

CAN ASPARAGUS BY "HOT PACK" METHOD

Sterilization Is More Certain and Product Better.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Use the steam-pressure canner for canning asparagus at home. The United States Department of Agriculture for all vegetables and most fruits is known as the "hot pack." The point about the "hot pack" method is that the material to be canned is heated to the boiling point or cooked in a short time before being put into the can or jars, so that in the shortest possible time the temperature of the whole jar is raised to the required point. This results in more certain sterilization and a better product because of shorter cooking.

Like all other garden products asparagus ought to be canned as quickly as possible after it has been cut. It is wise to do a little canning frequently while the season lasts rather than to attempt a large amount at any one time.

If you wish to can the asparagus whole, wash it carefully, and cut it in uniform bundles, cut to fit the canners, either glass jars or tin cans. Place the bundles in a steamer with boiling water over the touch lower bottom. Cover tightly and boil for four or five minutes. Pack rapidly into hot containers. The asparagus may, if you like, be cut up into half-inch lengths for canning. In this case cover with boiling water, bring to a boil and then pack hot into the containers. Which ever way you prepare the asparagus, the containers are completely filled up with boiling water, and each jar is sealed in the proportion of one teaspoonful of salt to each quart canned.

The hot-packed jars or cans are sealed at once, put into the hot water, and processed for 40 minutes at 10 pounds pressure, or 240 degrees Fahrenheit. After processing for the required length of time, remove the containers from the canner. Invert glass jars and place them out of drafts. Cool tin cans by plunging them in cold water. Keep all canned products under observation at room temperature for at least a week. Discard any showing signs of spoilage and watch others of the same lot until it is certain that they are keeping.

Farmers' Bulletin 1471-F, "Canning Fruits and Vegetables at Home," will be helpful to you throughout the canning season. It is free while the supply lasts.

Care of Leather Coverings

Leather furniture coverings look better and last longer if they're rubbed occasionally with castor oil. This restores to the leather the oil that gradually dries out. The oil should be well rubbed in and any excess wiped off the surface, or it will collect and hold dirt which will darken the leather, and soil whatever touches it.

CREAM CHEESE FOR SALADS IS EXCELLENT

Cheese Accessories for Salads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
From the dietary standpoint, neufchatel and cream cheese are valuable for protein, fat, phosphorus and calcium. Since the American diet is likely to run low in calcium, it is well to keep in mind that all cheeses are a good source of that much-needed mineral.

Neufchatel and cream cheeses are suitable in any course of a meal. They may be part of the appetizer at the beginning of a dinner or, as the dessert, at the end, and in any course between. The illustration, which was made by the United States Department of Agriculture, shows some of the ways cream or neufchatel cheese may be

USING BACON FOR FLAVOR AND FOOD

Is Useful in Making Sandwiches for Luncheon.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The housekeeper who wishes to feed her family well at small cost should look into the possibility of utilizing bacon in more ways than hitherto. For example, in many families the school children, and often older members of the household, carry sandwiches. Bacon can be put in these sandwiches, either by itself or in combination with other meat, lettuce and salad dressing, such as one finds in a club sandwich. Either bread or toast may be used.

When time is short, plain bacon sandwiches consisting of bread and two or three slices of crisp cooked bacon can be put together in a very few minutes. Bacon sandwiches, if cut doors can be made wherever one's picnic party happens to be. The bacon can be toasted over a fire in the woods, each person cooking his own slice with the aid of a forked stick; and either because of the jollity of the occasion, or the good flavor of the bacon, or the special taste given by the wood fire, the sandwiches will seem to be the best one has ever eaten. This addition of lettuce, with or without salad dressing, is an improvement for many persons.

Sliced onion or pickle in a bacon sandwich gives an acceptable flavor. Various kinds of "club" sandwiches are made, all of them including bacon as one of the chief ingredients. A chicken club sandwich is commonly made with three pieces of toasted bread as a basis, and between these, two fillings consisting of lettuce, bacon, tomato, and sliced chicken, with salad dressing. Veal or other cold meat makes a palatable filling to a club sandwich. These sandwiches are bulky and are intended to be served on a plate and eaten with a knife and fork. They constitute the main dish for a luncheon or supper, but as they are ordinarily made with toast they are not so suitable for picking in a lunch box to be eaten several hours later.

Bacon and cottage cheese combine well in sandwiches either of plain bread or toast. Eggs and bacon can be made as acceptable in sandwiches when served together for breakfast. The egg may be scrambled and mixed during cooking with the bacon cut up in small pieces, or it may be hard-boiled, sliced, and mixed with the bacon when being put into the sandwiches. Liver and bacon sandwiches are made by chopping the liver to a paste, seasoning it with salt, pepper, and small pieces of bacon, and mixing the mixture as a sandwich filling. Bacon may be added to give zest to any cold meat used in sandwiches. If the sandwich can be served while the bacon is hot, the result is particularly good. A little salad dressing is needed on the meat. Lettuce, watercress, celery or tomato may be added, balancing the result similar to a club sandwich except that bread is used instead of toast.

Bacon can be cooked and served with greens and beans, and used to garnish and give flavor to many vegetable, poultry and meat dishes. A small piece makes any soup tastier. Bacon and eggs, scrambled or fried, is hearty enough for a dinner dish occasionally. By using bacon frequently the housewife can greatly to the flavor and interest of the food she serves.

Frying bacon so that it is thoroughly delicious and crisp is chiefly a matter of getting the fat and excess fat out of it, says the United States Department of Agriculture. In order not to burn it, one should be very careful that neither the fat nor the fat in the pan becomes overheated. Throughout the process the fat should be kept in brown color and should not be allowed to get dark brown. It is easier therefore to cook it slowly than to cook it fast.

To be crisp, bacon does not need to be fried in deep fat with excellent results.

SCHOOL DAYS

Mother's Cook Book

Look to your health, and if you have it, praise God and value it next to a good conscience for health is a second blessing that mortals are capable of, a blessing that money cannot buy.—Isaac Walton.

WORK AND PLAY

THE one who said "that housewife was powerful constant" knew what he was talking about, for it is the work that greets you with the rising sun and does not cease at the going down of the same.

As the most valuable and least regarded of all possessions is good health, and the strength which goes with it, the wise housewife will choose which are the really, or worth while things that must be attended to, letting the others take their turn in being done, as to the most important.

With the multiplicity of duties which are the reality of a housewife, and over 80 per cent of us are doing our own housework without the aid of a maid, and a large per cent without even a laundress, the saving of strength is a large item to the house mother who is so invaluable in the home.

She who can use the energy she would spend on scrubbing a floor, in studying the problem of keeping within the family budget and serving wholesome, attractive meals, not only helps herself, but improves her home. Unfortunately floors must be cleaned, but a well and carefully mopped floor can be cleaned in half the time it takes to scrub it, and a floor can be very much soiled before the neighbors will notice it.

The woman who wastes her energy doing things because she has always done them, or it was the way her mother did them, needs some lessons in loyalty to her family, for times have changed, and none of us wish to fall behind in the march of progress.

A schedule is a valuable aid in work, but no schedule can be followed in any iron-clad way. Circumstances may arise, never get so tied up in a system that you cannot put your rising bread in the tea chest or cellar, or leave the dishes in the sink, in case of an important duty.

We all know capable and fine women who do certain things on certain days, though the heavens fall. They are a woman leave her work to take an hour or two in the open air or the house, if invited for a ride? More than likely it is for she must finish the ironing or clean the silver.

In many homes the mother says it is much easier to do the work herself than to try to teach the bungling little ones who love to work. It is not fair to them nor to herself not to let them share in the household tasks. The tiny two-year-old can be taught and will love to do it. Many little savers, like putting away their toys and hanging up their own wraps. This training will help them all through life in many ways, giving them orderly minds and trained hands.

GIRL GAGS

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE PLEASANT WAY

IF YOU are given to serious reflections, seeking through them to get at the basic principles which have so much to do with the shaping of our destinies, the making of our joys and sorrows, you will find when you delve deeply into these things that the power of choosing is all your own.

It is your privilege to do as you may please, to select your own course and follow without interference from others the bent of your inclinations.

It is for you to assume the responsibility and accept the reward or punishment which is sure to follow. The very indifference and abandonment with which most of us go about this world of ours is often pathetic. We seem unconscious of the gravity of our position, giving it but a fleeting thought when we are apt to forget in the momentary impulse of emotion, and instead of moving in the future, pleasant way, we make deliberate decisions through fields of thorns and rocks, where we are scratched and bruised, and come up scowling on the side where the road is frowning and forked.

As we view the prospect, there rushes into our hearts an uncontrollable sense of bitterness, a sort of blind, angry, all mankind, including our dearest and most intimate friends, but seldom a thought do we have of condemning ourselves.

We do not at such time to antagonize, rather than to conciliate, not caring a whit whether we make friends or enemies. And in this obstinate attitude of mind, we beat around the bush like mad beasts, instead of souls invested with the divine spark and power to think and reason.

It is this obdurate spirit which is retarding the world in progress, enmeshing us in selfishness, putting the torch of war to inflammable passions, and making us of faith, without which neither nation nor individual can long endure in peace.

By an overt act or two, goodly fellows can be broken forever, yet how many of us think of this until we are left destitute and in our destitution we comprehend the result of a making, bestriding a castle moat, when we stubbornly turned our backs upon the pleasant way and blindly chose the opposite.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"CARRYING COALS TO NEW CASTLE."

TO GIVE a hint to a milliner, to carry flowers to a garden or salt to the sea, to give anyone something of which he is already in a goodly supply, is described as "carrying coals to Newcastle."

This phrase, so popularly used in common parlance today, goes to England for its origin. The reference is to the city of Newcastle-Upon-Tyne, the great coal center of the Northumbrian and Durham regions. It received its name in the Eleventh century from the fact that Robert, eldest son of William the Conqueror, began, in 1077 or 1080, to build a castle there. And located in the center of a district rich in coal it became famous early in its history as a great coal-distributing center. Hence, "Carrying coals to Newcastle."

Make Your Dreams Come True

By SYDNEY J. BURGOWNE

I WOULDN'T give two cents for the man who didn't have a "DREAM." A vision toward which to work and plan. And not to drift with the stream.

But it isn't enough to dream, and sit just planning—there's work to do. And you've got to pitch in and tackle it. To make that dream come true.

Or while you are dreaming, the other chap is going to sail in and win. And write his name all over the map. That you had the chance to begin.

It's easier—sure!—to sit around and simply dream away. The days and years—but I've never found Any joy in the easiest way.

So roll up your sleeves with a smile and say: "Here's right where I start in To make my own dream true TODAY, And I'll be the one to win!"

So DREAM—by all means—but then go out And hustle the whole day through, And then there won't be the slightest doubt About making your dreams come true.

So here's to the man who buckles in With vigor, and who succeeds In being happy and able to grin— As he turns his "dream" to DEEDS! (Copyright.)

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

By JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Sir John Martin Harvey Had a Hard Time With Sir Henry Irving.

"AT TWENTY-ONE I was with Sir Henry Irving, with whom I remained for fourteen years. He taught me all I know, and looking back upon the path I have traveled I realize how stupid I must have been in my early days. I remember my pride when I was selected for the part of the attendant in 'Much Ado About Nothing' the first play I appeared in at the Lyceum. I had no words to speak but I determined that I would impress Sir Henry in particular and the public in general, with the attire of that messenger.

"At that time I prided myself upon my taste in clothes. I had become a sort of incipient Beau Brummel. I went out and bought a feather. It was a wonderful feather—a dream of youthfulness. I went further. Mustaches had a certain fascination for me so I painted on my upper lip what to my mind was a beautiful mustache.

"Alas for the dreams of youth! No sooner did Sir Henry catch sight of me than he pointed a long, lean forefinger and with that dreadful preliminary, 'Ha—hem!' of his, growled, 'Take out that boy! I fear I must have offended his artistic eye, as I slightly out of place, he rapped out, 'Don't stand there—get back—back. You are like a cabbage in the foreground of a beautiful landscape—Martin Harvey.'

TODAY—Martin Harvey has reached a position where he can look back with amusement upon these early gaffes of his elders. He is one of the most distinguished actors in the world and has received the honor of knighthood from King George.

Sir John recently toured this country, where he introduced his striking production of the Greek tragedy, 'Oedipus Rex.'

CULLING YOUNG CHICKEN FLOCK

In purchasing baby chicks it is well to order a good many more than you have any intention of carrying through the whole summer.

Chicks grow rapidly and at little cost, and there is a ready sale for them at the weight of two to four and a half pounds.

When the cockerels reach a weight of two pounds it is ordinarily considered that it is time to sell them. Any additional weight which they put on costs more. Furthermore, the market for them declines after early summer so that the longer you keep them the less they are worth per pound.

After the flock of chicks is a few weeks old you can tell if there are three or four of them not worth keeping. Look them over and if there are a few "crows" which very evidently can never amount to anything, get them out of the way. By remaining in the flock half sick and half well they may infect a large number of others and do a great deal of harm.

Make it a practice to look over the flock every few days and you are acquainted with the chicks and can tell which ones are growing best, so that you can decide which ones you want to keep.

Early in the summer, at least by the time the flock averages two pounds, separate the cockerels and the pullets and transfer them to the cockerels to market or can them.

Then go through the pullet flock and divide them into two lots. Those that are distinct inferior ones will go along with the cockerels, and those that are fine and growthy and show quality can then receive the best of attention and feed so that they will grow every hour of the day toward full maturity, and be ready to lay plenty of eggs by the time snow flies.

Poor Economy to Cease Feeding Mash in Summer

"It is poor economy to quit feeding mash to the hens in summer," says Prof. C. W. Currier of Purdue University. "Such a practice is likely to throw the whole flock into a molt and cause egg production to stop."

Many people have a notion that hens can pick up enough bugs and worms from the range during the summer to supply their needs. Records from farm poultry flocks have shown, however, that the range cannot be depended upon to supply sufficient feed for a satisfactory egg production.

One of the principle necessities for high egg production is protein in the ration. This can be supplied satisfactorily by feeding a suitable mash. The grain supplies some protein but it is not of suitable quality or sufficient quantity to give a high summer egg yield. When animal feeds such as meat scraps, tankage and milk are included in the mash, minerals as well as protein are provided. These minerals are essential for egg production and are not supplied adequately in grains and grain products.

Determine Exactly How Many Eggs Each Hen Lays

A good nest provides the one accurate method of determining exactly how many eggs a hen has laid in one year. There is no short cut or way to figure from past year's trap-record record what the total for the year will be, nor to call carefully enough to estimate what it has been.

The highest type of breeding for egg production may be secured only by trapping every breeder throughout every day of her first laying year and every day throughout the breeding season, as long as she is kept. In addition, both male and female birds must be selected which have the ability to transmit high production to their offspring.

The best young breeders are searching for the pullet that lays not only during the spring, but is also an early maturer and heavy winter layer, as well as persistent summer layer. These characteristics coupled with intensity of production are found only in the best hens.

Lice and Worms

For a dip to rid a flock of lice, use one ounce of sodium fluoride to each gallon of water and mix the solution in a large wash tub or barrel. Use one pound for about three hundred fowls. Hold the hens by the legs and wings to prevent struggling. Put them in the solution, tail first, to force the water underneath the feathers. Repeat this three or four times, and in very heavy-feathered hens it may be necessary to use the fingers to work the solution into the feathers.

Height of Roosts

The heavier breeds should have their roosts near the floor, and all on a level so there will be no crowding for the night. Light breeds and game fowls have to fly down from high perches they are likely to contract hunchback from bruises. Every rooster should be kept clean and fresh, and with good ventilation, free from draughts. Keep a lookout for watery eyes and running nostrils, a sneeze or cough. Little things taken in time will usually prevent ailments.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School 'Lesson'

(REV. P. R. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, Ill., 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 5 PETER PREACHING TO GENTILES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:1-11:18.
GOLDEN TEXT—"For there is no difference between Jew and Gentile; for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon Him."—Rom. 10:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Tells a Foreigner About Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter Takes the Gospel to Gentiles.
TEEN-AGE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Taking the Gospel to All Races.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How the Gospel Overcomes Race Prejudice.

The missionary program of the church having broadened to include the Samaritans, we see in this lesson it still widening and embracing the Gentiles. Through the conversion of Cornelius, the "middle wall of partition" was broken down (Eph. 2:14).

1. Cornelius (10:1, 2).
His official position (v. 1).
He was a Roman officer over a company of 100 soldiers.
His character (v. 2).
(1) A devout, pious man. (2) He was a praying man. (3) He was charitable. He gave much alms. (4) He was respected by his family.

II. The Supernatural Preparation for the Transition of the Gospel to the Gentiles (10:3-8).
This was of divine arrangement. No barrier is too great to prevent the coming together of persons whom the Lord desires to meet. In order to bring this about:

(1) Two visions were given.
(a) The vision of Cornelius (vv. 3-6).
While engaged in prayer, an angel of God announced that his prayer and alms had come before God as a memorial, and instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter who would tell him what to do.

(2) The vision of Peter (vv. 9-10).
This took place while Peter was praying (v. 9). He saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven, and heard the command, "Rise, Peter, kill and eat." Peter protested that he had never eaten any unclean thing. God replied, "What God has cleansed, that call not thou common."

2. A messenger sent from Cornelius (vv. 17-22).
Peter was greatly perplexed over what he had seen, but not for long, for messengers from Cornelius made inquiry at the gate for him. The spirit informed Peter of the matter and bade him go, nothing doubting.

3. The meeting of Cornelius and Peter (vv. 23-33).
(1) Peter took six witnesses along (v. 23).
(2) Cornelius waiting for Peter (v. 24).
He called together his kinsmen and near friends.

(3) Cornelius about to worship Peter (vv. 32, 33).
Peter repudiated his act and protested that he was but a man.
(4) The reciprocal explanation (vv. 27-33).
1. Peter's sermon (vv. 34-43).
The introduction (vv. 34, 35).
He showed that God is no respecter of persons. This does not mean that Cornelius was already in a state of grace, thereby saved, but that he was eligible to hear the gospel and accept the terms of salvation.

2. His discourse (vv. 34-43).
In the discourse he touches briefly upon the mission of Jesus, showing that by means of His baptism and anointing with the Holy Spirit, He was qualified for His work as mediator. He then exhibited the work of Christ:

(1) In His life (vv. 36-39).
It was one of benevolence. He went about doing good, even casting out demons as a proof that God was with Him (v. 38).
(2) In His death (v. 40).
The just suffered for the unjust that He might bring us to God (1 Pet. 3:18).
(3) In His resurrection (vv. 40, 41).
In this discourse is set forth:

(a) The basis of salvation—the crucifixion of Christ.
(b) The scope of salvation—whoever believeth in Him.
(c) The method of appropriating salvation—believing on Him.

IV. The Holy Spirit, Poured Out (vv. 44-48).
This was a new Pentecost.
V. Peter Vindicates His Ministry to the Gentiles (11:1-18).
Being called to account for visiting and eating with Gentiles, Peter rehearsed the whole story in such a way that his hearers took the form of logical argument, and showed how God had set His seal upon the work by the miraculous gift of the Spirit.

Closing the Day

Says Dr. R. A. Torrey: "No bank ever closes its business day until its balance is found to be absolutely correct. And no Christian should close a single day until his accounts with God for that day have been perfectly adjusted along with Him."

DAIRY FACTS

FAULTY FEEDING LESSENS PROFITS

Faulty feeding is one of the chief causes of unprofitable dairying, says Dr. W. B. Nevins, assistant chief in dairy cattle feeding at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, in "Feeding the Dairy Herd," a revised handbook which is now being distributed by the college to interested farmers and dairymen.

At the same time proper feeding alone does not guarantee the greatest milk production, he points out. Care and management and breeding and selection that will build up the capacity of the herd also must get attention.

"It is being demonstrated, for instance, that poorly kept cows will give 50 per cent more milk with improved feeding and care, but after the level has been raised in this way, little more can be done except through a program of good breeding. Using sires of the best blood lines and replacing the poorest cows in the herd with heifers from the best cows usually will bring continued improvement in production year after year."

Doctor Nevins explains that a cow may use feed for five different purposes: Growth, maintenance, milk production, increase in weight and production of offspring. It is evident, then, that when cows are fed for milk production, these various functions must be considered with regard to the future development of the cow as well as to her immediate needs, he points out.

Liberal feeding, when intelligently done, usually results in more in the long run than scanty feeding. Although other things besides feeding has a bearing on the milk production of a herd, there is no doubt but that many dairy herds which make little or no profit could be put on a paying basis simply by giving more attention to this one factor—more generous feeding, he says.

He then points out that feeds are divided into two classes: concentrates and roughages. Concentrates—the farm grains and mill by-products—are heavy and contain little fiber or woody matter. Roughages, such as hay, straw, silage, grass and roots, are bulky and contain lots of fiber, and in some cases water. Roughages with lots of water, such as fresh green grass, roots and silage, are known as succulent feeds.

Substances found in feeds are grouped into six classes: Protein, carbohydrates, fats, mineral matter or ash, vitamins and water. "Every dairyman should know these classes, and should know what part they play in the nourishment of the animal and what common feeds will best supply them in the most economical and desirable way," he says.

Young, tender pasture grass is more highly digestible than matured grass. From 65 to 80 per cent of the dry matter of farm grains and their best by-products are digestible, while only 55 to 75 per cent of the dry matter of the better kinds of roughage is digestible. Some of the poorer roughages, such as coarse straws and the hulls of various seeds, which contain lots of crude fiber, are low in digestibility and have little place in the ration of the dairy cow in milk.

Successence, physiological effect, bulk, balance and cost are discussed. Some of the other characteristics of spring grass which the dairyman should try to duplicate in rations used for farm feeding.

Under conditions a dairy herd can be fed more economically on feeds that are raised on the farm where they are used than it can on feeds that are shipped. Doctor Nevins says in the handbook. It must be remembered, however, that cereal grains and nonlegume roughages are low in protein, he cautions.

Dried Beet Pulp Often Used in Testing Cows

Dried beet pulp is a bulky, caroteneous concentrate that has a slightly laxative effect on dairy cows, and is used quite often by dairymen when they are feeding cows on test. It is not worth quite as much as corn or barley in feeding value in the ordinary ration, and as it usually sells for more than corn it rarely pays to buy it as a substitute for corn merely as a source of nutrients. However, where a maximum yield is desired regardless of cost, such as cows on official test, it can be used to make the concentrate more bulky, and as such will be worth more than corn. Where a succulent feed such as silage is not available it makes a very satisfactory substitute, though somewhat more expensive. Where much is used it is better to moisten it before feeding.

Cow's Producing Value

A cow's value as a producer depends upon her inherited ability to secrete milk, and her environment, or the feed and care. If a cow has not inherited the ability to produce milk, abundant feeding will not actuate her milk glands to secrete milk. On the other hand, a good dairy cow without abundant feed and care will produce without feed. It is important to obtain a good dairy cow, but it is just as important to feed and care for the cow properly.

Stock Regions Little

Bothered by Wolves

The large gray, or bobo, wolves have been so reduced in the stock-raising regions of the West by the unremitting activities of the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture against them that their depredations are almost ended. When the presence of scattered individual wolves is reported by stockmen the best available hunters of the district are sent to trap or poison the animals.

In New Mexico only eight wolves were taken during the past year, as against 31 the preceding year, although increased efforts were made to get the last wolf in the state. Arizona reports that 18 wolves were taken during the year and that no wolves are now to be within its borders. It is necessary to maintain a constant patrol along the New Mexico and Arizona boundary to prevent incursions of timber wolves and mountain lions from Mexico.

Odd Changes Wrought

by Time's Whirligig

The silver alms dish which King George V has given the cathedral of St. John the Divine was presented by Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, at special services in the cathedral and accepted by Bishop William I. Manning.

In the sermon after the presentation Bishop Manning said:

"In the year 1783 the rectory of Trinity church in this city was compelled to resign his office because, in spite of the events which were then taking place, he insisted upon continuing to pray publicly for the king of England. Today we are here for the presentation of a gift from the king of Great Britain which we shall hold as one of our most treasured possessions as long as the granite walls of this cathedral stand."

Invisible Light

Those mysterious rays of invisible light which constantly play about us, yet which we never see, hold seemingly endless possibilities for usefulness. For example, says Popular Science Monthly, the latest use for ultra-violet rays is in the testing of silkworms. Healthy worms have the strange property of giving off visible light when exposed to invisible ultra-violet rays, whereas unhealthy worms give off weak light or no light at all. Similarly, some dentists now use ultra-violet light to determine whether teeth are alive or dead.

The Wrong Knowledge

Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, the famous clergyman, said on his eighty-fourth birthday at Lake Placid:

"The young know too much, and at that it's the wrong kind of knowledge. Even little children nowadays—"

"A school-teacher chided the Roman numerals XXX on the blackboard."

"What does that mean, children?" she asked.

"The class of children giggled in a shocked way, and a little girl piped:

"Kisses."

Caution for Women

Magistrates in the little seaside town of Hastings, England, near where the Normans conquered King Harold in 1066, say that all women should be in their homes by ten o'clock at night. They were asked by a saloonkeeper, who wished to give a party to his women customers, for permission to keep his premises open after ten o'clock, the usual closing time. His application was refused on the ground that all women should be in their homes at that time.

New Airplane Idea

Air experts of the United States navy have designed airplanes which fold up their wings like birds, or collapse altogether, to fit merely into pigeonholes of enormous "floating garages." Great strides are being made in perfecting planes of these classes, especially craft which could be "entirely knocked down and its parts stacked together."

Ground Hog Facts

North America has several species of marmots, but the common eastern woodchuck is known to everyone as the ground hog, says Nature Magazine. Woodchucks do not store up food, but eat heavily during the early fall and become excessively fat. In October or November they retire to their dens for a long hibernating sleep which lasts until spring. Length about twenty-three inches, weight eight pounds.

Cleaning Leather Chairs

Leather chairs, which ordinarily are difficult to clean properly, can be treated with a simple preparation made from eggs. Simply beat the whites of three eggs in a dish, and rub the paste into the leather with a flannel cloth. The chair will soon shine like new. If the leather is black, a little lamp black should be added to the eggs, says Science and Invention Magazine.

Bud Case of Ft. Wayne was a week end guest of Christian Sarber.

No Foolin'--

The fight for business leadership is no monkey business in this day and age, as is evidenced by the latest report from commercial centers — and which has to do directly with the future of towns exactly the size of Mentone.

It has been learned that the big mail-order houses now maintain a department, the duty of whose staff is to read weekly newspapers from all over the country and continually make a survey of the different districts to learn of mail-order selling possibilities.

And, it is a fact—that immediately that department finds a town or country wherein the local merchants are not using the local paper to advertise their merchandise to the trade—that district is immediately flooded with catalogues—because it is virgin territory and the mail-order houses have learned that they can do GOOD business there.

We pass this information along to business leaders of Mentone and assure them that all of our support is of course with them. We maintain a local advertising service which can be used to advantage—and for such service we make no extra charge. Come in or phone and we will call. Business goes to those who go after it.

Horsehide—Double Tanned That Always Stays Soft

Here is a Wolverine shoe for year 'round wear. The tops are high enough to keep out the mud and dirt of the spring and fall, low enough for coolness in the summer and are ideal in the winter to wear under an overshoe. Because of its general utility this Wolverine is one of our latest sellers. Made of Cordovan horsehide, there is almost no wear-out to the upper. Our experience has been this upper will wear out on an average two pairs of half soles. A light weight work shoe that is soft when you buy it, and stays that way.

FACTS about used car allowances

Most new car sales now involve the trading-in of a buyer's used car. More and more people are asking: "Why should my used car seem to have several values? Why should dealers in different makes of cars offer me allowances differing materially? Does the largest allowance offered mean the best deal for me?"

Here are basic facts:

- 1 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
- 2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value: what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
- 3 The largest trade-in allowance which is offered on your used car is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; but sometimes it is not.
- 4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
- 5 Judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.

WHEN YOU are ready to trade-in your present car, remember that after all you are making a purchase and not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of a new car.

PRIZES OFFERED FOR BEST VOICES

National Radio Audition Open to Young Singers in This Country.

America's future generation of vocal stars will be disclosed to the world this fall as another of the wonders due to radio. Every young man or woman with the gift of song, whether from country, town or city, will have an equal chance.

A nation-wide quest for the best young singers and the opening of the door of opportunity to them has been undertaken by the Atwater Kent Foundation, an institution established for scientific and educational purposes by A. Atwater Kent, the Philadelphia radio manufacturer and sponsor of the Sunday night grand opera hour, broadcast over a network of nineteen stations.

The Foundation has announced plans for a "National Radio Audition," to find by competition the best undiscovered voices in the United States. Prizes aggregating $17,500, with tuition for a musical education in certain cases, are offered as follows: The two winners of first place in the National Audition—a man and a woman—will each receive a gold decoration, $5,000 in cash and two years' tuition in a leading conservatory.

Winners of second prizes will each receive $2,000 in cash and one year's tuition.

Winners of third prizes will each receive $1,000 and one year's tuition.

Winners of fourth prizes will each receive $500.

Winners of fifth prizes will each receive $250.

Musical, civic and women's clubs in each community in each state will be invited to hold local contests to select the best young man and best young woman singers of their towns. These winners will then be certified to a state audition, which will be broadcast by a radio station in each state. A state winner of each sex will be chosen and will receive a silver medal.

The next step is a district audition. The young men and women who have won state honors will be taken to a central broadcasting station in one of five districts, where an audition will be broadcast to select the two winners—a young man and a young woman—from that district.

The two winners in each district will receive gold medals and the ten finalists thus selected will be taken to New York for the final National Audition, to be broadcast over a national network of stations. All expenses of contestants in the district and final auditions, including railroad fare, hotel bills, entertainment, etc., will be paid by the Atwater Kent Foundation.

The spirit and purpose of the National Audition are indicated in a statement by A. Atwater Kent, president of the Foundation, who said:

"The discovery of one of those rare voices, of which each generation produces a very few, seems to me an event of profound national importance. Even when such a voice could give pleasure to only a few thousand people in a year it was a national treasure. Now that millions may enjoy it on the same evening through the medium of radio, such a voice has become priceless."

"The National Radio Audition, supported by the Atwater Kent Foundation, is an undertaking to search the entire country for beautiful voices and to offer these singers an opportunity for full development, recognition and reward."

The principal qualifications for contestants are as follows: Must not be over 25 years old; must never have been associated with a professional theatrical or operatic company; must never have been a paid principal in any concert held outside their own states; must declare an intention to follow a musical career and must be free from theatrical or musical contracts.

This limitation permits choir students to enter the auditions, even though they may have received financial compensation for singing in churches. Other groups from which entries are anticipated are students in musical schools and locally prominent singers in high schools and colleges. Musical organizations in each state are also afforded an opportunity to participate.

Cold Facts Must Be Faced In Business

If a man smashed the thermometer because it said 20 below zero, it wouldn't make him any warmer. The thermometer was simply an humble instrument keeping him informed with the facts.

It isn't always pleasant to face facts because the facts are not always what we would like to have them. But isn't it a good deal better to form the habit of dealing with actual facts than to attempt to side step them? You can turn your head away or you can shut your eyes, but the reality continues just the same, whether you see it or not.

Here in the bank we have to deal with facts. If we owe you money you expect to be paid in actual coin, and not in hope or in cheerful words or expectations. We must penetrate the confusing side issues, and find what the realities are in every situation. Perhaps we could help you to look over some of your problems, and see them from an un sentimental point of view. We are friendly to your undertakings, but we know that it doesn't pay you or anybody else to let himself be fooled about the facts of his business situation.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Capt. Lindbergh Is Recipient of Unprecedented Honors in France.

THE notable event of the week ending May 27 was the completion of Capt. Charles Lindbergh's successful crossing by airplane from New York to Paris at 10:21, Paris time, Saturday night, May 27, after 33 hours 29 minutes in the air.

Paris gave the intrepid American flyer a wildly enthusiastic reception. In which there was no evidence of the reported enmity for American contestants in this transoceanic air race that had resulted in the loss of two French flyers, Captains Guyness and Coll. From the moment his plane came to a stop on Le Bourget flying field, just outside the French capital, he became the acclaimed hero of the civilized world. In Paris no such tumultuous scenes have been witnessed since the signing of the armistice at the close of the World war, and for the week following the landing he has been sought for and feted by all classes. The king of Belgium wired him an invitation to be his guest at Brussels. King George of England extended him an invitation to visit him in London, organizations of many kinds contended for the honor of being host to him, the French government conferred upon him the medal of the Legion of Honor. From Captain Lindbergh's own countrymen came hundreds of offers of employment at fabulous salaries. Motion picture producers, vaudeville theater managers, managers of lecture courses, offered large sums for his services, and if he wishes, it is estimated that he could within the next twelve months easily make a million dollars as a result of his heroic exploit. So far he has refused to consider any of the offers, asserting that he had no idea of commercializing the flight which he made solely for the purpose of advancing the science of aviation.

It is not known at this writing when he will return to America. Before doing so he will accept the invitation from the king of Belgium and England and will visit Stockholm and other European cities. The United States government has offered to bring him back on board a battleship as the guest of the American people and it is probable that he will accept this invitation.

Captain Lindbergh covered the distance from San Diego, Calif., to Paris—6,725 miles—in actual flying time of 56 hours and 46 minutes. He left San Diego, Calif., on the afternoon of May 10 and arrived in St. Louis—1,000 miles—the next day. After a rest there he hopped to New York—3,000 miles—crossing the American continent in an actual flying time of 23 hours and 15 minutes. After a few days' rest he started from New York to Paris—3,600 miles. This is a new world's record for nonstop straight line distance, the previous record being 3,400 miles.

ANOTHER event of importance in the field of aviation was the attempted flight of the Italian aviator, Francesco de Pinedo, from Newfoundland to the Azores islands, a distance of 1,200 miles. He left the Trans-Port, N. F., Monday morning, May 23, but became lost in the fog and landed on the ocean some 300 miles from his objective point and his plane was towed into port by a sailing vessel that had picked him up.

A MOVE of unusual importance in the field of international relations was the break between Great Britain and Soviet Russia following the revelations resulting from the raiding by the British government of Arcos, Ltd., the Russian trading company operating in England, and the official Soviet trade delegation. In the house of commons Prime Minister Baldwin announced that on the basis of Sir Windham Child's findings in documents seized in the raid on May 12 the British government had decided to break off diplomatic relations with Russia.

In his address the prime minister referred at length to the documentary evidence of the Soviet Internationale's network of Bolshevik plots in England, the United States, Canada, New Zealand, and said:

"In the face of these breaches of the trade agreement and international comity, his majesty's government has shown patience and forbearance which is probably without parallel.

"Diplomatic relations when thus deliberately and systematically abused are in themselves a danger to peace, and his majesty's government therefore has decided that unless the house expresses disapproval on Thursday, the government will terminate the trade agreement, require the withdrawal of the trade delegation and Soviet mission from London, and recall the British mission from Moscow."

"The Soviet government itself cannot escape the responsibility for the action of the trade delegation and the abuse of the facilities afforded it," the prime minister continued, "but the matter does not rest there, because it is difficult to believe that, while one organ of the Soviet government was breaking its solemn undertaking, the Soviet mission and Soviet government did not pass on these proceedings."

The prime minister explained that the police for months had been watching the activities of the Soviet secret agents who had arranged for photographing secret documents in the Soviet house. Their suspicions were confirmed early this year when two British subjects employed by the air force were discovered stealing two documents for the Reds, he said.

Mr. Baldwin then referred to a "further document of an official and highly confidential character," which turned up missing and which was discovered by the police to have been photographed on the Arcos premises. Armed with this knowledge, the police trade delegation had been watching the subterranean photostat room, where they found a cipher clerk known to be connected with the secret agents.

Documents found in another room showed that this clerk's chief function was the carrying out of secret communications abroad. In his possession were found codes in envelopes addressed to well-known Communist individuals and organizations in England and the United States. The envelopes contained directions from the Red Internationale to Communists and organizations in both countries.

"The investigation shows," said Mr. Baldwin, "that both Arcos and the trade delegation habitually used extensive propaganda. The correspondence dealt with the Communist secret agents' club, the 'hands off' China movement, the anti-trade union bill, the distribution of Communist propaganda and industrial affairs in America."

This action on the part of the British government has again infuriated Russia in the family of nations, and the lining up of England with the United States in its attitude toward the Soviet government. The American government has consistently refused to recognize in any way the Soviet government of Russia on the basis that that government was engaging in propaganda with the purpose of undermining other governments with which friendly relations had been perfected. This government has refused to permit any official representative of the Soviets to land in the United States, and this investigation on the part of England has demonstrated the wisdom of the officials at Washington.

SECRETARY of the Treasury Mellon has announced the resignation of Assistant Secretary L. C. Andrews, effective August 1. At the same time announcement was made of the appointment of Dr. James M. Doran as prohibition commissioner to succeed Roy A. Haynes. The resignation of Mr. Andrews was unexpected. Secretary Mellon announced that he has recommended to President Coolidge the appointment of Seymour Lowman, former lieutenant governor of New York, to succeed him.

It was indicated by Mr. Mellon that while the new assistant secretary of the treasury will have supervisory authority over the bureau of customs, as well as over the bureau of customs and the coast guard, he will not have such broad powers as Mr. Andrews. Dooley Doran, it was stated, will have full authority as prohibition commissioner, although general determination of policies will remain in the hands of the secretary of the treasury. The date of Haynes' retirement was not indicated.

GERMANY claims that with the recent blowing up of the 27 concrete dugouts on its frontier at Koenigsberg it has completed the dismantling provided for by the Versailles treaty, and is now demanding that the allied troops evacuate the Rhineland provinces. The allies are insisting that the interallied military commission must inspect the work of dismantling the fortresses, but Germany holds that the interallied military control commission expired on February 1, as promised by the allies, and that for reasons of prestige, Germany cannot permit a renewal of the interallied control. There the matter stands with nothing definite as to when the remaining French troops will march out of Germany.

FLOODS continue to ravage Louisiana parishes. Five additional parishes, with an area of 1,000,000 acres, and the homes of 80,000 people were thrown open to invasion by the inland sea when the river tore aside the protection barriers at McCreas and spread over the low lands of Pointe Coupee parish. Before the flood waters have vanished into the Gulf of Mexico they will have cut a path 50 miles wide and 200 miles long from the Arkansas border to the gulf.

His Dancing Captured Her Heart

Four months ago Frank Ritchie, despite the burden of his eighty-three years was sauntering daily down the street in Sawville, Calif. His shoes shined, his hat at a rakish angle and his eye on the alert for any entrancing femininity. On a porch sat Mrs. Emma Lyckberg, eighty-two years old. Out of the corner of his eye Ritchie saw her. He noted her fashionably curled bobbed hair, sauntered on to the corner, walked around in a circle, then went back "and made himself acquainted." Soon after he took her to a dance, and she was so entranced with the way he "booped it" that she consented to be his wife. They both have been married before and have children and grandchildren.

Checked Silks Are Now Popular; Simplicity in Graduating Frock

FROCKS of "gingham-silk" are the smart thing for this summer. These taffeta weaves, so called because of their gingham patterning, especially exploit checks and plaids. A "just arrived" gingham-silk dress is pictured here. Not only its material but its fashioning is the "last word." The surprise opening for the bodice bespeaks the new trend, also the overskirt effect which appears in quite a few of the newer modes. The stylist also employs solid colors for the flower-like chon of taffeta at the simplicity does it create a pleasing impression. Now that sheer white materials are so in vogue, there is every opportunity of either making or buying "ready-to-wear" a charming graduating dress, such as will set off those "endearing young charms" of the daughter of the household to perfection.

White georgette is a most excellent selection for the graduating frock. It is exquisitely dainty, and as to service, that is one of its chief recommendations. It launders beautifully.

waistline, to which little flare cuffs are matched.

Black or navy with white are outstanding for these practical afternoon checked taffeta frocks. For dressier wear there is also a considerable showing of pastel shades with white. Prominent among these are yellow with white, green with white and some which are very attractive for children and growing girls are bright red-and-white checks.

Smart, indeed, and ideal for summer wear is the two-piece dress which styles its skirt and sleeveless jacket of checked taffeta, the blouse being either of washable white crepe or sheer white cotton voile. If this lingerie blouse displays a jabot, also a generous amount of fagoting or yet never has the appearance of a wash dress, and for little Miss sixteen it will prove a most charming dance frock all through the summer season.

Very prettily and girlishly styled is this white georgette dress pictured to the left. Sleeveless is this little frock. The ruffles on the skirt are arranged in tiers, for the tiered effect is one of the mode's pet hobbies this season. There is just the faintest hint of pink in the satin ribbon rosette posed on the shoulder.

A trifle more elaborate is the dress of crepe de chine to the right. It is all in pure white even to the ribbon at neckline and waistline. This lovely frock subscribes to the reigning lace vogue in that rows and rows of narrow hand-drawn hemstitching, so much the better from a fashion standpoint. Designers are doing some amusing things with the new gingham-silks by combining plaids or checks of one coloring with those of another. A black-and-white check bordered with a red-and-white check is stunning. The same may be said of polka dots, which, by the way, are in smart fashion again. For instance, a large navy-and-white polka dot is trimmed with tiny-dotted tan and white. There is so much to the novelty which can be achieved by following out this line of thought.

Only when the dress of the "sweet girl gr-lorite" accepts the note of edging run a scalloped course around the slightly bouffant skirt. The lace in rows about the neckline suggests a yoke effect.

Emphasis is again placed on organdy for the summer frock. It is thought that this material will repeat the wonderful vogue it enjoyed some few seasons ago. Cunning and quaint are jenne file frocks made of this material, with basque bodices and full skirts in sleeveless style. Some of the skirts have tiers of ribbon, others are bordered with lace, in which event there is apt to be a yoke and cap-sleeves of the lace.

BOUND to the NORTH

WHO'S WHO

Jeanne Beaufort, beautiful daughter of a Virginia planter, has lost her father and two brothers in the Civil War. (The year 1864.) She swears to avenge them.

Mrs. Winmore, her aunt, that she will carry out the Biblical injunction for vengeance—"an eye for an eye!" While at Richmond she meets Henry Morgan, a debonaire young officer, who falls in love with her.

She repels his advances. She is engaged as a spy for the Confederate government and urged to use all the wiles and power of her sex to find one.

Parson Kennedy, and bring him within the Southern lines. It is planned to have her make headquarters with a family of southern sympathizers in Washington. Jeanne learns telegraphy and other technical branches of her new calling. And eludes a boy often in the Blue of the North. She makes her way through the lines. She learns of an organization of eleven Union spies and of their meeting place in a Richmond loft. As she overhears the leaders address the masked men seated about a table, Jeanne is discovered and dragged into the room.

The leader unmasked as he threatens her with death, but is dissuaded from shooting her by the suggestion from one of the men that one of their number marry her. She consents and when one of the masked men volunteers to marry she refuses and claims the right to choose.

She rejects the volunteer and selects the one who suggested the marriage. Him she names "Irony." To her surprise the leader is no other than Parson John Kennedy. He performs the ceremony. "Irony" says his name is among those who sign as witnesses, (just before they leave her bound,) in the following code form:

John Kennedy, D. D.
A-NK-S P-P-A-G
G-RD-A J-K-F
J-WG-A F-B-N-S
F-WG-S W-BE-H

Later Jeanne learns that Morgan is a spy.

To her surprise she receives a letter bearing the curious device she had seen tattooed on her husband's arm. The letter, ironical in its tone, shows that her unknown husband is still in Richmond and knows the name and identity of his wife. She cuts her hair, stains her face and going to Baltimore, assumes the name of.

Alice Trent, not knowing such a person lived in Baltimore.

An intoxicated man accosts Jeanne and she is rescued by.

Captain John Armitage, a young Union officer whom she tells her assumed name.

Jeanne tells Morgan of the tattoo mark and at her request he agrees to abstract Parson Kennedy so that she can question him about the names on the marriage certificate. Kennedy had, with the authority of a Secret Service officer, directed that Armitage watch him. Kennedy is carried away and bound, but as Jeanne is questioning him, Armitage rescues him. Jeanne escapes.

CHAPTER VI "CAPTURE"

The Parson and Armitage lay quietly in the quietest for fully half an hour, when they rose and plodded off toward the city.

Evidently the abductors had convinced themselves that a lone man would not have attempted the rescue of Parson Kennedy; and they too chose the path of discretion over that of valor.

"Do you know where we are?" asked Kennedy.

"Yes—about five miles below the city. That's the Potomac over there. I had mighty hard work getting onto the back of that hack. All told there were five of them. The girl must have arrived on horseback before they did. It strikes me we'll see more of that cabin."

"What was the man at the door?" "I don't know. He had a handkerchief over his nose and mouth. Then he ran."

"Ran and left the woman; h'mph!" "She seemed able to take care of herself. You said that I freed the vessel. Who put poison into her fangs? You did. From a lawful but the cost had gone out of every-

"emmy you turned her into a person-thing. She hated herself, Morgan. Armitage—hated the world."

Armitage returned to his rooms in a thoughtful and analytical frame of mind. He must not see this lovely girl often. She drew him too closely.

On the following morning he was ordered to report to his regiment and remain with it until it was necessary to recall him. He wrote a note to Alice Trent, regretting that he would not be able to see her before he left. She saved that letter; but she was glad that he had gone from town. She had a human heart also, and it was just as wonderfully made as his.

She went about her affairs as usual. Twice she visited the house with the secret door and left her information in the drawer of the deal table in the attic. There was no sign "to rent" upon this house; yet it was vacant. No one was ever seen to enter it in the daytime. The house belonged to the Confederate Government, sub rosa. If Jeanne found the candle out of the bottle in the drawer for her. Thus, on the second night after Captain Armitage's departure she learned with certainty that she was to be given active service again.

A certain general, who was one of the few great strategists left in the Confederate Army as in danger of annihilation and only an exact knowledge of his enemy's plans of campaign would permit him to slip out of the net.

These plans were at this moment in the tent of General Armitage, having been carried to him by Captain Armitage himself. So Senator X had secretly written to a friend in Illinois. Of course, friends had unsealed this letter, read its contents and revealed it, as he did with most of the Senator's correspondence. She Jeanne, must act immediately.

A mile south of Armitage's troops, in the hollow of a blasted rotten oak were hidden batteries and telegraphic instruments. The lower wire was to be tapped. Communications here had not yet been destroyed.

Each night at nine the receiver would be at his post. The mobility of the troops would not make it advisable for her to attempt to communicate in person; hence the telegraph.

All she had to do was to get the information required and telegraph it.

"All I have to do!" she mused with a crooked little smile. All she had to do was to steal into an army of formidable numbers, go straight to General Armitage's tent, glance at the plans and telegraph them! She looked with sudden ironic laughter.

But there was a glow of pride in her heart. She was given this hazardous exploit as casually as if she had been asked to tea. It meant that her ability, her cunning and resource, were highly prized. She would make the attempt; she would prove definitely to her insurgent heart that there was nothing but the cause.

The cloth dodgers were growing claggy on trees and fences. "Dead of Alive." To cook your hare you had to catch it.

The camp lay in the Virginia hills. It was early in October and the night air was chill. The men were gathered in groups about the fires.

In General Armitage's tent he and his staff were discussing the final details of the campaign which was to be set in motion the following night and end in the scattering of the Rebel forces. Success meant that they would be in Richmond by Christmas.

Trooper Murphy, whose picket-duty lay between the stream and the tenth telegraph-pole to the south, felt the need of extending his line march. He was disobeying stringent orders.

He determined to go ten telegraph poles beyond his allotment. So, when he reached the end of his beat, which twisted westward, he paused, counted the poles—and rubbed his eyes. There was still a tint of lemon in the west, enough to throw out in distant relief each pole. Now if his eyes weren't deceiving him, something was moving up that tenth pole nearly a thousand feet away. It stopped at the cross-bars, twisted itself about the lower one, and seemed perfectly content to remain there.

Private Murphy knew now what this meant—espionage; and some crowsy butternut was sending Morse. "Come down out at that, Johnny, or I'll cook yer potatoes in saltpeter!" A quarter of an hour later the orderly outside of General Armitage's tent stuck his head inside the flap.

"Private Murphy, sir, to report with a prisoner."

The General and his staff looked up from the maps.

"Anything unusual?" demanded the General.

"The officer of the day sent him directly to you sir."

"Bring him in."

Captain Armitage, however, did not look up.

"What's this about?"

"A spy sir, I caught him in the telegraph poles, sor, an' brought him in."

General Armitage turned his flashing eyes upon the prisoner. "Have you anything to say?"

"No sir."

"How long have you been in this camp?"

"Two days, sir."

"What troop do you belong to?"

"None."

"You were sending a message?"

"I was, sir."

There was a pause. "You knew the penalty of such action, coupled with the wearing of a blue uniform, and that neither youth nor age matter?"

"Yes."

"You were sending information to the enemy. What information?"

"The information which will prevent the wearing of the trap."

There was something in the sound of this sentence that caused the man bending over the maps to look up.

"God!" he murmured, as he saw the face. Jeanne Beaufort! Suddenly the dark eyes met his and their glance bit into his soul like steel.

"Search him," said General Armitage. "And be quick about it."

"It will not be necessary, sir, until after—I am dead." There was not the slightest tremor in the tones.

"What I took away from this tent, sir, I took mentally."

General Armitage ran his fingers through his beard. "Very well, then; I'll grant you that much. Take him away. Private Murphy. Orderly; take this message to Crumpton Sun-der. Tie his hands and feet."

By the way, fathers and mothers, and because their sons lack college education will observe that Lindbergh went to no university, and his "prep school" was a plover on his father's farm. He was a solitary boy, thinking, enjoying danger and new things. Robert Westover, a garage owner in Montana, who once hired Lindbergh to make parachute jumps, says, "I don't think he was lonesome on that trip. Slim Lindbergh was a peculiar guy. He did not care for company or any excitement, except, during, stuff. Everything he had he carried with him, helmet, goggles and toothbrush stuffed in the big pockets of his overalls."

Lindbergh's difficulty now will be to find something worth doing that will not kill him.

Lindbergh proves that deeds of daring "mad-cap audacity," seeming reckless at the time, are of great, permanent value. It was called reckless folly when Columbus made his transatlantic "hop" in the opposite direction. Cool heads told him he would fall over the edge of the ocean, and his crew wanted to turn back.

Fulton's experiment with steam, and Franklin's with the kite, seemed foolish. Congressmen that voted to spend money on Government experiments with telegraph messages were beaten for re-election. The voters "had no use" for a Congressman that would vote to waste money.

Lindbergh's feat will find an echo in the next Congress. It will occur to some Congressmen that if one man, all alone, could fly from here to Europe, some thousands might fly from Europe or Asia here, and be less welcome than Lindbergh was in Paris.

The record shows that Lindbergh Wright motor used less than twelve gallons of gasoline per hour of flying and did better than 100 miles to the hour. At twenty cents a gallon that means about $11 worth of gasoline, plus twenty gallons of oil. Not expensive for trip to Paris.

Statistics show this country's income in 1926 totaled over eight billion dollars, from all sources—the ditch digger's wages, the coupon cutter's toll.

That means $671 for every man, woman and child, or $1,895.37 for every person engaged in earning money.

Professor Nash, teacher of physical education in New York University, justly criticizes violent exercise for young girls.

To permit competition for girls in hurdle races, high jumping, broad jumping, etc., is a crime against the girls now and against the future generation.

Girls were not made the JUMP. They were made for motherhood, and should be taught to respect and protect their complicated machinery.

In the Fall "medicinal whiskey" bourbon and rye, made of corn and rye, will be manufactured under supervision of the Treasury Department.

No whiskey should be suggested for medicinal purposes. If doctors say alcohol is necessary, they should use brandy made of grapes. Many poisons are in grain whiskey, even carefully made. Real brandy is free of poisonous oils and other poisons. Wood alcohol is deadly, potato alcohol is very poisonous, grain alcohol less poisonous, grape alcohol safest.

Those that sent threatening letters concerning the Sacco and Vanzetti case, to Governor Fuller did not frighten the Governor. He rejects the suggestion of a commission to review the Sacco and Vanzetti case, saying that the responsibility is his. The Governor cannot delegate his authority. The responsibility of the decision must be made by him. Governor Fuller will be interested in investigating and his own deciding. Consumptives will be interested to

CONTEST CLOSES NEXT WEDNESDAY

Next Wednesday, June 15, is the last day that slogans will be accepted in the Slogan for Mentone Contest. On that day the contest will be officially closed and the judges will then take up the task of choosing a slogan to suitably describe our town and proclaim its beauties to everyone.

Many people not only from here in town, but also from the surrounding rural communities, have entered wholeheartedly into this contest, and have worked hard to discover a slogan which can proclaim Mentone to all.

Everyone is eligible to enter this contest. Think of some slogan and send it in. A prize of $10 will be awarded to the author of the slogan chosen by the judges. The Chamber of Commerce is the donor of this prize.

GEORGE CLARK NOW ON WAY TO EUROPE

It was erroneously stated in last week's paper that George Clark and friend from Terre Haute had sailed for Europe on Thursday. The two young men sailed Saturday morning.

W. F. Clark received a letter from George, written in New York, in which he stated that his total expenses for the trip were $6.20. The two liked the distance from Indiana University to New York, receiving many hits from motorists. The letter stated that he had seen several shows along the route, the expenses of which were included in the $6.20.

COUNTY REVIEW BOARD OPENED SESSIONS MONDAY

The Kosciusko County Board of Review opened its annual session Monday morning in the office of County Assessor Robinson in the Court House at Warsaw. Members of the Board are Assessor E. Robinson, County Auditor Hazel Breading, County Treasurer Huffer, Edison B. Sarber and Thad McClure.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

The Children's day program will be given Sunday Morning, following the Lesson period. Come at 9:30 and you will be there for the whole program.

Thursday evening at the Mid week service the Pastor will attempt to give a brief of the Northern Baptist Convention program. You should be interested in seeking to know what your denomination is doing, so be there.

The woman's Missionary Society will hold its regular monthly meeting on next Tuesday afternoon. The lesson from the Study Book "All the World in all the Word" will be presented.

Consumptives often have lungs that might be called "too good," the lung area being so great that the heart finds difficulty in pumping an adequate blood supply. Exercise in moderation, strengthens the heart, helps the patient.

LARGE CROWD AT CONCERT

Although the weather was extremely unfavorable and clouds threatened to send down a pouring shower of rain any moment, a large crowd was in town Thursday evening for the first Band Concert of the season, given by the local band.

The concert seemed to be enjoyed by everyone, and the dampness of the weather did not seem to have a blanketing effect on the crowd's spirit. The members of the band looked mighty fine in new uniforms, and their playing showed the fine touches of long practice and fine instruction.

CONDITION OF MRS.
COOK NO BETTER

At the latest report the condition of Mrs. Will Cook, who was taken to the sanitarium of Mayo Brothers in Rochester, Minn., a few weeks ago for treatment and operation is at the time critical. Little hope for her rallying from the recent operation is held.

LINCOLN M. P. CHURCH IS REDECORATED

C. D. Meredith and his force have just completed decorating the interior of the Lincoln M. P. Church. It is said to be most beautiful, finished in a style suggestive of the Little Brown Church in the Vale.

AVERTS FIRE BY USE OF SPRAY PUMP

The residence home of Jones Eaton caught fire Sunday but a neighbor quickly extinguished the blaze by the use of a spray pump.

SODALES CLUB

The Sodales Club met June 2 at the pleasant country home of Ruby Smith with Beulah Arnsberger assisting hostess.

The responses, hot weather desserts brought forth many delicious recipes.

Goldie Warner read an interesting and instructive article on cleaning and storing clothing.

The afternoon was spent in social conversation and playing rock.

The hostess served dairy refreshments. The tables were beautiful in the color scheme of yellow iris.

WILL HOLD ICE CREAM SOCIAL AT DISKO

The Community Band, Juvenile band of Akron, composed of 74 pieces will hold an ice cream social at Disko Friday night.

CHECKING UP ON AUTO BRAKES THIS WEEK

This week has been designated as National Brake-Testing week. Efforts are being made to have every owner and driver of an auto to check up on his brakes this week, and determine whether or not they are safe enough for driving.

As every auto owner knows, the safety of the driver and every passenger in his car depends largely on his brakes. Many accidents are averted by the timely use of good brakes, and many more could be prevented if the car only had brakes that would hold. Not only the safety of yourself and the passengers in your car, but the safety of passengers in other cars depend on your brakes, to a great extent.

You can test the brakes yourself. Common sense will tell any driver in what distance he should be able to stop at a certain speed. If your brakes are not working as they should, tighten them up. You may save some one's life.

LOCAL GIRL TO TEACH IN BOURBON

Miss Francis Clark, daughter of W. F. Clark, will teach music in the Bourbon schools this winter. Miss Clark taught at that place last winter.

FRIENDSHIP CLASS

The Friendship Class of the M. E. Sunday School held their regular quarterly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lackey, Friday the 3rd. They planned a picnic dinner and thirty two guests members of the class and their husbands, together with a few invited guests responded to roll call and surrounded two tables loaded with eats ranging from sandwiches to frosted pie and angel food cake. The tables soon ceased their groaning as the appetites of the guests were fully satisfied.

A program, followed the dinner hour consisting of devotions led by Mrs. Jefferies, readings by Mesdames Guy, Liddle, and Goodwin and Miss Roena Lackey, followed by a monologue by Mrs. Pearl Lackey. After the transaction of the regular business of the class the meeting adjourned and all retired to their homes feeling that they had been cheered on life's way by this social hour and a relaxation of the every day duties that sometimes become burdensome.

LANDIS-SHAFFER

Miss Velma Landis of this place, and Mr. John Shafer of Tippecanoe were married in Rochester last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Saviers of Ft. Wayne were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. I. F. Snyder.

TOWN BOARD HOLDS MEETING

The Town Board held their regular monthly meeting last Tuesday evening.

The contract for the paving of the local streets was officially let to the Gast Construction Company of Warsaw. Three separate bonds for the three streets were drawn up and ordered sold.

E. A. Gast of Warsaw, President of the Gast Construction Company stated that he thought his men would begin work on the local streets sometime the latter part of this week or the first of next. The sewers and curb will be put in and finished up before a thing is done to the paving. It is expected that the paving will be started in three or four weeks.

MEETING OF THE LADIES BANKING SYSTEM, WED.

The Ladies Banking System of the Baptist Church met last Wednesday afternoon in the Church Parlor, the third division entertaining. Devotions were led by Mrs. Anna Manwaring. At the close of the business session the ladies were invited to the dining room where the hostesses served refreshments. About twenty were present.

CHILD IS BITTEN
WHILE PETTING DOG

Little Mary Myers received several wounds on her face Sunday when bitten by a dog at the Crestvion home east of town. Mr. and Mrs. Myers were visiting the Crestvions at the time, and Mary put her arms around the dog's neck. The animal misinterpreted the action and bit the girl in the face, inflicting several unsightly gashes. The wounds were cared for by a local physician.

NOTICE OF CLASS PARTY

The Mizpah Class of the Baptist Sunday School will hold its next monthly meeting at the home of Mack Hainbaugh, Friday evening, June 10. Those wishing conveyance will meet at the Big Drug Store on the Corner at 7:00.

EVER FAITHFUL SEWING CLUB

The Sewing Club met in the Baptist church at Sevastopol. The lesson consisted of the patterns for infants and children from 2 to 7 years old.

Each lady drew out a pattern and will make the garment that will be used in the next lesson. There were sixteen members present. The meeting was a most enjoyable as well as profitable one.

BURKET CORNER

The second accident in less than a week happened at the crossing of the Burket and the Mentone-Warsaw roads, Friday when a Hudson touring, driven by C. A. Rapp of Argos was struck by a Dodge touring car driven and owned by Sam Kelley of this place. Rapp is Station master of the Nickel Plate Depot at Argos.

Rapp was traveling east on the Mentone-Warsaw road, approaching the corner where the Burket road merges into the paved road, at a point four miles straight east of here. Kelly was approaching the corner from the south.

It is thought Kelly must have lost control of the car, as the Dodge smashed into the Hudson with sufficient force to overturn the larger car.

Neither man was hurt, except a severe bump received by Rapp on the nose.

The Rapp car was taken to Argos by a garageman of that place and the Kelley machine was towed to a local garage.

The whole front of the Dodge belonging to Kelley was smashed. Both front fenders were completely wrecked and part of the hood and hood ornament was broken.

The Hudson belonging to Rapp had the left front and rear wheels broken down.

The Corner which has been the scene of two accidents in less than one week is not considered dangerous. A fairly good view can be had from both ways.

OBITUARY OF CHARLES HUDSON

Charles Hudson a former resident of this place, passed away at his home near Michigan City, after a weeks severe illness arising from complications.

He was born at Dexter Michigan on August 25th 1848 and was at the time of his death age 78 years 8 months and 28 days.

At an early age he moved with his parents to Marshall County, Indiana where he grew to manhood. Several years of his life were spent on the farm near Mentone.

In 1906 Mr. Hudson moved his family to Neillsville, Wisconsin, where he resided until November 1925, when he returned to Indiana locating in LaPorte County at the home of his step daughter.

On March 20, 1872 he was united in marriage to Rebecca Dunlap who died 26 years ago. Three sons were born to this union. Charles E. who resides in Kansas City, Mo., Orin who died a few months ago, and Clarence who died in childhood.

On March 30, 1902 Mr. Hudson was married to Margaret Anna Alt of Burket.

Besides his wife and son Charles E. he leaves to mourn his death a step daughter Mrs. B. H. Peterson of Michigan City, a step son Ernest Alt of Elkhart, seventeen grandchildren and ten great grand children.

His brother L. P. Hudson of Mentone. Two sisters and one brother preceded him in death.

In middle life Mr. Hudson became interested in politics taking an active part in several campaigns. He was an orator of ability and espoused the cause of prohibition and woman suffrage, lecturing and writing on these subjects. He rejoiced at the passing of the 18th and 19th amendments two causes for which he spent untiring time and effort. He has also written several poems.

Mr. Hudson was a man of unquestionable character, adhering strictly to his superior principles. In dealing with the public he was convincing and just. He was honorable and upright in all his dealings with his fellow men.

Mother! It's Cruel to "Physic" Your Child

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept constantly "wired up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils. While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even if the child is chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the most delicate system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

good proportion. A little sugar may be added if you wish. Cut out rounds rather larger than ordinary biscuits, about three to three and one-half inches in diameter, and roll them thin enough to bake one on top of the other. Brush butter on the under round before setting the upper piece on it, and when they are done the two sections will split apart easily. The oven should be hot (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for individual shortcake, suggests the bureau of home economics.

Prepare the strawberries at least an hour before you need them. Hull them and wash a few at a time in the pan of cold water, skimming them off the top so that any sand sinks to the bottom. Do not allow them to remain in the water or they will lose flavor. Select the largest and most attractive berries for the top layers, sprinkle with sugar and set aside. Cut up some of the berries to be used on the lower layers, mash them lightly to start the juice flowing, and sprinkle with sugar. Butter the shortcake while hot. Add whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla, just at serving time, or pass it in a bowl as each person is served with the short cake. Some people prefer this type of shortcake without cream.

DELIGHTFUL FAMILY AUTOMOBILE PICNIC

Why Not Take the Ice Cream Freezer Along?

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The fun of the week-end motor outing is the picnic lunch. If the drive covers much distance there may be two out-of-door lunches. It is a good idea to keep a special basket or picnic box on hand with enamel or paper plates, cups, knives, forks, spoons, bread knives, can and bottle openers, salt, pepper, waxed paper and paper napkins ready for the call of the open. Preparations can be quickly and easily made if these essential accessories are at hand in one place.

There is no hard and fast rule that all sandwiches must be made before starting. Put a loaf of bread, a pat of butter, and whatever filling you have available, into the picnic kit. When a halt is made for lunch, bread may be cut by one person, buttered by another, spread with filling by a third, and in the midst of such sociability the sandwiches will be produced as fast as they can be eaten. When sandwiches are thus, as it were, made to order, one stops to think whether another is really wanted or not. When boxes of sandwiches are brought from home the tendency is to keep eating them while they last. Most people eat more bread in this way than usual, and with other sturdy food because of convenience, the meal becomes unbalanced.

Why not take said ingredients along, suggests the bureau of home economics? Lettuce and celery wrapped in damp cloths, tomatoes, and cucumbers can be carried in good condition. Put the mayonnaise in a screw-top jar, and the butter in another. If the day is very warm set them in a box or bucket of chopped ice. People sometimes take an ice cream freezer if there is room in the car. Butter and milk will keep splendidly beside the ice cream can.

You need not have bread sandwiches at all. Split rolls or biscuits answer the same purpose, or unsweetened crackers may be used. By way of dessert, cup cakes and cookies are easier to handle than layer cakes and pies. Figs, prunes, dates, and raisins satisfy the desire for something sweet that may be eaten with the fingers.

SERVE SHORTCAKE TO EACH PERSON

Attractive Way Is to Have Individual Cakes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
An attractive way is to have what the children call "each-person" portions. Use your own recipe for biscuit dough, but make it somewhat richer than usual. One-third to one-half cupful of fat to each three cupfuls of flour is a while almost any fresh fruits are excellent. Try taking washed strawberries with the hulls on. Use the hulls to hold the berries as they are dipped in powdered sugar and eaten. If you make a fire in the open you can have roasted frankfurters or bacon or a steak or chops. Fresh-caught fish may be cooked in a skillet over a camp fire, too. Don't forget to take the proper precautions for extinguishing any fire you make. In lieu of building a fire, a hot drink, such as cocoa or coffee, may be taken in a vacuum bottle. Ice-cold milk may be put in these bottles for the children. If you are likely to have two road-side meals, provide something different for each, just as you would at home. A small cooked ham is a good addition to the lunch basket for the second meal, or some American cheese, or hard-boiled eggs, or any canned meats that slice conveniently. Don't forget the cat opener, however! Automobiles sometimes develop troubles at awkward spots where no food can be obtained, and it is a comfortable feeling to know that you have the next meal with you whether you need it or not. Extra bread and butter may not be amiss.

The bottle opener, too, must not be left at home. You will surely need grape juice or ginger ale before the day is over. Orange juice and milk are good for the children if the grownups are having coffee. Carry drinking water in a thermos bottle or a canteen. Leave one or two drinking cups out of the packed-up lunch kit, with the water, and a box of Graham crackers for the children. Driving in the open air is likely to whet their appetites, and a mid-morning cracker with milk, or some juice, or water, may be counted as an extra meal, rather than "picnic." Sweets, salted nuts, chocolate bars, and other thirst-provoking foods often nibbled at between stops are best omitted.

Your picnic spot will undoubtedly be chosen for its charm and beauty. When the meal is over, pick up all papers and other refuse, and burn or bury them. Leave the woods as you would like to find them.

JELLIED PEEL IS TEMPTING DAINTY

Can Be Made From Grape-Fruit, Oranges or Lemons.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
You can make jellied peel from grapefruit, oranges or lemons. Most people like the flavor and size of the pieces from grapefruit best, when the peel is to be eaten as a confection. Jellied orange and lemon peel are served in the tin or glass containers, the jellied peel should keep in good condition for two or three weeks, so it is safe to make a supply a little before Christmas, in anticipation of the holidays and on the chance that you may need a few jars or boxes of the peel for last-minute gifts. The United States Department of Agriculture gives the following directions for making all kinds of jellied peel:

You will need for each 5 ounces of peel, 1 cupful (7 ounces) of granulated sugar for sirup, 2-3 cupful of water for sirup, or enough to cover; ¼ teaspoonful of salt; ½ cupful granulated sugar for jelly sirup. Thoroughly wash the jellied peel should keep in good condition for two or three weeks, so it is safe to make a supply a little before Christmas, in anticipation of the holidays and on the chance that you may need a few jars or boxes of the peel for last-minute gifts. The United States Department of Agriculture gives the following directions for making all kinds of jellied peel:

Put the peel into strips one-fourth to one-half inch wide. Parboil three times, for half an hour each time. Use a quart of cold water for this, cover the pan partly, and drain off the water after each boiling. The strips should then be tender. Handle them very gently to prevent breaking. Place the water, salt and sugar for the sirup in a saucepan about six inches in diameter, and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Then add the strips of grapefruit peel, carefully arranged parallel to each other to prevent being broken when turned. Cook rapidly for about 20 minutes, then reduce the heat and continue to boil for about 20 minutes longer or until the sirup is all absorbed. Great care must be taken at this point that the sirup does not scorch.

Quarantined!

Millions of cockroaches already exterminated! Beware!

THERE'S PANIC in Bagville! Cockroaches are dying by the thousands!

Use Peterman's Roach Food in your house. Exterminate every roach.

Don't fight roaches with a spray. You must have a powder. Peterman's is the right powder.

It entices roaches from their hiding places. They carry it back on their legs and bodies to their nests behind base-boards, under floors where no spray could possibly reach.

Every adult roach, the young, every egg in the entire colony is exterminated. No odor. Nothing is left but a little dry dust. Use

Cat Adopts Shunks

A mother cat with four kittens came to the farm of F. A. Jones at Brookfield, Mo., but Jones, having other ideas on the subject, assigned the four kittens to the creek. The next day his small son informed him that the kittens were safe and sound. Recalling the traditional nine lives, Jones investigated and found that the cat had acquired four other kittens without doubt, but instead of their being some other fellow's offspring they were of the genus nephtilis, or common American skunk—Indianapolis News.

Corporation Runs Farms

One Boston corporation is running 20 farms in Iowa bought at sacrifice prices, says Capper's Weekly. Babson, the statistician, believes that during the next few years a number of such corporations will buy up at bargain prices the best of the farms now for sale. Several concerns have been organized for this purpose. The farming of the future, Babson believes, may be done by big business corporations the same as in other branches of industry.

Fattest Empire Knight

Maul Pomare, minister of health in New Zealand for the last 14 years, is reported to be the most corpulent knight of the British empire. Tradition in New Zealand requires that at least one member of cabinet should be Maori, and Pomare fills that role. He is a physician by profession, a graduate of the University of Chicago.

Another Use for Laths

When the schooner Rebecca R. Douglass of Machias, Maine, collided with the steamer Eastern Crown there appeared to be no reason why it shouldn't go right down. But it didn't, and seven men were later rescued from the wreck by a coast guard boat. What kept the schooner afloat was a cargo of laths.

Work on Odd Railroad

Cured His Dyspepsia

Sylvester Marsh, son of New Hampshire farmer, was made the butt of many gibes when he proposed the idea of building a railroad to the summit of Mount Washington. But he has accomplished the project and it has been called the most astonishing engineering feat that marked the early days of the Boston.

The inventor was called "Crazy Marsh," and his proposed feat was designated "a railroad to the moon," writes the Boston Post recently. But despite the public ridicule and opposition he built the first railway of his kind in the world. The formal opening of the road to a point known as "Jacob's Ladder" took place August 14, 1888, and on July 3, 1899, the road was completed to the summit, with trains running.

Marsh once testified before a senate committee that he built the road to cure a case of dyspepsia. He had retired after a few years of intense dyspepsia forced him to do something to save his health. He got the unique railroad idea and worked it out.

Old Tower Once Home

of Distinguished Men

At Inglewood, where it has the double attraction of a great age and of association of famous and well-to-do people, Francis Bacon lived here for nine years in the early part of the Seventeenth century, when it was called "Canabury house." One of the upper rooms has his name and a Latin inscription over the door. Charles Lamb, who lived near by at 84 Duncan terrace, and Washington Irving, before he went for his three years' visit to Spain, rambled over the old tower.

The most interesting thing about this old tower is that Oliver Goldsmith wrote "The Vicar of Wakefield" here when he had taken refuge from his creditors in the lodgings of his friend, Newberry, the bookseller, but a small boy who inspected the tower with a lantern in the Compton room, where he will ignore the lovely paneling to inspect the very bullet, embedded in the wall, that was aimed at Sir Walter Raleigh.

All Food to Ostrich

An ostrich nearly lost its life in an effort to swallow five yards of stout rope. When the keeper made the discovery more than half the rope, which had been inadvertently left in the cage by a painter, had disappeared down the bird's throat. The keeper, seeing that the bird was in difficulties, decided to relieve it of its five-yard meal. Owing, however, to the efforts of the ostrich to kick his way out, the task was difficult. By long and steady pulling, however, the keeper eventually recovered the rope. Ostriches are not at all particular what they devour. One at the zoo recently swallowed a boy's scout's hat without any ill effects.

Keys to Ancient Cities

When the mayor of a city today presents a "key to the city" to a distinguished visitor, it means nothing more than an expression of good will, but there was a time when it meant actual access to a city. That was in the days when European cities were surrounded by walls. When such a city was surrounded by the keys of the gates were turned over to the conquerors. Gates usually were closed at nightfall and if a distinguished visitor wanted to go in and come out as he pleased he was entrusted with the key. It is upon this ancient custom that the modern key ceremony is based.

Famous Eastern City

Hippus was one of the cities of the Decapolis in Palestine, its precise location being uncertain. In the Talmud it occurs under the name of Susita, and the Greek name Hippus is probably simply a translation. It was the rival of Tiberias, and the two towns stood opposite each other on the sea of Galilee.

Hippus is spoken of as an example of a heathen city in the midst of the land of Israel, but it seems to have been an important place, for the whole region around it was called after it, Hippene.

Cashmere Shawls Best

The most beautiful of the Indian or cashmere shawls come from the looms and handlooms of Cashmere (Kashmir), a little country of Asia situated just north of the Punjab, among the Himalaya mountains. Among the sights of this range are found the steep and峻峻 which produce the fine wool used in the manufacture of these shawls. Shawl manufacturing is the most important industry of the Punjab, and the best shawls are made at Calcutta, but some can compare with those of Cashmere.

Perhaps He Was

Dora was interviewing the man of her heart in the privacy of the drawing room.

On the previous evening her fiancé had asked permission to marry her. The father agreed immediately, but the wife was not so cordial and did not approve.

"I'm afraid mother is going to be a bit awkward, Dick, dear," began Dora.

"She thinks that because you are an actor you're effeminate."

"Well," he confessed, "compared to my father, I suppose I am."

FISH AND GAME LAWS

ARE NOW IN EFFECT

The acts of the 1927 General Assembly of the State of Indiana became effective May 15th, when Governor Ed. Jackson issued his proclamation. The new acts contain many changes and additions to fish and game laws. What is necessary and of great importance is that the people know these laws. Unless they do, many surely will violate them. It is the duty of the Department of Conservation to give wide publicity to the new acts. By so doing violations will be held at a minimum, and the purpose of the new acts accomplished. Much publicity has already been given to the new laws, but without doubt, only a small per cent of the people at present really know them. The press of the State has rendered valuable service in giving information relative to the matter. The information service of the Department handled by Charles H. Parrish, has sent out many news letters to daily and weekly newspapers, and the Division of Fish and Game of the Department in its monthly bulletins has kept all of the organized sportsmen's clubs of the State informed as to changes made. Posters, folders and booklets of the laws have been printed and sent for distribution to county clerks and game wardens. Notwithstanding all this, it is deemed wise to again mention in this bulletin and future ones the important changes made by the legislature. For the information of persons who trap or hunt fur-bearing animals in this State would advise that no changes whatever were made in the laws protecting fur-bearing animals, but hereafter every person trapping off his own premises must have a license, which heretofore was not necessary. The most important changes in fish and game laws made were:

1. That residents must have a license to fish if fishing out of their own county. The new resident license with fishing an abating. The new license is $1.00, the same as formerly. Hereafter all such licenses will terminate on the last day of the year, the same as an auto license expires annually. Persons holding old licenses but who had not expired can use them until they run out, but no longer. Children under 15 need no license to fish, but women must have license to fish now. A married woman can no longer fish on her husband's license.
2. Non-resident fishing licenses now cost $2.25 and terminate with the calendar year. Those issued prior to the taking effect of the new laws, and those unexpired from 1926 will be valid for the term for which they were issued. Children under 18 exempted only.
3. Non-resident hunting, fishing and trapping licenses now made to expire with the calendar year. Like the two above old unexpired licenses are good until they run out. The price of these licenses remains the same, $15.50. Some persons have inquired if holding an old unexpired license did not give them the right to hunt and fish under the laws in force at the time of license was issued. The answer to this is that the new laws must be followed.
4. From now on persons are required to have license to take fish with seines, nets and traps from the Wabash river where it forms the boundary between Indiana and Illinois, such licenses expire annually on January 1st. For each 100 yards of seine, gill net, trammel net or fraction thereof, the license, if a resident must pay $10.00, per year for a license. If a non-resident $40.00. A license to use hoop nets, cast nets or other kind of net, or a fish trap costs a resident $5.00 per year. The cost for a non-resident is $20.00. The number of seines, nets or traps paid for, are set forth with the license, as well as the number of tags which go with the license. Under the new law all seines, nets and traps must be held within one mile of boundary waters. And devices along the Wabash river State line, not tagged, will be confiscated; also those found with improper tags. Those found with a spear or rig in now unlawful anywhere in this State, and can no longer be used on the Wabash river in boundary waters are formerly. Wabash river licenses can be secured only direct from the Division of Fish and Game.
5. Mussel license is now required by all persons taking mussels for commercial purposes from Indiana waters. A resident is required to pay $2.00 and a non-resident $15.00 for such license. They expire annually on the last day of February. Under the law the minimum size at which mussels can be taken is two inches. Only one boat with a trailer can be used, nor more than 20-foot bars. The Department has authority to close certain areas of river to the taking of mussels for five years or less, but this section of the law will not be put into operation until 1928. Mussel licenses are also issued only from the Division's office at Indianapolis by sending proper fee and return address.

6. Indiana game laws now conform to the regulations of the U. S. Department of Agriculture as relates to the protection of Migratory game birds except that under Indiana laws, the bag limits are less on ducks, geese and brant. Indiana law permits one to kill 15 ducks per day. The bag is 6 on geese and brant. Under federal regulations 25 ducks and 8 geese and brant is the daily bag limit. On account of Indiana laws being more stringent they must be observed. Several changes have been made in the federal regulations since the legislature adjourned. Notice of these will be brought later to the attention of hunters.

7. The following species of fish are now protected by a closed season May 1st to June 15th: Large and small-mouth bass, silver or yellow bass, pike-perch or wall-eye, bluegill crappies, often called calico bass, and strawberry bass or rock bass, known as goggle eye and red eye, and the red-eared sunfish, also called buffalo sunfish. Bag limits are 6 per day on all kinds of bass combined; 25 on blue gills, crappie, rock bass and red-eared sunfish combined, and 6 on pike-perch or wall-eye. No bag limit on pickrel or yellow perch. The length limits on fish now effective are 11 inches on the two kinds of yellow bass; 10 inches on silver or yellow bass; 15 inches on pike or pickerel; 6 inches on crappie; 7 inches on yellow perch, and 5 inches on bluegill, rock bass and red-eared sunfish. Common sunfish may be taken at any time in any number, or any size.

8. The open season on rabbits will be October 1st to January 10th with daily bag limit of 10 per day. The sale of rabbits in close season is prohibited. The open season on squirrels is now August 1st to November 1st with bag limit of 5 per day. No close season or bag limit on red squirrels, commonly called pinkeys. Fox squirrels, gray and other squirrels are all protected. It is now unlawful to sell any squirrel at any time except for breeding purposes.

9. The minimum fine for violation of the new acts is $10.00 with a maximum fine of $200.00. A jail sentence of 6 months may be added for certain violations of the new laws, as for instance for spearing or netting fish illegally.

Explaining Meteors

Meteors are never seen from the earth except when they come in contact with the earth's atmosphere. Their speed through the atmosphere causes them to burn and produce the light which we see. They are then within the clutches of the gravity of the earth and always fall toward it.—Pathfinder Magazine.

The Poor Polyglot

A well known blind beggar, who is able to say "Thank you" in several languages, wears a placard saying, "This blind man is a polyglot." One Eye Her Oculist

The oculist had a job on the other morning. Every now and then he smiled quietly to himself. "I know," he said finally to the woman, "mothers are wonderful people. They always believe there is nobody quite so clever as their own children."

"Now, my mother, for instance, thinks I know everything about eyes. She doesn't confine her boasting to the neighbors, either. She is just as likely as not to walk up to a nearsighted or cross-eyed passenger in the subway and tell him his eyes need attention and that her son is the best oculist in New York. She says that isn't helping business for me; it's helping people who don't know enough to look after their sight. But the joke is on her."

"Yesterday she met a man who is distinctly and painfully well-eyed. You mustn't let your eyes go like that," she told him immediately the introductions were made. "My son can do anything with eyes. Why don't you go to see him?" "I'm afraid he can't do anything with this eye, madam," answered the object of her solicitude. "You see, it's a glass one."—New York Sun.

Witty Professor Gave

Nickname to Students

Law students of the freshman class in the University of Texas are designated as J. A.'s. The term is used by all students on the campus, but few of them outside the law school know its import and origin.

When Judge W. A. Sinkins was a member of the law faculty, he was explaining one day to a large freshman class some of the weightier matters of the law. It was springtime and the students apparently were thinking of going of napping on the grass in some shady nook than of what the professor was saying.

Suddenly upon the clear air there came the discord of a donkey's bleat. Sinkins paused in his lecture while the students giggled over the animal's bleating. When the noise had subsided Sinkins remarked:

"Some poor jackass is calling his four-foot brother, so I'll let all of you out to go comfort him." Since then, every bleating hewer in the school has been designated as a J. A.—Kansas City Star.

Mandy Speaks

When Old Mandy, rated as a treasure, a white folk she washed for, first came to the neighborhood, she let fall the remark that "if folks hasn't got education they got to use day books."

So anybody might have known she would have her own views on this business of Christmas presents. The other day, when the holiday dawned of the fine fat and shining little picture nannies looked up mountain high, how did you suppose she settled them? Simply informed the five that Santa Claus was dead! "He died, do you hear?" says Mandy, "and what's new ain't no to come to tie again neither!" How many other loads of families would have followed her example if they dared?—Philadelphia Record.

TRUSTEE STROMBECK

RECEIVES MANY LETTERS OF CONGRATULATION

Milo Strombeck of North Webster, trustee of Tippecanoe township who a week ago announced that no woman school teacher who wears skirts shorter than six inches below the knee, uses rouge or lip stick will be employed by him, has been so flooded with letters congratulating him on his stand, he may have to employ a private secretary. Strombeck also said teachers using "hip flasks" or tobacco need not apply.

Since last Monday the trustee has received an average of 20 to 25 letters a day from preachers, school teachers, former school teachers and school patrons commending his stand. Letters from the states of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Kentucky have been received and from many cities including Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Chicago, South Bend, Elkhart, Goshen, Warsaw and Mishawaka.

The trustee has received applications from approximately 50 to 60 teachers who state in their letter to him that they desire to teach in a school where the restrictions mentioned by Strombeck are enforced. Some of the leading teachers' agencies in the United States are also in communication with the Tippecanoe township trustee.

SOMETHING ABOUT LIVER

SCIENTIFIC research, together with many practical tests over long and short periods, show that liver appealingly cooked and served frequently tends to increase the count of red corpuscles in the blood. A diet rich in liver is now being given in leading institutions as a corrective of anemia and ailments of such character.

Calif's liver is considered a great delicacy and as such is high-priced in most markets. Young pig's liver, young beef and lamb are very acceptable and are lower in price.

For those who are not familiar with the methods of cooking liver, the following recipes will be helpful:

Baked Liver.

Have the liver cut into inch and a half slices. Cut gashes lengthwise three-fourths of an inch deep. Lay strips of fat salt pork into these gashes. Have ready a well-greased baking dish. Place in the dish a layer of thinly sliced onions to the depth of an inch and one-half. Lay the livered liver on the onions, completely covering, dust with salt, pepper and flour, then pour over a pint of stewed and strained tomato. Put into a hot oven; when the tomato juice begins to boil cover and reduce the heat. From that point bake for one hour in a moderate oven.

Calif's Liver Braised.
Lard the rounded side of the liver with pork fat. Fry one onion in salt pork fat. Put the liver and fried onion into a baking pan, add hot water or stock to half cover, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of pepper and one tablespoonful of herbs. Cover and cook in a moderate oven two hours, basting often. When ready to serve, strain the liquor, season with lemon juice and pour it over the liver.

Potted Liver.
Braise a calf's liver as above. When tender, cut fine and pound to a paste, adding enough of the strained liquor in which it was cooked to moisten it; add one-half cupful of butter melted, rub through a sieve after mixing well, pack into jars and cover with melted butter. Keep in a very cool place.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

WOMEN AS SHOPPERS

IT WOULD be almost possible to prove the superiority of the female intelligence over the masculine by the fact that all women and very few men know how to shop.

The average male person is a pathetic creature in a department store. He is lost and bewildered. He does not know his own mind, and so does not know what he wants.

As a consequence he usually takes what is offered to him. His main object is to get the ordeal over and done with so that he may find himself once more out on the sidewalk in the security of the street.

This masculine helplessness as compared with feminine resourcefulness in the matter of buying explains one of the greatest tragedies of bachelorhood.

In the last century the political economists invented an imaginary creature called "the economic man."

He was absurd because he never existed, except in the minds of those who created him.

He was supposed to "buy in the cheapest market," for example.

If a man wants a few shirts or a few pairs of gloves, he is as likely as not to go to a shop and pay a lot more for them than the same articles would cost him in another establishment in the same street.

But his wife or mother or sister does not do anything foolish like that. She seems to know with unerring instinct where she can do business to the best advantage to herself.

If a man is charged twenty cents, or thirty cents, for a glass of orange juice at his breakfast in a restaurant, he may grumble because he notices that the price has been raised.

He does not think of the price of the orange that went into the squeezer, as a woman would do, and make up his mind to go somewhere else in the future.

So much the lord of creation, is the natural prey in most cases of the modern offender, known to the law as the "prostitute," while woman is always feared by that creature.

It is a simple matter but significant. The supposedly wise philosopher who imagined the "economic man" made a great mistake to start with.

They would have been safer ground if they had talked about the "economic woman." For she is "economic" in the other sense. She knows how to shop.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"GOOD AS A PLAY"

FREQUENTLY, when something particularly amuses us we say that the occurrence or the remark was "as good as a play." In many instances the reference is sarcastic, meaning too "good" to believe!

Most of us in using the expression are quite unconscious that we are quoting royalty's "For in 'as good as a play' we have something more than four mere words. We have a phrase coined by a king.

He was Charles II and it was while visiting parliament and listening to the debates that he is known to have used the expression for the first time.

In Macaulay's "Review of the Life and Writings of Sir William Temple" we find these words:

"The king remained in the house of peers while his speech was taken into consideration—a common practice with him, for the debates amused his staid mind, and were sometimes, he used to say, as good as a comedy."

STRIPES IN BATHING SUITS; FOOTWEAR FOR THE JUNE BRIDE

BATHING suits tell a story of infinite mode this season ranging from the ultra-elaborate to the severely simple. As to the fanciful sort fashioned of silk, satin, crepe and other materials, their novelty knows no bounds. Perhaps those of taffeta in plaids of every description pronounceable most definitely. Sometimes the plaids are contrasted to achieve the most startling effect, such as a bathing ensemble which emphasizes a bizarre novelty plaid for the suit with a plain black plaid for the beach coat.

There are also many charming

models of gay silk print. Those fashioned of cretonne or gingham, processed so as to be waterproof, are as unique as they are fashionable.

Let those who are inclined to the fanciful bathing suit select models of such fabric as makes its appeal, but for the bathing enthusiast who goes in for the best of the sport the two-piece jersey-knit swimming suit consisting of form-fitting slip and trunk or tight is the popular choice. Just as in the case of so many of the new sweaters which so fashionably flourish skirts that run around and around, so are many of the smart bathing suits distinguished by their stripes of many colors as here pictured.

It must be kept in mind, however, that even the simplest bathing suit is expected to be accompanied by a spectacular beach equipment. When lady emerges from the ocean blue she will don a pair of dainty rubber shoes which proudly boast shapely high heels, with straps across the ankle in latest approved fashion.

Another novelty is the triangle of robe which shall include footwear to complement the individual costume.

A most enthusiastic patron of the fashionable shoe-shop just now is the summer-time bride-to-be. From the daintiness of the footwear everywhere displayed, one suspects that the makers thereof must have had the requirements of the June bride's trousseau in mind.

When Lady Newly-Wed makes her appearance at the country club, she may very properly choose to accompany her all-white or pastel sports frock with a pair of white kidkin oxfords such as is shown in the lower right corner of this group. An interesting lace treatment and tiny perforated sculptors add a charming touch.

The white kidkin pumps with hand-made buckles of jet beads interpret the smart black-and-white mode for afternoon dress. A center-strap sandal of white kid (see below to left) is an essential for the all-white costume. Another popular sandal pattern exhibited at the top of the right in this group is of rose-blush pliable gay rubber which is designed to serve either as a cap or a shoulder protection. Interesting, too, among beach accessories are the new forms of multi-colored leather strips. The model bootery is a scene of superlatively lovely footwear such as a few years ago would have been thought to be the dream of a visitor.

FARMER WOMAN IN OKLAHOMA

Prizes Lydia E. Plinkham's Vegetable Compound Because It Gave Her Health and Strength

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing. They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron who stood among them, she was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a household of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her falling health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Plinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleep well and is no longer blue and timid.

This woman, Mrs. M. A. Plinkham, R. 2, Box 287, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Plinkham, what are you doing yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Other women who have to work hard and keep things going may find the road to better health as Mrs. Plinkham did through the faithful use of Lydia E. Plinkham's Vegetable Compound. Ask your neighbor.

BOUND to the NORTH

by Harold MacGrath
Illustrated by Henry Jay Lee
Copyright by Harold MacGrath - Released thru Autocaster Service

WHO'S WHO

Jeanne Beaufort, daughter of a Virginian, swears vengeance against the North for the deaths of her father and two brothers in the Civil War. She is enrolled as a spy for the Confederate government and instructed to use the wiles of her sex to bring Parson John Kennedy, a Union spy, within the power of the South. Discovered in the act of spying upon the group of Secret Service agents of whom Kennedy is the leader, Jeanne is given the alternative of death or marriage to one of their number. They are all masked, but Jeanne rejects one volunteer and chooses another of the eleven as her husband. To herself, she calls him irony. Parson Kennedy is pious as the ceremony and the bride and groom, ignorant of each other's names and not even knowing who he is like, sign the marriage certificate as "Mary Smith" and "John Jones." As witnesses the group sign as follows:

John Kennedy, D. D.
C-W-G-H H-R-D-M
A-N-G-S P-A-G-G
G-R-D-A J-K-F-F
J-W-G-A F-I-N-S
C-W-G-H W-B-B-H

They leave her bound and disappear.

Henry Morgan, a Southern officer and spy for the Confederacy, is in love with Jeanne. She rejects his advances. One day, getting a letter signed "your husband," Jeanne realizes that her identity is known. Disguising herself with a brown wig and staining her face, Jeanne assumes the name of Alice Trent, and goes to Baltimore to carry on her work. She is unaware that a real "Alice Trent" lives in Baltimore.

John Armistage, a Union officer, rescues Jeanne from a drunken man. Jeanne induces Morgan to abduct Kennedy so that she may question him about the names on the certificate and about a curious tattoo mark on the arm of the man she married. Armistage rescues him, but Jeanne escapes. She sees placards announcing a reward for her capture, "dead or alive."

General Armistage, father of the Captain, is discussing plans for the final campaign against Richmond when Jeanne, attempting to steal them is captured. Though she is in boy's clothes, Captain Armistage recognizes her. She says nothing, and is bound to lead a firing squad in the morning.

CHAPTER VII

The officers filed out gravely, the General's last at the door. All those eyes that had been like a puff of smoke. But it was certain in the minds of them all that nothing on God's earth could prevent a firing squad.

Captain Armistage entered his tent calmly in the night, once there felt to pacing, and by he snuffed the candle.

The spy lay motionless, wasting no effort at the task, the moon too gently. The moon paced back and forth and occasionally passed to glance inside the tent. Hour after hour went past.

At midnight the spy heard a rattling sound at the rear of the tent. It was the clinking sound as of a sword being drawn.

Presently a shadowy hand worked at the flap.

There came a faint whisper: "When you hear me talking to the guard, say that at the rear. Make straight for the river. The way is fairly clear."

The whisperer's hand being caught by the small ones. He drew it back and saw the light had the feet of the guard.

A little later a shot was heard at the rear of the tent. Two more shots followed rapidly at the tent of General Armistage where a light still burned.

"I have a report, sir, that the spy has been caught."

At a glance Captain Armistage had recognized the man. Just as the General had looked into the tent and the spy was yet there. When General Armistage returned to his tent he found the son.

"The father's plans gone to pot in a night. No matter! Spies outside and spies within! In God's name, how can we end the war when such things exist?"

"I am the traitor, Father," said the son quietly.

"What's that?" The General leaned across the table, his mouth open, his eyes at their widest.

"I freed the spy."

"You, my son?"

"Yes. But before you give any orders, Father—"

"Say Sir!" came quickly through the lips of the man opposite.

"Before you give any orders, sir, want you to hear the rights of it, such as they are."

"Rights? Did you give the spy his information, too?"

"No sir. When the spy said to search him after he was dead, did not the strangeness of that request strike you, sir? It was a woman."

"A woman? The General stepped back. You say a woman?"

"Yes, sir, a woman. And if you will permit me to explain, sir, the explanation will be short."

"There was no intrigue, such as would be your natural supposition. This is why I released her." And briefly the son recounted what had taken place on a certain night in Richmond.

"Sir, I was one of those men, and she was the woman."

"Go to your tent and consider your self under arrest. You're no son of mine henceforth."

When Jeanne Beaufort climbed ashore she knew now and understood he had saved her because he had recognized her, not as Alice Trent but as the Jeanne Beaufort who had faced alone the anger of eleven men.

He was the man who had stepped out that night and offered to marry her to save her life. She knew that she loved!

Five days later Jeanne was serving tea in a drawing-room in Washington. Every time the bell rang her heart leaped wildly. She feared to see Armistage; yet consistently she longed to see him. She craved to know if he would recognize in "Alice Trent" the woman of the left, the cabin and the tent.

One day he appeared in mufti with an officer unknown to her, a Lieutenant Lowell. She watched him and Armistage, and her covert scrutiny finally convinced her that he harbored not the slightest suspicion that "Alice Trent" and the woman he had saved were one and the same. They were at war, he on one side and she on the other. God was a just God but nevertheless He had His playful ironies. She loved a Yankee!

When Armistage and his friend left the house they walked along in silence for a while.

"Well," said Armistage finally. "She is all you say, John, and more. But if I possessed your turn of mind I'd fight shy of her."

"That's my intention. What would you have done in my place?"

"Where?"

"Jeanne Beaufort."

"Oh, Well since you ask, I'd have got up with the firing squad. It's a devil of a mess you're got yourself in. Here you are guilty of a treasonable act, meriting court-martial and long imprisonment. Your dad has disowned you. And who could blame him? You are at liberty today because the whole organization stood back of you. You're on probation; so mind how you walk. You'll never convince those who don't know that you didn't have an intrigue with that woman. Your father turned you over to the Government—a pretty brave thing to do. Have you been to see Kennedy yet?"

"No, I suppose I ought to."

"Go to his rooms now. Tell him you thank him. Without his aid you would have faced court-martial. He's not always clear in the upper-story for he had a tough time of it, and it left its mark."

"All right, I'll go over and have a talk with him."

Kennedy did not seem particularly glad to see Armistage.

"Son, there's only one real question I'm going to ask you," he said. "Did you know this Jeanne Beaufort that night in Richmond? Had you ever met her before?"

"Good Lord, no!"

"Well, for a while you will be under my orders. Watch that rogue Morgan; follow every woman he speaks to. In other words, find this woman you let go; find Jeanne Beaufort."

The old plantation home of the Beauforts was like the run of its kind. The kitchens were under a single story. The shelving roof ran up to the windows of the wing, to the spare bedrooms. Upon the shingles lay the figure of a man, and from the corner of his eye he watched the nearest bivouac fire. By and by taps sounded, and the man entered the garret and dropped to sleep.

Jeanne had returned home to find that her father's regiment, with others, was quartered at the plantation for the severer months. She was delighted, it puts wings to depressing thoughts; it gave her physical as well as mental occupation.

It was like olden times to see these bright-faced young officers about with their exaggerated compliments, the courtly airs which the Northerners lacked.

Tonight she sat at the piano. The younger officers were gathered about her. The older members of the staff sat about the table talking in subdued tones. They too, had insisted that she play and sing while they puttered over the maps which were growing smaller and smaller.

The entrance of an orderly interrupted a song.

"Sir, I have to report that Sentry Jennings found this pair of shoes at the end of his beat. They were warm when he found them sir."

Instantly Jeanne and her admirers gathered about the table. A General took up a shoe and looked it over carefully.

"Mr. by the Yankee government," was his comment.

"Army shoes," said Jeanne. "More than that, they are officer's shoes."

All except the General looked at her in wonder.

"You are right, Miss Beaufort," said he coming to her rescue. "It signifies that we have an unwelcome guest hereabouts. The next thing is to find him, Mann, will you see the proper orders are given to prevent this Yankee from getting out of our lines?"

"Yes sir!" The young officer ran from the house.

The General put the shoes upon the table and rose. The rest of the staff rose with him.

Presently Jeanne was alone. With her arms folded across her bosom she bent her gaze upon the shoes, mute witnesses of a business she knew only too well. Somewhere in the camp there was a man in stockinged feet.

They were stout shoes, but at the same time they were small and shapely. The muck which was still damp on them, made manifest that the owner had come across the river below the plantation, for at the north of the camp the soil was firm and rocky.

From the South! What did that mean? A slight shiver wrinkled her spine. There was ever that fear in her heart that some day she would meet one man in pursuit of his duty. What would happen when that dreaded moment came?

He was in his stocking-feet. A man did not wander about a camp in that fashion. He was somewhere within the house! This knowledge came as a shock.

A Yankee spy, an officer, was hiding under her roof! Her first impulse was to seek the General and disclose to him her discovery. Then the old weariness and distaste bore down upon her.

Lately she had executed her missions loyally, with the same care and shrewdness as heretofore; but the passionate hate was gone. A Yankee was still a human being. (continued next week.)

FARMS AND MACHINES.
OIL WASTE—PAY LATER.
OUR CIGARETTE TAX.
FORD NO. 15,000,000.

The hope of the farmer is in better machinery and more intelligent use of it. It is not alone the selling price of a bushel of wheat that counts but the amount of farm time and labor used to produce the bushel. A man working with a pick and shovel could not afford to dig up and sort out gold-bearing gravel if it paid him five dollars a ton average. But giant dredging machines in the Sacramento Valley are making millions working gravel that pays less than twenty cents a ton.

Edwin J. Clapp shows what machinery is doing and will do to help solve farm problems, and why United States farms can compete with European cheap labor, and even survive high railroad freight rates. On American farms, one worker on the average produces twelve tons of cereal. In Europe one worker produces one and one-half tons.

From 1910 to 1920, American farm population increased only four per cent, while production of wheat increased fifty-eight per cent, corn thirty-five per cent, cotton forty-seven per cent, cattle thirty-seven per cent, hogs sixty-five per cent. The farm problem is not to be solved according to Mr. Clapp, by "keeping the boys on the farm," but by letting the boys go to the factories, using more machinery on farms, and thus reducing cost of production.

"Light automobiles and trucks are being produced in greater volume than ever before." Such is the official report. There is only one cloud on the automobile horizon, and that's an oil cloud.

Reckless production and reckless price cutting in the oil industry mean trouble ahead for motor owners. Oil is being wasted, poured out and squandered on sandy roads where, over public officials can be persuaded to buy it at public expense.

Oil production is wastefully managed, prices are low—but today's low prices will be paid for with high prices later.

The country needs a continuous oil and gasoline supply at fair prices, which the Government should regulate.

The nation now is acting like a drunken youth, squandering a rich inheritance.

Lindbergh has good ideas. An enthusiastic French lady intended to spend 150,000 francs for a cup to celebrate his flight. She accepted gratefully and asked that the 150,000 francs be spent instead on children of French aviators who lost their lives promoting aviation. Lindbergh is a good representative of this country in Europe.

When Count Witte was in this country, representing Russia in the peace arrangements with Japan, he told this writer the national monopoly of vodka, the Russian drink, forty per cent alcohol, and sixty per cent water, which he originated, gave a profit just big enough to pay the cost of the Russian army.

It would interest Witte to know that the United States tax on cigarettes just about pays the cost of our army. Uncle Sam collected $227,000,000 in ten months this year from cigarette smokers.

A full fiscal years cigarette tax will about pay all army costs. If Government could collect the tax that the public pays to bootleggers it might pay for ALL Government expenses.

Henry Ford last week watched his machinery grind out Ford cars No. 15,000,000, and celebrated by taking a ride in the first car he ever built. Old car No. 1, with its two cylinders was taken out of the Ford museum and driven by Henry Ford with car No. 15,000,000 driving beside it.

A new Ford car, with a different gear shift, double the old Ford power and a speed of sixty miles an hour and more, will be seen in the late summer or early fall, that will begin a new Ford family.

FREIGHT TRAIN IS DERAILED

A west-bound freight on the Nickel Plate was derailed at a point near the Manwaring Chicken farm, one mile east of here, Thursday afternoon.

Although the train was composed of about eighty cars, only the caboose and the freight car directly ahead of it left the tracks. As is always the case in a wreck of this kind, the worst damage was done to the rails. The cars leaving the track and jumping onto the roadbed tore up several rods of the track, and the local section gang, along with men from Tippecanoe and Burket, were several hours repairing the track sufficiently for a derrick to get to the wreck.

The accident happened at approximately one o'clock and the wreck train pulled the cars back onto the rails about four o'clock.

Passenger trains were derailed over other roads.

IS SCENE OF THIRD ACCIDENT

The corner, 4 miles east of here, known as the Burket corner, where the Warsaw-Mentone pavement crosses the end of the Burket road, was the scene of a third accident within three weeks, Sunday night.

A man from Indianapolis, in the employment of J. W. Martin, approaching from the west, drove his Buick roadster into a telephone pole at the corner, to avoid a collision with a car which came around the corner from the south, driven by a Burket man.

The telephone pole was snapped into three pieces by the impact, and the front of the Buick was badly damaged. It was taken to the Robinson Garage in Warsaw for repairs. The driver of the roadster was thrown through the windshield and received a bad cut on his hand, and several small cuts about the face.

FIRE MARSHALL DRAFTS RULES TO ELIMINATE JULY FOURTH PERILS

In order that the spirit of Young America may reign July 4, but with safety to all persons, Alfred Houghton, state fire marshal, Thursday promulgated a set of rules, effective at once, regulating the sale of fireworks.

Houghton said the rules are designed to throw all the safety and possible around the handling and disposition of fireworks. In the rules he reserves the right to stop the sale or display of fireworks by any person doing the same in a careless or negligent manner or violating any of the rules established.

The rules follow: "No fireworks shall be put on display before June 20, and the display must be done in such a way that there will be no danger of the goods being exploded by the rays of the sun or other agency, and under such conditions that if any cause they are exploded, it will not cause the building to be set afire. This may be done by putting such fireworks in a nonflammable container completely inclosed above, below and on all sides except the front, in the display window.

"Sales may begin on June 20, but deliveries shall not be made of fireworks used until July 1, and must terminate on July 5.

"All dealers must keep all fireworks stored in nonflammable containers, after original cases have been unpacked.

"No fireworks that are capable of causing serious injury to the person by explosion shall be sold.

"No fireworks shall be sold to children under the age of twelve."

TIPPECANOE LAD RETURNS TO HOME

Forrest Kreighbaum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kreighbaum of Tippecanoe, returned to his home, Sunday afternoon after an absence of two weeks, following his mysterious disappearance on the evening of Monday May 30th.

The lad was non-talkative to his parents and they were unable to glean many details of his experience from him. This much is known, although.

On the night of Monday May 30, the lad set out for the town of Tippecanoe from the farm home of Albert Her, where he was employed. It was supposed that he was going to Tippecanoe and spend the evening in the usual way with his friends.

Before he had reached town, two men came from behind him, and knocked him unconscious by a blow on the head. It is thought their intent was robbery, but not much money was taken from the boy.

The strangers then took the lad to a point about seven or eight miles from Waynesville, Ohio, where he regained his senses, but he was unable to tell his parents what day or time of day it was then.

He wrote them a letter, relating his experiences, and told them he would return home as soon as he had earned sufficient funds.

Mr. Kreighbaum, accompanied by several other men, immediately went to Waynesville, but could find no clue to the whereabouts of the missing lad.

It is thought that the blow on the head the boy received at the hands of the strangers, left him in such a condition that at times he is irrational.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Flight of Chamberlin and Levine to Germany—"Lindy" Comes Home.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

TRAVELING considerably farther than did Lindbergh, but in no way dimming the glory of that young man's achievement, Clarence D. Chamberlin, pilot, and Charles A. Levine, his financial backer, flew in the Bellanca monoplane, Columbia, from New York to Elbeheim, Germany, a distance of about 3,800 miles. Their destination was Berlin, but they were compelled to land at the old town where Martin Luther was born and died. They obtained a little gasoline there and again started for the German capital, but fog again hampered them and they descended to a swampy meadow at the village of Kitzingen, near Kottbus, breaking the propeller. Repairs were made with the assistance of the Germans and next day the two Americans flew to the Tempelhof aviation field at Berlin.

Germany, especially Berlin, was wild with joy over the arrival of the Columbia, and the reception accorded the aviators was no less enthusiastic than that given Lindbergh in Paris. President von Hindenburg and everyone else all the way down the scale showed attention and honors to them, and they were the guests of Ambassador Schurman during their stay. Von Hindenburg and President Coolidge exchanged cable messages of congratulation and good will, and Berlin even renamed one of its streets "Columbia." In this respect the little town of Kottbus, however, had the jump on the capital, for in its gleam over the landing of the plane there its officials named a thoroughfare for Chamberlin.

Levine's part in the exploit was a complete surprise, even to his wife. At the last minute he stepped aboard the plane in his ordinary clothing and away they went on the long flight. Their earth inductor compass did not function well, and they made their way across the Atlantic largely by guess and by observing the drift of icebergs. Toward the end of the flight they ran into much rough weather and fog. Chamberlin and Levine said they intended to fly to the European cities, including Vienna; but as soon as the news of their safe arrival was received their wives started across to join them, and this admittedly complicated their plans. Whether or not they will fly back to America is undecided.

COMING home to receive the plaudits of his fellow Americans, Charles Lindbergh was a passenger on the cruiser Memphis, which was met, 100 miles at sea by a squadron of destroyers. As the Memphis entered the Potomac river from Chesapeake bay Saturday morning, she was met by the light dirigible Los Angeles and more than a hundred airplanes of all types—the greatest assemblage of aircraft ever assembled on the Atlantic coast. With this magnificent escort the cruiser moved up to the Washington navy yard, where Lindbergh went ashore. The first to greet him was his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, who had gone to Washington as the guest of the President. Then a special guard of honor, composed of all the aces of the American air service and others who have achieved distinction in flying, formed around the hero of the day. High service officers, public officials, all sorts of committees and other delegations fell in line and the triumphal trip began around the capitol and up Pennsylvania avenue to the Washington monument grounds. There on a special platform, were President Coolidge, the cabinet, the Supreme court justices and other notables, and all around them in a wildly cheering throng as large as the grounds would accommodate—perhaps 150,000.

Wearing his characteristic bushy smile, Lindbergh was escorted to the platform and presented to President Coolidge with a few fitting words pinned on his breast the new Distinguished Flying Service cross. The aviator and his mother were then driven to the temple White House, and for the following day and a half were banqueted and feted and interviewed and photographed without respite. Before his arrival in Washington Lindbergh was promoted to colonel in the Missouri National Guard flying service and was awarded the Langley medal by the Smithsonian Institution and the Hubbard medal by the National Geographic society. By radio on shipboard and from committees that journeyed to Washington he received innumerable invitations to visit cities and persons that wanted to entertain him. It was certain that he would visit New York, which had arranged a great reception for him, and Chicago hoped to have him as its guest during a military tournament June 24, 25 and 26. St. Louis of course will entertain him for that in his residence, and Little Falls, Minn., his "home town," expects a visit.

MIKOPOFF, Russian minister to Poland, was assassinated in the Warsaw railway station by a young Russian student, and alarmists see in the event and its consequences the possibility of another European war. Maxim Litvinoff, soviet assistant commissioner of foreign affairs, immediately dispatched a note to Warsaw demanding that the Polish government take responsibility for the murder and that Russian officials be permitted to take part in an investigation of the "plot which led up to the murder." The assassination, he said, was "part of the whole sequence of acts intended to disrupt the peace of Europe and to lead to a new world war." The note was a diplomatic masterpiece, and it linked it up with the raid on the soviet embassy in Peking, the raid in London and Great Britain's severance of relations with Russia.

The Poles made all sorts of official apologies for the murder and delayed reply to the note in the hope of finding some form that would conciliate Russia without hurting Poland's dignity. It was felt that compliance with Russia's demand for participation in the inquiry would be most difficult. The similar murder at Sarajevo in June, 1914, which led to the World war, naturally, was in all minds. However, Polish government circles regarded the tragedy as an internal Russian affair, saying that although it happened on Polish territory, Poland had no moral responsibility for it. As usual in such cases, the soviet authorities in Moscow staged a big popular demonstration against the Polish legation and ostentatiously protected it with troops.

PREMIER POINCARÉ of France told the chamber of deputies he hoped to get better debt settlement terms from the United States and that he intended to try, particularly, to realize that the French parliament would not ratify the accords with America and Great Britain in their present form. The premier said that was why he had made the "provisional" payments on the debt account—so as to keep free to renew the negotiations. His declaration came after he had remarked that "the French parliament does not seem to wish to ratify" the accords.

MAYOR THOMPSON of Chicago and the members of the executive committee of the recent flood control conference went to Washington last week to urge the passage of recommendations for legislation adopted by that gathering. The President has been urged by several national leaders to call congress in special session at least six weeks before the regular December assembly in order that the flood control and farm relief problems may be disposed of, and possibly revenue legislation framed, thus relieving the program of the regular session.

COMPLICATED and obscure political negotiations are going on in China that may result in at least temporary peace. The way, the prospect is that there will be no fighting in Peking and that the foreign legations will not have to move out. Chang Tiao-lin's armies having been driven by the Cantones, out of all the territory south of the province in which Peking is located, the Manchurian marshal is apparently making a deal with the opposing generals which will be followed by reorganization of the government through a people's conference. Chang is said to have stipulated that all the factions shall war on communism.

Meanwhile the troops of the foreign powers were gathering in Tientsin and that city looked like an armed camp. The reiteration was made that the forces will be solely for the defense of life and property, which assurance is accepted by the better class of Chinese. There is no intention immediately to reinforce the legation guard. The Peking foreign office, however, filed with Minister Murray a protest against the augmentation of the American forces at Tientsin, contending that under the Boxer protocol this country was entitled to maintain only such forces as were actually needed to keep open communications between Peking and the sea.

CHICAGO, having obtained from the legislature and the voters authority to raise funds for the erection of an adequate building for great public meetings, has become definitely a contender for the Republican national convention of 1928. Allen F. Moore, Republican national committeeman from Illinois, went down to Washington to find out whether President Coolidge would be willing to have the convention given to Chicago. He said the Chief Executive's attitude was sufficiently encouraging to warrant the city going after the prize. According to Washington correspondents, Mr. Moore was closeted with the President long enough to find out whether the city was going to be a candidate for another term, where he would prefer to be nominated, what Democrat he would prefer for an opponent, and what stand he will take on prohibition, but he came away completely unenlightened on any of these subjects. All he learned was that Mr. Coolidge has no objection to the holding of the Republican national convention in Chicago.

WILLIAM G. MCADOO, in a commencement day address at Tusculum college, Greenville, Tenn., declared the prohibition question presents a vital issue that responsible statesmanship cannot ignore, and challenged the political leaders of all parties to make known their stand on it. He uttered the warning that efforts to nullify the eighteenth amendment are part of a movement that menaces the foundations of popular government.

YEARS of litigation in which the government has sought to dissolve the International Harvester company and affiliated corporations as a combination in restraint of trade, ended when the United States Supreme court ruled that the Harvester company has neither restrained nor suppressed "a free, untrammelled, even and effective competition" in farm machinery.

The opinion of the court, written by Justice Sanford, affirmed the decree of a federal district court dismissing the government's petition in July, 1925, for an order compelling the Harvester company to dispose of its business and assets to at least three separate and distinct corporations with wholly separate owners and stockholders.

DEATHS of the week included those of Dr. Joseph Schneider of Milwaukee, a noted eye surgeon; W. R. Stansbury, clerk of the United States Supreme court; and Robert C. Hillard, veteran actor.

LACE AND CHIFFON NEGLIGEE; USE EARRING TRIM FOR HATS

MILADY'S boudoir is the scene of a picturesque warfare, where the negligee of ultra-feminine type is arming its beguiling charms against the gorgeous and modernistic coat and trouser mode. So far the score is a tie, whereas stylists declare the due recognition shall be given to each.

Speaking from the viewpoint of the ultra-feminine negligee, one is tempted to indulge in rapturous terms of "perfectly lovely," "adorable" and "just darling." In describing them. To come down to "what's what" in tenuous opened in regard to the new earring trim. With the dangling of the first earring ornament from the side of a snug-fitting, little chapeau, the idea has gained momentum until the vogue is at this moment one of surpassing importance.

Especially is the new earring trim performing a bit of magic in the way of contributing becomingness to the such end not-always flattering-to-the-face snug helmet-shape or molded-to-the-head skull caps. Promise of becomingness no doubt accounts for the and boudoir apparel, of the daintier type, it is largely a matter of lace and chiffon, styled in an alluringly feminine way. Which means that befrilled and befringed robes are lending their enchantment to the boudoir scene.

Negligees of the esthetic nature reflect the influence of the lace vogue, which at present everywhere dominates the fashion situation as it has not succeeded in doing for years. Sheer fabrics, too, abound in unstinted quantities.

The exquisite negligee in the picture is just such as should be included in the trousseau of the summer bride. It would be entrancing in pure white or in any of the "sweetly feminine" pastel colorings.

For the more formal types, yards and yards of filmy lace or chiffon transparencies resolve themselves infact of hat after hat being animated with cunning ornaments which sometimes require more than a passing glance to discern whether they are really pearl-studded earrings revealed from beneath the "bob," or decoration for the hat.

Even brimmed hats sometimes subscribe to earring embellishments, as will be seen in this picture, where, posed to the right below, is a handsome multi-colored hat with the fashionable earring trim, suspended from the brim and ribbon hats. While this mode is enhanced with a pair of earrings, it is just as good style, particularly for the snug-typed hat, to pose a dangling ornament at one side only.

Just-from-Paris hats emphasize a wide use of buckles, especially for little felt and ribbon hats. The smart felt shown at the top to the right in the picture illustrates a smart buckle placement. Not only buckles and earrings are in favor, but there is a decided trend toward employing ornaments of all sorts. Among popular ideas danger comes in twin pearl pins stand at the top of the list. A clever use of two sets of twin pins is shown in this group of hats, also the effectiveness of the dagger pins as an trimming for the small hat.

Dangle-dangle, dangle-dangle, goes the earring ornament at the side of milady's hat as if to proclaim its entree into the realm of millinery. Sometimes an idea is launched which takes the world of fashion by storm. This is exactly what has happened in regard to the new earring trim. With the dangling of the first earring ornament from the side of a snug-fitting, little chapeau, the idea has gained momentum until the vogue is at this moment one of surpassing importance. Especially is the new earring trim performing a bit of magic in the way of contributing becomingness to the such end not-always flattering-to-the-face snug helmet-shape or molded-to-the-head skull caps. HELP FOR SICK WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Restored the Health of Thousands

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. C. H. Hagman of 213 Schermer St., was in a run-down condition and could not do her housework. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at some time in their lives. I found your advertisement in my letter box," wrote

Mrs. Hagman, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief." Mrs. Hagman also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation, with good results. She says, "I am recommending your medicines to all I know who have symptoms the same as mine, and to others whom I think it will help. You may use my statement as a testimonial, and I will answer any letters sent to me by women who would like information regarding your medicines."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them. The Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass., will gladly furnish other women with these names upon request.

Sugar Be Praised

Dr. Woods Hutchinson finds health in the sugar bowl habit. "Fitting our forefathers, he says they obtained their carbohydrates, not in granulated sweetness, but in cannon-ball dumplings, loaded with chunks of fat, spices and sour prunes, which they called plum pudding. Small wonder, he says, those dumpling-eating pioneers awoke with a head like a concertina, and a mouth like a lime kiln."

K-R-O KILLS RATS ONLY

THE PERMANENT VAMP

(By D. J. Walsh.)

VACATIONS often prove to be puff-balls of time that we plan and work for all year long; then squish in one short week or two so that we have nothing left from it but a flat purse, a tired body and a lot of fun gone up in smoke. When I visit Aunt Cora I take home a respectable pocketbook, a rested body, and enough to think about for another year. That is why, instead of going up to camp with the girls, I am back at auntie's this summer.

I just pulled in last evening, and the very first question that popped out of my head after I had hugged off the train and kissed my waiting aunt was, "How are the Capertons?" "Individually or collectively?" she countered.

"Individually," I laughed. "Of course, it is Mrs. Caperton that I want to know about. Does she still have the whole house full of dolls about her like a chain of slaves?"

"My dear," auntie looked surprised, didn't I write you that there is a new Mrs. Caperton? You might have mistaken me for a flat tire. I felt so suddenly depleted of inward buoyancy. The Capertons lived next door to auntie, and I had seen enough of them on my visit last year to make me expect that the last thing in the world that would ever be new about their premises would be a new Mrs. Caperton.

"Did Roberta die?" I asked. "No, she finally ran away with Reggie Wade. I don't believe she ever thought her husband would divorce her."

"Such incredulity, I, myself, could scarcely imagine such a possibility. I had watched them together with much curiosity, last year and had hated Roberta thoroughly because she seemed at ease to nothing in life but her own desires. How could the reins have slipped for her, I wondered. Who on earth could have married her?"

I begged auntie to describe to me the only smiling said, "I'm going to let you see for yourself. Do you remember what I told you one time about vamps?"

I did recall now, since I thought of it, the strange expression she once made to me. She had told me that at heart all women are vamps, but that they were divided into two classes; permanents and temporaries; and if I wanted to know what made one permanent and the other temporary, because they were mothers at heart. Evidently, then, Dory Caperton had married a widow with a family of children. How would the Caperton kiddies take that? I wondered. Such a mix-up. Oh, well, they had never been used to seeing their own mother, anyway; they had been brought up on maids. And then I thought of Sybil Cramer. What had the change done to her? To my notion, she was the most pitiful one in the whole Caperton regime. I could not like her better than any of them, too. She used to talk to me across the fence. It seemed that she and Roberta had gone to school together, and that she, Roberta had married Mr. Caperton with all of his wealth, and the twins had arrived. Sybil's parents had both died and left her delirious. Roberta snatched at the chance and took Sybil in, making of the girl a mat to wipe her own pretty feet upon. Outsiders knew Miss Caperton as the twins' Caperton's companion and secretary.

Whenever there was company, Sybil was always about, quiet and unassuming in society and capable to perform the little duties that the hostess shirked. I should have died at such a job. She was always wearing Roberta's cast-off clothes, and then there were the children. Mrs. Caperton was one of those women who think that their duty is completed when their children are born. The twins and Roberta were not strangers, but Sybil played with them, nursed them, bound their fingers when they were wet, and made custard for them when they were sick. The most unbearable part of her, however, was the pretense of a love affair with Reggie Wade. Reggie was never dining with the Capertons. Roberta made the excuse that he was devoted to her secretary, but of course, anybody with a grain of sense could see through the game.

Over and over again I used to say to auntie, "Why does Sybil Cramer stay and make such a fizzle of her life? She is bright and capable and could hold down a position with a good salary attached to it and have some freedom and independence."

But auntie would never talk about Sybil, although I noticed that she was always extremely courteous and kind to the girl whenever she visited her portly aunt. All through my life the affairs of the Capertons were a never-ending source of delight to me. Perhaps it was because they were so wealthy and successful so lavishly, and all that sort of thing. At any rate, it was better than watching a picture show to sit at auntie's living-room window when they had dinner parties and look through the venetian balcony and great, high casements in to the Capertons' dining room. No matter who the guests were, there were always four persons at these parties that I was sure to recognize. There was Mr. Caperton, dignified and serious, who looked as if the whole affair was a terrible bore. There was Roberta, glittering with smiles and jewels and commanding attention with coquetry and artificial graces. And then there were Reggie and Sybil sitting beside each other. As for talking I don't believe he ever said two words to her on these occasions. Poor Sybil. Just watching her put a lump in my throat. She always looked sweet and unaffected and gracious, although no one ever seemed to take much notice of her. What had become of the girl in all this pandemonium of a family squall? I certainly hoped she had bettered herself in the way of jobs.

I could scarcely wait to see the second Mrs. Caperton. "I'll bet she's as fat and dumpy and unattractive as Roberta was spoiled and beautiful and witty," I said.

But auntie is like a rock when she makes up her mind not to talk. We were in the house by this time and the reply she made me was, "Well, dearie, the same old room is waiting for you. Better scramble up and take a cat nap before supper. If you need anything, just call me."

I went up to my room all right, but I did not take a cat nap. Instead I sat down on the gray velvet chair by the window and gazed my eyes on the scenery next door, for I was simply aching for a sight of the woman who had supplanted Roberta. In a few minutes the back door opened, and my heart missed a beat, then swung suddenly back to an even rhythm. It wasn't anybody worth mentioning—just the twins and Sybil. So Sybil Cramer was still sticking. Somehow I had hoped that she might work up enough to get a decent sort of job. But there she was, just as before, only dressed a little bit more stylishly. One of the twins had married, and the other had begun a game of throw and catch. After awhile Mr. Caperton loomed up from around one corner of the house, and he made room for him in the hall, and before long they were all laughing and having what I would call a peach of a time. Well, there was that much to say for the new wife. At least she was letting her husband unbend. But where in the world did she keep herself? I was growing impatient. Just then auntie appeared in the doorway of my room.

"You didn't tell me that Miss Cramer was still over there," I put at her. "That isn't Miss Cramer," said my aunt. "That is the second Mrs. Caperton."

Epic of Bravery and Death in the Desert

Tallal had seen what he had seen. He gave up and came back to his tent, then rode to the upper ground and sat there a while on his mare, shivering and looking fixedly after the Turks. He moved near to speak to him, but Andra caught my reins and stayed me. Very slowly Tallal drew his head back at his face; and then he seemed to make a dash for his horse. He dashed his stirrups into the mare's danks and galloped headlong, bounding low and swaying in the saddle, right at the main body of the enemy. It was a long ride down a gentle slope and across a hollow. We sat there like stones while he rushed forward, the drake hoofs of his horse, naturally loud in our ears, for we had stopped shooting, and the Turks had stopped. Both armies waited for him, and he reeled on in the bushes, evening till only a few lengths from the enemy. Then he sat up in the saddle and cried his war cry, "Tallal, Tallal," twice in a tremendous shout. Instantly they were all on him, he crashed out, and he and his mare, riddled through and through with bullets, fell among the lance points. Col. Thomas saw the advance in "The Epic of the Desert."

Law May Get Women Vote

Women are expected to observe since the Paul-Boncour bill, which calls for the mobilization of French citizens, "without distinction of age or sex." In the event of war, has been accepted by the chamber. It is illegal to deny women the vote. The different parties admit this claim, writes the Paris correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor. If women have their definite part to play in the defense of the country, they surely have their definite part to play in the government of the country. Whether it would be possible to translate this general agreement into a law remains doubtful. But the most powerful argument has been supplied, and the French, who are proud of their reasoning faculties, can scarcely resist the natural consequences of their decision to "conscript" women.

Crushes Wood Columns

A gigantic machine, with jaws which open to take in timber or assembled wood structures 30 feet in height and which can crush them like eggshells when the jaws crush together again, has been erected at Milltown, Wis. by the forest products laboratory. The machine is used for testing very large wood columns. It is possible to exert a force of a million pounds with it, and it is built to crush a wooden post a foot square. Its great range of testing speeds enables it to apply its tremendous load in the time of a few seconds of building setting on its foundation timber or with the speed of a train dashing onto a wooden trestle. Architects and engineers will find it one of the kind which this machine furnishes to the scientists at the laboratory.

THE MARSHMALLOW

THERE is nothing the children like better around the campfire than toasted marshmallows. In winter the grate is often the campfire and may be just as enjoyable. The marshmallow is a confection which lends itself to many culinary achievements. An ordinary cream or lemon pie becomes especially stylish when decorated with a few quartered or whole marshmallows. They puff up, look so tempting and taste so good that it always pays to have a box of them for use in food. Cornstarch pudding, chocolate pudding, Jello, salad dressings or fruit are all improved by the addition of a few marshmallows. An apple or other fruit pie baked uncovered and decorated with marshmallows is both attractive and digestible. Hot chocolate or cocoa for the children is made most festive by a marshmallow swimming around on top. Plain cookies, vanilla wafers, crackers or saltines are all the best of most attractive little cakes when decorated with marshmallows, nuts and fruit preserved or dried. Place in a hot oven to puff and brown. Figs soaked overnight in grape juice, then drained and stuffed with nuts and marshmallows are delicious. Pineapple marshmallows and whipped cream are delicious poured over slices of angel food for dessert. Gingerbread and sponge cakes cut in two white hot and filled with marshmallows, put together and placed in a hot oven to melt, then served as a dessert are delightful. Be sure that the mallows are fresh or the melting takes too long.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY

The young lady across the way says she doesn't believe in one-piece bathing suits, still regarding the cap as highly important, even with bobbed hair. (By McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

AS YOUNG AS SHE LOOKS

IN SPITE of all the problems that are bothering the world at present, this one, "Should women bob their hair?" continues to be discussed from New York to San Francisco and from Hudson Bay to the Gulf of Mexico.

This question has now entered on a new phase. It has been made practical in all the great industrial centers of the country because many employers have taken sides.

Some say that they do not approve of bobbed hair in business. Others say that they have no opinions on the subject, but may have later on.

Why, it may be asked, should there be such a fuss in a busy nation like America over a trivial matter like this? If anything feminine may be called trivial?

The fashion cannot be condemned as frivolous. In fact, it is perfectly innocent and youthful.

That consideration gives a hint as to the true cause of the objection to bobbed hair in business.

For some mysterious reason women in general, for their age, tend to grow younger and still younger in appearance.

The woman of thirty is more youthful in looks than her grandmother was at nineteen or twenty.

She does not lose interest in her appearance as her ancestors used to do. She considers that her husband ought to find her as charming as a wife and mother as he did when he first met her, and didn't know whether she would accept him or not.

An American woman always dresses as well as she can afford to; in general, looks as well as she can and always, nowadays, wants to be as young as she looks.

She doesn't change her opinion, or her practice, on this subject when she goes into business.

There is nothing sentimental or foolish about the matter. It has nothing to do with making an impression or anything foolish like that. It is just a question of self-respect, of physical efficiency.

Men take a different view. A great doctor said recently that every fresh gray hair in his head meant a new patient, and a successful lawyer said that his practice grew by leaps and bounds when he grew bald.

And so it goes. If women want to get along in the business world, they will have to make some concessions to masculine prejudices and not look as girlish as they can.

Do You Know

---??-- That? ---??--

THE saying, "To tell the cat," does not mean to observe. A colony of mice having suffered greatly from the sly tricks of a cat, met together to devise a remedy. A young mouse called at the meeting and bravely proposed that a bell should be hung from the cat's neck and thus timely notice of her approach would be given to the mice. This suggestion was greeted with great applause by the colony until a wise, old mouse put the pertinent question: "Who will hang the bell?"

Hence the expression, "To tell the cat," has come to mean to destroy or thwart a common enemy at a highly important risk. —Anna S. Turnquist.

The Fellow Who's Satisfied

By EVELYN GAGE BROWNE

I LOOK out for the fellow who's satisfied. And who thinks he knows it all. He has missed his chances and never tried.

So here's due for a good hard fall. He believes there's nothing more to know. That he's quite an smart as they make.

In fact he thinks he's the whole show. And most other folks a fake. But while he was putting himself on the back, This poor, self-satisfied guy.

He got switched off on a one-way track. While the chances passed him by. You've got to be up and doing today. With your eyes on the goal ahead.

And you've got to be quick or the chance goes away. And the other chap has it instead. You can't sit around in this age of ours. When there's such a lot to do.

And every one of life's wanted hours Means just that much loss for you. You must have still higher things in mind. And know there's a lot to learn.

That there's always something better to do. And a chance at every turn. And the man who knows that he is more than half on the way To grow and make his knowledge grow.

More vital with every day. So don't be content till you've done your best. And never be satisfied. Until you've had the hardest test. And have tried, and tried, and TRIED!

And THEN don't be satisfied, My Friend. For there's greater things to do. Than were ever done—and there's just no end To the chances in store for YOU! (Copyright.)

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"CATERWAULING"

THIS term, frequently used to describe a tumult of harsh noises, is assumed to refer, of course, to the cries of cats. And while it is true the animal association enters into its significance, there is far more to the word than that. There is a story in its origin.

"Caterwauling" is English for "Katsenmusik" (cat music), which is the German translation of "Charivari," the name of a well known institution of France.

"Charivari" described the hubbub and uproar produced by the noise of pots and pans and dishes mingled with howling and shrieking which was designed to express dislike or disapproval of the person against whom it was directed. During the Middle Ages in France a charivari was frequently raised against people marrying the second time, the widow particularly being teased by the masked participants who usually had to be bought off to give the victims peace. The same thing happened at weddings where the mating was considered unequal because of great disparity of age.

"Charivari" existed under different names in many countries in Europe, sometimes taking such violent form that military interference was necessary to put it down. In the fourteenth century the church threatened punishment and even excommunication to people participating in such demonstrations. Later charivari took on a political significance, as during the Restoration in France. By that time, however, the world had advanced to the stage where the attacks and violence began to take intellectual rather than physical form, the medium being the public press. Indeed, a paper called "Charivari" was established in Paris in December, 1832, with the avowed purpose of satirizing the happenings of the day. From this came the German "Katsenmusik" and the English "Caterwauling." (Copyright.)

What Does Your Child Want to Know?

Answered by BARBARA BOURJAILY

What does your child want to know? This is a question that every parent should ask. The child's mind is like a sponge, and it absorbs everything it comes in contact with. It is important to provide the child with the right kind of information, so that it can grow up to be a responsible and happy adult.

One of the most important things that a child should know is the value of education. Education is the key to a better future, and it should be encouraged from a young age. Parents should make sure that their child is getting a good education, and that they are also learning about the world around them.

Another important thing that a child should know is the value of hard work. Hard work is the only way to achieve success, and it should be taught to the child from a young age. Parents should encourage their child to work hard, and to persevere in the face of difficulties.

Finally, a child should know the value of kindness and compassion. Kindness is the foundation of a good society, and it should be taught to the child from a young age. Parents should encourage their child to be kind to others, and to help those in need.

These are the things that a child should know, and they are the things that will help them to grow up to be a responsible and happy adult. Parents should make sure that their child is getting the right kind of information, and that they are also learning about the world around them.

Geologist's Idea Made

Fortunes for Others

The first to introduce the use of coal oil, or "kerosene," in the United States and Canada was Dr. Abraham Gesner, a distinguished Canadian geologist.
Doctor Gesner, after long experimentation, discovered how to produce oil that could be used in lamps for illuminating purposes, from bituminous shale and coal. The oil he gave the name "kerosene" to his discovery it was popularly called coal oil.
Following the discovery of petroleum in Pennsylvania in 1859, and later in many other sections of North America, kerosene became the principal product of the distillation of the crude oil. Like most inventors, Doctor Gesner reaped little financial benefit from his discovery, which was destined to be the foundation of scores of immense fortunes.

A Little Learning

Five hundred farmers will sail in July for a 9,500-mile tour of the Old world. They are going out to visit cathedrals, art galleries, castles, mountains and watering places, but to study the agricultural methods which have enabled European farmers to surpass our own. For instance, the superior European farmer sticks close at home patiently applying certain well-known principles taught by experience and government experts, and practically never tours America. He can't afford to tour America. And as he looks over his visitors he says: "I will conclude that American farmers are a wonderful thing."

Bigger Babies

In a letter to the Journal of the American Medical association, a New York clothing manufacturer asserts that his company has been forced to increase the size of the dresses for one, two and three-year-old children. Persistent complaints that the necks of the dresses were too small have come to him during the past year for the first time in thirty years' experience. Most of the complaints come from California. This seems to show that the size of American babies is increasing. Californians may now point to another benefit of their glorious climate.

Cat Adopts Skunks

A mother cat with four kittens came to the farm of P. A. Jones at Brookfield, Mo., but Jones, having other ideas on the subject consigned the four kittens to the creek. The next day his small son informed him that the kittens were safe and sound. Recalling the traditional nine lives, Jones investigated and found that the cat had acquired four other kittens without doubt, but instead of their being some other feline offspring they were of the genus musk-hills, or common American skunk—Indianapolis News.

These cars stand up!

EVERY General Motors car is built to represent General Motors quality and value throughout its life. Whether its potential mileage is to be used up by one owner or several owners makes no difference.

That is the reason for the high resale value of the current series of the General Motors cars. It is also the reason why USED General Motors cars offer real opportunities.

General Motors dealers are dependable merchants and will give you, if you wish to buy out of income, the advantage of the low rates of the GMAC Plan of time payment.

The price ranges of the new General Motors cars are given below. Pick out the car which interests you most. Then clip and mail the coupon. We want to tell you all about that car and also why General Motors cars, used or new, offer real value to their purchasers.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

(© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 19

PETER TEACHES GOOD CITIZENSHIP

Temperance Lesson.

LESSON TEXT—1 Peter 2:11-17: 4:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Love worketh no ill to his neighbor.—Rom. 13:10.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Tells Us How to Behave.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Rules for Right Living.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Makes a Good Citizen.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Character of a Good Citizen.

In order to get an intelligent grasp of today's lesson, one must get a view of the entire epistle as to its purpose and method. The purpose was to establish all who were passing through suffering and testing (see ch. 1:7, 8:14, 4:12, 5:10-12).

The principles of Christian behavior set forth in the text of this lesson are of broader scope than citizenship. They embrace:

1. Behavior as Pilgrims and Sojourners (vv. 11, 12).

Christians are merely sojourners on the earth. They have not here their permanent home but are journeying through the earth on their way to the eternal home in the heavens. Our heavenly citizenship (Phil. 3:20) should constrain us to the maintenance of conduct consistent with our high calling.

2. Abstinence from fleshly lusts (v. 11).

The term lusts includes the entire army of unclean forces springing from our carnal natures. They are enumerated in Gal. 5:19-21. These war against the soul. The Christian should not be under the sway of carnal passion.

3. Behavior as citizens (vv. 13-17).

While the Christian's true citizenship is in heaven he has a responsibility as a citizen on the earth.

1. Obey all requirements of civil rulers (v. 13).

Fidelity to Christ is shown by loyalty to civil authorities. The intelligent Christian recognizes the necessity of government and graciously submits to those in authority over him (Romans 13:1-2).

His duties as a citizen he performs as the Lord's free man—not through servile fear. Government even of a low order is better than anarchy.

2. Honor all men (v. 17).

He will see in every man the image of God and therefore give honor to him. This applies to all relations wherein we touch human life.

3. Love the brotherhood (v. 17).

The Christian has a peculiar love for those who are of the same household. The brotherhood is composed of those who are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ.

4. Fear God (v. 17).

5. Honor the King (v. 17).

This has a peculiar significance because in all probability the wicked Nero was then reigning as emperor.

11. Behavior in a World of Opposition (1 Peter 4:1-5).

1. Armed for the conflict (v. 1).

Christians are engaged in a tremendous conflict with evil forces within and without. Satan and his angels are bent on the believer's defeat and destruction. The only way to keep from being overcome with his darts is to arm oneself with the mind of Christ.

2. The salutary effect of suffering (v. 1).

Suffering has a remedial effect upon God's children. The one who suffers with Christ as an example will have the consciousness that it is his identity with Christ that calls forth the opposition of the world.

3. God's will, the regulating force of his life (v. 2).

Not the lusts of the flesh, but the will of God is the directing force of his life.

4. The consciousness of a wasted life (v. 3).

Since the flesh has so long had away over the life, God is entitled to the rest of the believer's energy. Looking back upon a wasted life in serving the lusts of the flesh will move one to give no more time to serving such a null and void.

5. The attitude of the world toward the one who separates himself from it (v. 4).

The world speaks evil of those who will not go its way. The world not only wonders at the life of the Christian who separates himself from its pleasures, but will heap upon him nicknames and reproach.

6. Account shall be given (v. 5).

The Christian should so live as to be able to render an account to God.

The Joy of Christ

O believer, the joy of Christ is within you; give it room, let it spring up within you like a well of living water, and you will rejoice in the Lord always, and again rejoice.—2. M. C. McGreg.

Praising God

When you find that a man has got to praising God it is a good sign. Oh, let us get to personal love, to personal praise! That is the way to the church today.—D. L. Moody.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

When a man will trust his wife with his name, his honor, and his children and will not trust her with his purse, it is easy to see on which he put the highest value.

FOODS FOR OCCASIONS

Some time when you want the dessert especially attractive, serve ice cream in an angel food.

Bake the cake in a round tin. Remove the top and bake out the center and fill with vanilla ice cream. Cover with the cake lid and pour over the top enough crushed and sweetened strawberries to cover.

Chocolate Waffles—Make a paste of one-half cupful each of cocoa and hot water, then add one cupful of milk, two well-beaten eggs, two cups of flour sifted with four teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth cupful of water and two tablespoonsful of melted butter. Mix all together well, add a half teaspoonful of vanilla and bake on waffle iron. Serve with a chocolate and marshmallow sauce.

Mixed Fruit Salad—Use one-half cupful each of shredded pineapple, chopped nutmeats, orange pulp, grapefruit pulp, halved marshmallow cherries, and half cupful of sliced bananas. Mix the fruit and nuts and chili. Serve with one-half cupful of heavy cream whipped, adding two or three tablespoonsful of mayonnaise dressing. Serve in nests of lettuce.

Angel Food Marquis—Prepare an angel food, using one cupful each of egg whites, sugar and flour, a pinch of salt, one-half teaspoonful of cream of tartar and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat the egg whites, adding the salt and half of the cream of tartar; add the sugar when the whites are beaten stiff but not dry, adding it gradually, then fold in the flour, to which the cream of tartar that remains is added. Bake in a tube pan for two hours in a very slow oven, browning the last few minutes in a hot oven. When the cake is cool, cut in three layers and put together with whipped cream, chopped banana and pineapple, with a few nuts and raisins if desired. Cover with whipped cream and serve.

Galatin—Put a pound of steak through the meat grinder, add two eggs beaten, the juice and rind of a lemon, one and three-fourths cupful of bread crumbs, a grating of nutmeg, salt and pepper to taste and one teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar. Pack into a well greased pan and steam four hours. Serve with tomato salad. Cut into thin slices when serving.

Eat much lettuce; it is rich in vitamins, lime, magnesium, has some sodium and a generous portion of phosphorus.

Seasonable Reminders.

This is the time of year when we dispose of the things we do not need for our labor or discomfort, by needing cure.

A small garden, even a few square feet, will bring to the table the crisp and tender lettuce—so good for us to eat, the rosy succulent radish and green onion, all with very little care and labor.

Save all bits of leftover paraffin from jelly glasses. When well washed it may be used again for another season of jelly.

Those who still use the old-fashioned truss will find a piece of paraffin a great help in keeping the truss smooth and free from rust.

It is wise to remember, when the berry season is on, that fruit picked after a rain will not jell and loses much of its flavor.

Fruit for jelly making should not be too ripe. The pectin which thickens the jelly is found in larger quantity in unripe fruit. Pectin is the thickening agent which makes jelly jell.

Some fruits have more pectin than others. Apple is always a good fruit to add to those fruits lacking in pectin. Strawberries do not make good jelly alone, but added to apple juice or a commercial pectin, are most desirable as a jelly.

Keep a cork on the sputtle in your desk. It may save a scratch or an eye. Any green vegetable while cooking is of better color if kept uncovered.

The uncooked stems of fresh mushrooms cut fine and served with almonds on lettuce with a good dressing make a fine salad.

Save meat and gather the delicious mushrooms now until frost in the fall; they will be found in fields, woods and pastures.

Post Grows Beets

Tall corn is not the only thing that grows in Iowa. The Corveth (Iowa) post of the American Legion grows beets. A final report on last season's activities showed that the post earned nearly five hundred dollars from its beet field. The post rented 18.61 acres of land and put the tract into beets, harvesting a crop which brought $1,150.00. Virtually all the labor was hired but after deducting wages, cost of seed, fertilizer and land rental, the post had a profit of $476.50.

His Value

They still tell stories of Richard Harding Davis, the famous novelist and war correspondent. Once he went to interview Joe Chamberlain, at that time head of the British government.

With his usual touch of ego, Davis tried to impress his importance on Chamberlain when the latter interrupted by saying:

"Really, Mr. Davis, I don't get your point. My own notion is that if it were not for you journalists, we wouldn't know what a rotten world we're living in."

BOUND to the NORTH

WHO'S WHO

Jeanne Beaufort, daughter of a "The Yankee, Miss Beaufort," Virginian, swears vengeance against said one of the officers. "We got the North for the deaths of her father and two brothers in the Civil War. She is enrolled as a spy for the Confederate government and instructed to use the wiles of her sex to bring Parson John Kennedy, a Union spy, within the power of the South. Discovered in the act of spying, she is given the alternative of death or marriage to one of their number. They are all masked, but Jeanne rejects one volunteer and chooses another of the eleven as her husband. To her, it is a mystery to her as to whom Kennedy performs the ceremony and the bride and groom, ignorant of each other's names and not even knowing what he looks like, sign the marriage certificate as "Mary Smith" and "John Jones." As witnesses the group sign as follows: D. D. Kennedy, D. W. Kennedy, A. N. Kennedy, A. N. Kennedy, G. R. Kennedy, J. N. Kennedy, J. W. Kennedy, F. W. Kennedy, F. W. Kennedy, W. B. Kennedy.

They leave her bound and disappear. Henry Morgan, a Southern officer and spy for the Confederacy, is in love with her but she rejects his advances. One day getting a letter signed "your husband," Jeanne realizes that her identity is known. Disguising herself with a brown wig and staining her face, Jeanne assumes the name of Alice Trent, she goes to Baltimore to carry on her work. She is unaware that a real "Alice Trent" lives in Baltimore. John Armistage, a Union officer rescues Jeanne from a drunken man, Jeanne induces Morgan to abduct Kennedy so that she may question him about the names on the certificate and about a supposed tattoo mark on the arm of the man she married. Armistage rescues him, but Jeanne escapes. She sees placards announcing a reward for her capture, "dead or alive."

General Armistage, father of the Captain, is discussing plans for the final campaign against Richmond when Jeanne, attempting to steal them, is captured. Though she is in boy's clothes, Captain Armistage recognizes her, but says nothing, and is bound to face a firing squad in the morning.

Armistage helps Jeanne to escape and she makes her way back to her home. It is now the Confederacy's Confederate encampment. Sentinels bring word that Union spy is on the grounds.

CHAPTER VII

Supposing it were Armistage, thought Jeanne, to act would be to send to his death the man she loved. She could not do it, a thousand times no.

She knew no sleep that night. She spent the hours listening, listening. She imagined footsteps; she saw Armistage running the gauntlet of fire she saw him totter and fall—what was that?

In the quiet above something heavy had clattered to the floor. She waited, holding her breath. She made up her mind quickly.

It was this man proved to be Armistage, he should go free; her debt would be paid. If it was a man she did not recognize, well, he would have to pay the penalty.

She tiptoed to the door silently, and waited. A stair creaked. He was coming down. Fearlessly she seized the knob and flung the door open.

A man's body plunged against hers. Her revolver exploded harmlessly.

The cry flashed Jeanne aside, leaped through a window and was gone. A soft broke the silence; then came another, also followed by waiting. A third shot seemed to strike the air, after that all became opportunity still.

Jeanne, a hand clapping down the thundering of her heart, ran down stairs. She had not seen the man's face.

In the garden she espied a group of "Confederates" looking down at something which lay quietly at their feet.

idea. If there is anything off-color, I'm sure that the boy is innocent. Ordinarily it would be water off a duck's back. But he's under a cloud. And if you warn him, there'll be trouble for you."

"I'll not warn him. But if Morgan needs in getting South, I'll never forgive you."

"Rest easy on that score. That's all."

Kennedy went away somewhat disturbed. What new coil had the boy sprung about his feet?

Morgan left Senator X's at ten o'clock in the evening. The Senator saw him to the door. Immediately Morgan returned through the garden window which he had left open and was in the act of lifting the lid on the dispatch-box when the postman's rattles on the poles and the Senator himself with candle in hand appeared.

Morgan sprang, bore the elder backward, toppled him to the floor, bundled the dispatches into his pockets, and ran all the way to his lodgings. There he heaved what papers he had, saving only his various passes, and fled to another part of the town.

The room he entered was rather bare. He lighted the candle and placed the sealed document before him. One by one he broke the seals. He stared entranced. Suddenly he jumped to his feet, furious.

Foiled, tricked! He swore. He ripped these cynical indictments into tatters. They had played with him. Henry Morgan, as they would have played with a toy!

He laughed shortly. Clever devilishly clever! They had gotten rid of him without dragging the Senator through the mire of a political scandal, a thing every sympathizer would have hailed with delight.

"Devil to take the mail! Well, the game's up. But Parson Kennedy and you, John Armistage, watch out. I'm a masterful man from now on. I'll never leave Washington until I see you both dead! Jeanne Beaufort is mine, mine!"

He rolled up his sleeve and stared at the symbol on his forearm. He laughed again as he recalled a night he had entered Jeanne's room and stuffed the little note in the side of her mirror. If only he could see it he had written her name there!

Next day Morgan, recounted to Jeanne the trickery which had brought about his downfall, and he was keen for reprisal. He must now remain in hiding, but he would manage to keep in communication with her. Besides, he had some news for her he could not put on paper.

He was determined to attack Parson Kennedy first. And this fell in the Jeanne's plan agreeably. Parson Kennedy knew, and torture should wrest the secret from him.

Who? Parson Kennedy got out of bed the next morning. He found an interesting note under his door-sill. He was a wise old hawk, for he saw through the trap at once. "Call at Number Nine Black Street to-night when if you would learn the truth about Jeanne Beaufort."

"Hmph! This smells strongly of my old friend Morgan. We've nipped his claws, but we must draw his teeth to be rid of him."

He found Captain Armistage reading a letter identical the same as his own.

"They say a prayer is more satisfactory if spoken aloud."

Kennedy spat grimly. He had never asked mercy; he never would.

"Are you going to light that fuse, Morgan?" asked Armistage.

"I am."

There was no mockery in Morgan's eyes. He swore in his heart that this was war, that the death of these two men was a military necessity. But it was a ragged defense, and his conscience saw through the tatters and voiced the truth.

"This is not war; it is murder," said Armistage.

"Well, what is war but murder? You would have shot me quickly enough. I win—that is all."

Kennedy ran his tongue across his battered lips.

"Will you ever be able to forget us after this night's work?" asked Armistage.

"You are in my way."

"It is an abominable crime you are about to commit. Take us out and shoot us, if you will. But not this—mutilation!"

"I do not care to have you found in the haunts of men. John Armistage, Parson Kennedy—adieu!"

He fired the fuse, placed the candle on the table, bowed the end of the cabin, closing the door gently.

More Than Mere Impression

A student once asked a great master how to mix his colors or paints. To which the master replied "Prime colors, a little oil and lots of brains, well mixed."

So with printing. A good printing job is more than type, paper, ink and a press. Craftsmanship is in selection of type faces suited to the job in hand; paper in tones, shades or colors; harmonious ink selections, careful press make-ready—and the result, printed matter which conveys character.

Let us demonstrate all we mean in your next printing job. Good printing costs no more than inferior jobs.

FLOOD RELIEF SESSION
LESSON FOR UNCLE SAM
YOUR IMPORTANT CELLS
WOMEN NATURAL TEACHERS

The President will call a special session of Congress for October, to take up the Mississippi flood disaster and the prevention question. The sooner prevention is discussed and arranged the better. The American Congress and people have a great faculty for forgetting—even a two-billion-dollar calamity and 700,000 people being made homeless.

Twice in succession, American fliers have crossed the Atlantic at one "hop", Lindbergh flying to Paris Chamberlin with Levine, almost to Berlin.

What will military and naval gentlemen say now about their theory that "The Airplane is no real menace to this country?"

Out of two attempts to fly across the ocean by American fliers, both succeed.

What would be the probable percentage of success if five thousand foreign aviators with full government backing and unlimited expenditure of money, should fly the other way on a hostile errand?

Americans should take to heart the lesson that Lindbergh and Chamberlin have taught us and get ready to keep hostile fliers away from this continent.

Five or ten thousand first-class planes carrying mail parcels and passengers in peace, ready to take on machine guns in war, would be the best investment this rich nation could make.

Golf, according to accident insurance companies, comes third among "dangerous sports." Victims of 451 golf accidents collected insurance last year. Twelve for "cuts with sharp instruments." The instruments were bottles, on the "19th hole." However, for one injured of golf, one hundred die for lack of exercise, so play golf.

A German scientist says your heart is less important than the billions of cells that make up your body. The heart is important, of course, but the cells, eating, drinking, digesting, each living separate life, are more important than the heart, even in blood circulation.

The human body is like a nation. Brain and heart are the government. The cells are the citizens.

Dr. Mendelssohn, of Berlin University, says, "The secret of life is the ability of living cells to effect change of matter and absorb and eject fluids. This change of fluids seems to be the principle cause of blood circulation."

The secret of making life worth while is the ability of the living brain to accept and absorb new ideas. That is the principle cause of human progress.

Students at Oxford worry because women are to teach there. "Isn't read by the Oxford young gentlemen, says that will eventually lead to a sex war, and is "a social revolution of the utmost significance."

Women are natural teachers; teaching has been their business from the beginning; teaching children, teaching husbands.

Hypatia, a better mathematician and philosopher than her father, Theon, was one of the greatest teachers that ever lived, until fanatical early Christian monks tore her from her chair, as she was going to her school, and murdered her, more than 1,500 years ago.

The college boy or adult citizen lacking respect for women or confidence in their power, judgment and goodness, pays a poor compliment to his own mother.

SLOGAN NAMED NEXT WEEK

EIGHTY FIVE SLOGANS HAVE BEEN TURNED IN FOR JUDGES TO DECIDE FROM.

No decision has yet been reached as to the winner of the slogan contest, which ended last Wednesday night, June 15. The committee of judges expects to meet sometime within the next few days to select the slogan, which in their judgment best describes the town of Mentone and portrays, to the stranger, our town's spirit.

The contest, after its extension by the judges, was entered into with renewed zeal, and eighty five more slogans were received. Slogans were submitted from not only Mentone but also from the rural districts and small towns in this vicinity. Interest seemed to have been on the mind set on winning the award of $10, and supplying Mentone with a fitting slogan.

Next week the Gazette will carry the winning slogan and name the winner of the contest.

WINONA LAKE SEASON

OPENS SUNDAY JUNE 26

This year's announcement of Winona's array of talent is most unusual. The Chautauqua features are among the best that can be secured. Programs varying each day, offering concerts, lectures, plays, photographs and entertainments of music and demonstration. An entire season's pleasure is provided at little cost; a vacation worth while, amidst flowers and shrubbery, and an atmosphere surcharged with health-giving and restful virtues. Winona is among the leading summer resorts of its kind in the nation. Visitors find many things to their liking, and they never forget the inspiration they receive from listening to great teachers, preachers, artists, players and entertainers each in his field of interest. The memory of them is carried for many years.

Among the special attractions this year is "Eljah", Mendelssohn's wonderful oratorio, presented as a grand opera production with Solists of national reputation. Among them, Rollin Pease, baritone of Chicago, and Arthur Kraft, tenor of New York. Two performances will be given. Spectacular in presentation, elaborate costumes, unusual electrical effects. To see "Eljah" will be revelation to those who may be familiar with the masterful.

These performances will be directed by William D. Cheney who presented them in Boston, Kansas City, Springfield, Ill., and other musical centers; dates are July 14, and 22.

Rev. "Billy" Sunday, June 16th, giving his very best and newest address. He is "The one and only Billy Sunday." Many have tried to do as he does, but have failed. He is a unique personality, beloved and admired by millions; they criticized and slandered by certain elements. He is a true friend of Winona and his lecture will be one of the outstanding events of the season.

Madame Schumann-Heink gives a recital on August 16th, stopping on her Golden Jubilee Tour, rounding out 50 wonderful years before the public as a singer of exceptional ability. This is also her Farewell Tour and many who have heard her in other years will be glad for the pleasure of hearing her again, and many who have never had the opportunity will count it a privilege to listen to one of the greatest artists of the world.

Alberto Salvi, the Wizard Harpist, appears August 4th, and promises to be a bright spot in the season's program. His music is fraught with beauty, soothing to the ear, and benediction to the soul. The harp in the hands of Salvi is an instrument, and in expression a fountain, a brook, an organ, an orchestra, a living thing of enchantment. Co-existent with the Chautauqua and special attractions are a score of other activities carrying a full program.

The Summer School, directed by Prof. E. M. Linton, Indiana University, and Prof. George C. Branderburg of Purdue University, is conducted creditably, offering Normal course, and College courses in Art.

TO CONTINUE T. B. TESTING

DR. KIETH WILL COMPLETE TESTING OF CATTLE FOR T. B. IN KOSCIUSKO COUNTY.

Dr. Kieth, a Marshall County Veterinarian, has been appointed to complete the testing in this county of testing all the cattle in the county for T. B. in order that the county may be an accredited area.

The work was started by Dr. Floyd Hopper, but approximately a month ago, Dr. Hopper was taken from the work and transferred to another field.

The testing had already cost the county about $4,000, so the loss would have been great if the work had been terminated with the removal of Dr. Hopper, and not completed. The loss to the live stock owners would have been considerable also.

Dr. Kieth is at work at the testing now.

O. E. S. MEETING

A special meeting of the O. E. S. was held at Masonic Hall Wednesday evening June 15. At this time the initiatory work was conferred upon Mrs. Dean Nellans and Mrs. Emma Long. Many delightful and profitable speeches were made by visitors and members who have been out of town for some time. The hall was beautifully decorated with flowers due to the gracious efforts of Mrs. L. P. Jefferies, Mrs. W. W. Whetstone Mrs. Sam Meeker and others brought flowers.

SODALES CLUB

Mrs. Emma Jones and Mrs. Goldie Nollenhour were charming hostesses to the Sodales Club, Thursday p. m., June 16, at the home of Mrs. Jones. During the business session it was decided to hold a picnic July 28 at Huffman's lake. Cora Van Gilder discussed inexpensive methods of keeping things cool. The afternoon was spent in playing rock in which Mrs. Edna Burns won the prize and Mrs. Ella Stanford the consolation.

The hostess and her assistant proved their ability by the dainty refreshments which were served on prettily decorated tables.

W. F. M. S. TO MEET

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. Alpheus Gay next Friday afternoon. Ladies desiring to attend will please be at Clark's Store promptly at 1:30. Miss Elma Cattell is program leader. A good attendance is desired.

RECORD CROWDS AT CONCERTS

BETTER CROWDS THAN EVER BEFORE ATTEND BAND CONCERTS.

That the people of this vicinity enjoy the band concerts and fully approve of them has been more than convincingly proved by the first three of the series of free concerts. Larger crowds than ever before have been in attendance at every concert and at each succeeding concert the crowd, instead of growing less, seems to increase. This fact is very encouraging to the players and leaders of the band and also to the merchants and those who are backing the concerts.

Favorable weather has prevailed on every concert night, so far, the only exception being last Thursday night, when slightly chillier weather than is comfortable was the order, but even this did not stop the influx of farmers and people from other towns into town to hear the concert.

Last Thursday night the cars parked in town were counted, and totaled 259.

The band furnishes an excellent brand of music, and is to be appreciated by the people of Mentone.

CURBING FOR NEW

PAVEMENT COMPLETED

Contractors Blue and Burns, Tuesday completed the work of constructing the curbing along Broadway and Franklin Streets. The street will only be curbed for a half block south of Main on Broadway, and a half block north of Main on Franklin.

The remainder of the pavement to be constructed will be 18 feet wide without curbing.

New manholes are being installed on both streets.

THE NUTRITIOUS SOUP

THE primary purpose of soup is to stimulate the stomach and prepare it for the heavier food which will follow. All soups, if hot, are stimulating, but not all soups are nourishing. Soups which consist of meat extractives, water and seasoning, are purely stimulating. They are invaluable because they stimulate a jaded appetite and warm the stomach. A cream soup, however, is a meal in itself; with bread it will make a good, substantial meal. Such soups should be served when the rest of the meal is to be light. They are good for sea heavy workers, the active child and those who cannot digest heavier meats; so the cream soup is an all-round good food for every member of the family.

All vegetables combine best with milk in cream soups. If cooked, mashed and added hot. After cooling they are harder to blend. A potato soup can be so very good and it can be so very poor that they would never pass for relations.

Cream of Potato Soup.

Adding an onion and a few celery tops to the potatoes while cooking will give a better flavor than to have them added to the milk. Peel six potatoes and cook with a small onion and a few celery leaves in salted water. When the potatoes are soft, put them through a sieve or ricer. Melt two tablespoonsful of butter, add two of flour and cook until well blended; add a half cupful of the potato water and the potato; when boiling hot add a pint of top milk, or thin cream will make a richer soup. Cook in a double boiler for half an hour. Add a tablespoonful of butter bit by bit and serve at once.

Mixed Vegetable Soup.

Take one quart each of good beef stock, one quart of water and one cupful each of chopped onion, carrot and celery, one-half cupful of turnip, a sprig of parsley, a half cupful of cabbage. Parboil the cabbage, turnip and onions five minutes, then drain. Fry the onion and carrot in a tablespoonful of butter, then add the hot stock and water and one cupful of strained tomato and cook with a teaspoonful each of sugar, salt and pepper. Serve without straining.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYS

AT 21—Edward W. Bok was a stenographer.

"ABOUT this time I was a stenographer earning $18.33 a week. I felt quite sure that these figures ought to be reversed. And there were several positions just beyond me, too, which I felt I should be justly asked to occupy. But I was not and of course I felt aggrieved. I considered myself imposed upon."

"Now, when I look back upon that time I can see the reason my salary was not $33.18 cents a week was simply because I was incapable of earning that amount.—Edward W. Bok."

TODAY—Edward W. Bok is one of a very small number of editors who have become nationally celebrated. Bok edited the Ladies' Home Journal for 30 years and it is the greatest and most profitable women's periodical ever published. He was one of the first who recognized the principles which should go into the making of a woman's magazine, so that it could serve the reader and become a good medium for advertisers. Since then practically all magazines of the same class have gone along similar lines.

Mr. Bok also distinguished himself by writing the autobiography, "The Americanization of Edward Bok," which won the Pulitzer prize a few years ago, and by offering the $50,000 prize for a peace plan in a contest which drew international attention and started similar offers in other countries.

Making It Complete

The rickety old motor bus, containing one passenger, pulled up outside the Merry Mermaid at the conclusion of its journey from Little Muddcombe. Hard and pale, the only passenger tumbled out, dashed across the road and, turning a handspring, stood on his head, with his heels against the wall.

A bystander stood open-mouthed. "Great Scott!" he gasped. "Are ye off yer bloomin' nut?"

Slowly the passenger reversed himself to a right-side-up posture. "No," he answered grimly, "but this standing on my head is the only position I haven't been in during the last two hours, and I wanted to make the thing harmonious and complete all round!"—London Tit-Bits.

TOMORROW

By EVELYN GAGE BROWNE

TOMORROW will hold in her outstretched hand The fruit of your Yesterday's seeds; If you've sown your garden with wasted hours— You'll gather a harvest of weeds.

The seed of Today is Tomorrow's flower; So work—though you delve in clay; If you pluck a rose from Tomorrow's hand, You must sow rose-seeds Today!

Look well to your planting then each day, And live with a purpose true; Whatever you sow you shall also reap— TOMORROW DEPENDS ON YOU! (Copyright.)

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

MOTHERS AND BABIES

IN THE great war this country lost 34,623 killed in action, 215,486 wounded, and 13,505 who died of wounds. That was a record for 19 months of warfare.

In the same time the record shows that more mothers died from childbirth than there were fighting men killed, and many more babies died than there were soldiers and sailors wounded.

During the war the infantile birth rate went down in the country and the child death rate went up.

During the years that Belgium was being war-racked and torn to pieces the birth rate went up and the infant death rate decreased.

The reason for this difference is that this country gave no special attention to the care of infant life, while Belgium established 700 maternity centers where mothers and their little babies are assured the kind of care and attention that give them the highest possible chance in the fight for health and life.

The United States is perhaps of all the world the most intense in its study of ways and means for the saving of minutes and dollars. Every year millions of dollars' worth of equipment is junked because some genius has found a better or a cheaper way of doing the job.

Yet we wouldn't continue to throw away approximately 300,000 lives a year because nobody seems to be enough interested in the conservation of mothers and their offsprings to better our horrible record of suffering and death.

Every baby is a potential man or woman. Under proper conditions he would grow up to be worth in actual dollars to the community and his family from $25,000 upward.

Is it good sense or good economy even, to let that baby die just from lack of care?

Wouldn't a dollar invested in his rearing, in making a strong, healthy man of him insure pretty good returns?

Isn't it foolish to let him die by the thousand when he could just as well be saved?

And as for the mothers, if this country owes anything to anybody it owes to the mothers.

Every suffering mother is a disgrace.

Every mother that needlessly dies in giving birth to a new citizen is a reflection on the charity, decency and citizenship of every other dweller in this country.

Our sense of what is respectable should lead us to provide for the mothers.

Our judgment as to what is profitable, if no better emotion urges us, should lead us to make life and health more certain for the children.

ANSWERED:

three vital questions you have asked about used car allowances

1 "What is my present car worth?"

Answer: Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value: that is what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2 "Why should dealers in different makes of cars offer me allowances that differ materially?"

Answer: Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 "Is it true that the largest allowance offered means the best deal for me?"

Answer: The largest allowance is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not. An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car. Remember that after all you are making a purchase, not a sale.

Long-Lived Lily

Mrs. J. Roland Batchelder of Pembroke, N. H., has a calla lily which is 47 years old. The plant was originally given to Mrs. Batchelder's mother, Mrs. Isaac Wilkie, by the late Mrs. Annette P. Knox, who for many years was a member of the Congregational choir. On Mother's day the lily, bearing several blossoms, formed part of the decorations at the Congregational church.—Indianapolis News.

"Butch" Bedbug, burglar, starts his night's work

Millions of others are starting, too! Be ready for them!

MAKE NO MISTAKE! There's only one way to exterminate bedbugs. That's with a liquid. Don't waste time shooting a spray at them. No spray can possibly reach their young and eggs.

Bedbugs are in the woodwork, along the baseboards—not in the bed clothes, as you may have thought. Don't waste time using a powder. Bedbugs don't eat. They suck. That's why only a liquid can exterminate them.

Peterman's Discovery is the right liquid. It soaks down into their nests. It exterminates all bedbugs, all their young and eggs in any house in 48 hours.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY, Liquid—exterminates bedbugs.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD—exterminates ants.

PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD—protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

STUFFED VEGETABLES ARE SUBSTANTIAL

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One way of introducing variety in preparing vegetables is to stuff those that lend themselves to such treatment. Stuffing makes the entire dish more substantial and thus some times reduces the number of other foods required for a given meal. Eggplant, green peppers, large Spanish onions and cabbage are among those often served in this way. Usually the stuffing is made of other vegetables and some cooked starchy material such as bread crumbs, rice or spaghetti, to give body. A great many combinations are possible in stuffing. One would naturally choose two or three flavors that blend well together however they are cooked and served, just as one combines flavors carefully for a vegetable soup, a stew or a vegetable hash. Some good flavors to use in stuffings, two or three at once, are: Tomato, corn, celery, cabbage, spinach, string beans and carrots. Onion flavor is desirable in almost every combination. Minced meat or chicken is often included, and then the resulting mixture may be sufficiently hearty for an entire lunch or supper.

Combine Various Leftovers. If you have not quite enough of a given vegetable when it is cooked in the usual way, and if it is suitable for stuffing, you may be able to extend it very nicely by this means. Again, when you have small amounts of two or three cooked vegetables on hand, but not enough of any one to serve for a dinner vegetable, you can combine the various leftovers with bread crumbs, add onion flavor and use the mixture as stuffing. Bread crumbs should always be combined with melted butter to make them rich before they are added to other ingredients.

The following recipe for stuffed eggplant is furnished by the bureau of home economics:

1 large eggplant 2 cups finely cut raw cabbage, 1 tablespoon salt, 4 tablespoons cooked string chopped peppers, 1 cupful fine bread 2 tablespoons butter

Cut the eggplant in half. Remove as much of the white portion as possible without breaking the shell. Cut in small pieces. Cook the cabbage and the eggplant in a small amount of water about ten minutes. Drain and mix the other ingredients with it. Fill the eggplant with the stuffing, place buttered crumbs on top. Four around each half eggplant a little of the water in which the cabbage and eggplant were cooked. Bake in the oven half an hour, or until golden brown.

BAKING POWDER BISCUITS GOOD

Should Be Light, Fine-Grained, Tender, Brown.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Tastes in baking differ, and it would be remarkable, among a dozen people, to secure an unanimous opinion on the comparative merits of soft or crisp biscuits, drop biscuits or rolled ones, water or milk or sour-milk biscuits. Almost everyone would agree, however, that an acceptable biscuit should be light, fine-grained, tender, and delicately browned. The dough should be worked as little as possible, therefore, so that the gluten will not be developed too much and the product made tough. Using soft oven or pastry flour and having the oven very hot are two other points that contribute to good texture.

Here's a recipe furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture:

1 cupful milk 4 teaspoonfuls of 1 cupful sifted baking powder 1/2 cupful of salt

All dry ingredients are mixed and sifted together, the fat is worked in and the liquid is added to this fact-and-four mixture. Cutting the fat into the flour with knives, a pastry fork or a biscuit cutter is often recommended to avoid warming or handling too much, but the tips of the fingers may be used if the work is done quickly.

Either milk or water may be used as the liquid in baking powder biscuits, and the quantity varied to obtain the biscuit desired. Sometimes a very stiff dough is wanted, and as little liquid as possible is used. A lighter biscuit is made by using more liquid and combining very lightly. Drop biscuits, which are not rolled out, may be made by adding still more liquid than for a soft dough.

Bake the biscuits in a shallow pan or on a baking sheet. The pan should be lightly greased for drop biscuits, but this is not necessary for the other type. Biscuits require a very hot oven (450 to 500 degrees F.). If you have an electric table stove, try baking biscuits right in the dining room.

Making Baking Powder Biscuits.

Eggs in Tomato Sauce

Make Good Dinner Dish

Do you enjoy an occasional egg dinner? Some people think of eggs as suitable only for breakfast, luncheon, or supper, and do not regard them as a substantial enough for dinner. As a matter of fact, however, eggs contain the same kind of efficient protein for body building that is found in meat. Eggs, particularly the yolks, are rich, too, in mineral substances and they are one of the best sources of vitamin A which everybody needs for health and physical well being. What makes eggs seem to be less substantial than some other foods is that their food materials are in such form that they can be rather quickly assimilated by the body. Eggs are pure food material mixed with water. Because of their large percentage of water, when serving eggs for dinner it is well to allow two or more pieces for the grown-up members of the family. An egg recipe cannot be given without knowing the number of persons in your family. With these proportions for sauce enough to go with six eggs and for a small amount of meat and estimate the quantities needed.

Make a sauce by blending three tablespoons of flour and two tablespoons of melted butter and combining with two cupfuls of tomato juice and pulp and seasonings—one and one-half teaspoonfuls salt, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of pepper, one-half teaspoonful celery salt. If you are planning to bake your eggs put about half the sauce in a shallow buttered baking dish or pie plate and then break the eggs separately in a sauce and slide them carefully, one at a time, into the sauce. If you have more than six eggs, use two dishes. Cover the eggs with the rest of the sauce and sprinkle three tablespoonfuls of grated cheese over the top. Bake in a moderate oven until the eggs are set.

If you like, you can heat all the sauce in a skillet and poach the eggs in it, handling them carefully as before. In this case, spread rice or noodles on a hot platter while the eggs are cooking, skiff out the eggs as they are done and slip them on top of the rice or noodles, and pour the tomato sauce over the whole dish.

Valuable Minerals Are Found in Raisin Bread

It may not always be convenient to make a yeast-raised dough when you want raisin bread. Everybody likes raisin bread once in a while, however, and the raisins contribute valuable mineral elements to the diet. A very good bread can be made by using baking powder. It will dry out more quickly than a yeast-raised bread, so it is well to make only as much as you are sure will be eaten promptly. The United States Department of Agriculture furnishes the following directions for making it:

1/2 cupful flour 1/2 cupful salt 1/2 cupful melted butter 1/2 cupful sugar 1/2 cupful baking powder 1/2 cupful raisins 1/2 cupful salt 1/2 cupful sugar 1/2 cupful raisins 1/2 cupful salt 1/2 cupful sugar 1/2 cupful raisins

Sift the salt, cinnamon, flour and baking powder together. Beat the eggs and add the milk and sugar. Combine the liquid and the dry ingredients. Stir the raisins until well mixed. Place the bread in a greased pan and let it stand for 10 minutes. Bake at a moderate temperature (about 250 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 45 minutes.

New York Structure City Under One Roof

A city within a building may be the boast of New York if plans now before the building department are approved. These call for what is known as the Larkin building for West Forty-second street, which is to be 110 stories high and have accommodations for more than 30,000 individuals in the various sites and offices. Thus the structure would take care of more persons than reside in some of the cities of this country and Europe.

Opposition to the height has caused many delays in bringing the matter to a definite head, and a number of problems still are to be solved. One of the chief obstacles encountered has been the question of elevator transportation for not only the multitudes that would use these conveyances morning and night, and at luncheon time, but also to take care of those with business to transact in the various offices during other hours of the day.—Wall Street Journal.

Sea Elephants Going Fast

Sea elephants, which at one time abounded in large numbers off the coast of California and Lower California, were in 1912 estimated as numbering only 150 on the island of Gaudalupe. A recent expedition from San Diego to the same island found the herd to consist of 400. The government of Mexico is doing its utmost to preserve this species.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, she seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. It lay the turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine, and you can use these facts as a testimonial. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Daugherty, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

TRACT SET ASIDE FOR NATIVE BIRDS

President Coolidge, by a recent order, has set aside a tract of about 2,350 acres in Jasper county, South Carolina, as a preserve and breeding ground for native birds. The area embraces certain abandoned rice lands belonging to the United States and abutting on the Savannah river, near Savannah, Ga., and is to be known as the Savannah river bird refuge. The new reservation has been placed under the administration of the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. It will be unlawful for any person to hunt, trap, capture, disturb or kill any bird or wild animal of any kind whatever, to take or destroy the eggs of any such bird, or to injure, molest or destroy any property of the United States within the limits of the reserve, except under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Department of Agriculture.

ROBINSONS CIRCUS IN

WARSAW ON JULY 4

John Robinson's circus, pioneer circus of the world, will exhibit at Warsaw, Monday July 4, giving afternoon and night performances. This famous "white top" organization needs no introduction to the circus enthusiasts of this community, as its high grade meritorious performance has never failed to please.

John Robinson's circus is the very opening, which is a gorgeous fairland pageant, the audience is held spell bound to the final thrill of thrills, the sensational hippodrome races. John Robinson's representatives have imported the foremost European, Oriental, and Occidental troupes and acts. Fearless hunters have penetrated the deepest jungles of India and Africa in order to offer the public wild animal acts that are unequalled. In the augmented menagerie will be seen such rare beasts as giraffes, elephants, camels, hyenas, hippopotamus, lions, tigers, panthers, ostriches, kangaroos, and a multitude of others equally as interesting and unusual.

Wild animal actors that perform in the steel arena will be subjugated by such world famous trainers as Theodore Schroeder, Jone Carlo, Bert Noyes Margaret Thompson, and Dewey Butler. A short but faithful portrayal of western life will be presented by C. Carrion and his cowboys, cowgirls and a tribe of Sioux Indians from the government reservation at Pine Ridge, S. D.

Standard circus acts and features include the best obtainable. Robert Thornton with his performing pure bred Arabian Stallions, the McKean family from Scotland, the Rudy Rudynoff troupe of Equestrians from Austria, the Barron sisters, acrobats, direct from the London Hippodrome, the Eddy duo, premier English wire artists, Ben Hassan Arabs, and Bob Eugene's Boys are but a few of the many acts of international fame.

For those that love the humorous side of the circus there will be a veritable army of clowns. The funny fellows behind the chalk mask are all of a national reputation, and include Silvers Johnson, Joe Wilde, Charley Fenton, George Harmon, The Simmons Twins, Danny Sullivan and a troupe of Lilliputians from Europe.

Robert Snyder of Fort Wayne was the guest of home folks over Sunday.

LINDBERGH.
BULL WHALE AND ATHEIST.
HE WHO FIGHTS ALONE.
THANKS BE FOR LINDY.

Deeds of individual courage still arouse the world more than any other achievement. Lindbergh's welcome proves that men feel, today, as they did about Grillon, Duguesse or Perseus. The individual fighter; doing it himself, is the man adored by the crowd.

Any man is courageous with many around him. With a crowd it is easier to go than not to go. But, by yourself, it is different.

The great crowds that howl for Lindbergh, and that were asleep when he started off in the fog, alone at daybreak, know why they applaud him.

A lookout on the cruiser Memphis bringing Lindbergh home, called out "There she blows!" on the starboard bow." Lindbergh on the bridge, saw a big bull whale accompanied by his "cows," keeping close to their lord and master as he rolled and spouted.

Nothing could have made that bull whale believe that the tiny man on the bridge had flown across the Atlantic Ocean, in the other direction. How can you hope to make an atheist believe that there exists a Divine Intelligence flashing from one universe to another, pervading all space? The bull whale and the atheist KNOW. You can't fool them.

Thank heaven for Lindbergh. He may make this Government realize that to be defenseless in the air IS TO BE ABSOLUTELY DEFENSELESS. He told the Chamber of Commerce in New York: "We don't want war, and the way to avoid it is to be prepared for it. We need greatly enlarged commercial air service, greatly increased air mail service, to develop good pilots. It takes longer to make a pilot than to make a flying machine."

He reminded New York of the disgraceful fact that the richest city in the world has no air port, and must travel far off to Long Island to find one.

And he said in substance this: "They talk about anti-aircraft guns as a defense against airplanes. A hundred fast planes would soon clear a battleship's decks of its anti-aircraft guns. Then a dozen bombers would sink it. The anti-aircraft guns might, but probably wouldn't bring down a few pilots, destroy a trifling sum in airplanes. But airplanes would wipe out a $20,000,000 battleship and its great crew of men."

Many people, including the Government, must listen to Lindbergh. That's the advantage of climbing to a high place among men. You can MAKE others listen.

Much of woman's trouble has been caused by her prejudice against her own sex, her lack of mercy for other women that go wrong, her contempt for women generally. Miss Bessie Mack, of Chicago, accused of flirting by two large policemen, "beat them up" when they sought to arrest her. She surrendered peacefully to a very small policeman, saying, "No woman can arrest me."

Sir Oliver Lodge, who believes in ghosts and spirits, says that with synthetic protoplasm life can be created in the laboratory. This says Lodge, does not belittle God's power for man is God's creation and might will imitate his Maker on a small scale.

He might, but he won't. That is, he will not create the only life that counts—the life that thinks.

Real life is thought, not Matter.

ROBERT OWEN PASSES AWAY

SUFFERED PARALYTIC STROKE
RECENTLY—MRS. EVA LYON AND MILTON DORSEY DEAD.

Robert Owen, 55, passed away at his home here, Sunday afternoon at one-thirty o'clock. Death was by a stroke of paralysis, which he suffered twelve days before while seated in the Reed Hardware Store. Up until the time of his death, the deceased was employed at the Reed Store.

Mr. Owen spent his entire life in this town, and was well liked by everyone who knew him. He was a member of the local Masonic Lodge. He spent the past winter in Florida, which he seemed to enjoy greatly.

Two nieces are the only survivors, the wife and parents being dead. The funeral services, in charge of Rev. John of the local Christian Church, were held at the residence yesterday afternoon at two o'clock. Burial was made in the Mentone Cemetery.

Milton Dorsey, living four miles northeast of here, died at his home early Thursday night, following a stroke of paralysis on Tuesday evening. Mr. Dorsey had been in fairly good health until the stroke suffered Tuesday evening.

The deceased was born on July 11, 1854, and was 72 years, 11 months and 12 days of age at the time of his demise. He was born in Hancock County, Ohio, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dorsey.

A son, Loren, at home, one daughter, Mrs. Morrison of South Bend, and three grandchildren, besides his many friends here, survive.

Rev. H. L. Liddle, pastor of the M. E. Church here, held the funeral services Sunday afternoon at the farm residence. Interment was made in the Harrison Center Cemetery.

After an illness of approximately three years from tuberculosis, Mrs. Eva Lyon died at the home of her mother, Mrs. Louisa Good, near Athens, Friday morning at one o'clock.

Mrs. Lyon was thirty-eight years of age at the time of her death.

Mrs. Lyon was born on the farm on which she passed away, in November, 1889, and resided there until maturity.

On March 4, 1923, Miss Good came to Mentone as the bride of Fred Lyon.

The deceased was a member of the Methodist church. Order of Eastern Star, and Royal Neighbors of America of this place. Surviving here are the mother, two sisters, Mrs. Lillian Craig and Maud Good, and two brothers, Clyde, of Fort Wayne, Montana, and Charles of Fort Wayne.

A son, Harold Nichols, died nearly three years ago at the age of six.

Funeral ceremonies were held at the farm home, Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Crowley of the Rochester, M. E. Church, in charge.

The remains were interred in the Mt. Hope Cemetery at Athens.

LOCAL BOY'S CAR IS

STOLEN IN SOUTH BEND
While parked on the streets of South Bend Sunday afternoon, a Ford touring car belonging to Raymond Ross was stolen. PLANE CRASHES NEAR AKRON

FALLS 300 FEET INTO HOUSE.
NO ONE HURT BUT PLANE A TOTAL LOSS.

A Curtis Bi-plane, being piloted by Oscar Crabbill of Huntington, accompanied by a friend, Arthur Coblenz of Liberty Mills, crashed through the roof and into the attic of a large brick house south east of Akron Tuesday morning about eight o'clock.

Crabbill, a young fellow of about 35, owner of the Hudson Essex sales service at Huntington, and his friend were on a pleasure trip from that town to Hammond. The controls of the plane came loose, and the men were looking for a good landing place. They stated that all the fields around Akron looked so small, that they were afraid of disastrous results should they attempt a landing.

They circled around Akron and started back east and finally picked out a field in which they thought they could land safely. When the plane was banked to make the landing and while in the air 300 feet or more, the control line broke, making the control stick perfectly loose. The machine immediately fell straight down into the house, and partially through the attic. The wings seemed to stop the plane from going further into the house.

Neither of the men were badly hurt. The pilot Mr. Crabbill receiving a small cut on the back of the head. They were able to climb down and out of the plane.

The House into which the plane crashed is a large square brick building, owned by Mrs. N. J. Rader, a widow here, who is at present visiting her son in Minnesota. It stands only about a mile and one-half south east of Akron. There is no tenant in the house, as Mrs. Rader makes her home there when she is in Akron. The roof on the structure is a complete wreck, and will have to be replaced with an entirely new one.

No part of the plane, except possibly the motor can be salvaged. The body and wings were completely demolished.

KEEPING RECORDS OF THE CARELESS DRIVERS

Automobile drivers will do well not to figure in too many accidents, for under the new 1927 law their license can be revoked. Under the provisions of the new law every accident in the state must be reported to the nearest police officer who in turn sends a report to the state police. A file is now being compiled in the office of the state police department keeping the names of all motorists figuring in accidents, together with their license numbers and a record of the driver who was at fault.

The new law will help weed out the careless drivers, because of the absolute checking system. Hereafter a man could have an accident in Indianapolis, the next week have an accident in Evansville and many other places but no records available would be on hand to show him as a careless driver. There would be records against him in every locality where he figured in an accident but heretofore there has been no compilation of such records.

Under the present law police from every locality where one may have an accident will send in a report to the state police department. These reports will be compiled and where it is shown that motorist has figured in two accidents, he will be investigated. If he has figured in more than two accidents, a summons will be issued against him to show cause why his license should not be revoked.

Safety directors have been appointed in every city and town in the state to carry out the provisions of the act of 1927.

TWO-HEADED CALF ON EXHIBITION AT BANK

One of nature's freaks can be seen at the Farmers State Bank, in the form of a two headed calf, which was procured by Dr. Anson somewhere near Athens. He had the heads mounted and they are now hanging in the bank.

The heads are both perfectly formed, and are joined at the neck, slanting away from each other at an angle.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Three Divergent Schemes for Naval Limitation Offered at Geneva.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

THREE great powers, in conference at Geneva, through their representatives, for the purpose of devising further limitation of naval armament, are considering three widely divergent plans, and if they get together on any scheme it will be only by making big concessions and after long debate. The initial positions of the three powers may be succinctly stated thus:

United States—Extension of the 5-5-3 ratio to all warships, with definite tonnage limits for cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

Great Britain—Further limitation of battleships, reduction in size and armament of both capital ships and cruisers and extension of the 5-5-3 ratio to 30,000-ton cruisers, but no mention of application to auxiliaries.

Japan—A naval holiday on the basis of the status quo, and a ban on battleship construction.

Ambassador Hugh Gibson opened the conference and presided as chairman because it was called by President Coolidge. In submitting the American plan he suggested the following allocation of tonnage:

Cruisers—United States and Great Britain, 200,000 tons; Japan, 150,000 tons.

Destroyers—United States and Great Britain, 250,000 tons; Japan, 150,000 tons.

Submarines—United States and Great Britain, 90,000 tons; Japan, 54,000 tons.

In polite terms, Mr. Gibson hinted that if an agreement among the powers for naval limitation was not reached, the United States was prepared to resort to an extensive building program.

According to American experts, adoption of the British plan would enable England in time of war to swamp the American fighting ships through utilization of her mercantile marine as auxiliary cruisers; her big passenger liners would be capable of carrying airplanes and transporting troops as well as mounting 6-inch guns. In the Japanese proposal to adopt the status quo the Americans found a joker in the fact that Japan possesses considerable more cruisers and destroyers in commission or capable of utilization than the United States and the legalization of this strength would place Japan just below Great Britain and above America for these categories.

Admiral Sir Frederick Field, British delegate, explained the British point of view. He declared Great Britain requires more light cruiser and destroyer tonnage than any other power because England relies on its food supply from overseas and also for marketing the dominions' products and safeguarding the long routes of communication.

All this was set forth at length when the proposals were turned over to a committee of expert technicians who were instructed to try to find a common ground for discussion. The British claim to greater tonnage of light craft was supported by elaborate charts showing how England's trade routes and lines of communication criss-cross every body of navigable water on the globe.

Naval experts in Washington openly attacked both the British and Japanese plans, and their view was shared by Congressman Britten of Illinois, ranking member of the house committee on naval affairs. The senator predicted that failure of the Geneva conference will result in increased naval building by the United States but this view was not shared by Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. Mr. Borah feels there is little likelihood of the conference achieving real results, but that even if it does fail, the government will not enter upon a large building program.

POLAND'S firm and dignified stand against the demands of Russia in connection with the murder of the Russian minister in Warsaw seems to have had good results, for it is now reported that the two countries are in the way to negotiate a treaty of amity. But the Soviet government's savage reprisal in the way of wholesale executions of counter-revolutionaries and others accused of being spies in the pay of foreign governments has aroused widespread indignation. An instance of this is the resolution adopted by a joint meeting of the executive committee of the British labor party and of the general council of the British Trades Union congress.

"While recognizing the Soviet government's indignation at the murder of M. Volke," the resolution said, "we are obliged to protest against the execution of persons innocent thereof as a reprisal. We are of the opinion that meeting murder by murder is a degradation of the standards of civilized life and can produce nothing but harm to Soviet Russia."

In this connection it is interesting to read that Pope Pius XI in an allocution before a secret consistory denounced bolshevism as an insidious, subversive doctrine that is permeating the ignorant classes throughout the world. Basing his remarks on knowledge coming to him through evidence gathered by his diplomatic outlets, the pope charged bolshevism with being chiefly responsible not only for the troubles in China but also in Mexico.

MARSHAL CHANG TSO-LIN is now the absolute dictator of northern China—though he may not enjoy that pre-eminence very long. In a twenty-word speech in Peking he announced his intention to resign the office of generalissimo in order to work for the regeneration and unification of the country. The diplomatic body was absent from the brief ceremony and so avoided official recognition of Chang's new status. In a circular telegram to the provinces the marshal pledged himself to fight against communism while breath remains in his body. He added that any seeking to undermine the nation's foundations or acting in collusion with foreigners for a like object, will be regarded as public enemies deserving death.

There are indications that the Han-ku and Nanking nationalist factions will soon get together, at least for the purpose of getting possession of Peking and Shantung provinces. The Shanghai bankers are reported to have released credits of a $30,000,000 loan to assist General Chiang in his drive northward.

FAILURE to reconcile the National peasant and Liberal parties in Romania resulted in the downfall of Premier Babu Stirbey, favorite of Queen Marie, who only recently was elevated to that position. He handed in his resignation and the former premier, Ion Bratiano, was called on to form a new cabinet pending elections. The National peasants not only refused to cooperate with the Liberals but announced that they are publishing a manifesto making scandalous revelations against the government party.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, who caught his first mess of rainbow trout by using worms as bait, has heard the sorrowful protests of the Taak Walton league members and now is landing the fish with the regular equipment on fly and casting himself no mean angler. The Chief Executive has been receiving various groups of citizens, including the members of the National Editorial association and their wives, and on Tuesday he motored to Rapid City and reviewed the South Dakota National Guard at its camp near there. He took back to the summer White House as an over-night guest former Gov. S. E. McKelvie of Nebraska, who is the editor of a farm paper. Mr. Coolidge accepted an invitation to attend the Belle Fourche roundup on July 4, which is his hint of a big gathering of farmers from South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming.

Governor General Wood of the Philippines was the President's most important individual caller of the week, having been invited to report on conditions in the islands. Other visitors included several congressmen.

REPRESENTATIVE W. R. GREEN of Iowa, chairman of the house ways and means committee, went to Washington for a conference with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and told the correspondents that there was small hope of a substantial tax reduction in 1928. Present indications, according to Mr. Green, are that, if there is any surplus in the national treasury at the end of the fiscal year, it will not be large enough to permit such reductions as were made in the last revenue bill, which authorized cuts aggregating $400,000,000.

In this view Mr. Green takes sharp issue with other Republican leaders, notably Senators Edge of New Jersey, and Reed of Pennsylvania, who have predicted a surplus exceeding $300,000,000 and probably running as high as $400,000,000.

BECAUSE of his refusal to return to the United States and testify in the trial of Albert R. Paul and Harry F. Sinclair in the Teapot Dome oil lease fraud case, the Department of State has put Harry M. Blackmer in the position of a "man without a country." The former chairman of the Midwest Refining company has been deprived of his passport by order of the department and so is without the protection of the government on his travels. While his passport has been revoked he has one chance to recover it, namely, to apply for a passport to return to the United States. But as Blackmer evaded service of a subpoena for a long time and finally refused service, officials here do not believe he will have a chance to come home, knowing that this would mean facing another subpoena for landing, or arrest for contempt of court, or confiscation of his American property under the drastic Walsh law, recently enacted by congress to meet this very case.

COMMANDER BYRD and his three fellow aviators waited all week for weather conditions favorable to the start of their flight to France in the Kokesher monoplane America. Heavy fog and fluctuating winds prevailed over the north Atlantic, and Byrd saw no object in starting as he was not planning a record-breaking flight or contemplating any sensational performance.

Colonel Lindbergh had a few days to devote to his own affairs, and then was summoned to Washington to confer with officials of the Army, Navy and Commerce departments. He flew from St. Louis in an army plane, making one stop, at Dayton, Ohio, a committee of St. Louis business men has offered Lindbergh the presidency of a projected airplane manufacturing company with large capital.

CITIZENS of Indianapolis grew tired of the doling of the city hall ring there and, being given the opportunity at a special election, they snatched it by voting, five to one, in favor of abolishing the council and majority system and substituting the city manager form of government. In March the anti-manager forces persuaded the legislature to amend the law so that the change cannot be made before January 1, 1929. If this legislative action is held unconstitutional the city manager will take office next New Year's day.

UNQUALIFIED approval of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway project is given by the joint New England-St. Lawrence waterway committee of business men, financiers, economists, and engineers in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, Maine, and Connecticut.

After months of study this committee has concluded that the all-American waterway route through New York, proposed as an alternative to the St. Lawrence route, is impractical from a financial and engineering standpoint, and in a formal report the spokesmen for the six states urge the Washington government to initiate negotiations with the Canadian government upon a treaty which will speed completion of the St. Lawrence project.

Colonel Lindbergh's Return to St. Louis

Col. Charles Lindbergh, when he returned to St. Louis, was given a rousing reception that lasted about three days. The young "king of the air" is seen above with Mayor Victor J. Miller immediately after his landing.

Jardine Welcomes Young Campers to Washington

The first arrivals to attend the Boys' and Girls' camp held under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture, were greeted by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine. The boys and girls, from all parts of the nation, are living in tents erected on the Department of Agriculture grounds, with the Washington monument in the background.

ANNE AND HER TROUSSEAU

(By D. J. Walsh.)

ANNE gave a last flourish with her broom and the front porch was swept. Her lips, which had been curving in a smile, straightened suddenly as she saw Frank's figure on the porch next door.

"Hey-Shoos!" yelled the Frank, and Boots brought up short as he saw the cat's body wriggling in the neck of the vase, unable to get either in or out. Anne picked it up and pulled out the cat. But the cat, now frightened to a point of terror, was fastened securely, and her neck swelling, tilted the neck of the vase. There was but one thing to do. The vase must be broken. The last thing her father had made, Anne treasured it highly. But Boots had been her father's cat and she knew that between the cat and the vase there could be no choice in her father's eyes. In the kitchen she picked up a hammer and broke the neck of the vase. The cat jumped out and, with insolent disregard of the dog resumed the washing and licking smooth of her tail boots. The vase had rolled and now lay in pieces on the polished floor. A cry escaped Anne. On the floor among the pieces of pottery lay gold pieces, hundreds of them! Her father had weighted the vase with gold pieces for safe hiding.

"Anne," called Frank's voice at the door. "Anne, I've got to drive downtown—the train's off the track and none running. Want to go downtown with me?"

Anne's smiling face greeted him. "Go? I should say I do—I want to get a gray velvet cushion for Shoes—found the money father hid and—maybe I'll get part of my trousseau today—while I'm downtown. Oh, the darling pup!"

Frank, starting about the disordered room, with its broken pottery lying on the floor, gave a low whistle. "I guess I'll never understand you, Annie dear," he said softly, "but as long as she's starting the trousseau—nothing else matters."

Various Reasons for Observance of Sunday

There is no definite information as to when the observance of the first day of the week was substituted by the Christians for that of the seventh day, the ancient Jewish Sabbath. It undoubtedly arose among the earlier practices of the Christian church, and was regarded as the fittest day to be held sacred because in the words of one of the fathers, "It is the first day in which God changed darkness to light, and the same day, also Jesus Christ, our Savior, rose from the dead." The several references in the New Testament to the Lord's day, and to the "first day of the week," will of course, be borne in mind. A few additional reasons taken from the Old Testament were advanced by others of the early fathers in support of the observance of this day. The first, either ecclesiastical or civil, by which the Sabbath observance of Sunday is known to have been ordained, was by Constantine, A. D. 321, forbidding all work but necessary husbandry on the already "venerable Sunday." In the Theodosian code it is enjoined that "on Sunday it is enjoined that 'on Sunday' rightly designated by our ancestors as the Lord's day, all lawsuits and public business shall cease." Since the Ninth century Sunday has been a thoroughly established institution in Christian countries as a day of rest and religious exercises, and one exempt from any occupations of purely secular character, except such as were necessary.

"Dust Devils"

Travelers in Death valley of California have described the wonderful contortions of the sand-dollars that whirlwinds sometimes send spinning across the hot plain. Even more remarkable are the "dust devils" frequently seen in the valley of the White Nile. Sometimes two of these whirling columns, meeting, and it is said, if they be well matched, the collision stops them and a struggle ensues as to which way they shall twist. Gradually one gains the mastery and the two combined begin to grate alike and then rush on together. Some of these whirls will, it is declared, strip the clothes from an Arab's back, or twist a goat round and round like a top.

Connecticut River

This name was given to the river before the region was colonized. Connecticut was formed from the first settlements near the mouth of the river. The same occurred in many other cases—the Tennessee and the Missouri rivers, for instance. The colonies and states near the mouth of the streams took the names of the rivers. When the first settlements were made in what is now the state of Connecticut the region along the upper Connecticut river was an unexplored wilderness.

Rebuke Backfired

Yesterday I administered to a certain person a deserved rebuke, and it backfired. Thus is virtue rewarded. The certain person entered the room where I was writing, and stood, head craned forward, reading over my shoulder.

"I'll say so," agreed the certain person. "You might at least say good morning, even though you don't feel disposed to turn around."

WHITE AND BLACK MADE CHIC; FLOWERS ADORN DANCE FROCK

THOSE who consider startling black-and-white impossible from the standpoint of becomingness will find that white touched with black is not only more flattering, but it is the very quintessence of chic for summer wear.

Often the white-with-a-touch-of-black effect is achieved not by the use of black, but rather through the accessories which complement the costume. That is, with an all-white gown of crepe or satin, the shoes will be white piped with black, likewise the belt the but fashion has been, is now doing, and will continue to do, that very thing. The vogue for wearing flowers shows no abatement. During the winter, the mode's aim was very sure, most of the flowers finding place on the shoulder of midday's frock, if not on the lapel of her coat.

With the coming of summer Dame Fashion grows less arbitrary, posing her poses as prettily and promiscuously as she pleases. Especially are the new dance frocks cunningly flower-bedecked. There's often a cluster flowers and the purse will be of white black. If one follows the latest French vogue the hand bag is sure to be of black velvet. The shoulder flower may be black or black-and-white, or it may indolence in a touch of color. The hat carrying out the idea of white predominating will likely be one of the very new broad-brimmed white felts with simply a black ribbon velvet band, or what is quite the latest, a white felt with tassets of black lace.

Embroidery done in black on white may be discreetly carried out that while it works miracles in achieving chic, a dainty summery appearance will not be forfeited. The pretty afternoon frock in the picture emphasizes of flowers on the bouffant skirt matching the shoulder bouquet. Then, again, maybe the flowers are ingeniously worked into a ribbon-embroidered basket effect, or perhaps they will peek here and there from under the soft folds of her bouffant skirt. Bouquets of faintly plumed people blossoms add loveliness from neckline to hemline of the girlish dance frock in the picture. The dress, which is of white georgette, is delightfully simple. In regard to white georgette, this fabric is wonderfully popular for party frocks. According to Paris reports, either all-white or all-black remains favorite for evening wear.

As every one will agree, nothing in the way of a gown for wear on a size the effectiveness of black embroidered on white. The original model is of heavy white crepe, but the style could be successfully copied in white shantung, white linen or white jersey, or that which is the reigning favorite for sports wear, white crepe satin, the sort that launders.

There is a decided preference for sheer white fabrics this year, delicately printed with black. Especially is corsette print-of this character in demand.

moonlit summer evening could be more enchanting than this lovely frock of white georgette which Eleanor Boardman of screen-star fame is wearing in this picture. Its semi-fitted bodice and gracefully undulating skirt are a study of the white evening gown finds expression also through the medium of white satin. FARM POULTRY

WATCH MARKETING EGGS AND POULTRY

"Poultry production is running wild without chart or compass, stimulated by past profits, by a tendency to shift from other nonpayment branches of agriculture to poultry raising, and by optimistic statements of those who sell supplies to poultrymen."

This is a statement of Prof. James E. Rice, head of the poultry department of the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y., commenting on trends in the poultry industry.

Recent figures showing the enrollment in the correspondence courses in poultry husbandry offered by the college, bear out this statement. Nearly five hundred New York state farmers are studying the four poultry courses, and an analysis of this figure shows that approximately fifty are studying the general management of a laying flock to one who is taking the course in marketing of eggs and poultry.

This may indicate, say college authorities, "that the poultrymen are a great deal more interested in producing eggs and poultry than they are in marketing them so they can compete with the high-quality products shipped to eastern markets by old-world and far west producers."

"Better marketing and curtailed production," according to Professor Rice, "are necessary to save the New York state poultry industry from a serious depression."

Dirty Eggs Expensive to Careless Poultryman
Dirty eggs, especially numerous this time of year, cost the poultryman from one to three cents per dozen because of the lower grade in which they are placed, according to E. M. Hensley of Purdue university, who is investigating marketing of poultry and eggs.

Three principal causes may be assigned for the large volume of dirty eggs. Menstruation. They were too few nests, resulting in the hens hiding their nests in dirty, wet places; unclean nests, and allowing hens free range in wet weather.

Dirty eggs can be eliminated by providing a sufficient number of clean, roomy nests, at least one to every four or five hens. These nests should be placed in a darkened part of the house to prevent egg eating and floor eggs. Do not permit hens to roost in the nests at night and change straw or shavings used as nesting material. The wet range is the most common cause of dirty eggs. Keeping hens confined to the house in wet weather until noon, and gathering of eggs before they are let out will keep eggs clean.

Ducks Not Particular Where They Leave Eggs
Ducks lay heavily during the laying season. However, they are not particular as to where they leave the eggs. It is no uncommon sight to see duck eggs scattered here and there in the yard or hog lot. As a result of this thoughtless attitude on their part, many eggs are eaten or destroyed by dogs, swine or the ducks themselves.

The proper method of handling the ducks in order to get all the eggs laid is by keeping the ducks confined in a duck house, or an abandoned stall of the barn during the night and until eight or nine o'clock in the morning.

Poultry Items
Tobacco in some form is now generally used as a remedy for intestinal worms in poultry.

Remove all males four to five weeks of age. Furnish perching space early to prevent crowding.

You can't have thrifty chicks unless they get sunlight—either direct, or through these glass substitutes. Wind down glass strains out the life-giving violet rays.

The demand for fresh duck eggs is never over-supplied.

"The best hens, and roosters to keep and to breed from," says one poultry man, "are the bright, nervous, 'talkative' kind, but not the 'squawkers.' These are signs of vigor, and vigor means eggs."

It is the general practice not to keep breeding ducks more than three or four years, although people have kept them with good results until they were eight years old.

Heavy egg production, like heavy milk production, can only be secured by liberal feeding of a well-balanced ration.

Only three chicks should be placed in the brooder house for every square foot of its floor space. A house 10 by 10 feet will hold only 300 chicks.

SHATTERED HOPES

Eskimo Religion

The Eskimos in Greenland and Labrador are, with few exceptions, nominally Christians. The native religion is a vague animism and consists of a belief in good and evil spirits, limited each to its own sphere, and in heaven and hell. A childish faith is placed in native wizards, who are regarded as intermediaries between mankind and the spirit-powers. Worship of the whale-spirt is prevalent.

Flying Fish Luckless

The flying fish is a somewhat luckless creature, though it travels with almost equal facility under the water or in the air. When pursued by larger fish these oceanic monomaniacs leap above the surface of the water, spreading their wings and soaring above the waves for many yards, but during their flight they are easy prey for gulls, says Daniel Henderson in "Children of the Tide."

To Remove Tarnish

The tarnish on bronze is copper carbonate. It may be removed by friction or it may be dissolved in weak acids. Rottenstone mixed with oil to a creamy consistency is the common frictional agent used on these metals. Oxalic acid solution, buttermilk or vinegar, especially when warmed, quickly dissolves the tarnish on bronze.

NATIONS OF NORTH LEAD IN ATHLETICS

The most athletic countries are those with the lowest average temperature, according to computations made by Dr. Guillermo Hoxmark, of the Argentine weather bureau, on the basis of performances at the last two Olympic games in Antwerp and Paris.

Twenty-six countries were represented and the number of inhabitants of each were divided by the number of points gained, thus giving the number of thousands of inhabitants per point. The countries were then ranged in the resulting order.

When brought into relation with the average annual temperature it appeared that a high average athletic ability and a low average temperature go together.

The figures of the two competitions taken separately and together, give approximately the same result. In each case Norway, Finland and Sweden head the list in the order named. Great Britain stands twelfth; Spain, Czechoslovakia, Japan and Egypt are among those at the bottom of the list.

Bergen Has More Than Proper Share of Rain

When we arrive in Bergen it is raining so hard that all the rules we have ever seen before seem almost a drought in comparison. The people of Bergen are famous for being cheerful. I ask a man how they can be cheerful when it rains so much, and he says: "It might rain worse." And so it might. They have only seventy-two inches of rain in a year in Bergen, whereas in Cherapunji, India, they average seven times as much.

I ask this Bergen man if it rains all the time in Bergen and he remembers a time in August, 1831, when it didn't rain—but his memory was poor. It rains in Bergen on the slightest possible provocation; it doesn't wait for a prediction of "fair and warmer" from the weather man, or for Decoration day, circus day or a Methodist picnic. Everybody carries an umbrella in Bergen and few take the trouble to put it down. In fact the horses of Bergen are so accustomed to umbrellas that when they see a person without one they are liable to get scared at the unusual sight and run away. Bergen is the rainiest city in Europe.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Timely Odds

She was a young and pretty girl of a sporting turn of mind. Somehow she heard that a certain horse was to win a certain race, and, deciding to indulge in a little speculation, she went to a "bookie" and put a dollar on for a win, asking him the same time how much she would get if it came off.

"If it starts at 20 to 1 you will get 21 back," said the bookie; "if at 10 to 1, 11 back; if at 5 to 1 you'll get 6 back."

"I see, said the maiden, "and if it starts at one o'clock, how much should I get?"

Lesson for July 3

SAUL CHOSEN KING

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 10:17-25: 10:17-18. GOLDEN TEXT—What doth Jehovah require of thee, but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God? PRIMARY TOPIC—Saul Becomes a King. JUNIOR TOPIC—Saul, the First King of Israel. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Calls to Life Service. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Opportunities for Leadership.

The period of Judges ended with Samuel's administration. This lesson shows us the transition from the rule by the judges to the monarchy. For a comprehensive view of the transition it will be well to make a survey of chapters eight to eleven.

I. The People Demand a King (8:1-9).
1. Their reasons for this demand.
(1) Samuel was incapacitated by old age; (2) the unfaithfulness of his sons whom he had appointed as his successors. In this Samuel committed a great blunder, for the office of judge was not hereditary. (3) The desire to be like other nations. The surrounding nations had a king as their leader. They wanted a king who would go out and fight their battles (v. 20).
2. Samuel's behavior under this trial (vv. 6-9). He took the matter to the Lord in prayer. Even though Samuel's blunders in past brought on this trouble he did the wise thing in taking it to the Lord in prayer. The Lord comforted him by assuring him that this rejection was not merely his rejection, but the rejection of the kingdom of God.

II. Samuel Tells of the Manner of the Kings (vv. 10-13).
He assures them that the king will be very exacting and arbitrary in his dealing with them.

1. He will take their sons and make them to serve in the army and do all kinds of hard work on his farm and in his house. He will make slaves of their daughters also.

2. He will take their lands, even those inherited from their fathers, and give them to his favorite officers and servants. Not content with that he will take the tenth part of the produce that remains and give to them.

III. Samuel's Protest Disregarded by the People (vv. 19-22).
Having made up their minds they deliberately shut their eyes to the truth and rushed madly into the experiment.

IV. The King Providentially Pointed Out (10:10-16).
Saul was sent by his father to search for the asses that had wandered away. This was quite natural. While Saul and his father were acting freely in this matter, at the same time God's sovereign purpose was being carried out. Although difficult to understand, God carries forth His sovereign purpose without interfering with man's freedom.

V. The King Chosen at Mizpah (10:17-27).
The Lord had already pointed out to Samuel who should be king and Saul had been anointed. Let us observe:

1. Why Saul was chosen. If they would have a king the Lord would give them the one best suited to fill the place. He was from Benjamin, a small tribe, which would prevent undue rivalry between Ephraim and Judah, the leading tribes of Israel. He was also chosen because of his personal fitness (v. 23).

2. How Saul was chosen. The method was by lot. Samuel called the names of the sons of Saul, and before the lot was cast he again remonstrated with them against such action. He showed them the base ingratitude of their rejection of Samuel. God and King who had done so much for them, and gave them a chance to forego their rash demand.

3. How the king was received by the people. Saul knew that the Lord had chosen him, but through modesty and fear he shrank from the responsibility. When he was brought forth Samuel presented him to the people, assuring them that Saul was the Lord's choice.

VI. The King Confirmed at Gilgal (ch. 11).
Soon after the election at Mizpah the Ammonites made a desperate demand upon the men of Jabesh-Gilead. Saul hearing of it hastily summoned the tribes together for war and won a remarkable victory. As he thus proved his ability the people wished to punish the sons of Belial, but Saul forbade them. Samuel took advantage of this auspicious situation and called all the people together at Gilgal where they formally crowned him their king.

The Life

To apprehend the life that is to be we must learn to think more largely and severely of the life that is now. We must enlarge the scope and measure of today, must identify today with what we call eternity.—Charles Cuthbert Hall.

Moving Forward

To move forward in life, you do not need to be forward in conduct, but you must keep your face to the front, and see your objective.—Victor.

FAMOUS MINING STRIKES

By THOMAS E. STEWARD

Mine Salting With a Cigarette

Australia is said to have been the point of origin for one of the most ingenious methods of salting gold mines ever devised. This was done by putting some gold dust in a hand-rolled cigarette, which the fakes smoked as the examiner was washing out his specimens. By flicking the ashes into the pan, the gold was put in the sand in a way that almost no one could suspect. In some attempts this scheme is said to have succeeded. Miners have gone so far as to haul wagonload after wagonload of material to a dump beside a hole in the ground, which was then filled with water. The rich material, brought from elsewhere, would be pointed out as one from the water-filled hole. At other places, shotgun have been loaded with rich gold dust and discharged into the earth at places where the expert might be expected to take samples.

Many examiners have been saved from serious mistakes by the fact that free gold such as is found in river sands is rather smooth and rounded particles as a result of the action of water and sand. Inexpert salters often use gold from underground mines to salt such a tract, with the result that the examiner instantly observes that these rough-edged, irregular particles could not have lain for ages in river sands, which would have polished and smoothed them.

Mining engineers must exercise a good deal of tact in reporting to owners whom they suspect of salting. More than one man has been "escorted" from camp after denouncing men they suspected of trickery.

Not long ago a Mexican who was trying to sell a silver mine took out a large amount of material from a rich but very narrow vein and smeared it in all particles of the mine where he thought an examiner would take samples. Ore in this vein ran from 1,000 to 4,000 ounces of silver to the ton of material, so that the report would have shown the mine to be of extraordinary richness had the investigator been deceived.

But it is one of the rules of mine examination to scrape off all loose earth and get a typical sample from well settled earth. Following this rule was the salvation of this particular examiner. He took samples in many places where the mine had been salted, it is true, but he scraped away the loose earth and got specimens from beneath. These specimens showed the mine to be worth buying.

After the mine had been working for some time it proved to be producing 42 ounces of silver to the ton. His report had estimated the yield at 46 ounces, which is considered a remarkably close estimate.

Gold From Vanished Mountains

THE discovery of particles of gold in the river sands, where they have been washed down as time passed from a natural deposit "in place" in some nearby mountains, has often been a sign for miners to look for the native deposit after they have exhausted the "float" gold that has been washed into the valley. Geologically the gold deposits of California proved to be of intense interest because the "lode" or natural deposit could never be found. Geologists finally determined the truth, which was that California gold was in the debris of huge mountains that had been entirely washed away from their original location millions of years ago. The deep deposits of gold-bearing gravel were all that was left of a massive chain of quartz mountains, rich in gold, which at some point far back in geologic time stood in the neighborhood of the modern Sierras.

It is true that there was gold and gold-bearing quartz "in place" at many points in the Sierras, but the other theory was borne out by the discovery that the biggest gravel deposits were in what had once been the bed of a huge river that had run at right angles to the direction in which the California streams now flow. This huge river bed had been completely filled with the detritus from the ancient mountains, and it was in this material, especially, that the rich gold deposits were found.

This ancient river bed came to be known as "the Big Blue Lead." It was a mile wide, as much as 400 feet deep in places, and extended for a distance of fully 50 miles. The age of this "lead" is indicated by the fact that it was 1,500 feet above the present level of the Bear river, which had worn its ravine deeper and deeper with the passage of almost incalculable time.

While the miners never found the lode above the alluvial deposits from which the gold might have been washed down, they did eventually discover a very rich lode under the alluvial gravel and eventually they turned their attention to the mining of this quartz deposit. It was known as the Veta Madre or Mother lode, a huge vein, six to thirty feet in width, which at places descended to a great depth into the native rock.

Nearly all of the gold mining now carried on in California is in these quartz mines, some of which are still opened up occasionally.

HOW MRS. WEAVER WAS HELPED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong. I do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a try? In some families, the fourth generation is learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A BATH TUB that tests automobiles

S-P-L-A-S-H through the bath tub goes the General Motors car. Out onto the slippery road it dashes. On go the brakes!

What is the reason for such torture of an innocent automobile?

The answer is that the engineers at the General Motors Proving Ground take nothing for granted. They want to know what happens when a car ploughs through water. They insist too on measuring, with special machines which they have built, just how quickly the car can be stopped and just how much pressure of the foot is required to stop it.

Altogether General Motors has 136 different tests by which cars are proved as they never have been proved before; nothing is left in doubt. All of which means that you are buying doubly assured safety, reliability and comfort when you choose a General Motors car.

Had Learned Wisdom

A father was called on the carpet because he never gave his children written excuses when they were absent from school. "I won't write notes to no school teacher; that's how I got stomach trouble," said the man, to strengthen his position. The school authorities looked puzzled. "I married her afterward," he continued.

New York at Boiling Point

New York city has transformed rush into crash. It has tumbled into itself and boiled over itself. It has been boiled, and add 1 teaspoonful of salt to each quart. Process immediately at 10 pounds pressure, or 240 degrees F.—pour glass jars for 40 minutes, pint glass jars for 35 minutes, and No. 2 and No. 3 tin cans for 30 minutes. Remove the jars from the canner, and invert glass jars, placing them out of drafts. Plunge tin cans in cold water to cool quickly. Mark all jars and cans for later identification. Keep them at room temperature for at least a week.

STEAM PRESSURE BEST FOR BEANS

Must Be Processed at Temperature Over 212 F.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
String beans may be canned successfully at home if you use a steam-pressure canner. Like nonacid vegetables, string beans must be processed at a temperature higher than 212 degrees F., and this is only obtainable under steam pressure. Either glass or tin containers may be used. String beans should always be packed boiling hot. The advantages of what is now known as the "hot pack" are that the material at the center of the can is quickly raised to the temperature required for processing, the "exhaust" step is done away with, and a better product, in flavor and texture, is obtainable.

The United States Department of Agriculture gives these directions for canning string beans:

Pick the beans over carefully, string, wash thoroughly, and cut into pieces of the size desired for serving. Add enough boiling water to cover and boil for five minutes in an uncovered vessel. Pack in containers boiling hot, cover with the water in which they were boiled, and add 1 teaspoonful of salt to each quart. Process immediately at 10 pounds pressure, or 240 degrees F.—pour glass jars for 40 minutes, pint glass jars for 35 minutes, and No. 2 and No. 3 tin cans for 30 minutes. Remove the jars from the canner, and invert glass jars, placing them out of drafts. Plunge tin cans in cold water to cool quickly. Mark all jars and cans for later identification. Tasty Cheese Straws Needed Flavor to Salad

String Beans Must Be Processed Under Steam Pressure Whether Canned in Glass or Tin.

Sometimes a tasty cheese cracker or cheese straw adds just the touch to a salad that is needed to make it seem a course of the ordinary. Accessories of this kind are especially good at luncheon or supper when guests are invited, or for serving with a salad that is the main dish among party refreshments. Cheese straws may be included by way of variety on any occasion where sandwiches or crackers could be served. The United States Department of Agriculture gives the following recipe for making them:

Cheese Straws.
1 cupful flour
1/2 teaspoonful salt
4 tablespoonfuls 1-16 teaspoonful cayenne fat
Cut the flour, salt, fat and one-half of the cheese together with a biscuit cutter until the mass is blended. Add the water and mix well. Toss on a slightly floured board and roll two or three times with the roller. Sprinkle one-half of the remainder of the cheese and roll again. Repeat this until all the cheese is used. Roll the mass out about one-quarter inch thick. Cut in strips one-half inch wide and six inches long. Place the strips on a baking sheet and bake until a delicate brown in a moderate oven about 400 degrees Fahrenheit.

Flavor of Curry Helps Vegetables With Rice

The flavor of curry in sauce need not be limited to lamb or chicken, although many of the East Indian dishes in which this flavor was introduced to the Western world were made of these meats. A combination of vegetables with rice can be made tasty and unusual if a little curry powder is added to the sauce. The bureau of home economics gives the following directions for making a vegetable curry:

Vegetable Curry.
1/2 cupful rice
1 cupful diced onion
1 cupful fresh or frozen peas
1 cupful diced celery
4 tablespoonfuls butter
1/2 teaspoonful salt
1/2 teaspoonful onion
1/2 teaspoonful curry
2 teaspoonfuls Worcestershire sauce
Wash and cook the rice in three plants of boiling salted water. Drain and let it stand to steam until the grains swell and become separate. Cook the vegetables in a small amount of water and just before removing from the stove add one cupful of canned peas, or if fresh peas are available, cook them with the other vegetables. Use the liquid from the vegetables, and add the salt, curry and Worcestershire sauce. Make a ring of the cooked rice, placing the vegetables in the center, and pour over them the liquid mixture. Serve very hot.

EVEN RENTED HOUSES MAY BE CONVENIENT

Such improvements as These Would be Well Worth Making Even in a Rented Home—A Few Cupboards, a Counter, or Drain Board Next to the Sink and Storage Places for Supplies, Dishes and Saucepans are Handy.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
It is true that when you rent a home you must accept most of the stationary features as they are. In looking about for a place to live you make the best choice you can. But unfortunately sometimes interest and attention stop right there. You say, "It does not pay to spend time or money on somebody else's property," forgetting that what you would really spend for would be your own comfort and pleasant working conditions.

You will pass a great deal of time in the kitchen. Why not begin by looking at it critically, to see what improvements could be made without too great effort or expense? Are the walls and woodwork a cheerful color? A little paint will make them so. If you cannot persuade the owner to do it for you, paint them yourself. Choose a warm tan or soft yellow for the walls in a room that needs sunshine; a cool gray in one that already receives plenty of light and sun.

Work Centers Arranged.
How are the work centers arranged for preparing food, cooking, serving, clearing away and dishwashing? Can you move any part of the equipment so as to save steps? Farmers' Bulletin 1513-F, "Convenient Kitchens," will give you some good suggestions as to how this can be done. The United States Department of Agriculture will send the bulletin free on request as long as the supply lasts.

What about the height of the various working surfaces? You can put blocks under the legs of a kitchen table so that you do not stoop over it. If the sink is too low for your height, set box or pan in it and rest the dishpan on that. Put rollers on anything that must be moved frequently, such as the table or wood box.

Get some fresh curtains made of sturdy washable material to brighten up your workroom. Gingham or unbleached muslin would be expensive and answer the purpose. In fact, in every room where it is not possible to make other changes, curtains will help to make a cheerful, individualized home. Glance about the rest of the house, and see what can be done to make it livable. Before moving in the furniture look at the woodwork, wash, sand, and floor and see if they need any treatment which you could give without much outlay. Paint and varnish help wonderfully. Think over your furniture, and make up your mind to do without any ugly or unnecessary pieces, and to put away any brace-brace or pictures that only require extra work and care. Put a pole in each bedroom closet for clothes hangers, and make shoe bags or racks.

When Mother is Alarmed!

CONSTIPATION, biliousness, coated tongue, feverish headache, sick stomach—then is the time when mother relies upon Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. "My son had been constipated and bilious since birth. At the age of five he had such an attack of sour stomach and bad breath I had to take him out of kindergarten. It was then I gave him Syrup Pepsin. He improved from the first dose and soon was back to school completely restored and healthier than he had ever been before. It is a great comfort to have a medicine for children in which we can have such implicit confidence." (Name and address sent on request.)

Wins Confidence of Old Folks
Old people are charmed by the gentle, kindly action of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. No pain, gripe or depressing "flashing" of the bowels. Just an easy movement and the fine feeling of restful comfort. There's seldom any real sickness in the home that learns to use Syrup Pepsin at the first sign of coated tongue, fever, biliousness, headache and such troubles due to constipation. Recommended in a million homes. Sold by all druggists.
For a free trial bottle send name and address to Pepsin Syrup Company, Monticello, Illinois.

Noiseless Screen Doors

The constant banging of a screen door in summer is unpleasant, and it is very hard on the door. It can be prevented by fastening one-inch pieces of felt or very thin pieces of cork on the part of the doorframe where the door strikes. They may be nailed on, but are best glued, and when glued will remain in place a long time. There should be one piece near the top of the door and another near the bottom.

This applies also to any other door and to cupboard or bookcase doors.

Professor Forget All

About Dinner Party
The absent-minded professor who, starting to dress for a formal dinner, thought he was getting ready for bed and was found there by his wife, has a rival for wool-gathering honors in a certain English dean. This dean had invited some friends to dine at his house, and on their arrival a little ahead of time he suggested that in the interval of waiting they might like to walk through the grounds.

After spending a quarter of an hour admiring the flowers, shrubs and greenhouses, they came suddenly upon a door in the wall. "Ah," said the dean to his astonished guests, "this will be a much nearer way home than going back to the front," and all unconscious of his invitation he opened the door and bowed them out.—Boston Transcript.

Feel Good
Most ailments start from poor circulation. Constipation, indigestion, headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, and all the ills that afflict the human body, are the result of a sluggish, inactive blood. Nature's remedy—Vegetable Compound—will add to restoring your appetite and rid you of that heavy, lumpy, bloated feeling. Mild, safe, purely vegetable.
