IMPONDERABLE ETHER.
 HEROES ARE GENTLE.
 A SICK WHALE.
 BE JUST TO ELLIJAH.

Sir Oliver Lodge says the ether is the most important reality of the physical universe. Life and mind are associated with matter only indirectly through the ether, says he, and the ether is primarily man's habitation, not pseudo "solid matter," earth houses, automobiles and money that we call the real world.

Matter reduced to atoms is only electric particles revolving around an electric center. The real thing is ether.

Science tells us the ether is like a great stream of water, flowing on forever, and matter like a fisherman's net spread across the stream through which the ether flows, that ether is essential to the cosmic scheme, that Newton's law of gravitation should not work without it, and that ether is the only solid reality in the realm of ideas. But for the average man it is hard to conceive of ether as a reality. It seems as unreal as the fourth dimension.

Our minds are adjusted to the work we have to do, which isn't big or very important.

Thomas A. Edison was three days in New York's Botanical Gardens library, searching for some new rubber plant. He may find it, but it will probably be chemistry, not botany that will supply the new rubber. Elasticity, plus wearing quality are needed. Human intelligence will produce something better than rubber, just as it produced something better than wood, in the bronze and iron ages.

Be careful if you meet latrodectus Maestans. It's ordinary name is the "black widow" and it's the deadliest spider on earth, possessing a bite causing death within twenty-four hours.

This tiny black spider has recently caused more than a dozen deaths on the Pacific Coast. On general principles, keep spiders and flies out of the house. Let them carry on their ancient war in the open.

Real courage is always gentle. Homes' "Mildest Manners and Gentlest Heart" are part of a fearless nature. Of all photographs taken of our Atlantic flyers, the finest shows Commander Byrd standing beside a wounded French soldier, helpless in a wheel chair. The expression on Byrd's face, pitying and tender, is that of a real hero. Happy the mother and father of such a son.

Commander Byrd, always in search of interesting occupation, plans a flight to the South Pole, and before the new year he will be flying through the coldest region on earth. He is determined to be the first man to fly over both poles.

In centuries to come, what we call our North and South Poles will again be warm, and some other spots on the earth will be the poles. Oil wells that Standard Oil has located inside the Arctic region will supply nearby gas stations—if men still use power as primitive as gasoline in that future day.

Gas by then will probably be completely out of date, as whale oil is now, for lighting. But do not be frightened into selling good oil stocks.

If told the sickness of a sperm whale in the Atlantic Ocean could eat up an ancient sailor man in a comfortable chicken business, you might say "impossible." But it happened.

When whales don't feel well, lumps of a substance called "Ambergris" valuable to perfume manufacturers form inside of them.

Jeremiah Pratt, seventy-four years old, lookout on a schooner, saw gulls hovering over a big lump of Ambergris, worth $12,500. With that money, sailor Pratt will retire to a chicken ranch and thousands of women will go around perfumed by the Ambergris.

Uldine Utley, fifteen-year-old girl revivalist, who says Billy Sunday is greater than Mussolini because Sunday conquered the devil, is in New York City saving souls. She saved forty last Sunday, and doubtless they will show gratitude when they meet her in heaven.

NEW TIPECANOE SCHOOL TO HAVE FINE GYMNASIUM

Announcement was made by Milo Strombeck, trustee of Tippecanoe township, Kosciusko County, that the new $52,000 consolidated township school addition, to be erected at North Webster will contain a gymnasium the size of the one at the present school. The gymnasium has recently been condemned by the state fire marshal. This gymnasium will also serve as an auditorium with a seating capacity of 500 people.

Construction of this two-story, fire proof, six room addition is assured as the time for filing a protest against the improvement has expired.

Plans are now in the hands of architects and are being rushed to completion. Work on the structure will commence next spring. Strombeck said today. The frame gymnasium will be used this winter.

"FIREBUGS" ON INCREASE THROUGHOUT RURAL DISTRICTS

"Fire bugs" in the rural section of the state are more numerous than they ever have been according to a statement last Friday of Milton Wareling, chief investigator of the division of the state fire department office.

"Nine tenths of our time is devoted to investigation of fires on farms in this state," Wareling said. "There seems to be an unusual number of 'fire bugs' in the rural section. Houses, barns and threshing machines have been destroyed recently that are clearly work of people seeking to collect insurance."

Mrs. Fred Pyle of Elkhart known to many in this vicinity, is seriously ill in the Elkhart General Hospital.

ENTERTAIN AT CHICKEN DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Busenbarg and family entertained Mr. and Mrs. Irvie Nelson and daughter, Miss Kathryn and Mr. and Mrs. Win Warner and daughter Ella Jane and Walter Bargman to a chicken dinner at their country home Friday evening. The evening was spent in playing rock, games and music.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Severns spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Devor Eaton at Pierceton.

Miss Utley who brings everything close to her hearers, says: "Lindbergh was not the first to make a non-stop flight—the Lord did it, before him, by flying from heaven to earth and then from earth to heaven." It's an excellent thought, but not fair to Ellijah, who in a "chariot of fire and horses of fire" went up by a whirlwind into heaven." See second Kings, chapter two, verse eleven.

That happened 900 years before the birth of Christ.

PIONEER RESIDENT MAKES INQUIRY ABOUT RELATIVES

The following letter was received by the editor from a pioneer resident of Mentone who desires information regarding the Morgan family or any other relatives living in this vicinity:

San Diego California

Dear Sir:— I am writing you especially to make inquiry concerning a family reunion which has been held for many years in or near Mentone Ind., called The Morgan Reunion. Griffith and Jean Morgan, natives of Wales and England settled in Kosciusko County, Ind., early in the 18th century and reared a large family there, near Sevastopol. The family consisted of one daughter and eight sons.

As the family grew to mature years they drifted apart, one brother Henry, came to California in about 1851, and soon sailed for Australia, there he married and raised a large family, and now his oldest son is crossing the great Pacific with a longing to meet his American cousins.

Mr. Benjamin Morgan expects to land in San Francisco about the fifth of August. We have a cablegram from him, from Wellington New Zealand. I am sure communications sent to our address will reach him early in August as he expects to visit us soon after reaching the United States. My first husband was James H. Morgan the next younger brother of Henry Morgan. My two sons Harry C. and Edwin H. Morgan and my daughter Mrs. Ada McElroy are living here in "Sunny California" and have been here since 1915. Any will be delighted to hear from any of the family, especially in regard to the Morgan Reunion.

I thank you in advance.

Yours,
 Mrs. Sallie Morgan Wilson
 1433 Golden Gate Drive
 San Diego, California.

Rev. and Mrs. Liddle are spending the week at Epworth Forest attending the Epworth League Convention.

Miss Fannie Thomas of Indianapolis and Miss Marie Turner of Rochester, were guests at the Fred Busenbarg home Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mills, Miss Lois Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Max Dunlap attended a family reunion at North Manchester, Sunday.

Mrs. Mickey and daughter Miss Mae of Pierceton were guests to dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Igo and family last Wednesday.

TAX VALUATIONS ARE REDUCED

The efforts of William H. Settle, President of the Indiana State Farm Bureau, to have a big reduction made in the tax valuations of Indiana farm land, were finally rewarded when the reductions were given out by the Tax Board.

The land valuations in this county were reduced 20 per cent. Other reductions for counties around here were, Cass 15 per cent, Huntington 16 2-3 per cent, Fulton 15 per cent, Marshall 15 per cent, Miami 16 2-3 per cent, and Pulaski 16 2-3 per cent.

The reduction in this county seems to be about on the average, as the per cent of decrease varies from 5 per cent in Vermillion County to 25 per cent in Owen county. The lowering of the valuations will save the Hoosier farmers about $4,000,000 yearly in taxes, according to Mr. Settle.

Mr. Settle was very pleased over the reductions and expressed his pleasure, saying that while it was not such a great reduction, it was a step toward what the farmers of the state need.

LARGE BARN NEAR CLAYPOOL DESTROYED BY FIRE

A large barn on the farm of Mrs. Stella Letter of Warsaw was struck by lightning Thursday at 9:30 and totally destroyed. Neighbors who discovered the fire aroused the tenants, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Shaffer but the fire had gained too much headway to attempt to check it.

One mule was burned to death and hay, farming implements and other articles were destroyed.

The building was fully covered by insurance. None was carried on the contents.

Mrs. Ida Tillman of Lanton, Oklahoma, came last week to attend the funeral of her uncle, William Clemmer.

Max Nellans spent the week end at the home of his uncle B. Nellans.

Mrs. J. W. Scott of Warsaw called on Mrs. Van Gilder Monday afternoon.

CORNBORE AGAIN THREATENS NORTHERN INDIANA

A new attack of the European corn borer has been reported in six counties of the state. The state entomologist office are preparing to lay down a quarantine in the affected districts.

Three more townships reported the crop destroying insect last week. Paul Alman directing activities of the anti-borer forces from his field and laboratory headquarters at Auburn, last week informed Frank Wallace state entomologist that the borer has been found in Monroe and Madison townships of Allen county and Wayne township in Noble county.

"We will start an immediate investigation into the situation and take steps necessary for a quarantine," Wallace said.

The activities of the forces will be directed against the movement of green corn. The insects are threatening destruction. If the state and federal forces are to gain headway we must see that no new corn from the effected area passes out. There will be restriction of the importation of new corn that comes from the effected area.

Wallace anticipates no trouble in enforcing quarantine.

It is generally realized that unless measures are to be taken to check the spread Indiana and the nation will lose millions of dollars.

PURDUE SWINE DAY WILL BE SEPTEMBER 30

The annual Swine Day at Purdue University is planned for September 30. Several lots of hogs are now on feed in experiments and will be ready for exhibition on the day of the meeting. The comparison of tankages, which is an important feature of the experiments, is attracting the interest of many feeders.

Does it pay to feed tankage with pasture? If so, what is the best kind of tankage to feed? There are some of the questions to be answered. The experimental hogs are also being fed to show how to get the greatest returns from soybeans and to compare mineral feeds.

Farmers who are interested in these problems can spend a profitable day at Purdue University, September 30.

Mrs. Nellie Meredith and Mrs. Fred Botterbusch of Chicago visited relatives in Mentone last week.

Miss Burnice Ernsberger will be the guest of her sister Mrs. Warden Myers at South Bend, for a couple of weeks.

STORK SPECIAL

A son was born July 28 to Mr. and Mrs. Glen Seustbaugh.

W. CLEMMER DIES FROM PARALYSIS

William Clemmer, aged resident of this vicinity died at his home Wednesday morning at 4:30 o'clock. The deceased had been in poor health for the past year. Two weeks ago he was stricken with paralysis and was bedfast until the time of his death.

Mr. Clemmer was born on a farm near Sidney in 1850. Shortly after his marriage he moved to a farm near Mentone where he resided until 1873 when he moved to Mentone.

His wife preceded him to the great beyond, June 20, 1916.

He was a member of the M. E. Church since 1880.

Surviving are three nephews: Ora Clemmer of Lavern California, and Laver and Albert Musselman of California; one niece Mrs. Ida Tillman of Lawton, Oklahoma.

Mrs. Ida Kesler of this place was taken into the Clemmer home when she was 11 years old.

Funeral services were held at the Mentone M. E. Church Saturday at 2 p.m. Rev. Martin of Fort Wayne officiated. Burial was made in the Mentone Cemetery.

ALBERTO SALVI COMING TO WINONA LAKE

Alberto Salvi, the world's greatest harpist, is coming to Winona Lake on Thursday evening, August 4th.

Probably never has any concert artist been a greater revelation to his audience than Signor Salvi. He has revolutionized harp playing and has accomplished brilliant results which hitherto considered impossible for this instrument.

This is Salvi's third appearance at Winona. Each time he presented a most brilliant program. The management considers itself fortunate to be able to secure again this noted artist.

SEASON NOW OPEN ON SQUIRRELS

The open season on squirrels started Monday, August 1, and continues to and including October 31st. The bag limit is five squirrels a day except red or pine squirrels, on which there is no bag limit. It is unlawful to sell a squirrel except for breeding purposes and it is a red or pine squirrel. Possession of a squirrel during the closed seasons for any other purpose is unlawful.

The open season for hunting rabbits will be from October 1 to January 11.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

This is to remind you that services are still being held at the same place at the same time each Lord's day.

9:30, Bible School.
 10:45 Morning worship.
 7:30 Evening Service.

Many pleasant memories will be recalled if you will start in again to attend services regularly. The greatest monument to our memory when we leave this world will be that we have helped some one to lighten their burdens, and made life more happy and blessed. "It was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

Best Writers on "Naturalization"

Winners in the annual essay contest of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are announced in the August number of "Foreign Service." The subject was "Naturalization." Patrick J. Shelly of Brooklyn, N. Y. (left), won first prize of $100, and John M. Higgins of Lowell, Mass. (right), took second prize, valued at $50. The awards will be made at the national V. F. W. encampment to be held in Providence, R. I., September 4-9.

LIGHT ON THE SUBJECT

(By D. J. Walsh.)

Cula Wilkins wiped the last lamp chimney until it gleamed like something better than just plain blown glass. In its crystal rotundity she saw reflected her round, elderly face, very round one way, much too long the other; it all depended on the way she held the chimney.

"I might say," Cula murmured to herself, "that the short way is how I look when I begin my daily tasks in the morning, and the long way is how I look at night when I'm ready for bed and dead tired from my day's work."

She placed the chimney on the freshly filled lamp and set it along-side seven other lamps on the shelf over the old-fashioned wooden kitchen sink. When Cula looked at the sink she sighed, and when she looked at the row of freshly filled and washed lamps she sighed again, which all goes to prove that Cula was not only tired but getting blue as well. To tell the truth, she was tired of washing lamps. She longed for electric lights, and most of all she wanted to have water brought from the big spring to the house. She stood looking down at the old sink and rusty pitcher pump that stood at the end of the sink. She wondered if she wasn't actually beginning to hate that old iron hand pump which had to be primed before it could give forth even a small stream of water. She turned her eyes, resolved to find something pleasant to look at and, alas, her eyes fell upon a big, heavy yellow bowl.

"Oh, that bowl!" Cula fairly moaned. "I have mixed everything I've cooked for thirty years—no, thirty years and two months exactly, in that bowl. Why, that's half a lifetime! I suppose if I could see all the barrels of flour and sugar I've stirred up in that old bowl—and the lamps I've washed, and the water I've pumped from that pesky pitcher pump, why— Oh, well, I mustn't get to figuring or I'll be a fit subject for the asylum, and I was reading only yesterday that the majority of women who are 'put away' are small farmers' wives, just like me."

Well, I don't wonder if they do go out of their heads, what with the drudgery and monotony. Surely, washing the same lamps and using the same milk bucket for thirty months—that would be 10,800— Oh, there I go again! I'll say it's getting on my nerves. I sometimes wonder if Henry had any sense at all. He wouldn't see the necessity of having a few conveniences. He has running water in the barn and he has every modern thing to help him get his work done quicker—easier I should say. Huh! Maybe I'm to blame for not asking for what is rightfully my share of the new-fangled things. Maybe I haven't kept up with the times. I'll ask him about electric lights this very day."

And Cula, willing as usual to blame herself for any of Henry's shortcomings, felt almost light-hearted so sure was she that the electric lights would be forthcoming for the asking.

That noon Cula asked Henry. He glanced up at the shelf full of gleaming lamps and said with a grin:

"Lamps giving you trouble?"

"No, that's one thing that'll never happen," Cula said. "But all the farmers up this brook but us have electric lights."

"Well, can't you get 'em?" Henry answered sourly. "We've got along so far with kerosene lamps and I don't see any use of making a change. I'm satisfied to do all the reading I do by a lamp, that is, what little reading I find time to do. If you didn't fool away so much time putting round the house you'd get your reading done before dark. I don't see my way clear to spend any money foolishly just now, and anyway, I've been thinking of getting me a car."

"Well," said Cula with more spirit than she had ever shown before, "I wouldn't give a cent for a car, but I would like the lights and the water from the spring piped into the kitchen."

"There you go again!" Henry interrupted. "First it's lights and then it's water. Why, if I don't curb your foolishness, woman, you'd have me in the poorhouse, inside six months. Next thing you'll be wanting a hired girl—"

And Henry left the house muttering to himself.

Cula sat a long time at the table with her chin resting in her cupped hand. She felt a strange sensation of warmth mounting to her head. She didn't realize that it was temper. She had been a good, steady, hard-working wife to Henry for over thirty years and she knew by Henry's frequent boasts to their neighbors that he was putting money away every day. They had no children to leave a cent to. Cula had never asked for anything that was not perfectly reasonable, and she felt she was not doing so now.

Finally, with a sigh, Cula arose from the table and reached for the milk pail and butter tubs preparatory to taking them down into the cool cellar.

Henry never felt the need of an ice house. The spring water flowed constantly into the big trough in the barn was sufficiently cold to cool the cans of milk. He saw no necessity for a refrigerator, even though it would have saved his wife an endless number of steps. Cula made her way round the cellar, but she felt suddenly old and shaken; her head ached and her eyes smarted with disappointed tears, so it was no wonder that she missed her footing on the dimly-lighted stairs and landed in a little crumpled heap at the bottom.

Cula broke no bones, but she was so badly shaken up that she had to remain in bed for several days, and while she lay racked with pain she thought long and earnestly about Henry, especially as he was showing himself to be both sympathetic and agreeable.

"Don't you worry about a thing," Cula he urged. "I'll look after everything. I'd say a hired girl only I think it's going to be real fun putting round the house. It'll be a nice, useful change for me and give me a chance to get rested before my full work begins."

Get rested. Putting round the house and getting rested! Now here was her chance to let Henry have a full lesson in what a woman's work really was like, especially when it was a piece of hard work of every convenience. She never winced when she heard a crash and suspected that the yellow mixing bowl had fallen from her husband's clumsy hands. She never mentioned the lamps, and all went well until the oil had burned out of every lamp and the chimneys to Henry's barn lanterns had become so blackened with smoke that he could scarcely find his way by their light to feed his stock. One of the things that made Henry's housework hard was that he used up all the water in the bucket and had to make frequent trips to the barn for water with which to prime the pump. Cula thought she would go wild listening to that rusty squeak-squawk as Henry wrestled with the old pump.

Cula was in bed ten days and her heart yearned over her big, clumsy husband. She noticed whenever he came to bring her a drink or a bite to eat that he had added a rag or bit of sticking plaster to some fresh burn or cut received in his attempts at housework. But he was game and said nothing.

One day Cula felt well enough to be helped to a place on the old couch in the sitting room, and by turning her head she could get a glimpse out into the kitchen. She had to press her hand tightly over her mouth to suppress a scream. Of all the dirty places in the world surely that kitchen was the dirtiest. It spoke mutes of the struggle Henry had had "putting round," doing housework. Cula was ready to cry, sick and weak as she felt. She wondered if she would ever be able to get all that dirt cleaned out. She wondered if that long row of dirty lamps with their dark brown chimneys could ever be cleaned. Surely the old pump would exact toll of her; and that dirt meant hours of back-breaking work for the handle. She had just turned her face to the wall to indulge in a good cry when Henry came into the room.

"If you can't," he said, shamefacedly, "you won't think I'm much of a housekeeper, but I've done my best. Old Mrs. Grant is coming tonight to stay and help with the work, and Monday the men are coming from town to wire the house and barn for electric lights. Tomorrow the plumbers will connect the water up in the kitchen and—"

But the tears that had been gathering began to spill over and run down Cula's cheeks. At the sight of them Henry fled.

"Please it all," Cula heard him mumble as he fled. "I can't stand tears now. But, by crows, that ain't all I'm going to do for her—no, not half, for my Cula's one woman in a thousand."

English Villages With Only One Inhabitant

The English village is very dear to the hearts of poets and painters and thousands of the communities are charming. A few, however, says the Washington Star, are more amusing than anything else, as, for instance, the one which consists entirely of old railway "carriages," as the English call them, even the chapel being composed of "four horse trucks." Another village, with a population of 1,100 and taxed at a valuation of $3,000, has neither school, church nor other public building, the only thing of the sort being a letter box on a pillar.

Villages with but a single inhabitant are not unknown, one of them being Skiddaw, in Cumberland. The single villager complains bitterly because he cannot vote, there being no overseer to prepare a voters' list and no church or other public building on which to publish one, as the law requires. The lonely taxpayer in Northumberland village has declined to contribute money to maintain the roads on the ground that the one he has is quite sufficient for his needs. In the tale of Ely is a little parish with about a dozen inhabitants, which has no taxes, since there are no roads or public institutions of any kind and consequently no expenses.

Sometimes an English village will entirely disappear, having been built up on the edge of the crumbling cliff, that make part of the coastline, or over an ancient mine. One of the latter class is in Shropshire and each cottage tumbles as the earth sinks.

Just a Little Smile

PROFESSIONAL INSTINCT

A tailor had a great desire to hear one of his customers, a celebrated tenor, sing. Obligingly, the tenor gave him a couple of tickets for his next appearance at the opera house. Meeting him a few days later, he asked whether he had enjoyed the performance.

"Oh, it was awful!" replied the tailor.

"Awful! What do you mean?"

"Your coat," the other groaned, "it was too tight under the arms."

WHEN IT RAINS

She—Dad says you don't know enough to go in when it rains.

He—Does he?

She—He sure does.

He—Well, you tell him I stay in in the first place.

Limited Appreciation

A very pretty play I saw. Its morals no one could deplore. I clapped my hands and said "Hurrah!" With only half a dozen more.

No Interest in Life

Husband (exasperated)—My wife seems not to have the slightest interest in life.

Doctor—What makes you think that?

Husband—Well, I've tried her with golf, billiards, football and racing, and it's just like talking to a stone.

Explained

Smith—Saw you and your wife out walking yesterday and, funny thing!—when you had to cross the street she went over first, then you waited your chance and followed.

Smart—O, that! easily explained. You see, we've just made our wills in each other's favor.—The Pathfinder.

WOULD SOON IMPROVE

Dad—Look here, Dorothy, I don't like the way these youngsters are hugging you!

Dot—Don't you know they're scarcely more than boys, daddy? They'll soon improve.

Intelligent Corried—in Style

She looks as if she is "all there." But goodness knows, that is more's I could truthfully say about her clothes.

Difference

"How much do you ask for this place?"

"Ten thousand dollars."

"Thanks. I'm the tax collector."

"You are? Well, I never was offered more than three for it."

Boy, Shoot This

Wandering Alligator Finding an alligator in a rosebush in her garden, a Kansas City woman had what she described as the thrill of her life. The woman was clearing shrubbery from the rosebush when "something" snatched at her hand. She called neighbors. A crowd congregated. Some one obtained a rake and a "baby" alligator was taken from under the bush. The alligator was put in a box and turned over to the police department.

A New Way to Make Jellies

Without Staining Fingers—Without Long Hours of Boiling—Without Depending Upon Berries or Fruit Being in Season.

One of the most interesting and yet one of the simplest new products in the food field is called minute jelly. It is pure fruit or berry juice already boiled down and concentrated. To this concentrated juice, fruit peels in the right amount has been added. The peels are that part of fruit which makes jelly "jelly." It is as pure and wholesome as the fruit juice.

To make the jelly take the little bottle of concentrated juice, pour in a saucepan, add water and sugar according to directions on the bottle and boil a few minutes. Then pour into jelly glasses and when it has become cold you have the most delicious pure fruit jelly you ever tasted.

A few bottles kept on hand, selected according to your taste for jellies, and you can make up a few glasses just as you want it. One small bottle makes two glasses of jelly. If you wish to try two bottles send us twenty-five cents and we will give you your choice of grape, mint, pineapple, orange, raspberry, strawberry or blackberry. Or four bottles—all different—for fifty cents. Address: Department N.T., General Packing Corp., Cranford, New Jersey.—Adv.

A Just Man One Miami county farmer, the home paper tells us, is saving up a load of tin cans, bottles, picnic plates, paper sacks, etc., which he will take to Kansas City in the late fall and scatter over the boulevards, thus returning property to the rightful owners.—Cap per's Weekly.

Pistol Team's Challenge The pistol team of the Pasadena (Calif.) post of the American Legion has issued a challenge to Legion marksmen throughout the country to a contest "under any conditions." In a meet with the team of Hollywood post, the Pasadena team scored 1,285 out of a possible 1,500 in slow and rapid fire over 25 and 50-yard ranges.

Consistency, sweetness and natural flavors are likewise of importance. When corn is too mature the desirable flavor disappears and one less desirable takes its place. Tests have shown that any of the standard varieties yield a first-class product if canned at the proper stage of maturity.

Cedar Chests Protect Clothing From Moths

Experiments conducted by the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture on the storage of clothing in chests made of the East Indian woods known as "kambur" and "lagan," to protect it from clothes moth damage have been completed with negative results. Chests made of the heartwood of red cedar, however, killed the newly hatched or young larvae of clothes moths when tightly constructed. The moths could not be depended upon to kill the moths or millers, or their eggs, or the worms after they were one-half to full grown, or after they were three to four months old. Neither did the cedar chests kill all the pupae.

CHOPS ARE QUICKLY AND EASILY COOKED

Chops Must Be Carefully Cooked to Retain Their Juiciness and Tenderness.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Serve chops as entree once in a while—especially on the days when you want something that is quickly and easily cooked at the last minute. You can choose mutton, lamb, veal, or pork chops—whichever you can get most easily, and you will have a further range of choice since veal, mutton, and lamb chops may be cut from either the ribs or the loin, and many butchers cut lamb and mutton into shoulder and leg chops, also.

Any of these chops may be either broiled or pan-broiled. They must be cooked carefully to retain their juiciness and tenderness. Select chops reasonably from a good grade of meat. Do not have them cut too thin or they will toughen and dry out in cooking. Chops three-fourths of an inch thick are best when cooked. Sometimes it is necessary to cut chops according to the width of the rib or loin bones, but if this results in thin chops, allow two to three to each chop.

Start Dinner at Once Dinner should be served the moment the chops are done, whichever way they are cooked. If you try to keep chops warm after they are done to a turn they will be overcooked or greasy. All vegetables and other dishes should be timed slightly ahead of the chops. Plates and the chop platter should be very hot. Serve current or other tart jelly or mint jelly with lamb or mutton chops. Fresh or canned are often served with lamb chops, but there is no iron-clad rule requiring this combination, and many other vegetables in season will be equally enjoyed. Tradition calls for apple sauce with pork dishes, including pork chops, but a baked apple, tomato, tart jelly, or any other slightly acid food that offsets the richness of the chops are fine.

MATURITY AFFECTS QUALITY OF CORN

Toughness Increases Rapidly as Kernels Develop. (Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Quality in canned sweet corn is due to both factors and farm influences. The conditions in the factory which affect the quality of the canned product are generally understood, says the United States Department of Agriculture, and canning methods are fairly well standardized. Improvement in canned sweet corn is most likely to be brought about, therefore, by a better understanding of the factors on the farm which make for a better quality of the raw material delivered to the factory.

For several years C. A. Magoon and G. W. Culpepper, of the department, have been making a special study of the growing of sweet corn to determine the factors which have a bearing on its quality. From the considerable knowledge already gained it appears that the most important factors are the tenderness or toughness of the kernel hull. This, they find, varies to some extent with the different varieties, but is particularly affected by the degree of maturity of the corn. Toughness increases very rapidly as the kernels develop toward maturity, being most rapid during seasons of high temperature. In cool weather the increase is much less rapid. From the standpoint of toughness the period during which first quality corn can be packed is very short.

Consistency, sweetness and natural flavors are likewise of importance. When corn is too mature the desirable flavor disappears and one less desirable takes its place. Tests have shown that any of the standard varieties yield a first-class product if canned at the proper stage of maturity.

Swiss Chard Among Must Satisfactory Vegetables

Swiss chard is one of the most satisfactory of the green-leaf vegetables available in the summer. The United States Department of Agriculture suggests several ways of preparing it:

Select fresh, crisp chard; if at all wilted, crisp it by standing in cold water for 10 to 15 minutes. Trim the leaves from the stalks, and cut the stalks into inch pieces. Cook for about five minutes in boiling water in an uncovered pan. Chop the leaves and add them to the stalks and continue the cooking until the stalks are tender. Drain; season with salt, a little pepper, and butter, and serve very hot.

An attractive dish can be made by cooking the stalks and leaves of chard separately, making a cream sauce for the stalks, and placing the seasoned leaves around the edge of the serving dish. Another variation is to crisp bacon and add it to the stalks and leaves, chopped, and served on top of the cooked chard. Or a hard-cooked egg may be sliced and used to garnish the dish. Lemon juice and vinegar are liked by many persons as a seasoning for Swiss chard.

Centenarian Last Man of Grand Army Post

Washington Post, G. A. R., of South Boston, passed out of existence, when its last surviving member, John Connors, died at his home at the age of one hundred one. A native of Ireland, he joined the army before the outbreak of the Civil war, fought in the battle of Mobile bay, and remained in the service for many years. It is not extraordinary that a Grand Army post should come to an end through the death of all its members. There were many that have been so scattered, and in most of them the membership has been reduced to a handful. The Civil war ended 62 years ago, and that means an approximate age of eighty for even the youngest of the surviving veterans. But John Connors was close to forty years old at the end of the war, old enough to have been the father of some of the boys in his day. Even among his South Boston comrades there must have been some who were young enough to be his sons. Yet it was his fortune to outlive them all. To him fell the unexpected distinction of being the Last Man.—Providence Journal.

"Only Girl's" Idea of Lower Not Flattering District Attorney Wallace, discussing the punishment recently meted out to immoral plays, said at a luncheon in New York:

"These people expected praise and pelf. They got instead—well, what they got instead must have made them feel worse than the young bond salesman."

"The young bond salesman said nervously to a pretty girl at a dance: 'I'm all shot to pieces over Helen. Can't sleep or nothing.' I'd give the world if I could find out whether she cared for me or not."

"Helen often speaks of you," said the pretty girl. "She calls you her 'good resolution.'"

"By gosh, but that makes me happy," said the bond salesman; and then he added, "I wonder what she means by that?"

"She tells me," laughed the pretty girl, "that she means you're always broke."

Flyosan has killed all his millions of friends and relatives

No woman he's blas. He knows he's next.

Flyosan has killed every single fly and mosquito in thousands of homes this summer. Flyosan is the modern heat way of fighting flying pests. It kills them by the whole sale—not one at a time.

Flyosan is the original liquid insect spray (non-poisonous). Use Flyosan itself, not one of its imitations. Flyosan not only kills all the flies and mosquitoes in your home but also kills it of the millions of deadly, disease-bearing germs which each one carries.

"Scenting" only scatters these germs into the air which you and your family breathe.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect: FLYOSAN, Liquid Spray—kills flies and mosquitoes. FLYOSAN ANT FOOD—exterminates ants. FLYOSAN'S DISCOVERY, Liquid—exterminates bed bugs. FLYOSAN'S ROACH FOOD—exterminates roaches (not cockroaches). FLYOSAN'S MOTH FOOD—prevents moth damage.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

Indian Workers' Le...

Tools in Salt Mines

Three great caves in a mountain of salt in Nevada have been worked by Indian miners who worked there as early as 1000 B. C. The great natural salt mass stands near the town of St. Thomas, Nevada, in a desert where rain falls so seldom that it has remained for ages without dissolving, which would have been its fate in a moist region. Underground waters, however, have hollowed the caverns in its interior, and in these were found stone hammers with wooden handles, sandals of yucca fiber, carrying nets, and even cornucopias, all perfectly preserved through the drying and antiseptic action of the salt. Most of the relics date since the beginning of the Christian era, but a carved club was found of a type used by the basket-makers, the forerunners of the present Pueblos, who inhabited the Southwest about 1000 B. C. The salt of the mountain is now being mined from the surface by a commercial firm. Why the Indians chose the difficult and dangerous work underground, when salt is easily obtained outside, is difficult to imagine. It is conjectured that several tribes had "claims" on the mountain, and that the later comers, finding the surface workings all pre-empted, had to go down to enter the dark caverns to seek their salt supplies.

Great Men's Letters

Immortality and letter-writing go hand in hand, and those who make it their business to keep the graves of the departed great pursue an eternal quest.

What wouldn't disciples of the "Shakespeare myth" give to be able to unearth a packet of letters from William Shakespeare to some correspondent in the settled, cheerful, and definitely, all the points that have led to controversy? It is extremely improbable that any such convenient packet will ever be found. But students of Alfred Russel Wallace are slightly more hopeful of one day discovering a set of lost letters written by the French poet to the French actress, Rachel. Having ranked France in ruin they have now turned to England, with the assurance that "any information as to the whereabouts of these letters will be gratefully received."

John L.'s Signature

R. F. Liddle in his biography of John L. Sullivan records that once a dainty little miss asked the famous pugilist to write her a few autographs so that she could sell them at a church fair.

"Oh, what're you giving me?" said John L. in a graciously tragic way. "I ain't no good at writing, but I'll give my mugger make as many of 'em as you want 'em, as you want 'em." The damsel told him that this would hardly do. So pens, ink and paper were ordered and after many laborious efforts in which he spoiled more than a dozen pens and ruined a quantity of stationery, Sullivan finally succeeded in scratching down about twenty badly blotched but fairly legible signatures.

"I always like to do what I can for relief," he assumed her as grumbling her hand and most of her fingers between his blotted fingers he built her a courteous good-bye.

Happiness in Work

There are social and economic maladjustments, and many of them lead to failures. Failure is unpleasant. But no man fails if he likes the job. Ford is right. Life's real thrill is in the job. That is the secret of the "pursuit of happiness" in America! It was the quest of the men who built this wonderful American government for us, and it still is the thing which hurls us on to larger achievements. Jobs are full of thrills if we wish it so; but we get those thrills only when we fit the job, when we like it, and give it the best we have in us! when we put ourselves into the thing we do.—Mobile Register.

Made Goldfish Popular

Goldfish first appeared in England about two centuries ago, but it was Luigi Cusi and his father who made them popular in the parlor windows of the nation. They began almost by chance. The Cusis came to London from Italy sixty years ago, when Luigi was a boy, and his uncle sent him a can of goldfish to comfort him in his exile.

Finding the fishes interested their neighbors, they began to import them and sell them. After a time they added tortoises to their stock-in-trade, and forty thousand tortoises, as well as half a million goldfish, passed through their hands in a year.

"Tidy" Philosopher

Many of the world's greatest philosophers are known to be had very little concern for their personal appearance. One notable exception, according to a biography written about 1688 and recently reprinted, was Spinoza who, says the author, "was extremely tidy." Whenever he left his house there was, as well, "something about his clothes which usually distinguishes a gentleman from a pedant."

A present-day critic says: "He was a man of the world, a man of the world, but with nothing to conceal; a man of intensely private life, but wholly transparent."

Horsehide—Double Tanned That Always Stays Soft

Here is a Wolverine shoe for year 'round wear. The tops are high enough to keep out the mud and dirt of the spring and fall, low enough for coolness in the summer, and are ideal in the winter to wear under an overshoe. Because of its general utility this Wolverine is one of our largest sellers. Made of Cordovan horsehide, there is almost no wear-out to the upper; our experience has been this upper will wear out on an average of two pairs of half soles. A light weight shoe that is soft when you buy it, and stays that way.

FLORIDA FISHING TRIP

The following article was copied from a letter written by Ross L. Smith of Lakeland, Fla.

Got back from my fishing trip at 10:30 P. M. had a lovely time, I will tell you about it. We left here at 12 p.m. and by the time we got to Grey Hammock, got the boats loaded and all set to go it was daylight. Left the shore or Lake Kissimmee two miles from the mouth of the river. The lake is 36 miles long and it was very pretty on the water. We let the motors kick us along until 7 o'clock and then went to shore for breakfast. We were miles from where we started but were hitting out for wider grounds to fish. We took our firewood along and had our coffee and bacon and all that goes with it. It differed so much from our northern fishing trip at Pannasqua. This river flows and continually curves like a mountain road, banks 4 to 6 feet high, strait up, tall grass and palm-trees, no trees had an occasional palm. We had landed the first place we could for breakfast, and after we let the boats drift and fished. They were striking fine, in straining the eleventh hour, thru accident and hurry the whole string slipped out of my hand and never did come up to the surface, suppose alligator got it right away. We drifted 25 miles and got 55 more bass, it was 1:30. We had a tropical scenery. We threw back 25 bass that didn't measure full 12 inches and we sure threw back a pretty bunch.

We started for camp and I could not lift all those fish at once. The prettiest string I ever saw and too dark to take a picture. It was just dark when we got the car loaded. We got ice at Lake Wales and home at 11 o'clock. Tired a plenty but I had a good time and honest, I caught more fish than any one, and lost four that looked like 12 pounders. When they get that big down here they get wild.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Naval Conference Resumed With Not Much Hope of an Agreement.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WITH the return to Geneva of the British delegation, the naval limitation conference was resumed; but there was a feeling there and in Washington that the parity was doomed to failure. Viscount Cecil and W. C. Bridgman had submitted to the British cabinet their demands and their entire policy, and apparently were upheld in every particular. Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, then made a statement to the house of commons that left little hope that an agreement would be reached. The crux of this was that he considered the permanent formula adopted at Washington for limiting battleships inapplicable for modern ships, and that an agreement to limit the number of ships to be built would be a death knell of the conference. It was to apply this formula to auxiliary craft that President Coolidge had accepted the conference. Sir Austen suggested that an agreement might be reached for a shorter period than originally planned, or on destroyers and submarines only, in case the three powers could not agree on a maximum cruiser tonnage; but this idea was coldly received by the American officials in Geneva and in Washington.

Dispatches from Geneva said the final British proposals were as follows:

1. That, since an agreement has practically been reached on submarines and destroyers, a convention should be framed providing for 20,000 tons of submarines and 18,000 tons of destroyers, with an approximate 60 per cent ratio for Japan.
2. That a quota of 300,000 tons shall be adopted for all cruiser types.
3. That the ratio between the United States, Great Britain, and Japan for 10,000-ton cruisers carrying 8-inch guns shall be 12:12:3, or, if this is not acceptable, 15:15:10.
4. That the next smaller cruiser class shall be limited to 7,500 tons, carrying 6-inch guns.
5. That the question of providing extra smaller cruisers for Great Britain from its obsolete vessels shall be left to the Washington conference in 1931.

Congressman Martin B. Madden of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, who has been traveling in England, gave an interview at Turin in which he said that if Great Britain was not willing to give America the equivalent of English ship power with respect to speed, range, tonnage, etc., there was every reason to believe that the United States naval building program would have the support of the appropriations committee. An agreement putting our navy out of balance with Britain's would not be ratified by congress, he said. Ambassador Gibson has been told by the State department that the United States would rather have him return to Washington without a treaty than to sign an agreement which fails to safeguard American interests or make possible real naval economies.

FOR three days about two dozen governors of states and some guests, in annual conference at Mackinac Island, Mich., were busy with topics related to the public welfare, devoting a large part of the time to flood control and farm relief. The executive do not have a lot to say about the agricultural problem and most of them seemed to favor a measure like the McNary-Haugen bill which the President has vetoed. There was a general condemnation of election corruption by the government. A limited expression on federal control of hydro-electric systems was largely opposed and the sentiment against the centralization of power in Washington was all but unanimous. A proposed house of governors was called ridiculous by one governor and commended by others. Gifford Pinchot, former governor of Pennsylvania, found opportunity to tell the conference that Senator-elect Vane should be ousted from the senate, and to make a bitter attack on Secretary of the Treasury Mellon as Vane's political partner.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE attended the pageant at Oyster, N. D., celebrating the days of gold discovery, and experienced some thrills not on the program. Two big horses broke from a covered wagon they were drawing and, with the doubletree attached, ran through the crowd straight for the box where the Chief Executive and his party were seated. A mounted cowboy managed to turn them aside, the throng opened for them and they disappeared over a near-by hill. When Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were returning to the State Lodge they were overtaken by a violent rain storm which made travel over the slippery, sloping roads rather perilous. Mr. Coolidge has been asked by several cities to use his influence in the matter of the location of the Republican national convention of next year, but last week he declared he had no choice, though he would be glad to confer with the national committee if it desired. It is said that San Francisco now has more votes pledged to it than any other city.

The President is seriously considering the invitation to visit Havana next spring, extended by President Machado of Cuba, and to address the Pan-American congress there. He might make such a proposed trip the occasion of visiting Porto Rico to inform himself of conditions in that island, the people of which are clamoring for changes in their form of government and the election of a governor of their own people.

MRS. ANNE U. STILLMAN and her son, "Bud," found place on the front pages again last week, for the young man was married in the Grand Anse camp, in the Quebec woods, to Lena Wilson, forest girl and former servant in the Stillman household. Fifi managed the whole affair with great skill, gathered a lot of notable wedding guests and decked her new daughter-in-law with magnificent diamonds. Of course the news photographers were there in swarms, and as Father Lami was performing the ceremony some of them pressed too close. Fifi flew into a rage and upset them and their cameras and bombarded the whole squad of camera men with plates until they fled to the woods.

MAJON COUNTY PROSECUTOR REMY of Indianapolis and his aids are working their way through a great mass of documents turned over to them on the order of ex-Dragon Stephenson, the life convict, which he says substantiate his charges against Indiana officials; and a new grand jury at Indianapolis is supposed to be investigating Stephenson's alleged control of the 1925 legislature. Gov. Ed Jackson could not call the grand charges of misconduct in office, and two Indianapolis papers, the News and Times, asked him to show his innocence or resign. Editors of other Indiana papers back up this demand, the Republican organ saying the governor has been acting as a secret to himself and the state, to the cloud of distrust now enveloping the statehouse. Prosecutor Remy says the disclosures may rock the state and shake the nation.

FREDERICK STERLING, the first American minister to the Irish Free State, presented his letter of credence to Gov. Geo. Timothy Healy in Dublin and took up his duties. The ceremony was made elaborate by the Irish, their residence being the residence of Mr. Sterling and lining the route of the parade to the vice regal lodge in Phoenix Park. After seeing the governor general, the minister exchanged calls with President O'Seagha. Mr. Sterling's first task will be the negotiation of a commercial treaty between America and Ireland, replacing the old American treaty with Great Britain.

IGNORING the Chinese treaties with the powers, the Nationalist government at Nanking has promulgated a new list of tariffs on luxuries, running from 15 to 60 per cent. American exports to China are especially hard hit, and the American merchants in Shanghai met and decided to send a strong protest to Washington, though their hope of relief was small. Though Gen. Feng Yu-shiang was continuing his advance on Peking, along the line of the Hankow railway, Gen. Chang Kai-shek, generalissimo of the Nanking forces, was reported to be in a precarious position because the radical forces from Hankow were moving down the Yangtze toward Nanking and also were threatening to advance south through Chekiang province on Shanghai.

FRANCE, or its government, is about fed up on Russian communist propaganda and Premier Poincare called in the soviet ambassador, Christian Rakowsky, and told him most emphatically that unless Moscow's Red agents in France were recalled at once France might be provoked into breaking off all relations with Russia. Rakowsky hurried to Moscow to confer with his chief. Eight communists, convicted in Paris of being spies for the pay of Russia since 1924, were given unusually severe sentences.

Secretary General Turati of the Italian Fascist party in a speech at Ravenna predicted that a clash between the Fascist and the Bolshevik conceptions of the state must come, and that the victory would rest with Fascism.

NEW YORK will all set to undergo the inconvenience of a strike of traction workers, and the Interborough managers were prepared to continue service with strikebreakers—which promised riotous times—when Mayor Walker intervened and in two hours won both sides to agree to a settlement that resulted at least in a truce. The trouble probably is not over, however, for the union leaders assert they are now free to organize the traction workers, while the Interborough officials deny this.

ACCOMPANIED by his brother, Prince George, the prince of Wales has come over for another visit to Canada, and possibly to the United States. The United States will be represented by Vice President Dawes and other notables.

Several times the machine was out of control, but Chamberlain finally landed safely in a cornfield. Then he learned that he had failed of a record by 1,000 feet.

MAURICE H. CRUMPACKER, representative in congress from Portland, Ore., committed suicide by jumping into San Francisco bay, after previously attempting to kill himself with poison. The reason for his act was not revealed.

Pretty Things that are Made at Home

GINGHAM! This once scorned fabric, at least from an esthetic standpoint, is now being put to use in the pretty things girls are making for their personal adornment.

First of all there are the colorful gingham jackets so popular for wear with the sleeveless tennis frock of white pique, or with any white skirt, for that matter. Designs in blue are especially popular.

The stylish little jackets may be made from any pattern desired, purchasable in the nearest department store, and will require but a few yards. For two dollars or less any girl who knows how to sew can make herself is fashioned from a novelty plait of violets and white, on a peach ground. Why fret and fume as to how one's frock should be trimmed? Why trim it at all? The smartest frocked women are wearing dresses which show not a vestige of trimming, all the glory of embellishment being reserved for the shoulder bouquet and corsage.

There is this adorable frock in the picture, for instance. It is simply fashioned of violet chiffon, with exquisite Parma violets at neckline and waistline. The young debutante will find nothing more charming than this one of these jackets that will tub perfectly without changing color. The gingham should, of course, be shrunk before it is made up. Collar and cuff sets that give just the right touch of color to the plain one-tone sports frock or jersey or flannel, are another of the season's novelties the girls are making. Many of the new novelty gingham have superimposed thread designs and silky dots that look like embroidery. Some of these white grounds really look like linen. Then there are the finest of checks in a myriad of colors that look as though they were especially made for collar and cuff sets. The sets are very pretty, with organdie edges girlish frock for dining and dancing. Frocks and flowers carried out in this matching way are of outstanding importance this season. Then, too, there is the vogue for the all-white frock with a touch of color. The "touch of color" very often expresses itself in a cluster of novelty flowers. Lately fancy turns to wearing trailing bouquets on the shoulder, a few of the blossoms suspended with "accidental-on-purpose" careless grace. It is also good style to wear a generous bouquet (white violets are chosen) placed at the shoulder line, up very close and snug to the throat. For the coming fall, stylists predict even a greater popularity for the bouquet.

An Adorable Frock.

In tiny ruffles or points like that shown in the sketch. The organdie may be white or in color to match the predominating shade in the design. Organdie and gingham are very good in combination and are being much worn this season.

Hand bags of gingham to carry with summer dresses are smart, especially for seashore and other summer resort wear. These are very easily made, and require so little gingham the cost is but a few cents. They are sewed to a frame of imitation tortoise shell. But most popular of all is the gingham shoulder flower. The shoulder flower, as you know, is being made from everything from woolen materials to kidskin this season, and it is not surprising that the humble gingham that affords such beautiful colorings should be called into service for this purpose. The one in the sketch tonnier, the shoulder flower and the corsage. Just now the tendency is to wear very realistic flowers, which look as if they had come from nature's own garden. Apple blossoms carry the honors for the present.

The newer boutonnieres, however, display an element of real novelty. The newest item is a tiny rose with foliage, all of metal in true flower colorings. Feather, also kidskin flowers are worn, but perhaps the greatest novelty of all is the new crystal flowers. These mid-of-glass flowers are exquisitely dainty, and their popularity is full of promise. Just a tiny boutonniere, but very effective on the lapel of one's coat.

For summer evening wear, huge fluttering pasted-on chiffon flowers are favored.

POULTRY

CHICKEN POX IS VERY CONTAGIOUS

Chicken pox (sometimes called sorehead) is a very contagious disease. It makes its appearance in the form of irregular white patches or festers which later develop into brown spots or crusts (resembling a scab or sore) on the comb, wattles, eyelids, and around the beak and nostrils. In severe cases these patches or sores increase in number to such extent that the birds have difficulty in opening their eyes and beaks, and if neglected many will die.

The best way to prevent birds from this as well as many other diseases, is to keep all roosting quarters clean, dry, and well lighted. During the summer, when the disease is most common, mix 8 pounds of powdered sulphur with each 100 pounds of dry mash, allowing the birds to eat it all they want. Chicken pox usually attacks late-hatched chicks more often and more severely than early hatched ones, which makes it advisable to hatch as early in the season as possible.

If, however, a flock becomes infected in spite of all precautions, no time should be lost in treating the birds by applying a liberal quantity of carbolic vasoline to the affected parts. This treatment after a short time will cause the patches or crusts to soften and drop off when the tissue or sore underneath should be painted with tincture of iodine of a 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid. Five pounds of fine-powdered sulphur mixed with each 100 pounds of dry mash is also beneficial in effecting a cure.

As soon as the disease makes its appearance, spray the house and coops thoroughly with some good disinfectant (preferably some wood preservative or coal-tar preparation), and acid the drinking fountains and feed dishes thoroughly with boiling water. Repeat every two or three days until after all the birds have fully recovered.

Poultryman Should Cull All Loafers From Flock

Because egg prices are going down and feed prices are going up, poultrymen cannot afford to keep "star-boarders," according to the poultry department of the New York State College of Agriculture, which says that about 25 per cent of the hens in the average farm flock in New York state are loafers that do not pay their own way, and at the same time eat food and occupy room in the poultry house that the laying hens should have.

For several years, poultrymen from the college have spent much of their time during the summer months culling poultry for the farmers in New York state, and last year a total of 225,000 birds were handled. The men who do the culling are trained poultry judges, and the cost of the service to the farmer is about one and one-half to two cents for each bird handled.

On the basis of the number of birds actually diseased, the cost to the poultryman is about five or six cents a bird. The department says that it costs 20 to 30 cents a month to feed a hen, therefore, the saving for the farmer is evident.

Any farmer in the state may have his poultry culled by a poultryman from the college by applying to his local farm bureau agent or by writing directly to the poultry department at the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

Poultry Notes

Sell broilers and fryers promptly.

Keep the poultry house clean and the birds are more likely to keep healthy.

Chicks to be used as breeders or layers should be provided with plenty of green grass.

Chickens with good capacity and good appetites are the ones that fill "egg baskets."

Produce clean eggs so none will have to be washed to give a good appearance.

Eggs that have been washed will spoil quicker than those that have not, so produce them clean at the start.

A green feed is essential to egg production. To raise green feed successfully is one of the greatest problems of the poultryman who wishes to have eggs when the price is high.

Market the surplus cockerels or keep them separate from the pullets for most satisfactory growth.

The young chickens should be kept comfortable. Get them on perches early, at crowing, retard growth and cause crooked breast bones.

A hen cannot very well feed miles at night, lie in the daytime and have much time to lay eggs. Sanitation, plus good feeding and management are all essential for best results.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

WHO IS YOUR HERO?

A SHORT time ago the police of a great city picked up on the street a destitute boy of fifteen. He was ragged and hungry. When they searched him at the station house the only thing they found in his pockets was a bit of crumpled paper upon which had been written as the title "My Heroes" and underneath were listed these names:

Theodore Roosevelt,
General Pershing,
Jesse James,
Tracy the Handit,
Captain Kidd.

A strange and interesting list and yet there are comprehensible reasons for the presence of every name that filled this youthful individual's list of fame.

We begin to choose our heroes very early in life. The story of "Jack and the Beanstalk" has furnished many a boy with his first ideal of bravery.

"Robinson Crusoe" and the characters of James Fenimore Cooper—even the overdrawn adventures of the old "yellow covers" and "The Nickel Library" and Cap Collier's excursions thrilled many of us to ambitions which faded away with boyhood.

One thing is certain: No boy ever worshipped a man as a hero unless in his opinion he had done something extraordinary, something that really entitled him to admiration.

If we pick our heroes for the purposes of imitation we should be very careful. Not many men in all history were desirable of imitation in all the details of their lives.

Every great man has some weakness. An ideal hero would have to be a composite man, a combination of the great with their faults.

The most popular hero that ever lived was undoubtedly Napoleon. But of him Robert Ingersoll said in one of the greatest of his short addresses that he would rather be the humblest of French peasants than the man at whose command hundreds of thousands had died.

Who is your hero? Why is he your hero?

How to Be a "Star" Salesman

By EVELYN GAGE BROWNE

SELL yourself and the best that is in you. Before you start selling your line; Then put your "stunt" over the footlights. As a "Star" that is bound to shine.

Don't be like the twins who keep howling. The very same kind of a "howl"—Each one of them yelling so loudly You can't hear the other at all.

But resolve to get out of the chorus And make yours a solo part; Then when you go after an order, Just put in a bit of your heart.

Make your "stunt" different and vital. Be not one of the many—but one. And then the applause (and the orders) Will just have to come right to you!

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

By JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Daniel Chester French Was Embarking on His Career.

ABOUT this age I went to Chicago with a basketful of my sister, which I exhibited. It was favorable notice and procured me an order for a similar portrait by a Chicago lady, the first commission I received. It was just a few years after that I began work upon my first public statue, "The Minute Man."

I have always enjoyed my work. When I get interested in a subject I lose all track of time and thoroughly enjoy myself. I am not like my old friend, St. Gaudens, who took things more seriously. He actually fought his work, studying it from every angle, worrying with it, puzzling over it. I have never worked that way and I used to feel guilty—as though I were having too good a time.—Daniel Chester French.

Do You Know That: ---??---

"Oil on Troubled Waters" or "Four Oil on Troubled Waters" is a very old phrase meaning to pacify or to soothe.

We find the phrase mentioned in Bede's Ecclesiastical History which was written in Latin in 735 and later translated in 1525. It appears that St. Aldon had given his blessing to a young priest who was to set out by land, but return by water, to convey a young maiden destined to be the bride of King Oswin. St. Aldon gave the young man a jar of oil to pour on the sea if the waves became stormy. A storm did arise and the young priest poured the oil on the waves and they did actually become calm. Bede says he had the story from "a most creditable man in Italy orders"—Anna S. Turquist.

What Does Your Child Want to Know?

Answered by BARBARA BOURJAILY

Fall freshened cows give more and cheaper milk and butterfat.

Milking ability is inherited. Raise the calves from your best cows.

If you have ten milk cows you need a silo. If you have no cheaper method to provide green stuff for them next winter.

A dish rag is always dirty. One of these things should never touch a milk vessel.

Quality milk brings the best price and makes satisfied customers. The main essentials are cleanliness, prompt cooling, and holding at a low temperature.

Where success—materials which will produce odors or flavors are fed to cows, the proper method of procedure is to feed such products shortly after milking.

The DAIRY

TELL COW'S AGE

Although stockmen know that a horse's teeth tell its age, they do not generally know that the teeth of a cow give similar information. That true even if the cow has no teeth in her upper jaw.

At the time the calf is born it has two temporary teeth and by the time it is one month old all the eight incisors are visible. As the animal nears two years of age the temporary incisors commence to be replaced by two permanent teeth. When it has attained two years of age these two incisors will be fully developed.

When from two and one-half to three years old the permanent first intermediates are cut and these are full sized by the time the animal is three years old. At three and one-half years the second intermediates appear and become fully developed at the time the animal is four years old. The four pair of incisor teeth, known as the corner teeth, are replaced at four and one-half years. All the permanent teeth are then in wear when the animal is five years old.

The first pair of incisors or pinchers become leveled during the time the animal is between five and six years old. The teeth begin to wear, some partially leveled during this period and the corner commences to show wear.

From seven to eight years the pinchers become noticeably worn; from eight to nine years, the middle pairs; and by ten years old, all the animal's teeth appear to be noticeably worn. After the animal is six years old the arch in the contour of the teeth commences to not be noticeably marked. It may be found that the teeth are arranged in an almost straight line by the advent of the animal's twelfth year. From the sixth to the twelfth year the teeth become triangular in cross section, distinctly separated, and show progressive wearing to slabs.

Flies Great Annoyance to Cows During Summer

Flies are great and annoying to dairy cows during the summer that milk production often is materially decreased. However, a good dry spray applied three or four times during the season will also sober the temper of the milk.

A good spray for this purpose can be made from the following ingredients: 4½ quarts cold tar dip; 4½ quarts fish oil; 3 quarts cold oil; 3 quarts white oil; 1½ quarts oil of tar. Mix the three quarts of oil and pour in water, add the ingredients of the spray and bring the whole up to a 30-gallon quantity with lukewarm water. This spray will keep flies off the cows and prevent the hair coats from becoming harsh.

The cows should be sprayed twice a day, in the morning and in the afternoon when in the barn for slugs or other green feed. With a portable two-wheeled half-barrel cart having a spray pump and nozzle, two men can spray 40 cows in five minutes. Thirty gallons of this mixture will spray 40 cows twice a day for ten days at a cost of 1 cent per cow per day.

Profit in Dairying Will Depend on Proper Feeds

Profitable dairying depends much upon the proper selection of feeds for rations. Since market prices are not constant, as is the value of the feed, it is necessary to figure out economical rations, based on local conditions and prices, and the actual feed value as the value of the ration. The best way to determine which of the available feeds are the most economical is to figure out the cost of a pound of total digestible nutrients and of digestible crude protein in each feed. This requires the use of a few simple problems in arithmetic and information regarding the analysis of the various feeding stuffs, but it is the only safe basis for the selection of an economical ration.

DAVID SPARES SAUL

LESSON TEXT—1 Sam. chap. 26. GOLDEN TEXT—Be not overcome of evil, but overcome it with good.

PRIMARY TOPIC—David's Kindness to His Enemy. JUNIOR TOPIC—David Shows Mercy. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How in These Things Who Wrong Us—Young People and Adult Topic—Overcoming Evil With Good.

1. Saul in Pursuit of David (vv. 1-5). Ever since David took his departure from Jonathan (ch. 20), when that crowning act of friendship was shown, Saul had been hunting him as a wild animal. He now pursues him with 3,000 chosen men. David flees from place to place and is in hiding as an outlaw. Sometimes he is in the enemy's country doing despicable things. This is the period of his schooling, which fitted him to be the future eminent king. It was a bitter period in his life, but God sent him to this school and adapted the instruction to his needs. David could never have been the broad man that he was had he not been prepared in this crucible of bitter experience. He learned many lessons, among which may be mentioned:

1. His own weakness. It was necessary that he be humbled under the sense of his infirmities. Before any one is fit to be raised to a position of prominence he must be made to know his limitations and weaknesses. Unless a man has learned this lesson, sudden elevation to power will utterly ruin him.

2. His dependence upon God. David's many miraculous escapes caused him to realize that the Lord had redeemed him out of his adversity. He learned to trust in God and people over which he was to rule. Knowing the grievous afflictions which Saul had heaped upon the people, he could sympathize with them.

3. He learned the magnanimity of self-control. This man must know before he can be a true king. He that ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city (Prov. 16:32).

4. Saul in David's Hands (vv. 4-5). 1. David sends out spies (v. 4). 2. He did it to find out whether Saul was in very deep.

2. David in Saul's camp (vv. 5-11). He took with him Abishai and went at night to where Saul was sleeping. Abishai asked to be allowed to kill Saul, but David forbade him because Saul was the Lord's anointed.

3. David takes Saul's spear and cruse of water (vv. 12-13). Once before at Engedi (chap. 24) David spared Saul's life. Now again he was spared his mercy. This David did that he might show tangible evidence to the king that he had no evil intent.

4. David taunts Abner, the king's bodyguard (vv. 14-15). He calls to Abner and taunts him for his listlessness—his failure to watch over the Lord's anointed, the evidence of which is the cruse and spear in his hands.

5. David reasons with Saul (vv. 16-17). David reasoned with Saul, showing that he had nothing but good intentions toward the king. He asked that he would show what wrong he had done, or what evil intent was in his heart. If the Lord was directing Saul he was willing to appease his wrath with an offering. If Saul was only hunting him because wicked men were urging him, a curse should be pronounced upon them. David is very humble and begs Saul to relent, for surely if he had any wicked purpose he would not have saved his life twice when the Lord had placed Saul wholly at his mercy. David recognized the fact that the Lord had delivered Saul into his hands not to kill, but to save. He did not kill, neither did he allow his servants to kill.

6. Saul's Confession (vv. 21-25). 1. He confessed that he had sinned. The sad feature about his confession is that it lacked conviction, for he went right on slinking.

2. He confessed that he had played the fool and erred exceedingly. We see about us daily many using such expressions as "I was wrong" or "I erred" when they go on repeating their sins. David shows his magnanimity of spirit, however, in delivering the cruse and spear to Saul's servants. He knew that Saul's confession was not genuine, so he was afraid to go near. He still appeals to Saul's kindness to him, and they part never to meet again.

7. Praying. "It is better to do a little with prayer and in the Spirit than to be busy with many things in your own strength."

8. Spiritual Love. All real spiritual love is but a portion of Christ's love which yearns in all who are united to Him.—Alford.

9. An Important Duty. You have not fulfilled every duty unless you have fulfilled that of being pleasant.—Charles Buxton.

10. Beware of Low Aim. Not failure, but low aim is crime.—Lowell.

WEIRD TALE OF SEA RELATED BY IMPERILED CREW

Men in Dire Fear of Body of Dead Captain on Board Schooner.

New York.—A weird tale of the sea, relating in real life that of Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner," was told by seven members of the crew of the schooner Eleanor Taylor, towed into port after drifting without a master for four days.

The captain, Calvin W. Sprague, fifty-five, of Gloucester, N. J., died recently, 36 hours after the vessel left Boston, bound for Charleston, S. C. A heavy sea was running at the time and the skies indicated stormy weather, but the combined nautical knowledge of the crew was insufficient to navigate the tiny boat.

Send Signals of Distress. The schooner drifted off its course and the crew spent day and night sending up fruitless signals of distress. The body of the captain was permitted to remain in the cabin and the superstitious sailors gave it a wide berth.

Some argued the vessel never would be anywhere with a dead man below the decks, but no one volunteered to preside at a sea burial.

Fear soon followed superstition. At night the men paddled to the forepeak. They refused to go on deck, even to send up rockets.

Sharks Follow Ship. Rats emerged from the hold and scurried across the deck. Sharks and porpoises followed in the wake of the craft. Disputes arose as to whose turn it was to take the wheel to keep the ship from wallowing in the sea.

Early one morning the coast guard cutter Seueca was sighted off Delaware breakers. Signals of distress waved wildly by the crew attracted the cutter's attention and the badly frightened sailors were towed in their ship to port.

The body of the captain was taken to a morgue upon the arrival of the ship. Death was believed due to pleurisy.

Three Youths Rescued From Death in Lake

Sandusky, Ohio.—A drift of three days in a severe storm on Lake Erie, three small boys were rescued from a tiny open boat the other day off Put-In-Bay, Ohio, after six hours of their being saved had been given up.

William, fourteen; Thomas, ten, and John, eight, sons of Charles Jackson of Bowles Harbor, Mich., paddled out into Lake Erie at six o'clock in the morning to fish. They took their dog with them. Night came, and the boys did not return. The frantic parents appealed for aid, and search parties went out.

Nothing more was heard of the youngsters, and when a severe storm came up it was believed that they had perished. The third day after they left home Henry Sampson of Put-In-Bay saw a boat drift in the lake and braved the rough water to make a rescue.

Sampson found the boys asleep in the boat, with their dog standing guard over them. He got the craft and its occupants ashore, and soon the famished boys and dog were comfortable at a hotel with Mayor T. B. Alexander of Put-In-Bay and villagers caring for them.

The boys were drift 60 hours and traveled 70 miles. How the boat survived the storm is a mystery to lake fishermen. William became "terribly seasick," but his brothers were not affected. The hands of the boys are blistered from trying to row the boat to land against the high seas that rolled on them.

Court Sentences Dog

Winchester, Va.—The Circuit court of Frederick county has solemnly imposed the death sentence on a dog. The case came up on an appeal from a decision of a magistrate who ordered the dog killed after deciding it had been "running, roaring and killing sheep, against the peace and dignity of the commonwealth."

A NEWSPAPER FOR THE PEOPLE OF MENTONE AND VICINITY

VOLUME 45.

AKRON, INDIANA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1927.

NUMBER 2.

By Arthur Brisbane
THE AVERAGE FARMER.
KNOW YOURSELF, ADD YEARS.
AN EXPENSIVE SPANKING.
O. H. KAHN, WISE FATHER.

How would you like to be the average American farmer? His farm is 315 acres. His investment $18,308. His average net return for 1926 was $1,133.

He could make more than that driving a street car, getting regular sleep, not worrying about weather, lame horses, sick cows, rust on wheat, bugs on potatoes, blight in the orchards, etc.

The puzzling question is why is a farmer?

More important to millions of Americans, cotton has gone to a new high price this year, three times on three consecutive days.

When cotton, not long ago, sold at half today's price, this writer said to Mr. Clarence Dillon, ingenious New York financier, "Buy yourself plenty of cotton and you will make a great deal of money."

Dr. Sherman, of Columbia University, shows that man's "vital years" can be increased by the right diet. Efficiency can begin earlier and last longer if men eat enough of the right things. Chemistry applied to diet will soon add ten years to the working period of human life.

Mrs. Amiee Semple McPherson, whose conversion of sinners proves her inspired, fights as well as she converts. Her former choir leader, Mr. Nichols, says: "Confess what really happened when you were supposed to be kidnapped." Mrs. Amiee Semple replies: "I told the truth, walked in the light, and you are only looking for advertising, which you need." There is nothing like courage to take you through Mrs. Amiee's life.

In Washington, Mrs. Fader spanked her three-year-old son, Bruce, because he would climb the iron fence. During the spanking her $3.00 diamond bracelet flew off and was lost. Bruce saw the bracelet in the air but, busy with his spanking, said nothing. Whipping children causes greater loss than that of any bracelet, when it destroys the child's affection and respect for parents.

Another American, Lieutenant C. C. Champion Jr., of the Navy set another flying mark. He is believed to have broken the world's altitude record.

He fought a temperature 90 degrees below zero and his plane caught fire. An ambulance rushed to meet him, found him grinning instead of dead as was expected.

Our atmosphere is 500 miles high, or deep, so thin at the top that a feather would not float in it.

How high up will men go? Will they be astronomers looking through thinner air at the universe outside of us?

Lieutenant Champion's estimated altitude of 47,000 feet is questioned. He says he will go up again and higher.

Mr. Chamberlin, Atlantic flier, tried something new in commercial shipping. In a little sport model biplane he flew from the deck of the steamship Leviathan, showing how passenger and mail transportation can be speeded up by flying from big ships as they near port.

A wise father lets his son do what he wants, within reason, for what a boy wants to do is usually what he can do best.

One of his boys liked music and wanted to lead a jazz band. Mr. Kahn said: "Go ahead and lead it. He knew the jazz band fit would not last long.

Now young Mr. Kahn, nineteen years old, has taken to flying, in his own pilot, and skiff. That does not make his father and mother sleep more soundly, probably, but Mr. Kahn says: "Go ahead and fly."

If more Americans with money would let their boys fly—as thousands of normal American boys would like to fly—this country would soon lead the world in aviation.

DR. J. W. HEFFLEY DIES IN MICH.

Dr. John W. Heffley, former resident of Mentone died at 1:10 P. M. August 2nd, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Abbott, Muskegon, Michigan. Dr. Heffley had been in poor health for the past ten years during which time he has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Abbott. Soon after his marriage he moved to Mentone where he followed his profession until poor health overtook him.

Funeral services were held at the M. E. Church in Rochester Thursday at 2:30 P. M. Rev. Martin of Port Wayne officiated. Interment was made at the Odd Fellows cemetery in Rochester.

OBITUARY

John William Heffley, the son of Samuel and Sarah Frances Pence Heffley was born near Rochester Indiana, March 30th, 1855.

Mr. Heffley obtained his elementary education at Rochester, Indiana. He later secured his preparatory work to the study of medicine at Washburn College, Crawfordville, Indiana. He received his medical degree from the Medical School of Cincinnati, Ohio, from which institution he was graduated.

Owing to his early age upon graduation he was obliged to wait a short time before he could begin practice at the age of 21. The doctor began his work at Wolcott, Indiana. Later he practiced at Millark, Palestine, Burket and Sevatapoli, Indiana for short periods of time until he finally located permanently at Mentone Indiana, where he served the people of that vicinity for the years.

His early professional career was filled with difficult but interesting experiences of pioneer days, when poor roads in the Springtime made necessary the use of the saddle horse to reach his patients. It was back in the days of chills and ague and attending hard times, when quinine, a prime requisite and potatoes vied with each other to reach the peak of prices. One was just as necessary as the other, and later the doctor and his wife used to enjoy talking about the difficulties of gaining a livelihood in those early days.

In the midst of these difficult times, the first son Samuel R. Heffley was born at Palestine, Indiana. Three years later a little daughter arrived, Bertha Adell, to give her elder brother company.

The family circle was completed when Donald Carlos was born, after Doctor Heffley had moved his home to Sevatapoli. Very soon the young physician took his wife and little folks to Mentone, through which point the new Nickel Plate railroad was to pass. Here he found ample activity to occupy his time and he served his people in an unusual, efficient and conscientious manner. He placed his emphasis upon service to his patients rather than upon the remuneration he was to receive and gave so unstintingly of his time and energy that his health broke under the strain at the early age of forty. A respite from his exacting practice served to return his health in a degree, but he was unable to do for the community, thereafter, what he would like to have done.

While at Wolcott, Indiana, he met his good wife, Hannah Gregory, where later they were married. Mrs. Heffley contributed much to his happiness and the profession of the doctor. His constant care of his wife during her long illness and her passing when he was at the age of 62 partly served to break his health to such an extent that he was forced to active practice in 1916 and after spending six months with his son Samuel R. Heffley, Los Angeles, California, he went to live with his daughter, Mrs. John R. Abbott.

He remained with Mrs. Abbott until his death, which occurred at 1:10 P. M. August 2, 1927 at Muskegon, Michigan, after a life of usefulness to his time and generation. He was particularly successful in his treatment of children and the elderly people. His humor contributed much to his happiness and healing of his patients. During his declining years his daughter, Mrs. Abbott, her husband and five family did all in their power to care for him and to make his stay with them a happy one. All

FORD'S NEW CAR IN SIX MODELS

The new Ford car, described as a little brother to the Lincoln, will be introduced to the public within three weeks. It was learned yesterday.

A standard gear shift with clutch, actually a small sized Lincoln transmission, replaces the old planetary system. The engine has a larger bore and longer stroke and will, it is said, develop speed of fifty-five miles an hour in second gear and sixty-eight miles an hour in high. Four wheel brakes, wire wheels and ball-joint tires are standard equipment.

The new car it is said, will sell for from $39 to $50 more than the present model. It will appear in almost any color combination the buyer desires.

The motor is four cylinder, L head type cast in block, with a 3 7-8 inch bore and a 4 1-2 inch stroke, developing 2,500 to 2,700 revolutions a minute. A high gear ratio gives the car its speed. The timer, the hub-bear of Ford owners, is replaced with a Lincoln type distributor. There will be no part of the new Ford in the Lincoln line.

The car will appear in six models: Sport, roadster, business and sport coupe, tudor and Fordor sedans and touring cars, and a ton truck.

ROBBERS ENTER FOUR CLAYPOOL STORES

Robbers Wednesday night looted four business places at Claypool, and escaped with auto accessories, jewelry and cash valued at about $1,000.

The four places robbed are the Garman Garage, Warton garage, Shoemaker drug store and Frair restaurant.

All the stores are located near each other and entrance was gained to each through the front doors.

The robbers took a dozen automobile tires, two radio sets, a dozen automobile lamps, several boxes of cigars and cigarettes, a dozen gold rings, several gold pencils and pens and numerous auto accessories.

The heaviest loss was suffered by the Warton garage, where most of the auto parts were stolen.

A chassis was stolen from the Garman garage. A youth who plays in the town band had left it there for the night. The robbers also broke into a gasoline tank and stole a quantity of gasoline, presumably for the car in which they escaped with their loot.

The watches, rings, pencils and pens were taken at the drug store. Only about $6 in cash was obtained. Sheriff Frank McCall investigating today could find no clues. No one in the town had heard any suspicious noise during the night or had seen the robbers enter or leave the town.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

WASTING TIME

THERE is one thing that you cannot buy from the greatest merchant in the world. A minute of time. One second is as unrepurchasable as the whole of eternity.

For thousands of men and women go through life wasteful not only of their own precious moments, but wholly regardless of the value of other people's time.

To busy man the loss of fifteen minutes may upset the plan for a whole day's work. Delay in the keeping of an appointment may disarrange hours of scheduled efforts.

You would never think of putting your hand into the pocket of a man and taking out even the smallest coin, but you may make totally valueless for him a period of time worth more than all the money he had in all his pockets.

The great trouble with too many is that they put no value at all on time. They watch the hands of the clock go round with as little regard for the fleeting hour as for a passing wind.

For a spent dollar another may be earned to take its place. For the lost friend another may be gained. But for the hour that is gone, for the minute that is wasted, there is no supplying a substitute, no replacement. It is gone forever.

It was TIME, not guns nor generals, that won and lost at Waterloo. And Napoleon was not alone among the great generals who were defeated by the clock.

"Give us time," said a great scientist, "and we can solve every problem the world offers us."

Life is composed of only two things: time and effort. One is useless without the other. Both should be as nearly 100 per cent productive as we are able to make them.

Try as best we may, the end of life will find us with many things undone. No man ever wholly completed the task allotted to him. There is no reasonable excuse for the loss of time no waste creep.

For the man who wastes his own time or steals another's, there is neither excuse nor valid reason. He has wantonly destroyed what neither man nor the Creator Himself can restore or replace.

Put a value on every minute. Be as anxious and as certain to get that value as you are to gain the worth of your dimes and your dollars.

Remember that once a minute has passed it is gone FOREVER.

Do You Know

That:--??

TURKEY TALKS, or to "talk turkey" is a phrase meaning to speak in an open, honest manner.

It happened that an Indian and a white man had agreed to hunt together for a day and then share the game between themselves. At the end of the day they divided the game as agreed. All went well while they were separating the smaller animals and birds. Each took one of a kind. But when they came to the last pair, a crow and a turkey, the white man hesitated. "Now you may have the crow and I'll take the turkey or I'll take the turkey and you may have the crow."

"Huh, huh," grunted the Indian. "Why you no talk turkey to me?"

Know Yourself!

By EVELYN GAGE BROWNE

WHAT does Yourself know of YOURSELF? Are you sure through and through that you amount to something—or not?

What do you know about YOU? It's not what some one else may say. Or what other folks think, my friend. That is going to help you day by day. And count in the final end:

What "they say"—unless it is down-right true—Isn't worth a pleasure. And if you'd be square in all you do. Get a line on Yourself right soon.

Sit down with Yourself and ask Yourself. If you're really fit to know. And whether you'd like the world to see.

The YOU that doesn't show. Examine the YOU that's deep inside. And bring it out to the light. And if there's anything you would hide—Get busy and set it right.

And before you can tackle the job in view. Or hope to get anywhere. You've got to tackle the Real YOU. And fight it out right there.

Then see that you measure up to the BEST. And in every time or place. You'll surely never mind the rest—It YOUR OWN SELF you can face.

If you know Yourself just what you're worth. If you know you're honest within—That's all that counts on this old earth. And I'll tell the world you'll win!

When I was TWENTY-ONE

By JOSEPH KATZ

At 21—James Forbes Lost the Opportunity of an Editor's Favor.

"AT THIS time I was a constant occupant of the theater gallery in Chicago, the gallery because of my income. My fellow gallery boys were a source of great amusement to me because of the strange and amusing idiom in which they expressed their opinion of the plays and the actors.

"So I wrote a gallery boy's impression of a play, in which I said that the story was written by a Chicago newspaper and the editor assigned me to write a similar story on Eleanor Duse, then making her first visit to Chicago.

"I did not write that story, because I came away from the theater with a good deal of money. I had been privileged to see one of the most marvelous exhibitions of acting genius in the theater.

"When the editor demanded the reason I had not written the story I said it would have been a 'sacrilege' and offered to do another story. He accepted me and asked what I did for a living. I replied that I was a book-keeper in a wholesale grocery store. He told me I had better stay there. I ventured meekly, 'You don't think I can write?' 'No,' came quickly, 'you belong with the prunes.'—James Forbes.

"FOUR—James Forbes has achieved national fame with his plays, and play-producing. He is the author of the celebrated 'The Chorus Lady' and 'The Famous Mrs. Pals'.

Cottage Cheese Salad. Mix two cups of cottage cheese with one-half cup of shredded almonds that have been blanched, one teaspoonful of olives (chopped), or one onion finely shredded; season with salt and paprika and mix with cream. Serve on crisp lettuce with a boiled dressing.

Frozen Custard. To one quart of milk add three slightly beaten eggs, one cupful of sugar, the juice and rind of an orange and a little salt. Cook the rind of the lemon in the custard until smooth, then add the juice and freeze. When partly frozen add one-fourth pound each of chopped walnut meats and steamed chopped figs. Finish freezing and let stand a few hours to ripen.

Lesson for August 14

DAVID BRINGS THE ARK TO JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—II Sam. 6:1-19; Ps. 24. GOLDEN TEXT—We shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy habitation.

PRIMARY TOPIC—David Worship of God. JUNIOR TOPIC—David Worship of God. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Worship God. ADULT TOPIC—Exalting God in Individual and National Life.

1. David Made King. 1. Over Judah (II Sam. 2:1-4). Upon the death of Saul and Jonathan, David knew that the time had come for the fulfillment of God's promise, but he carefully inquired of the Lord as to the proper movement to make. God directed him to Hebron, whereupon the children of Judah anointed him to be their king.

2. Over Israel (II Sam. 5:1-5). The children of Israel came and formed a league with David, anointing him as their king. They assigned as their reasons:

(1) He was their brother (v. 1). This is true of Jesus Christ, who has become our kinsman through the incarnation and dwelt with us.

(2) He was their leader in war, even in Saul's time (v. 2).

(3) He was the Lord's choice (v. 2).

3. David's Unsuccessful Attempt to Bring up the Ark (v. 1-5). This is an example of a wrong way of doing a right thing. That the Ark of the Lord is the symbol of God's presence, should be brought to the center of the nation's life was a decision worthy of all praise. David gathered a number of representative men of the nation in order that the movement might be a national one. That David was sincere in this movement cannot be doubted, but he was hasty and inconsiderate, for the procedure was an express violation of God's statutes. The dictum that it matters not how good you do, just so you are honest and sincere is one of the devil's blackest lies.

4. God Vindicates His Law and Malicious (v. 6-10). The people were very joyful as they moved on toward Jerusalem with the ark, but suddenly there was a stop to the jubilation. The ark, which was the symbol of God's presence, should be brought to the center of the nation's life was a decision worthy of all praise. David gathered a number of representative men of the nation in order that the movement might be a national one. That David was sincere in this movement cannot be doubted, but he was hasty and inconsiderate, for the procedure was an express violation of God's statutes. The dictum that it matters not how good you do, just so you are honest and sincere is one of the devil's blackest lies.

5. The Ark of God in the House of Obad-Edom (v. 10-12). The house where God is welcomed are always blessed. Obad-Edom was not better personally than Uzzah and David, but he openly received the ark into his house. He was just feeling a grim satisfaction in the thought that at least Phylis couldn't be with him, when the eastern girl came in, dressed for riding. She spoke to Jean, coolly patronizing.

"Saddle my pony, will you, Jean. I'm going to ride over to meet Perry."

The next day that sturdy surly Jean's heart frightened her. She went out of the house to the stable. She hated the pretty eastern girl to her place, and she hated her to ride lips—what right had she to steal away Jean's whole life's happiness?

"My pony," she said. It was Jean's pony. Phylis had appropriated the pony as coolly as she had the man. Jean's eyes fell on the little horse that Pa Lemann had recently brought home for her to break in. It was almost a counterpart in size and color of Jean's own pony. He was becoming accustomed to the saddle, but Pa Lemann had forbidden Jean to ride him. Jean's lips were set in a determined line, and her eyes gleamed dangerously. Phylis would never know the difference between the two ponies in the dusky light of approaching darkness. Let the patronizing little eastern heartbreaker ride the forbidden pony and test the value of the riding lessons that Perry had given her. She saddled the horse without much difficulty and led him with beating heart to the house, where she helped Phylis to mount and stood watching her ride off. She was all right while the pony was walking. But when he began to trot, she saw that the horse broke into gallop.

Then when the waves of anger which had enveloped her had subsided and she was simply overwhelmed with remorse. She thought she had suffered before, but her former misery was nothing compared to the despair she felt now at a succession of pictured disasters passed before her mental vision. How could she have been so utterly insane? Phylis would be killed. Why and how would be responsible. Should she saddle her own pony and ride after her? But that would be a confession. There was nothing else she could do. It was quite dark and she stood in the doorway, straining her eyes to see across the sage brush, just waiting and waiting for what she hardly dared to think.

When, at last, she heard some one riding toward the house she turned cold with apprehension. It was Perry—Perry, holding a living figure on the saddle before him! Jean could scarcely force herself to walk down the steps to meet him as he came toward her with Phylis in his arms. Her voice was faint with terror—"Oh, Perry! She's not killed!"

Perry shook his head and pushed past her into the house, where he followed him up the stairs and watched in terrified silence while he laid the unconscious girl on the bed. Then Perry dashed off for the nearest doctor and Jean sat beside Phylis in an agony of suspense, sending out little wordless prayers for the girl's recovery. It was terrible to let that loving Perry see as she did, she was perhaps responsible for the wrecking of his happiness. How could she ever atone?

Perry and the doctor came at last. The minutes dragged into hours while Jean and Perry waited outside this bedroom door. Jean's heart was so full of the doctor and gave Jean a reassuring smile Jean's face went white and she swayed unsteadily. Perry looked at her surprisedly. "Why, Jean, did she mean so much to you?"

The doctor told them that Phylis was badly bruised, but there was no need to worry. Jean turned to Perry—"If you only knew!"

Perry said hesitatingly: "It was so lucky that I happened along when I did. Miss Phylis had dismounted and was walking too close to the cliff above the river—"

Then Jean's eyes widened and she clutched at Perry's hands. "Do you mean that the horse didn't throw her—that she fell herself?"

"Then she was so near to the cliff, deeply in relieved thankfulness and went on."

"Perry I knew now that I only want you to be happy."

Perry's face lighted up, and he put his arms quickly around her. "Well, Jean, I guess you know what I need to be happy."

Jean looked up at him, wondering. "But I thought—that Phylis—"

Perry laughed joyously. "Why, you little goose—do you mean to say that you're been jealous? And all the time I thought you were angry because I kissed you?"

And so, with their second kiss, all of Jean's "blue devils" faded away to parts unknown and life took on a rosy hue once more.

Service Rendered by Gull Now Appreciated

There was a time when the gull was slaughtered and its feathers used to adorn military's headgear. Their eggs also were eaten and the young, when salted, made a palatable winter dish. In the early days of settlement, the gulls were captured in the gulch-house and the small birds killed by means of a frying pan and fire at the end of a string. The value of the gulls was gradually realized. They consumed fishes of fish and other sea animals, sometimes strangled ashore. They continued to perform this invaluable service.

Some leave shore and keep vigil behind the farmer's plow, snipping up grubs and other destructive insects. They devour grasshoppers and locusts, as well as field mice and other rodent pests. Fishermen are indebted to them, for the gulls, by their presence, indicate where the food fish are. And in foggy weather, they send a warning cry to mariners and fishermen from their breeding places in dangerous rocks and ledges.

There are 30 species of gulls known. 26 of them are from North America. Many of the American species flock in great herds to Wellfleet bay and ocean shores and to many ponds.

Nothing to Erg Of

At Montpelier on the Savannah river, where he was a guest, Dr. W. W. Mitchell and his host were enjoying their after-dinner cigar and commencing on the beauties of the scenery, when the moon rose over the bayou. The doctor exclaimed: "Look at that great, mellow, warm, tropical moon, big as a carwheel. Up in Vermont that moon wouldn't be bigger than a pin and it would be all hung over with leucies."

The doctor, who gazed rapturously on the moon and continued: "I don't wonder that the poets and artists and romancers come from the South when you have that beautiful mellow moon to look at."

The colonel gazed sadly on the moon and replied: "You like that moon, doctor? You just over seen that moon befo' the war."

The New Science

Secretary Parker Moon, of the New York Academy of Political Science, was discussing the enormous campaign expenditures of certain candidates.

"These chaps," he said, "don't seem to understand political economy."

Then he laughed and went on: "A boy said to his father: 'Pop, what's political economy, anyhow?'"

"Political economy," said the father, "is the study of how to get rich."

"That's all right," said the boy, "but I don't want to be a politician. I want to be a capitalist. I want to be a millionaire. I want to be a billionaire. I want to be a multimillionaire. I want to be a multimillionaire."

"That's all right," said the father, "but I don't want to be a politician. I want to be a capitalist. I want to be a millionaire. I want to be a billionaire. I want to be a multimillionaire. I want to be a multimillionaire."

The Power of Credit

The mightiest engine ever built, rushing onward at top speed, is but an infant in strength when compared to the power of CREDIT

Credit can build great cities or it can destroy them. Credit can make or break a world power nation.

Yet with all its great power, Credit is one of our most fragile institutions. Rightly guarded and fostered it can carry us onward and upward to untold heights of success.

Each one of us is entirely responsible for his own Credit. The man who pays his bills promptly, be he banker or day laborer, is doing his share toward guarding his Credit. He is building for the future upon a solid foundation. None can tell when good credit may mean the difference between success or failure in his future life.

Boston Teaches Britain

As we glanced over the current number of the London Graphic a familiar picture caught our eye—that of the open parking space on our own St. James avenue. "Here is one of the motor lessons that Britain may still learn from the U. S. A." runs the footnote and then this: "It was taken from the roof of the new police headquarters which, by implicit accident or stealthy design, adjoins the car park."—Boston Transcript.

Time to Call Hall

The minister and his small son were in the grocery store one day. While waiting, the clerk being busy with other customers, the minister picked up a nut and ate it. The small son up a nut and ate it. The small son watched his father closely, then being careful so that no one might hear, he whispered: "Daddy, steal one for me."—Indianapolis News.

In the shadow of the "cheap" house paint can

Don't let the low price on "cheap" paint fool you. Once you get in the shadow of the "cheap" paint can you will have a gloomy outlook. You may think the low price is saving you money. But your reward will be a bigger paint bill—an inferior job—a short-life job—and big repainting bills.

There is only one way to real economy in house paint. Use the best paint money can buy—SWP. It costs more per gallon—but much less per job and per year. Ask us to prove it.

GUARANTEED!

SWP is guaranteed to look better, last longer, cost less per job and less per year than any paint on the market.

Horsehide—Double Tanned That Always Stays Soft

Here is a Wolverine shoe for year 'round wear. The tops are high enough to keep out the mud and dirt of the spring and fall, low enough for coolness in the summer and are ideal in the winter to wear under an overshoe. Because of its general utility this Wolverine is one of our largest sellers. Made of Cordovan horsehide, there is almost no wear-out to the upper; our experience has been this upper will wear out on an average two pairs of half soles. A light weight work shoe that is soft when you buy it, and stays that way.

POULTRY FACTS

POULTRY NEEDS CARE IN SUMMER

Though egg production drops in hot weather the poultry flock should receive attention so that best results may be secured when production starts on the upgrade again.

"The decline in egg production begins in June," says Dr. R. F. Kaupp, head of the poultry department of the North Carolina agricultural college. "We estimate that each hen will average about 15 eggs during this month. The breeding season is also over in June and it is a wise plan to sell all the old male birds not needed for another season. Those males that are wanted should be placed in a separate field with plenty of range and a comfortable small house. The male is not needed for egg production, and when he is kept away from the flock, infertile eggs are produced. An infertile egg keeps better in hot weather than a fertile egg. In any case, it is wise to gather the eggs frequently and market them at least twice each week. For best prices, they should be kept clean and cool."

Dr. Kaupp suggests that it might be a good idea to caponize a few of the early cockerets and grow them out on range this summer for the holiday trade. Capons are in demand around Thanksgiving and Christmas, and with a little care, a good trade in capons may be built up. When birds are clipped to control body pests, a warm dip should be selected and a solution of 1 per cent coal tar dip used. The house should be well ventilated. Open the rear ventilators but do not permit a draft to blow across the birds.

Red mites play havoc with the vitality of the farm flock, states Dr. Kaupp. For this reason it is not a bad plan to paint the perch poles with pure dip or some used cylinder oil that has been diluted with kerosene.

All birds need plenty of shade and fresh clean water during summer, and the poultryman who does not provide these simple necessities makes a serious mistake, advises Dr. Kaupp.

Cause of Heavy Death

Rate of Young Chicks

Ninety per cent of the sick and dead chicks received by the veterinary department of Purdue university during March and April of this year, had bacillary white diarrhea. These chicks came from 1,000 flocks. In most cases the letters that accompanied the different lots indicated that the owners did not suspect the true cause of the heavy death rate, and most of them believed that the feed was responsible for the loss.

The name "bacillary white diarrhea" is somewhat misleading. Many poultrymen believe that it is a disease of the intestines and the sick chicks always show a diarrhea. As a matter of fact, there is very little evidence of bowel trouble, either in the form of symptoms or lesions. In the most destructive outbreaks and the highly acute cases. Birds that survive the infection for several days or a week show lesions in the liver, lungs, heart and intestines. The lungs are commonly affected. This gives rise to difficulty or labored breathing. "Aren't you ashamed of yourselves, all of you," he continued, "you, little first sparrow, for being so selfish, and little second one, for losing your temper, and the rest of you for joining in?"

Teaching Chicks to Roost

Prevents Crooked Bones

Teach the chicks to roost. Crooked breast bones may be the result of too early roosting on roosts which do not support the body, but a 2 by 2 inch scuntling with the upper corners slightly rounded, placed at about a foot from the floor at first, will not cause crooked breast bones and will prevent huddling in corners and piling up. Teaching the chicks to roost is better. It means going to the brood coops before dark and putting up the chicks that have gone to the corners. But once they are roost-trained, there is little danger of chicks piling up even though we have the occasional cold night which plays havoc with chicks in cold coops.

Time to Caponize

The time to caponize is when the cockerel is 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 pounds in weight or two to four months of age. Slips result when a part of one or the testicles is not removed. Beginners sometimes have as many as 50 per cent of slips. Next year you will probably have better success. When a capon fails to develop it is not because they were caponized too young but probably due to worms or some physical defect not apparent to a casual glance or examination.

Intestinal Worm Cure

Tobacco dust may be used in the treatment of intestinal worm infestation of young chicks after they are six or eight weeks of age. It should be used as it is with older birds. 1 pound of dust of not less than 1 per cent nicotine content to each 50 pounds of mass. It should not be assumed the either chicks or older fowls have worms in sufficient numbers to do harm without an examination of the interior of the intestines of one or more dead birds.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE QUARREL

Nick and Nancy had been feeding crumbs to the birds every day for some time.

"I fancy they enjoy them pretty well, don't they?" said Daddy.

"Yes, they love them," replied Nancy.

"Do they ever scrap over who shall get a crumb first?" added Daddy.

"No," said Nick, "they don't seem to. They really are very friendly and they seem to be very friendly and get along beautifully."

"Well, you know," said Daddy, "the other day I saw some birds having an awful fight."

"One little sparrow had found a very big crumb and was trying to keep it all to himself."

"Sparrows are supposed to be rather fond of fighting, aren't they, Daddy?" asked Nick.

"They do seem to be considerably crosser and to have more cranky natures than other birds."

"But perhaps it is because they are always around us, and they never have a quarrel that we don't see it."

"But really, we ought to be grateful to the sparrow, for we have them all ways with us, even when other birds are not fond of our weather, or even in the city in the winter time."

"Yes, that's true," said Nancy. "And they're plucky little creatures, too never minding bad weather, not even the very worst."

"But do tell us more about the fight, Daddy."

"Another little sparrow," continued Daddy, "was furious when he saw the selfishness of the first sparrow."

"He completely lost his temper. He flew at the first little sparrow and hit him with his wings just as hard as ever he could.

"Then a number of sparrows came and joined in the fight. Some took the side of the first sparrow and some of the second sparrow."

"It really might have been quite a serious battle had not an old sparrow stepped in and pitched his voice way up in the air."

"He simply shrieked at the sparrows."

"Stop! Stop at once!" he cried. "All the sparrows stopped at once, for they were very much afraid of the old sparrow."

"He was quite their leader, and though he was a very old sparrow and would enter into all their sports, still he was quite strict."

"Aren't you ashamed of yourselves, all of you," he continued, "you, little first sparrow, for being so selfish, and little second one, for losing your temper, and the rest of you for joining in?"

"And all the little sparrows hung their heads in shame, and they then and there promised the old sparrow that they would never again be greedy and selfish nor would they fight."

"The old sparrow then looked very much relieved, for it always made him very unhappy when the sparrows were naughty."

Wouldn't Imitate a Girl

Jack had woven a small mat and gave it to his mother for a gift. When he gave it to her she thanked him and was looking it over. Thinking she did not look much pleased, he said, "Well, don't you like it, mother?"

"Yes, Jack, I do like it, but it seems to me you might have made it a little more neatly."

Jack replied, "You see I didn't want it to look as though a girl had made it."

FASHION'S FAVORITE ENSEMBLE; MILLINERY TAKES UP FLOWERS

WOMEN of fashion are indulging in the luxury of all-white this summer. One has only to count up the cleaner's bills at the end of a "white season" to agree that it is no misnomer to refer to the all-white costume as a luxury.

Somewhat both madam and mademoiselle appear at their most charming, clad in pure white. Not only is the allure of all-white due to its becomingness, but its immaculate silhouette even bears the appeal of the exquisite. So it is that the vogue for white is with us, particularly so these late midsummer days.

White coats posed over white frocks, topped with chic white felt hats, such is fashion's favorite ensemble. Coats range from the simplest tailored types of white flannel, also the knitted kind, to most elegant has only to view the latest models from Paris to appreciate the fact that flowers are decidedly in the millinery picture, but in ways most unique and distinctive.

The tendency is marked toward flat flowers for they lend themselves so successfully to the idea of being built into the structure of the hat without interfering with its original contour. The method of applying trimming so as to maintain an undisturbed silhouette must be observed, in order to secure a proper styling, according to the modern conception of good design.

A flat flower treatment is carried out adroitly by forming a semi-crown of reeds for the black straw hat shown at the top to the right in this picture. The little bonnets in this collection are quaintly flower-trimmed. The one modest, the latter frequently cuffed and collared with white fox.

Meet, if you please, in the picture, Gertrude Olmstead, the youthful film actress, who is of the newer generation of stars, wearing an adorable all-white costume just such as is the only and admiration of all who behold. White falls is the chosen medium for this ravishing model with a wealth of snowy fox fur. A bright red belt on a white kid pump and a smart petit-point embroidered bag are the chic accessories which enhance this lovely costume.

white fox neckpiece is registered this season in the smart set's book of style. Even if one should perchance neglect to wear one's white coat—only white fox bon, never! White fox, women have learned, is too flatteringly becoming to be omitted from the picture. And the way to wear it is to trail it across the back of one's shoulders, fastening it, oh! so daintily at the front, so that it does not encumber the throat. With the colorful sheen of posing a single large flower underneath next the face, as evidenced in the concluding hat in this group.

Eggs are not the only things that are added life and power by being brooded over. If we want to enlarge and multiply everything unpleasant or that which has offended us, brooding over it will do it.

SEASONAL FOODS

During the summer months we enjoy other foods than meat; occasionally a day of steaks or chops will be enjoyed, but the bulk of the meals are better for us with little meat.

Onions on Toast.—Cook a bunch of young green onions in enough water to cover until tender. Drain off the water, add a tablespoonful of butter with salt and pepper. Prepare buttered toast and pour over the hot of the liquor in which they were cooked. Serve hot.

Nuts With Cheese.—Beat to a cream one tablespoonful of butter, then add one-half cupful of cottage cheese which has been well seasoned with salt and cream. Cream cheese may be used if at hand. Add one-half cupful of chopped hickory nuts and serve, adding a bit of lemon juice and make into balls. Serve as a salad with lettuce, or with crackers as a dessert, with coffee.

Nut Cutlets.—Take one cupful of bread crumbs, one-fourth cupful of finely chopped almonds, a little onion or chives, seasoned with salt and pepper. Put over the heat one cupful of milk; when boiling add the bread crumbs and four tablespoonfuls of butter. Cook until thick. When cool add the nuts, a little parsley; shape into cutlets, roll in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve with tomato sauce.

Seasonable Good Things.

During the summer weather we enjoy light foods and those which are the least tax upon the digestion. Salad is a dish which is found on most menus.

Eggs and Vegetable Salad.—Take five hard cooked eggs, one small green pepper, one-half cupful of finely chopped celery, four tablespoonfuls of tomato catsup, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, two tablespoonfuls of oil, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, two cupfuls of shredded cabbage.

Cut eggs into halves crosswise, remove the yolks and mash them. Cut peppers, remove seeds and mince the pepper fine. Combine the celery with the pepper and egg yolks, adding enough mayonnaise to dressing to moisten. Fill the halves of the eggs with this mixture. Mix cabbage with French dressing, using two tablespoonfuls of oil to one of vinegar, with seasonings. Serve the eggs on a bed of cabbage.

Egg-Cheese Custards.—Butter four ramekins. Divide two cupfuls of bread cubes among the cups. Beat two cupfuls of milk and add one-half cupful of good rich cheese cut into bits, or better grated; add a teaspoonful of salt, paprika to taste and two beaten eggs. Pour over the bread in the ramekins and set them into a pan of hot water to bake in a moderate oven until the custard is set. Serve hot. Nice for luncheon dish with a lettuce salad.

Baked Fish With Shrimp Sauce.—Prepare a stuffed fish for broiling and bake as usual. Serve with the following: Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add one tablespoonful of flour when well blended add one-fourth of a cupful of tomato soup, one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water, one teaspoonful of paprika, a dash of cayenne and salt to season with three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and one pound of cooked shrimps; simmer for five minutes. Nice with broiled or boiled fish.

Onion Salad.—Chop or cut into fine cubes a large Bermuda onion, add enough cubed apple to make up the desired amount to serve, cut up a half dozen dates and serve with a good salad dressing, after seasoning well.

Pineapple Souffle.—Melt one-fourth cupful of butter when well blended add one-fourth of a cupful of tomato soup, one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water, one teaspoonful of paprika, a dash of cayenne and salt to season with three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and one pound of cooked shrimps; simmer for five minutes. Nice with broiled or boiled fish.

Deadly Mushroom Is Enjoyed by Squirrel

Poisonous mushrooms seem to have no terrors for the lively red squirrel of the woods, according to Robert F. Platt of the biology department of New York university. He noticed during his researches in the field that red squirrels fed freely on two poisonous species, and that they seemed to prefer them also when they came to store food for the winter. Incredulous, he tried mushroom diets on caged red squirrels, and found that they selected the same two species out of a variety of edible fungi offered to them. The poisonous mushrooms are the so-called fly agaric, Amanita muscaria, which is reputed to be almost invariably fatal to human beings and is sometimes used as a fly poison, and a red-disk-colored species known as Itinus americana, which has a disagreeable peppery taste and if eaten raw will provoke violent spasms. The reason for the immunity enjoyed by the squirrels is as great a riddle as their apparent preference for these two toxic species.

Poisonous in Part

A word of warning: Many flowers are poisonous or semi-poisonous. Those of the daffodil, for instance, are powerfully emetic. It is not generally understood that many plants may be poisonous in one part. A striking example is the rhubarb, where only an inch or two at the top of the stem lies between the poisonous leaf and delicious stalk.

NOTICE OF HEARING

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Trustees of the Incorporated
Town of Mentone, Kosciusko
County Indiana, has adopted preliminary and prima facie assessment rolls for the improvements by paving with one of the kinds of modern city pavement of the following described streets in said town of Mentone, to-wit:

Beginning on Franklin street at the south corporate line of the Town of Mentone, Kosciusko County
Indiana, and running thence north to the north line of Harrison street, excepting that part of the Main and Harrison street intersection already paved. Also a spur the center line of which is 104.7 feet south of the northeast corner of section 2, township 31 north range 4 east, and running thence northwest parallel with the New York Chicago and St. Louis Railroad to the concrete pavement on Main street.

Also beginning at the east line of the intersection of Franklin and Harrison streets and running thence east on Harrison street to the east line of Broadway street.

Also beginning at the south line of the intersection of Harrison and Broadway streets and running thence south on Broadway street to the north line of the New York Chicago and St.
Louis Railroad, excepting that part of the Main and Broadway street intersection already paved.

Said prima facie assessments rolls make an assessment against all of the real estate abutting upon that part of said streets improved, and property upon intersecting streets and within 150 feet of said improvements, which intersecting streets are as follows: Washington street, Jefferson street, Monroe street, Main street, Jackson street, Tucker street.
Said assessment rolls with the names of the owners and descriptions of the property subject to be assessed, with the amounts of said prima facie assessments are on file and can be seen at the office of the Town Clerk of said Town.

The Board of Trustees of said Town will meet at 7:30 o'clock P. M. on Thursday evening August 25,
1927 at the Town Hall of said Town at which time and place it will receive and hear remonstrances against the amounts assessed upon the real estate described in said rolls, and will determine the question as to whether such lots or tracts of land have been or will be benefited by said improvements in the amounts named on said rolls, or in a greater or less sum, or in any sum, at which time and place all owners of real estate may attend in person or by representative, and be heard, after which the said Board will either sustain or modify, in whole or in part, the prima facie assessments as indicated on said rolls, either by confirming, increasing or reducing the same, according to the special benefits which said Board decides each such lot or tract of land has received or will receive on account of such improvements.

Of all of which you will take due notice or said hearing will be had in your absence.

DEATH AND A TRIP TO EUROPE.
NEWS FROM BOTH SIDES.
PERHAPS WE COME BACK?

Written on the Aquitania on the way to Paris, by way of Cherbourg, leaving New York just after midnight yesterday morning.

No matter how often you cross on big ships like this, or little ones, you are reminded that the long trip called death and an ocean voyage are not unlike.

You take your "last dinner" in New York friends are more or less sorry to see you go. That's the death. On board ship you sail through space for some thousands of miles, with only water all around you. That's the trip from here to the next world.

Is due time you land in that next world, to find it different from this, and very interesting.

If you go to Paris—this writer is going there—you reach what many Americans consider a fairly good imitation of heaven.

The safety in crossing our little ocean the certainty of landing on the other side, should make us worry less about the big crossing over the ocean of earth.

Once we knew as little about an Atlantic crossing as we know now about the "final trip" that each must take when his turn comes.

When Columbus started, they told him he would fall over the edge of the ocean.

When the Phoenicians, ancestors of many energetic Jewish citizens, first sailed from the Mediterranean, through the straits of Gibraltar, past the gigantic rock and into the Atlantic Ocean, friends thought that was the end of them.

Now crossing the ocean is like going from New York to Chicago. You hear from your friends on both sides of the ocean. Business messages come from the United States side, other messages from the European side, when 1,000 miles from shore.

Science has conquered this little ocean. Intelligence has made it famous, cleared out sea serpents, taught us we need not put wax in our ears to shut out the singing of sirens, convinced us, to our sorrow, that no mermaids are waiting to pick us up when we fall overboard. All fear and superstition are gone from these floating cities. A preacher on board does not worry the sailors—there are no sailors.

Our oceans and our land have been cleared of all superstitions, unreal horrors, chimeras, hydras and gorgons dire.

It has taken men all of the million years they have lived on earth to change from caven cannibals to modern exploiters, of their fellow men and to get rid of earthly superstitions.

Many haven't even done that yet. Eventually we shall get rid of all the superstitions and look forward to death and the voyage that comes after it as easily as we now prepare for a trip across the little Atlantic.

As people go to Paris and come back none the worse for the trip, and take up their activities again, many believe those that take the voyage of death come back from that trip to earth and take up their work about where they dropped it.

To them it seems reasonable to credit Eternal Justice with wise economy, and it would seem useless waste of time to send billions of imperfect creatures to work in another corner of the universe when the work here isn't finished.

We are only twelve thousand years from the late Stone Age, not two hundred years from the stage coach and saliboot.

A simple idea like putting the eye of a needle in the point instead of the thick end made the sewing machine possible and freed millions of women from slavery. We should believe that other ideas will free us from the slavery of superstition, which has driven us hard through the centuries and caused more brutality, fear, cruelty and murder than all other causes together.

Tennyson hoped there would be no moaning at the bar when he put out

FARM BUREAU TRAINING

SCHOOL OPENED AT CEDAR LAKE MONDAY

The second summer training school of the Midwest State Farm Bureaus opened at Cedar Lake, Ind., August 15 and will continue through the week. A program of unusual interest has been arranged and Hoosiers will take an active part in the week's conferences and addresses.

L. R. Panler, President of the Ohio Farm Bureau, is dean of the school and C. L. Brody, of the Michigan Farm Bureau, is registrar. The purpose of the school is to bring together officers and leaders of the various state farm bureaus to study and play together in order that they may carry back to their home establishments and maintaining membership, as well as efficient administration.

Mrs. Charles W. Sewell of Otterbein, Ind., second vice-president of the Indiana Farm Bureau and director of home and community work of the American Farm Bureau, has been the moving spirit in the training school. It was largely through her efforts that the school was established.

A fine program is scheduled for the week.

LAIRD-BRADDOCK REUNION

The Annual reunion of the Laird-Braddock families, was held at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Laird south of Mentone, Indiana, on Thursday August 11, 1927.

The weather man was very considerate of our wants and gave us an ideal summer day for this occasion. Fifty six persons registered on the attendance book but the interest and enthusiasm was keen in everyone.

The forenoon was passed in greeting each auto load that arrived and in visiting. The annual bid dinner was served on tables on the lawn that were heaped with the choicest of foods.

In the afternoon the meeting was called to order by Frank W. Laird and all joined in singing "America The Beautiful" after which Samuel A. Laird offered prayer which was followed by singing "Blest be the tie that binds."

Mrs. Maude Laird read very interesting letters from Joseph S. Coleman of Mecon Ga., Allan Max Laird of Elmira New York and Mrs. Rinehart of Mt. Gilboa O., who could not be present at the meeting.

The president appointed the following persons to be a permanent committee on program and arrangements, Hazel Braddock, Mildred Ogile, Lenore Laird, Roy Meredith, Vera Laird and Maude Leonard.

Ice cream was served and every one started for their respective homes feeling it had been another good reunion and hoping to meet at the C. J. Braddock home in Columbia City, the Second Thursday of August, 1928.

COMING TO

WARSAW—HAYS HOTEL

FOR ONE DAY ONLY
Hours 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

DR. T. M. CULVER, Specialist
(Licensed by the State of Indiana.)
Brings the knowledge of forty years of experience in the successful treatment of complicated chronic conditions.

Dr. Culver, experienced specialist formerly with National Doctors of Milwaukee, also some years connected with the Chicago Hospital, treats without surgical operations or hypodermic injections, diseases of the blood, skin, and the internal organs, rheumatism, sciatic, lung troubles, old ulcers, tape-worm, eczema, asthma, chronic constipation, epilepsy, high blood pressure, bed wetting and other morbid affections of the body.

Years of experience and the great number of cases successfully treated prove that the methods of the Doctor are very dependable.

Many people keep on suffering from ailments that might be greatly improved because they cannot afford to go to high-priced specialists away from home, and few communities have sufficient numbers of such cases to support a specialist.

The doctor has solved this problem by traveling from town to town to meet the sick. His instructions recommends a course of treatment and teaches falling men and women how to take care of themselves at home.

To those having ailments of long standing, whatever the trouble may be, and notwithstanding the poor results of former treatments, come and talk it over.

Examination and advice free. Ladies are requested to come escorted.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE AN OPEN LETTER
To The Honorable Board of Trustees of the Town of Mentone:
With reference to our recent street paving and improvement program, I would like to suggest a few ideas, to wit:

While the engineer's levels may be open to criticism in some places, on the whole it is very proper and admirable. The concrete work seems to be extra well done and the general plan of the work was nicely figured out. And those in authority who did it are entitled to our heartiest thanks and commendations. While the clean up of debris and surplus dirt has not all been taken care of I would like to call your attention to some of the sloppy utility work and in particular to the destruction of the side drains. The berm in front of the Baptist Church lacks a few minutes of mattock work; nearly every corner should be cut down or filled to conform to street pavement; gutters should be cut twelve of thirteen feet from pavement, at least six inches lower than pavement and properly drained to catch basins. The rough jumps at the intersection streets picked down to a reasonable grade; and while I am laying out quite a job for the great commission, I lower just hire a team, plow and a couple of good hands and instruct them to make this job perfect, not sloppy and slipshod. It may be necessary to hire a police force to keep off those egotistical, brainless fellows, head filled with ivory or bone, who seem to want to fix the berm along their property to conform to some idea they got in a moonshine dream, or they have an innate disposition to wreck a beautiful plan.

They insist on making this street costing $20,000, the bottom of a sewer, regardless to the consequences to the concrete.

Gentlemen: Do this work and do it right. Let them yell their heads off. Who cares?

HOMES ARE LIKE PEOPLE

We say a person is well dressed when her clothes are in style, in good taste, and when they are becoming to the person.

In the same way homes must be furnished with good furniture styles and there must be harmony in the color scheme and good judgement in the combinations.

We may have davenport and arm chairs that would not do at all in your home. And we have many other pieces that would just match your room scheme and would be delightfully becoming.

We want to provide you with what you need in furniture. We are always glad to assist you to insure the right selections.

We honestly believe you'll like our store.

NOW LEADS SWEATER STYLE; FUR MODES FOR AUTUMN WEAR

SWEATER smartness is interpreted through simplicity. The close-knit cardigan leads for the school-girl, or for the debutante. On golf links, tennis courts, on avenue or boulevard, the cardigan proclaims its popularity.

The cardigan model in the picture is typical of the mode. The original for this illustration is in the new and favored green-tinted tone and its accompanying skirt is also in shades of green.

Now that these tailored looking sweaters and plaid skirts have become as much a favorite for street as for sports wear, many are choosing them in such shades as parchment.

Sure to attract the interest of the college girl is the sweater which has tiny candy stripes in two tones. As to daring originality, modern peltry is establishing a record. No one, after surveying advance autumn styles, can ever rightfully accuse the furrier as lacking in imagination.

Calfskin transformed into coats of compelling beauty, lambskin slaved until it is as supple as velvet, zebra stripes and leopard spots conjured into artful design, slays of contrasting furs, pelts dyed with baffling camouflage, thus does a master cunning manipulate fashionable furs.

As an example of true artistry in belge, sand and kindred tones. For golf and tennis and general country club wear; the soft pastel shades are best liked.

For the late summer wear a keen wholehearted endorsement is being given to pink for sweaters and cardigans. The sweaters are extremely lightweight and in most instances a cardigan is worn over a round-necked slip on which unites it. All white is a close competitor to pink. Skirts are either of pink flannel with sweater accompaniment or of white plaid crepe de chine.

The new fall modes emphasize lovely heather mixtures. They also introduce a considerable use of angora. The very latest is for a jumper close knitted, with matching cardigan styled of fine angora jersey.

Among the interesting styles, which claim early attention for autumn is the four-piece tweed-and-knit set.

peltry there's this remarkable coat which pretty Barbara Kent of film fame is wearing in the accompanying picture. Tan pony with red leather trimmings, could a handsomer combination be devised? Well, no newspaper photo can do this coat justice, its coloring is too vibrant to be told in printer's ink. This is only one of countless just such swaggar effects as the autumn modes are now introducing.

A startling effect is achieved in a white caracul spotted with great robes of black. This same is collared and cuffed with showy white fox. With white kid footwear, white felt hat, and a white leather gardenia clutch and lad in the deep iron shawl enchantment.

Then there are the new fanciful two-toned effects. Tan caracul made up with goods of a darker shade, is highlighted in the new fashions. Beige

TASTY FOODS

If convenient for one to keep a bowl of fruit gelatin always at hand in the ice chest, there may be a quick dessert or salad prepared in a short time. The pineapple juice is poured from the can when it is used for various dishes.

gelatin by using half the amount of hot water and the rest fruit juice. Lemon or orange, either flavor, is especially good with pineapple flavor. If a dessert is required, prepare a rich custard, chill and serve with the fruit gelatin. If a salad, take a tablespoonful of gelatin cut into cubes, add a diced apple, a few dates and a half cupful of celery with a good salad dressing, and the salad is made.

Curried Salmon.—Chop a small onion fine and fry until brown in a tablespoonful of butter. Mix together one tablespoonful each of curry powder and flour, add to the butter and onion, add slowly one cupful of hot water, stirring briskly. Cook until the sauce is well done, then add one cupful of flaked salmon. Serve with cooked rice.

Curried Lamb.—Fry one small onion in three tablespoonfuls of butter; when the onion is light brown add two tablespoonfuls each of curry powder and flour; cook with two cupfuls of stock for five minutes. Season with salt and pepper and strain over thinly sliced cold roast of lamb. Serve in a deep platter with a border of hot rice well seasoned.

Apple Custard.—Take five well-beaten eggs, add one quart of milk and a scant pint of strained apple sauce. Sweeten and add such flavor as the taste demands and bake carefully in a moderate oven until firm. Set the pan of custard in a dish of hot water to bake.

Delicatable Chicken. Chicken is one of the meats that is a favorite with people the world over. It is cheap and when properly cooked is always popular. Try cooking a pair of young chickens in the following manner:

Country Style.—Cut into serving-sized pieces as many young fryers as will be needed. Roll in seasoned flour and brown in a mixture of butter and lard in a deep iron kettle or frying pan; when well browned cover and let cook on the back of the range in the oven until thoroughly done. Meat separates easily from the bones when well cooked. There is nothing less palatable than half cooked chicken, more appetizing when well cooked. Remove the chicken to a hot platter and make a brown gravy from the flour and butter in the pan. Add cream or milk and the liquid. In the country the gravy is poured over the chicken and served with it. Another method when the gravy is to be served with the chicken is to make it still more delicious, is to prepare the gravy after the chicken is browned, then return it to the gravy and cover, and finish cooking slowly for as long as needed to be thoroughly done.

Chicken Curry.—Singe and cut the chicken at the joints into pieces for serving. Cover with boiling water, add two teaspoonfuls of salt and a few dashes of pepper. Simmer for half an hour, or longer if not tender, then drain, dredge with seasoned flour and brown lightly in butter. Fry one large onion in the same fat, mix one tablespoonful of flour, one teaspoonful of sugar, and one tablespoonful of curry powder, and brown. Add one cupful of water or stock, one cupful of tomato or one sour apple chopped, with salt and pepper to taste. Pour this sauce over the chicken and simmer until tender. Add one cupful of hot cream and serve with boiled rice.

Maryland Chicken.—Dress and cut up a chicken, sprinkle with salt and pepper, dip into flour, egg and crumbs, place in a well buttered dripping pan and bake in a hot oven, basting with one-third of a cupful of butter. Arrange on a platter and pour over two cupfuls of cream sauce.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Sacco and Vanzetti Given Twelve-Day Reprieve— Gen. Wood's Death.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SACCO and Vanzetti, who were to have been executed August 12, were granted 12 more days of life by Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, after Justice Holmes of the United States Supreme court and Judge Anderson of the Federal Circuit court had denied appeals for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that they had no right to issue the writ unless it was shown that the court which tried the case was without jurisdiction. The reprieve was given the condemned men with the approval of the state executive council in order to allow a ruling on a writ of error by Justice Sanderson of the state Supreme court which, if approved, would take the case to the full bench of the Supreme court. Celestino Madeiros, sentenced on another murder charge to die at the same time, was included in the reprieve. Justice Sanderson left the matter go to the full court.

It is to be hoped by all right-minded Americans that this new delay in the leisurely course of justice was not due in any way to the noisy, violent demonstrations which radicals and sentimentalists have been staging in nearly all parts of the world. That the bombs, threats and sloppy appeals of those people, who are certainly misinformed, to say the least, could have any influence on our courts and governors would be humiliating indeed. Meetings of protest against the execution of the condemned men were held, or attempted to be held, every day in Boston, New York, Chicago and other American cities and also in cities in Europe, and South America. Hostile mobs in various places threatened American embassies and consulates and in Casa Blanca, Morocco, a gang of radicals tore down the American flag, desecrated it and burned it. The police, here and abroad, did what they could to break up these demonstrations and many arrests were made. Congressmen John of Washington, chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee, warned all aliens domiciled in this country that if they partook in anti-government demonstrations they would be liable for deportation under the act of 1919. Although President Coolidge has more than once let it be known that he does not consider he has any right to intervene in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, he was again asked to do so in a telegram from Victor L. Berger, Socialist congressman from Wisconsin.

ONE of America's very best soldiers and citizens and its most eminent colonial administrator passed away when Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, governor general of the Philippines, died suddenly in a Boston hospital following an operation for a tumor in the skull. On Tuesday he was buried, with full military honors, in Arlington National cemetery among the dead members of the Rough Riders whom he led so gallantly in the Spanish-American war.

Born in New Hampshire in 1856, Leonard Wood was graduated from Harvard medical school and in 1885 entered the army as a contract surgeon. His rise thereafter was swift and spectacular. While serving with General Miles he captured Geronimo, the notorious Apache, and won the congressional medal of honor. When the war with Spain broke out he was made colonel of the Rough Riders recruited by Theodore Roosevelt and was promoted to brigadier general. As military governor of Cuba he did such excellent work that the islanders were ever reverent his memory, and already they are preparing to erect a monument to him. President McKinley made Wood a major general in the regular establishment, and previous to the World war he was the most vigorous proponent of preparedness. When America entered the war, General Wood trained the Eighty-ninth division with characteristic skill and thoroughness, but President Wilson and Secretary Baker did not permit him to go to France as its commander. Instead he was kept in this country except for one observation trip to Europe. In 1920 he was a popular but unsuccessful candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination. President Harding appointed him governor general of the Philippines, and he held that troublous post until his death, administering the affairs of the islands with the greatest ability and firmness in the face of the continuous opposition of the native advocates of independence and of a change in the form of government.

THAT President Coolidge meant his "do not choose" to be a positive declaration of a renunciation is now accepted by nearly every one, but some of his strongest supporters still have hope that he is not a one-man country, and that he will be "drafted." Senator Simon D. Fess of Ohio, who himself has been mentioned as a likely possibility for the nomination, visited the President in the Black Hills and pleaded with him not to make his decision irrevocable.

"If they can't get along without me now, what will they say four years from now?" the President replied, according to Senator Fess.

Mr. Coolidge reiterated his thought that "this is not a one-man country," and gave Mr. Fess the impression that he wanted to be relieved of the burdens of the office.

Senator Fess told the President that the logic of the situation called for his nomination by the convention, and said he believed the convention would seek to draft Mr. Coolidge.

"Don't echo that sentiment," the President replied, according to Senator Fess.

Whatever the attitude of the President, Ohio will instruct her delegation for Coolidge or nobody, the senator said.

On Wednesday Mr. Coolidge went to Rushmore mountain, on the face of which Gutzon Borglum is to carve the heads of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt, and dedicated it as a national monument, delivering an address on "The Spirit of Patriotism."

VICER PRESIDENT DAVES, in his address at the dedication of the Peace bridge between Buffalo and Port Erie, Ontario, created something of a sensation by his comments on the recent futile naval disarmament conference. Though he said the parley was not a failure, he plainly indicated his belief that the inability of the American and British delegations at Geneva to agree was due to insufficient participation on the part of the United States to the fatherland and the preoccupation of the conferees with the needs of their own countries. His implied criticism of the American delegates was resented by administration officials in Washington.

Secretary of the Navy Willbur conferred with the President and it was stated that they saw no need for radical change in the administration's naval policy because of the failure of the Geneva conference. This policy is the completion of the moderate building program determined upon long before the conference at Geneva was called, and now to be carried out by congress as if this conference had never been held. The President sees nothing alarming in the situation. He believes the Geneva conference will make an increase over this five-year program necessary. Consequently, there is a prospect of another conference in congress next winter between those who approve this moderate program and the advocates of a bigger navy.

WITH about a dozen planes almost ready for the race from California to Honolulu in competition for the Dole prize of $25,000, the flight committee and the Department of Commerce recommended that the start be postponed for not more than two weeks because some of the planes and crews were believed to be not yet properly equipped or qualified. The Honolulu committee vetoed the postponement, but all the pilots signed an agreement not to start before noon of August 16. The demand for better preparation was partly due to the death of two contestants, Lieuts. George W. D. Covell and Richard S. Waggener of the navy, when their transoceanic mount crashed near San Diego and burned.

SUITS has been filed in Cleveland against the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, alleging that notes, properties and securities "of little or no value" had been "unloaded" by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Co-operative bank there on the Brotherhood Investment company, the holding company of all the brotherhood's financial undertakings.

The suit, brought by two stockholders of the investment company, asks for an accounting of all profits made by the bank in its dealings with the investment company, and that all transactions be declared null and void which resulted in loss to the investment company.

AN ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY LOWMAN announces that the treasury's plans for the resumption of the manufacture of medicinal whiskey this fall have been abandoned, because there is no shortage now and supplies in government warehouses should last for seven or eight years. Although no recent gauge of the amount of whiskey actually on hand has been taken, it is estimated that at least 20,000,000 gallons of aged whiskey is now safeguarded in bonded warehouses. Another 10,000,000 gallons of brandy and other medicinal beverages are available for prescription use. The withdrawals during 1926 were 1,889,328 gallons.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW JERSEY got ahead of all other similar concerns the other day when its president signed an agreement with the United States for the mutual exploitation and development of patents. The deal was made for the process for making crude oil and gasoline from coal and lignite. The products of this process, it is expected, will be on the market soon. Also, the chemicals predict that the by-products will yield rich returns. Although the details of the agreement were carefully guarded, there is a conjecture that many millions of dollars will flow into the United States to the fatherland as compensation for the deal's giving the Standard Oil the use of its patents.

KING FUAD of Egypt, on his way home from England, stopped in Rome for a visit and achieved the distinction of being the first sovereign of a non-Christian country to be formally received in private conference by the pope. Moreover, Pius XI decorated Fuad with the order of the Golden Spur, and the two exchanged miniature oil portraits of each other. The pope sent an elaborate escort for Fuad, but the latter, who had been the guest of the Italian government, had first to move to a hotel.

RESUMPTION of military operations in the Chinese civil war were seen in the mobilization by the Christian general, Feng Yu-hsiang, of 50,000 of his best troops on the border between Honan and Shantung provinces. He plans a flank movement against the northern troops controlling Shantung.

Seemingly the Japanese have failed to force a compromise between Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, the Nanjing commander of Nationalists, and Marshal Chang Tso-lin. A Shanghai correspondent says:

"Since the Japanese are polling the entire Shantung railway for the obvious purpose of blocking a movement northward, complications are almost inevitable, particularly since General Chiang already has declared his intention of treating the Japanese troops the same as the northern militarists if the Japanese try to interfere. General Chiang recently seized several shipsloads of German war supplies intended for Marshal Chang."

INDIANA was rejoiced when Rev. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the state Anti-Saloon league, was adjudged in contempt by the state Supreme court and was sentenced to 60 days on the state farm and fined $250. Jess E. Martin, an attorney for the league, said the sentence was a mockery of justice, but was not sentenced, being absent from the state. Legal steps to save Shumaker from serving his sentence were taken at once. The prohibitionists of the state and some military organizations rallied to his support with offers of sympathy and money.

YOU CAN AND WILL

By EVELYN GAGE BROWNE

DON'T listen when people tell you
"It simply can't be done!"
For somebody's bound to do it.
And YOU may be just that one.

There's nothing that man has thought of
But what some man can do—
And there's no earthly reason
Why that man isn't YOU.

When folks say—"No use trying!"
Just keep right on with a smile.
You won't need to do much talking.
You'll show them after awhile.

There's nothing worth the having That's going to be easy to get.
And whatever you strive for hardest
Gives you the most joy yet.

It can be done—and it will be—
If it's ever been done, that's true.
And greater things wait for some one
To be the first to do.

Somebody's going to do them;
Some one who really tries.
Who believes in himself and his power.

To win the highest prize.
And YOU can be just that some one.
For the best is waiting still.
And there's nothing you can't accomplish.

When you say—"I CAN AND WILL!"

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

WASTE

EMERSON wrote, "Economy is a sacrament when its aim is grand; when it is the production of simple tastes, when it is practiced for freedom, or love, or devotion. But parched corn eaten today, that I may have roast fowl for my dinner on Sunday, is a baseness; but parched corn and a house with an apartment, that I may be serene and docile to what the mind shall speak, to be ready for the lowest mission of knowledge and good will, is frugality for gods and heroes." Economy is one of nature's fundamental laws. Nothing is allowed to go to waste. The leaves of autumn only make more beautiful the budding trees of spring. Learning from nature, some persons have become rich by gathering up the fragments, others have become poor because they permitted them to be thrown away. By-products are the secrets of many fortunes. Refusing to make about one-fourth of the profits of business concerns using that article in their manufactured product. A fortune has been made out of the bouillon cubes made from by-products. The cast-off product of a cotton mill founded one of the largest fortunes in Europe. There is enough food grown in the world in the hotels of any large city to feed the dependent poor of that city. In sixteen and a fraction of years a sum of money, if put out on compound interest, will double itself.

The most serious problem of waste, however, is not found in the world of material values, but rather in the realm of personality. The most tragic thing is a wasted life. "He whose heart is barren like the desert is always poor." Idle hours, opportunities thrown away, not being prepared when the chance came, explain some of life's failures. A wasted life is one that has made no contribution to the uplift of the community. When such a person "passes on" no one seriously misses him because from him radiated no moral or spiritual values. A negative life is a wasted life.

The problem in the field of economics is not production but adequate distribution. The wasted power in the Niagara falls would run all the machinery of the country if it could be controlled and directed. There is sufficient moral and spiritual power going to waste to solve all the problems of our social order.

Do You Know

That:—??—

"MIDAS TOUCH" is an expression denoting a means by which things are turned to gold or money. The saying had its origin from a Greek myth. King Midas in return for an act of kindness had been rewarded by the god Dionysus that whatever he might ask would be granted him. Thereupon, King Midas, being very fond of gold, asked that everything he touched might turn to gold. His request was granted and accordingly everything he touched turned to gold, even his food and drink before him. Of course Midas soon saw the folly of his wish and beseeched the god to take back the favor. Dionysus again granted his wish and ordered Midas to bathe in the River Pactolus. This bath saved Midas but the river from that time on had an abundance of gold in its sands due to the touch of Midas.—Anna S. Turnquist.

SOME CABBAGE WAYS

THE common vegetables which are always on the market are often underrated. Cabbage is such a wholesome vegetable that it should be served often.

Cabbage With Sausage.
Cook a head of cabbage whole with several pork sausages or with half a dozen frankfurters; arrange on a platter and garnish with the sausages. Season well with pepper, salt and a bit of onion while cooking. The liquor should be saved and used with the cabbage and chopped potatoes for another meal, as hash.

Lady Cabbage.
Shred tender, young cabbage and cook until done, seasoning with butter, cracker crumbs and enough milk to make a sauce. Serve hot.

Fried Cabbage.
Chop cold boiled cabbage and press out all the liquor. Season with melted butter, pepper, salt, and four tablespoonfuls of milk. Add two well-beaten eggs and cook in a hot frying pan, stirring often at first. Then let brown on the bottom and turn out on a hot platter. Garnish with sliced hard-cooked eggs.

Hot Stew.
Beat the yolks of two eggs with two tablespoonfuls of cold water, add a tablespoonful of butter, a little salt, and one-fourth cupful of vinegar. Cook the dressing over hot water until thick, then stir in finely shredded cabbage; heat until hot and serve hot.

Stuffed Cabbage.
Cut out the stalk end of the cabbage, leaving a good-sized cavity. Tie up the cabbage in a cheese cloth and cook it until tender in boiling water. Make a stuffing of seasoned cracker crumbs and any chopped fowl or meat which is well seasoned. Fill the drained cabbage, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and cheese and bake in quick oven until brown.

Cabbage With Cheese Sauce.
Prepare and cook the cabbage as above. Place on a hot chop plate and add into pie-shaped pieces. Pour over a thick white sauce made by melting four tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour and mixing well, then add a cupful and a half of good rich milk; season with salt and pepper and cook until smooth and thick, adding a half cupful or more of chopped rich cheese to the sauce while cooking.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

By JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Montague Glass Tried to Be a Lawyer.

AT ABOUT this time I was in a law office and while there, because I had a boss who made frequent visits to a resort downstairs, I had the leisure to write a story called "Pappaloo."

"Pappaloo" cost me, and the law firm between us, several dollars in postage stamps and at last I disposed of it to a Canadian paper for a trifle less than the law firm and I spent on it. It was a fairly bad story, written after the manner of Edgar Allan Poe, with just a suggestion of Barrie.

Many years later I reprinted it in a magazine called "1010," a purely artistic effort fostered by Charles B. Falley. It was not until I was a publisher, only contributors who agreed to furnish a story, an article or a picture each month during the year 1910 and $10 toward the cost of printing the magazine. In May, 1910, I went to Italy and never definitely knew what became of "1010," which ceased publication while I was abroad, but I think I can tell what happened to it. It died of a story called "Pappaloo."

TODAY—Montague Glass, as the creator of those national characters, "Potash and Perimeter" is too well known to require an introduction from anyone. Potash and Perimeter have been put into every conceivable form using words or action as a medium; in books, magazines, articles, dialogues, plays and "movies." Had he written nothing else, or intended to write nothing else in the future, Glass' bank account would be assured.

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

FOUR-LEAVED CLOVER

WHO is there that finding a four-leaved clover, does not regard it as an omen of good luck? Few people, if any. Some may pooh-pooh the idea and laugh scornfully thereat; but, nestled away down in the bottom of their hearts is a secret satisfaction over their "find."

In this we are but barking back to our sun-worshipping ancestors. Clover was one of the plants of magic power gathered at the summer solstice from European fields in the dim past, because at the summer solstice the sun, giver of life, had reached his greatest power. Certain plants caught from him mystic properties which made them potent for baffling evil influences which threaten the life of man. Now if an ordinary clover caught something of the sun's mystic properties a four-leaved clover—such an unusual and therefore must mean something—was especially marked out as having caught an extra share.

In the Tyrol and in some parts of France the idea that the four-leaved clover, in order to be potent for luck, must be picked on midsummer eve, still persists; but English-speaking peoples have dropped that part of the superstition and regard it as an omen of good luck when found at any time. Naturally such a practically useless plant was long considered as an infallible protection against witches.

Medical Sermonettes

(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Eat a plate of ice cream every day." This advertising slogan by the manu- facturers contains a truth. Ice cream when not stiffened or adulterated is any way, is a very nourishing food, even in fevers, in small quantities. It is a concentrated diet and contains all the elements of a full meal, being an excellent mixture of sugar, fat and animal vitamins. No harm can possibly come from eating it every day but it should be taken with other food, not alone, as a rule. The custom of serving it after a meal is based upon sound knowledge of food digestion, and unless the meal has been entirely too hearty, its ingestion is never harmful. For children, at almost any time, ice cream is a welcome and wholesome food, easily digested and assimilated. It is better served with light, starchy bread and simple cake.

From the very ancient Medical School of Salerno, probably the very oldest in Europe, came much wisdom. This is from its regimen:

Use three physicians
First—Doctor Quiet,
Next Doctor Merryman
And Doctor Diet.

All modern hospital regulations place emphasis upon Quiet and Diet, but are too apt to leave out Merryman. The routine of hospitals does not take into account the need of cheerfulness, except perhaps in the objective presence of sunlight and flowers. Nothing so aids the patient as personal cheerfulness on the part of the attendants and physicians. That man is not only the most beloved but the most successful in relief who always brings a smile of encouragement and cheer to his suffering clients.

And this is doubly true at the private bedside, where the doctor's visit may be the only break in the long hours of day and night. Even a joke or a jolly story is a great relief and oftentimes greater than that of the medicine itself. Don't pin your whole faith to a man who never jokes or smiles in his own corner.

"Frieth in her own groove." From this proverb, attributed to John Heywood, an English dramatist of the first half of the sixteenth century, it is possible to write a short sermon on the too common use of fried foods.

Whether fried in its own grease, or that of the pig or of the more wholesome vegetable compounds, fried food is very difficult of digestion. The process of cooking by immersing in fat, or by great heat without immersion, coagulates the albumen of the food and puts more work upon the digestive glands of the body and greatly lengthens the whole process of digestion, leaving the body loaded and clogged unnecessarily, at least for a time. If the system is thus loaded up with three daily with fried eggs, meat or potatoes, the easiest and commonest forms of fried food, its energies are so occupied in digesting that there is little left for the more important functions. If, on the other hand, fruit, cereals or boiled vegetables, which have all the necessary elements of nourishment, are given, energy is released for other needs of the daily routine of mental or physical exercise. If fried foods appear to be the only "ready-to-eat" form for the first meal of the day, their detrimental use may be partially offset by an accompanying dish of fresh or preserved fruit. No meal should consist of fried food alone.

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away." This proverb comes down through the generations and has a valuable lesson for everyone. So much has been written on diet of late years that most people have learned the value of fruit to supplement all foods. Apples alone have been shown to be insufficient for nourishment, but the malic acid they contain is a distinct aid to digestion at any time. They should be eaten at all, even to the end that "there ain't going to be no core," for thus do they increase the "digestive" in the interesting and old adage: "Eat an apple daily and add necessary bulk to the stools. Pears, peaches, plums and all the citrus fruits do the same, but are somewhat more heating of food and increase the need of fruit. It is astonishing how much ripe fruit, fresh from the orchard, one can eat, without regard to heat and with no bad effects. If juicy, well-cooked vegetables are also added to the heartier articles of the regular meals, together with salt and a little heating of food and excellent health result. So-called "green things" on the table are an essential to humans as grass to cattle.

Grow a Timber Crop

Grow a timber crop and you will gain in volume even though a farm may be abandoned. While other income may fall very low or cease altogether, the timber crop grows to gain. This feature is important in maintaining the value of the farm in the face of the town industries which tend to lead to a loss of value from agriculture and cause him to neglect his farm business.

Lesson for August 21

GOD'S PROMISE TO DAVID

LESSON TEXT—I Chron., chapter 17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever a scepter of righteousness as the scepter of thy kingdom.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Promise to David.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How God Rewarded David.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Gives Us the Better Things.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Great Promises.

I. David Desires to Build a House for God (v. 1, 2).

Having subdued all his enemies, David sat down in his new and beautiful house to meditate. While thus musing, he is led to see the incongruity of dwelling in a house of cedar while the Lord's place was so common. A truly devout soul cannot be content to dwell in personal ease and luxury while the Lord's work is neglected. David's proposition met with Nathan's approval, but the next day he came with definite instructions from the Lord regarding it.

II. David's Desire Denied (v. 3-8).

While fully appreciating David's motive, the Lord disapproved his plan. The rejection of his plan was not because of his nonappreciation of David for he had taken him from the lowest walks of life and elevated him to the highest place among men. He assured him also that the cause would not suffer because of this change of plan. Two reasons may be assigned for God's prohibition of David's plan.

1. David was a man of war (I Chron. 22:3).

Since the kingdom of God is to be a peaceful kingdom, it was not fitting that a man of war should build the capital city. This was not a reproach of David for being a man of war. The enemies of the Lord must of necessity be put down. No peace could be brought to God's people till the enemies were subdued. It showed rather, that David had done his work and that the time had now come for another to take it up.

2. The time and circumstances were not fully ripe.

God's house should be a great house, therefore it would require a man's best energies to build it. The nation's treasury was no doubt much depleted by the wars. Since much money would be required, ample time was necessary to enable the people to accumulate funds.

III. The Lord Pledged Himself to Do More Than David Proposed (v. 9-15).

1. David was to have a great name (v. 8).

David's name has gone down in history as one of the great men of the earth. It was a long way from herding his father's sheep to the throne of this great nation.

2. Israel to be established in a central place (v. 9).

The nation was not again to be moved away, nor to be wasted by the children of wickedness.

3. He was to enjoy God's continued favor and help (v. 10).

All his enemies were to be subdued.

4. Perpetuation of the kingdom in David's line (v. 11-14).

(1) "Build thee a house."

This means a grasping unto him of a posterity, a family line. David proposed to build a temple as a place in which to worship God. God purpose to establish the kingdom in David's line. This was to be perpetuated in David's seed after him.

(2) "Establish his throne" (v. 12).

This means the placing of him in a position of royal authority.

(3) The kingdom was to be perpetual (v. 13, 14).

He was to be settled in his kingdom forever. Disobedience to God would be visited with chastisement (II Sam. 7:15), but the covenants were not to be abrogated. Chastisement has followed, but David's seed is destined to occupy the throne (Luke 1:31-33; Acts 13:14-17).

IV. David's Worship (v. 16-27).

In his actual worship, note:

1. His humility (v. 16-18).

Those who really worship God approach Him with great humility.

2. His praise (v. 19, 20).

Out of a heart of gratitude he praised God for His faithfulness and grace.

3. His gratitude (v. 21, 22).

He had an appreciation of God's fidelity and expressed his gratitude to Him for it.

4. His petition (v. 23-27).

All praise and expressions of gratitude but lead up to the offering of definite petitions to God.

THE LEADING CHARACTERS:

EDISON FORBES, a young resident of Scottsdale, goes on a little joy ride with another young fellow. Some liquor is consumed. They are stopped suddenly by the sight of a booze truck driven by "SCOTTS LIBBY," a worthless character, who has smashed his machine into another car, killing its lone occupant, a woman. Forbes' companion and Libby quit the scene hurriedly, leaving the former alone to face a constable who reasons that Eddie, with the scent of liquor about him, must be connected in some way with the accident. Accordingly Forbes is arrested.

CHAPTER III A DRIVING WIFE

It was his own wife, Patsy Jane Forbes, who first gave expression in his hearing to the doubt of Edison's story—a doubt which hung over the community like miasma from a swamp in the succeeding days. Scotts Libby was not captured the night of the tragedy. He slipped through the telephone dragnet. No one had seen him; nor was trace of him found thereafter.

Edison spent the night in the county jail. He was formally charged next morning with manslaughter for causing the death of Mrs. Maria Knowles, the collision victim. Bail was arranged and he was released.

He stopped at the ice and cold office of Sam Hilton, where he was employed as office manager. He told his tale of the accident, and was released. He found that news of his arrest was before him. Hilton, a grim, narrow-faced man of sixty, prayed at each Wednesday evening's prayer-meeting for the confusion of booze and its operators. He felt, to boot, sorry for his neighbor with what he considered good words, that he must discharge Edison and he did so.

Forbes was at home. In the little white house which they rented on Second street, Patsy Jane greeted him. The breakfast had not been palatable; she made coffee and cooked eggs and bacon. With the boyish smile and frank simplicity which were his chiefest charms, Eddie told her the story of the previous evening.

"Now go ahead and walk over me, Pat," he concluded. "For I certainly deserve it. I've acted like a fool and I've lost my job, all on account of a bottle of booze. But before you start I want to tell you that I'm done, through, completed, finished! No more booze for mine. I'm off the stuff for life. When I saw what it did last night it opened my eyes. I can tell you. Oh, I know life I mean it. I'm done; that I've said all this before. But this all."

"You didn't say who was with you, Eddie," was her comment.

"No, I didn't, Pat," he replied. "I'm not going to tell anyone."

She looked at him in surprise. "But at the trial you'll have to, won't you?"

"Not if I don't want to; and I don't."

"But Why?"

"Well, it's like this," he began shame faced and flushing. He was about to confess a determination to do a generous thing and it embarrassed him. "The fellow who was with me wasn't one of my particular cronies. He has a good job. He doesn't take a drink once in six months."

"I didn't intend to go to Burley last night. I was headed home after getting a balance on the month's business, but there was a smell of spring in the air. It was moonlight. I was tired out. I've been working extra hard for six or eight weeks. This fellow drove along and the idea popped into my head from nowhere to go hunt a drink. When he offered me a lift I put it up to him. He—well, he sort of acted on impulse the way I did. The first thing we knew, we were on our way to Burley."

"I know, Eddie," the wife shook with tender impatience—the hand which she was fondling. "But he's free, white and twenty-one, isn't he? He's able to bear his share of the responsibility, isn't he?"

"Yes, he is," he replied. "I may have to go to jail unless you tell. Or he does."

He smiled tentatively. "Oh, no, I won't. But he must come forward of his own accord; he has a good job. He stands high. It would be awfully hard on the people. And really, I'm in a fix."

Price: 10¢ per copy. "The Incident" was disseminated widely. "He does stand high, does he? And of course you're being under arrest and losing your job isn't hard on me! You owe something at home, don't you?"

But he shook his head stubbornly. "Can't do it, Pat. I've thought it all over. In a way I'm responsible for that woman's death. If I hadn't persuaded Tibbey to break into a case at Burley, he might have not gotten drunk. Don't you see. And if, when this chap offered me a ride, I had asked him to take me home, he would have done it. That's all there would have been to it. But I didn't. It's like pushing over a line of dominoes. I gave the shove, and it's up to me to stand the gaff alone."

"Of course, of course he offers to help. That'll be different."

He could feel her stiffening with resentment, and something else. She rose and began clearing away the dishes. It—almost looks as though these might have been something dissonant," she murmured. He knew what she meant, and flushed. They had been married only a year. Previous to her coming to Scottsdale with her father and step mother to reside, he had been tacitly engaged to Nancy Russell, daughter of the town's richest man. But Nancy was headstrong and high-spirited. They quarreled frequently and violently. After one of the quarrels he met, fell in love with Patsy Jane and married her, all within the space of three months.

Nancy was one of the first to call after they were settled in the little white house. "Let bygones be bygones" on the surface, but, seemingly, a lurking imp of malice beneath she showed open favor for her old sweetheart at parties and dances.

She came and went as she pleased. She had her own car. Its powerful motor was frequently heard rearing at unconventional hours along Scottsdale's quiet streets. It might look, thought Eddie, moodily, after he had kissed his wife goodbye and started downtown, that he had been out riding with Nancy last night and was concealing the fact. Well, if Patsy Jane was silly enough to believe that, let her. He would keep silent as to who his companion was. That was the only square decent thing to do. Of course, if that companion chose to come forward voluntarily, the complications would be smoothed out.

He had left the block in which his home was situated when he met a small boy on a bicycle. The boy dismounted handed him a plain white envelope on which was typewritten only Forbes' name, and rode off again. He tore it open curiously. There was a half sheet of paper inside. There were a few words, also in typewriting upon it. He read:

"For God's sake, Eddie, stand by me. If you tell about last night I will be disgraced. It will break my people's hearts." There was neither salutation nor signature.

He tore the note into small pieces as he walked along and allowed them to slide into the new grass. He was contemptuous, but the appeal strengthened his determination to protect the weak woman. "If I don't do it, he'll just about go to the dogs," thought Eddie.

SOME DRINKING FIGURES.
EGYPT CONTROLS BOLL WIVEL.
FARM LONELINESS RANSHED.
SCIENCE AND RELIGION.

America's millions, who imagine they are thirsty for light wine, beer, or something stronger, will be interested in this.

United States capital has recently lent nearly $200,000,000 to help foreign countries develop their liquor and beer business. Even in the Far East this country has financed liquor production to the tune of more than $5,000,000.

Mr. Hayward Kendall, who represents unorganized drinkers that ought to be saved from themselves, says: "The Eighteenth Amendment is saving America (in cash expenditures and increased efficiency) from six to eight billion dollars a year."

The nation's purchasing power has certainly increased amazingly since prohibition came.

In 1919 there were in America 6,500,000 automobiles. Now there are 20,000,000, and not enough. The country spends half a billion a year on radio, many millions for washing machines, vacuum cleaners, electric refrigerators. Works in America spend more lavishly than the rich in Europe.

Mr. Kendall thinks it would be a national calamity if the outpouring of money were diverted from automobiles and radio to wine and beer.

While the boll weevil continues spreading in the United States Cairo telegraphs that:

"Thanks to vigorous government measures, the area affected by the boll worm has been considerably circumscribed."

Egyptian acreage affected by the pest has been reduced from 89,000 to 5,000 acres. What Egypt can do this country certainly ought to do. We have the scientists, the money and the boll weevil. What is the matter with us?

This news will not sell extra papers, like a Dempsey-Tunney fight, but will be important long after Dempsey and Tunney cease to be important. Pennsylvania State College has discovered that the vitamin B, so important to life is manufactured by the cow in her stomach in great quantities.

Scientists cut a little door into the "rumen," or second stomach of the cow, and deprived her of all the food containing vitamin B. Nevertheless, in a little incubator in that second stomach the cow produced the precious vitamin B in profusion.

That may mean to child life as much as the admirable fight against impure milk made by Nathan Straus.

In cities people go crazy more frequently than they once did. Excitement, boisterous humor and other things help. In New York State one person in every twenty-five has been in the insane asylum, according to the American Psychiatric Association.

There is less insanity than formerly, among women on farms. Loneliness, that used to drive them insane by the thousands, has been softened by telephone, radio, parcel post, and above all, the automobile.

President Vinson tells young people of Western Reserve University that no conflict exists between science and religion; they occupy different fields. He wisely remarks that science, without religion, would lead to hopeless materialism, just as religion, when it denies the plain truths of science leads to fanaticism and superstition.

Religion and science are like astrology and astronomy, or like alchemy, with experimenters seeking to make gold.

Science started in religion. Men questioning the origin of things, first gave a religious answer, everything based on miracles. Then they studied more closely and began giving scientific answers.

All told 24,000,000 automobiles are in use in fifty-nine countries of the earth. The United States is

TWO FORMER RESIDENTS DIE

John Smith, age 55, died at the home of his daughter in Elkhart. The deceased was formerly a resident of northeast of Mentone for a number of years.

Two daughters, four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren survive him.

The body was brought to Mentone for funeral services which were held at the Baptist church at 2 p.m. Thursday afternoon with Rev. Squibbs officiating. Burial was made in the Mentone cemetery.

George Entsminger Dies in Michigan
George Entsminger, age 34, died at his home in Grayling, Michigan, Wednesday August 17th. Death was due to suicide, after he became despondent because of ill health caused by an accident. He was ill for two weeks prior to his death.

He had moved to Michigan two months ago and was employed as a mechanic.

Surviving him are: his wife and six children; his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Entsminger, living southwest of Mentone; one sister, Edna Teal of Mentone.

Funeral services were held Saturday, August 20th at 2 p.m. at Grayling, Michigan, Rev. Greenwood in charge. Burial was made at Grayling.

WARDENS REMOVE 2731 FISH FROM NORTHERN INDIANA LAKES

Game wardens of the state conservation department from June to August removed and destroyed a total of 2,731 gar and dogfish from public waters of this state, chiefly from the waters of the northern Indiana lakes. According to George N. Manfield, fish and game division superintendent, two crews performed this work with gill nets and spears.

Gar and dogfish are held as a great nuisance to other forms of aquatic life and the department is constantly besieged with requests to remove them. In some localities they are also asked to remove the larger carp and pickerel which are charged with feeding on other fish. The pickerel or pike, as it is sometimes known, is a very voracious fish, and a ten pound member of this family is known to consume 400 pounds of other fish life in a single season. It is to prevent such terrible inroads on the other species that some communities want the pickerel disposed of.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

Would it not be fine if we could see a full attendance at the morning service once? It is desired that we make a very special effort next Lord's day to the end. Something of special interest to all members.

There will be no service at our church in the evening since we unite with the Methodist church in a union service at their place of worship; let's go.

There is a blessing awaiting you at the mid-week service on Thursday evening at 7:30.

Tuesday afternoon Aug. 30th, the Ladies Banking System will hold its regular meeting at the church.

The annual Business meeting of the church will be held Wednesday evening, Aug. 31, beginning with a picnic supper at the church at 6:00 o'clock, and following this the business of receiving reports from the various departments of church work, and election of officers for the coming year. Every member of the church will want to be there.

MRS. RETNA RHODES

DIES AFTER OPERATION AT WOODLAWN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Retna Rhodes of Tippecanoe passed away at the Woodlawn Hospital, Rochester Tuesday morning at six o'clock, following an operation for goiter.

Funeral services were held at the M. P. Church at 2:30 P. M. conducted by the pastor, Rev. Helty. Burial at the Tipton cemetery.

ALLEGED FORGER IS HELD IN ROCHESTER

A man giving his name as Thomas Deste of Chicago is in the County Jail now after an alleged attempt to cash a forged check at the First National Bank in Rochester.

The man had attempted to cash a check for $615 made out to "Cash" and signed C. E. Phillips. Vice-President McCarter questioned the man and asked him how long he had had an account with the bank and where he lived. The stranger replied he had had an account there 20 years and lived on Center street. There is no Center street in Rochester.

Upon being told that they would have to look up his deposit, the stranger said he would return in twenty minutes. After a conference the bank employees found him on the street and he was arrested. A man who was seen with Deste is being sought.

MARSHALL COUNTY TO HOLD DAIRY DAY AT PLYMOUTH

Marshall county will celebrate Dairy Day at Plymouth on Tuesday August 30th. There will be exhibits of pure bred cattle from the choice herds of the county. Prizes will be awarded to the winners in the Boys Calf club of the county.

Manufacturers of dairy equipment will have exhibits on display showing the newest and best ideas in milk production and care.

Senator Robinson will be one of the prominent speakers of the day.

GEORGE YARNELLE LEASES LAKE NEAR CLAYPOOL

George Yarnelle of Wabash, well known basket ball referee in this vicinity will have a private place to fish for the next thirty years. Mr. Yarnelle leased the ground surrounding Caldwell Lake, located about a mile west of Claypool, of Mr. Minear the owner. The lake is entirely surrounded by woods and is an ideal place for a fisherman wanting solitude.

Mr. Yarnelle expects to spend his free time from his lumber business in Wabash at the lake.

Betty Lyons entertained a birthday dinner last Friday, Margella Leininger and Louise Paulus.

TAX BUDGETS ARE PRINTED

According to Harry Miesse, secretary of the Indiana Taxpayers' Association, the most important news in the papers of Indiana these days will be found in the columns devoted to legal advertising. He points to the official notices of local budgets as the most vital news anybody can read.

"The public reads about murders, divorces, prize fights, dog fights and other sensations," said Mr. Miesse, "and often pays no attention whatever to the making of the budgets upon which taxes will be levied for the coming year. If the murder or dog fight probably does not affect one reader in ten thousand, but the budget affects everybody paying taxes."

"The budgets are being printed now. These budgets are the official estimates of expenses for the coming year. If they are approved as prepared the tax rate must be fixed high enough to raise the full amount of money as shown by the total estimate of expenditures. If the budgets are reduced, less taxes will be needed. As a representative of the Indiana Taxpayers' Association I wish again to say that we are not standing in the way of any needed improvement and we have no disposition to cripple the units of local government anywhere. We are trying, however, to arouse the people to the point where they will cry out against waste—against the expenditure of money that could well be saved. It is to their interests to study their own budgets and appeal to the advisory boards for economy. If they fall there the new law permits them to appeal to the state board of tax commissioners and demand a review.

"The newspapers of Indiana have given us splendid support in this campaign in the past and we are hopeful it will be continued. We believe the press will be doing its constituent, a real service by calling attention to all estimates for local expenditures and urging greater interest on the part of the taxpayers in their own affairs."

MANCHESTER FAIR TO BE HELD IN SEPTEMBER

The North Manchester Fair Association has set the dates of the Fair this year as September 20, 21, 22, and 23, which dates are later in the season than has been the usual custom. The "Gypsy Strollers" have been engaged as a free act.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hengsbarger and South Bend spent Sunday with her daughters spent last Wednesday and sister, Mrs. Emma Blue.

TWO YOUNG MEN TO APPEAR BEFORE MARSHALL COUNTY CIRCUIT COURT

Wayne Mendel and Blaine Thomas of Bourbon are each under $500 bond to appear before the September term of the Marshall county circuit court. They are charged to being accessory to the stealing of five sheep from the Blanch Barr farm last winter.

Mendel has just completed serving term in the penal farm for stealing ducks in the vicinity of Martinsville.

He is also wanted by Kosciusko county officials for chicken thieving.

MRS. KESLER IMPROVING FROM INJURIES RECEIVED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Mrs. Isaac Kesler, who was in an automobile accident near Fort Wayne last week and who is in the Lutheran hospital at that place, is improving as well as could be expected. She suffered a broken arm and a severe laceration of the neck.

CORNBORER HAS INVADED KOSCIUSKO COUNTY

According to reports from W. S. Coburn and C. D. Schreiber, federal corn borer scouts who are examining corn fields in this county, the borer has been found on a farm in Turkey Creek township.

This is the first discovery of corn borers in Kosciusko co. by federal or state agents. Two townships, Elkhart county were found to be infested this week and many townships in counties which border Kosciusko on the east are already under quarantine. It is probable that the new quarantine will be ordered for Turkey Creek township.

CLAYPOOL ORGANIZES FISH AND GAME CLUB

The Claypool Fish and Game Protective Association was organized at an enthusiastic meeting held at Claypool Friday night, A. E. Bodine, state organizer of the Department of Conservation, was present and spoke on fish and game protection. The new organization started with about 35 charter members and it is hoped to build the membership up to 100 or more. The Association is particularly interested in Caldwell Lake, just west of Claypool and the state department will be asked to stock this lake with fish.

Officers were elected as follows: President—Harry D. Forney Vice-President—T. E. Shoemaker. Secretary and Treasurer—Harmon Wharton.

Directors—Leroy Carr, L. F. Minear, G. W. Yarnall, William Brochhausen and Lester Bloom.

AGED RESIDENTS PASS AWAY

Emanuel Creekbaum age 73, died at his home in Mentone Monday morning Aug. 21, at 8:00 o'clock. The deceased was stricken with paralysis a year ago last November and since then has been unable to get around. During the few weeks he has been bedfast entirely helpless.

Mr. Creekbaum was born in Ross County, Ohio and came to Kosciusko county with his parents when he was at the age of four. He was married in 1850 to Miss Emma Herren of Fulton county.

He spent most of his life as a farmer and was always well spoke of in his community and made few enemies.

Surviving him are: One daughter, Mrs. Clyde Reed of Chicago, Illinois; Five brothers, Isaac of east of Mentone, George, John and Dan of near Sevaspool, and Lyman, residing three miles west of Akron; Two sisters, Mrs. William Jackson of Sevaspool and Mrs. Mack Kesler of near Akron. One son, Isaac Eaton preceded him four years ago. Three grandchildren, William, Eldridge and Loraine Caraham of Chicago and two great-grandchildren, Marjory and Elaine Mandelbaum of Chicago.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Baptist Church, Rev. Squibbs in charge and Rev. Johns assisting. Burial was made at the Mentone cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM WHITSTONE PASSES AWAY MONDAY AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. William Whitstone, aged 72, a life long resident of Mentone passed away between 3 and 4 p.m. Monday, Mrs. Whitstone has been afflicted with heart trouble for the past year and failed rapidly a short time before her death.

She has been a resident of Mentone all her life, except for four or five years which was spent in the west.

She is survived by her husband, one son, Henry of this place; five sisters, Mrs. J. A. Hill of Akron, Mrs. Delta Van Gilder of Chillicothe, Mrs. Lillie Jones all of Portland Oregon; two brothers, Jesse Correll of Missouri and Jim Correll of Oklahoma. Two daughters and two sons preceded her in death.

SISTER SARAH'S AFFAIR

(By T. J. Walsh.)

SARAH TODD stepped out of the cab that had brought her to the door of the large gray house, paid the driver, took her bag and mounted the steps in that resolute way characteristic of her. Less than fifty years of age, she was a fine looking, full-bodied woman in a trim and becoming hat.

She set down the bag and punched the bell. Steps sounded within, the door opened, another woman faced Sarah Todd. This second woman was thin, pale, troubled of look and manner. Yet she resembled Sarah in that unmistakable way known as a family likeness. In fact they were sisters.

"Sarah!" gasped Lucy White. She held out her arms and the sisters embraced each other in a warm embrace.

"I thought it was time I came to see you," Sarah said. "I have not liked the tone of your letters lately."

"They were interrupted by the abrupt appearance of a boy of four, who tore into the room on a rampant choco. He stared at the stranger as he reined in his steed.

"I suppose this is Anna's son," Sarah said, regarding him intently.

"Yes," Lucy sighed. The child was tugging at her hand. "What do you want now, baby?" she asked wearily.

"I want a cookie," he answered. And Lucy smiled feebly as she allowed herself to be led away.

Sarah sat down and took a good look about her. The room was comfortable, handsome and in perfect order. Sarah knew who kept it so. Her sister was no better than an unpaid servant in the house which she had earned for her daughter. For it was because of Lucy's loyalty to her dead husband's parents that they had left this house to their grandchild. Lucy's sole reward was the privilege of being with Anna. And Anna was exactly like her domineering, selfish old grandfather. She had somehow not either the qualities of her weak, consumptive father, who had died the same year she was born, or the fiercer gentler disposition of her mother.

When Lucy hurriedly returned to the room she was nervously apologetic for neglecting her sister.

"Julian has been sick so much that I'm afraid we humor him more than we ought to," she said.

"I can see that," Sarah said dryly. "Meanwhile, what shall I do? Shall I take off my coat and hat and stay here with you or shall I go to the hotel?"

"Why, Sarah! You must stay here of course." But there was a note of uncertainty in her voice.

"Where is Anna?"

"I believe she's playing bridge at Mrs. Blaine's."

"Bridge, eh?" Sarah shrugged her shoulders. "Yes, I can imagine that is just what Anna would do. Her old granddaddy was a perfect card fiend as I remember him. Why, never mind that. Tell me how you are. After all that's what I came to find out."

"Why, I'm all right." Sitting on the edge of a chair Lucy smiled bravely.

"You don't look it, my dear. Your color isn't what it should be and you're below weight. You remember, Lucy, I haven't seen you in a long time—not since before Anna's marriage. You were mistress of this house then, for Anna was away at school. You were very attractive, and I was sure you were going to marry John O'Brien." She paused.

A wild color swept Lucy's gentle face. She knotted her slender fingers.

"Oh, I don't believe he ever had any such notion as—that," she stammered. "He's away from home, he's taking a long trip West now."

"Yes, he stopped off and paid me a visit. Same old John."

"He always thought a lot of you, Sarah," Lucy said wistfully.

"He does yet. If you don't mind, Lucy, I'd like to take a bath and put on some fresh clothing. You remember I've been a day and night on the train."

Lucy took Sarah to the guest room, explaining that she would have shared her room only it was small and Julian had his little bed there. When at six o'clock Anna Ward came home with a tally card dangling from her bosom she found her Aunt Sarah a large, impressive personality already making itself felt in the house. And because Anna had always recognized in her aunt those compelling qualities which her mother lacked she received Sarah graciously, quite to Lucy's surprise and delight.

"I hope you've come to make mother a good long visit, Aunt Sarah," Anna said.

Sarah laughed.

"No, I'm going to start back day after tomorrow. I've got things at home I can't leave. You must understand, Anna, that I am a busy housewife. Oh I'm not exactly outside the pale of civilization; I've got a telephone and a radio and that best of helpers, electricity. But for all that I get pretty lonesome. I haven't told your mother yet," she glanced at her sister, "but I am going to take Lucy home with me. We'll finish our visit at my house."

"Oh, Sarah!" Lucy gasped. She went white before the obvious consternation in Anna's large face. "You mustn't say anything like that. I—why, we haven't got the housecleaning done yet."

"The housecleaning!" Sarah laughed. "You see, Nan," she used Anna's childish name. She was playing hard to get the best of the forces which she saw arrayed against her—Anna's reluctance to part with her helpful mother, Lucy's fear of antagonizing her daughter. "You see, Nan, your mother's getting notions. But we'll break her of some of them, uh? No notions the twenty years yet, Mrs. Lucy. By the way, Nan, I've brought you something I think you will be glad to have. I'll run and get it."

She was something was a charming luster pitcher which had fallen to Sarah when she and Lucy shared their mother's things. Anna had always wanted that pitcher. She was amazed at her aunt's generosity.

Sarah had succeeded in winning Lucy's release. It had been done bloodlessly and she had expected a hot struggle. Two days later the sisters departed amid pleasant farewells. Anna had found a capable woman to take her mother's place until she returned and her husband had not grown too much at the wages.

"I feel like Cinderella must have felt after her fairy godmother came," Lucy said as they sat in the train that was carrying them westward. "It seems awful selfish in me to go and leave Anna without the house being cleaned. I expect Julian will miss me, too."

"Yes, I expect he will," Sarah returned, her eyes upon her crocheted work. She smiled without satisfaction. "Mary Peck will attend to his case. He won't be able to boss her."

It was a delightful journey which for Lucy ended too soon. But no pleasure ending for a journey could be found than Sarah's tea-party place. Sarah certainly had things to her liking. Alonzo had left her well provided for.

There was just one little flaw in the visit. Lucy felt. Sarah talked about John O'Brien as if everything was settled between them. Well let them be happy together. But Lucy, who had cherished love for a forced duty, sighed.

And then suddenly John O'Brien appeared, stopping on his way back East. Almost the first thing he did was to ask Lucy to marry him.

"I think you've kept me an old back long enough. You know there has never been anybody but you."

Sarah laughed when Lucy stammered out the news. No wonder. She had planned for that very moment.

Lucy and John were married at her house. They returned East together, turning the trip into a honeymoon.

And flashing ahead of them over the wires Sarah's message to Anna:

"Your mother is Mrs. John O'Brien. Congratulations."

"Well, there! I've done a good job," said Sarah to herself.

Makes Good Showing in Community Service

An illustration of what can be accomplished by an American Legion post when it earnestly takes up community service, the major objective of the Legion for 1927, is shown by the Neils T. Wolf Post No. 20 of Crookston, Minn., Howard P. Savage, national commander, said recently upon receiving the following report of the post's activities:

Sponsored a campaign for hiring a play supervisor for the summer period in the public parks and playground. Purchased medals for winners of the best student athlete to be graduated from the city high schools.

Purchased pennants to be awarded to winners in an interschool athletic contest.

Purchased medals for winners of declamatory contest among schools of the county.

Appropriated $250 to county agricultural agent for promotion of boys' and girls' club work on farms.

Erected permanent speakers' rostrum in local cemetery dedicated to the dead of three wars.

Children's Books Gloomily

The earliest American books for children could not have been very cheerful reading for the juvenile mind, judging from today's standards, says Gas Logie. Two of the best known were John Cotton's "Spiritual Milk for Boston Babes," a reprint of an earlier volume entitled, "Milk for Babies. Drawn Out of the Breast of Both Testaments," and Cotton's "A token for the Children of New England; or some Examples of Children to Whom the Fear of God was Remarkably Budding, before they Dyed."

Calling Him Back

We have a pet chicken, writes a contributor. The other day I tried to pick him up, but he slipped through my fingers and ran around the corner of the house. I started after him, exclaiming: "Bless your little heart, I won't hurt you. Come back here, little sweetheart, and I'll feed you." And more of the same until around that same corner of the house came a man. He was one of our new neighbors with whom we were not yet acquainted—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Slaves of Old History

Sparta was one of the sovereign states of ancient Greece. It was ruled by a king and an aristocracy. The lowest class of the people of Sparta were called Helots. They were held to be the descendants of the original possessors of the country conquered by the Spartans about 1000 B. C. The Helots had no political rights and were practically slaves, working for Spartan masters.

Shakespeare's Writing Tells of Fatal Worry

None of Shakespeare's works in the poet's own handwriting are now in existence, but there are in existence books which belonged to Shakespeare and in which he wrote. These two conclusions have been reached by Dr. Samuel A. Tannenbaum, Shakespearean authority. Doctor Tannenbaum has made a close scrutiny of the six hundred and thirty-one specimens of Shakespeare's handwriting; the three signatures in the will in Somerset house and on the three documents, one on each at Guildhall, British museum, and public record office. He demonstrates that the poet's handwriting shows characteristics that belong to sufferers from angina pectoris, and that the poet died of this disease, brought on, probably, by domestic worries, his younger daughter having married a man unworthy of her.

Truth About the Petrel

For centuries mariners believed that the petrel never approached land, and that it laid its egg at sea and carried it about under one wing until it hatched. Not long ago, however, a party of explorers found a small petrel laying its egg under the soft soil of an isle of the Cape Verde archipelago. Instead of carrying it around under its wing the Cape Verde petrel of Clima, which is uninhabited, is covered with the tiny bones of millions of petrels, which in ages past have come there to die.

A Mental Strain

"I'm thinking of a trip to Europe."

"Really, old man, you can't afford that. You're not accustomed to that sort of thing."

"I merely said I was thinking of it. I can afford to think, can't I?"

"No; that's what I mean. You're not accustomed to thinking."

FACTS—AND THE OPEN MIND

THE most important element in business success—and the most difficult—is to be sure that you have all the facts before you act.

TO GET them all, from every possible source, is the first objective in General Motors. The Research Laboratories contribute some. These are nuggets, left in the crucible, after hundreds of ideas that looked good have been burned away. The Proving Ground contributes others. Dealers contribute. The public contributes. Every department contributes. Through the whole organization runs a spirit of inquiry and of rigid insistence on proof.

OUT of such thinking come the new models announced from time to time by Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick, LaSalle, Cadillac—all with Fisher Bodies. And by Frigidaire. Each new model is a tested step forward. Nothing goes into it as a result of habit or guess or pride of opinion.

Nothing counts but hard-won facts, gathered and used with an open mind.

"A car for every purse and purpose"

Proper Honor Paid by

Shah to Fellow Poet

In his "Memories of Eighty Years," Chauncey M. Dewey tells the following:

Browning, the poet, was present at a great dinner given to the shah of Persia at Stafford house, the home of the duke of Sutherland, and the finest palace in London. Every guest was asked, in order to impress the shah, to come in all the decorations to which they were entitled. The result was that the poets came in their robes, which they otherwise would not have thought of wearing on such an occasion. Browning said he had received a degree at Oxford and that entitled him to a scarlet cloak. He was so out-ranched that he sat at the foot of the table. The shah said to his host:

"Who is that distinguished gentleman in the scarlet cloak at the other end of the table?" The host answered: "That is one of our greatest poets." "That is no place for a poet," remarked the shah; "bring him up here and let him sit next to me." So at the royal command the poet took the seat of honor. The shah said to Browning: "I am mighty glad to have you near me, for I am a poet myself."

Good Reason Why He

Didn't Put on Brakes

It does give one a feeling of security when autolite if the car has one of those "brakes tested" disks on it. To be sure, the brakes may get out of order the day after the disk is pasted on, but if one doesn't know it there is no worry. Besides, it furnishes a fine alibi if one's car is in a collision. Just point to the blue disk and tell the other fellow he must be to blame.

But what is going to happen to those drivers who play the deceiver in the matter of brakes? A detective broke means less to them than a buzzing mosquito. It reminds one of a Springfield man who was noted for the reckless way in which he sped down hills. Coming whizz bang down a particularly steep incline, a man riding with him protested: "Why didn't you put on your brakes, for gosh sake?" he asked.

"Because I haven't any," calmly answered the reckless driver, and proceeded to coast down hill at top speed.—Springfield Union.

Girls Shun Architecture

One has to read this twice to believe it.

Out of something over 5,000 United States college students who answered a questionnaire as to their life ambitions, not a single girl wanted to be an architect. Although they wanted to be everything else on earth—everything except soldiers and architects. It would seem that one of the greatest jobs any woman could undertake would be architecture. Especially of private residences. After all, the designing of a residence is just putting a wall around a house-keeping job. And the architect makes the plans usually has women to deal with as each customer. And that a man ever with a new house is to explain how he would like to have the den and then find out there isn't going to be any den.—Los Angeles Times.

Found Out

Dr. F. X. C. is a woman who told her physician of her pains and symptoms, forgetting none. At the end of the recitation the doctor asked how old she was. She replied that she was forty. Deciding that a look at her blood pressure might help in a diagnosis the doctor made preparations for same, attaching the rubber part of the testing machine to her arm. Turning her head to witness the demonstration, the now much alarmed patient, and the doctor rapidly rising, thirty, thirty-five, forty when she interrupted the doctor with: "Oh, I'm sorry. I see you can find out my age with that machine. I am really forty-eight."—Boston Globe.

Book Preserver

A coat of varnish may be applied over the finest tooled leather or other book binding without fear of injuring the color or appearance in any way. The idea is a good one for the protection of rare old books, since the varnish forms a moist-proof, wear-resisting coat which will preserve the cover indefinitely. It is a good idea, too, for children's books, which soon show finger prints and other signs of wear, or for the cook book, which is likely to become spotted and sticky. The washable varnish makes the binding neater and the book more sanitary.

"Alterations to Please"

The snuffling little man bustled into the tailor's and asked to see some ready-made suits. He was given a choice. "I'll take this one," he said "if you'll make any alterations I require." "Certainly, sir," beamed the tailor. All alterations free, sir—you read our advertisement." "I did," said the customer. "Just alter the price, then, from forty dollars to twenty-five and I'll take the suit with me."

Western Story

Sir: A judge in a small Western town was determined to stop the boys from shooting in the town. One day one of the boys got drunk and started to shoot up the place. When he was brought before the judge he was given "Twenty dollars and costs." "But judge," he said, "I fired into the air." "That's all right," said the judge "you might have shot an angel."

for Verbal Brickbat

A good story is told of the late Chief Justice White of the United States Supreme court, who was famous for his wit. A few months before his death the chief justice was approached one morning by Judge Timothy T. Ansberry, former member of congress from Ohio and a practicing lawyer in Washington.

"Good morning, Mr. Chief Justice," said Judge "berry. "I hope you are quite well."

"Good morning," was the response; but not recognizing Ansberry, the chief justice added cautiously, "Is it possible that I have forgotten your name?"

"It's Ansberry," was the answer. "Oh, yes, my dear Ansberry," the jurist hastily put in. "How are you? But you must excuse me for not recognizing you instantly. You know the entrancas are forming over my eyes and I do not see as well as I did."

"But," said Ansberry, "I noticed that the entrancas do not prevent you seeing the deficiencies in my arguments before your court."

"Smiling broadly, the distinguished jurist laid a hand on Ansberry's shoulder, saying:

"No, my dear Ansberry, a blind man could see them."

Then turning to a friend who happened to be in the group, the chief justice laughingly said:

"He gave me a chance to throw a brick, didn't he?"—Kansas City Star.

Ancients Used Bells

for Various Purposes

The use of small bells to summon attendants goes back over 3,000 years. Assyrian tombs, uncovered from the ruins and dust of ages, show that hand bells not unlike our conventional shapes, were used in old-time Nineveh. Egyptian sculpture work in more than one inscription also shows that hand bells were used in many another respect had the same ideas of comfort, and sought to gratify them in much the same manner that we do. We find bells mentioned very early in the history of Israel. The high priest was directed to wear them on the fringes of his official vestments, alternating them with purple, blue and scarlet artificial pomegranates, so that he might be heard when he went in and out of the holy place to sacrifice, as the Book of Exodus had it, "that he do not." Then, as now, all the accessories of divine worship were symbolic, the tinkling golden bells probably tinkling the life that ought ever to be open for prayer, and the tongue that ought ever to be crying mercy when concerned about the sacrifices and other services of the sanctuary.

Old Confession of Faith

The Apostle's Creed is a confession of faith dating from the Fourth century, which has been incorporated either in part or as a whole by practically every Christian church. A legend was to the effect that the Apostle's Creed was formed by the apostles themselves, but this is a slight documentary proof of this. It is by many supposed to have been taken from the confession of Peter, see Mark 16:16, and from the baptismal invocation which determined the trinitarian order and arrangement. The earliest authentic mention is found in a passage in the works of St. Irenaeus, who died in 202 A. D., when about eighty years old.

Silk for Body Sinews

A recent development in surgery is the use of silk as a substitute for various body tissues. With certain precautions silk sinews may be transplanted into the body. In this way, natural sinews which are too short can be lengthened. A further application is in the form of silken ligaments employed as a substitute for ligaments which have been torn or injured by disease or accident, as in the case of lateral ligaments in the knee, elbow, etc. Likewise, it is possible to create with silk new artificial sustaining ligaments.

Don't Count on an Encore

N. W. writes: "Keep something in reserve. Many performers make their biggest hit on an encore." That looks pretty clever, but we don't know exactly to apply it in actual life. One's best licks are often none too good; we should say, rather: Put the finest that's in you in everything you do. You may not get an encore, anyway.—Boston Transcript.

Islands in Malta Speak

Same Tongue as Christ
There is still in this world a race of people who speak the same tongue that Jesus and His apostles used in their ordinary everyday talks to the people, says the Christian Science Monitor.

This spoken language was "Aramaic." We still may find languages and dialects which have descended from Aramaic.

To find today in the pure Aramaic practically identical to the colloquial language that Jesus used we must go to the island of Malta.

Even there the traveler must not expect to hear it in Valletta. The people of the seaport have long had intercourse with the Italians and the English and their language has changed accordingly.

Travel inland to those compact cities of stone—to Zeltun, to Musta with its enormous dome, the third largest in the world—there one hears not the Anglicized and the Italianized speech, but pure Aramaic. There also one sees a race of people of not only similar speech, but of similar appearance and of similar character to the "chosen of our Lord"—"devout men and women who serve God daily." One can well imagine the living among these people what Andrew, Peter, John and Matthew must have been like.

Many races have held so-called dominion over these islands, but none has succeeded in implanting its language.

Lucky Discoveries of Vast Mineral Wealth

Tin is worth about $1,470 a ton. At North Dundas, in Tasmania, a nugget of the metal has been found which weighed 5,400 pounds, and was almost pure metallic tin.

Copper often occurs in nature in a pure state. A solid block of this metal weighing more than a ton and a half has just been found in South Africa.

The most wonderful discovery of the kind was made in the Andes, at the back of Peru, where, at a height of 14,000 feet, there has been found a mountain of copper ore a mile long and half a mile wide.

Silver is sometimes found in great masses. Most of us have heard of Cobalt, the miracle silver city of northern Ontario. One day, in the spring of 1902, two workmen quarreled while at work on a rough trail was truck made for hauling lumber. High words led to blows, and one man flung an axe at the other. It missed him but struck a bowditch splitting it in two and showing up its hoart a mass of glittering whiteness. It was a lump of almost pure silver.

That spring Cobalt had four small shocks, but six months later there were more than 5,000 inhabitants.

The Modest Groom

At a village church a wedding was fixed and the happy morn arrived. In due course a youthful swain and a buxom damsel presented themselves at the chancel steps.

When the supposed bridegroom was asked, "Wilt thou be this woman to be thy wedded wife?" he stammered: "Please, sir, I'm not the man! I don't want to get married!"

"Not the man?" exclaimed the clergyman abashed. "Then where is the bridegroom?"

"He's down at the bottom of the church, sir. He's too shy to come up."

Advertising

"What is the idea of that old fellow's taking the road warning sign, 'CURVE,' and sticking it up in his front yard?" asked a motor tourist in the Ozarks.

"I reckon likely he wants to get his oldest daughter married off," replied Jig Fiddlin of Harborside Springs.

"What in the world has the word, 'curve,' to do with it?"

"I reckon you ain't seen the shape of his p'u-oldest gal, have you?"—Kansas City Star.

Common Name for Cats

Nancy, age four, sat on the back steps at grandmother's holding one of the many kittens which lived there. "Mother," she called, "come see what a nice kitty this is."

"Yes, it is," replied mother, "and what is that kitty's name?"

"Oh," said Nancy, "all of grand-mother's kitties have the same name."

"That's queer," said mother. "What is their name?"

"Why, their name is Scat," said Nancy.

Trying Hard to Please

Louisa, the colored kitchen maid, was from the country, but she was energetic and learned fast. Part of her duties was to water the fern and change the water in the goldfish bowl. Her mistress asked her on the second day: "Did you remember to empty the water under the refrigerator?" "Yes, ma'am, I emptied it and put in fresh water,"—Indianapolis News.

French Claim "America"

Musical historians in France contend that the familiar music of "America" and "God Save the King," which was supposed to be an old German air, was really composed by the famous Lull, musician to Louis XIV. It is claimed the air was composed on the occasion of the king recovering from sickness and was first sung by the pupils of the St. Cyr girls' school.

NATION-WIDE CHAIN OF

GARAGES TO BE ESTABLISHED
Announcement was made last week that 48 towns in Indiana have been selected as locations for units of a nation-wide chain of garages now being established throughout the United States.

These cities were selected, it was stated, after a survey of highways and the average flow of inter-city and inter-state automobile traffic throughout the state.

According to an estimate made by 552 automobile associations, 1,227 is expected to set record figures for motoring, it being estimated that 40,000,000 people will be out on the highways, for business and pleasure, in 10,000,000 cars. This traffic movement and its steady growth each year is responsible, it is said, for the establishment of a coast-wide chain of bonded garages rendering a nationally standardized insured automotive service.

"In locations where satisfactory chain affiliations can not be made with established local garages," said Mr. J. M. Coates, general manager of the chain company, "our plan includes the building of super-service stations for motorists' needs."

The chain of bonded garages is already operating more than 200 units in 14 states, and the additional locations are said to be included in the 1927 expansion program of the chain company.

Who Sells the "Best" Furniture?

No one store can possibly sell the "best" furniture in every line.

Enthusiastic as we are about our own store, we wouldn't claim that we have the world beat on everything.

We do believe that our store offers you the most in quality and price "on the average".

And so we suggest that you shop around for furniture and you look about and make comparisons.

If you buy in this way, you are going to be better satisfied with what you get.

And you are going to buy a fair share from us because our offerings merit your patronage.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

"Air Derby" to Honolulu Is Won by Art Goebel in the Plane Woolaroo.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SOMETHING new under the sun—an "Air Derby" across the Pacific ocean from Oakland, Calif., to Honolulu—was the feature of the week's news. After a deal of preparation eight planes started in the race for the James Dole prize of $35,000, of which $10,000 was for the second to reach the goal. Four met with disaster at the take-off, but the other four winged their way over the waste of waters. The Woolaroo, piloted by Art Goebel, movie stunt flyer, and with Lieut. William Davis, U. S. N., as navigator, won the race. The Aloha, with Martin Jensen of Honolulu as pilot and Paul Schlatter as navigator, was second.

At this writing the two other planes are missing, and are being sought by airplanes and naval ships. These are the Miss Dorn, with Augie Pedlar as pilot, Lieut. V. R. Knops as navigator and Miss Mildred Dorn of Detroit as passenger; and the Golden Eagle, of which Jack Frost was the pilot and Gordon Scott the navigator.

The Woolaroo made the flight in 28 hours 10 minutes and 33 seconds. The Aloha took 28 hours 17 minutes. Lieutenants Maitland and Hagenberger of the United States army made the trip in 28 hours and 50 minutes several weeks ago, while Ernie Smith and Emory Irons, the first civilians to fly to Hawaii from California, landed at Moulukai island 25 hours 20 minutes after leaving the mainland.

Goebel's plane was equipped with a radio outfit that functioned well and he was in frequent communication with ships. The army navigation officers at Honolulu, who charted the course of the aviators as the radio reports were received, agreed that the flight of the Woolaroo was almost perfect and was a triumph of the highest order for scientific practice in air navigation. The plane was kept in line constantly with the radio beam beacon at San Francisco.

Pilot Jensen took the Aloha by the northern route and overshot his mark somewhat. He said he skimmed the surface of the sea nearly all the way, while the Woolaroo was kept at an altitude of between 600 and 900 feet. The successful aviators were given a warm welcome in Honolulu, but the celebration was marred by anxiety concerning the missing flyers.

DOWN at San Diego, Calif., the navy's FN-10 seaplane broke the world's record and established a third. The plane weighed at the time of take-off approximately 11 tons. It carried 3,000 pounds of sand, 1,222 gallons of gasoline and 120 gallons of lubricating oil. For a plane carrying this dead weight, these records were established:

Duration—20 hours, 45 minutes, 40 seconds.

Distance—1,508 miles.

Speed—78.50 miles an hour.

The plane was piloted by Lieut. Byron J. Connell. He was accompanied by Lieut. H. C. Todd, radio engineer, and Comar Vincent, aviation chief mechanic's mate.

EARLY in the week two big Junkers planes, the pride of Germany, started from Dessau to fly across the Atlantic. One, the Europa, had New York as its goal, and the other, the Bremen, was to fly as far as Chicago if its gasoline lasted. The Europa ran into stormy weather and after getting over the North sea it developed motor trouble and was forced to turn back, landing at Bremen. The Bremen kept on until it had crossed Ireland and out over the ocean some distance. Then the storm grew worse, the gasoline was being used up too fast, and the aviators gave it up and with great difficulty made their way back to Dessau. It was thought a third Junkers plane might attempt the Atlantic crossing, but on the other hand experts thought the time for such a flight had passed for this year.

THE full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme court overruled the exceptions by Sacco-Vanzetti defense counsel to decisions by Justice George A. Sutherland of that court and by Judge Webster Thayer of the Superior court and refused to grant a writ of error.

This meant that the two men must be executed after the termination of their respite, midnight of August 22, unless some further means of saving their lives were found.

AMERICA'S greatest "captain of industry," who might better be termed a generalissimo, passed with the death in New York of Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation. Though almost eighty-one years of age, he was still in active control of the mighty concern which was the creation of his imagination and genius and whose destinies he directed from its beginning. Gary was one of the most important figures in modern finance and business and his part in the affairs of the nation, in both peace and war, had much to do with present industrial conditions. Though long the advocate of the eight-hour day in the steel mills and fought for many years by labor leaders, he was held by many as a real friend of humanity, the thrifty and a benefactor of church and science. During the World War he was the indefatigable aid of the government. Judge Gary's body was taken to his old home in Wheaton, a suburb of Chicago, and the funeral was held in the beautiful memorial church which he built there. His successor as chairman of the steel corporation has not yet been announced.

J. Ogden Armour of Chicago, another of America's leading business men, died in London after several months' illness. The son of P. D. Armour, famous pioneer meat packer, he succeeded his father as head of the business and expanded it into a world-wide organization, winning one of the country's great personal fortunes. In the period of post-war depression his fortune dwindled with astonishing swiftness, and Mr. Armour withdrew from active participation in many of the concerns with which he was connected, these including banks and railways.

John Oliver, premier of British Columbia, died in Victoria at the age of seventy-one years. He had been ill for some time and had been relieved of his official duties by the naming of J. D. McLean as his interim premier and leader of the Liberal party.

Other deaths worthy of note were those of James Oliver Cromwell, popular American author and Rhode Islander, and Walter D. Wadsworth, well-known New Yorker.

FOLLOWING a conference with Mr. Coolidge in Rapid City, Director of the Budget Lord announced that the President had approved large increases in appropriations for both the army and the navy. American expenditures for national defense authorized by the President are: Funds for completion of the six cruisers authorized by congress in the last session; funds for completion of the remodeling of the battleships Oklahoma and Nevada; and funds for 1,800 first-class planes for the army and 1,000 planes for the navy. There was only one naval appropriation which the President did not approve. That was for first-class submarines, and in 1916, on which investigation work still is being done.

Feminists at once began figuring that the increased defense estimate, together with the necessity of spending a lot for farm relief, would make impossible any extensive reduction in taxes by the next congress. But the official opinion in Washington was that taxes would certainly be cut at least $800,000,000 during the coming session. In order to bring this about the Democratic leaders and some Republicans will, if necessary, combat the practice of applying all receipts from foreign debt not in large in excessive money spending.

GENERAL PERISHING called at the summer White House and discussed with Mr. Coolidge conditions of American cemeteries in France, also submitting to him the accepted designs for various memorials and chapels on the battlefields. The President went to the Pine Ridge reservation Wednesday and saw a pageant and parade in which some ten thousand Indians participated. He received from the Sioux national council a memorial reciting the loyalty and complaints of the Indians and in reply assured them of the government's sympathy and close study of their problems. Next day Mr. Coolidge, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, inspected the government hospitals for World War veterans at Hot Springs, S. D. Plans were made for the Presidential staff to spend a week in Yellowstone National park.

COLLAPSE of the Nanking Nationalist group in China seems imminent. After his armies, which were advancing on Peking met with severe defeats and were driven back to the south of the Yangtze, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek resigned his leadership and appealed for unity of action between the Nanking and Hankow factions. But the northern troops kept on going south and at last reports had occupied Pukow and were bombarding Nanking, across the Yangtze. Both foreign and native residents of that city were fleeing. Meanwhile the foreigners in Shanghai were preparing to defend the place against invasion by the disorganized hordes of Chinese Nationalist soldiers. American, British and French troops were placed in strategic positions, the British being in an advanced line about Shanghai's environs, outside the international settlement. The barricades between the French concession and Chinese territory were reconstructed. The situation there was complicated by a quarrel between the British authorities and the Chinese officials. An English plane had been forced to land in Chinese territory and the native officials seized the wings and refused to comply with a British ultimatum that they give them up immediately. The Chinese contended that flying British planes over Chinese territory is a violation of international law as well as the international airplane convention, to which both Great Britain and China are signatories.

Japan, asserting its preferential claims in Manchuria and Mongolia, has served notice that it will not tolerate any opposition there to its policy. This is especially true in Manchuria, are deeply resentful of the Japanese actions and plans, and the Mukden Chamber of Commerce stated an intention to boycott Japan.

WHAT is denominated an "economic" Locarno in the form of a commercial treaty was signed by France and Germany after three years of dickering. The pact provides for mutual favored nation agreement on practically all products passing between the two countries and paves the way for intertrade such as the two nations have never experienced. French agriculture will receive the greatest benefit. Practically all the tariffs are lowered, while Germany agrees not to increase the existing ones on cotton, wool, silk, leather goods and metallurgical products, soap and perfume.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE'S government of the Irish Free State narrowly escaped overthrow at the hands of a combine of three parties after De Valera and his followers had taken the oath of fealty to the king and occupied their seats in the Dail. A resolution of lack of confidence was introduced and the vote estimated. Cosgrave was broken when the speaker cast his vote in the negative. As a matter of fact, Cosgrave was saved by Alderman John Jinks of Sligo, a member of the Redmond party, who slipped away just before the vote was taken. He says he never had any intention of voting the government out. Cosgrave is expected to gain strength in the general elections in October.

BOLIVIA was greatly alarmed by a big uprising among the Indians, who largely outnumber the whites in that country. But quick action by the government troops isolated the rebels and in certain sections of three departments and gave assurance that the trouble would soon be quieted. Many chiefs were captured and heavy penalties were inflicted, and thereafter thousands of Indians returned to their work in the fields.

METAL-TRIM IN LATEST GOWNS; NOVEL SWEATERS FOR FALL WEAR

"TWINKLE, twinkle little star, how I wonder what you are"—that's the way one feels about it at sight of some of autumn's new frocks, which are starred with either little gold or silver nailbeds, or else with tiny repeat motifs done symmetrically upon blouse, or perhaps sleeves or pocket or some other equally as strategic trimming point.

Undoubtedly metal, especially touches of gold, have entered into ers are about as important a subject as one can discuss in connection with autumn's incoming modes. Increasing note of popularity which knitted apparel is registering—"reason why" for sweaters. Cool autumn days at hand when sweaters are an essential for comfort—reason number two. the fall style scheme with renewed emphasis, and in such unique ways one experiences a thrill at every turn. Black frocks with gleamings of gold are being especially exploited.

Among unique trimming effects are metal stitched plaits, so maneuvered along the lengthwise edge of each plait. Cluster stitching done with gold or silver thread is also handsomely applied. A frock of black velvet, the new sheer knit, interprets the metal trim with scalloped edges accomplished with silver buttonhole stitch.

Comes from Paris a striking novelty—a tin-trimmed frock. In actual appearance not as sensational as it sounds, as this picture of a newly arrived model attests. The tin is so processed as to be lightweight and supple. Then it is riveted over various colored silk, giving it an extremely beautiful effect. Pockets and a plastron collar of this tin novelty are very effectively disposed on the dress here shown.

Not only in a trimming way, but in the weaves of many new fall fabrics metallic effect asserts itself. Metal cloth also of exceeding sheer type strikes an entirely new note, its suppleness yielding gracefully to plaiting. This is typical of this trend to stripes.

Another new departure is the repeat motif patterning, being the symmetrical positioning of the figure, which in the case of the sweater shown to the right at the top, looks very much in the throng rooting for their hero, and so it goes, these many contributing causes to sweater prestige.

Striking color animates the new sweaters and somehow one cannot get away from the feeling that "tricky" designs or patternings have much to do with achieving these novel color effects which prevail throughout sweater styling. For example, note how the stripes encircling the sweater shown first in this group are broken up into a medley of sections, dropping one color to take up another. This produces a most unusual color effect and many of the new stripes are just that way.

Speaking of stripes, they are very much in evidence in the sweater realm. Candy-striped sweaters are outstanding in the newer models. The sweater in the foreground in this group is typical of this trend to stripes.

like a star—not a five-pointed one. Come to think of it, this is rather a patriotic group of sweaters, if displaying the stars and stripes gives evidence of the trend to stripes. The various necklines displayed in this trio of sweaters also enlighten as to fashion's trend—and the long neck sleeves, do not forget to get a mental impression of them also.

Lesson for August 28

NATHAN LEADS DAVID TO REPENTANCE

LESSON TEXT—II Sam. 11:1-12:25.
GOLDEN TEXT—A broken and contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Shows David His Sin.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Nathan Calls David to Repentance.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Confessing and Forsaking Sin.
YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC—ADULT TOPIC—Repentance: What It Is, and What It Does.

1. David's Crimes (II Sam. 11).
1. Adultery (vv. 3, 5).
He by his king's authority brought Bathsheba, the beautiful wife of Uriah, one of his brave soldiers, into his harem.

2. Murder (vv. 14-15).
David sought to cover up his shameful act of adultery with Bathsheba by calling Uriah from the field of battle and giving him a furlough at home with his wife. (He first gave him honorable recognition by sending a portion of meat from the royal table—v. 8.) Uriah's high sense of military duty and propriety would not allow him to do this.

Falling in this, David corrupted him by making him drunk, with the expectation that Uriah would thus go home. When these schemes would not work he resorted to the terrible crime of exposing Uriah to the most dangerous place in the battle where he would surely be killed.

III. Contributing Factors in David's Fall.
1. Idleness (11:2).
It was the king's responsibility to go forth with his army to battle, and David's idleness was because of indolence or self-indulgence.

2. He looked upon a beautiful woman (11:2).
As he was lounging in idleness, this temptation was too great for him. He yielded to his lustful impulse and sent his servants to bring the woman to him. This was the part of David's sin that was absolutely irreparable. David had the power to turn from this sin and thus escape temptation.

III. David Repented by Nathan, the Prophet (12:1-25).
What David had done displeased the Lord (11:27). What he had done grieved him, and he was in a bad mood, but the serious thing is that it displeased the Lord. Because David was God's own, God could not let the matter rest. He therefore sent Nathan, His prophet, to him.

1. The parable of the ewe lamb (vv. 1-6).
Among the Jews it was customary to have pet lambs which were brought up with the children of the family and therefore regarded with tender affection. Nathan pictures before David a poor man whose sole possession consisted of one such lamb, and a rich neighbor when entertaining a guest had appropriated unto himself this lamb instead of drawing upon his numerous flock. This so aroused David's anger that he declared that the rich man should restore fourfold, and in addition forfeit his life. Nathan declared: "Thou art the man."

In spite of David's great sin, he had burning indignation against the wrongdoer.

2. Sentence of judgment (vv. 7-12).
Perhaps David's conscience was indignant so terrible as this one.

(1) He recounted unto David God's peculiar favor (vv. 7, 8).
God had taken him from the sheep-cote and lifted him to the throne, made him king over all Israel. He had delivered him from Saul's murderous hands, and he had inherited Saul's royal possessions.

(2) David's shameful treatment of God's law (vv. 9).
He pointed out that he had violated both tables of the law by worshipping the God of passion and had practiced covetousness, robbery, lying and murder.

(3) The awful judgment pronounced (vv. 10-12).
The prophet declared that the sword should never depart from David's house. He had used the sword to seize Uriah. God in His retributive justice permitted the sword to return to him.

IV. David's Confession (vv. 13-23).
The confession of sin was so real to David that he declared that it had been committed against God (Ps. 51). He now was made fully conscious of his broken condition. He realized what it meant to be without innocence. He confessed his sin as recorded in Psalm 52, and God forgave him, he had to suffer its consequences. "Whatsoever a man sows that shall he also reap."

The Coward

To die in order to avoid the pains of poverty, is hardly anything that is disagreeable. It is not the role of a brave man, but of a coward. For it is cowardice to shun the misfortunes and trials of life, not undergoing death because it is horrible, but to escape will—Aristotle.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

IN ANOTHER'S PLACE

WHEN in a moment of excitement or envy you incline to assail another's good name, or question his or her acts which seem to you unreasonable, hold your tongue.

Mischief you would hastily spoken is like a little spark, capable of causing a great conflagration, irreparable loss and unspeakable sorrow.

To blurt out the first cruel thought that comes to your mind in a burst of sudden heat is a fearful thing to do. It is an evidence of an inherent weakness in the moral fiber and proves your unworthiness for leadership.

At one outburst of temper if you should happen to be seen or overheard by your employers, you shatter your own good record and spoil a perfectly bright future, simply by giving vent to spleen.

When the impulse comes to malign co-workers or speak ill of superiors, however much you may wish to avert the blow, hold your tongue and drive carefully.

There is danger ahead. Thousands have gone over the fatal precipice for similar recklessness, when they imagined themselves secure.

Put yourself in the place of the person whom you are seeking to humiliate and overthrow. You know nothing about his or her trials, impediments, deprivations or sorrows, and you have no royal privilege to enter the heart-sanctuary and expose it to a vulgar gaze.

Put yourself in place of an ever-wrought typist, who is doing her utmost to support aged parents; put yourself in the place of a troubled employer who lies awake nights from thinking of pressing obligations; put yourself in the place of the man that runs the elevator, the scrub woman with her bent body and gnarled purple hands.

To seek to exalt yourself by contrast with such people, for no other reason than petty pride or jealousy is not only exceedingly discourteous but grossly uncharitable.

Don't hand out sighs and tears while you can scatter smiles and sunshine.

It is an understood thing in the game of life that while the hot-headed and uncharitable are pulling down reputations of others, the person who puts himself in the place of the striving, who is considerate and kindly in words and acts, yet is awake to his own opportunity, is the individual who eventually rises to eminence and remains there.

When Your Ship Comes In

By EVELYN GAGE BROWNE

YOU'VE heard folks say—"I'll just do that. When my ship comes in some day"—Then they sit around and watch and wait. While time is slipping away.

But how can a ship come sailing in With all we care most about—If we haven't worked and done our best?

To send a dream ship out? If we haven't had a certain goal And kept the goal in view Believing in it and in our power To make our dream come true?

We haven't any right to expect That somebody else—or fate, Is going to do our work for us While we sit down and wait.

We can't get anything worth the while Or that we'll be proud to win, Unless we pitch in and do our part To make that ship come in.

For only by giving the best you have Will your highest dreams come true, And for every ship you're sending out A ship will "come in" for you.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KATE

At Twenty-one—Avery Hopwood Achieved a Miracle.

AT THIS time I was in the Universe of Michigan and I came across an article which the late Louis Defoe, dramatic critic of the New York World, had written for our college magazine, pointing out the golden rewards which might possibly await such of them as turned to playwrighting. It was particularly interesting in that it had been written for our college by way of his pen, so to speak, created for himself two houses and attomies and country places, with peacocks and swimming pools. It didn't care much for the peacocks, but my soul did yearn for the swimming pools—with a country house or two attached.

So I took to playwrighting. I hit upon a theme for a comedy—the infatuation of a young man for a young woman—but it was not until after my graduation that I found the comedy evolved in Cleveland, typed six copies of it and descended upon New York.

I left the six copies with six different managers. Four weeks later I heard from one of these managers—Waghenale & Kemper—who accepted the piece and paid me advance royalty upon it. I later revised the play with the assistance of Channing Pollock and it was successfully produced with Miss Mabel George in the leading role. Avery Hopwood.

TODAY, Mr. Hopwood beats Clyde Fitch from the point of view of earnings. He is renowned as one who is the greatest benefactor of the government in the matter of income tax of any playwright in the country. Mr. Hopwood's heavy money began to roll in when he started writing the so-called "bedroom farces" for Al Woods, the producer, but the golden—or is it greenbacked—"climax" was reached when his co-authorship with Mrs. Rhinehart in "The Bat." Mr. Hopwood is also famed as master technician of playwrighting.

The V DARE

POORLY FED COWS NOT PROFITABLE

Milk yields of many poorly fed cows are increased through better feeding, the profits climb much more rapidly than the cost of the extra feed. In fact, many nonpaying herds have been put on a profitable basis simply through more liberal feeding of a ration better suited to milk production.

Investigations by the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, have shown that cows producing 10,000 pounds (1,100 gallons) of milk, or more, annually used only 42 pounds of digestible matter for each 100 pounds of milk, while cows yielding only half that amount did so at a feed cost of one-third more for each 100 pounds of milk. Some cows were found which gave only 3,000 pounds (330 gallons) or less a year. These cows required one and two-thirds as much feed for each unit quantity of milk as the highest producing cows. The greater the production, the greater the efficiency with which feed is used for milk, for the same amount of feed needed to maintain the animal remains about constant. Some of the best cows use two-thirds of their feed for milk, while the poorest may use only one-third or less.

"The ability of the cows to produce milk is a matter deserving as much study as the matter of improved feeding, however, may bring immediate profits, while raising better cows requires several years."

Overfeeding Is Common Error in Handling Calf

"Overfeeding," says C. H. Eckles, chief of the dairy husbandry division of the Minnesota College of Agriculture, "is probably the most common cause of lack of success in raising calves. It is a mistake to assume that because the cream has been removed the calf needs more milk or that because the calf is not doing well it is getting enough milk and should be allowed to gorge itself. A good rule is always to keep the calf a little hungry. Some provision must be made for the calf to eat when it is in small stanchions during the feeding. Each calf then gets its proper amount and cannot interfere with the feeding of the other calves."

"Under natural conditions, the calf takes its milk frequently and in small quantities. When fed by hand, two feedings a day are sufficient, and special care must be taken not to allow the calf to consume more milk than it can digest. For the first two weeks the calf should be fed only milk and the largest calf should receive if it can be done without too much inconvenience, the calf at this age should have three times rather than twice daily.

"As the calf grows older, twice-a-day feedings are sufficient and the milk may be fed in two or three feedings. It is necessary to feed more than six or eight pounds daily. By the time the calf needs more than this amount, it will take additional feed necessary in the form of grain."

Number of Requisites of Success in Dairying

If it were possible to limit the number of requisites of success in dairying to one, that one would be "know your cow," says Thomas M. Olson, instructor in dairy husbandry at South Dakota State College. Heavy feeding, or feeding a balanced ration does not assure success, although it will increase somewhat the production of the dairy herd. Pure bred dairy cows do not guarantee success nor even pure bred cows from high-producing ancestry. Expensive dairy barns and equipment will probably make dairying more interesting, and increase the pleasure in the production, but it is not a requisite for success. Many great dairy cows have been developed and have produced wonderful records without cost of measure up to the standard as far as up-to-date dairy barns go.

No dairy cow has ever produced her maximum milk production under her. Knowing her means more than simply calling her by name and reciting the names of her ancestors. It means understanding her individual needs, desire, and condition. For after all the dairy cow is an individual, and as such possesses individuality.

Feed for Profit

Our colleges and experiment stations have shown conclusively that there is no profit in underfeeding. This is true because the bulk of a ration that a cow receives is for food or as we call it, "maintenance." What an animal consumes over and above maintenance is the part of the ration which gives her a profit. If we feed only maintenance ration, we cannot expect a profit. To produce the best results, then, we must feed both liberally and economically.

REDUCE COOKING DURING SUMMER MONTHS

Ham First Boiled, Then Baked Is Excellent.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) One of the food problems in summer time is to dispose with as much cooking as possible and nevertheless give the family plenty of variety. With so many kinds of fresh vegetables obtainable in abundance at this season it is easy enough to have variety in vegetables. As most of the vitamin-rich kinds should be cooked the shortest possible time or stewed raw, as in salad, the chief problem is how to have the meats the family likes without monotony or overheating the kitchen.

Ham is of course a standby in summer time, because after it has once been cooked it may be served sliced or quickly heated up in a number of different ways. Here are several ham menus suggested by the bureau of home economics for use in warm weather.

Several Ham Menus. 1. Ham, boiled and baked; scalloped or baked potatoes; Swiss chard; blackberry pie. 2. Cold sliced ham; potato salad; sliced tomatoes; raspberries and cream. 3. Ham omelet; corn on the cob; string beans; peach shortcake. 4. Ham hash; New Zealand spinach; tomato, cucumber and cress salad; watermelon.

Baked or scalloped potatoes are suggested for the first menu because the oven will be in use for broiling the ham. On the other days all necessary cooking can be done in half an hour or less. Fruit and green vegetables are used at each meal. To prepare the ham for the first dinner: Wash it thoroughly and trim off any mold or loose pieces. Soak overnight if the ham is unusually dry, or vinegar, put directly into cold water with a teaspoonful and a half of pickling spice, three slices each of carrot and onion, a stalk of celery, half a teaspoonful of celery salt, a sprig of parsley, and a quarter of a cupful of strong vinegar. Bring to a boil and cook slowly until it is tender when pierced with a long-tined fork. For an old ham, five or more hours' cooking may be necessary. The meat will be somewhat shrunk from the bones, but the ham should not be overcooked or it will be difficult to carve nicely. If it is to be served as cold boiled ham, let it cool in the water in which it was cooked.

To Bake Ham. To bake the ham remove the skin, then cover the surface with a paste made in the following proportions: One cupful of brown sugar, one cupful of fine soft bread crumbs, one teaspoonful of mustard, and enough cider or vinegar to hold the paste together. Stick the ham all over with whole long-stemmed cloves and bake in a hot oven so that the crust forms quickly. Then reduce the temperature of the oven and baste with a mixture of ham liquor and cider or vinegar until the ham is evenly browned.

BACK YARD HINTS FOR WASH DAYS

Good Policy to Hang Out Clothes Soon as Rinsed.

Many housewives do not seem to know that it is good policy to hang out clothes as fast as a tubful is rinsed and put through the wringer. They wait until the whole washing is done, thus losing valuable morning sunshine and crowding the lines. Often the colored pieces, which ought not to stand white wet, are left in the basket until a place can be made for them.

If you are using a washing machine, the first lot can be hung out while the next tubful is in the machine, thus releasing some of the lines by the time the last tubful is ready. If you do not have a machine, letting the second tubful of clothes soak in the water while the first is being hung out makes them easier to wash, and the change in work will prevent you from getting too tired, working at the tubs. Galvanized wire clotheslines have the advantage of permanence. They are easy to clean with a damp cloth and are useful for all but thin materials. They must be looked over for rust from time to time. Many homemakers have in addition to a permanent wire line for general use a rope line to put up on wash day. Rinsing a lot of clothes for a few minutes in soapy water softens it and lengthens its life.

There is no best way of putting up a clothesline. Available space and personal preference will determine to a large extent whether to string the clothesline from posts or buildings, or on a stationary or revolving drier, or on a pulley line which makes it possible to hang clothes without leaving the house or porch. Ropes are a convenience in stringing and storing lines and may be easily made at home. Some provision must be made for indoor drying during bad weather. A good kind of drier for the small home is a wooden frame equipped with rope and pulleys so that it can be pulled up to the ceiling.

The old-fashioned wooden clothespin is cheap and serviceable for general use, provided it is made of sound, smooth wood. Spring clothespins are usually of better quality, although the metal wire is likely to corrode and may break. A basket for clothespins with wire hooks can be pushed along the line and much time saved when hanging clothes; or one of the various kinds of clothespins aprons may be preferred. A clothes bag similarly equipped with hooks for the line can be used to hold the clothes as they are removed after drying. A small clothesline which keeps the hamper at a convenient height also prevents time-stealing stooping. A child's wagon can be used for the same purpose if available. It saves time in filling the basket.

The United States Department of Agriculture has recently issued a bulletin on home laundering. Farmers' Bulletin 1497, F., which may be obtained on request, will be found for making laundry work easier. It is free white supply lasts.

FLOATING ISLAND CUSTARD DESSERT

Secret Is to Drop Egg Whites by Spoonfuls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Among the many ways in which custard may be used for dessert there is none nicer than old-fashioned "floating island," which is easily made. It should have a rich, creamy, smooth custard, and delicate "islands" of egg white floating on top. The secret of success with this custard lies in making this dessert is that the egg whites must be dropped by spoonfuls on the hot milk for a few minutes, until they are thoroughly set, before the yolks are added to make the custard. Complete directions for making floating island are given by the bureau of home economics.

Floating Island. 1 quart milk 1/2 teaspoon salt 2 egg yolks 1/4 teaspoon vanilla 1/2 cup sugar

Put the milk into a double boiler with the sugar and salt. When this mixture is hot, drop the stiffly beaten egg whites on the surface by spoonfuls, and let these "islands" cook for a few minutes until thoroughly set. Then skim them off and put aside until the custard is made. Beat the egg yolks lightly, and pour slowly into them some of the hot milk. Pour back into the double boiler and stir constantly until the custard coats the spoon. Remove at once and place the pan in a bowl of cold water, stirring until cool, add the vanilla, or other flavoring if preferred. Chill and serve in individual glasses or dishes.

Would Be Pie-Maker

At some stage in her housekeeping experience every woman privately longs to be considered a good pie-maker. She may not admit it, but she welcomes a chance to exhibit her art. She will find one in this menu, for the dessert is fruit pie, rhubarb, blackberry, blackberry—whatever fruit is in season. One little hint about this: When making any juicy fruit pies, prebake the undercrust till it begins to color up to prevent its being soggy. Then fill with thick sweetened stewed fruit, put the top crust on, and bake as usual.

THE LEADING CHARACTERS:—

EDISON FORBES, a young resident of Scottsdale, goes on a little joy ride with another young fellow. Some liquor is consumed. They are stopped suddenly by the sight of a booze truck driven by SCOOT'S LIBBEY, a worthless character, who has smashed his machine into another car, killing its lone occupant, a woman. Forbes' companion and Libbey, who is arrested, hurriedly leaving the former alone to face a constable who reasons that Eddie, with the scent of whiskey about him, must be connected in some way with the accident. Accordingly, Forbes is arrested.

Forbes decided to keep the name of his companion in himself unless he comes forward voluntarily.

CHAPTER IV "GUILTY"

For his character in the stuff of which martyrs are fashioned. He was easily led, easily impressed by disapproval. He was of the type whose face registers with honest faithfulness for days the hazard of a few hours' dissipation. "Well, you're a weak sister, kid," he summed up, "which is all the more reason I have to stand by you. If I told your father you'd probably kick you out; they'd let you down at the office, just the way I was dazed by old Sam. You'd stick away to the big town and lose your job."

"Oh, I know you'll save you this time, you'll get your toe under it later anyway. But that's not my affair. I won't be to blame. I have my name mapped out. I must keep the faith, no matter what happens next week or next year. Besides, I can't just need your help. No jury would convict on such flimsy evidence. He was certainly mistaken in this. He failed to consider the consideration many a man would command to work against him, what appeared to be personal malignancy. Mrs. Knowles, the woman who had been crushed to death, was admired and respected in the community. Her life had been a long struggle against odds, which she had overcome with noteworthy patience and industry.

It had been suspected for some time that Scottsdale was on the main booze route between Canadian girls and Detroit and Chicago. Furthermore, there were hints the peace officers were being subsidized to look the other way when the trucks slipped through in the night. The town had been dry for years before the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment, and the numerous violations had aroused public sentiment.

Eddie Forbes had been popular. But now that he was under arrest for a mishap due to liquor, it was recalled that he had been drunk with more or less frequently in the past. Reputation by his employer, a man of influence, had done much to turn the community against him.

The trial overwhelmed him like a landslide. The prosecution produced witnesses to prove that he had been seen sitting alone on the truck, on the main street of Burley, less than two hours before the accident. This was while Scott's Libbey conducted the wretchedly ill Barney Oik to the Burley House, a short distance away. Barney had entered the hotel alone. Hearing of the accident, he disappeared next morning before he could be questioned.

No one had noticed Forbes' companion and the latter's car on the expedition to Burley. This was because Eddie had left them on a side street, while he skinned the liquor. Nothing could be found to substantiate his story that the missing Scoots was responsible for the accident. There was little to connect Libbey with the truck. There was a Mackinaw coat in the driver's seat. In one of the pockets was a partly-emptied bottle of liquor. The cargo was intact except for one case which had been opened, and from which two bottles had been taken.

The prosecution argued that Barney Oik was the driver and sole attendant. That he had broken into the case and abstracted the bottle which was found in the Mackinaw. That the coat belonged to him. That he had become sick by reason of over-indulgence and stayed at Burley, and that Forbes had volunteered to take the truck on to its destination. The next step in the hypothesis was that Eddie had also helped himself to the liquor between Burley and Scottsdale. That he had become drunk he could not manage the truck, and the accident had followed.

Eddie was on the stand in his own defense. But he did not help his case. He told his story strictly in accordance with the truth. He indignantly refused to give any hint of the identity of the person with him in the car. The sheriff had tried to prove up by search for distinguishing trademarks in the narrow lane leading from the river road to the highway. But as so many cars had followed the route to the accident, that no evidence was forthcoming.

Into the mine, or the judge, the jury and the spectators seeped the belief that the story he told was, in the main, particulars false. They reasoned that the prosecutor's theory must be the correct one. In the cold light of day his Quixotic defense of another, even at the possible expense of his own freedom, did not seem logical.

They went a step further. If by any chance he was telling the truth about an unworthy motive, and not merely one for keeping the name of his companion a secret. His courtship of Nance Newell was remembered. Their friendship since his marriage, innocent though it was, was a subject of comment in town. It was the next step in their minds if he wasn't driving the truck, then he was jockeying around it that Emmet girl while his poor wife was at home.

"Guilty," interpreted, it really meant "guilty" on appearances and general "guiltiness." In a scathing arraignment that lasted for 20 minutes, Judge Randolph Parsons sentenced Eddie Forbes to from 5 to 15 years in the state penitentiary at Jackson. Edison made the few hour's trip to the prison city in a daze of misery. The deputy sheriff in whose charge he was, Linus Beal, was a school boy's friend. He sympathized deeply with the prisoner and respected his tragic bewilderment. He did not insist on sitting with Edison. He realized that his prisoner preferred to be alone.

The outstanding thought in Edison's mind was that he had been a fool, a crackbrained, overgenerous fool, in protecting one who could not be saved by protection. And one who did not appreciate his sacrifice. The cowardly note the morning after the verdict proved that. So did the young man's avoidance of him since he arrived. His thoughts ran: "If I had known they'd convict me, I would have told you with me."

The train puffed into Jackson. Beal signaled a taxicab. They were driven to the prison whose sinister walls towered above the railway tracks. Edison shuddered as they passed within the gateway of discolored gray stone. The whole place seemed to recover slowly from the recent siege of wet weather. There foot walk. The ivy dripped as they were puddles in the worn flags of the clung to the cold stone barriers. There was the same cold dampness in the prison office, and a strong smell of disinfectants, both depressing and degrading.

Linus received a receipt for his prisoner and went away after a silent handclasp. His mouth twitched with emotion, so that he dared attempt no word. The clerk in charge had barely started on Edison's pedigree when the warden entered. "Never mind, Jerry," he said to the clerk. And then to Edison: "You're Forbes of Scottsdale?" "Yes, sir."

THE WAY OF A SHIP.

MARK TWAIN WOULD WONDER, DOG AND PERFUME LADIES, AND ONLY ONE STAR.

The way of a ship in the midst of the sea has changed since Solomon, the son of David, wrote his Proverbs. The hardy Phoenician bringing precious freight for Solomon's temple, and the American tourist of the General Grant-Mark Twain period would wonder at the ships of 1927.

This is written on the Aquitania, one of the many floating cities that cross the ocean as free from romance as the moving pictures shown on Deck A. Whoever has crossed in old days rubs his eyes, like Rip Van Winkle.

Along the deck, much wider than Fifth Avenue's sidewalk, and almost as steady, comes a wheezy short, fat lady, leading a small dog to match, with all its owner's qualities, plus a disposition to snap at passing legs. They turn at the notice. "No dogs allowed forward of this sign."

The dog wears a beautiful ribbon, the lady, possibly a grandmother, wears brilliant pink silk stockings, of such high visibility that an old time captain might have put her in irons. Much gold on her dress and on her cheeks profusely spread the rouge that Jesabel wore in Racine's description, pour repaire, des ans, l'irreparable ourrage.

That modern seafaring lady passes and here comes another, forty years younger, forty times worse. As she passes in bright red, she scatters all the perfumes of Arabia, which are the worst, stickiest perfumes on earth, and smoke an ostentatious cigarette.

The cigarette is used as a wand, waved to emphasize a speech that she is making, deeply appreciated by a young man with black sleek greasy hair, a stomach caving inward, a foreign accent, and no more back than a Russian wolfhound.

The young woman's father probably has money. Hundreds spend a week in this floating hotel, not realizing that they are on the ocean until the fog horn blows. Then some say, "I don't like that sound." The more nervous down the fog horn with two more cocktails.

Modern American wealth has changed ships into cocktail and breakfast food emporiums. There are thirty kinds of mucous membrane destroyers laid out as cocktails on the smoking room, and the dignified Britisher on their own ship, waded through a list of American breakfast foods that amazes and outrages them.

In the old days after dark sentimental young people would whisper behind the wheel house. The older, more serious looked at the starry sky, muttering about Arcturus, Orion and Pleiades and the Chambers of the South.

That is "old stuff" now. There is no wheel house accessible on a modern ship, and you are not supposed to look at the stars.

The only one of the six decks from which they can be seen in dark at night. Nobody uses it. To walk there is to interrupt your musings by falling over shuffle boards of imitation greens for golfers.

On modern ships one star is enough. The one to be seen to-night is wonderfully beautiful, deep and soulful. Her picture, in colors, just outside the dining saloon, shows her pretty tiny nose, pressed close to the nose tip of some gentleman. The sign says, Pola Negri in "Good and Naughty."

In the smoking room pools are auctioned on the ship's daily run, the pools running to thousands of dollars. The chief smoking room steward, generously remembered by the winner of each pool, retires twice as much as the ship's captain. The luck is modern. Many a bootlegger gets four times as much as the President of the United States.

On this voyage Mr. Newmark and Mr. Lehman display strange knowledge as to how fast a ship will go. Martin Conboy, of New York, looks on and says it's too complicated and

MANY REUNIONS HELD SUNDAY

JONES-MILLER REUNION

The fourth annual reunion of the Jones-Miller families was held at the home of Mrs. Nancy Jones, of south of Burket, on Sunday, August 28, 1927.

The guests, to the number of ninety, began to arrive at an early hour, and spent the time in getting acquainted and rehearsing old times, till at a late noon hour, the attention of those present was turned to the long table, set beneath the trees loaded with the contents of the baskets which the guests had brought.

After assembling about the table, thanks were returned and the blessing of God asked upon the company by Mr. C. O. Eller.

In a manner, to which no Jones or Miller is a stranger, the good things were taken care of, together with a side dish of ten gallons of ice cream.

At the business session the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President E. E. Jones, Mentone, Vice-Pres. Andie Rine of Ohio, Secy-Treas. C. O. Eller, Rita Green, Ind. A fixed time of the last Sunday in August was established on which the reunions of the future are to be held. An invitation to hold the reunion in Ohio was favored by the committee.

After short talks by Chas Jones of Akron, Lester Underwood of Bursury, Ohio, and George Smith of Mentone.

Mr. Eller sang several of the old songs which were popular a generation ago.

The Eller children, assisted by little Miss Francis Morrison sang two songs.

The balance of the afternoon was devoted to visiting and one by one the guests departed, looking forward to many such occasions in the future.

BROWN REUNION

The fifth annual reunion of the Brown family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Smith, southeast of Mentone, August 28, 1927, with about one hundred present to enjoy the bounteous picnic dinner.

The afternoon was spent socially. A short business meeting was held with several good talks by different members of the family.

Officers were elected as follows: Elmer Smith, President; Ladd Henderson, vice pres.; Ceddie Brown Ehrenman, Secy-Treas.

The next reunion will be held at Centennial Park, Plymouth, Indiana the last Sunday in August, 1928.

Following the election of officers all were served with ice cream and then departed for their homes.

DUNLAP REUNION

The eighth annual Dunlap reunion was held at the home of Mrs. Anna Hudson north east of Mentone on Sunday, August 28th, with thirty-eight relatives and five visitors.

Argos, Mentone, Plymouth, Warsaw, Atwood, Burke, and Fort Wayne, were represented. At the noon hour all did ample justice to the heavy laden table. Isabel Dunlap of Plymouth was the oldest present, being seventy-eight years of age and Vera Louise Raliback daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Raliback of near Argos was the youngest present, being five months old.

In the afternoon a short business session was held in which Victor Raliback of near Grace Dunlap of Argos as secretary and treasurer for the coming year.

It was voted to hold the next meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Doran of Burket on the fourth Sunday in August, 1928. A program of speaking and music was enjoyed by each one present.

HIBSCHMAN REUNION

The 23rd Annual Reunion of the Hibschman family was held August 28th at the home of Mrs. L. F. Minner.

News comes through the ether from both shores, and unlike the brother of old Jerome, of Travers and Jerome, you don't wait ten years to learn that Wall Street has ruined you. You know it the same day.

SCHOOL OPENS LABOR DAY

The coming school term will open on Labor Day, September 5. School will continue for about two hours in the forenoon at which time the students will get their text books and assignments. On Tuesday morning the regular routine will begin.

An enrollment higher than any previous year is expected and the building will probably be overcrowded. One more teacher, Miss Katherine Blue, has been added to the faculty. Miss Blue is a graduate of last year's class at Indiana University. She will teach the 8th grade and also some subjects in the High School.

Charles Christian was omitted in the list of teachers published two weeks ago in the Gazette. He will teach in the grades.

35th, at the Mentone Community Forum. At an early hour relatives began to arrive and by noon 130 had marched through the building. The forenoon was spent in visiting by the older and horseshoe pitching by the younger folks. At the noon hour the president Mr. W. C. Hibschman gave the dinner call. After which Rev. Squibbs expressed thanks. Some thought the tables would have to be paid for as they groaned under the heavy weight of the many good things, but the faculty with a few helpers soon relieved the weight. The afternoon was enjoyed by a short program consisting of songs and recitations. Short talks by Chas. Weeks Rev. Liddle and Rev. Squibbs were appreciated. Next election of officers for next year was held. Rev. Herschel Hibschman was elected president; Mrs. Francis Hibschman Secretary Treasurer; It was voted to hold the next reunion at the home of Herschel Hibschman, the last Thursday in August, 1928, the benediction was given by Mrs. Liddle. A basket ball game was played by the Athens four vs. Mentone four. Chas. Ellis of Warsaw was the star. The oldest person was Scott Smith of Fort Wayne 87 years, the youngest Nancy Jane Laird, 8 weeks, of Mentone.

Spent weeks vacation in Southern Indiana

Mr. and Mrs. Minner Mollenhour returned Saturday evening from a very interesting trip through Indiana. They visited Turkey Run, The Shades Old Feller's Home at Greensburg and other places of interest.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. George C. Schaub, August 22, the boy is named Rex Dean.

CORN CROP IS THREE WEEKS BEHIND TIME

"The corn crop is on the whole two or three weeks late," according to Homer W. Dall, government meteorologist at Raval Center, who issued his weekly weather and crops summary Wednesday.

"The average crop, the temperature averaging nearly 5 degrees below normal," the report continues. "Moderate temperatures were general during the first half of the week, and interrupted at threshing and other farm work. However, it is too dry for plowing in some of the upper Washish valley counties."

"In other sections, plowing made good progress under favorable soil conditions. The cool nights and lack of sunshine were unfavorable for corn and other warm weather crops, especially tomatoes, which ripened slowly."

"From 50 to 90 per cent of the corn crop is in the ear, but plants are still uneven. The second crop of alfalfa was being cut in some of the central counties and cutting of seed clover has begun in the southern portions of the state. Some alfalfa was seeded in the northern counties."

"Tomatoes, trucks and beets made fair to good progress and the former are being picked for canning, Melons and peaches of good quality are being shipped from the southern counties," the report concludes.

EDUCATIONAL MEETING AT M. E. CHURCH

Due to the fact that School work is so closely related to our educational life a special service and program for school teachers and students entering college is being arranged for next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the M. E. Church.

Professor Harry Lawless, county Superintendent of schools will deliver the main address of the evening. Other special music will be on the program.

All teachers and students who expect to attend college the coming year should be present at this service.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

Mary Ellsworth, daughter of D. Ellsworth was rushed to the McDonald hospital Saturday evening and was operated on at 12:30 for acute appendicitis. She is recovering nicely.

HITEN BY HOG

Charles Carey was badly bitten by a hog the day last week. Although at the time it was thought to be quite serious, she is recovering nicely.

BEAVER DAM FACULTY NAMED

The faculty for the Beaver Dam schools has been announced. Some changes have been made.

Byford Cox will head the school as principal, Charles Hames as a teacher physics and be coach of all sports. Ralph Evans, History; Gertrude Book English; and Ruth Aughaugh, Latin.

Lloyd Carpenter, Lena Swick and Theodosia Baum will be the teachers in the grades.

The building has been redecorated, new electric lights installed and a new furnace installed.

HOME-COMING AND LEGION FIELD DAYS AT BEAVER DAM LAKE LABOR DAY

Akron is planning a two day celebration which is expected to be the largest and greatest of its kind ever held there.

There will be sports, baseball, Rodeo, Water Battle, Band Concerts and many other attractions.

Dr. Cordier of North Manchester college will speak. An Airplane will take up passengers both days. Dances will be held in the Opera House Gymnasium.

BIG CELEBRATION AT BEAVER DAM LAKE LABOR DAY

Beaver Dam Lake will have a celebration all its own Labor Day. There will be several boat races and swimming meets. This is the first time any sports of this kind have been held in this vicinity and a large crowd is expected to witness the events.

CALDWELL LAKE IS NOT LEASED AS REPORTED

George Yarnelle of Wabash, and well known in this vicinity as a basketball player, has not leased Caldwell Lake of L. F. Minner as was reported in last weeks issue of the Mentone Gazette.

Mr. Yarnelle has leased a plot of ground upon which he will erect a cottage. The body of water belongs to the government as it covers more acreage than a private lake.

Affidavits have been filed against Frank Parish, owner; Dimple Van Pherson, ticket seller; Mrs. Frank Parish, ticket taker; Lee McDonald, operator and Charles usher for operating a theatre on Sunday. They each gave bond of $100.

MRS. ALEXANDER SUICIDE VICTIM

Ill health, from which she had suffered for the past eighteen months is believed to have been the cause of the death of Mrs. Ott Alexander age, 48 of Culver, who committed suicide early Friday morning by drowning herself in Lake Maxinecure.

The body was found at 6 o'clock Friday morning by her son and other members of the family who had started a searching party.

Her husband had remained at her bedside until 3:30 o'clock Friday morning and sometime between then and six o'clock Mrs. Alexander left her home and went to the west shore of the lake where she drowned herself.

Mrs. Alexander had suffered from a nervous disorder which is thought to be the cause of her rash act.

She leaves her husband and seven children, and many other relatives.

ANDREW GARRISON DIES

Andrew Garrison, age 73, died at his home in Keavane Illinois, Sunday August 28. He was sick several weeks prior to his death.

Mr. Garrison was a resident of Mentone for several years and is well known here.

Surviving him are: two daughters; five grandchildren, one brother, Dexter Garrison of Indianapolis and one sister, Mrs. Mollie Scharke and seven children, and many other relatives.

The body was brought to Mentone for burial. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the M. E. Church. Rev. Liddle officiating. Burial at the Mentone cemetery.

THREE TOWNSHIPS IN COUNTY ENTERED BY EUROPEAN CORN BORER

The corn borer has been found in three townships in Kosciusko, Plain, Turkey, Creek and Tippecanoe. The total number of the insects is estimated at 101. Reports regarding the clean-up work being considered and some changes will probably be made in the requirements.

CATTLE TESTING IN KOSCIUSKO COUNTY IS COMPLETED

Dr. G. E. Keith, representative of the state and U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry, reports that the initial test of Tuberculosis among cattle with the exception of a few herds has been completed.

The amendment passed by the 1927 session of the General Assembly to the T. B. law makes it mandatory to continue the work in each county until the percentage of infection has been reduced to not more than one-half of one per cent.

In Kosciusko county the per cent of infection has been found to be below one-half of one per cent in the following townships: Turkey Creek, Tippecanoe, Lake, Harrison, Seward, Monroe and Plain. Therefore, it will not be necessary to continue intensive work in these townships.

In Scott, Jefferson, Van Buren, Elletts, Prairie, Wayne, Washington, Franklin, Clay and Jackson townships the per cent of infection on the initial test was found to average 1.34 per cent. Intensive testing will be continued in these townships until the per cent of infection has been reduced to below one-half of one per cent, at which time the goal will have been reached and Kosciusko county will be declared a modified accredited area by the State of Indiana and U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Animal Industry.

HATFIELD-MENDEL

Miss Margaret Hatfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hatfield, and Mr. Wayne Mendel, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Mendel of Bourbon, were united in marriage, Saturday August 29, at Plymouth, by the Rev. Stecker, at the Methodist parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Mendel will make their home in South Bend where they are both employed. They will live at 744 Cottage Grove Ave. They left Sunday afternoon for their new home accompanied by Miss Ethel Mendel, a sister of the groom.

Mrs. Mendel is a graduate of the Bourbon schools, class of '27. Mr. Mendel has been a teacher in Kosciusko county. The Hatfield family recently moved from this place to South Bend.

FOODS WE LIKE

While spinach is plentiful can come with a few carrots and stalks or two of celery for each can. This combination is especially recommended for the children. An onion may be added for flavor. Start while the children are young to teach them to like and enjoy all foods.

Baked Spinach.—Wash two pounds of spinach and cook with the water that clings to the leaves. Drain when tender, chop and add two hard-cooked egg yolks well mashed, salt and pepper, dot with bits of butter or cubes of salt pork. Beat three eggs slightly, add four tablespoons of milk, three-fourths cupful of grated cheese, the chopped egg whites, one-fourth teaspoonful of mustard, a few dashes of paprika. Pour into a mold and bake until the custard is set. Serve hot.

Cucumbers With Sour Cream.—Those who enjoy a cucumber without crispness will like this dish: Slice the cucumbers after peeling and drop into salt water until wilted. Drain and drain dry on a cloth. Season with salt and pepper and serve with sour cream poured over them.

Stuffed Peppers.—Parboil shapely green peppers, cut off the stem ends and scoop out the seeds and white pith by paring. Fill the shells with seasoned crumbs, sausage or any chopped cold meat. If meat is not desired use nuts finely chopped. Bake until well done, basting with butter and water. Serve on toast.

Molded Salmon.—Take two cupfuls of cold boiled salmon or a can of salmon, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, one egg yolk, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, paprika and mustard to taste, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two-thirds of a cupful of milk, one-fourth cupful of vinegar, one tablespoonful of gelatin softened in one-fourth cupful of cold water. Mix the dry ingredients, add the butter and milk and vinegar. Cook in a double boiler, stirring until the mixture thickens. Add the gelatin, then the salmon, mix well and pour into molds. Serve on a bed of lettuce with any desired dressing.

Seasonable Dishes.—Those who cannot eat meat or are on a restricted diet will enjoy:

Nut Cutlets.—Take one cupful of crumbs, one-fourth cupful of finely chopped almonds or walnuts, a little onion or olives with salt and pepper to taste. Scald one cupful of milk with four tablespoonfuls of butter, add the bread crumbs and cook until thick. When cool add the nuts, a little minced parsley, shape into cutlets, fry in deep fat after rolling in egg and crumbs. Serve with tomato sauce.

Stuffed Onions.—Take a cupful or less of finely ground cooked ham, add to twice as much bread crumbs, season with salt and pepper and moisten with cream. Cook large onions until nearly cooked, scoop out the centers and fill with the above mixture. Place in a deep baking dish and bake with butter and water. A few minutes before serving dot the tops each with freshly buttered crumbs and brown well before serving. They may be broasted quickly by putting them under the gas flame for a few minutes.

Beefsteak à la Henriette.—Wipe a porterhouse steak, cut one and one-half inches in thickness. Broil eight minutes, turning frequently. Pour one-half of the following sauce on the platter, lay in it the steak, cover with the remaining sauce, garnish with parsley and grated horseradish.

Sauce Henriette.—Wash one-half cupful of butter and divide into three parts. Put one piece into a saucepan with the yolks of three eggs slightly beaten and mixed with one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice and one tablespoonful of water. Set the saucepan into a larger one of hot water, place over the fire and stir constantly until the butter is melted. Add a second piece of butter, and when well melted, the third; then add two tablespoonfuls of tomato puree, one of Worcestershire sauce and one-half of minced parsley, with salt and cayenne to season. The sauce to be properly made should be smooth and of the consistency of boiled custard. The tomato puree is prepared by cooking down a cupful of tomato until thick, then put through a sieve.

Post to Stock Lagoon

An offer of the Alonzo Cudworth post of the American Legion in Milwaukie, Ore., states the lagoon in Tumanu park there with ducks, has been accepted by the city park board.

DUCKS GAIN WELL WITH GOOD FEED

With good rations and proper methods of feeding, ducks will weigh six or seven pounds when they are twelve weeks old, according to the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y., which says that ducks should be fed four times a day for the first two weeks, and after that, three times a day.

When they are fed three times a day, the last feed at night should be large enough so that some will be left for them to eat during the night. This should not be so large, however, but that they will eat it all before feeding time the next morning.

A ration good for the first three days consists of 30 pounds of shredded wheat waste or meat scrap, 20 pounds of wheat bran, 10 pounds of corn meal, 9 pounds of meat scraps, 3 pounds of sand, and 9 pounds of condensed buttermilk.

From the third day to the end of the second week a ration consisting of 20 pounds of wheat bran, 10 pounds of corn meal, 4½ pounds of meat scrap, 3 pounds of sand, 3 pounds of buttermilk and 1½ pounds of alfalfa meal is recommended.

After the second week a ration of 50 pounds of wheat bran, 100 pounds of corn meal, 20 pounds of alfalfa meal, 20 pounds of meat scrap, 25 pounds of low-grade flour, and 2½ pounds of sand gives good results.

For the first two weeks, the ration should be mixed with buttermilk, but after that water may be used. The mixture should always be fed moist and enough flour should be added to make it hold together. A good rule to follow is to moisten it so that when a handful is squeezed together it will break into small lumps when dropped on the ground.

Pick Breeders in Late Summer From Yearlings

Vigor is the first thing to keep in mind in selecting breeding stock. The active hens, those up early and to bed late, are the best layers. Too many trap nests have been set during the past two or three years. It is not of much use to trap nest unless the pedigree hatching is followed. Good selection is better for most poultry men.

Select the breeders in late summer from the flock of yearlings. Pick out the good layers and dispose of the poor ones. The first indication is color of shanks. The yellow fades out first in the ear lobes after a hen begins to lay, then in the beak and last from the shanks. This is more noticeable in White Leghorns than in the American breeds. Hens with bright yellow shanks and beaks in August are poor layers.

The second point to go by is the molting. Throw out the early molters and keep those that molt late. The third indication of laying is the width between the pelvic bones. Thin and pliable bones indicate a good producer. Capacity is indicated by the distance between the pelvic and breast bones. In a heavy layer they may be three to four inches apart. The skin indicates quality the same as in a dairy cow.

Poultry Items

Give young chicks plenty of sunshine and green feed.

Fresh eggs won't stay fresh long. This is especially true of the fertile egg.

Getting rid of the surplus male birds early helps, as the pullets do better without them.

In selecting hens pick those that have capacity for feed. The little short, dumpy kind of a hen cannot consume enough feed to make her a profitable layer.

Fresh land used for poultry runs will reduce losses from internal parasites of the chicks.

If chickens eat a lot of feed and still do not lay, it is time to look at the ration and find out what is lacking.

Where there are too many male birds in the flock, there may be some injury to the hens, known as torn backs. Such birds are not sick, but only injured.

Growing chicks in close confinement is an efficient way to control intestinal parasites. Sanitation pays.

As We Grow Older

Proper Kidney Function Is More Than Ever Important.

As we grow older, there is apt to be a gradual slowing up of bodily functions. The kidneys are the blood filters. If their action becomes sluggish they do not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous wastes. This tends to make one tired and achy, with often a nagging backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness. A common symptom of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning excretions.

Elderly people recommend Doan's Pills. This tested diuretic is endorsed the country over. Ask your neighbor!

WOMEN CAN NOW DO MORE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Keeps Them Well

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught in a school, some did housework, some took up nursing. Today there are very few occupations not open to women. They work in factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also lawyers, dentists, executives and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the United States National Bank writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She says she got the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

Minnesota Now Has Longest Concrete Road

The longest continuous stretch of concrete roadway in the world has just been completed between White Bear and Duluth, Minn. This pavement passes through 29 towns and villages over its 137-mile length.

Paving construction on this thoroughfare, State Trunk Highway No. 1, was begun in 1923. Highway authorities point out that the completed highway will save a great deal of money through low maintenance costs. Maintenance costs for gravel surfacing on this highway have been as much as $3,000 a mile, state highway records show.

The Minnesota pavement is two miles longer than the concrete pavement extending from Olympia to Vancouver, Wash. The third longest length of concrete rural pavement reaches from Kansas City to a point west of Columbia, Mo., a distance of 125 miles.

Faith

The Mississippi flood disaster led Robert Sharp, president emeritus of Tulane University, to say at a reception in Biloxi:

"We had too much faith in our levees. Our faith in the weak levees was as boundless as the religious faith of the little girls."

Professor Sharp shook his head and smiled when he said:

"Is God watching me?" said the first little girl.

"Yes, He is," said the second.

"Is He watching me now?"

"Yes, He is!"

"Oh, dear! Can He see me when I'm in the bathtub?"

"Yes—but He doesn't look!"

Her Disappointment

"What's the matter, Blondie?" asked Heloise, head waitress of the rapid restaurant. "What's been coming off?"

"I was never so flustered in my life!" replied Blondie. "A fella came in just now and acted for all the world as if he was going to grab and kiss me. I says to him, just like this: 'Sister, you don't dare to kiss me!' and I had sized the dumbled up and acted right—he didn't! He had St. Vitus dance; that was what was the matter with him."

HOW TO PREPARE CHICKEN SALAD

Considered One of the Most Delicious of Dishes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Again she ordered chicken salad," runs the somewhat threadbare joke told about the girl who never knew what to ask for when she was entertained in a restaurant. She hadn't, however, have been embarrassed at her selection, for good chicken salad is one of the most delicious dishes ever put together. An accomplished chef, and choosing it merely indicated a discriminating taste. Many people, however, order chicken salad when away from home because they seldom have it on their own tables. It seems like an elaborate and difficult combination, and perhaps because it is frequently served at wedding and other receptions, account like too expensive a dish to set before the family.

As a matter of fact, chicken salad might be enjoyed much more often in our own homes if the housewife, fortified by a good recipe, realized also that about one-half of the bulk of the salad is made up of celery.

COTTON MATERIAL FOR STREET WEAR

Can Easily Be Laundered at Home and Does Not Fade.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The printed cotton material of which the dress in the illustration is made is soft in texture and smooth in finish. It can be laundered easily at home, it does not run or fade, and it is inexpensive. The trimming materials used are also washable. The bureau of home economics points out that the design of the fabric, a navy blue and white print, is sufficiently conservative for street wear, and the style chosen is suited to a medium sized or stout figure. White bias binding and a white lawn vest give a smart finish and emphasize the up and down lines of the dress. A wide flat band extends from the shoulder to the bottom of the skirt to give ample room for walking and sitting without increasing the apparent width of the skirt. An oval buckle finishes the belt and harmonizes with the large white pearl buttons and with the pattern of the material.

FRUIT JUICES WELL SUITED FOR VINEGAR

Making Vinegar at Home.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many fruit juices are well suited to vinegar making as they contain sugar in the proper proportion and other necessary or desirable substances, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Vinegar is the result of two distinct fermentation processes—an alcoholic fermentation followed by an acetic fermentation.

Apples are most commonly used in the United States, but vinegar of unexcelled quality can be made from grapes, and very acceptable vinegar is made from oranges, peaches, persimmons, pears, berries and watermelons. Vinegar made from red raspberries will retain indefinitely the odor and flavor of the fruit, which makes it desirable for flavoring foods and beverages.

Much Fruit Wasted.

Fruit enough to make all the year's supply of vinegar is wasted in many homes. Surplus or inferior grades of fruit not desired for immediate use or canned may often be turned into a useful product at a merely nominal cost. The best receptacles for making vinegar in the home are stone jars of three to six-gallon capacity. These should have straight sides and open tops and should be provided with covers. The juice only may be used; it can be extracted easily. The following method, which calls for peaches, may be used, with slight variations, for any fruit:

Ripe fruit is selected. Overripe fruit may be used if decayed portions are removed. Enough peaches are used to fill a 4-gallon jar about two-thirds full after they have been cut in two and crushed with a potato masher. The stones need not be removed. Mix a cake of compressed yeast with a small portion of the juice and add it to the mash. Cover the jar with a double layer of cheesecloth to keep out insects, and a cover to exclude light. Stir the mash daily. In four to six days alcoholic fermentation will be complete.

Strain and Separate.

The juice is then separated from the mash by straining it through a cheesecloth, or using a hand press at the last. Return the juice to the jar with a starter in the form of vinegar. Use one part of the vinegar to four parts of juice. Cover as before. Within a few days a thin coating of film will appear on the surface. This "mother of vinegar," which is composed entirely of acetic bacteria, is essential for a successful fermentation. Great care, therefore, should be taken not to cause it to fall by stirring or agitation.

Strength of Vinegar.

During the acetic fermentation frequent tests should be made to determine the increase in acidity. As soon as this has reached its maximum, the contents of the jar should be transferred to a clean bottle. Cotton flannel is a good material for filtering vinegar.

The strength of the vinegar can be determined roughly by tasting. When vinegar reaches a point where it is comparable in taste to that of a good strong vinegar, it may be regarded as complete. For accurate results a vinegar tester, in which the strength of the vinegar is determined by the volume of gas given off when bicarbonate of soda (baking soda) is treated with a measured quantity of the vinegar to be tested, should be used. Farmers' Bulletin 1424 on "Making Vinegar in the Home" and on the "Farm" gives a full description of this apparatus.

Bandits Change Bus Routes

Marauding Bedouin bandits are interrupting auto bus service across the Syrian desert. Reports that they were active near Damascus caused the proprietors of the Beirut-Hadramout line to detour to Palmyra. Heavy snow in the Lebanon mountains caused another shift to the Beirut-Tripoli-Homs-Palmyra-Tulath-Hadramout route, a much longer distance. With the melting of the snows the route will be changed again, but the Bedouins still keep the busses from direct travel between Damascus and Iraq. Many travelers fear to venture on the route.

No use waving that white flag!

Peterman's will get him

EVERY cockroach in thousands of homes has been exterminated by Peterman's this season.

You must have a powder for roaches. Peterman's Roach Food is the right powder. It enters cockroaches from their nests.

They get just a little on their legs. Back to their nests they go. From there, Peterman's Roach Food enters through apertures on can. ELYSON—Kills flies and mosquitos.

PETERMAN'S MOTE FOOD—protects against moths. You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

FACTS FOR FISHERMEN

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 25—Special—Game laws enacted by the last General Assembly protect through a length limit nearly every species of game fish in Indiana waters.

Laws also reduce the size from six to five inches on rock bass or goggle eye, and increased it from twelve to fifteen inches on wall-eyed pike and pickers, and to eleven inches on the two species of black bass.

Species formerly unprotected by a length limit were blue-gills, yellow perch, silver bass and red-eared sunfish. The legal length now is five inches on blue-gills; seven inches on yellow or ringed perch; ten inches on silver bass; and five inches on red-eared sunfish.

Some contention is manifest among fishermen that it was a mistake to place a size limit on yellow perch. In as much as many under seven inches are caught and badly injured. Returned to the water they die or become prey to turtle or other fish. Would it not be better, contented to, to keep these small fish?

If such were the case, says George N. Mansfield, superintendent of fisheries and game of the state conservation department who has yet to be convinced that most returned fish die, then it would be useless to enforce a size limit on any species. The purpose of the size limit law is to discourage taking undersized fish of any game species, and if fishermen would use larger hooks they would catch fewer undersized fish, Mansfield says.

The fish and game superintendent is of the further opinion that a bag limit has more protective value than a size limit, but both laws are necessary, especially on yellow perch, for the reason many small members of this species are used for bait in fishing for wall-eyed pike and pickers.

In years gone by yellow perch received little protection through law. It is the one species really abused. Any size hook is permissible and very often baby fish are caught. Naturally considerable damage results in returning this size to the water, whereas a little larger fish, properly handled, will not be injured. The remedy is to use a larger hook when fishing in perch-inhabited waters. This gives the baby fish opportunity to grow and spawn at least once in order natural reproduction take place.

The program will include some national known speakers, and it is the aim of the committee to make this educational as well as entertaining. Playland Park's $100,000.00 swimming pool has been secured for the casting tournament, and a list of elaborate prizes will be given for all classes of the contest. The Chicago Casting Club will send several members of their organization to give a exhibition of casting. Some of the outstanding casters of the country are members.

There will be a "Shore" dinner of sea foods, served at Playland Park, and dancing will be had in the pavilion for those who are not interested in the casting. There will be other outdoor events, and South Bend is anxious that every Waltonian and their friends set aside these three days for a real constructive and entertaining holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Blue and family of Ironwood, Michigan have returned to their home after spending sometime at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Blue and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tucker.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF IZAAK WALTON LEAGUE TO BE HELD AT SOUTH BEND
The Indiana State Division of the Izaak Walton League of America, will hold their annual convention at South Bend, October 13-14-15.

An elaborate program is being prepared, and special attention will be given to the entertainment of the ladies. South Bend being the home of the State president, L. G. Bradford, the 1100 local Waltonians are anxious to make this the biggest meeting ever held in the State. Iver Hennings is the general chairman, and he has drafted every member to do something to make the stay pleasant.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Sacco and Vanzetti Execution Marked by Many Riots by Radicals.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

EVERY means of saving their lives having failed, Sacco and Vanzetti, the Massachusetts anarchists convicted of murder, were executed in the state prison at Charlestown, Medford, the Portuguese murderer, went to his death in the electric chair at the same time. Thus, so far as the agencies of justice are concerned, ends this seven-year incident that has caused such a rumpus in America and throughout the world. But the radicals and sentimentalists who assert that the execution was a judicial murder propose to keep the case alive indefinitely. They announce plans for raising a fund to create a memorial to the two men and to endow Mrs. Sacco and her children, and an organization that will undertake to establish the innocence of the "victims" and to expose the alleged conspiracy that sent them to their death. The bodies of the men were cremated, and the ashes of Vanzetti, it is planned, will be exhibited in various European cities.

Immediately before and after the execution there were violent demonstrations in many cities here and abroad, though those in the United States were efficiently handled by the police. The radicals in Paris were especially active, staging several riots in which they fought the police and troops, barricaded streets and looted shops. Scores were injured and the property damage was large. The mob besieged the American embassy but it was adequately guarded. Leaders of the French Reds loudly proclaimed that the meeting of the American Legion in Paris would be ruined, but these threats are in the main disregarded. Other riots, carefully prepared in advance, were staged in London, Leipzig, Amsterdam, Lisbon, Warsaw, Brussels, and Geneva. In Johannesburg, South Africa, an American flag was burned on the steps of the town hall. Peaceful demonstrations were made in Berlin and Sydney.

It is probable that a vast majority of Americans, convinced that justice, though delayed, was done in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, are tired of reading about it.

PAUL R. REEDER started in the plane "Fort of Brunswick" from Brunswick, Ga., for a nonstop flight to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. If he makes the 4,000-mile trip successfully, he will have established a new record for nonstop flights.

HOPE of finding the five lost trans-Pacific aviators and their two would-be rescuers, Captain Edwin and A. H. Richmond, who went out in the plane Delta Spirit to aid in the search, was virtually abandoned, though the vessels of the navy may keep up the hunt for some time yet. The sea between San Francisco and Hawaii was scoured for any sign of the missing flyers but no trace was found. During the week there was a report that a flyer had been seen on the slopes of Mauna Kea and it was considered possible that either the plane carrying Pellar, Knoppe and Miss Doran or that carrying Frost and Scott had swung south of its course and crashed on the mountain. Therefore, searching parties were started out, but at this writing no word of their success has come. As for Edwin and Richmond, their location at the time they sent their SOS as they went into a tugboat is known approximately, and boats that were hurried there found not even an oil spot.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE spent the week in the Yellowstone National park, viewing its many wonders and thoroughly enjoying themselves despite the swarms of tourists that made the trip too much of a public event to suit the Chief Executive. Both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge tried the trout fishing on Lake Yellowstone, and both were eminently successful in hooking the speckled beauties.

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE HOOVER, returning to Washington, declined to comment on his reported Presidential candidacy. On his behalf it was stated that he was giving thought only to the duties of his office. His friends denied that he had authorized anyone to form an organization to campaign for delegates to the Republican national convention. He was specifically denied that W. Ward Smith, former secretary to Nathan L. Miller, former governor of New York and now counsel for the United States Steel corporation, was authorized to do anything in Mr. Hoover's behalf. Mr. Smith and Mr. Miller were both active in promoting a boom for Mr. Hoover for President at the time of the 1920 Republican convention.

Vice President Dawes, in a letter to Douglas T. Atkinson of Cincinnati, judge advocate of the Young America Union, secret nonsectarian political organization, relating to the possibility that he might run for President, said: "I am not a candidate for the nomination."

Minneapolis has notified the Republican national committee that it is a contender for the 1928 convention, and that it has a fine new auditorium and ample hotel accommodations. Whether or not Minneapolis is ready to make a financial guarantee was not indicated. San Francisco thus far is the only city which has come forward with the necessary $250,000 guarantee.

DURING Japanese naval maneuvers off the port of Matsura the cruiser Jintao collided with and sank the destroyer Warabi in the night. Ninety men and petty officers and 12 officers of the destroyer's company were drowned. About the same time the cruiser Ashi collided with the destroyer Ashi, cutting through her afterpart, which resulted in the loss of 27 other men. The Ashi was seriously damaged and proceeded to port after temporary repairs, but the Ashi was towed in.

This was the second disaster in the Japanese navy in August. On the first day of the month 38 men were killed and 47 wounded when a mine exploded on the deck of the battleship Takachiho. The explosion occurred while the vessel was engaged in maneuvers off Kishinoue Island.

ACCORDING to the Washington Post, the State department has learned from trustworthy sources that Great Britain and Japan came to a mutually satisfactory secret understanding regarding future naval supremacy when it finally became apparent the United States would not accept the British program at the recent Geneva conference. The gist of the secret understanding has not been divulged, the newspaper adds, declaring that it is doubtful if much definite information on its contents is available to the officials of the American government.

MAYOR "JIMMY" WALKER of New York, touring European countries, was something of a joke in Germany, but when he reached Berlin to fly to the German republic flag alongside the American flag when a banquet was given him, as he had requested. The owners and managers of all the big hotels had promised the American club that they would show the flag of the German republic and then reneged because they feared their established clientele, made up largely of monarchists, would object. The city administration immediately declared that all officials must boycott those hotels, and republicans throughout the country took up the issue.

CHARLES CHAPLIN's divorce case is ended, so far as the film comedian is concerned. After the long months of bickering and recrimination, an agreement was reached and Mrs. Chaplin was granted a divorce decree and the custody of the children. The grounds were "mental cruelty," and Chaplin put on no defense, though four of his attorneys addressed the court in his behalf, for the apparent purpose of winning public sympathy. Chaplin agreed to pay to his wife $25,000, and to establish a trust fund of $200,000 for the children, the principal to go to them when the youngest is thirty-five years old. W. I. Gilbert and Hermann Spitzel, receivers who handled the property of Chaplin and defendant movie corporations during the divorce negotiations presented a bill for services to the court and were awarded $45,000. Counsel for both Chaplins protested and Lita's lawyers obtained a 15-day stay on the order for payment of fees.

REUNIFICATION of the Hankow and Nanking factions of the Chinese Nationalists was announced by the bureau of foreign affairs in Shanghai in a statement which said: "While the details have not been worked out, the unification of the two factions is now a certainty." It was also announced that T. V. Soong, considered one of the best financiers in China, probably would be finance minister of the Nationalist government. That gentleman told the press it was likely the Nationalist tariff autonomy would be modified in order not to disrupt business but that the principle would not be surrendered. The Nationalists are retrenching on military expenses and concentrating their troops south of Yangtze, and presumably will leave the northern campaign in the hands of Gen. Feng Yu-shiang.

MEXICO has a hard time handling her bandits. Just after Gen. Manuel Reyes, leader of the gang that kidnaped and murdered Jacobo Leon, Mexican millionaire, had been executed, another band of several hundred men attacked a train between Guadalajara and Mazatlan and fired more than 40 shots into the cars because the engineer refused to stop. Miss Florence M. Anderson of Los Angeles, a school teacher, was wounded and died a few days later. J. Winsor Lewis, American vice consul at Mazatlan, made vigorous demands upon the Mexican government for the capture and punishment of the bandits. Reports reached Nogales, Ariz., of a Yaqui rebel concentration in the Sierra de las Banderas mountains of Sonora and of three towns in southern Jalisco, Mexico, being captured by revolutionary bands. The Yaquis were reported to have committed depredations within sight of El Palmar, railroad division point. Buenos Aires, Matanzas and Concepcion were occupied by the rebels in Jalisco.

CARDINAL RIEG Y CASANOVA, archbishop of Toledo and primate of Spain, died in Toledo after a lingering illness. The cardinal, one of the greatest prelates of the Catholic church, attended the Eucharistic congress in Chicago last year and made many friends in America. He liked the United States, and lauded its youth.

Murray Roe, son of E. P. Roe, the once-popular novelist, and himself a famous engineer and a social figure in New York, was found dead in Central park, New York. Years ago, after his wife divorced him, Roe went to South America, where he lost both his health and a fortune of about $100,000. Since his return in 1913 he had been employed in a theater.

Other deaths worthy of mention were those of Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield Zoller of Chicago, one of the most noted pianists in the world, and of Zaghlul Pasha, former premier of Egypt and leader of the Egyptian Nationalists.

IN MISSISSIPPI's second primary election for the Democratic gubernatorial election incomplete returns indicated Theodore G. Bilbo had defeated Murphree by something like 10,000 votes. Of course the nomination is equivalent to election. "I am the happiest man in the state of Mississippi," Mr. Bilbo said. "In all my experience in politics this is the greatest victory I have ever won because of the great odds against me."

INFORMATION has been received by Acting Secretary of the Navy Robinson that American marines in Nicaragua, acting with the constabulary, killed two more bandits in an engagement near Jicara.

VELVET HATS REIGN IN FALL; LEATHER COAT FOR MOTORING

HAVE you ever felt the urge to own a hat that you could pull on your head in any sort of a way and have it becoming? Well, many of the little new crushable velvet shapes, so smart for early autumn wear, are just that way—the sort one can just slapping on the head and feel that it is all right.

And here is just such a hat arrived from the atelier of Madame Agnes, the well-known Parisian creator, North, East, West, South, coming or going. It is all the same to this little hat. It can be worn with delectable with fall style exhibits vying with each other as to which can display the more beautiful apparel. One has the satisfaction, too, of knowing that clothes bought now will be timely even after return from the vacation jaunt.

Of course no up-to-date woman is going to be contented to start on a self with one of the new stunning leather coats which are so enlivening to the autumn landscape. They're thrilling when it comes to "looks" and as to service, well, every one will smartness and ease, any way you put it. See for yourself, for the picture shows it below in this group worn in three different ways.

Your mood changes, you want a different bonnet? Very well, you simply turn it around to please. Being fashioned half-in-half of Yale and gold velvet this works out beautifully. By the way, colors are used so often this season in two and more tones of the same. Dark gray with silver, browns of varying degree, and the smartest combination at the moment is beige with black. Beige is immensely popular for fall.

But to continue about this accommodating little hat, if the vagabond spirit gets you, put one of its cute brims down to the crown and you have the crown as shown in the lower left corner of this group.

Change your mood—around the hat goes with the wider part of the brim turned up, and you have an exceedingly smart looking cloche with the crown, folded slightly down the back, fitting the head snugly, the dark-toned velvet to the face, as shown to the right.

Another mood—you want a different far-seeing eye to practically should own a leather coat.

The imported models are very alluring. They have that indefinable something in lines of detail and coloring which proclaim their foreign origin, and the higher-grade shops all carry them. The original of the one in the picture is a marvel of fine coloring, being of violet leather trimmed with snakeskin. It is topped with a hat of leather in the same tone.

However, blacks, browns, wine shades and greens prevail both in foreign and domestic models. These coats are in the main confined to regulation straight smart lines with patch pockets, belts and with wool linings in sports effects. Copies of imported models are very attractively priced.

So much the motorist must covet. As to the hiker, the skater and every outdoor enthusiast who must have freedom of limbs, the short leather types are of greater appeal. Linings in these are sometimes wool and sometimes satin, according to their price. Now that the football season is high, leather coats are taking on an irresistible lure for college girl and debutante, and you may be sure that

A REASONABLE TIME

A boss carpenter at the state prison in Charleston, S. C., had the assistance of a trusty on one of his jobs. At noon the piece of work was not quite completed, so the carpenter left for lunch, remarking to his helper: "We'll have to finish that up later. You'll be here when I come back, won't you?"

"Yes," replied the inmate, "I'll be back inside of 20 years."

COULDN'T BE SEEN

Sis—When Mr. Jones calls this evening, remember that little boys should be seen and not heard.

Robbie—How can I be seen when you two sit in the dark all evening?

Strikes

The clock struck five.

The fans fled out.

For the last man up.

Had just struck out.

The Other Half

The grocer said—I've got just one peck of the finest peas, madam, already shelled.

Customer—I'll take half a peck.

The grocer divided the peck of peas.

Customer—Is that half?

Grocer—Yes.

Customer—I'll take the other half.

Hit-Bits, London.

The Hero

Governor—Why do you think I should pardon your client from the penitentiary?

Lawyer—I can prove that on April 1 of this year he had a good chance to purloin an iron bar from the prison machine shop and hit the warden over the head with it, and he didn't do it!

Flying Wrong Plane

"Maybe we oughtn't to have let this aviation get so big a start on us," said Senator Sorghum.

"What's the objection to it?"

"It makes heroes too suddenly. A flier thinks he's a flight of oratory and no figure whatever."—Washington Star.

ONLY GOOD IN SPOTS

Dealer—So you don't like this beautiful leopard-skin rug?

Customer—No, it seems to me to be good only in spots.

When a Feller Needs a Friend

Of all sad words

A man to jar:

"Nobody's note

Due on your ear."

Close Harmony

Hotel Manager—Hey! Wake up your saxophone player! He's sitting there asleep!

Orchestra Leader—Shh! You see he snore, and makes better music when he's asleep than when he's awake.

A Little Foolish

"Don't you think he's crazy, getting engaged?"

"No, not crazy—just sentimentally defective."—Everybody's Weekly.

What He Needed

Doctor—You are in bad shape and you must take a vacation.

Patient—But, doctor, I'm in the midst of my vacation now.

One at a Time

Wife—Are you very tired tonight, dear?

Husband—Not very. Why?

Wife—Well, if you aren't, I thought would be.

THE LEADING CHARACTERS:—

EDISON FORBES, a young resident of Scottdale, goes on a little joy ride with another young fellow whose humor is consumed. They are stopped suddenly by the sight of a horse truck driven by SCOTTS LIBBEY, a worthless character, who has smashed his machine into another car, killing its lone occupant a woman. Forbes' companion and Libbey quit the scene hurriedly, leaving the former alone to face a constable who reasons that Eddie, with the scent of whiskey about him, must be connected in some way with the accident. Accordingly Forbes is arrested.

Out on bail, Eddie keeps from his wife the name of the person he was with. Forbes does this to shield the younger fellow who would be ruined if the truth were learned. Instead Eddie bears the brunt of the circumstantial evidence and at his trial is declared guilty and sentenced to prison for a long term of years. At the jail one of the authorities approaches and introduces himself.

CHAPTER V.

"Mr. Warden Courtney," announced the newcomer, "You're to go up to Lansing right away. The governor wants to see you."

Edison looked at him, uncomprehendingly. "The governor?" he stammered. "Who—why?"

"The warden smiled. 'He'll tell you when you get there. If you hurry you can catch the next inter-urban limited.' There's one due in 10 minutes."

"But—" Edison looked about uncertainly.

"No officer; you go alone." Still smiling, the warden shook hands with him. "Good luck." The hand-clasp propelled Edison toward the door. "You know where the station is? All right; better step lively."

He caught the car. He did not know what to think. In fact, the waves of emotion which had passed over him made clear thinking impossible. He dared not hope, but the car wheels clicked endlessly: "The governor, the governor, the governor—" and it seemed a song of hope.

When he reached Lansing he found that Governor Albright was expecting him. When he gave his name to the attendant in the executive suite, he was ushered at once to the private office. "Well, Forbes," greeted the governor, as they shook hands, "how many kinds of a fool have you been making of yourself?"

He was a big man, whose face was hard to estimate and whose hair was of a certain shade which defied the coming of gray. Edison started at the beginning and told him the whole story, withholding only the name of his companion.

"So you took a chance on prison, to protect this fellow who was with you?" queried the governor, when he had finished.

Eddie nodded. "But I don't know that I would have done it," he confessed frankly. "If I'd thought they'd convict, it didn't seem possible they could do that on the evidence."

"Anyway, you did," returned the governor. "The world calls you a chump for that. But somehow, my boy, I'm for you. There's too much thinking of ourselves and too little thinking of the other fellow in the world today."

"I suppose you're surprised at my sending for you. Fact is, Edison, we should know each other. Did you ever hear that your father was one of my best friends 40 years ago?"

"He mentioned you sometimes before he died, sir."

"Well, I brought you here on his account. When we were both young, we worked in the lumber woods together. It was he who gave me my start. He came into a little money about the time I had a chance to buy a block of pine. He let me have it. In a couple of years I cleared up a mighty comfortable state. There was no stopping me after that."

"Of course I paid him back long ago. But I've always had a war against Joe Forbes. For Joe Forbes, if it hadn't been for him, the chances are about fifty to one I'd never been governor of Michigan."

"That's why I sent for you, Edison. I feel I owe him something. I kept an eye on you case, I couldn't interfere until you'd had your trial. When I heard you'd been convicted I telephoned the warden to send you down. Boy, I've pardoned you."

"Pardoned me—pardoned?" gulped Edison.

"Yes," said the evidence pretty freely. "I came to the conclusion you were telling the truth. I was far enough away from Scottdale not to be blinded by prejudice, and local issues. So you're a free man."

Edison sat motionless, herit of his power of speech. "Not cause the long-hairs will rant about my turning you loose?" went on the governor, with a good-natured smile. "But I'm through with this term. I should worry what they say, when my conscience tells me I've done right. Now Edison—"

"Yes sir."

"There's one thing I want you to promise me. You know, your father was a fine man and a clever man. He would have gone a long way if it hadn't been for—"

"Know, Governor, Hooray."

"That's right, boy. It looks as though you've started the same way. There's nothing in it; never has been and now less than ever. I wish you'd promise me, Edison—not to quit drinking, because that may be beyond your strength, but to try to quit drinking."

"Oh, Governor, I promise to quit now, forever!" breathed Edison.

The governor clapped him on the shoulder. "All right, lad; that's me. You see, it sort of puts us in the line of the long-hairs right if you fall down on me. I'd like to turn the laugh against 'em. Now run along to that little wife of yours."

In the train ride from the capital to Scottdale Edison came as near to true happiness as at any time in his life. The fate which he had faced and so narrowly escaped had toned down the riotousness of his joy. The tornado of emotion which had carried him breathlessly to the depths of misery through the uncertainty of the journey to the governor's office and through much of the interview that followed had left him somewhat exhausted.

So he was in a condition of delightful languor, swathed in the ineffable thought that he was a free man—free to start over again, free to take up life again with Patsy Jane. Prison doors did not open blackly behind him. They had closed forever.

"That's as near as I want to get," he said to himself, with a shudder. "That's what booze did for me. I'll never take another drink!" But even as he reiterated the pledge anxiously he was conscious of a lack of a void at his nerve centres which a good stiff drink would plug up effectively.

CHAPTER VI A Change of Scene

Scottdale hummed like a swarm of angry bees over the governor's pardon. The community had never been for Albright. In all his campaigns it had voted for his opposition, professing church-goers who singled out the liquor law in their speeches as the one they would enforce most rigorously. This applied to Scottdale which further more, disapproved of Richard Albright because he was known as a "liberal."

Judge Persons issued a public statement in which he declared that the governor's action was a "gross abuse of power," and made the Forbes case a "travesty of justice."

To Edison and his wife the town had become a found work of some kind, and forced to revise its estimate. But the game was not worth the candle. He knew something of the inert vindictiveness toward the Forbes of which small communities are capable. It might be years before he could fight back to graded position again. These would be years of loneliness and ostracism.

"It isn't worth it, Eddie," agreed Patsy Jane, soberly when, the first rapture of reunion over, they discussed the future. "Any boy that was born here and tries to be somebody is under a handicap. They can't someone who comes from away. No, admit he can possibly be as good as we'll go. But where?"

"I've thought of that," replied Eddie eagerly. "Don't you remember dad had some cutover pine lands near Long Portage? Let's go up there. The land isn't much good if I suppose. But there's a house on the place anyway there was three years ago when I went fishing on Portage creek."

"It's wonderful up there in the summer. We can make the land support us. If you'd care to go so far from civilization and rough it, Patsy Jane," he concluded, wistfully.

"Why of course I would, Eddie," she returned promptly. "I'd love it! If the land won't support us, why there are opportunities there just the same as there are here. It's that or a big city. And I hate big cities."

"So do I," he rejoined, his face clearing magically. "I'm crazy to give the wilderness a trial. We'll buy a secondhand bus and some camping stuff and start."

It was nearly noon of the third day when surmounting a considerable ridge, they saw the roof of the log cabin. Patsy Jane greeted it with a triumphant chirrup. The journey had been a pleasant one. They had left behind the prosperous section of the state with its paved roads, with the first day. Concrete had been replaced by gravel, which in turn yielded to dirt turpines.

These made way for sandy tracks which, mingled with apparent aimlessness through the jack-pine country. Spring was appreciably more tardy as they penetrated northward. The nights were chilly but the days were fine and sunshiny.

The Forbes hundred and sixty acres, which made east of the village of Long Portage. They had stopped in the woods town for provisions and other supplies. It boasted a railroad division headquarters a sawmill, and little else.

The log house, much to Eddie's surprise and satisfaction, was found to be in fairly good condition. The roof was whole. Apparently, deer-hunters had used the place the previous autumn as a camp. There was a rusty but serviceable stove which he did not recall as having been there previously. In the kitchen.

The kitchen was a lean-to adjoining the main building. The bigger structure was divided into a combination living-room and dining-room, and a bedroom considerably smaller. The living-room had chairs and a table of a sort, and there were bunks nailed to the log walls on two sides. "Why, we can stay here tonight," Pat," he announced gleefully. "It won't be much of a job to clean up. Wonder if the pump's all right?"

A few strokes of the handle of the iron "pitcher" pump near the back door brought up an abundance of clear cold water. "We're sitting pretty," he declared. "Let's have lunch. I'm crazy to tear in and make this place into something."

In mid-afternoon, as they scrubbing and furnishing happily, they had a visitor. He had walked to the cabin over the rolling jack-pine wastes. "Good day to you," he began. "I saw the smoke from your chimney. My name is Ishah Seal-sealman. My hand adjoins part of your quartersection on the west."

"How do you do?" greeted Eddie, taking the proffered hand. "I am Edison Forbes. This is my wife." Sealman, somehow the name fitted him admirably, Eddie thought. He was as sleek as a seal which had just emerged from the water. He had smooth brown hair, worn long, but kept in excellent order. He had a full though sloping forehead, and a large, high-bridged nose. The lower part of his face was covered by a beard several shades lighter than his hair. It was also sleek and well kept. The man was large, inclined to stoutness and with an air of being above the rough frontier clothing which he wore.

"Here for a summer, outing, I suppose?" persuaded Sealman, as he looked about with large, shrewd blue eyes.

"Here for good," returned Eddie, smiling frankly. "I own this place, you know. We thought we'd give the north a trial."

Sealman shot him a quick glance. "I had heard that people named Forbes owned it," he said, slowly. "But I thought you'd abandoned it. The taxes—"

"By Jove, that's so!" interrupted Eddie, frowning thoughtfully. "I've neglected the taxes for some time. I must go downtown tomorrow and see about them."

"You intend to farm, Mr. Forbes?"

"To tell the truth, I don't know," returned Eddie. "We haven't had time to look around and decide. I don't suppose much of this land is good. I haven't any implements or horses—"

Sealman nodded agreement. "The land isn't much good. It goes in streaks up here. In the jack-pine country. There's an occasional belt of good land and then a belt of white sand. That won't raise regweed. Your's except along Portage, is mostly sand. It's all right to spend a vacation on, though it's pretty lonesome even in summer. I'm afraid you'll be pulling up stakes again pretty soon."

Eddie had a good, sizeable jaw. He thrust it forward unconsciously as he answered: "Oh, no we won't. We've decided to locate in the south end part of the state. We haven't seen much of our land, but we like what we've seen. I don't think it's lonesome here—He looked doubtfully at Patsy Jane."

"Neither do I," she supplemented, spiritfully. "I want to stay here. I love it! If the farm won't support us, my husband can find something to do. I'm sure. We don't need much."

Sealman considered without speaking for a time. He spoke slowly: "Well, if that's the way you feel about it I might be able to use you. I'm raising a good deal of stuff lately. They're taken to feeding sheep and cattle on these barrens. Most of my land's under cultivation. I need a hand—" he stopped. "I tell you, come over after you've seen about your taxes and made up your mind fully whether you're going to stay."
