and regumes oner root an inesting cover, but woody growth and stong-stalked annuals are necessary to assure winter shelter. Woodland edges, fencerows, idle areas, shallow wetlands and ditchbanks offer this critical protection, the in reason cover these babitats. but in many cases these habitats have been cleared, mowed, drained or cropped.

The Indiana Division of Fish and Wildlife is responding to the pheasant's plight by entering into special land lease and cost-shar-ing agreements with landowners in the pheasant range. Releasing pen-reared birds is not an effective means of restoring pheasant populations; "setting the table" by provided suitable habitat is the best and only realistic approach to the problem.

Landowner interest in the pheasant programs exceeds available funds, and while the work being one is very good, it replaces only fraction of the quality habitat that existed a decade ago. The recovery of Indiana's pheasants will likely be a slow one, but any degree of recovery is a step in the right direction.

By: Patricia M. Rathbun Extension Agent, Home Ec From the giant aurochs drawn on the caveman's wall to the sizzling steak on the backyard grill, beef animals have been an important factor in man's existence. Today, we enjoy beef in its many forms available. But if it had not been for the pioneering of master breeders in England and Scotland in the early 1800's, the T-bone as we know it today would not exist.

The Shorthorn, the oldest of the popular breeds, was first brought to this country from England in 1783. Henry Clay introduced the first Hereford cattle to America in 1817. This importation came from the native home of the breed-Herefordshire, England. Angus cattle organizated in Aberdeen County in northeastern Scotland and were introduced to the states in 1873. These are only a few of the many breeds raised for beef production.

Beef accounts for about 60% of the average American's neat diet.

the average American's meat diet. Lean, well-trimmed beef provides only a moderate number of calories--3 oz. lean steak provides 175 calories; 3 oz. beef pattie, 185 calories; 3 oz. lean oven roast, 205

Beef abound in flavor and nutri-tive value. Whether you eat a hearty steak or a quick hambur-ger, you get high quality pro-tein, B vitamins, and iron. In addition, beef and calf liver are widely acclaimed for vitamin A

Appearance of fresh meat is an important guide to quality. Good-quality beef lean is a uniform, bright, light-to-deep-red. Fine textured firm lean is preferable to coarse-textured soft lean. The economy of a cut of beef depends on the amount of cooked depends on the amount of cooked lean meat it provides as well as its price per pound. For example, round steak and beef rib roast may cost the same per pound, but the round steak will provide 2 to 3 ounces more cooked lean per pound purchased.

Remember that more expensive does not necessarily mean better. Equal-size servings of cooked lean from different cuts provides simi-lar food value. Therefore you can find good buys in food value by comparing the cost of purchased amounts that will provide equal amounts of cooked lean. Price per serving, not price per pound, will be your guide to getting the best

For maximum tenderness and juiciness, cook beef at low to moderate temperatures. The aroma from meat cooked at these temperatures is more pleasant and the color more even than that of meat cooked at high temper-atures. There is also less shrink-age at low to moderate temper-

Beef can be cooked to the degree of doneness of your choice--rare, medium or well choice-rare, medium or well done. Generally, beef is consider-ed rare when roasted to 140 degrees F, medium at 160 de-grees F, and well done at 170 degrees F. These are internal temperatures taken in the center of the meat.

Beef has been a mainstay of the American diet for many years and will continue to rank as one of America's favorite. You can learn more by visiting the Kosciusko County Cattlemen's booth at Owen's Supermarket, Warsaw, July 2 and 3.

CCC interest rate lowered

Commodity and farm storage facility loans disbursed in June by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will carry a 13.625 percent interest rate, according to CCC Executive Vice President Everett Rank.

The new rate, down from 14.125 percent, reflects the interest rate charged CCC by the U.S. Treasury in June, Rank said.

How to turn a doubter into a refunder

By June Fuller
DEAR JUNE — I was busy working on my refund ing recently when a friend came to visit. When she saw what I was doing, she remarked that it didn't seem worth the work. Her comment really gave me a start because I never thought

ment really gave me a start because I never thought about it as work.

After she left, I started thinking about all the refunding friends I had made, all the gifts and premiums I had received, and all the coupons and cash that made the grocery line a more pleasant experience. I'm on Cloud Nine when I find a new refund form that I can use.

I feel a real sense of accomplishment when I finally complete all the requirements of a particularly demanding offer. My list of benefits from refunding is almost endless, and I am sure that other refunders have their own special moments when they experience tremendous satisfaction.

I feel sorry for my friend who will never know the joys of refunding. It is too bad that some people can't see that the quarters and dollars we save really add up. We refunders are very well paid for the time we invest in our hobby. — Eleanor K. from Port Orange, Fla.

DEAR ELEANOR — I agree with you except for one thing. Why go on feeling sorry for your friend? Why not help her?
Give her some high-value coupons for some products you know she uses. Give her a refund form on her favorite brand of coffee.

If she is really your friend, she is certainly worth the time and effort. If you turn her into a couponer and refunder, your "investment" in her education will pay you big dividends.

Louisville, Ky., to visit relatives.

On the morning we were to leave, my sister-in-law called from Louisville and said: "Bring all your coupons. We are having double coupon days!"

I was so excited as the stores in my area aren't offering to double the value of coupons.

Over the weekend I bought $31.25 worth of groceries for just $16.85. Not bad if you consider these were just non-perishables, that it was the fifth day of doubling, that the stores were out of a lot of items — and that the stores wouldn't double any coupon over 50 cents!

The $14.40 paid for our gasoline, and I got the chance to talk refunding and trading to my sister-in-law and several of her refunding friends. It was a GREAT weekend! — Ellen V. from Greenwood, Ind.

Available-Light

There are some times when electronic flash, bulbs, or cubes just won't do. Times when you want to capture a particular poignancy or moodiness that flash can only destroy. Unfortunately, some photographers still believe that inches door photos simply won't turn out unless the flash is turned on. In this day and age, that's pure, unadulterated hogwash.

Sure, there are some camera-and-film combinations that work best (or only) with flash in low-light situations. Polaroid SX-70 and Kodak instant-print pop into mind. But, by and large, most photographers shooting these days--even those who own instant-print cameras--have conventional cameras, mostly 35 mm SLRs, which accept film capable of capturing low-light situations

Of course, no film available to the amateur photographer can function without any light. In order to be able to capture the moment without flash, you'll need natural light-the sun streaming through an open door or a nearby window-or artificial light, usually tungsten from a nearby lamp. Or, perhaps, fluorescent light from an overhead fixture, candlelight, or the soft, flickering glow from a nearby fireplace.

The key to successfully shooting via natural light is the film you choose. With sunlight, select a daylight-balanced film, preferably high-speed. For artificial light, you'll need a film balanced for the specific type of light (tungsten color film shot under tungsten light, for example) or daylight color film shot through a corrective filter. Your photo dealer can help you select the proper filter for the type of light you'll be shooting in.

Of course, the other option is to shoot blackand white film. It works fine under all types of light-natural or artificial, tungsten or fluorescent

(or a combination of both).

You'll want a fast film, something in the range of 200 - 400 ASA, in order to create an exposure in low light. The lower the light, the faster the film should be. For extremely low-light situations (like the light from a single candle), you can often "push" a film-that is, shoot a 400 ASA film at 800 or even 1600 ASA--and notify your pro-cessor to make the necessary adjustments in processing to correct for the pushing.

Also, unless you have an extremely patient subject--or an inanimate one--a fast film will allow you to use a reasonably fast shutter speed. That's important, especially with fidgety subjects, in order to avoid the blurred photos that result from subject movement and slow speeds.

Regardless of film type, speed, and shutter speed, most available-light photos require the use of a tripod and cable release. These will help you avoid another common cause of blurred photos-camera motion during exposure. As a rule, handheld shots should be taken at speeds no slower than the inverse of the focal length of the lens attached to your camera. In other words, if you're using a 50 mm lens, the slowest speed you should shoot handheld at is the inverse of 50, or 1/50 second (rounded off to the more commonly available shutter speed of 1/60 second). For a 125 mm lens, use a shutter speed of no longer than 1/125 second. Anything slower requires the use of a tripod and cable release.

Also, be careful when metering indoors when the light source is included in the scene. A strong, single point of light can often influence your camera's averaging meter adversely. To be sure you're taking a meter reading of the subject and not the nearby light, move in close enough to get a meter reading of the subject's face, then set your camera accordingly and move back to the point from which you wish to take the shot, ignoring any change in the meter reading. The results should be "right on."

Don't discard extra batter from waffles, French toast or pancakes. Cook and then freeze. When wanted, just popinto toaster to reheat.

Falklands Finale

Britain's success in retaking the Falklands Islands should reassure all those who cherish democratic government and international law. While it can be argued Argentina has a serious claim to the islands, it can't be argued seriously that surprise military force is the means with which to change sovereignty which has the means with which to change sovereighty which has existed for a century and a half.

If that were to be condoned, Mexico could seize some of the U.S. southwest, and almost every country in Europe could move militarily against one of its neighbors—based on events in the 19th century.

The Organization of American States did itself no good in this crisis. Rather than upholding the democratic process (Falkland Islanders were overwhelmingly in favor of remaining under British whemingly in tavor of remaining under Johnson sovereignty) and opposing naked military aggression by a dictatorship, the organization was intimidated by Argentina and criticized the Thatcher government it England for attempting to retake the islands.

The lesson in all this is that too many Latin regimes to the south lack the dedication and respect for democracy Americans cherish. Emotional temperament overruled sober judgment. If they now fret because the United States stood for international law and the democratic process, the reflection is on these regimes, not Washington.

But one suspects their resentment of U.S. support for Great Britain will soon be forgotten, especially since each year they all want financial and technical aid from agression will weaken Argentina's influence in the New World and the dictator within that country. Meanwhile Margaret Thatcher, and the British armed forces, come out with enhanced reputations. The prime minister had the courage to hit back. And the strengt forces though they effected more losses from armed forces, though they suffered more losses from the air than had been anticipated, proved adventurers can't twist the old lion's tail with impunity.

The best result, from Washington's viewpoint, is that Thatcher's success greatly strengthens her government and her personal popularity, at a time when her corrective economic policies are at last beginning to work.

For a time critics of the left poured forth a drumbeat of claims that her economic policies would never work. But now Britain is regaining its economic feet. Mrs. Thatcher can now add to that accomplishment a successful foreign and military policy.

Russia's Offer

The new posture by Moscow, a pledge to the world in the U.N. not to be the first to use nuclear weapons, should not be casually dismissed, as some suggest.

The new part is that this is a unilateral pledge and not a proposed mutual agreement (which has been Moscow's line in the past).

Even if Russia is superior in conventional weapons, that country's offer to ban the use of chemical warfare and to reduce nuclear stockpiles is a constructive offer.

State Secretary Alexander Haig spoke too quickly, in saying this was nothing new. Washington should reply in a receptive vein, and welcome all that's encouraging in the Russian offer.

It may be that we can soon deemphasize the nuclear arms buildup spending and in that way find the funds to improve our conventional military capability.

The risk Russia will seize western Europe with conventional military forces--now far superior to NATO conventional forces--is real. But that fear alone must not deter us from seriously purusing Moscow's latest disarmament proposal.

More and more experts are counseling that the likelihood of a Russian invasion of western Europe, considering today's problems in eastern Europe, are much exaggerated. Many European leaders feel that

The Russian proposals merit serious reception, study and response. If the world can be spared the catastrophe of a nuclear exchange, some new approach to western European security, some minimum risk, might well be worth serious consideration.

Proper grain storage procedures important

When determining a farmer's eligibility for commodity loans or eligibility for commonly loans on the grain reserve program, the Agricultural Stabilization and Con-servation Service considers the condition of the storage structure and the commodity stored within the structure.

"Grain under loan must be stored in approved on-farm facili-ties or in commercial ware-houses," county ASC official ties or in ties or in commercial ware-houses," county ASC official Steve Rodenberg said. Farm pro-gram participants are responsible for any loss in quality or quan-tity of farm-stored grain.

The probability of insect infestation, moisture damage and mold growth increases when grain is stored and left undisturbed in the stored and tert undisturbed in the same location for several months. Rapid insect development usually occurs during the spring, summer and early fall. "Grain inspections are particularly important during these months," Rodenberg said.

Storage bins must be cleaned and sprayed thoroughly from top to bottom, inside and out. Old grain, trash and weeds must be removed from around the bin and removed from around the bin and kept from growing or accumulating during storage. Because temperature differences develop within the structure when surface and perimeter areas of the grain cool, stored grain collects moisture that may shift from one location to another. Moisture from warm grain shifts to cooler parts warm grain shifts to cooler parts of the structure, causing damp areas within the grain that favor insect activity and mold development. These, in turn, cause rapid deterioration and heating of the Rodenberg said farm-stored grain should be inspected at least every three weeks, and more often if problems arise. When there's evidence of insects, farmers are required to treat the grain with a fumigant.

"We encourage program participants to continue using proper cipants to continue using proper grain storage procedures and to contact our office any time they are in doubt as to the condition of farm-stored grain," the ASCS official said.

Bridge replacement discussed

The Fulton Board of County Commissioners discussed bridge projects both in Wayne and Henry Townships at last Monday's meeting.

Surveys have been completed and work on grade-setting and securing right-of-way documents is underway for two bridges in Henry Township over the old Erie-Lackawanna Railroad land. Plans are for the railroad-built bridges to be torn down to be bridges to be torn down to be replaced with roadway across the railroad property. The first two bridges to be replaced would be on County Roads 1275 East and 300 South. Cost estimates for replacing the bridges should be completed by the commissioners' next meeting on July 6.

The July 6 meeting is one day later than the usual time because of the legal holiday on July 5.

Farmers urged to report planted acreage

Farmers, who have not done so, are urged by Francis Hudkins, District Director, Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, to report to their agent as soon as possible the insured acreage they have planted. The Acreage Report establishes the amount of acreage that will be insured under an "All Nich! Center between the control of Risk" Crop Insurance policy.

The amount of acreage insured by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation in 1982 exceeds previous records. This has created a burden for insurance agents in securing the many Acreage Re-ports. Hudkins requests that in-sured farmers call their agent as soon as possible to report planted

Timely and accurate acreage reports benefit the farmer in assuring a correct premium assuring a correct premium billing and prompt handling of a crop loss.

NATURE'S OWN SUNTAN PRODUCTS

NATURE'S OWN SUNTAN PRODUCTS

Most of us are aware that overexposure to the sun's ultraviolet rays is potentially dangerous... and that a gradual tunning routine—as the summer season progresses—is the only commonsense approach to sunbathing.

It's less well-known, however, that you can augment your body's natural sunprotection systems if you increase your consumption of C and B vitamins, all of which are depleted when your body is regularly exposed to solar rays. Summer's delicious harvests of fresh cantaloupe, strawberries, tomatoes, green peppers, broccoli, and collard greens provide—as do citrus fruits and juices—excellent sources of vitamin C. Poods rich in B vitamins include eggs, liver, poultry, wheat germ, unrefined cereals, milk, bananas, tuna, salmon, spinach, peas, and dried brewer's yeast.

Other natural protective aids are readily (and economically) available from your kitchen, bathroom cupboard, pharmacy, or health food store. (NOTE: As with all suncare products, it's best to avoid the area around the eyes when applying any of the following preparations.)

accree products, it's best to avoid the area around the eyes when applying any of the following preparations.)

Sesame is the polyunsaturated nut oil "which most fully absorbs the ultraviolet rays of the sun", according to herbalist and natural beauty expert. Dian Dincin Buchman. In The Complete Herbal Guide to Natural Beauty; Dian suggests applying sessame seed oil as a tanning aid. (When swimming, you'll have to reapply the lotion each time you come out of the water ... as it will wash off and leave you unprotected.)

Ms. Buchman also mentions that a combination of sesame oil, anhydrous lanolin, and water can be used as an effective tanning cream. Simply melt 1/4 cup of the lanolin in the top of a double boiler, then immediately blend in 1/4 cup of sesame oil and 3/4 cup of water. This mixture can be refrigerated in a clean, labeled container.

Another natural sun remedy consists of peeling and mashing one large cucumber ... straining the liquid through cheesecloth ... then adding 1 teaspoon each of inexpensive rose water and glycerin, both of which you can probably buy at your local pharmacy.

Pharmacy.

Virginia Castleton, in her Calendar Book of Natural Beauty, describes a minty suntan cream which can be soothing and helpful while soaking up of Sol's energy. First, drop a handful of fresh mint leaves in a blender containing a couple of tablespoons of water...add 1/2 cup of sesame or coconut oil...legg yolk...and 1 tablespoon each of wheat germ oil and lemon juice. You might want to put in a drop of peppermint oil for extra fragrance before blending the ingredients. Once again, keep this suntan lotics refrirented.

When all of your precautions fail and you get a whale of a sunburn, there are still many effective home remedies that can bring you relief. Some folks find that if they break open vitamin E capsules and apply the oil to the skin, the burn will often disappear overnight (the vitamin packaged in ointment form offers similar results). Or you might try applying sunflower, safflower, or cottonseed oil, all of which are rich in the healing nutrient.

Herbalists and natural beauty experts also recommend compresses made with either black tea, comfrey leaf or root tea—or the juice of a grated raw potato—for the treatment of painful sunburns. You can dilute apple cider vinegar with water and pat it on the burned area or use it in a compress, too. A cloth or bandage that's kept saturated with witch hazel, or with equal parts of vinegar and olive oil, can also be beneficial.
