

HORSES WILL GO. BABE RUTH AND MILTON. PAT GIRLS NOT WANTED. A KILLER AT ELEVEN.

William Durland, president of a great riding school, retiring, says the automobile will never replace the middle horse. Nevertheless, the saddle horse will vanish, and be only a memory to children of today's children.

When the musket came in, men thought it couldn't take the place of bow and arrow. And, of course, it couldn't replace the hawk that flew up to bring down the game bird.

The horse will linger on farms for a while and then disappear, as farming becomes really scientific. The work that requires three hand-reared days of the farmer's time now will be done in about forty days or less. And the "horse" will be a machine, run by gas, electricity or wireless power.

Many good investments in this world for those that hang on. When Edward Fitzgerald published his translation of the Buryat, that first edition sold for one penny in England. Last week J. F. Drake paid $2,200 for a copy.

When John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" was first published, wise book people said, "Only servants will buy a book of that kind." One of the copies, originally sold for two pence is worth thousands of dollars now.

Of 118,000,000 Americans, only 3,000,000 own stocks or bonds. This small number of stockholders, estimated by the American Bankers' Association, is encouraging to brokers and those that have good stocks and bonds for sale.

Wages are high, money is piling up in the savings banks, millions that own no stocks COULD sell them, if proper investments as to return and safety were offered.

If you like miracles, consider this. Peter Kraus, sailor on a freight ship in mid-ocean, drove particles of iron into his right eye while using a drill, and suffered agonies. Far away, Dr. Francis, ship's surgeon, picked up by radio, details of the sailor's trouble. He sent wireless directions, ordering them to stop using cocaine, telling them how to make a magnet. The magnet extracted the iron particles instantly, pain stopped, the man went back to work.

Mr. Burgess, bachelor member of a very "old family" in Ohio, leaves money to build a home for girls "between the ages of sixteen, and twenty-eight, of small stature, bright, ambitious and good to look at." Fat girls are not to be admitted.

That will be made by a foolish bachelor. Young girls ought to be reasonably fat, with tissue and energy stored up for their duty as mothers. Girls of the skeleton type have barely energy enough for themselves, to say nothing of a family.

What counts is not how you start, but how you finish. Years ago, a boy named Bamberg took a job at $4 a week to run errands; glad to get the job, glad to run. It was a start. Now, to his $22,000,000 dry goods plant in Newark he builds a $10,000,000 addition. And men from bigger cities go to Newark to study his ways of running a business.

The thoughtless may one point out that Babe Ruth gets, in one year, for hitting that ball about a thousand times as much as Milton got for writing "Paradise Lost." That is no argument. For one American that wants to read "Paradise Lost" at least a million want to see Babe Ruth play baseball.

An eleven-year-old boy, Michael Ponkraskow, ran away from home after a beating, killed a shopkeeper in an attempted holdup, and is wondering what will be done with him. It is said that he cannot be treated as a youthful delinquent, because he refuses to say that he is sorry he committed the murder. A childish reason, for lack of repentance is only one more proof of youthful delinquency.

In any case, the boy will not be executed, even if put on trial for murder. Capital punishment for juveniles, but killing children is no longer part of "civilization."

H. DOWL DIES IN PERU HOSPITAL

Henry Dowl, age 85, died at the Dukess Hospital in Peru last Thursday, February 24. Mr. Dowl had been a patient at the hospital for the past two years suffering from paralytic condition. The deceased was a former resident of Mentone having lived here for about twenty-five years. He moved from here to Peru four years ago. His wife predeceased him in death in 1922.

The body was brought to Mentone Monday for burial. Short services were held at the Mentone cemetery.

DETOUR BILL PASSES BOTH HOUSES

Indianapolis, Indiana, Feb. 23.—The Bennett Detour Bill, backed by the Hoosier State Automobile Association, has passed both Houses and will no doubt become a law.

This will end many troubles for the motorist, according to M. E. Noblet, Secretary-Manager of the automobile association who stated "that the trouble in the past has been first that the State Highway Commission had no authority to spend any of its funds on the repair of detours, and the counties and townships under whose jurisdiction detour roads naturally rested, have difficulty in finding funds to take care of their various road matters without keeping up state detours."

"The Bennett Detour Bill as passed by the House and Senate, not only authorizes the State Highway Commission to spend money, but requires that the detour be kept in reasonably good passable condition. Grounds shall be provided where practical in order to avoid the use of long detours."

"Motor clubs throughout the state have had thousands of inquiries as to what detours were put better maintained, and the preparation and enactment of this bill is the answer of the automobile association to solve this problem for the motoring public. And the whole matter has been worked out by the hearty co-operation of John D. Williams, director of the State Highway Commission."

LAWSON BYRRE SUES FAIRCHILD MONUMENT WORKS
Lawson Byrre, Newcastle farmer, Saturday afternoon filed a suit in the Rochester circuit court on a note which he holds against the Fairchild Monument Works, of Rochester owned by Mrs. Dora Fairchild and son, Paul and also seeking the appointment of a receiver to manage the concern.

Judge R. R. Carr Saturday heard evidence and in the application for a receiver and as Paul Fairchild gave his written consent to the appointment the court then appointed the United States Bank and Trust Company as receiver.

Mr. Byrre sued the firm on a $50 note which he held against it. He sought a judgment of $110. Mr. Byrre in his petition set forth that the Fairchild Monument Company has debts of $8900 and assets of a fair value of $11,000. The petitioner also said that certain creditors are pressing the firm to pay them threatening suit. Mr. Byrre says he believes the monument company would be paying concern if placed in the hands of a receiver.

H. S. CLOSES B. B. SEASON

The Mentone High School team closed the basketball season with two victories from Sidney, Saturday night, in the Community Forum.

The High School seconds won a closely fought game from the Sidney team in a certain rather by a score of 17-8. The game was marked by close guarding by both teams which resulted in a low score.

The first string five handed the Sidney five a defeat in a close and well played battle by a score of 32-25. Mentone took the lead from the start and held through-out the game by a few points. Igor started for the locals, collecting 16 of their 32 points.

The line-up was as follows:

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Bible School, 9:30; Morning Worship, 10:30; Evening service, 7:00. The pastor will preach at both services, which will be held in the basement of the church owing to the fact that we are redecorating the church. This did not in any way interfere with the attendance on last Lord's day, and we are sure will not at any time.

Interest in the Prayer meetings on Thursday evening is steadily increasing; come and bring your questions or problems for discussion, and help some one to get a blessing out of your own experience. One question for discussion just now is: "Is God speaking to us today through Storms, floods and earthquakes, are these things to be looked upon as mere 'Freaks of Nature'?" "Come thou with us, and we will do thee good."

MENTONE ZIPS TO CONTINUE BASKETBALL SEASON
The Mentone Zips have been re-scheduled and will continue to schedule games for the next few weeks.

Kline, formerly of the Akron C. of C. and Reber of North Manchester have been added to the line-up. Reber will be remembered as the winner of the sportsmanship cup in the local Independent Tournament.

Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Stookey, son Karl and daughter Ivo Marie were Sunday afternoon guests at the home of Mrs. Van Gilder. Jack Van Gilder returned with them after a few days visit on the farm.

KILLER ROAD BONDS SOLD

TO INDIANAPOLIS BANK
Kosciusko county's share of the $250,000 road bonds, totaling $35,000, were sold Saturday to the Fletcher Trust and Savings Bank of Indianapolis at a premium of $1417.70. The remaining one-half of the bonds were sold by Fulton county to the same banking firm. The road is on the county line. The East Construction Company has the contract, having been the successful bidder several years ago. Construction of the road was held up by litigation, the supreme court recently having decided that the road should be constructed.

SURPRISE GIVEN MR. AND MRS. GEO. W. SMITH

Neighbors and friends very pleasantly surprised Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Smith at their home south of Mentone on Wednesday evening, Feb. 23rd.

Delicious refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake, home made candy and pop corn was served and the ladies who prepared these eats are artists of the culinary art for some could not tell when they had eaten their sufficiency. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Mac Alapach, Charlie Fred Garrison and son Warren, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ladd and Mr. and Mrs. Ora Smith, daughter Blanche and sons Morgan, Malcolm, Oliver and Chester and the surprised hosts, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith.

The evening was spent in social conversation and singing stunts but no prizes were given. It was not decided when and where the next meeting would be held.

SODALES CLUB

Mrs. C. G. Carter and Mrs. D. L. Bunner very pleasantly entertained the Sodales Club at the home of Mrs. Carter Thursday p.m. Feb. 24. There was a full attendance of the membership. Responses to roll call were patriotic quotations or current events. Mrs. A. H. Stanford read a paper on the History of the Flag.

At the close of the business session Mrs. F. R. Burn conducted a delightful contest in which Mrs. Earl Shinn won the prize.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in playing progressive rummy. Mrs. C. W. Shafer winning the prize and Mrs. Van Gilder the consolation.

The guests were then invited to the dining room, where there were dainty little tables decorated in keeping with the patriotic program and delicious refreshments were served. Each table had a Washington birthday cake decorated with flags and cherries. Mrs. Chester Jones of Warsaw was a guest of the Club.

M. E. CHURCH

Sunday services will consist of: Sunday school 9:30. Preaching 10:30. Epworth League, 6:15. Freshing 7 p.m.

The DAIRY

PROPER FEEDING PAYS DAIRYMAN

The cost of feed is by far the largest single item in the cost of producing milk, and makes up one-half to two-thirds of the total gross cost. The labor cost will make up almost one-fifth to one-fourth of the total and all remaining costs combined usually do not run higher than 20 per cent, writes G. Heebink of South Dakota in the Indiana Farmer's Guide.

An ideal combination of feeds consists of well-cured legume hay, corn silage or roots, and farm grains balanced with muscle and bone-building feeds such as ground soy beans, wheat bran, linseed-oil meal or cotton seed meal.

It is a good practice to feed three pounds of silage and one pound of hay per hundred pounds of weight to each cow per day. For instance, a cow weighing 1,000 pounds should receive about thirty pounds of silage and ten pounds of hay each day.

When silage is not fed, approximately two pounds of dry roughage daily per hundred pounds live weight is a sufficient amount. Legume hay and good corn fodder make a desirable combination if the hay is limited.

A common rule for feeding grain is to feed cows, producing milk relatively high in butter-fat test, one pound of grain for every three pounds of milk produced and to cows producing milk of low butter-fat test, one pound of grain for every four pounds of milk produced. If this 1,000-pound cow was producing thirty pounds of milk daily, she would be fed from seven to ten pounds of grain each day, the amount of grain depending upon the fat test of the milk.

It is more profitable to feed a mixture of several grains than to feed straight grain ration of corn, barley or oats. Mixing 1,000 pounds or more of a mixture consisting of equal parts of corn and oats, to which has been added 10 per cent of linseed meal. The animal can gradually be started on this combination, using two or three pounds per day, and increasing the amount gradually for 20 or 30 days until by the end of this period the youngster would be allowed to have all that he would consume with relish. This amount would vary according to his breeding and feeding qualities, but it is a safe enough policy to let him be the judge of the amount necessary to satisfy his craving for food. In addition, allow him some roughage, mixed hay or clover alfalfa hay, yet when he is on a full ration of basic grain products you will find him devouring comparatively small amounts of hay.

Desirable Calf Rations for Animal for Home Use

Desirable rations for a calf nine months old that it is proposed to develop into an animal suitable for home butchering would result from using a mixture consisting of equal parts of corn and oats, to which has been added 10 per cent of linseed meal. The animal can gradually be started on this combination, using two or three pounds per day, and increasing the amount gradually for 20 or 30 days until by the end of this period the youngster would be allowed to have all that he would consume with relish. This amount would vary according to his breeding and feeding qualities, but it is a safe enough policy to let him be the judge of the amount necessary to satisfy his craving for food. In addition, allow him some roughage, mixed hay or clover alfalfa hay, yet when he is on a full ration of basic grain products you will find him devouring comparatively small amounts of hay.

All Experiments Prove Fall Freshening Best

In all of the dairy cow freshening experiments conducted as far back as Father Time can remember the experimenters always have arrived at the same results—that fall freshening is best.

There are several sound reasons why fall freshening means more dollars to the farmer.

In the first place September pastures are more succulent than August pastures. August is a complete "washout" as a pasture month, both cows and calves getting a poor start as a result.

The intense heat which accompanies August does not agree with either the cow or her offspring. Cooling rains usually fall in September, however, the pastures green up and consequently the cow freshening in this month gets a nice start.

Dairy Hints

A good cow cannot do her best on good roughages alone. She needs some feeds of high bulky and more concentrated character.

Frequent deliveries of cream to the market are essential for good quality. Cream should be delivered at least three times a week in winter.

See that the cow is perfectly clean when she is milked, as these germs likely fall into the milk while the cow is being milked.

The dairyman in need of protein supplements and milk feeds will probably be able to buy them at a lower figure now than a few weeks hence.

Calves raised on the minimum amount of milk, must begin to eat grain at an early age. Only good quality alfalfa or clover hay should be fed.

Whole Chesapeake Family Built to Rugged Health

L. M. McMasters, his wife and three children, all ill. Entire family used Tanlac and grew back to vigorous health. Give full credit to Tanlac for quick recovery

Mr. McMasters lives on Sims Creek Road, Chesapeake, Ohio. Of his recent trying experience he says: "For two years stomach and liver trouble had gradually run me down and when constipation developed that seemed the last straw needed to break me, and to make things worse all of my family were sick more or less all the time. My wife was subject to nervous attacks that kept us all awake at night. The children caught colds for no apparent reason and were confined to bed for several days at a time. None of us were getting the proper nourishment, and temporary relief would be followed by fresh attacks."

"We decided to give Tanlac a trial and it put us all on our feet. Our grocers told us much higher now. We have no expense for medicines for we all eat heartily, and our food does us good. That was some time ago and we've all enjoyed the finest health since, eating and sleeping normally

Softest Cloth Known

A wonderful new cloth, which is described as being "softer than the softest silk or wool, with a pliability greater than any known cloth," is a new material invented by a noted Paris garment designer. It is made from the fluffiest ostrich feathers, which are plucked from the quills, treated by a special process which makes them as light as down, and then woven into a cloth. The finished product is lighter in weight than the finest down, and resembles thistle-down, after which it is named. Although it is phenomenally light in weight, it is very durable.

COLDS, chills and changes in temperature impose extra strain on our kidneys. Sluggishness of function is apt to permit some retention of body-poisons in the blood and make one more susceptible to the ill of winter. Presence of this unfettered waste makes one listless, tired and achy

SELECTING RIGHT FOOD FOR CHILDREN

This Lunch is Made Up of Poached Egg on Toast, Cauliflower, Milk, Brown Bread and Rice Pudding.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The necessity for selecting the right food for children is being emphasized because, in the midst of plenty, thousands of American children are not getting the foods they need for the highest development of mind and body. The United States has more food and better food than any other nation. Our pure food laws and sanitary methods of handling food supplies are world famous. Along with our efforts to safeguard health through food control, however, we need to develop better food habits and so reduce our alarmingly high percentage of malnutrition. For the undernourished child does not have a fair start, and everything is harder for him. Even though his body may outgrow some of the visible signs of malnutrition, others, not so apparent, remain. Faulty mental habits cling and in countless other ways he carries a handicap all through life.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The ability to make good fudge is supposed to be developed during the four years of the high school student. A platelard of this delectable and easily-made confection helps out any informal party.

Gift boxes of fudge for birthdays or unexpected requirements can be produced on short notice, usually from materials on hand in the pantry.

Like any other cooked product, good fudge depends on a good recipe, and if the results are to be the same each time, the recipe must be followed accurately. The United States Department of Agriculture sponsors the following directions for making fudge. Unsweetened or cooking chocolate gives the best results, but in an emergency, from one to two tablespoonfuls of cocoa may be used in place of each ounce or square of chocolate, to make a very palatable product.

Chocolate Fudge.

1 cupful sugar, 1/2 cupful milk, 1/2 cupful butter, 1/2 cupful chocolate, 1/2 cupful milk or cream.

Place the sugar, chocolate and milk over a slow fire and cook without stirring until the sirup forms a soft ball when a small amount is dropped in cold water. Remove the candy from the fire and let it cool without stirring. When it is lukewarm add butter, salt and vanilla, and beat until creamy. Then quickly turn into a buttered pan, and when firm cut in squares. Or if preferred drop it in teaspoonfuls on waxed paper.

To vary the recipe, add a cupful of chopped nuts, raisins or marshmallows, just before the fudge is ready to pour into the buttered pan.

Peanut Sandwiches for Children's Lunch Box

Peanuts are a valuable food to use from time to time in the children's lunch box. Here is a peanut sandwich that has all the nutty flavor and some of the texture of the nuts themselves. Get freshly roasted peanuts and put them through the food chopper, using the medium-knife. Do not use the nut knife because it will grind the peanuts so fine that they will be pasty when mixed for the sandwiches. By using the medium-knife there will be tiny pieces of the nuts in the sandwich filling.

Mix the ground nuts with just enough cream to moisten them for a sandwich spread. Add salt to season the mixture. Graham or whole-wheat bread is especially good to use, for these sandwiches. Butter is not needed since the peanuts themselves are rich in fat and have been moistened with cream. The bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture says that peanuts are also an excellent protein food, especially when combined with wheat. The protein of wheat and of the peanuts becomes "complete" or "efficient." Such complete protein can be used by the body to special advantage in building and repairing tissues and for supplying energy. Therefore a sandwich made of whole wheat bread and peanuts fulfills the requirement for a complete protein food.

Denotes Low-Grade Beef

Yellow fat in a beef cut carcass usually denotes low-grade beef from a grass-fattened animal. Firm white tallow in a beef cut, with small veins of this fat appearing throughout the substance of the meat, denotes beef of superior grade and such meat is usually tender and palatable.

Curtains for a Boy's Room Need Not Be Fussy

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A boy likes a room of his own where he can bring other boys if he wishes. Straight lines, strong colors, durable materials, and few furnishings are desirable in such a room.

A boy won't want curtains with ruffles, pastel colors, or vague patterns. He prefers such materials as burlap, crash, denim, or sateen, in strong green, brown, blue or orange colors. These materials can be hung from a painted pole without a valance. Vigorous patterned cretonne should please him.

The illustration shows a young boy's room planned by a specialist in the United States Department of Agriculture. The curtains are of gray gingham, with colorful cretonne appliques. They match the couch cover. The material can be washed without losing its color, and it is simple enough to answer the boy's requirement that nothing in his room shall be "fussy." Many other satisfactory color combinations and materials could have been used.

Banana Custard Pudding

Found Unusually Good

A pudding that is unusually good at any season, but particularly acceptable while eggs are plentiful is made of bananas, vanilla cookies, and custard. To make it you will need the following ingredients: One quart of milk, five eggs, one-half cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of vanilla, and one-quarter cup of salt. Beat the egg whites very stiff and add five tablespoonfuls of sugar, one for each egg white, also one-eighth teaspoonful of salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of vanilla. Pile lightly over the top of the pudding and put it in a moderate oven until the meringue is delicately browned. Let the dessert then stand for four or five hours.

Child's Essential Food

A child needs food that supplies proteins and minerals for building body tissues, calories for energy, and certain other factors, not yet identified, which are essential for normal growth. One of these is connected with proper bone development and, because it serves to prevent rickets, is often called the antirachitic factor, and when given to children it helps them to grow strong normal bones. Direct sunlight also aids bone growth in some degree the same way. For children who cannot be out of doors the sunshine a great deal, cod-liver oil is particularly valuable.

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get excited and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clear like you keep your bowels clear, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active. Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Makes Sure of Food

A London restaurant has accepted the idea of serving old men and women with two meals a day for the rest of his life for £5,000 (£24,500 cash). The tables of mortality show that his average life expectancy is twenty-seven years, which would make his food cost about £185 a year, or about $125 a meal.

THREE DAY COLDS THREATEN LUNGS

A cough or cold that hangs on after the third day is a threat. Do something! Don't wait until it has run its course—from your head to your throat, chest, and bronchial tubes. When you feel a cough or cold spreading down into the bronchial tubes it is in the "danger zone"—for these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Quickly and unflinchingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of the trouble. Real medicine, reaching deep down with its soothing, healing power. Absorbed through and through the irritated throat, chest and bronchial membranes, it quickly stops the cough, breaks up the cold and brings prompt, lasting relief. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is hospital-proved and prescribed by physicians. Pleasant to taste. All druggists—50c and, twice the quantity, $1.00.

Galosh Stuck

A woman purchased a pair of galoshes at a Mt. Pleasant (Pa.) store and wore them home. When she attempted to remove one it was found to be "locked." It was too late to return to the store so she went to bed wearing the galosh, and it was 30 hours before she got back to the store. There it was necessary to cut it off.

Kept Old Bells Ringing

Every night for more than 700 years the bells of the church in the village of Hallsbam, England, have proclaimed the curfew hour, but the long record was almost broken recently through a strike of bellringers. A woman organist saved the situation by taking it upon herself to ring the bells for several weeks until the differences over the bellringers' wages could be adjusted.

LIFELIKE FIGURES IN WAX

Well-Made Dummy is Mistaken for Sculptor's Wife by Visitor—Boy's Comical Error.

"Yes," said a man who turns out waxwork figures for exhibits and traveling shows, "the average sculptor in wax can relate many little tales to make you smile. Not long ago I made a wax figure of a beautiful young lady for a vaudeville actor for use upon the stage. So long as the face was handsome and the figure perfect, he did not mind whether she was dark or fair, and told me to turn her out to my own satisfaction.

"On the day I completed the figure I was called away on important business, and during my absence the artist called. He was shown into my studio by my assistant, and, seeing the wax figure seated on an ottoman, he said, 'Good evening, Mrs. Blank!' mistaking it for my wife, whom he had never seen. As his greeting was not reciprocated, he turned to my assistant and remarked, 'Poor, Mrs. Blank! I had no idea she was deaf and dumb!' With a sudden reaction, when he was told that the lady was of wax, and the figure he had ordered, his surprise knew no bounds.

"A little boy who attended a wax show I ran once came to the conclusion that everybody on seats who did not speak was a wax figure. He stared at an aged lady, who was seated, for several minutes, and then blurted out, 'What an ugly old thing.' He was greatly distressed when the lady rose, called him a rude boy, and walked away in high dudgeon."

TWO SIDES TO MAN'S NATURE

Such Was Voltaire's Explanation of Flagrant Contradiction So Frequently Noticed.

Voltaire, a precursor of the French Revolution, asked "why the same man, who has seen with a dry eye the most atrocious events, and even committed crimes with sangfroid, will weep at the theater at the representation of similar events and crimes?" It is, that he sees them not with the same eyes; he sees them with those of the author and the actor. He is no longer the same man; he is barbarous, he was agitated with furious passions, when he saw an innocent woman killed, when he stained himself with the blood of his friend; he became a man again at the representation of it."

The question is much more interesting than the answer, which is truly theatrical. Perhaps there isn't an explanation. Carlyle does not explain, but states the fact that Robespierre of the Terror refused to take part in a legal proceeding that might have resulted in capital punishment.

M. Anatole France, Socialist, has said that a danger in loving your fellowmen is that it is likely to inspire a disposition to kill your fellowmen. That may explain Robespierre, but the explanation remains unexplained.

Hidden Secrets of Disease.
Although measles and chickenpox are about the most common diseases in every household, their germs have eluded the most elaborate attempts at detection. Back in the eighteenth century Jenner caught the smallpox with vaccination; but the most intensive search for 30 years has disclosed no trace of the smallpox microbe. Medical men deal with an unknown agent today, just as Jenner did 100 years ago.

Reed and Carroll showed how to conquer yellow fever; however, has succeeded in imprisoning any micro-organism of the disease. Scarlet fever, one of the most contagious diseases known, has also successfully hidden its secret. Pasteur, who discovered a way to control hydrophobia, searched patiently for its organism, but did not find it.

Typhus fever, the scourge of American cities 50 years ago, still prevails in attenuated form; but no one has isolated its agent. Trachoma, a disease introduced chiefly by immigration, has also so far concealed its definite cause.

His Charge.

A darky down in Georgia, in a thickly-settled colored district, was holding court as a magistrate for the first time, with a jury before him. This was his charge to the jury:

"Genslemen ob de jury: Me bein' a new squah, dis am de fustest occasion on which I has been acquired to deliver a charge to a jury ob my peeches. It am not unachieved, deahfoh, dat I should be at some loss as ter what I really ought ter charge yer. But after listenin' adheersly tell all ob de testimony, an' de able arrygments ob counsels on both sides ob de case, I has excluded dat I reckon erbout de best 'ting dat I c'n do is ter charge yer about a dollar apiece—an' dat am de veldick ob de case. You c'n take de case."—Pathfinder.

Sleepy Guest Sues Hotel.
Should hotel keepers be held responsible for losses incurred by their patrons because of the failure of hotel servants to wake them in time?

This question has been brought before the Berlin court in a suit by a commercial traveler, who declares that he missed a number of important business appointments because a hotel porter failed to call him.

The case has not yet been settled, but the Berlin hotel keepers have decided to protect themselves by posting in every room a notice that the management declines responsibility for late rising by its patrons.

Food for Squirrels

The food of squirrels in the wild state includes, according to the time of the year, nuts and seeds, buds, mushrooms, insects, nesting birds and fleshy fruits. In feeding caged squirrels it is necessary that they be given regularly some hard-shelled nuts, such as hickory nuts or butternuts, to keep their ever-growing incisor teeth firm in their sockets.

HIS TURN TO MAKE MISTAKE

John Dawson May Have Meant to Be Neighborly, or Perhaps He Thought He Had Bargain.

Sam Showalter was having a sale of his surplus stock. To start the sale, he had set a milk cow, one of the best of his herd, and told the auctioneer to sell it for four years old. John Dawson, a long, lanky, weather-beaten fellow with a shrewd eye, bid for the cow. He gave Showalter a check for the amount, and said he would come for the cow the next day.

"I tell you, John," said Showalter, when Dawson rode up the next morning to lead home his purchase. "I made a mistake yesterday. I said that cow was only four years old, but when I talked it over with the old woman last night, I remembered that she is eight years old. It was another cow altogether that I had in mind."

"I didn't want to let a mistake like that go with a neighbor," continued Showalter, whose word was not usually accepted as entirely dependable in the community. "So I thought the fair thing to do was to tell you, and just let you take your check back, and I'll keep the cow."

Dawson squinted his eye approvingly at the cow—she had every mark of a good milker—and then looked apologetically at Showalter.

"Well, Sam," he said, "turn about is fair play. You made a mistake yesterday. I'll make one today, and just keep the cow."—Youth's Companion.

HAS BRIEF DAY OF SPLENDOR

Lizard Canary Has Well Been Given Nickname of "Mayor of Birdie Land."

The lizard canary is one of the most unique varieties in the cage-bird world. Its beautiful ground color, so nicely ticked, and pretty little "cap" make it a thing of beauty and a joy forever. It is, however, the only variety that moults out its plumage at the end of the first season. By this it is meant that, although the bird possesses no beautiful color for the first year, the plumage disappears altogether at the second moult.

Thus it is a show bird for only one year—the first season, and this is considered a drawback to its popularity. On account of its wearing such gay apparel for one year and then putting it aside, the lizard has been aptly termed "Mayor of Birdie Land."

The little story connected with the lizard and a mayor is well worth repeating. It was a well-known birdcage show being staged by Sir William Treloar, then lord mayor of London, that this celebrity, in a few well-known words, likened himself to the lizard canary, many of the men of which were on view at the show. The stately robes which he wore were only for a season; such is the case with the lizard.

Speedy Turtle.

"Look here, waiter!" shouted the angry, hungry guest at the restaurant. "Yessuh, yessuh," answered the waiter, who appeared to be all out of breath, as from some sort of violent exertion.

"I ordered that turtle soup an hour ago and you haven't brought it yet!"

"Yessuh, nosuh! Ah'm plum sorry, sub, but it jest couldn't be helped. When Ah done cotched dat turtle an' was a-takin' him to de cook he done slipped out mah hands an' ran out de back doah an' I do alley. Yessuh, Ah had to chase him back bleks befo' Ah could catch him. Yessuh, he'll be ready in er minute."

When Tailor Lost Customer.

Biggs, previously a comparatively poor man, had come into a big fortune, so he set about doing things in grand style. Ordering some clothes from his tailor, he told him he would send round his coachman to be measured for a liver.

The tailor scented good business, and, thinking his customer would not be proof against flattery, he said:

"Don't you think, sir, it would be nice to have your crest stamped on your coachman's buttons?"

"Crest!" roared the indignant Mr. Biggs. "What do I or my servants want with crests? Dye take us for a family of cocktots!"

Hookworm Easily Cured.

In some regions in Porto Rico it is estimated that not more than thirty-three per cent of the natural efficiency of any force of men can be exercised because of the terrible problem of hookworm disease. Yet science has demonstrated that hookworm disease is about the most easily mastered of all the diseases in the category. It is easily cured, because in most cases simply a dose of opium salts, followed by a dose of thymol, and that in turn by another dose of salts, is effective. Thymol is made from the common thyme of the garden.

How to Preserve Poor Wine.

A rich but exceedingly mean man, residing in upper New York, who had an excellent wine cellar, but poor wine, found that in spite of its quality some one of the servants was always stealing it. He called his butler, who was in a chronic state of disgust at his employer's stinginess, and said: "Thomas, this has got to stop! It is your business to attend to such matters. Now, what would you suggest as the most practical way to preserve this wine?"

"I don't know, sir," replied the butler, "unless you put something that's better worth drinking alongside of it."

MAKING OR SPOILING SALE

Frequently Opening Expression Used by Clerk Determines Whether Customer Purchases or Not.

In a little talk to his salespeople not long ago a successful merchant said:

"One most harmful habit indulged in by many salespeople is the repeating of some meaningless phrase to any visitor who comes to the store. We will take an expression, for illustration, that you have all heard, 'Something for you.' We hear it in the store, in the cafe, in the cafeteria, in the city hall. We cannot get away from it, yet everybody is tired of hearing it."

"This term with others, 'What do you want?' 'Anything for you?' 'What is it?' 'Is that all?' 'Nothing more?' 'Nothing else, is there?' 'You didn't want this, did you,' etc., are disgusting to the customers. They mean nothing and kill sales rather than get business."

"The first thing you do or say when approaching a customer usually decides whether you will be able to make a sale or not. Every day we see prospective customers who have stopped at some counter really interested in dry goods, and when they are accosted with 'Something for you?' immediately lose all their interest. You there is surely something they want, but what is it? On a real hot day it may be a cooling, refreshing drink or what not, but then your question did not create a desire to purchase dry goods, nor did it suggest any wants along that line."

"If salesmanship is going to be your profession, say something that will create a reply in your favor, make some positive suggestion, give some kind of information, give some kind of selling talk that will be educating, that will make your customer see the benefits of the purchase the same as you do."

SECRET OF RADIUM'S ENERGY

Particles Shot From It Are Declared to Travel Through Atmosphere at Speed of Light.

The energy, or power, of a moving object is proportional to its weight and its velocity. A motorcycle running at 80 miles an hour will strike as hard as a blow as a two-ton truck moving at three miles an hour. A small caliber high-power rifle bullet will strike as hard as a ton weight traveling at slow speed. Microscopic bodies traveling at high velocities have an energy equal to that of much heavier bodies traveling slowly.

This is the secret of radium's energy. The particles shot out from it are microscopically small, but they travel with the speed of light, or 186,000 miles a second. It has been well said that a spider's web running over pulleys at the speed of light would give enough energy to run all the machines in England. A small all the machines in England. A small stream of water under great pressure will tear down a mountain more rapidly than a slow-running river.

With this in mind it is easy enough to understand how electricity traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second is capable of transmitting thousands of horsepower over a copper wire no larger than a lead pencil.

Stable Boy Named Horse.

Commenting on the curious names often given to racehorses, a writer in a London daily recalled the historic case of Potoccooooo. The earl of Egremont had a horse he intended to call Potatoes, and in going round the stable one evening he gave the stable boy in charge of the horse a piece of chalk and told him to write the name on the corn him. The boy wrote Pot and then, evidently in some doubt as to the correct spelling, finished the name by repeating the letter "o" eight times. This so amused Lord Egremont and his friends that the horse was so named forthwith.

Why Lines Are Busy.

"Why didn't you answer me when I called up today?"

"I couldn't. Mary, the second girl, was using the phone. Her young man was in a lively stable and when he's cleaning a horse she has to wait quite a while before he can come to the phone."

"She didn't talk forever, did she? You knew I wanted to reach you. Why didn't you call me when Mary got through?"

"I couldn't. Della, the cook, was next."

Autograph Hunter's Legitimacy.

No autograph hunter ever displayed greater ingenuity and knowledge of human nature than the Newcastle (Eng.) man, who, in the '50s, wrote to a number of famous men intimating a desire to give their illustrious names to vessels he was building. Sentimental replies with the coveted autographs poured in, and even Carlyle was moved to write hoping that "the vessel would sail in larger and deeper waters than had ever been reached by the man whose name it bore."

Dog's Suicide After Rescue.

What was apparently a determined attempt at suicide by an Alsatian terrier was followed by a large number of visitors at Dr. C. G. Conner's. The animal jumped off the north pier of the harbor into the sea, and was sinking when some fishermen rescued it.

When they let it go the terrier made a dash for the other pier, jumped into the sea, and was drowned.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

President Coolidge Vetoes the Farm Relief Bill—Crisis at Shanghai.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE on Friday vetoed the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, and all hope for governmental relief for the agriculturists was abandoned until the next congress shall meet. The chief executive, in one of the longest veto messages ever received by congress, repeated his already well-known reasons for considering the bill economically unsound and fallacious. He said it was a price fixing scheme indirectly and would put the government into buying and selling. He condemned the measure as a tax on some farmers for the benefit of others. He asserted the plan would increase production and lower the world price to a point that would result in flooding the country with foreign farm product imports over the tariff wall. The President appended an opinion by Attorney General Sargent holding the bill unconstitutional in numerous particulars.

Whatever may be the opinion of the soundness of Mr. McNary's reasons for vetoing the bill or of his political wisdom in this respect, there is no question of his consistency and his courage in the matter. In the central West the immediate reaction to the veto was a definite determination to put Frank O. Lowden in the running for the Presidential nomination at the next national convention. The Democrats in congress saw an opportunity to win the farmer votes for tariff reduction.

MATTERS in China moved rapidly toward a crisis last week. Following his crushing defeat at Hangchow by the Nationalists, Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, hitherto ruler of Kiangsu province, gave up Hangchow, Kashing and Ningpo, second largest port in Chekiang province, and retired on Shanghai. At the same time the Nationalists in Shanghai started a general strike which, though nominally directed against Sun, was actually an anti-foreign demonstration and pretty effectively tied up business and traffic in the city. The Chinese officials tried to curb it by the summary execution of scores of leaders and student agitators whose heads were sliced off and stuck on poles in the streets. In the midst of the riotous Sun decided he was beaten and practically surrendered leadership of the anti-Canton forces there to Gen. Chang Chung-chang, boss of Fengtai, who entered the lower Yangtze valley with a large army. Crews of two of Sun's gunboats anchored in the Whangpoo river rebelled and began firing three-inch shells in the direction of the Shanghai arsenal. Owing to poor marksmanship nearly all the shells fell in the French concession, where several buildings were struck. French gunboats speedily put an end to this performance. On Thursday the Nationalists called off the strike, partly because they were running out of funds and partly because of the terrorism of the executions. The beheadings ceased and most of the workers returned to their jobs.

Twelve hundred American marines arrived from San Diego on the transport Chaumont but not disembark. That made the total of American armed forces there about 2,900. Five American warships were at anchor in the Whangpoo and four more destroyers were on the way there. The British forces were constantly being strengthened, and the French were reinforced. All these may be needed when the expected struggle for possession of Shanghai starts between the Cantonese and the armies of Marshal Chang Tso-lin which are moving from the north.

By a vote of 208 to 172 the house accepted the senate amendment to the navy appropriation bill providing money for beginning the three light trussers whose construction the President has insisted should be delayed. The house reduced the amount from $1,200,000 to $400,000, and the senate acquiesced in this change.

IN ORDER to provide a place of refuge for British subjects imperiled by the civil warfare in Nicaragua, the British government decided to send a cruiser to the Central American republic. This plan was adopted after the British charge d'affaires at Managua had notified the government that President Diaz and the American minister, Mr. Eberhardt, had stated they could not guarantee to protect British lives and property in case of renewed fighting. It was stated in London that the sending of the warship does not indicate a change in the British policy in Latin America nor a change in attitude toward the Monroe doctrine. Secretary of State Kellogg in a formal statement said that "Admiral Latimer has been instructed from the beginning to protect foreign as well as American lives and property and is doing everything he can to do so."

Seemingly determined to put an end to the Sacaca rebellion, the American government sent more marines to Nicaragua and Admiral Latimer created new neutral zones for the purpose of keeping the railway in operation and of protecting the cities. Dispatches from Managua said President Diaz was about to submit to the Nicaraguan congress a proposal for a 100 year alliance with the United States which would result practically the creation of a protectorate.

ITALY's formal reply to President Coolidge's naval disarmament proposal was transmitted to Washington. It was a politely worded but flat rejection, and was drafted by Premier Mussolini himself. Before being a military or even political problem, naval defense is for Italy one of existence, the note says. Geography establishes characteristics which cannot be disregarded. Italy's position in Europe is determined entirely by the fact that her territorial limits are within one or even two outlets which are entirely controlled by other nations.

The note declares that so far as the European continent is concerned, there is an inalienable interdependence of all countries of armaments of every single power and that it is impossible to adopt the measure for only the five great naval powers.

Japan, on the other hand, has accepted the Coolidge proposal and its delegates at Geneva will have full power to negotiate an agreement extending the limitation on all classes of fighting ships. But the Japanese reply makes it plain that the government is unwilling to extend the 5-5-3 ratio to cruisers, destroyers and submarines. For these vessels it wants a ratio nearer a parity with America and Great Britain.

SOVIET Russia has been twisting the British lion's tail too persistently, and last week it received from the British government a blunt warning that all relations between the two nations would be broken off unless it mended its ways of once. In the note, called one of the most outspoken ever formulated by the British foreign office, Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, says that the relations between the British government and the union of soviet socialist republics "continue notoriously of an unsatisfactory nature."

He declares that "there are limits beyond which it is dangerous to drive public opinion in Great Britain" and that a continuance of the breaches of the agreement sooner or later will cause a break between the two countries. All Russia celebrated the ninth anniversary of the establishment of the Red army, and the press carried articles by leading soviet authorities asserting that the army was prepared to meet all eventualities.

not be taken up in the house unless the senate, it was considered practically dead so far as this congress was concerned.

In its intervals of real work the senate passed the house bill authorizing the veterans' bureau to make loans to veterans on their adjusted service certificates. The house passed the Jones bill authorizing an appropriation of $8,491,000 for new barracks at various army posts. President Coolidge signed the radio act and the army appropriation bill.

WHEN Samuel Insull of Chicago appeared before the Reed committee in Washington he answered most of the questions concerning his contributions to the Illinois primary campaign funds, but flatly refused to admit to whom he gave $40,000 for local political campaigns. Nor would he permit his attorney to reveal this. The public utilities magnate was instructed to return to the committee room at the end of the week, and it was expected that he would persist in his refusal to reply to the question. Then, probably he will be cited for contempt, as will be Thomas W. Cunningham of Philadelphia, who would not reveal the source of $50,000 he contributed to the Yaw-Biedeman fund, State's Attorney Crowe of Chicago avoided citation by answering all questions.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE of Wisconsin took the occasion of Washington's birthday to introduce in the senate this resolution:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the senate that the president established by Washington and other Presidents of the United States in retiring from Presidential office after their second term, has become, by universal concurrence, a part of our republican system of government, and that any departure from this time-honored custom would be unwise, patriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

In the house Representative Fairchild of New York introduced a resolution for amending the Federal Constitution so that "no person shall be eligible to the office of President who has previously served two terms, whether by election or by succession due to the removal, death, resignation or inability of the President where the term of succession shall have continued for a period of two years or more."

Under the terms of the La Follette resolution, Mr. Coolidge would be ineligible for re-election next year. Under the Fairchild plan, he would be eligible.

COMMANDER FRANCESCO DI PINEDO of Italy, for the glory of Fascism, flew across the Atlantic ocean last week. He started from the Cape Verde islands, off the coast of Africa, and flew direct to Fernando Noronha island, Brazil. He passed on with the intention of making the main land but encountered heavy seas off the coast and was forced to return to the island. After his plane is repaired Di Pinedo plans to fly to Jamaica, Cuba, New Orleans, St. Louis, Chicago and New York.

FOR two days and nights the North Atlantic seaboard was swept by furious winds and tremendous seas. The British government and the union of soviet socialist republics "continue notoriously of an unsatisfactory nature." He declares that "there are limits beyond which it is dangerous to drive public opinion in Great Britain" and that a continuance of the breaches of the agreement sooner or later will cause a break between the two countries.

COAL operators and miners in controversy at Miami failed to agree on a wage scale for the bituminous field. The workers consistently refused to consider a reduction of wages. It is supposed generally that this means a strike on April 1, but authorities assert there will not be a complete cessation of production in the field.

OHIO lost one of her most distinguished sons in the death of Judson Harmon, who passed away unexpectedly in Cincinnati at the age of eighty-one years. Mr. Harmon was twice governor of Ohio, once attorney general of the United States, and several times a prominent possibility for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

SILK PRINTS FOR SPORT MODES; BLACK-AND WHITE COMPOSE FROCK

THE new silks are everything that is colorful, wearable and lovable. What's more, no wardrobe is going to be complete for spring and summer which does not include one to a dozen or so of timely silk frocks.

It is not only possible but practical to have a silk dress for every occasion. The simple tubular silk frock for morning and informal daytime wear—who would be without several? No one can resist the sportswear collection of silks, that is a foregone conclusion. As to the shimmering taffetas, the lustrous satins, the supple failles and other luxurious weaves, also the charming diaphanous crepes, they tempt to the point of extravagance.

The originality displayed both in color and design in modern silk weaver is nothing less than amazing.

this very moment, the black and white compose theme is challenging the new and alluring tones and tints to a most thrilling competition.

Spring coats, frocks and hats all reflect the black and white influence to a marked degree. Among outstanding interpretations of the vogue are afternoon frocks in which styling of which black satin is combined with white satin. This idea is being worked out in endless ways, either with the aid of embroidery and other decorative features or as is often the case, in a strictly tailored way.

A prevailing treatment is that of using the white satin for the blouse, the skirt being of the black satin. Often the effect is of a two-piece frock when in reality it is one piece. Just as frequently the blouse and skirt are separate. In most instances the es-

TWO CHIC COMPOSE FROCKS

They are a revelation of new trends of thought. Among modern effects are a series of scenic prints which adopt for their basis of design picturesque trees and mountains, waterfalls and rivulets, sunsets and other scenic views. For sports frocks these silks are patterned too smart for words. The pretty costume in the picture is an advance in sportswear. The silk of which it is made is printed in bright colors—Indian colors subtly blending stripes and design without delineating either definitely. There is the blouse, the full skirt and the wide belt, which fashion exploits for this season emphasized in this model.

Interesting among the newer silks are crepes with small-patterned print. These are made up with utmost simplicity. They are charming for the styling of the separate blouse.

Another exquisite fabric is a twosemble includes a long coat, or that which is later, a short jacket of the black crepe satin.

Typical of the vogue for black and white is the handsome afternoon frock in which the white blouse and skirt of white satin over a skirt of black satin. Long sleeves and a choker tunic, also an effective touch of black—embroidery and other decorative features—conical shaped pockets, declare "last word" styling.

The mode of white satin with black is being more or less elaborated, quite often with touches of silver or gold thread stitching together with a generous use of tiny metal buttons. Sometimes the skirt shows alternate sections of black and white arranged in plaits or insets.

A pretty black and white effect is attained in the sleeveless frock here pictured by cleverly suspended white toned crepe of finest texture. Being one color on one side and another on the reverse, this handsome fabric lends itself admirably to the development of the medley compose idea.

The styling of spring silken frocks is decidedly feminine in character, introducing quaint ruffling arranged in tiers, many frills and jabots, and all the various details which go toward achieving a graceful, youthful silhouette.

Just as the mode has the stage all set for a spectacular play of vividly gay spring colorings, a sudden ennobling "black and white" is manifesting itself in emphatic terms. At the black satin bolero frock with white satin or crepe for the blouse answers the call of the mode in a myriad of attractive interpretations. Often the blouse is strictly tailored with tucks, plaids or stitching, and just as often the treatment is highly ornate.

Black satin frocks and coats embroidered with white is a much elaborated theme this season. This is especially true in regard to sleeves, which accent the black-and-white vogue with a perfect handwork.

DEVILED DISHES

FOODS highly seasoned with condiments are called deviled. Such dishes are popular for an appetizer, for late suppers, luncheons and picnics.

Deviled Chicken Legs.

Take the second joints and drumsticks of a roasting or spring chicken, reserving the breast for salad. Divide the parts, remove the bones, and tendons and flatten the pieces by striking with a cleaver. Make incisions down the center. Fill with melted butter, salt, pepper, and onion. Fry in fat until cooked. Prepare the paste as follows: Put into a soup plate two tablespoons of salad dressing, half a teaspoonful of mustard, a scant half teaspoonful of curry powder and a half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, mix well and use as above. Steaks, chops or slices of cold roasts may be treated with this paste equally well.

Deviled Bones.

Rub the paste well into the meat left on the ribs of beef, brush with butter and broil. Serve not too well done.

Deviled Ham.

Cut a moderately thick slice of cold boiled ham, make incisions on both sides of it, rub into these the deviled paste, then with butter, and broil long enough to become thoroughly hot. Serve on a hot platter with a teaspoonful of the paste spread over the ham just as it goes to the table.

Deviled Tripe.

Take well-cooked tripe that is cold, rub it liberally with the deviled paste, brush it with sweet fat and broil to a delicate brown. When done serve with a little paste on each piece of tripe while hot.

Deviled Veal Chops.

Take thick chops and into several gashes, rub with a sharp knife, press as much of the paste as is needed to season each chop. Dredge with crumbs and broil as usual, or saute in a little fat.

Deviled crabs, oysters or various fresh fish may be seasoned with the paste and cooked in hot fat, making most tasty dishes.

"When you tell a person something that goes in one ear and out the other," says Observing Olivia, "you are merely sending an idea on a week-end trip."

WHO ARE THE RICH?

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

COUNT your treasure, and I'll count mine,
And we shall see who the rich man is.
You begin with a dollar-sign,
And I'll begin with a baby's kiss.
You put in all a house can hold,
All the splendor and all the gold,
I'll put in just a roof of thatch,
A bed, a table, a chair to match.

Count your treasure, and I'll count ours,
You the mansion upon the crags;
We have little but birds and flowers,
And bread and butter, but mostly rugs.
We have love, on a barren floor,
You have wealth, and but little more,
Counting over the things of this life,
Which would you say the rich man is?

Neither of us, I am sure of that.
For who is rich who has naught of love?
And poor the lover who ever sat
In calm content with a leak above.
For love and love, and wealth and wit,
Go best together, I'm sure of it.
To gather either he not too loth—
The rich are 'tossing with a bit of both.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

By JOSEPH KAYE

At 21: Walter E. Frew, the Banker,
Was earning $33 a Month.

"AT TWENTY-ONE I was with the Wall Street brokerage firm of Shepherd, Knapp & Company, making $33 a month. My father was at one time fairly well-to-do, but during the Civil war, and the changes that followed it, his business was affected and never recovered.

"When I was sixteen my father said that I would not be able to attend college; he was not well; he did not feel that he could see me through. So he got me the brokerage position. A year later he died. My brother and I took the little inheritance he left us and pooled it in a shipping venture, my first fling at finance. We lost every dollar. A year after my father's death I had nothing except my salary at the brokerage firm, which was $3 a week then.

"After working five years my salary of $33 a month was far from satisfactory, but I had the principal drawback of my position—no money. My job was too pleasant; the hours were easy and the social connections obtained through the position attractive. But I reached twenty-one. I was likely to continue making $33 a month for the remainder of my life. This—and a new head in the office with whom I could not get along—decided me to hunt for a new job. I got one with a bank that offered me $20 a month, in place of the $33 I had begun to think was not enough. But I resigned and took the $20 position and in this place I did the first real work of my career—Walter E. Frew."

TODAY—Mr. Frew is president of the Corn Exchange bank of New York, a financial organization having about 60 branches with accounts in the neighborhood of 150,000. Besides this he is connected with numerous other institutions in a directorial capacity and is a famous national figure in banking. From the $20 job he got with the bank when he was twenty-one, Mr. Frew advanced to assistant cashier and gradually worked through the intermediary stages of finance until he reached his present position.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for March 6

SHARING THE GOOD NEWS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:4-8, 11 Cor. 5:14-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye shall be my witnesses.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Telling Others About Jesus.
SECONDARY TOPIC—Winning Recruits for Christ's Army.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Telling Our Companions About Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Evangelism: Duty, Method, Results.

1. Preaching Everywhere (Acts 8:4). Following the stoning of Stephen, the enemies of the Lord were more active than ever in their efforts to stamp out the new faith. With Saul as their leader they dragged men and women from their homes and imprisoned those who confessed Christ. The devil overreached himself in this for this persecution scattered the believers everywhere and they preached, the gospel as they went. The time had now come when Jerusalem as the Lord had commanded. The Lord permitted this persecution so as to scatter them.

Philip Preaching the Gospel in Samaria (Acts 8:5-8). Philip was one of the seven so-called deacons. He was not an apostle, nor a minister in the accepted sense of that term. He is a layman. He is the only man called an evangelist in the New Testament. He is an example of what a devoted layman can do in preaching the gospel in the evangelization of the world. He went to the city of Samaria and preached Christ, showing that the purpose of God included these despised people as the fact that Philip preached Christ into these people shows that the true evangelist's message is Jesus Christ.

He did not preach Christ as an ethical teacher or an example merely, but Christ as the Savior from sin through the substitutionary offering of Himself on the cross. This is shown by the fact that he preached Christ to the sunnites from the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah. He not only preached the gospel from the cross, but he symbolized in baptism, which means not only identification with Christ in His death, but also in the power of His resurrection, to walk in newness of life. Then, too, according to verse 12, he preached Christ as a deliverer from sin, for he baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ.

His sense of solemn responsibility was the explanation of Paul's behavior. Some thought that he was merely a man of letters. His knowledge of God's holy nature and of man's sinful condition moved him earnestly to persuade men of the need to be reconciled to God. So one who knows God's power will be half-hearted in his ministry.

2. An Example of a True Preacher of the Gospel (11 Cor. 5:9-20).

1. His supreme aim was to please God (v. 9).
2. He was willing to die as an example to him if his service was but acceptable to God. This transcendent aim was strengthened by the conviction that he was standing before the judgment seat of Christ. This aim explains Paul's devotion.

3. His consciousness of responsibility (v. 11).
His sense of solemn responsibility was the explanation of Paul's behavior. Some thought that he was merely a man of letters. His knowledge of God's holy nature and of man's sinful condition moved him earnestly to persuade men of the need to be reconciled to God. So one who knows God's power will be half-hearted in his ministry.

3. He was constrained by the love of Christ (v. 14).
This motive was governed by Christ's love. Ministerial devotion is the expression of reciprocal love. Christ's supreme love was expressed in His death for us. Our love in return is expressed in our devotion to Him.

4. Consciousness of the God-wrought change in him (v. 17).
It was because he was wrought upon by God and was therefore a new creature that he sought to do His will.

5. The content of the message he preached (v. 18, 19).
The reconciliation of God through the death of Christ was his central message. The content of the message in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself.

6. Paul was an ambassador sent from God to appeal to the world to be reconciled unto God (v. 20).
He was the ambassador from the high court of heaven sent to this rebellious world. In a real sense, every Christian minister is occupying the same position.

NEARBY AND YONDER

Off the Beaten Path to Unusual Places and Things

By T. T. MAXEY

The President's Church

ST. JOHN'S Episcopal church, across Lafayette square from the White House in Washington, built as a convenience and to split the difference between Old St. John in Georgetown (West Washington) and Old Christ Church in the southeastern part of town, in the early days when the question of transportation was a problem, gradually became the house of worship of Presidents, and a cause of church, to be known as the President's church.

This quaint and dignified structure, which is numbered among the oldest relics of its class within the present city, dates from 1818. Obviously, its historical associations are many. Originally constructed in the form of a simple Greek cross, its convenient location so popularized it that it was enlarged to its form of a Latin cross, a portion fronted by six plain columns and a three-story steeple added, and a special pew set aside for the President.

Presidents Madison, Monroe, Adams, Jackson, Van Buren, Harrison, Tyler, Fillmore, Buchanan, Arthur and Roosevelt have all been official officers of the army and navy, members of the diplomatic corps and ambassadors of foreign countries, are said to have worshipped here.

Many persons of prominence in world affairs have been married in or buried from this church. The remains of John Hay, who was its rector for twenty-eight years, lie beneath the chancel.

Among its cherished possessions is a ten-thousand-dollar communion chalice of solid gold set with diamonds, made from the jewelry of a member who willed it to the church.

Our Largest Monument

STONE mountain, some distance south of Atlanta, Ga., is often referred to as the eighth wonder of the world. Dropped there by nature in a freak mood, it is miles and miles from any other mountain.

This huge bulk of granite rises abruptly from the level plains, is about 700 feet high on the steep side, a mile to the summit on the gentle side, a mile long and approximately seven miles around at the base.

No less wonderful than the mountain itself are the plans to carve upon its precipitous face a memorial calculated to last as long as time shall be. The north face has been dedicated to the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Stone mountain memorial has been taken to form. A noted sculptor was commissioned to carve deep into and high upon its face the world's greatest monument—an imperishable memorial to the Confederacy of 1861-1865, at an estimated cost of $2,000,000.

The central figure, Gen. Robert E. Lee—the idol of the South, is to be surrounded by General "Stonewall" Jackson, President Jefferson Davis and others high in Confederate ranks, followed by likenesses of five additional generals, one from each of the thirteen Confederate states and approximately 1,000 other military personages—the whole depicting a striking picture of men, horses and guns coming around one side, across and down the other side.

It is said to have taken 22,000 drill teams to outline General Lee's hat, the brim of which measures almost 34 feet across. Some of the carving will bite into the rock to a depth of 20 feet.

The Church of St. Louis of France

THE old St. Louis cathedral—now known as the Church of St. Louis of France—is said to be "the most historic church in the Mississippi valley." It stands on or near the site where the first mass said in St. Louis was celebrated on March 14, 1764.

The first edifice to occupy this spot was a primitive log structure put up in 1770. It gave way to a second built of palisades and first occupied in 1770. The present church, begun in 1831, was dedicated in 1834, and stands today a venerable and historic monument to St. Louis.

Of stone construction and well preserved, it is fronted by a row of weathered columns. It carries Hebrew and Latin quotations over the main portal and is topped by a steeple crowned by the customary cross. Inside, the altar is usually in proportion to its length, there being five aisles, both the altar rail and the organ loft supports extend far out, the simple frosted windows smack of old-time piety, and the throne is decorated with the fleur de lys of France.

By virtue of the fact that the first Bishop of St. Louis was a classmate of Pope Gregory XVI, it happened that this church was the recipient of favors which are said to have been bestowed upon no other church in the world except the Basilicas in Rome. One of the most noteworthy favors grants an indulgence which is granted only to pilgrims visiting the seven Roman Basilicas. By special indulgence, it is said, may be gained by visiting the three altars in this church—though no other church or cathedral is so privileged.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

It is 1868 and the Pacific Railroad has reached its newest "farthest west"—Benton, Wyoming. A town described as "booming," as each new terminus temporarily was.

Frank Beeson, a young man from Albany, New York, comes here because he is in search of health and Benton is considered "high and dry." Edna Montoyo, a fellow passenger on the train from Omaha, impresses Beeson with the beauty of her blue eyes and the style of her apparel. Equally she astonished him by taking a "smile" of brandy before breakfast. A brakeman tells Beeson she has "followed her man" to Benton.

Jim, a typical western ruffian whom she knows apparently well insults her and is floored by Frank whose prowess impresses the passengers.

Col. Lunderon and "Bill" Brady volunteer to entertain young Beeson.

Frank avoids being caught by any of the numerous gambling games but is robbed of all his money.

At the "Big Tent" Beeson again meets the lady with the blue eyes. At "Monte," someone turns the corner of the winning Queen of Hearts and Beeson, his whole $22 bet on it, turns the card—which instead of being the Queen is the Eight of Clubs.

AWAKENING

My fingers left it, as though it were a snake. The eight of clubs! Where I had seen, in fancy, the Queen of hearts, there lay like a chattering of clubs, with corners bent as only token of the transformation.

"We can't both win, gentlemen," the gambler said. "But I am willing to give you one more chance from a new deck."

What the response was I did not know, nor care. My ears drummed and seeing nothing pushed through into the open, painfully conscious that I was, that moment, instead of having played the knave I had played the fool, for the queen of hearts!

The loss of some twenty dollars might have been a trivial matter to me once—but here I had lost my all, whether large or small; and not only had been bitted out of it—I had bled myself out of it by sinking, in pretended smartness below the level of a mere artful dodger!

I heard My Lady speaking beside me.

"I'm so sorry," she laid hand upon my sleeve. You should have been content with small sums, or followed my lead. Next time—"

"There'll be no 'next' time," I blurted. "I am cleaned out."

"You don't mean—"

"I was first robbed at the hotel. Now here."

"No, not she opposed. Jim sidled to us. "That was a bungle Jim."

He roughly scratched his head.

"A wrong steer for once, I reckon. By thunder, I want revenge on this joint and I mean to get it. So do you, partner?" he appealed to me.

As with mute, sickly denial I turned away it seemed to me that I sensed a shifting of forms at the monte table—caught the words "You watch here a moment"; and close following a slim white hand fell heavily upon My Lady's shoulder.

It whirled her about, to face the gambler. His smoky olive countenance was dark with a venom or rage incarnate that poisoned the air; his stigmata crackled.

"You devil! I heard you, at the table. You meddle with my comings, will you?" And he slapped her with open palm so that the impact smacked. "Now get out of here or I'll kill you."

She flamed red, all in a single rush of blood.

"Oh!" she breathed. Her hand darted for the pocket in her skirt, but I sprang between the two. Forgetful of my revolver, with a blow I sent him reeling backward.

He recovered. With lightning movement he thrust his right hand into his waistcoat pocket.

I heard a rush of feet, a clamor of voices; and all the while, I was tugging, awkward with deadly peril, at my revolver.

His fingers had whipped free of the pocket. I glimpsed as with second sight (for my eyes were held strongly by his) the "little black ladies" of a derringer concealed in his palm; a spasm of fear pinched me; they sprang, with ringing report, but just at the instant a flanneled arm knocked him up, he balled had sped on toward the teamster of the smoking table stood against him, revolver barrel boring into his stomach.

"Stand pat, Mister, I call you!"

In a trice all entry of any unpleasant emotion vanished from my antagonist's handsome face, leaving a smile thence, came, inert He steadied a little, and smiled, surveying the gambler's vantage, close to his.

"You have me covered, sir. My card is in the discard." He composedly tucked the derringer into his waistcoat pocket again. "That gentleman struck me; he was about to blow me, and by rights I might have killed him. My apologies for this little disturbance."

He bestowed a challenging look upon me, a hard unforgiving look upon the lady; with a bow he turned back to his table.

Now in the reaction I fought desperately against trembling of the knees; there were congratulations, a hubbub of voices assailing me—and the arm of the teamster through mine and his bluff invitation:

"Come and have a drink."

"But you'll return. You must! I want to speak with you!"

It was My Lady, pleading earnestly. I still could scarcely utter a word my brain was in a smother. My new friend moved me away from her. He answered for me.

"Not until we had a little confab, lady. We've got matter of importance just at present."

I saw her bite her lips, as she helplessly flushed; her blue eyes implored me, but I had no will of my own and I certainly owed a measure of courtesy to this man who had saved my life.

We found a small table in a corner. The affair upon the floor was apparently past history—if it merited even that distinction. The place had resumed its program of dancing, playing and drinking as though after all a pistol shot was of no great moment in the Big Tent.

"You had a narrow shave," my friend remarked as we seated ourselves.

He then proceeded to tell me that the whole thing was crooked.

"And the woman is the main stealer," he concluded. "That party piece who damn night lost you your life as well as losin' you your money!"

"You mean the lady with the blue eyes?"

"Don't you savvy that your 'lady's' Montoyo's wife—his woman anyhow?"

"Montoyo? Who's Montoyo?"

The monte thrower! That same spider who trimmed us, he rapped impatiently.

"She's bound to Montoyo. He's a breed, some Spanish, some white, like as not some Injun. A devil, and as slick as they make 'em. She's a power too white for him, herself, but he uses her and some day he'll kill her!"

her. You're not the fast gudgeon she's hooked to feed to him."

Now I saw all, or enough. I had received no more than I deserved.

"I just why Montoyo struck his woman I don't know," the teamster went on. "Do you?"

"Yes! She had cautioned me and he must have heard her. And she showed which was the right card. I don't understand that."

"To save her face, and egg you on. Shore! Your twenty dollars was nothing." She didn't know you were bussed. Next time she'd have steered you to the tune of a hundred or two and cleaned you proper. You hadn't been worked along, yet, to the right pitch of 'smashness. Montoyo must 'a' mistook her! Well now what are you going to do?"

"I don't know," I replied. "I must find and earn enough to get home with." To write for funds was now impossible through very shame.

"Honey's the only place for a person of my greenness."

"Let me make you a proposition," he said. "I'll on my way to Salt Lake with a bull outfit and I'm in need of another man. I'll give you a dollar and a half a day and found."

"You are teaming west, you mean?" I asked.

"Yes, sir. Freightin' across. Mule packin'."

"But I never drop spans in my hands; and I'm not in shape to stand hardships," I faltered. "I'm here for my health. I have—"

"Slow all that, son," he interrupted. "Forget your lungs, lights and liver and stand up a full-size man in my opinion you've had too much doctorin'." A month with a bull train, a diet of beans and sow-belly, and you can look anybody in the eye and tell him to go to hell! This routin' town life—it's no life for you. It's a hobtail, wide open in the middle."

"Sir," I said gratefully, "may I tell you know in the morning? Where will I find you?"

We arranged to meet next day and returned to the hotel, having paid in advance.

Gazing neither right nor left, I strode resolutely for the exit, but, at the door I was halted by a hand laid upon my arm, and a quick utterance.

"Not gone? At least say good-night!"

I barely paused, replying to her "Good-night."

Still she would have detained me. "Oh, no! Not this way. It was a mistake. I swear to you I am not to blame. Please let me help you. I don't know what you've heard—I don't know what has been said about me—you are angry—"

I twined free. With such as she, a vampire and yet a woman, a man's safety lay not in words but in unequivocal action.

"Good-night," I bade thickly. Bearing with me a satisfying but somehow annoying persistent imprint of moist blue eyes under shimmering hair. I roughly stalked on and out free of her, free of the Big Tent, her he uses her and some day he'll kill her!

BUICK UNIFIED LINE

THE Buick Motor Company has announced the completion of its new, efficient assembly system, the Unified Line.

It is capable of turning out thirteen hundred complete automobiles a day. The plant engineers who planned and built the system say that their purpose was to obtain the most speed and economy in the assembly operation consistent with the rigid standards of quality maintained in the past.

That this purpose has been accomplished is demonstrated by the fact that between 885 and 900 men, with the aid of the new system, are able to turn out the normal output of eleven hundred cars a day. This places the actual cost of assembling each car at a figure less than the wage of one man for one day, as far as the labor item is concerned.

There is no interruption in the assembly of the cars from the time the bare frame starts at one end of the system until the finished car is driven away at the other end. It consists of three assembly lines located in a building 64 feet wide and running parallel. This economy of space is possible because all materials and parts are brought to the three lines by gravity or power conveyors at exactly the time they are needed for assembly. This eliminates the necessity of keeping racks of stock on hand.

Buick builds chassis of three lengths and two engine sizes. There are eighteen domestic body styles, several export right hand drives, many different paint combinations of bodies and wheels, and practically all parts are in two sizes. A frame for a chassis of 128 inches starts at the riveting bays. Throughout its long journey through thousands of assembly operations, it must in every case receive exactly the right part for this particular chassis. This is accomplished by the Unified Line.

Cady B. Durham, vice president and assistant general manager of Buick, conceived the Unified Line and built it with the assistance of his staff of plant engineers. Its purpose is to build Buicks to the same high standard of quality which has been maintained for twenty-three years, and yet to eliminate the costly items of delay, handling costs, duplication of effort and unnecessary labor expense. The system as it now stands is second to none in the industry.

In the morning as I left the hotel the clerk handed me a note.

It could have been sent by only one person—the superscription, dainty and feminine, betrayed it. That woman was still pursuing me!

Couldn't she understand that I tel. I was afraid you wouldn't answer me, so I slipped around her and cut in on you."

"I know where you're going, George Jenks has engaged you. He doesn't have to turn bull-whacker or mule-skinner! It's a hard life; you've been present I should have done so, not fitted for it—never, never. Leave Benton if you will. Let us go together."

But around a corner, I tore the envelope open. The folded paper within contained a five-dollar bank note.

That was enough to pump the blood to my face with a rush. It yet, to be free from him."

With cheeks twitching I managed to read the lines accompanying the note:

Sir:

You would not permit me to explain to you to-night, therefore I must write. The recent affair was a mistake. I had no intention that you should lose more funds. I insist upon speaking with you. You shall not go away in this fashion. You will find me at the Elite Cafe, at a table, at ten o'clock in the morning. And in case you are a little short I beg of you to make use of the enclosed with my best wishes and apologies. You may take it as a loan. I am utterly miserable. E.

Half unconsciously wadding both money and paper in my hand as if to squeeze the last drop of rancor from them I swung on.

"Mr. Beeson! Wait! Please wait."

I had to turn about to avoid the further degradation of acting the chair to her, an inferior.

"I've been waiting since day-light!" she panted, "and watching the horse and carriage."

For an instant her appeal, of swimmingly blue eyes, upturned face, tensed grace, breaking voice, swayed me. But I resolved not to be swayed again.

"Impossible, madam," I uttered. This is final. Good-morning."

She staggered and with magnificent but futile last flourish clapped both hands to her face. Gazing back, as I hastened, I saw her still there, leaning against a wall.

ELECTRIC CAR TO STOP IN MENTONE

The Interstate Public Service company is co-operating with Purdue university and the Indiana Electric Light association in a demonstration of farm uses in electricity. A special traction car, loaned by the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction company and equipped by the Purdue Agricultural Experiment station and the Light association, will be taken over the Winona railroad traction line during the forepart of next week.

This car will carry exhibits of electric appliances that may be used profitably on farms. The list includes water supply system, poultry house lighting system, milking machine, cream separator, incubator and odd job motors that will operate a grindstone, churn, fanning mill, washing machine, cream separator, corn sheller, ensilage cutter, feed grinder, cider press and wood saw.

Farm wives will be interested in seeing the model electric kitchen wherein an electric range, washing machine, refrigerator, vacuum cleaner, ironing machine and numerous small appliances will be demonstrated.

County agents, the Purdue people and the Interstate have worked out a schedule of stops. This car will be on the Mentone siding, Monday, March 14th, from 2:18 to 4 p.m. At each stop the many pieces of equipment will be demonstrated and figures showing the cost of operation will be discussed.

The purpose of this car is to acquaint farm people of Indiana with the results of experiments conducted at Purdue university agricultural experiment station in the state during the last few years with electric car.

STEWART WHITEMEYER KILLS SELF AT FORTVILLE, IND.

Stewart Whitemeyer, age eighteen, of Logansport who died at Fortville Thursday of a self-inflicted bullet wound, was the defendant in a $10,000 damage suit filed a few weeks ago by Miss Josephine Pomeroy, who sought the damages for injuries suffered when the car, driven by Whitemeyer and in which she was riding, was in collision with another machine. The father of the youth, Charles Whitemeyer, is a co-defendant, being the owner of the automobile. Relatives say that Stewart had not shown concern about the suit and is unable to attribute a motive for the suicide.

The body was returned to Logansport Friday. Funeral services held Saturday. Besides his parents, young Whitemeyer is survived by a sister, Dorothy.

Stewart Whitemeyer was employed last summer with his uncle, Harry Kitterman, on the construction of the A. I. Nelson home. It was while working here that he had the accident in which Miss Pomeroy was hurt.

MENTONE LOSES TO WARSAW

The Mentone High School Basketball team lost to Warsaw in the final game, Friday night, of the first round of the sectional tournament played at Milford last Friday and Saturday. The Milford Gym was packed with fans from all over the country and all but Warsaw were for the fighting Mentone quintet.

The local squad played the heavier Warsaw team on even terms during the first half which ended 11-11, and prospects for a victory was hoped for Mentone. During the first part of the second period, Mentone still held the county seat boys and after ten minutes of play the score was tied at 16 all. At this time Warsaw added six points using a tip-off play and forced into the lead which they held till the finish. Final score 29-16 in favor of Warsaw.

Igo, center, was the outstanding player for Mentone and scored 10 of the sixteen points for his team. The line-up follows:

Mentone: C. Manwaring, F. Lettler, M. Manwaring, F. Huffer, Igo, C. Bollinger, Fenstermaker, G. Sands, Tucker, G. Helvey.

Syracuse, who defeated the county champs in the semi-finals, won over Warsaw in the final game Saturday night by a score of 34-23 for the second consecutive year, and will represent this section at the regional at Auburn. They will meet Kendeleville at 2 p.m. Saturday afternoon. If they should win this game they will play the winner of the Lagrange-Auburn game in the finals Saturday night.

Exhaustion the Result of Thoughts of Work

A person may literally wear himself out doing nothing, according to William Frederick Book, professor of psychology at Indiana university. He cites in the American Magazine the case of a boy who was taken to a nerve specialist, whose examination revealed symptoms of overwork.

The physician rebuked the boy's parents for allowing him to become overworked, but learned, to his amazement, that the boy had done practically no work at all. The youth's one task was to carry one pan of water each day from a spring a quarter of a mile from his home, a task required by way of discipline. But the boy dreaded it so much that he wore himself out thinking about what a lot of hard work he had to do.

Curfew for Women

Magistrates in the little seaside town of Hastings, England, near where the Normans conquered King Harold in 1066, say that all women should be in their homes by ten o'clock at night. They were asked by a saloonkeeper, who wished to give a party to his women customers, for permission to keep his premises open after ten o'clock, the usual closing time. His application was refused on the ground that all women should be in their homes at that time.

New Airplane Idea

Air experts of the United States may have designed airplanes which fold up their wings like birds, or collapse altogether, to fit merely to pipeholes of enormous "floating garages." Great strides are being made in perfecting planes of these classes, especially craft which could be "entirely knocked down and its parts stacked together."

Tanlac Succeeds When Others Fail

Liver and Stomach Trouble of Year's Standing Relieved.

Frank Wright, 515 9th Street, Evansville, Ind., says: "Tanlac did what a lot of other medicines failed to. For a year I suffered from liver and stomach trouble. At night I tossed and turned, then I would get up in the morning tired and worn out. Nervousness upset my stomach so that I could not eat without being tortured by indigestion.

"Now all the days of suffering are gone. I feel better than ever before. My stomach never bothers me. I can eat everything without suffering. I give Tanlac all the credit for my marvelous recovery. It toned up my liver, gave me good health."

This tonic usually frees the system of poison and drives out causes of pain. Builds strength and health. Get your first bottle of Tanlac from your druggist. —Today! Over 40 million bottles sold.

The Charter Oak

THE bungling impotence of a tyrant's agent to destroy all evidence of American colonial liberty gave the New England colonies a splendid emblem which was to serve as an inspiration for lovers of liberty until the war for independence was fought and won a century later.

The colony of Connecticut was very proud of the charter granted it in 1632 by Charles II, which gave the community a large measure of freedom and independence. James II, who entertained continental notions of absolutism, determined that the colonies should come under more complete subjection. To this end he sent Sir Edmund Andros to America as royal governor general. Andros peremptorily demanded that the colonies surrender their charters. Connecticut refused.

After a year of storming and threatening, Sir Edmund left Boston and visited Hartford with a troop of soldiers to demand the charter in person. The assembly was in session, and into its hall marched the king's governor. His brusque demand was met by argument which lasted until darkness had settled down and candles had been lighted. At length Sir Edmund angrily demanded that the parchment be brought into the room. When the box containing the charter was placed on the table, Sir Edmund moved as though to seize it. At that instant a commotion arose among the crowd of spectators, a cloak was suddenly thrown with such dexterity as to smother out all the candles, and Sir Edmund's voice was heard cursing and charging that treachery was forward.

When flint and steel had accomplished the slow work of relighting candles, it was found that the precious charter had disappeared. The royal governor general swore and stormed in vain. Assembly members knew no more than he what had become of the paper.

Later it was learned that some one—sounding colonists pointed to Capt. Joseph Wadsworth, a militia officer—had snatched the charter and borne it away to a hollow oak tree in Hartford, where it remained securely hidden.

The Charter Oak became the most famous tree in America and long served as a shrine for lovers of liberty.

The Importance of One Vote

BUT for the absence of one member from the hall of congress on a certain day in 1784, a measure would have been passed that would have prevented the American Civil war three-quarters of a century later.

Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence and founder of the Democratic party, was the determined foe of the institution of slavery, which his party was later to defend. Jefferson even inserted a clause against the slave trade in the Declaration of Independence, but it was struck out.

When Jefferson introduced a measure in 1784 for the government of the southwest territory "ceded or to be ceded" to the United States, it was found that a clause prohibiting slavery in this new territory was included. The measure affected Kentucky, Tennessee and Mississippi, and later would have affected the vast territory comprised in the Louisiana purchase. The clause failed by one vote. It was known that a certain New Jersey member, who was absent that day, would have voted for it.

Slavery in those days was not looked upon with great favor by any large section. New England states were rapidly emancipating the slaves and their homes and in 1808 a federal law was passed prohibiting the slave trade. It was thought that slavery would gradually die out even in the South.

Then Whitney invented the cotton gin, which separated the seed from the fiber, and cotton took on new value. It became, in fact, the most important American crop, and slave labor could be effectively employed in raising it. The South now became more warmly attached to the institution than ever before, and the conditions that were to bring on the Civil war speedily developed.

Had the New Jersey opponent of slavery only been present on that day in 1784, the negro as property would have been confined to a few seaboard states in the South and slavery would have been well on the wane before cotton became king.

First Book in English

The oldest book in the English language is alleged to be "De Proprietatibus Rerum" by Bartholomew de Glanville, who wrote in the Fourteenth century. It was translated into English by Trevetia after it had been printed in folio form by Caxton in 1480, and probably the translation was made from the Caxton folio. The translation was published by Wynkin de Worde in 1507.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

CHEESE SANDWICHES FOR AFTERNOON TEAS

Cream Cheese Sandwiches Prepared for Tea.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. These attractive combinations for afternoon tea are made with neutralized cream cheese as a basis. The round toasted crackers in the picture have the cream cheese on top, somewhat hollowed out and garnished with a colorful bit of jelly. The cheese softens the crackers on standing, so they should not be prepared until a short time before they are wanted.

Spread for Rolled Sandwiches.

The rolled sandwiches are spread on the loaf with cream cheese mixed with finely chopped watercress. Chow chow, chili sauce, or any other desired pickle mixture might have been used in place of the watercress. Another good spread for rolled sandwiches, suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture, consists of equal parts of soft cheese, coarsely olives, pimentos or green peppers, and nuts. Any two of these may be used with the cheese. Add salt and a little lemon juice if liked. The bread for rolled sandwiches should be fresh and elastic in texture, so that it will not crumble or break when rolled. Spread the sandwich mixture on the cut end of the loaf, then with a very sharp knife cut off the thinnest possible slice, roll it up, and trim the ends. The knack comes with a little practice.

Finely Chopped Vegetables.

Many different finely chopped vegetables may be used with cream cheese, seasoned and used for sandwich spreads. Some of the best liked are parsley, watercress, lettuce, spring onions, chives, radishes, cucumbers and celery. Onion or lemon juice may be included in the seasoning. These mixtures may also be used in the form of balls or stuffing for green peppers or celery to accompany salads.

HOW TO PREPARE GOOD STUFFINGS

Easy to Make If Proper Ingredients Are Handy.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

It is not hard to make a good stuffing if you have a few tasty seasonings on hand. The homemaker in the picture, which was taken by the United States Department of Agriculture, is making a stuffing for a flank steak, which she expects to roll up and bake; but the same stuffing ingredients could have been used for other meats, or for chicken or turkey. In this instance 1/4 cupfuls of stale bread were used, 1 teaspoonful of salt, 1/4 teaspoonful of pepper, 1 small onion, minced, 1/2 cupful of chopped celery, and 2 tablespoonfuls of butter or 1/4 cupful of finely chopped fat, either beef suet or salt pork. The parsley seen in the 5 minutes 1 tablespoonful of minced onion and 4 tablespoonfuls finely chopped celery stalks and tops. Do not allow these to dry. Mix the melted butter, onion and celery with the bread crumbs, add about a teaspoonful of salt, and pepper according to taste. If you like poultry seasoning, add 1/4 teaspoonful poultry seasoning.

A moist stuffing may be made just the same way by mixing 1 1/2 teaspoonfuls baking powder with the bread crumbs and adding 1/4 cupful of boiling water after the bread crumbs and seasonings are combined.

In addition to stuffed flank steak, shoulder of lamb, or poultry, try the stuffing you prefer with other meats and also with fish. Have a breast of veal with spinach stuffing, or a boned fresh ham with sage and thyme stuffing, or baked sea trout with plain dry breadcrumb stuffing, seasoned with onion. Stuffed calf or beef heart is excellent baked. "Fillet of sole" or "dividual pieces of fish round steak" rolled up with stuffing inside and baked in casserole in gravy. Whichever kind of stuffing you use, make a little more than you need and cook separately in a baking dish.

Cabbage and Apples Are Excellent When Baked

Cabbage, beets, carrots, turnips, celery, onions, squash—so runs the list of fresh vegetables available throughout the year. These help out wonderfully in adding flavor and food value, but even so the home maker is often put to it to ring sufficient changes on the vegetables she can get to keep the menu from becoming monotonous.

One way to do this is to try various combinations of vegetables with each other, and also with apples, which are usually to be had throughout the winter. The bureau of home economics recommends the following dish to introduce a change.

Baked Cabbage and Apples.

2 quarts shredded 1 teaspoonful sugar; cabbage, 2 teaspoonfuls salt

1 quart sliced 1 cupful buttered apples, 1 cupful crumbled

Grease a baking dish and make a layer of cabbage and then of apple, sprinkling with the sugar, salt, and dot with butter. Repeat until all the vegetable and apple ingredients are used. On the last layer place the buttered crumbs. Cover and bake until the cabbage and apples are tender. Remove the top for the crumbs to brown. Serve from the dish.

Texture Very Important When Choosing Fabrics

Texture is a very important consideration when choosing materials for a garment. This is especially true in regard to stout figures; shilly fabrics, even though they are black, seem to increase the size of the wearer. Coarsely woven, thick or fuzzy materials increase the apparent bulk of the figure. Soft, clinging materials should be chosen for the plump person rather than those which are stiff, such as organdy and taffeta. These may be worn by the more slender, youthful figure. Color, although not a texture, is another important factor. Light and bright colors tend to increase the size while dark neutral colors decrease the apparent size of the wearer.

V-Shaped Neckline

Variations of the V-shaped neckline will be found to be most becoming to the round face. The point may be slightly rounded or it may be made square. It is not always necessary for it to be pointed. A collar may not be used. The square neck is also becoming to this type of face although it is not as pleasing as the pointed neck. A round neck repeats the round line of the face making it appear more round.

Disease Works Havoc in Wild Duck Flocks

Creation of bird sanctuaries throughout the country where wild fowl may nest and feed in safety is proposed in a federal game refuge bill, and sportsmen are recommending its adoption to check the rapid decrease in the number of birds, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The plan includes the establishment of public shooting grounds, adjacent to the preserves. According to experts, ducks in the western part of the country are threatened with extinction unless ways are found to combat a form of paralysis which affects them after drinking contaminated water. This disease is widespread near Great Salt Lake. It afflicts other marsh birds as well as ducks and, when least prevalent, takes a toll of 30,000 to 100,000 yearly, while more than 1,000,000 ducks alone are killed in the worst years. The salts in the waters have made them poisonous to the fowls. The mallards do not prove fatal if the birds can get fresh water in time.

FLOUNISHED IN HOT CLIMES

Many Nations Who Left Indefinite
Mark on the World's Hand
No Handicap.

There is a great deal to be said in favor of the protracted heat of the long-summered climates. One ought to reflect that all the civilizations of antiquity flourished in tropical or sub-tropical climates. Egypt, Assyria, Greece, Italy were countries where an unprecedented culture was attained without the aid of artificial heating; the sun warmed them in summer and the people bore their ebullience as well as they could in winter, without resorting to their exertions for an intellectual and artistic uplift. Their moral and religious condition left something to be desired, but with the universal spread of ethical culture, it is hard to say such condition in our time is scarcely to be feared for civilization in the hot countries of the western hemisphere. Our aborigines, especially our prehistoric aborigines, instinctively wrought on the lines of antique empire and grew more and more enlightened as they came from Greenland on the north and Patagonia on the south, perfecting themselves in architecture and sculpture as they went, till on the breathless plains among the volcanic mountains of Central America they left monuments surpassing in beauty those of Egypt. At least, this is what travelers say; any who doubt it may go and see for themselves; and if we are to trust the logic of our weather reports they probably had themselves more secure from sunstroke in Guatemala or Yucatan than in eastern Massachusetts.—W. D. Howells, in Harper's Magazine.

FALSE AND HONEST PRIDE

The One is to Be Discouraged Most Strongly; the Other One of the Best of Assets.

There is a sort of pride that lifts a man to his true level and gives him a power and prestige. It is pride with respect behind it, pride with enthusiasm as a part, and pride flanked with a worthy record and large plans. Unless you take pride in your work, unless you glory in doing things that count, unless there grows within you a confident feeling that there is an accumulated reserve force and strength of character through the working out of the day's plans, there is lost to you the thrill that comes into the game as a continually happy man or woman. Honest pride is a vital asset. You will never allow yourself to do inferior work if your pride remains constantly sensitive. Be too proud to be dishonest. Be too proud to do less than your best. Be too proud to place yourself on the level with those whose life plans are base or unworthy. Be too proud to let a day pass without something new learned or something helpful accomplished. But banish false pride—the sort that eats away your personal independence and renders you small and narrow in mind. Be what you are openly and frankly. Then you can match eyes steadily with the strongest.—Selected.

Men and Angels.

The judge had listened wearily for hours while many and eminent counsel had wrangled on a single matter of law. One member of counsel for the defense remarked that the speculation of the learned counsel for the prosecution was as idle for the medical inquiry into the question of how many angels could stand on the point of a needle. "Well, gentlemen," remarked the judge, taking notice, "so far as the court is aware, that matter was never settled by a decision. We do not know how many angels can stand on a point of a needle, but the court holds that these proceedings here infallibly establish the fact that a great many mules can find a halting place on a point of law." After that the case moved on to a finish.

Fair Odds.

Judge Musgrove set up a solitary law office in the town square in Tellico. It looked dignified to have his name as counselor-at-law painted on the door; besides, it provided a haven whether he and his listeners could repair when the rain drove them from the sidewalk in front of the Snedcor house, and as a forum for the continuation of the judge's memoirs of the war. To allow a reasonable time for dinner, the judge thought it well to advertise the fact that he would not be in from ten o'clock to one. So he sent Jim down to add this information to the painted legend on the door. Jim did it this way:

JUDGE MUSGROVE
Counselor-at-Law
Ten to One he isn't in.

Not Much of a Bargain.

Lady Customer (pleasantly)—"I hear you are getting married today, Mr. Ribba. Let me congratulate you." Mr. Ribba (the local butcher)—"Well, I shan't so much about congratulations, mum. It do be costing me a pretty penny, I can tell you. Mrs. Ribba, as is to be, what with her trousseau, you know, an' the furnishings, an' the license, an' the parson's fees, an' then I've to give 'er an' 'er sister a piece of jewelry each, and with one thing an' another she's a 'eavy woman, as you know, mum, thirteen stone odd, an' I reckon she'll cost me best part of two chillions eleven pence a pound before I get her home."—Punch.

NOT AN ORIGINAL DISCOVERY

Writer Thought That He Had Found Jones, But He Was Very Late to Get in the Field.

Several years ago I wrote an essay for the Atlantic Monthly on "The Hundred Worst Books." For a place in the list I selected a book in my library entitled Poems on Several Occasions, published in 1749, by one Jones, a poet whose name was unknown to me till I perused his verse. The pages were so fresh that I cherished the belief that I was the only reader in a century and a half. I had the pride of possession in Jones. It was some time after that I came across, in Walpole's letters, an allusion to my esteemed poet. It seems that Colley Cibber, when he thought he was dying, wrote to the prime minister recommending the bearer, Mr. Henry Jones, for the title laureate. Lord Chesterfield will tell you more of him. "I was never more astonished in my life than when I visualized the situation," he said, "my friend Jones 'the laureate' of a demand for the reversion to the laureateship."

It seemed that Walpole was equally surprised, and when he next met Lord Chesterfield the eager question was—Who is Jones, and why should he be recommended for the position of poet laureate? Lord Chesterfield answered, "A better poet would not take the post and a worse ought not to have it." It appears that Jones was an Irish bricklayer and had made it his custom to work a certain number of hours according to an undeviating rule. He would lay a layer of brick and then compose a line of poetry, and so on till his day's task was over. This accounts for the marvelous evenness of his verse.

This was but a small discovery but it gave a real pleasure, for should I meet my Lord Chesterfield he and I could at once have a common interest. We both had discovered Jones, and quite independently.—S. M. Crothers, in the Atlantic.

CLING TO ANCIENT CUSTOMS

Among the Bedouins Marriage is Celebrated Much as It Was Centuries Ago.

A Bedouin bridegroom, on his wedding day, must make his bride a present of a silk handkerchief filled with rice, sweetmeats, little sugar cakes, and marzipan, also five silver rings for her fingers. An old pair of telly (Arab shoes) are purposely placed in the room in which the lovers meet. He seizes one shoe, and the other, and whichever of them can hit the other first will be the ruler of the household and the other, and there may be something in it.

For seven days after the wedding the bridegroom enjoys himself, wandering through the gardens of the oasis, doing no work, always accompanied by a group of his friends. But on the seventh day he must keep a sharp lookout, for on that day his friends will try suddenly to play a trick on him. If he escapes them, well and good; then he can run to his house and be safe. If not, they catch his clothes from him and beat him, which seems a poor return for the feasting and entertainment. But it is custom, and that is the law of the Medes and Persians to these people, who will not omit the smallest ceremony handed down to them by their forefathers.

Scientific Era of Art.

Art has passed through a scientific era, says the International Studio, and the realistic and impressionistic, having mastered the facts of light and atmosphere as affecting form and color, have prepared the way for an expressive art which shall also be modern. Matisse in drama, Debussy in music, have proved that an artist may be spiritual without being mystical, while Rodin in sculpture has shown that there is a symbolism which is not a revival of the past. Adding to the technical resources of modern art a power of suggestion peculiarly personal, Mr. Beck's art partakes of the qualities of these masters in other fields whose work will endure.

Ecuador's Large Cacao Crop.

Some idea of the magnitude of Ecuador's cacao crop may be gained from the fact that the main streets of Guayaquil are at present almost wholly occupied by cacao beans, placed there to undergo the necessary curing process, and the wharves are covered to a height of several feet with the beans in bags ready for export. The enormous yield is the result of the increased acreage and greater number of trees planted in the last few years. So long as the cacao crop continues to be so bounteous, the republic will occupy an independent financial position.

Young Man—I have called, sir, to request the hand of your daughter in marriage. Grumbells—Has she accepted you? Young Man—Yes, sir. Grumbells—Then what do you want to come around and bother me with your troubles for?

His Reason.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

On last Thursday evening March 3 eighteen friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cooper of near Talma to remind Mrs. Cooper of her birthday.

Editor Must Never Err
When a plumber makes a mistake he charges twice for it. When a lawyer makes a mistake, it is just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again. When a carpenter makes a mistake, it's just what he expected. When a doctor makes a mistake, he buries it. When a judge makes a mistake, it becomes the law of the land. When a preacher makes a mistake, nobody knows the difference. But when the editor makes a mistake—good-night!—The Outlook.

Attic for Maid Solves House Problem

By Edw. L. Sabin, Chicago, Ill.

THE scarcity of good servants is not the only reason why American women are doing their own work and trying themselves down to cooking three meals a day. One big factor is the lack of an extra room to give a maid. High rents and building costs have brought about an era of small, compactly planned houses in most of which there is no room at all for a maid or else it means giving up a closet, a bathroom or a sewing room. Furthermore, many families would rather do without service than to give up their feeling of privacy, which having a maid in such small quarters would destroy.

Making a maid's room out of the unused attic is one satisfactory solution to the problem. At slight expense a small, attractive little room may be fixed up which would please any girl and it will be sufficiently removed from the rest of the house to assure privacy to the family and to the maid.

One would have to engage an Ekimo in the winter and a Fiji Indian in the summer to live in the wasted space between the second floor and the roof, unless it were properly and scientifically insulated. This is a simple matter for the attic of even an old house. By sealing the rafters with one or preferably two layers of cane fiber insulation lumber, heat of course rises from the floors below and ordinarily escapes through the roof.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Frank Beeson, from Albany, N. Y., reaches Benton, Wyoming, then—1868—western terminus of the Pacific Railroad. He had been ordered by physicians to seek a climate "high and dry." He is robbed of most of his money in his hotel and loses his last twenty dollars at monte in "The Big Tent," a dance hall and gambling resort in the "roaring" town of Benton.

Edna Beeson, companion of a gambler, is believed by Frank to have enjoyed his purpose into the game. Hence, disconsolate over his discovery that "the lady of the blue eyes," as he calls her, is what she is, and finally humiliated over his glaring "greenness," Frank repulses, Edna when she begs him to go away with her, sobbingly telling him that she had made a mistake in letting him lose his money. He goes to take a job with Gorge Jenks, a teamster in a wagon train about to leave for Salt Lake City.

Chapter VII.

WESTWARD HO!

My new boots were burning, my thigh was chafed raw from the swaying olt, and my face and throat were parched with the dust when I arrived at the encampment of Jenks' train.

Some dozen white-topped wagons were standing grouped in a circle and figures were busily moving among them, and the thin blue smoke of their fires was a welcoming signal.

I marked women and children. The whole prospect—they, the breakfast smoke, the grazing animals, the stout vehicles, a line of washed clothing—was homey. Jenks himself came out to meet me.

"Hoovey! Here you are," he said. "You fetched all your outfit."

"What you see," I confessed. "They striped me clean."

"Wall, all you need is a blanket. You can pay for it out of your wages or turn it in at the end of the trip."

He conducted me on, along the groups and figures and bedding outside the wagon circle, and halted where a heavy man, of face, smooth-shaven except chin, sat upon a wagon tongue, whistling a stick.

"Blake hands with Cap'n Hyrum Adams, Frank. He's the boss of the train."

Captain Adams offered a thick hand which proved singularly soft and flaccid under the callouses.

"Glad to meet you, stranger," he acknowledged. "Breakfast?"

"Not yet sir, I was anxious to reach the train."

"Nobody goes hungry from the Adams' wagon, stranger," Captain Adams observed. He slightly raised his voice, prominently. "Rachel! Fetch our guest some breakfast."

There were two women in view, busied with domestic cares. One was elderly, as far as might be judged by her somewhat slatternly figure.

The other promptly ladled food from a kettle to a platter, poured a tin cupful of coffee from the pot, and bore them to me; her eyes down, shyly handed them.

I thanked her but was not presented. To the Captain's "That will do, Rachel," she turned dutifully away; not so soon, however, but that I had seen a fresh young face within the bonnet confines—a round rosy face according well with the buxom curves of her as she again bent over her wash board.

"Our fare is that of the tents of Abraham, stranger," spoke the Captain. "Such as it is, you are welcome to. We are a plain people who walk in the way of the Lord, for that is commanded."

"I ask nothing better, sir," I answered.

The pork and beans and the black unsweetened coffee evidently were what I needed, for I began to mend wonderfully ere I was half through the course.

"You are from the East, stranger?" he inquired.

"Yes, sir. I arrived in Benton only yesterday."

"A Sodom," he growled harshly. "A tented sepulcher. And it will perish. I tell you, you do well to leave it, you do well to seek yourself with the appointed of this earth rather than stay in that sin-pit of the eternally damned."

"I agree with you sir," said I.

"I did not find Benton to be a pleasant place. But I had not known, when I started from Omaha."

"Possibly not," Adams assented. "The devil is attentive; he is present in the stations, and he will ride in those gilded palaces even to the Jordan, but he shall not cross. In the name of the Lord we shall face him. What good there shall come, shall abide but the evil shall wither. Not," he added, "that we stand against the railroad. It is needed, and we have petitioned without being heard. We are strong but isolated, we have goods to sell and the word of Brigham Young has gone forth that a railroad we must have. Against the harpies, the gamblers and all the Gentile vanities we will stand upon our own feet by the help of Almighty God."

At this juncture, a tall double-jointed youth of about my age, carrying an ox goad in his hand, stroled to us as if attracted by the harranguing.

"My son Daniel," the Captain introduced. "This stranger travels to Zion with us, Daniel."

The youth had the grip of a vise and seemed to enjoy emphasizing it while cunningly watching my face.

"Howdy," he drawled.

I left soon to join Jenks' wagon and as I passed Rachel, she glanced quickly up. I caught her eyes with blush. She was indeed wholesome if not absolutely pretty.

"Wall, those Mormons are good providers," Jenks commented. "They'll share with you whatever they have, for no pay, but if you rub 'em to wrong way or go to dickering with 'em they're closer'n the hide on a cold mule. You didn't make sheep's eyes at any of the women?"

"However, I could not help but see that the Captain's daughter is pleasing to look upon."

"How? His daughter?"

"Miss Rachel."

"Whoa, man! She's his wife, and not a Gentile. They're both his wives; whether he has more in Utah I don't know. But you'd best let her alone. She's been jined to him."

This took me all aback. He was twice her age, apparently.

"And Daniel, his son—is he married?"

"That's whelp? No, he ain't married yet. But he will be soon as he takes his pick, 'cordin' to law and gospel among them people. You bet you he'll be married plenty."

Later in the day as I sat resting upon a convenient wagon-tongue Daniel hulked to me.

"You know me?" he asked.

"Your name is Daniel, isn't it?"

"No, 'taint. It's Bonnie Bravo on the trail."

"All right, sir," said I. "Which ever you prefer."

"I 'low you aim to go through with this train to Salt Lake, do you?"

"That's the engagement I've made with Mr. Jenks."

"It's four hundred mile, an' twenty mile at a stretch without water. Most the water's pizen too, from hyar to the mountings."

"I'll have to drink what the rest drink, I suppose."

"I 'low the Injuns are like to get us. They're powerful bad in that thar desert. Ain't afreared o' Injuns be yu?"

I'll have to take my chances on that too!"

"We don't think much o' Gentiles round here. We don't want 'em, nohow. They'd better get out. The Saints settled that country 'an it's ours."

"If you're a sample, you're welcome o' live there," I retorted. "I think I'd prefer some place else."

"Haw!" he bleated. "That ain't no place as good. All the rest of the world has sold itself to the devil."

We remained he waited, provocative.

"Say, Mister," he blurted suddenly. "Kin you shoot?"

"I presume I could if I had to. Why?"

"Becuz I'm the dangest best shot wif ha Colt's in this hyar train. Any time you want to try a little poppin' you let me know."

And with this, he left me, with the uneasy impression that he and I were due to measure strength in one way or another.

About three o'clock with whips cracking, the Captain Adams wagon in the lead (two pink sunbonnets upon the seat), the valorous Daniel's we tolled cracking and awaying up the Benton road, amidst the eddies of hot scalding dust.

It was a mixed train, of Gentile mules and the more numerous Mormon oxen; therefore not strictly a "bull" train, but by pace designated as such.

Trudging manfully at the left fore wheel behind Mr. Jenks' four span of mules I played the teamster—albeit though sooth to say there was little of play in the job, on that road, at that time of the day.

At sundown, having eaten our supper we were sitting by our fires, smoking and talking, when as a construction train of box cars chanced by on the railroad I chanced to note a figure spring out asprawl, a "bull" train, with a whistle of sand, and staggering up hasten for us.

First it accosted the hulk Daniel, I saw him lean from his saddle! then he rode in, hawling like a calf:

"Paw! Paw! Hey you-all! Thar's a woman yonder in britches an' she 'lows to come on. She's lookin' for Mister Jenks."

In a storm of rude raillery—"That's a hoss on you George!" "Didn't know you owned one o' them critters, George?" Does she wear the britches, George?" and so forth—my friend Jenks arose, peering, while the solitary figure braving our stares, came on to the fires.

"Gawd almighty!" Mr. Jenks delivered.

It was My Lady—formerly My Lady—called on her embroidered about Spanish jacket, lightish velvet pantaloons, booted to the knees, pulled down upon her yellow hair a black soft hat, and hanging from the just-revealed belt around her slender waist, a revolver trifles.

She paused, small and alone, viewing us, her eyes very blue, her face very white.

"Is Mr. Jenks there?" she hailed clearly.

"Damn! If I ain't," he mumbled glowering at me.

"I wish to engage passage to Salt Lake," she said.

"We haven't no place for a woman, ma'am," Jenks demurred.

"There are other women in the train," Edna insisted.

"Where's Pedro? Where's Montoye?" asked Jenks.

Her eyes blazed.

"Jist That snake? I shot him!"

"What! You! Killed him?" Exclamations broke from the bystanders.

"No, I didn't have to! But when he tried to abuse me, I defended myself. Wasn't that right, gentlemen?"

"Right or wrong, he'll be after you, won't he?"

The question held a note of alarm. "I am only an employee, here, madam," I faltered. "If I had an outfit of my own I certainly would help you."

She flushed painfully; she did not glance at me direct again, but her unspoken thanks unfolded me.

The large form of Captain Adams came striding.

"What's this?" He demanded harshly. "An angoddy woman? Get you gone, Delilah!"

"I am going sir," she replied. "I ask nothing from you or these—gentlemen."

"Them's the two she's after paw; Jenks an' that greenie," Daniel bawled. "Ain't she purty though? She's dressed in britches."

"Get you gone," Captain Adams thundered. "And them your paramours with you. No brazen hussy in men's garments shall travel with this train to Zion—no, not a mile of the way."

(To be continued next week.)

Another Earthquake Disaster Takes Heavy Toll of Life in Japan.

THE earthquake that took a toll of more than 2,000 lives in Japan on March 8 will go down in history as one of the catastrophes of the times. The total number of killed and injured was close to 6,000 people. Dispatches from Anjo described the pitiful condition of the refugees, homeless, hungry, and cold. In some places, at the time the disaster occurred, the snow was from one to five feet deep, and hundreds of men, women and children, possessing but a few blankets, found meager shelter behind great snowdrifts. The suffering of women and children was considerable, although the efforts of troops, police, and young men's associations alleviated the misery. Efforts to bring aid to the devastated region were retarded because of lack of railway traffic, only a few motor cars and trucks, and a few motors and wagons being available. In addition to a few airplanes, which carried some relief supplies. The roads and paths were badly caked. The number of houses in the district which collapsed was set at 3,522 and the number burned at 3,846. The principal damage took place in the towns of Minamata, Amio, Kayetani, and Miyazu. The damage and casualties at Miyazu and Kumihama were light. Following the damage by quake and fire, floods added to the misery of the 70,000 homeless people, and seriously interfered with the relief efforts of the government. Warm weather and heavy rains turned the deep snow into raging floods. The waters caused the weakened railway embankments to crumble and prevented the movement of relief trains. The government met the situation by inaugurating trains of pack animals for carrying provisions into the devastated district.

THE Mexican argument continues from week to week, with evidence of a firmer stand on the part of the administration. The situation is close to the close of congress. The sudden departure of Mexican Ambassador Tellez for Mexico City caused rumors of a diplomatic break, but the government indignantly without foundation. From Mexico City the ambassador said his return to his home was caused purely by personal matters, and that he would again be in Washington within a couple of weeks. On March 9 the State department made public testimony that the Mexican government was foreign relations committee in February in which it was stated that 22,000,000 acres of land, much of it owned by Americans, had been seized by the Mexican government. During the absence of Secretary of State Kellogg the Mexican situation was being handled directly by the President.

IN NEW YORK on March 8 Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, was sentenced to serve 18 months in Atlanta penitentiary and pay a $5,000 fine by Judge Knox in Federal court. Sentence was passed after Judge Knox had denied motions of appeal to set aside the verdict and direct a new trial. Miller was found guilty of conspiracy to defraud the government of its unleased services by a jury which was composed of an agreement on Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, in trial with Miller. The maximum penalty was two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

IT HAS been practically decided that the President will spend his summer vacation in the West, though the exact location has not yet been selected. South Dakota and Wyoming are bidding for the honor of entertaining the nation's Chief Executive, and it is probable that the summer White House will be either the State Game Lodge in the Black Hills, 25 miles from Deadwood, or the Coe ranch near Cody, Wyoming, bordering on Yellowstone National park. Political wisecracks see in this move of the President an intention on his part to be an avowed candidate for re-nomination, with the expectation that his visit to the West will go far to offset the dissatisfaction among the farmers caused by his veto of the farm relief bill.

PROFITLESS was to be the program for France in the future. The French Chamber of Deputies has passed Paul Boncour's project for the mobilization of every man, woman and child and the conscription of capital in the event of war. Only a few communists dissented. Paul Boncour's plan, founded on socialistic ideas, calls for mobilization of everybody in France, "without distinction as to age or sex." M. Shaumie, Radical Socialist deputy, warned against the danger of this plan. "In mobilizing the entire nation," he said, "we will automatically deprive ourselves of the protection of the international conventions of The Hague and give the enemy just what he needs to deport women and children, since they are combatants, or to sink unarmed passenger ships."

DESPITE the failure of the senate to pass the deficiency appropriation bill before adjournment, this leaves many departments of the government crippled for lack of finances. The President has declined to consider an extra session. The largest item in the deficiency was $37,200,000 to the pension bureau for pensions to veterans of the Civil and other wars prior to the World war and their dependents; $35,000,000 for veterans of the World war and $25,000,000 to the veteran's bureau for loans to veterans on soldiers' bonus certificates.

Announcement was made by the pension bureau that present appropriations will be depleted about May 1, so that it will not be possible to pay during the months of May and June the 500,000 beneficiaries. On July 1, however, when appropriations for the fiscal year 1923 become available, the accrued pensions for a three months' period will be paid. Some arrangement will be made by which veterans receiving compensation under the veterans' bureau will not suffer much inconvenience. As to loans to veterans on bonus certificates, the veterans will have to stand upon the banks until next winter.

FRANCE will make a $100,000,000 loan to the United States this year. This does not mean that the French government has accepted the terms of settlement of the Paris peace conference. It is merely a temporary agreement pending ratification of the debt records. The action of Premier Poincare in providing for this temporary arrangement was the subject of a bitter debate in the French chamber of deputies, but was finally approved by a vote of 300 to 180. The socialists and communists voted against it. These annual payments are expected to continue until such time as France ratifies the debt records.

During February the United States received $1,430,000 in reparations from Germany according to the agent general for reparations. This brings the American receipts, in the third anniversary year, up to $9,840,000, which is approximately the same as France received in the same month. Germany now has paid, under the Dawes plan, a total of $92,000,000.

THAT there will be a three power conference for reparations is practically assured, Japan and Great Britain having assured the United States that they would accept such an invitation. France and Italy will be asked to attend observers to the conference to be held at Geneva, and it is expected they will do so.

plled, accepting the invitation, but rejecting the suggestion as to the ratio, clearly indicating that parity with the United States was desired.

AN IMPORTANT decision of the United States Supreme court in invalidating primary elections was handed down on March 7. The decision invalidates a Texas statute forbidding negroes to vote in Democratic party primaries. A negro sought $5,000 damages from election officials for refusing him the right to vote in the primary of the Democratic party, of which he is the member.

"If the defendant's conduct was a wrong to the plaintiff," said the court, "the same reasons that allow a recovery for denying the plaintiff a vote at a final election allow it for denying a vote at the primary, that may determine the final result."

It is believed this decision will have a direct bearing on the defense offered by Smith and Vane in their fight for senate seats. Supporters of Smith and Vane contend that the senate cannot properly exclude them for excessive expenditures in the primaries in which they won their nominations because the federal government has no jurisdiction of primary elections. In support of their argument they cite the Supreme court decision in the Newberry case invalidating the federal corrupt practices act of 1911 in so far as it pertains to primaries.

Senator Borah interpreted the decision as indicating the conflict of the court that the primary is an inseparable and important part of the general election and therefore within the jurisdiction of congress in the case of election of senators and representatives.

This interpretation would destroy the basis of the arguments in behalf of Smith and Vane that what they did in the primaries is outside federal jurisdiction and control.

THE revolution in Nicaragua considered the peace efforts were fruitless, and that it will be necessary to fight it out with the rebels outside of the area controlled by United States Marines. In the meantime the United States is sending more troops into the country, 1,000 landing on March 7. On March 4 3,000 United States Marines were landed at Shanghai and paraded through the streets. This was the first landing of American forces in China. There has been no formal protest made to the American government by the Chinese because of this action. On March 6 5,000 Japanese sailors were landed at Shanghai and the Japanese opened cotton mills.

Efforts to patch up some sort of a peace between the contending Chinese factions have been made in the past few days, but up to the time of the writing of this review they have been fruitless. Chang, acting for the Chinese government, offers to accept terms of peace if Cantonese will first cut the bolshevik representatives in an advisory capacity to the Cantonese government.

Lesson for March 20

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE

LESSON TEXT—John 14:1-3; II Cor. 5:1-10; I John 2:1-2.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Our Heavenly Home.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Christ Preparing a Home for Christians.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Heavenly Home.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Beauty and Power of the Christian's Hope.

I. Assurance of a Heavenly Home (John 14:1-3).
The announcement concerning the death of Christ, accompanied with the shaping of events which pointed to a speedy accomplishment of the same, entered the disciples' hope. "The Lord told us that he was going away and that they could not follow Him. This brought great grief to their hearts. They perhaps began to doubt His Messiahship, but He did not leave them comfortless."

1. He asked them to believe and trust in Himself as God (v. 1).
"Ye believe in God, believe also in me." Faith in the God-man, Christ Jesus, will steady the heart, no matter how great the sorrow or intense the grief. If we will but place the cares and burdens of life upon Him our tears shall be turned into joy and our dependency transformed into a radiant faith.

2. He assured them that He was going to prepare a place for them in His Father's house (v. 2). He assured them that He would have an abundance of room, for there were "many mansions" in His Father's house. We should learn from this that when we have reached the heavenly home, we are prepared for a prepared people.

3. He assured them that He would come again and escort them to heaven (v. 3).
Jesus will not wait for His own to come to Him, but will personally come back to the earth and call forth from the graves those who have died in the faith (I Thess. 4:16, 17), and transform living believers and take them with Him to His Father's house in heaven for evermore. When He said, "I will come again," He no doubt meant His personal, bodily and literal return to this earth.

II. Assurance of the Resurrection of the Body (II Cor. 5:1-10). That which we desire for his conflict even when physical death is not an imaginary phase, but a reality, is the assurance that even such violence would not hasten his presence with the Lord. As he faced the uncertain future he was assured that:

1. That his present body was only a tabernacle, a tent in which he lived temporarily (v. 1). Though this tent would be destroyed, he would have as there was a building to take its place. This house which is to take the place of the tent is:
- (2) Not made with hands.
- (3) It is eternal.
- (4) It is made of glory and honor.
- (5) It is made of glory and honor.
- (6) It is made of glory and honor.
- (7) It is made of glory and honor.
- (8) It is made of glory and honor.
- (9) It is made of glory and honor.
- (10) It is made of glory and honor.

God did not fashion the body for death, but for life. God is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living.

4. Believers should be of good courage (v. 6-8).
While we live in this body we are absent from the Lord, but because of the Holy Spirit dwelling within us, we confidently walk by faith, being more anxious to be absent from the body and present with the Lord.

5. The believer's chief concern in this life should be to please the Lord (v. 9, 10).
Nothing matters—health, sickness, strength, weakness, fame or obscurity, friends or loneliness—provided that the will of God is done, and the glory of Christ is glorified by the Lord (I John 2:2, 3).

We are now God's children, but the change which awaits the resurrection has not come yet. When it comes it will reveal our wonderful future. When the Lord shall appear, we shall be like Him in glory. When Christ shall come again the saints shall share His glory. This glorious hope will transform the life. The one who has it will keep himself pure even as He is pure.

QUEER QUIRKS IN HUMAN DESTINY

Adversity Brought Good Fortune

WILLIAM the Conqueror would have met a far more determined foe in England if good fortune had not befallen his arms in the strange form of a temporary adversity. But for a gale that wrecked many of William's ships and piled the bodies of the drowned upon the coast of Normandy, the conqueror's army would have reached England before King Harold's army had been able to meet it with an earlier invader, King Harold Hardrada of Norway, and the issue of Hastings very likely would have been different.

The duke of Normandy based his claim to England's throne upon a promise said to have been made by King Edward the Confessor. To bolster this claim Duke William in 1065 imprisoned Earl Harold, who was visiting Normandy, and compelled him to swear his support of William's claim. In 1066 King Edward died and all England turned to Harold as next in right of succession. Harold renounced his oath taken under duress and accepted.

Throughout the summer of that year Duke William prepared for war. The pope recognized his right as knights throughout Christendom joined the Norman's party. An army of 50,000 knights and 10,000 inferior troops was gathered on the banks of the Diver river and a great fleet of vessels was assembled for the invasion of England.

King Harold on his side likewise made vast preparations for war. Both the English fleet and the English army were ready to repel invasion when news arrived that King Harold Hardrada, excited to the effort by Earl Tostig, renegade brother of Harold, had landed an army in Yorkshire. English forces gathered thither and in a great battle at Stamford bridge destroyed King Hardrada and the flower of his nobility.

In the meantime Duke William of Normandy, unaware of developments in England, was chafing under a delay occasioned by a northeast wind which held his fleet in port. When the wind died to the west, the fleet set sail and encountered a fierce gale that drove them back upon the French coast. Many ships were lost and many men drowned, but this new delay only served to allow time for the diversion of the English army to Yorkshire.

When William's army reached England his landing was unimpeded, as Harold and all his army were away fighting in Yorkshire.

The War of the Red Bull

ANY century ago in Ireland, when little provocation was required to start a war, Queen Meabh of Connaught stole a red bull from the Connaughts, and prepared the way for the hero, Cuiculaid, to take a place in history as the only warrior who ever put an army to flight after his death.

Meabh didn't really need the red bull; she only took it in order to win an argument with her royal consort, Cuiculaid, who was a man of great strength. The king and queen had listed their property separately and it was found that the queen was a shade of wealthier than the king. Cuiculaid would turn her defeat to victory, so she had it seized.

Concobar was very wrath and would have taken no proposals for reimbursement or restitution. But Concobar was not quite ready for war, so the Connaught folk sought advantage in a swift attack. Concobar made the great champion, Cuiculaid, to hold back the queen's forces at a ford of the River Dee, while the main army was being rallied. The ruler of chivalry in that day provided that an army could not advance as long as a champion of the opposing force offered single combat. Cuiculaid by mighty feats of arms held the queen at bay, beating her warriors one by one.

Finally Queen Meabh prevailed upon the powerful and ferocious warriors of southern champions, to espouse her cause against his old friend Cuiculaid. They fought for three days and so fiercely that "they ate the out of its bed," frightened the horses of both armies and caused the timorous to flee. Cuiculaid was wounded grievously but slew his opponent. The queen's forces fled but were pursued by Concobar and the incomparable Cuiculaid. In a pitched battle, Cuiculaid received a mortal wound, drawing the spear from his side he crept to a small lake, drank deeply and was refreshed though facing death.

He struggled to his feet and lashed himself with his belt to a stone pillar, set up of old to honor a fallen warrior, in order that he might die on his feet. Queen Meabh's army, seeing a man whom they knew to have been great to death standing erect, concluded he was immortal and fled, leaving the victory to King Concobar of Ulster.

Speech and Action

Action hangs, as it were, "dissolved" in speech; in thoughts, whereof speech is the shadow; and precipitates itself in action. The kind of speech a man betokens the kind of action you will get from him.—Carlyle.

NEW FULTON

THAWING FROZEN COMBS IS EASY

"Thaw frozen combs on poultry by applying warm or ice water." say poultrymen at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. "Carbolized grease, which may be purchased at most drug stores, will do the trick. A New Jersey agricultural bulletin suggests the following ointment: Five parts of refined petroleum, three parts of glycerin, and one part of turpentine by volume. This should be applied gently and rubbed in fairly well. Remove the black dead tissue from badly frozen combs, so that they will heal more quickly."

"At this time of year many flocks suffer from frozen combs. This trouble is particularly common with roosters of the single-comb White Leghorn breed because their combs are so big. If a rooster's comb is badly frozen, it is serious and may wither and impair his usefulness in the flock." Poultrymen at the state college say that the best farmers in the state put their roosters in the brooding pens early in the winter and watch them carefully during the coldest weather so as to minimize the danger of freezing. The college recommends curtains in front of the roost on very cold nights in narrow houses. This is not recommended in houses that are wider than 15 feet. Another suggestion is the use of wooden floats with 1-inch holes in them to be placed in the drinking vessels. This reduces the danger of freezing as it keeps the birds from dipping their wattles in the water when they drink.

In exceptional cases, it may be well to grease the combs with vasoline, especially valuable birds during cold weather. The pens should be kept well ventilated at all times.

Sprouted Oats for Hens Is Most Excellent Plan

There is nothing in the world that will make the old hens feel as warm like spring is here as a box of sprouted oats every day, experienced poultrymen say. Sprouting oats is not a new thing, but a lot of new equipment may be homemade. A tub or keg will do to soak the oats in. Five or six boxes about 4 inches deep will do for the trays. A room which ranges from 50 to 90 degrees in temperature all the time is satisfactory. Soak the oats 12 hours in water. Drain them and place them in a box where they should be kept moist until the sprouts are about 1/2 inch long. Then drain them and they are put to soak. Five or six boxes will make it possible to start a box each day and weed one regularly.

Green Feed Is Perfect for Poultry in Winter

Many poultry raisers are now feeding mash to their hens, but a lack of palatable, succulent feed is too often the limiting factor in winter poultry raising. Sprouted oats are one of the finest forms of succulence. The Nebraska Agricultural college poultrymen offer the following suggestions: Good heavy oats, with strong germinating power produce best results. Soak the oats for about 24 hours. Drain off excess moisture. Turn into a tub and wash with water. Place in bottom to allow excess moisture to drain off. Add moisture later if necessary. Keep in fairly even moisture. Feed when the sprouts are one-half to one inch long ("greening" is unnecessary).

Ration for Goslings

A ration recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture for goslings up to eight weeks of age is equal parts by measure of brown, mid-dlings and steamed cut clover or cooked vegetables. Feed morning, noon and night. If it is desirable to fatten them at this age or at ten weeks of age, they should be placed in the pen where they will not exercise too much, and fed corn meal mixed to a dry crumbly state, and beef scrap according to 20 per cent of the bulk of the corn meal.

Culling in the Spring

A little more culling in the spring may take out a few hens that do not lay as good as breeders and layers as they did last fall. Sometimes a few hens become too fat. Maybe one or two will be heavy and listless and fall to scratch for grain and corn from the roost promptly in the morning. A little about the condition of a flock can be told by opening the house suddenly on a sunny day. Watch the good hens fold out and begin to enjoy the range.

Better Hatching Eggs

A new requirement which must be met by eggs which are to hatch well under the best care, is called to the attention of poultry raisers by the investigators at the Missouri College of Agriculture. The new requirement is that the eggs must be from hens that have been fed a ration containing certain vitamins. Though not fully understood, it is a kind of vitamin substance that has a very important effect on the animal that eats these foods.

Gym in Attic Provides Joy for Youth

© Celotex Inc. Institute, Chicago, 1925.

WHO is the most popular, the most envied boy in the neighborhood? The one who has a gymnasium all of his own fixed up in the attic. This is a place where he can bring home all the "regular fellows," play for hours on rainy days and put on acrobatic and athletic performances well worth the two pins admission price charged. Incidentally, the rest of the family can well take advantage of this opportunity to keep physically fit and hard the year round.

A couple of heavy gymnasium mats are all that are needed to start with. These will make first-class downs and acrobats of pretty nearly all boys. To these may be added from time to time, on birthday and Christmas presents or out of the boy's own savings, such equipment as pulleys, Indian clubs, punching bags, and a combination of swinging rings, trapeze and swing made especially for the small home gym.

It is well to plan for from the start where each piece of equipment will logically have to go when the time comes to add it, allowing plenty of room to avoid swinging into dormers or bumping against the eaves. Children may be put up to bear the strain.

The next step is to seal the interior of the attic with celotex insulating lumber from the tough, strong fibers of sugar cane, not just for the sake of appearance but to keep the gym cool in the summer and warm enough in the winter. The heat rising from the floors below will ordinarily furnish all that is necessary, as the temperature of the gymnasium should not be over sixty degrees to be healthful. The insulating lumber is nailed in large boards under the rafters, with side walls up to a height of three feet. The spaces so formed under the eaves may easily be lined with the same lumber and used for storage trunks and window screens.

If a rough flooring is already down, this should be covered with a layer of the insulating lumber and on top of this canvas sewed in strips stretched tightly across. This makes a splendid floor for this purpose, especially as the celotex has sound deadening properties which will tend to keep the noise from going downstairs.

Also, this floor layer of the insulating lumber, while it will tend to make the attic a little cooler because it will retard transmission from below, will conserve just that much more for the rooms that really need it. The fuel saving of the house insulated this way varies according to the conditions in each house but as high as 25 per cent is no uncommon saving.

Above all, the gymnasium should be "liberty hall" for the boys to do in as they like and they should be held responsible for taking care of it themselves. Two precautions will spare every one concerned a lot of expense and grief: put wire screening over each window on the inside and bug guards to put over the electric light bulbs.

THE MUTUAL TONTINE

By WALTER J. DELANEY

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman.)

WHENEVER devised the Mutual Tontine fund ready soil for planting their policies is about Raddendale. At the end of thirty years most of the investors in the scheme were "planted" themselves, as the phrase went, and finally there were only two survivors—Adam Warner and Ezra Moss.

Here was the scheme: One hundred subjects were taken at one hundred dollars each. The surviving members of the syndicate, as it might be called, when fifty had died, were to receive six per cent on their investment annually up to their death. The heirs of the final survivor were to receive the amount in the pool at his demise.

All this figured out a liberal commission for the agent or trustee and for the bank where the funds were deposited. After thirty years all but two members of the original group were dead. It was then estimated that the amount the final survivor would receive would be approximately sixty-five thousand dollars.

But Adam Warner and Ezra Moss seemed to have no disposition to die. It was true that both were now over eighty and were not able to go about much. Warner's heir was a grandson, Cyril Warner, in the navy. All the heir or, rather, heiresses of Ezra Moss were his widowed daughter, Mrs. Newell, and her only child, twenty and charming, Marcia.

Mrs. Newell was sordid. She hoped to receive the opulent fund at stake. Mr. Moss had no income except six dollars a year, nothing but his contingent dependency. Mrs. Newell did sewing and Marcia taught school. The returns barely kept the household wheels moving. Again, in her anxiety to do all that was possible for the health and comfort of her father, Mrs. Newell spared no expense, which was a serious drain on their limited revenue.

Old Adam Warner lived alone, except for a faithful man servant almost as aged as himself—David Nack. This man was terribly jealous of his master. As Warner grew old and feeble, he shut out everybody from the house, he devoted all his time and care to him.

One morning the neighbors observed Nack come out of the Warner home in a fearful state of excitement. He was waving his hands and acting altogether perturbed. Bent on his way to town, he paid no attention to anyone until a closer acquaintance than the others hailed him.

"Why, David," spoke this man, "whatever is the matter?"

"It's—I mean—no—nothing!" stammered Nack, like one kept under some vital matter and seeking to evade any questioning regarding it.

"I'm—in a hurry. Master is—there is, I want to get some medicine for him, so I can't delay."

"You can wait long enough to hear some news that will interest both you and Warner, I reckon," submitted his friend.

"Hey! What's that?" demanded Nack, pricking up his ears.

"Dead—he passed away early this morning, suddenly, but painlessly."

"Are you sure? Are you sure?" fairly shouted Nack, all astir.

"Miss Newell just told me, and they've sent for the undertaker."

"Then—then?" quavered Nack.

"Your master wins the Mutual Tontine. Sixty-five thousand dollars—wheew. That will be great news for his grandson, Cyril, in the navy."

Nack turned like a shot, homeward bound.

"Hold on!" challenged his friend—"aren't you going after the medicine?"

"Oh, no. This news of his luck will make my master all well again!"

He left everything to his grandson, Cyril, who had been telegraphed to and who arrived in time for the obsequies.

He was a well-looking, intelligent young man and made no parade of his wealth. He passed most of his time in the house with old Nack, but one day walking in the village quite eagerly approached Mrs. Newell, who was a little ahead of him with Marcia.

"Madam," he spoke, lifting his cap courteously, "I wish to suggest—"

But Mrs. Newell, still bitter over her great money loss, gave him an icy stare that drove him back dismayed.

"My mother is not feeling herself, sir," Marcia spoke, and in the accompanying glance of regret the embarrassed young man traced a note of apology that drew him towards this possessor of the fairest face he had ever seen.

Village gossip now had it that the Newells were going to remove to the city, where mother and daughter might find more profitable work. It was also rumored that young Cyril Warner was negotiating to buy his release from naval service, preparatory to going into business with the capital he had inherited.

There was a knock at the door of the Newell home a few evenings later. Mrs. Newell glanced through the open window to make out the visitor.

"The idea!" she cried, confronting her daughter.

"That audacious Warner! Don't answer."

"But it may be a matter of business. Come, mamma, do not let an unreasonable prejudice influence you against this young man, whom people tell me is a fair-minded person," and she proceeded to the door and quite pleasantly invited the caller into the parlor.

"You will pardon my presumption in calling," Cyril Warner addressed Mrs. Newell, his face very pale, his compressed lips telling of a vast internal struggle, "but I am compelled to come."

The other day I wished to suggest to you that we divide the fund money. Today," and he placed a black stout wallet on a table, "it is yours—all of it."

"Ours?" cried the astounded lady.

"Yes, madam, by all the rights of justice. Not one penny belongs to me. Good day, madam. You will find sixty-five thousand dollars in that wallet."

He was at the door, down the steps, striding away along the gravelled path. Mrs. Newell was too overcome to follow. Not so Marcia. She reached him, placed a detaining hand upon his arm.

"You must tell us more," she said decisively, "or we shall return the money to you."

Cyril Warner hesitated. Then it seemed as if he allowed Marcia to lead him to a rustic bench. With averted eyes he told her that his grandfather had died twenty-four hours before her own, and David Nack, through mistaken fidelity to the family, had concealed the fact and had impersonated the dead man when the bank messenger came.

The ready, practical mind of Marcia devised a way of keeping this secret. There must be a division of the money. To this Cyril would not consent.

But love united the kind, separated the crafty and only to bring those two together in closer bonds, and husband and wife alone knew the real merits of the settlement of the Mutual Tontine fund.

Let Lemonade Stand, Is Chemists' Advice

Chemists at the University of California have found that lemonade actually becomes sweeter after it has stood for several hours. When lemonade is fresh it is sharper and more sour than lemonade which has been stored for a while, because certain chemical changes take place in the fluid. The chemists found that within a couple of hours after lemonade was made all the cane sugar was replaced by a much sweeter mixture composed of two simpler sugars. Citric acid, which exists in lemonade in large quantities, brings about the chemical action. The product which results after the citric acid has changed the nature of the sugar is considered a beverage because it is more readily assimilated. There is another consideration of a more practical nature. If lemonade is allowed to stand two hours before using it much less sugar will be required—Fathinder Magazine.

Time Well Spent

A great king asked some of his courtiers how they had passed the time in the prisons into which their youthful pranks had sometimes led them.

One replied that he had learned mathematics, another drawing, a third to play the lute.

"And you," resumed the monarch, turning to one who kept silence, "what did you learn in your prison?"

"Sir, I learned never to go there again."

Parrot Remembered Owner

When Mrs. Mayme Smith of Stratton, Pa., discovered her pet parrot had been stolen, she made the rounds of the bird stores of the city in search of it. When a parrot in one store cried out: "Hello, mamma!" she recognized it as her missing pet. Police traced the thief and made an arrest.

AN ALL PURPOSE... W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, IND. 12-1927.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Frank Brown, from Albany, N. Y., reaches Benton, Wyoming, then—1888—western terminus of the Pacific Railroad. He had been ordered by physicians to seek a climate "high and dry." He is robbed of most of his money in his hotel and loses his last twenty dollars at monte in "The Big Tent," a dance hall and gambling resort in the "roaring" town of Benton.

Edna Montoyo, companion of a gambler, is believed by Frank to have coaxed him purposely into the game. Broke, disconsolate over his discovery that "the lady of the blue eyes," as he calls her, is what she is, and finally humiliated over his glaring "greenness," Frank repulses Edna when she tries to go away with her, nobly telling him that she had made a mistake in letting him lose his money. He goes to take a job with

George Jenks, a teamster in a wagon train about to leave for Salt Lake City.

Capt. Adams, a Mormon, is in charge of the wagon train. Rachael Adams, an attractive young woman, one of his wives in the train, as is David Adams, his loutish son. When Edna, who has shot, but not killed the gambler, Montoyo, comes a fugitive in "britches" to join the train, Daniel tells his father that she is seeking Jenks and Beeson. Capt. Adams shouts, "No hussy in men's garments shall go with the train."

Chapter VIII.

FOR A WOMAN'S SMILE

Jenk stiffened, bristling. "Mind your words, Adams. I'm under no Mormon thumb. As for your brat on horseback, he'd better hold his yaws."

I sprang forward. Defend her I must. She should not stand there—slight, lovely, brave, affable with the helplessness of a woman alone and insulted.

"Wait!" I implored. "Give her a chance. You haven't heard her story. All she wants is protection. I know the cur she's getting away from. I saw him strike her. You've got women there who'll care for her!"

I felt her instant look. She spoke palpitant.

"You have one man among you all. But I am going. Good-night gentlemen."

Captain Adams was frowning sternly, his heavy face unsoftened. "Why come you here?"

"My husband has been abusing me, and I shot him!"

"You killed him, woman?"

"Not yet! He's likely fleeing the public at this very moment."

"And those garments!" Captain Adams accused. "You wish to show your shape, woman, to tempt men's eye with the flesh."

She smiled.

"Would you have me jump from a train in skirts, sir? But to soothe your mind I will say that I wore these clothes under my proper attire and cloak until the last moment."

"She shall stay, Hyrum? For the night, at least? I will look after her."

The Captain's younger wife, Rachael, had stepped to him. Fending reply I hastened directly to My Lady herself and detained her by her jacket sleeve.

"Wait," I bade.

"You would take her in, Rachael?" the Captain mumbled.

"We are commanded to feed the hungry and shelter the homeless Hyrum."

"Verily that is so. Take her! But in God's name clothe her for the daylight in decency. She shall not advertise her flesh to men's eyes!"

"Quick!" I whispered with a push. Rachael, however, had crossed for us.

"Will you come with me, please?" she invited.

"Yes," sighed My Lady, wearily. "Good-night, sir." She fleetingly smiled upon me. "I thank you; and Mr. Jenks."

They went, Rachael's arm about her.

Daniel pressed beside Captain Adams, talking eagerly.

"She's powerful pretty, ain't she? Gosh, I never seen a woman in britches before! Did yu? Paw! (She kin ride in my wagon, paw. Be yu goin' to take her on paw. If yu be, I got room.)

"Go! Tend to your stock and think of other things," boomed the father. "Remember, that the Scriptures say: 'Beware of the scariet woman!'"

Daniel galloped away, whooping like an idiot.

Our group dispersed, each man to his blank under the wagons or in the open.

"Wait," Jenks uttered, in last words as he turned over with a grunt, "hooray! If it simmers down to you and Dan'l, I'll be there."

With that enigmatical comment he was silent save for stertorous breathing.

Vaguely cogitating over his promise I lay, toes and face up, staring at the bright stars; perplexed more and more over the immediate events of the future, warmly conscious of her astonishing proximity in this very train, prickled by the hope that she would continue with us, irritated by the various assumptions of Daniel, and somehow not at all adverse to the memory of her in "britches."

That phase of the matter seemed to have affected Daniel and me similarly. Under his hide he was human.

It was after sun-up that a horseman bored in at a gallop, over the road from the east.

"Montoyo," Jenks pronounced in a grumble of disgust rather than with note and alarm.

I saw him give a twitch to his hoster and lightly loosen the Colt's.

As it chanced, our outfit was the first upon the gambler's way.

"Howdy, gentlemen!"

"Howdy yourself, sir," answered Mr. Jenks. Montoyo was pale as death, his lips hard set, his peculiar gray eyes and his black moustache the only vivifying features in his coldly menacing countenance.

He looked upon me, with a trace of recognition less to be seen than felt. His glance leaped to the wagon—traveled swiftly and surely and turned to Mr. Jenks.

"I'm looking for my wife, gentlemen. Have you seen her?"

"Yes, sir. We'll not beat around any bush over that," replied Jenks. He meditated, frowning a bit eyeing us narrowly.

"I had the notion," he said. "If you have staked her to shelter, I thank you; but now I aim to play the hand myself. This is strictly a private game. Where is she?"

"I call you, Pedro," my friend answered. "We ain't keepin' cases on her, or on you. You don't find her in my outfit, that's flat. She spent the night with the Adams women. You'll find her waitin' for you, on ahead," he grinned. She'll be powerful glad to see you. He sobered.

"And I'll say this: I'm kinder sorry I ain't got her, for she'd be interestin' company on the road."

"The road to hell, yes," Montoyo coolly remarked. "I'll guarantee you quick passage. Good-day."

With sudden steely glare that embraced us both he jumped his mount into a gallop and tore past the team for the front.

I could hold back no longer, and hastening on up, half running in my anxiety to face the worst; to help if I might, for the best.

A little knot of people had formed constantly increasing by oncomers like myself and friend Jenks who had lumbered behind me.

Montoyo's horse stood heaving, on the outskirts; and ruthlessly pushing through I found him inside, with My Lady at bay before him—her eyes brilliant, her cheeks hot, and her two hands clenched tightly, and the arm of the brightly flushed but calm Rachael resting restlessly around her.

Captain Adams, at one side apart, was talking to the gambler.

"You see here," he said. "She has had the care of my own household, for I turn nobody away. She came against my will, and she shall go of her will. I am not her keeper!"

"You Mormon shave the advantage of us white men, sir," Montoyo sneered. "No one of the sex seems to be denied bed and board in your establishments."

"By the help of the Lord we of the elect can manage our establishments much better than you do yours," big Hyrum responded; and his face sobered. "Who are you? A pandarer to the devil, a thief with painted card-boards, a despoiler of the ignorant, and a feeder to hell—yes, a striker of women and a troficker in flesh! Who are you to speak the name of the Lord's anointed? There she is, your chael. Take her, or leave her. This train starts in ten minutes."

"I'll take her or kill her," Montoyo snarled. "You call me a feeder, but she shall not be fed to your mill Adams. You'll get on that horse pronto, Madam," he added, stopping forward (no one could question his nerve), and we'll discuss our affairs in private."

She cast about with swift beseeching look, as if for a friendly face or sign of rescue. With a spring I burst in.

But somebody already had drawn fresh attention. Daniel Adams was standing between her and her husband.

"Say Mister, will yu fight?" he drawled.

Montoyo surveyed him.

"Why?"

"For her o' course."

The gambler smiled—a slow, contemptuous smile while his gray eyes focused watchfully.

"It's a case where I have nothing to gain," said he. "And you've nothing to lose. I never bet in the teeth of a pat hand. Sab? Besides, my young Mormon cub, where's your ante? For the sport of it, now, what do you think of putting up, make it interesting? One of your mummies? Tut, tut!"

Daniel's right hand stiffened at his side—extended there flat and tremulous like the vibrant tail of a rattlesnake. He blurted harshly:

With sudden steely glare that embraced us both he jumped his mount into a gallop and tore past the team for the front.

I could hold back no longer, and hastening on up, half running in my anxiety to face the worst; to help if I might, for the best.

A little knot of people had formed constantly increasing by oncomers like myself and friend Jenks who had lumbered behind me.

Montoyo's horse stood heaving, on the outskirts; and ruthlessly pushing through I found him inside, with My Lady at bay before him—her eyes brilliant, her cheeks hot, and her two hands clenched tightly, and the arm of the brightly flushed but calm Rachael resting restlessly around her.

Captain Adams, at one side apart, was talking to the gambler.

"You see here," he said. "She has had the care of my own household, for I turn nobody away. She came against my will, and she shall go of her will. I am not her keeper!"

"You Mormon shave the advantage of us white men, sir," Montoyo sneered. "No one of the sex seems to be denied bed and board in your establishments."

"By the help of the Lord we of the elect can manage our establishments much better than you do yours," big Hyrum responded; and his face sobered. "Who are you? A pandarer to the devil, a thief with painted card-boards, a despoiler of the ignorant, and a feeder to hell—yes, a striker of women and a troficker in flesh! Who are you to speak the name of the Lord's anointed? There she is, your chael. Take her, or leave her. This train starts in ten minutes."

"I'll take her or kill her," Montoyo snarled. "You call me a feeder, but she shall not be fed to your mill Adams. You'll get on that horse pronto, Madam," he added, stopping forward (no one could question his nerve), and we'll discuss our affairs in private."

She cast about with swift beseeching look, as if for a friendly face or sign of rescue. With a spring I burst in.

But somebody already had drawn fresh attention. Daniel Adams was standing between her and her husband.

"Say Mister, will yu fight?" he drawled.

Montoyo surveyed him.

"Why?"

"For her o' course."

The gambler smiled—a slow, contemptuous smile while his gray eyes focused watchfully.

"It's a case where I have nothing to gain," said he. "And you've nothing to lose. I never bet in the teeth of a pat hand. Sab? Besides, my young Mormon cub, where's your ante? For the sport of it, now, what do you think of putting up, make it interesting? One of your mummies? Tut, tut!"

Daniel's right hand stiffened at his side—extended there flat and tremulous like the vibrant tail of a rattlesnake. He blurted harshly:

"I 'aow to kill yu for that! Draw, yu—"

We caught breath. Montoyo's revolver poised half-way out of the scabbard, held there rigidly, frozen in mid course.

For Daniel had laughed loudly over leveled barrel.

How he had achieved so quickly no man of us knew. Yet there it was—his Colt, out, cocked, wicked and yearning and ready.

"'Haow'll yu take it, Mister?' he gibed. 'I could larn an old cnow to beat yu on the draw. Aw, shucks! I 'aow yu'd better go back to yore pastebards. 'Naow git!'"

Montoyo, his eyes steady, scarcely changed expression. He let his revolver slip down into its scabbard. Then he smiled.

"You have a pretty trick," he commented, relaxing. "Some day I'd like to test it out again. Just now I pass. Madam, are you coming?"

"You know I'm not," she uttered clearly.

"You're choice of company is hardly to your credit," he sneered. "Or I should say, to your education. Saintliness does not fall well upon you, madam. Of your two champions—"

And here I realized that I was standing out, one foot advanced, my fists foolishly doubled, my presence a useful factor.

"I recommend the gentleman from New York as more to your taste. But you are going of your own free will. You will always be my wife. You can't get away from that, yu devil. I shall expect you in Benton, for I have the hunch that your little flight will fetch yu back pretty well tamed, to the place where damaged goods are not so heavily discounted."

With that he strode straight for his horse, climbed aboard (a trifle awkwardly by reason of his one arm disabled) and galloped, granting us not another glance.

Card shark and desperado that he was, he could consume aplomb nobody could denigrate. Daniel now capering and swaggering and twirling his revolver.

"I showed him. I made him take water. I 'aow I'm the best man with a six-shooter in there byar parts."

"Ketch up and stretch out," Captain Adams ordered, disregarding. "We've no more time for foolery."

My eyes met My Lady's. She smiled a little ruefully, and I responded, ashamed by the poor role I had borne with that jabbing out to the fore, certainly I cut small figure!

PRESIDENT FACES WEST.
THE DINOSAUR PARTY.
STUDYING MUMMIES.
MEN WILL DRG.

President Coolidge will spend his vacation in the West, in response to many invitations. He should drive in a big automobile from Kansas City to Seattle down to San Diego, fishing here and there. He would see millions of Americans that like him.

The biggest wars are soon forgotten. Over a direct cable from the United States to Germany, opened last week, President Coolidge wired President Hindenburg his hope that "this means of communication will promote mutual understanding and good will between the two countries." And President Hindenburg replied most politely, Germany, rid of an expensive fleet, expensive standing army and extremely expensive Kaiser attends to business and goes ahead more rapidly than any other country in Europe.

Mrs. Henry Fairfield Osborn entertained friends at the Museum of Natural History, in honor of the tyrannosaurus, in Dinosaur Hall.

"That monster is 47 feet long from his head to the end of his tail, 18 feet high at the hips, 21 feet around the waist, with bones that weigh more than two tons.

He was a powerful animal, but couldn't last because he didn't have a brain big in proportion to the size of his body.

Civilization has developed a more powerful creature which is the two-legged billionaire, able to control and command the work of 200,000,000 men for one day.

That billionaire will soon be numerous and the interesting question concerning him will be, "What about his brain?" Will it be big enough to keep him safe?

The learned D. Sack, of Heidelberg University, studying thousands of Egyptian mummies finds that high living killed off rich Egyptians as it kills off rich Americans now.

Foolish eating, lack of exercise, especially lack of deep breathing, have through the centuries been skinning the scum off the boiling pot of civilization.

Mummies of the fifty dynasty show signs of tuberculosis, affecting the spine, and gout, swelling the joints.

The Supreme Court decides unanimously that Texas's laws forbidding negroes to vote at Democratic primaries is unconstitutional. It is a most important decision, and not to the South only, since it may mean Federal control over local primaries.

Where money is, men will dig. It was proved in Italy, before architects had learned how to make great domes like that on St. Peter's, hold themselves up as they rose in the air. One dome was built and filled with earth to support it, and it rose, until the sides met at the top. Putting in the earth beneath the dome was much less expensive than taking it out. So they mined the earth beneath the dome with small coins of a total value much less than the cost of removing the earth. When the dome was finished the population was told it could bear away the coin-bearing dirt. The great dome stood empty.

This country last year imported more than $50,000,000 worth of precious stones, $5,000,000 more than the year before. And these purchases were made without the assistance of the extinct race of bartenders, to each of whom a large diamond was as necessary as a white apron.

M. Millet, French scientist would tear down the honey bee's reputation built up by Masterlink, Lubbock and many others, back to Aristotle. The bee is a dull mechanical creature says Millet; it does not know that it poisons flowers and blossoms does not even know which flowers have honey, thinks only of getting sugar.

You can say the same of our human honey bees of industry. They build up civilization, make wealth, leisure and culture possible, but they don't know it, or don't care. They also are "only looking for sugar."

But like the bee, they are doing the work for which the Lord created them, and that's sufficient.

The Mentoone Gazette

VOLUME 44.

AKRON, INDIANA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1927.

NUMBER 42.

Fifty picked musicians from Indiana University military band are now on their state tour which includes Mentoone. These are the musicians who have attracted wide attention throughout the middle west during recent years through their playing at Indiana football games and as a result of their excellent concert performances. The Harvard Athletic Association has offered $1,000 toward the expenses of the band on its trip to Cambridge with the football team next fall. The Indiana State Fair management awarded a contract to these musicians for the Fair program next fall. Demands for their appearance in the various cities of Indiana and in Chicago and other places have increased, with the result that a state tour was planned for the organization this spring. Mark Hindesley, of Union City, is the musical director; Nelson Davis, Brazil, student manager; and Captain G. C. Cleaver, faculty manager; and John Ellis, Kokomo, drum major.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In last week's issue of the Gazette it was erroneously stated that the High School commencement would be March 20. April 20 is the correct date.

A pleasing diversion from the rose-drops for extremely unusual effects. The program of the Indiana University Band made a big hit on and off the campus at various social functions. Mark Hindesley, musical director, is also in charge of the band. The next Institute will be held Saturday, April 1st, at the University. Other members of the Band are: Lester Bolitho, Chicago, saxophone; John Tatos, Illinois, drums; and John Tatos, Illinois, drums.

BIRTH

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Igo, Monday, March 21.

HIGH SCHOOL TO ORGANIZE TRACK TEAM

Plans are under way to organize a track team and will probably be fully matured within a weeks time. Meets have been arranged with Beaver Dam and Elma Green which will be staged in the first part of April. The team will also enter the county meet which will be held in Warsaw the latter part of April. A baseball team will be organized and tennis matches arranged.

INDIANA'S CELEBRATED PARADE

Indiana's celebrated parade and drill formations will be demonstrated in each town. John Ellis, of Kokomo, tall drum major whose work was commended so strongly when he led the band on foreign football fields last fall, will accompany the musicians on their spring trip and lead the parade.

The boys will travel in special buses. This system of transportation was used successfully by the I. U. Glee club on its spring tour last year and the bandmen are taking it up this year.

Band members were selected at the beginning of the school year from a large number of candidates. Numerous college men appeared before Director Mark Hindesley, and from those he was able to get experienced, capable, thorough musicians.

The band will bring with it a collegiate spirit, the spirit of youth and happiness. Some time ago, the State University student band marched in the parade of Knights Templar at Terre Haute, several other bands from over the state being in the same parade. Speaking of the band, a Terre Haute newspaper says:

"One of the most stirring events on the parade was when the Cream and Crimson band struck up 'Indiana' when marching down Wabash avenue where the crowd was greatest. The spirit of the I. U. battle song seems to have permeated Terre Haute."

The Bandoliers, a 10-piece student orchestra which will play popular tunes, is accompanying the band on its spring tour. This orchestra has been playing at the state school for social functions this year and is popular with the student body. Their exhibit his eight and a half feet of program of light, popular music performed during the intermission when drills here in connection with the I. U. band concert to be presented at a pleasing variation from the regular concert program.

I. U. BAND IN MENTONE APR. 1

The Indiana University concert band of 50 pieces, one of the best college musical organizations in the country, will appear at The Community Building, Friday night, April 1, with an excellent, versatile program.

The Cream and Crimson musicians have been lauded highly by musicians, military officials, and audiences wherever they have appeared. The band is noted for its preciseness, carriage and musical ability.

"The snappiest marching college band I have ever seen," declared John Phillip Sousa, the famous band leader, after he had reviewed the I. U. band.

When Admiral John Halligan, Jr., inspected the Indiana University R. O. T. C. unit last spring, he spoke of the I. U. band as "the finest I have ever seen." He also declared that John Ellis, of Kokomo, the drum major, was the best he had ever seen.

Football fans in rival schools have sung loud and long praises for the Indiana band.

Mark H. Hindesley, member of the faculty of the Indiana University school of music and director of the band holds the distinction of being one of the youngest college bandmasters in the United States. He was graduated from Indiana University in 1925 with the A. B. degree. He will receive his A. M. degree in music this spring.

Hindesley is a good example of the versatile young man. In addition to his thorough artistry as a musician, he is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary fraternity, the goal of all serious students. Members of this organization must have made very excellent grades throughout their college career to be eligible. He is now instructor of band instruments in the school of music.

The young director is also well known as a composer of songs and marches, the best known of which is "Indiana Loyalty March," a battery song at the state school, used with special effectiveness at football games.

He has been director of the I. U. Band since 1925, was first trumpet player of the university symphony orchestra for three years, and is director and trumpet player of the "Bandoliers." Hindesley is well acquainted with band work at the state school. He was a member of the I. U. band for four years as an undergraduate and served as concert master and assistant director during his senior year.

SCHOOL DAYS

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

HEAT AND PRESSURE

WHEN subjected to intense heat and great pressure, pure carbon is converted into a beautiful diamond, the gem prized by all the world for its mystic charm and brilliancy.

This would seem to show that in man, as in carbon, heat and pressure are necessary to bring out his finer qualities, frequently concealed by a rough exterior.

It is a common answer to say that many of our greatest painters, writers, musicians, merchants and statesmen have risen to illustrious distinction through heat of strife and pressure of endeavor.

The heat and pressure were needed to develop their worth.

As to their internal ability, their penetrating judgment and their innate will-power, they, themselves, possibly were in doubt, until pressure of responsibility and the heat of friction started the flame.

In the stern turmoil they found themselves. Then came the awakening, and in a way of their own they marched bravely on to achievement before a gaping world.

Their own individuality, their own force, their strict adherence to dutiful obligations to one another, and the faith they had within, carried them through.

To make it plainer, they avoided chicanery, were frank with friend or enemy, shunned tricks and vanities and held steadfastly to their course.

You may have many talents hidden in a napkin, but if they be not brought out and used under heat and pressure, they will never be of any value.

Whatever makes for finished accomplishment, makes for energy, activity, fervor, sweat of the brow and peace of the spirit. No man or woman, however gifted, can attain distinction without the hard rub and strain of conflict.

In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," is a divine decree, just as true at this hour as it was "in the cool of the day," when it was pronounced by Jehovah in the garden of Eden.

Do your work in gladness. Put into it all your heat and pressure, and you will find that you are happier and better for the exertion, at peace with yourself and with your neighbors.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

By JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—George Harvey was a Reporter.

WHEN I reached my eighteenth birthday my native state of Vermont was not big enough. I needed more room. I wanted to educate a whole lot of people at once, so I went to the Springfield Republican. I had collected enough money in some way to buy my ticket and financed my first enterprise by borrowing the entire legacy bequeathed by my grandmother to my sister, amounting to ten dollars. With that store of capital I ventured forth and in due course of time I reached the office of Samuel Bowles, the younger.

"The first question for consideration that arose related to compensation for services, presumably to be rendered. He asked me politely, but firmly, how much I expected. I had my dreams of opulence due to arrive at that time, but when I looked upon that impressive face and reflected that perhaps after all I was not absolutely essential to the successful continuance of the Republican my courage cooled out and from the $15 a week that I had fondly anticipated spending I got down to ten dollars. He said six was about right. To that I demurred and we discussed the subject thoroughly. Finally we compromised on $6.

"I passed my twenty-first birthday as a reporter, serving after the Springfield Republican, the Chicago News and the New York World in turn.—G. B. M. Harvey."

TODAY—George Harvey graduated from his newspaper work and after becoming a distinguished magazine editor and political writer, resigned, and for some time served as ambassador to Great Britain.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE HONEYMOON

WOULD you not be indignant if for the origin of the divine habit, the honeymoon, I could give you nothing more romantic than the theory that it dates back to the time when a glib-tongued husband captured his woman and dragged her by the hair to his cave, where, to prevent her from appealing to her relatives for release, he kept her for a time in seclusion?

Likewise, wouldn't you hate me, hopeful girls, and you, sanguine youths, scoff at me, were I to tell you that because love has been likened to the moon, which begins to wane when at its full, the married couple's period of mutual affection is called the "honeymoon"?

Both theories have been advanced for the origin of the custom and its name. The fact is, however, that the honeymoon is traced back directly to an ancient practice of the Teutons by which newly wedded couples drank mead or hydromel (honey wine) for thirty days after their marriage—the "honey month," or "honeymoon."

To the glory of the honeymoon be it said that it was to this custom that Attila, the cruel and invincible king of the Huns, succumbed. It is said that his death was caused by drinking too much on his wedding night.

Spring Will Have Its Violets

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

MAN has questions, earth has answers.

Man is always doubting things. Man the cross among the dancers—Would he had the faith of spring's! Man beholds the blossoms perish. Things we love and things we cherish—Mourning roses, he forgets. Spring will have its violets.

We who weep because of crosses. Would that we could understand! Has not Mother Earth her losses? When November smites the land? Not too long she gives to grieving; Mother Earth goes on believing. Though her heart the rose regrets, Spring will have its violets.

Mother Earth in chill October Hears the thunders in the sky, Sees the woods turn sour and sober, Sees the blossoms fade and die. But, when winter brings December, Though the roses she remembers, Forward now her face she sets—Spring will have its violets.

You who lose some lovely treasure, Think not then that all is lost: Life has more than a quiet pleasure, There are meadows yet uncrossed. Loving yet, yet keep on living; Losing, learn the joy of giving; Though the day so darkly sets, Spring will have its violets! (By McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Cover with water and simmer for an hour then add three tablespoonsful of barley and rice, adding more water as needed. Season if needed and serve hot.

Mutton Stew

Take a piece of mutton from the neck, cut into serving-sized pieces, put to cook with a sprig of parsley, a bay leaf, two cloves, two peppercorns and cover with water. Let simmer for two hours, then add a carrot or two; add six potatoes cut into thick slices, one cupful of potato and simmer until the meat and vegetables are tender. Remove the bay leaf and the parsley and serve. Remove the skin from the mutton and it will also remove the woolly flavor which is so objectionable.

Ham Balls

Take one cupful of finely minced cooked ham, one cupful of bread crumbs, two cupsful potatoes cooked, two tablespoonsful of butter, two eggs and a dash of cayenne. Melt the butter and beat all together very light. Shape into flat cakes, add into egg and crumbs and fry brown.

Sheep's Kidneys en Brochette

Take six sheep's kidneys, cut through the center, remove the fat and white veins. Wash well, cover with boiling water and let stand five minutes, then wipe dry. Cut fourth of a pound of bacon into slices half the size of the kidney, place on a skewer a piece of kidney, then of bacon, two pieces of kidney to each skewer. Place on a broiler, baste with fat and cook over a hot fire five minutes.

LACE TRIM NOW IS POPULAR; INLAIS USED FOR ORNAMENT

A "LACE SEASON" such as reigns throughout all fashionland bespeaks none other than the alluringly feminine, and this is exactly in accordance with the demand of the mode. The new colorist chiffon and georgette frocks with their delicate lace adornment are all that imagination may picture in the way of an exquisitely feminine styling. All grace, all charm, all loveliness are they. The model here illustrated is distinctly characteristic of the present moment fashion trend.

Artistic placement, as well as the lace itself, impart enchantment to this gown. Insets such as are here shown are much in favor for lace-styling. In the colorful dressy georgette frock, but especially are cream or lace yokes introduced into the simple black dress.

Hand bending and embroidery on lace are the "last word" in the lace program.

Because of their style importance, one is led to begin with pockets in telling the story of the season's sports coats. Decorative as well as useful pockets are an outstanding factor in modern coat styling.

Now that the pocket is depended upon to individualize the coat, designers are bending every effort to devise unique and interesting effects. One of the most successful is that of a this instance, cream lace is cunningly positioned to help form a bell sleeve, also to embellish the skirt hemline, and to add a unique touch to the girle. For this "sweetly feminine" frock choose almond green georgette with cream lace for the color scheme, although any of the new colors will be just as effective; such as pink beige, bois de rose, valencia blue, grecian rose, meadow pink, monkey skin or orchid.

"Flimsy lace dyed to match the chiffon as well as heavy cream lace, comes the style message from many leading ateliers of Paris.

A fascinating feature of the new lace program is that it abounds in such delightful revelations of ingenuity contrasting cloth inlay. It seems as if a patch of self-colored fabric or leather serves to make the novelty worsted of which the sports coat is made look all the more novel by way of contrast.

A trend and a homespun novelty mixture are shown in this picture, each accentuating pockets with inlays, the model to the left using velours, while the other employs bright-colored suede.

Belts, too, play an interesting part in the fashioning of coats. Sometimes they unite with the pocket in achieving chic. In the model to the right a tiny suede belt, matching the inlays on collar, cuffs and pocket, slips under a buttoned contrivance—such in you design. Refreshingly "different" is a cream lace blouse posed over an accordion-plated chiffon skirt, the latter styled with inset lace drapes. A below-the-elbow puff of the chiffon for the sleeve, with a bow of this material at the neck and for the tie girle, interrelates this gown.

Lace yokes and sleeves are an outstanding style element in spring dress fashioning. This applies not only to

REVIEW—STUDIES IN THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

GOLDEN TEXT—If ye love Me keep My commandments, then shall ye abide in Me, and My Father will love you, and we will come to you, and will abide with you. (John 14:15.)

PRIMARY TOPIC—What Jesus Did for Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Christian Way of Living.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be a Christian.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Marks of a True Christian.

The following methods of review are suggested:

I. A Descriptive Essay Method. Each member of the class should be assigned to the task a week ahead of the preparation of an essay on the topics involved in the quarterly lessons, as for example: What constitutes a true Christian? Following Christ. The prayer life of a Christian. The Christian and his Bible. The home life of a Christian. Christian stewardship. The Christian and the missionary obligation.

II. The Question Review Method. The teacher will prepare a list of questions dealing with the various phases of the quarterly lessons. These will be written on slips of paper and the members of the class will draw them. As examples of questions note the following: What does following Christ involve? What is the Christian's responsibility as to his Bible? What is the Christian's obligation as to stewardship? What are the duties of the members of the home? What is the Christian's obligation as to the evangelization of the world? What is the Christian's hope? Is Christ coming again? Will there be a resurrection of the body?

III. The Summary Method. This method can always be used to good advantage with the advanced classes. In applying the method, the outstanding fact or facts should be grasped and the principal teaching of the quarter's lessons stated. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for January 2.
Jesus first calls men to be His disciples. He then calls them to have fellowship in His service. Those who receive this two-fold call will walk as He walked.

Lesson for January 9.
The one who really follows Christ shall be hated and opposed. Having fellowship with Christ will show to his followers the true standard of living before the world. He will love his enemies, do good to those who hate him, bless them, that curse him, pray for those which spitefully use him.

Lesson for January 16.
The Bible furnishes the Christian with full knowledge of God and man's obligation to Him. The only way to be able to stand firm and true in the coming perilous times is to be thoroughly grounded in the knowledge of the Scriptures.

Lesson for January 23.
Jesus, though divine, resorted much to prayer. If he needed this fellowship, how much more do His followers need it.

Lesson for January 30.
Followers of Jesus may expect temptations, but divine help is available for every need.

Lesson for February 6.
To every believer has been given certain talents such as gifts for service, knowledge, time, money, to be used for the honor of His Lord. A time of reckoning is coming at which every will be given an account of his stewardship.

Lesson for February 13.
The home is the oldest and most important institution in the world. The most effective way of making strong and pure the church, society and the nation is to make the home Christian.

Lesson for February 20.
The subject of the kingdom is under solemn obligation to permeate society and let his light shine so that the heavenly father may be glorified.

Lesson for February 27.
Every believer has two natures—the flesh and the spirit. The only way to overcome the flesh is to be filled with the Spirit.

Lesson for March 6.
The Lord permitted persecution to fall upon the church to cause the disciples to be scattered in order for the widening of the testimony.

Lesson for March 13.
Christ has imposed upon every disciple the obligation of witnessing for Him to all the nations of the world.

Lesson for March 20.
The Christian's hope is the personal return of Jesus Christ to take him to His heavenly home. When Christ comes, the body of the believer who has fallen asleep will be resurrected and living believers will be caught up into glory with Christ.

Intercessory Prayer

Enlargement of soul, increase of sympathy, a deepening tenderness, a growing unselfishness, and a gradual conformity to the image of Him Whom we have thought to (and read) always for others who mark the life of the believer who makes prominent the work of intercessory prayer.—W. H. Griffith Thomas.

CAP AND BELLS

MERCY!

"My neighbor said I would get some kind of poison here that is used to kill insects on my rose bushes. Do you know what it is?" asked the prim old maid.

"O, heilobore," said the drug clerk. "Young man, I shall report you for swearing at me like that for asking a simple question," exclaimed the woman, as she hurried out of the place.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WHEN MOTHER FUMES

"Daughter—I smell smoke. Dad—Don't worry, it's your mother. In the next room—she's just fuming."

Hears "Here's" All Right

Just say to wife, "My darling, here's Ten bucks," and see how well she hears.

Helping Him Along

It was 11:45 o'clock at night and the conversation in the parlor was lagging. "A penny for your thoughts," she remarked. "Why, I was just thinking of going home," said he. "Give him a dollar, Mary," her father called from the top of the stairs. "It's a bargain."

The Chase

Jealous Wife—At your age you really ought to be ashamed of yourself. You are always running after pretty women. Husband (reassuringly)—My dear, that ought to put you quite at your ease—it proves that they are always trying to get away from me.

Oh, Joy!

"You look radiant, old man. Starting off on your vacation, I suppose." "No, just learned that the wife's relatives aren't coming here on theirs."

Too Quick

Percy—What makes you think it was quicksand? Peggy—I put some in an hour glass and it ran through in 15 minutes.—Cincinnati Star.

NOT RED ENOUGH?

"Hawthorne's 'Scarlet Letter' is full of color." "Yes; but do you think it's read enough?"

George and His Hatchet

George laid his hatchet to a tree. His father said, "That's pretty good; it surely would be far from me. To speak a boy for chopping wood!"

Thrift

"Do you agree with Ben Franklin that everybody should practice thrift?" "I do," answered Senator Sorghum. "A number of able politicians would be better off today if billionaires had saved their money instead of investing it in a campaign."—Washington Star.

Fast and Furious

She—We made 60 miles an hour going home in Jack's car last night. Her Friend—What was the quarrel about, dear?

Notches

Chester—I've bought the wedding ring, dear. Platinum with five diamonds. Gloria—Seven would have been more appropriate, love. This is the seventh time, you know.

Thrifty

Mrs. Crawford—How is it that you and your husband can't agree about a budget? Mrs. Crabshaw—He tried to put over too many thrift weeks on me.

RUNAWAY BOY FOUND

NEAR MENTONE, SUNDAY
On last Sunday a 15 year old boy came from South Bend, riding a bicycle, he was seen parking his wheel and crawling in a toddler shock at Lloyd Zents west of town. Mr. Zents asked him what he was doing, he said he had rode from South Bend, was tired and wanted to rest. After questioning him he told that he was running away from home, that his mother had whipped and beat him, that he was the oldest of five boys and his mother was so cross to him he didn't want to stay home. Mr. Zents took him and they gave him something to eat, and talked with him, found he had his bible with him and they found him a very bright boy but frail. Mr. Zents called his parents and they came after him in the evening, his parents are well too. The boy's father is an electrician at South Bend.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Busenburg and daughters had as their Sunday dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Severns, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Harts and son of South Bend, and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Severns, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Severns, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Nellans and daughters, L. G. Alber and Delbert Hunter were afternoon callers.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Mentone Gazette:
There seems to be some adverse criticism of our local peace authorities. Particularly since the trip made here by Constable Mayble. But why waste energy on that subject. What we need is something like we had here about forty years ago, a Horse Thief Detective Association. I recollect when after a court trial on a stealing case when we failed to get a conviction we notified those, and then, "There would be a hanging soon." They all left this community and we were not bothered for a number of years. With the advent of the automobile and new methods of communication, the operation of the thieves are so broadened that they are hard to catch. Our officials should look to that element and if they can't do anything they had better arm and get some rope and see that this law-abiding crowd can't stop some of the depredations of these chickens, hogs, sheep and automobile thieves and particularly the fence thieves. When they are known or suspected it seems to me they could be put on the carpet and made to explain, and verify where their property came from. There is plenty for our officials of worthwhile work to do.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

$700,000,000 Surplus for Fiscal Year in Sight, According to Mellon.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY Mellon has officially admitted that the largest reduction in the public debt on record may be accomplished in the present fiscal year ending June 30 next.

A surplus considerably in excess of $500,000,000, representing the difference between ordinary receipts and ordinary expenditures, may be expected, he believes, and he has already indicated that the half-billion mark would be reached. Mr. Mellon has been unwilling to boost his estimate beyond the $350,000,000 total announced by the budget bureau last December.

That the surplus will actually exceed $500,000,000, may go as high as $700,000,000, is now asserted by some of the experts whose estimates have recently been considerably above those of the treasury and whose predictions have been made good in previous years.

A surplus of $500,000,000 will mean an actual debt reduction for the fiscal year 1927 in excess of $1,000,000,000. Debt retirement through the statutory sinking fund will amount to nearly $240,000,000 and retirements from payments from foreign nations will represent more than $230,000,000. Debt retirements otherwise than by means of the sinking fund will amount to about $50,000,000. Adding a $500,000,000 surplus to this amount will mean a total reduction in the public debt of $1,770,000,000.

The debt reduction has exceeded $1,000,000,000 in only three of the last seven years, the highest total being in 1920, when the debt was cut down by $1,735,000,000. In 1922 the debt reduction amounted to $1,014,000,000, and in 1924 to $1,088,000,000. The debt was reduced in the fiscal year 1925 by $720,000,000 and in 1926 by $873,000,000. The total debt on December 31, 1926, was $18,975,349,705.

If the surplus runs as high as $915,000,000, and the debt reduction $500,000,000, as some believe it may, the record debt reduction of the year 1929 will be equaled. A surplus above this amount will mean the breaking of all records in annual debt retirement.

While the treasury still lacks accurate totals on income-tax receipts, it was indicated that the least $500,000,000 has been collected. This amount would represent an increase of $85,000,000 over March income tax payments in 1926. Complete reports from the internal revenue collectors may bring the total up above $900,000,000.

ON MARCH 16 Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate, was found guilty of contempt of the United States senate by a jury in the District of Columbia Supreme court. The case grew out of the senate investigation of the Teapot dome scandal three years ago, when Sinclair was one of the witnesses of the senate committee. Interrogations of the senate committee. Found guilty on all four counts of the indictments against him, Sinclair faces a jail sentence of from one month to a year in the District Jail and a fine of from $100 to $1,000. The sentence has not been imposed, pending the disposition of the appeal, which a new trial made by Sinclair's counsel, and its execution will be further delayed by the appeal which will be taken to the District Court of Appeals, and ultimately to the United States Supreme court, according to defense attorneys, if the new trial is denied.

Sinclair, whose contempt trial is the first of the criminal proceedings growing out of the oil investigation to be decided, was indicted under Section 102 of the Revised Statutes, the same section which will be invoked against Samuel Insull, the Chicago utility magnate; his attorney, Daniel Schuyler, who, along with other witnesses who of Chicago, and other witnesses who refused to testify before the Reed slash-fund committee, if they are ever brought to book.

Sinclair, refusing to answer the committee's questions on the advice of his counsel, denied the pertinency of the question, asserting that answering might jeopardize the outcome of litigation in which his company—the Mammoth Oil company—was engaged with the government and denied the authority of the committee to question him on matters which had become the subject of litigation.

Justice Hitz in his charge warned the jury that the pertinency of the questions had already been decided by the court as a matter of law and that neither the fact that Sinclair, in refusing to testify, acted on the advice of counsel or may have believed he had a legal right to refuse if he wished, could be considered as a defense for the oil man.

THE first meeting of the new federal radio commission was held at Burlington, N. H., on March 15. One of the first acts of the new commission was to announce dates, March 29 to April 1, for public hearings, the purpose of which will be to obtain methods of reducing radio interference. A tentative schedule of topics for discussion includes proposals for widening the broadcasting bands of wave lengths, a division of time broadcasting stations, a consolidation of broadcasting service and a limitation of the number of stations. The hearings will not be open for individual claims or complaints.

BECAUSE he published an article in the Christian Engineer declaring that the God of the Bible "preferred the savory smell of roast cutlets to the odors of boiled cabbage," Ernest V. Sterry at Toronto, Canada, was found guilty by a Canadian jury of blasphemy under an ancient British statute making it a crime to criticize the Christian God. Sterry's defense was that he was merely trying to liberalize public opinion and that he thought his article would clear the controversy over the personality of the Deity.

A UNITED STATES Supreme court decision of considerable importance to the southern states, especially those of the southern states, was handed down on March 14. The court held an unconstitutional the Louisiana state and New Orleans municipal segregation codes, under which negroes are barred from residence in predominantly white communities where a majority of the white residents have not given their consent in writing.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI has undertaken to organize a vast insurance organization to guarantee long-time credits extended by Italian manufacturers to foreign purchasers of Italian-made merchandise.

It is estimated that before the plans can be fully carried out the new credit insurance institute must have a fully paid up capital of $10,000,000,000 lire—nearly $450,000,000. The field of operation is so large it is thought this money will be easily found. Fascist circles insist that all the money invested in this organization should be Italian, thus freeing it from any foreign influence.

In conjunction with the credit insurance the government plans to station able business men abroad to keep in closest touch with market conditions throughout the world and to assist in placing large accounts for Italian firms. These "observation posts" will maintain constant touch with the homeland through the consular service and other agencies.

Italian industry is in a serious condition. Many factories are closed or running on short time or with limited crews. It is estimated that 250,000 people are out of work, or five times as many as could not find employment this condition and to insure an increase in Italian markets that the Mussolini government is making strenuous efforts to find foreign markets.

THE completion of the Moffat road tunnel through the Rocky mountains near Denver may bring about a new grouping of railroads and produce one of the most gigantic railroad combinations in this country. The tunnel is now nearly completed. When it is ready for use it will mean the shortening of the distance between Denver and Salt Lake City by approximately 300 miles, and will also eliminate much of the heavy grades. The tunnel, while built by the state of Colorado, is under lease by the Moffat line, a road that of itself is of no importance except that it controls this new way to the West. A fairly well-founded story current in Denver is to the effect that lines are being laid for the linking up by control of traffic arrangements of the Burlington, the Denver & Rio Grande Western and the Western Pacific with the Moffat road. If such a combination of interests should be effected, it would constitute a part of the Burlington, Great Northern and Northern Pacific combination. It is in addition to this federation of northern and central transcontinental routes, there is anything in the reports of Burlington inspiration behind the gradual linking up of short lines from the Ohio river to New Orleans and the Gulf, there would be in prospect a rail system of a magnitude never imagined before in America.

UNITED STATES SENATOR WILLIAM H. KING of Utah, on a visit to Porto Rico and other Caribbean islands, proposed to visit the republic of Haiti, but the Haitian government refused him permission to land. The Haitian government held it was necessary to bar Mr. King, as he was making the visit as a private citizen, not as a senator. Senator King has been entrusted with his criticism of the present regime in Haiti headed by President Louis Borno. The Haitian administration is under the guidance of the American government, represented by a force of marines. The State department made an effort, through Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, American high commissioner in Haiti, to exert its influence in an effort to have the order changed, but without success. The president of the republic claiming that the presence of Senator King would be a menace to the peace and prosperity of the people because of the feeling of the public in relation to his efforts to recall the American troops from Haiti. Senator King visited Santo Domingo, but did not make any effort to land at Puerto Prince. The senator said he abandoned his plans to visit Haiti as he feared his visit there might cause a clash between the American military forces and the people.

THE libel suit of Aaron Sapro against Henry Ford for $1,000,000 because of the charges it is claimed were made in the Dearborn Independent, owned by Mr. Ford, that Sapro was the head of a Jewish combination organized for the purpose of defrauding the American farmers, opened at Detroit on March 14, and it is expected to continue for approximately 60 days. Attorneys for Sapro stated in their opening arguments that testimony covering 141 points would be introduced.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has indicated that the United States government will not consider the establishment of a protectorate over the government of Nicaragua as requested by President Diaz. The President is desirous of encouraging peaceful conditions in Central America, but feels that to take on a permanent obligation to maintain order in Nicaragua would be too much.

The proposed alliance is described as somewhat similar to that entered into between the United States and Haiti in 1915. It would allow this government to intervene in case of revolution to maintain order, and give the United States limited responsibility over Nicaraguan conditions. Another condition of the Diaz proposal is that a big loan should be made to Nicaragua.

THE Mexican government is trying to induce the American government to avoid the decision of the Mexican Supreme court on the question of the constitutionality of the Mexican land laws before lifting the arms embargo. American oil men have asked for indemnity against the enforcement of the law that would deprive them of the petroleum interests, and a decision in this case is expected within a short time. It is indicated that President Calles may find this decision an easy way out of the difficulty, as the courts may decide that the laws creating the difficulties are unconstitutional.

The Fateful Cup of Albino

A BSENT-MINDEDNESS and a capacity for passionate love combined to start Albino, a German prince, on a career of conquest that resulted in founding the state of Lombardy in Italy and the blending of Teutonic blood with Latin blood in the Sixth century A. D.

This Albino, son of King Andoin, king of the Lombards (Longobards), killed Thurismond, son of the king of the Gepidae, but in the heat of battle forgot to seize his arms as a trophy of victory. Albino was disarmed by his father for this neglect and determined to repair it by demanding Thurismond's arms of his father. The king of the Gepidae, a punctilious warrior, granted the request. While at the court of the Gepidae Albino saw Rosamond, granddaughter of the king, and fell in love. His request for her hand was refused, so Albino made an attack on her honor.

War followed and the Gepidae were defeated. Rosamond was won. The victory spread the fame of Albino, now king of the Lombards, and when he announced a plan for the conquest of a fief in Italy, volunteers flocked to his standard, including Saxons, Germans, Bulgarians and Scythians. The invasion succeeded and the fief was set up in northern Italy in 568 A. D.

But the strange career of Albino of the Longobards was doomed to a tragic end in a contest which brought out a wine cup made from the skull of Rosamond's slain father, and, after drinking from it, he commanded that she be executed. During the banquet with the king, Rosamond obeyed, but promised herself revenge. If she had ever loved her ruler, she would have been content to be his mistress, but she was a woman of noble birth, and she was a woman of noble birth, and she was a woman of noble birth.

Helmeich, armor-bearer of the king, was enlisted by the queen in a revenge plot. Helmeich bribed Peredeus, a strong swordsman, to assist in the murder. For the queen was a valiant opponent. Rosamond secured the king's sword before the attack and he was slain in the contest. Helmeich and Queen Rosamond's ending was no less tragic. She married Helmeich, and they sought sanctuary at the court of Ravenna, where the governor, Longinus, became enamored of her beauty. Rosamond sought to rid herself of Helmeich by poisoning him, but she was discovered, and Helmeich, discerning the poison in his wine, compelled her to drink the glass, and both died.

A Victory Without Profit

THE battle of New Orleans was fought after a treaty of peace had been signed by the United States and England and therefore served no good purpose except to prepare a great political career for the victor, Gen. Andrew Jackson, known to his frontier admirers as "Old Hickory."

A high temper, reckless courage and punctilious ideas of personal honor made him a man of unquestioned consequence in an age when dueling was still fashionable, and a fine intellect fitted him for the place he was to occupy in national politics.

During the War of 1812 Jackson, as commander of the militia, was carried on a successful campaign against the hostile Creek Indians, overcoming many obstacles common to militia warfare. By that period the army of Henry Harrison resigned as a major of the regular army, Andrew Jackson was elevated to that rank, and sent against the Indians in the West.

News that the British planned an attack on New Orleans drew Jackson and his scanty force to that city in January, 1815. Sir Edward Pakenham, brother-in-law of the duke of Wellington, landed a force below New Orleans in January, 1815. Jackson added volunteers to his little army and constructed fortifications of bales of cotton on a position between the city and the attacking force. Pakenham recklessly assaulted the entrenched forces and was badly beaten, being himself killed in action. The battle occurred on January 8, 1815, fifteen days after the treaty of Ghent had been signed, but before the news of the peace could reach this country. Notwithstanding the military futility of the victory, Americans were filled with joy over it, for they had forgotten the hurry of Washington by the British six months before.

Jackson became a popular hero and in 1825 received a plurality—but not a majority—in the race for President. The house of representatives elected John Quincy Adams and Jackson became a martyr. Four years later he was elected and in 1832 was re-elected.

W. H. Stearn Gains 15 lbs. Appetite Keen As Razor

Respected Indianapolis carpenter suffered agony for six years. Could not eat or sleep. Weak, worn out and discouraged. Now, at 67, enjoys good health, excites good cheer, enthusiasm and energy. Gives full credit to Tanlac

Mr. W. H. Stearn lives at 1211 No. Oakland Avenue, Indianapolis. At 67 years he works steadily as a journeyman carpenter, meeting the competition of men half his age, and holding his own with the best. But for six years he had a different story to tell. Here it is, in his own words: "I was so run down from indigestion that my system was completely shattered. When my big contract obliged me to speed up and work overtime, my day's work almost killed me. Sometimes I was actually too weak to raise my hammer or pull my saw. My head and back ached terribly, and when I tried to bend over my head whirled and I was too weak to stand on my feet. Constipation and sluggish liver bothered me and my hand trembled from nervousness. At night I could not get to bed. Though my work demands plenty of food, my appetite was shot to pieces and I hardly ate enough to keep body and soul together. "Tanlac helped me so that I now eat and sleep normally again. I'm as energetic as a man of 35 or 40 and don't have to ask odds of younger men. My appetite is like the keen edge of a freshly honed razor and I digest my food like a boy back from the skating pond. The old dizziness, weak knees and pains never trouble me now. I give all credit to Tanlac for my present fine health, and recommend all other sufferers to try it. You can profit from Mr. Stearn's experience. If overwork or neglect has left its mark on you, get a trial bottle of Tanlac. It is nature's own tonic and body builder, made from herbs, roots and barks. Your druggist has it; start in on Tanlac today. Over 62 million bottles already sold."

Perils of Childhood

"I must be all of twenty years ago that mother first gave me Syrup Pepsin

For these Fevers, Colds and Bowel Troubles of Childhood How time flies. My good mother has gone to her rest, but I have faithfully relied upon her judgment and have given Syrup Pepsin to my two children since they were born. It is certainly a noble medicine and never fails of its purpose. I like to recommend it."

(Name and address will be sent upon request.)

And in the Evening of Life When age comes creeping on, with bowels relaxed, muscles weak, digestion poor and blood thinned, then is when constipation does its evil work in a night. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is so palatable, sets so well in the stomach, works so easily, so gently, so kindly with old folks as to accomplish its purpose without grip, pain or other distress. For biliousness, sour stomach, constipated tongue, headache, fevers, colds and constipation from indigestion, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is recommended every where and sold by all druggists.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Frank Beeson, from Albany, N. Y., reaches Benton, Wyoming, then—1888—western terminus of the Pacific Railroad. He had been ordered by physicians to seek a climate "high and dry." He is robbed of most of his money in his hotel and loses his last twenty dollars at monte in "The Big Ten," a dance hall and gambling resort in the "roaring" town of Benton.

Edna Montoya, companion of a gambler, is believed by Frank to have coaxed him purposely into the game. Broke, disconsolate over his discovery that "the lady of the blue eyes, as he calls her, is what she is, and finally humiliated over his glaring 'greenness,' Frank repulses Edna when she begs him to go away with her, sobbingly telling him that she had made a mistake in letting him lose his money. He goes to take a job with

George Jenks, a teamster in a wagon train about to leave for Salt Lake City.

Capt. Adams, a Mormon, is in charge of the wagon train. Rachel Adams, an attractive young woman, one of his wives is in the train, as is

David Adams, his loutish son. When Edna, who has shot, but not killed the gambler, Montoya, comes a fugitive in "switches" to join the train, Daniel tells his father that she is seeking Jenks and Beeson. Capt. Adams shouts, "No hussy in men's garments shall go with the train."

CHAPTER IX.

I DON'T WANT TO KILL HIM

One night after we had gone on some time, the sound of revolver shots burst forth from a mess beyond us, but the shots were accompanied by laughter.

"They're only tryin' to spile a can," Jenks reassured. "By golly, we'll go over and I'll learn 'em a lesson." He glanced at me. "Time you loosened up that weapon, you know, anyhow. Purty soon it'll stick fast."

I went with him, glad of diversion. The men were hanging, by turn, at a sardine can set up on the sand about twenty paces out. The heavy balls sent the loose soil flying but amidst the furrows the tin can sat untouched.

"What you thinkin' to do," Jenks smiled. "Hit that can or plant a lead mine?"

"Give him room! He's made his brag," they cried. "To hit him don't plug it; that pilgrim sure will."

Mr. Jenks drew and took his stand; banged with small preparation and missed by six inches—a fact that brought him up wide awake.

"Gimme another try boys," he growled, but the shot hit him aside.

"No, no—Pilgrim's turn!" Willy-nilly I had to demonstrate my greenness so I drew, and stood, and cocked, and aimed. The Colt's exploded with prodigious blast and wrench—forking in, fact, almost above my head, and when the bullet went I did not see, nor, I judged, did anybody else.

"He missed the arth!" they clamored.

"No! I reckon he hit Montoya 'bout the middle. That's what he scored center!"

"Hold down on it, hold down, lad," Jenks urged. "To hit him in the heart aim at his feet! Here! Like this—" and taking my revolver he threw it forward, fired. The can plinked and smothered, lashed into action.

"By Gorge," he proclaimed, "when I move like it had a gun in its fist, I can snap it! But when I think on it as a can, I lack guts!"

Now somebody else shot, and somebody else, and another, and the can grazed, spurting us to haste as it constantly changed the range. Presently it was merely a twist of ragged tin.

Then in the little silence, as we paused, a voice spoke irritably.

"I know ya fellows ain't no great shucks at throwin' lead."

Daniel stood by, with arms akimbo, and beside stood My Lady. He towered over her in a maddening atmosphere of proprietorship.

She smiled at me—at all of us; at me swiftly; at the rest, frankly. And I knew that she was afraid!

Daniel laughed boisterously, his mouth widely open.

"Set me up a can! That thar one wouldn't jump to a bullet."

A can was produced.

"How fur?"

"Fur as ya like."

It was tossed contemptuously and watching it I heard Daniel gruffly yell, "Out o' my way yu—!" I saw his hand dart down and up again, felt the jar of a shot, addressed the can jump like a live thing, and away it went with spasms after spasms, to explosion after explosion, tortured by him into fruitless capers until with the final ball peace came to it, and it lay, afar across the twilight sand.

Verily, by his cries and utter savagery and malevolence of his bombardment, one would have thought that he took actual lust in faneled cruelty.

"I know thar's not another man 'yar kin do that," he vaunted.

There was not, judging by the silence again ensuing. Only—

"A can's different from a man," Jenks coolly remarked. "A can don't shoot back."

"I don't 'low any man's goin' to neither," Daniel faced me in turning away. "That's somethin' for yu to 'larn young feller," he vouchsafed. His gaze shifted.

"Come along, Edna," he bade. "We'll be goin' back."

"A devil or was it he himself?" I whispered me, incited me, and in a moment, with a gush of assertion, there I was, saying to her, my hat doffed:

"I'll walk over with you."

"Do," she responded readily. "We're to have singin'."

The men stared. Daniel whirled. "I 'low you ain't been invited, Mister."

"If Mrs. Montoya consents, that's enough," I informed. "I'm not walking with you sir; I am walking with her. The only ground you control is just in front of your own wagon."

"Thar ain't no 'Mrs. Montoya,' he snarled. "And whilst yu're 'larnin' to shoot yu'd better be 'larnin' manners. Yu comin' with me, Edna?"

"As fast as I can, and with Mr. Beeson also, if he chooses," said she. "I have my manners in mind, too."

"By gosh, I don't walk with ye," he jawed. And he flounced about vengeance striding on as though punishing her for a misdemeanor.

She dropped the men a little curtsy.

"The entertainment is concluded, gentlemen. I wish you good night!"

Yet underneath her halloo there lay an appeal, the stronger because subtle and unvoiced. It seemed to me every man must appreciate that, as a woman, she invoked protection by him against an impending something of which she had given him a glimpse.

So we left them somewhat subdued, gazing after us, their rugged faces sobered reflectively.

"You're not afraid, after all, I see."

"I think I'm more afraid for you."

I confessed. "That clown is getting insufferable. He sets out to bully you."

"I'm afraid, too," she breathed. "I never have been afraid before. I didn't fear Montoya. I've always been able to take care of myself."

"No, I haven't. It's disappeared. Mormon women don't carry revolvers."

"But you're not a Mormon woman."

"Not yet." She caught quick breath. "Do you know," she queried with sudden glance, "that Daniel means to marry me?"

"But you're not free; you have a husband!"

"Oh!" she cried. "Why don't you learn to shoot? Won't you? Let me have your pistol, please."

"You must grasp the handle firmly; cover it with your whole palm, but don't squeeze it to death; just grip it evenly—tuck it away. And keep your elbow down; and crook your wrist; in a drop, until your trigger knuckle is pointing very low—at a man's feet if you're aiming for his heart!"

"At his feet, for his heart?" I stammered. The words had an ugly sound.

"Certainly. We are speaking of shooting now, and not at a tin can. You have to allow for the jump of the muzzle. Unless you over shoot, and it's the first shot that counts. Of course, there's a feel, a knack. But don't aim with your eyes. You won't have time. Men file off the front sight—it sometimes catches in the draw. And it's useless, anyway. They fire as they point with the finger, by the feel. You see, they know. Some men are born to shoot straight; some have to practice a long, long while. I wonder which you are?"

"If there is pressing need in my case," said I, "I shall have to rely upon my friends."

"Those gentlemen of yours are Gentiles with goods for Salt Lake Mormons," she retorted. "Are they going to throw all business to the winds?"

"You yourself may appeal to his father, and to the women, for protection if that lout annoys you, I ventured."

"To then?" she scoffed. "To Hyrum Adams' outfit? Why, they're good Mormons, and why should I not be made over? I'm under their teachings; it's time Daniel had a wife—or two, for replenishing Utah."

She paused. Then resumed. "But now if I lend you a little something to keep you from being shot likt a dog, I'll feel as though I had wiped out your score against me. Take your gun."

"Where?" I asked. "Who?"

"There, before you! Oh, any—"

"There, before you! Oh, any—"

"There, before you! Oh, any—"

"There, before you! Oh, any—"

"There, before you! Oh, any—"

him."

"See that little rock? Hit it!" I fired. The man charged the rock. She clapped her hands, delighted.

"You would have killed him. No—he would have killed you. Quick! Give it to me!"

And snatching the revolver she cocked, levelled and fired instantly. The rock split into fragments.

"I would have killed him," she murmured, gazing tense, seeing I knew not what. Wrenching from the vision she handed back the revolver to me. "I think you are going to do Sir. Only, you must learn to draw. I mustn't stay longer. Shall we go to the fire now? I am cold."

We walked almost without speaking, to the Hyrum Adams fire. Daniel lifted his upper lip at me as we entered; his eyes never wandered from my face. I was distinctly unwelcome. Accordingly, I said a civil "Good-evening" to Hyrum and raising my hat to My Lady left for my own hallooing.

Friend Jenks joined me.

"We were keepin' cases on you, and so was he. He saw that practice—damn, how he did crane! She was givin' yu pointers, eh?"

"Yes; she wanted amusement."

Jenks rocked to and fro, as we sat by the fire. "Hi! Well, if you got to kill him you got to kill him and do it proper. For if you don't kill him he'll kill you; snuff out our life—well, you saw that can travel."

"I don't want to kill him," I pleaded.

"Why should I?" Jenks sat silent; and sitting silent I foresaw that kill Daniel I must. I was being sucked into it, irrevocably willed by him, by her, by them all. If I did not kill him in defense of myself, I should kill him in defense of her.

Could this really be I? Frank Beeson, not a fortnight ago still living at a jog-trot in dear Albany, New York State? It was puzzling how detached and how strong I felt.

"GOING TO GET DRUNK."
RAW WHEAT FOR VITAMIN B.
ANDY WAS WRONG.

This nation is drifting toward a costly, hate-breeding coal strike, set for April in the central coal fields. The Yankee farmer "going to town to get drunk, and Lord how I dread it" was no more foolish than a country that forces industrial civil war, surely coming, and does nothing to prevent it.

"The people own the coal fields—and everything else in the nation—under the right of eminent domain. They can do as they choose. They suffer the loss and inconvenience of all strikes, pay the bills in the end, and still they "go to town and get drunk."

The United States Post Office definitely forbids sending the "Decameron," by Boccaccio, through the mails. That is another wise decision which should not have been postponed so long. Mailing or selling that book should carry with it a sentence to prison.

Standard Oil in the last three months has paid dividends of more than $55,000,000. That's at the rate of more than five per cent on four billion dollars; so there's a fort billion dollar concern right there. If you wait a few years it will be a ten billion dollar concern. But, as you know, Mr. Rockefeller doesn't own all of it, or even half of it.

A great deal of Standard Oil property, by the way, has been achieved in a market of hard competition by intelligent newspaper advertising. It is to be hoped the able managers know that, and realize that it pays to talk directly to the people through newspaper advertising. The writer, by the way, hasn't one dollar's interest in any newspaper advertising, anywhere.

Paris, advised by Andre Lapin, eats raw wheat and feels better. Monsieur Lapin says a tablespoonful of germinating wheat, eaten before luncheon supplies vitamins lacking in other food, especially the vitamin B that stimulates nervous energy.

Roman soldiers, as they marched toward Paris under Caesar, ate raw wheat slung in a bag at the belt, not bothering to soften it by germinating in water. Their skulls dug up now, show marvellously strong teeth, ground down, but not one missing or decayed.

Good bread, if you chew it well, is better for you, however.

Governor Martin, of Florida, has forbidden race-track gambling in his State, and is to be congratulated. Less gambling money will go to Miami and other gambling points, but in the long run the State will be better off. It will attract fewer blacklegs, thieves and other undesirables.

Hubert T. Parson, president of the Woolworth Company, who deals through his stores, with millions of Americans, predicts that this Springs business generally will be the biggest in the history of the United States. That should comfort the pessimists.

This world will be better off, a safer place for human beings and the animals will be happier when all life except human life shall have vanished from the elephant in the jungle to the typhoid germs in drinking water.

If there were no crocodiles there would be no sleeping sickness. If there were no mosquitoes there would be no yellow fever, no malaria. If there were no cats or dogs many diseases would disappear. Children get them from the fur of "pets." If there were no rats or ground squirrels to feed fleas, no fleas to bite humans, there would be no bubonic plague, and if there were no vermin spread by lack of human

MARTIN R. KIZER FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Martin R. Kizer filed suit for divorce last Friday in the Kosciusko County Circuit Court against Mrs. Irene Kizer. The plaintiff charges cruel and inhuman treatment. He also charges that she sold part of their furniture and broke up their home.

They were married July 10, 1884 and separated January 20, 1924.

CHANGES IN FISH AND GAME LAWS FULLY EXPLAINED

"The Legislature of 1927 made several changes in the law concerning hunting and fishing licenses and soldiers' permits. In order that you may be prepared properly to issue licenses and permits when the law takes effect upon the proclamation of the governor, your attention is called to its main provisions.

"The resident license will be a resident hunting, fishing and trapping license, fee $1.00 as heretofore. The provision allowing a person to fish in his own or adjoining county has been narrowed down to his own county. The privilege of the wife of a license to fish without a license has been discontinued. The owners of farm lands who are without a license have been discontinued. The owners of farm lands who are residents of Indiana, and their children living with them, and bona fide tenants of farm lands, residing there, may hunt, fish or trap without license on such lands only. Resident soldiers, sailors and marines who are exempt, and have permits are hereinafter stated may hunt, fish or trap without license. All persons under 18 years of age may fish only without license. All others must have license.

"The non-resident hunting, fishing and trapping license will be issued for the same fee as heretofore, $15.50. The non-resident fishing license fee has been raised to $2.25. Net required for persons under 18 years of age.

"All the foregoing licenses expire on December 31 next following date of issue. All licenses issued prior to the taking effect of the new law will remain in force for a year from date of issue. However, this will carry with it the privilege of the wife of a licensee under the old law to fish without a license.

SODALES CLUB ACTIVE IN MAKING L. U. CONCERT SUCCESS

The Sodales Club has left nothing undone in the way of publicity of the Famous Indiana University Band. They have motored to all towns within a radius of twenty miles of Mentone and distributed handbills and posters. Nearly 300 tickets have been sold in Mentone and neighboring towns. They expect to double this amount by Friday night.

Much credit is due the club members for their active work to make a success of the concert. This is the first musical organization of the kind to appear in this locality and the people may consider themselves fortunate to have the opportunity to hear such a concert.

JESSE BRUNNER UNDERGOES MINOR OPERATION

Prof. Jesse Bruner of the local High School underwent an operation for removal of tonsils at Fort Wayne last Friday evening. He improved rapidly and is back at his duties.

ALFALFA WILL CUT COUNTY FEED BILL

The $251,424 spent annually by Kosciusko county farmers, as part of Indiana's $19,665,687 yearly feed bill, can be reduced to a mere fraction of that amount if the farmers in this county will plant alfalfa this spring, according to a survey made recently.

The average farm in this section has less than an acre in alfalfa and more than eight acres in less profitable forage crops. Alfalfa is yielding 2.1 tons to the acre, the others only 1.1 tons. Data compiled by the Institute chemists shows that one acre of alfalfa produces as much protein as three acres of clover or nine acres of timothy.

The scarcity of farm produced protein is costing Indiana farmers millions of dollars a year. Even after piling on every cost item such as labor, fertilizer, seed, taxes and interest on the land, it has been found that by growing alfalfa protein can be "produced at home" for one-third its cost in certain purchased feeds. It was the striking increase in profits on average farms growing alfalfa which led the Institute to undertake the establishment of 10,000 Acre Alfalfa Clubs throughout the Mississippi Valley, in co-operation with leading farmers, bankers and business men. The Institute's experts estimate that one of these clubs increases the returns from the farms in the community where it is established by $300,000.

Mrs. Charlotte Holloway and children of Ft. Wayne came Saturday for a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. Marion Jefferies and other friends.

PROGRAM FOR I. U. CONCERT

The complete program which the Indiana University Concert band will give in Mentone Friday night, April 1st, will include ten numbers, according to Capt. G. C. Cleaver of the military department.

The program includes "Pilgrim's Chorus from Tannhauser," by Wagner; Overture, "Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna," by Suppe; "Hungarian Dances," numbers five and six by Brahms; "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride," by O'Hara, sung by William Romey, '27; "Stadium Echoes," Triplets of the Past," by Hinneberg, played by the trumpet trio composed of Robert Williams, '29, Nelson Davis '27, and Mark Hindesley, PG; Overture, "Poet and Peasant," by Suppe; "Largo from Xerxes," by Handel; "The Glow Worm," by Lincke, and "A Hunt in the Black Forest," by Voelkel.

Stadium Echoes as Special The number entitled "Stadium Echoes" is a special arrangement of university tunes by Hindesley, director of the concert band, who will be in charge during the trip. Hindesley's "Bandoliers" will give a series of popular numbers during the intermission of the program. The "Bandoliers" orchestra is composed of nine members of the band.

Four Cities To Be Visited The cities to be visited are Flora, Peru, Kokomo, and Mentone in the order named. The band will use two buses in making the trip and following the first appearance will return to Bloomington. Capt. Cleaver estimated the cost of the trip at $800. Expenses will be paid by each city visited.

Romey will accompany the band and his solo and the trumpet trio will be the only specialty numbers. The band will not parade in the cities visited, as announced before, but will give only its concert in municipal auditoriums. About 55 men will make the trip, Capt. Cleaver said.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CHURCH

The Y. P. C. will meet on Tuesday evening, April 5 at the Baptist church at 7:30.

The Devotional topic will be "Religion and Life," there will be a group discussion of the physical, social and mental, and spiritual phases of life. Rev. Squibb will conduct the bible study.

Educational picture will be shown.

SODALES CLUB

The Sodales Club was delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. Cora VanGilder on Thursday afternoon, March twenty-fourth.

Mrs. Ella Stanford was assisting hostess.

Nineteen members responded to roll call with current events after the business session, the afternoon was spent playing in progressive rook. Mrs. Edna Burns winning first prize. Mrs. Goldie Mollenhour won the consolation prize.

During the social hour delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses. Club will meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Eric Manwar.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

9:30 Bible School.
10:45 Morning Worship.
7:30 Evening Service.

Notice the change in the time of the evening service from the usual 7:00 o'clock hour to 7:30. The same change has been made in the mid-week service on Thursday evening. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the morning service next Lord's Day. The morning message will be in keeping with the occasion. In the evening the service will be evangelistic.

We are looking forward to our pre Easter services now, and as the time draws near let us be intensely interested to accompany Home Thursday evening; lend yourself to prayer during the week as we hope to have special times and places for united appeal to God for his blessing and guidance. Announcement of place and time of cottage prayer meetings will be made on Sunday.

The Young People's Church will be held on Tuesday evening. There will be some special Easter features. Come!

The Chase

Jealous Wife—At your age you really ought to be ashamed of yourself. You are always running after pretty women.
Husband (reassuringly)—My dear, that ought to put you quite at your ease—it proves that they are always trying to get away from me.

Oh, Joy!

"You look radiant, old man. Starting off on your vacation, I suppose."
"No, just learned that the wife's relatives aren't coming here on theirs."

Too Quick

Poor—What makes you think it was quicksand?
Foggy—I put some in an hour glass and it ran through in 15 minutes.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

NOT RED ENOUGH?

"Yes; but do you think it's read enough?"

George and His Hatchet
George laid his hatchet to a tree.
His father said, "That's pretty good; it surely would be far from me.
To spank a boy for chopping wood!"

Thrift

"Do you agree with Ben Franklin that everybody should practice thrift?"
"I do," answered Senator Sargium.
"A number of able politicians would be better off today if billionaires had saved their money instead of investing it in a campaign."—Washington Star.

Fast and Furious

W. H. Stearn Gains 15 lbs. Appetite Keen As Razor

Respected Indianapolis carpenter suffered agony for six years. Could not eat or sleep. Weak, worn out and discouraged. Now, at 67, enjoys good health, exudes good cheer, enthusiasm and energy. Gives full credit to Tanlac

Mr. W. H. Stearn lives at 1211 N. Oakland Avenue, Indianapolis. At 67 years he works steadily as a journeyman carpenter, meeting the competition of men half his age, and holding his own with the best. But for six years he had a different story to tell. Here it is, in his own words:
"I was so run down from indigestion that my system was completely shattered. When a big contract obliged me to speed up and work overtime, my day's work almost killed me. Sometimes I was actually too weak to raise my hammer or pull my saw. My head and back ached terribly, and when I tried to bend over my head whirled and I was too weak to stand on my feet. Constipation and sluggish liver bothered me and my hand trembled from nervousness. At night I tossed and rolled in bed. Though my work demands plenty of food, my appetite was shot to pieces and I hardly ate enough to keep body and soul together.
"Tanlac helped me so that I now eat and sleep normally again. I'm as energetic as a man 35 or 40 and don't have to ask odds of younger men. My appetite is like the keen edge of a freshly honed razor and I digest my food like a boy back from the skating pond. The old dizziness, weakness, aches and pains never rack me now. I give all credit to Tanlac for my present fine health, and recommend all other sufferers to try it."
You can profit from Mr. Stearn's experience. If overwork or neglect has left its mark on you, get a trial bottle of Tanlac. It is nature's own tonic and body builder, made from herbs, roots and bark. Your druggist has it; start in on Tanlac today. Over 52 million bottles already sold.

Perils of Childhood

"It must be at least of twenty years ago that mother first gave me Syrup Pepsin."

For those Fevers, Colds and Bowel Troubles of Childhood

How time flies. My good mother has gone to her rest, but I have faithfully relied upon her judgment and have given Syrup Pepsin to my two children since they were born. It is certainly a noble medicine and never fails of its purpose. I like to recommend it. (Name and address will be sent upon request.)

And in the Evening of Life

When age comes creeping on, with bowels relaxed, muscles weak, digestion poor and blood thinned, then is when constipation does its evil work in a night. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is so palatable, sets so well in the stomach, works so easily, so gently, so kindly with old folks as to accomplish its purpose without grip, pain or other distress. For biliousness, sour stomach, constipation, headache, fever, colds and constipation from infancy to old age Syrup Pepsin is recommended everywhere and sold by all druggists.

For a free trial bottle send name and address to Pepsin Syrup Company, Monticello, Illinois.

Joseph Conrad's Baby
Joseph Conrad, the famous writer of sea tales, wrote a letter to a cousin January 21, 1938, three days after the birth of a son. The letter is included in a group of Conrad's letters published by World's Work. "The doctor says it is a magnificent boy," he wrote. "He has dark hair, huge eyes, and he resembles a monkey. What pains me is that my wife pretends that he also resembles me. Eufie! Do not draw too hasty conclusions from this astonishing concurrence of circumstances. My wife is certainly mistaken."

Not to the Manner Born
Brown was going South to visit his son and wife for several weeks and was being drilled by Mrs. Brown in preparation for the visit. Table manners was one subject in the curriculum and one on which both pupil and instructor worked hard. One day at dinner as Brown poured the contents of his coffee cup into a saucer, he remarked comfortably: "Well, I'll drink you out of the saucer now, but, with a dismal shake of the head, "when I get down South, I'll drink you out of the cup."—Indianapolis News.

English Sparrows
The first English sparrows were brought to America in 1830. They were imported by Nicholas Pike and the other directors of the Brooklyn Institute to protect the shade trees from damage by caterpillars. Eight pairs were released the next spring, but none of them survived. In 1833 another shipment was made. During the next twenty years fifteen shipments of English sparrows to the United States took place.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Horsehide—Double Tanned That Always Stays Soft

Here is a Wolverine shoe for year 'round wear. The tops are high enough to keep out the mud and dirt of the spring and fall, low enough for coolness in the summer and are ideal in the winter to wear under an overshoe. Because of its general utility this Wolverine is one of our largest sellers. Made of Cordovan horsehide, there is almost no wear-out to the upper; our experience has been this upper will wear out on an average two pairs of half soles. A light weight work shoe that is soft when you buy it, and stays that way.

Most Valuable Plant

There has lately been an inquiry into the question, What is the most useful plant in the world? and the prize has gone to the bamboo. It is said that the East, South Africa and the West Indies could not exist without it.

The bamboo is a hollow reed which grows a few feet high or a few feet. Sometimes its stem is round, sometimes square, and the square kind is very useful for ladders or scaffolding. All sorts of things, massive or delicate, are made from the stems. Boats are built of them, and they make water pipes and shingles; baskets and tables, prison cages for criminals, handles for agricultural implements, paddles, umbrellas and rods for bad boys. The young roots make good food, and so do the seeds, which may be cooked like rice or used for a beverage, while the leaves can be used for thatching or weaving into clothes and mats. Verily, few plants do so many things for man.

Miles of Thread Used in Clothing Humanity

Statistics show that every inch of cloth contains about 25 threads running downward and the same number running across it, so that a square yard is composed of 1,500 threads, each a yard in length.

The average suit or costume needs four square yards of cloth, so that every man or woman wears something like four miles of wool.

Allowing two sets of clothes a year, we find that each of us uses 400 miles of wool in fifty years.

When we come to linen or cotton goods, with 80 or 100 threads each way to the inch, the total length of threads becomes appalling. A single handkerchief may contain 2,400 strands, each 15 inches long, so that 1,000 yards of cotton thread are required to make it.

A shirt represents about three miles of thread.

Xerxes' Mighty Army

Xerxes, the Persian king, used an odd method to count his soldiers before the battle of Thermopylae in 480 B. C. He had the greatest army of invasion that ever had been seen upon the earth when he moved against the Greeks. He wanted to know how many fighting men there were, so he had 10,000 of them counted and they were divided into as many groups as possible and a wall was built around the space they occupied. Then the whole army entered the enclosure in detachments so that the number of times it was filled, multiplied by 10,000, was approximately the total of the invading forces. This figure, according to Herodotus, was 1,300,000 foot soldiers and 80,000 cavalry. With attendants and the sailors and soldiers of the fleet added, he brought the total up to 2,317,000.

Witty Salesman Ape

A Kansas City woman bought a compass for a Christmas gift for her husband. Next morning she took it back to the store, complaining that there was something the matter with it. "You see," she explained, "it points in the same direction all the time, no matter which way you turn it." "It ought to do that, madam," said the salesman, "it should point to the north all the time."

"But I don't want that kind of a compass. I want one that will point east when we are driving east and west when—" According to Cappe's Weekly, the salesman was reported late in the day to be "doing as well as could be expected."

Odd Things Done at Fires

Excitable persons who at a fire have thrown valuable mirrors out the window and carried explosives may find condolence in the action of an Australian who braved the danger of a blaze in a saloon to throw several dozens bottles of liquor out the window onto a paved highway. More recently a nearby blacksmith shop burned, and the same fire hero ran to the shop and emerged with a heavy object in his arms. "I had to save it," he said. "It was the poor man's living." Then he dropped an anvil on the ground.

Registering Emotion

Four-year-old Jimmie was fond of candy. One day, after he had eaten all he should have, his aunt put the sack out of his reach. Jimmie, not liking this, tried to think of some way by which he might receive one more piece.

"Uncle Billy, if I cried would auntie give me another piece of candy?" hopefully asked Jimmie.

When Uncle Billy replied that she might, Jimmie studied a minute, then had an idea.

"Snap me, Uncle Billy, so I can cry."

Mercury's Many Uses

Mercury is an element sometimes found native, but mostly derived from cinnabar. Normally, by far the greater part of the world's production of mercury is used in extracting gold and silver from their ores. In 1914 and 1916, owing to the European war, it was used mainly in the manufacture of fulminate for explosive caps. It is also used in the manufacture of drugs, of electric appliances and of scientific apparatus, thermometers, barometers and for making vermilion. Mercury is found in California and Colorado.

POULTRY

NEGLECT CAUSES MOST FAILURES

When farm poultry flocks are given the right attention, the grower meets with success in his efforts; but, lack of attention to the flock nearly always results in failure to produce profits.

Ninety per cent of the calls that we get for help with poultry are caused from lack of attention to simple details in handling the flock," says Allen H. H. Caldwell, poultry extension specialist at North Carolina State college. "Rarely do we get a call from those thousands of farmers who give their birds the right attention. If I were to sum up the most prevailing causes of failure, I would list the following ten:

- "The poultry house allowed to be dark, damp and drafty."
- "Drinking fountains or troughs allowed to be dirty and filthy or the birds drink from stagnant pools of water."
- "Lack of fresh air and sunshine, nature's disinfectants, in the house."
- "Failure to clean and disinfect the house at regular intervals."
- "Keeping the flock penned up in unsanitary houses and yards."
- "Allowing dead poultry to remain exposed."
- "Allowing sick poultry to run with the remainder of the flock."
- "Building the poultry house in a wind-swept place."
- "Failure to provide sufficient clean water and shade in summer."
- "Permitting lice, mites and other vermin to infest the house."

These ten things, states Mr. Oliver, cause most of the failures and each of them could be easily overcome. The poultry owner should make inspections which may be observed without great outlay of money and the most that is needed for their observance is some work and a proper regard for the dumb creatures.

Mr. Oliver makes the added precaution that birds should not be crowded together during the day nor on the roofs at night. Each hen needs about three square feet of floor space and from seven to ten inches of roosting space.

For the purpose of clean water and well-kept quarters always needed for success with poultry.

Correct Time to Start Young Turkeys in Spring

April and May are probably the best times to start the young turkeys, as the natural conditions are then very favorable to young birds.

You can place the eggs under an old hen of the American or Asiatic breeds but White Leghorns will not be satisfied with a Plymouth Rock or Brahma hen unless she is a good mother.

The first feed for poult is bread soaked in milk and squeezed dry, or better when they have a range well supplied with insects and green feed. Turkeys are neat eaters and insect eaters. They do not thrive on corn alone.

A Plymouth Rock hen will cover nine or ten turkey eggs. Be sure the hen is satisfied with her nest before giving her the turkey eggs. Then the management of the hen during the period of incubation is about the same as in hatching chickens except that it takes about 28 days.

Feeding Young Ducks Often Much Neglected

Ducks should start laying as soon as the spring weather arrives. If they do not start laying when expected, see to it that they get feed which supplies the protein and mineral needs. A good laying mash such as is used for laying hens, in connection with scratch grains, will be very satisfactory. Very often the ducks are not given the attention which the chickens receive as they rustle for most of their feed in the summer time and are expected to do this same way the remainder of the year without the hunting is good or not.

Money From Chickens

More profit can be made from a few chickens that are properly housed and fed than from a large number that are crowded into a house that is not suited for more than half that number. Overcrowding makes it practically impossible to properly ventilate a building or to keep the building in good sanitary condition. Either condition encourages colds, roup and other contagious diseases. Sanitation is the backbone of successful poultry raising.

Green Feed Necessary

Green feed or a satisfactory substitute is necessary for egg production, and for the health of the chickens. Sprouted oats, clover and alfalfa are the best. The time and bother has limited their use. Many are using weeds, carrots, cabbage or lettuce with economy and success. The use of leafy alfalfa or clover in racks or baskets is rapidly increasing. It is the best substitute commonly available. Alfalfa meal is also being used widely and is made of the best quality hay is satisfactory.

Lesson for March 27

REVIEW—STUDIES IN THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

GOLDEN TEXT—If ye love Me keep My commandments.—John 14:15.

PRIMER TOPIC—What Jesus Wants Us To Do.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Christian Way of Living.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Marks of a True Christian.

The following methods of review are suggested:

- I. A Descriptive Essay Method. Each member of the class should be assigned to the task a week ahead of the preparation of an essay on the topics involved in the quarterly lessons, as for example: What constitutes the Christian life? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow man? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow creature? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow citizen? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow creature? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow citizen? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow creature? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow citizen?
- II. The Question Review Method. The teacher will prepare a list of questions dealing with the various phases of the quarterly lessons. These will be written on slips of paper and the members of the class will draw them. As examples of questions note the following: What does following Christ involve? What is the Christian's responsibility as to his Bible? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow man? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow creature? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow citizen? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow creature? What is the Christian's obligation to his fellow citizen?
- III. The Summary Method. This method can always be used to good advantage with the advanced classes. In applying the method, the outstanding facts or facts should be grasped and the principal teaching of the quarter's lessons stated. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for January 9.

The one who really follows Christ shall be hated and opposed. Having fellowship with Christ will show to His followers the true standard of living below the world. He will love his enemies, will be kind to those who hate him, bless them that curse him, pray for those which despitefully use him.

Lesson for January 16.

The Bible furnishes the Christian with full knowledge of God and man's obligation to Him. The only way to be able to estimate the firm and true in coming perilous times is to be thoroughly grounded in the knowledge of the Scriptures.

Lesson for January 23.

Jesus, though divine, resorted much to prayer. If he needed this fellowship, how much more do His followers need it.

Lesson for January 30.

Followers of Jesus may expect temptations, but divine help is available for every man who desires it.

Lesson for February 6.

To every believer has been given certain talents such as gifts for service, knowledge, wisdom, etc., to be used for the honor of His Lord. The most effective way of making use of them is to be diligent in the use of them.

Lesson for February 13.

The home is the oldest and most important institution in the world. The most effective way of making use of them is to be diligent in the use of them.

Lesson for February 20.

The subject of the kingdom is under solemn obligation to permeate society and let his light shine so that the heavenly realm may be glorified.

Lesson for February 27.

Every believer has two natures—the flesh and the spirit. The only way to overcome the flesh is to be filled with the Spirit.

Lesson for March 6.

The Lord permitted persecution to fall upon the church to cause the disciples to be scattered in order for the widening of the testimony.

Lesson for March 13.

Christ has imposed upon every disciple the obligation of witnessing for Him to all the nations of the world.

Lesson for March 20.

The Christian's hope is the personal return of Jesus Christ to take him to His heavenly home. When Christ comes, the body of the believer who has fallen asleep will be resurrected and living believers will be caught up into glory with Christ.

Lesson for March 27.

The Lord permitted persecution to fall upon the church to cause the disciples to be scattered in order for the widening of the testimony.

Lesson for April 3.

Christ has imposed upon every disciple the obligation of witnessing for Him to all the nations of the world.

Lesson for April 10.

The Christian's hope is the personal return of Jesus Christ to take him to His heavenly home. When Christ comes, the body of the believer who has fallen asleep will be resurrected and living believers will be caught up into glory with Christ.

Lesson for April 17.

The Lord permitted persecution to fall upon the church to cause the disciples to be scattered in order for the widening of the testimony.

Lesson for April 24.

Christ has imposed upon every disciple the obligation of witnessing for Him to all the nations of the world.

Lesson for May 1.

The Christian's hope is the personal return of Jesus Christ to take him to His heavenly home. When Christ comes, the body of the believer who has fallen asleep will be resurrected and living believers will be caught up into glory with Christ.

Lesson for May 8.

The Lord permitted persecution to fall upon the church to cause the disciples to be scattered in order for the widening of the testimony.

Lesson for May 15.

Christ has imposed upon every disciple the obligation of witnessing for Him to all the nations of the world.

Lesson for May 22.

The Christian's hope is the personal return of Jesus Christ to take him to His heavenly home. When Christ comes, the body of the believer who has fallen asleep will be resurrected and living believers will be caught up into glory with Christ.

Help Kidneys By Drinking More Water

Takes Baths to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. With it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, about eight or ten glasses of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects, and is a pleasant, effective, lithia-water drink which may noticeably relieve your bladder irritation.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

$700,000,000 Surplus for Fiscal Year in Sight, According to Mellon.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY Mellon has officially admitted that the largest reduction in the public debt on record may be accomplished in the present fiscal year ending June 30 next.

A surplus considerably in excess of $600,000,000, representing the difference between ordinary receipts and ordinary expenditures, is assured. Hereafter, while members of congress and others have insisted that the half-billion mark would be reached, Mr. Mellon has been unwilling to boost his estimate beyond the $332,000,000 total announced by the budget bureau last December.

That the surplus will actually exceed $600,000,000, and may go as high as $700,000,000, is now asserted by some of the experts whose estimates have usually been considerably above those of the treasury and whose predictions have been made good in previous years.

A surplus of $500,000,000 will mean an actual debt reduction for the fiscal year 1927 in excess of $1,000,000,000. Debt retirement through the statutory sinking fund will amount to nearly $340,000,000 and retirements from payments from foreign nations will represent more than $200,000,000. Debt retirements otherwise than by means of the surplus will amount to about $570,000,000. Adding a $500,000,000 surplus to this amount will mean a total reduction in the public debt of $1,070,000,000.

The debt reduction has exceeded $1,000,000,000 in only three of the last seven years, the highest total being in 1920, when the debt was cut down by $1,185,000,000. In 1922 the debt reduction amounted to $1,010,000,000. In 1924 to $1,098,000,000. The debt was reduced in the fiscal year 1925 by $735,000,000 and in 1926 by $873,000,000. The total debt on December 31, 1926, was $18,575,349,703.

If the surplus runs as high as $615,000,000, and many financial experts believe it may, the total debt reduction of the year 1927 will be equalled. A surplus above this amount will mean the breaking of all records in annual debt retirement.

While the treasury still lacks accurate totals on income-tax receipts, it was indicated that at least $580,000,000 has been collected. This amount would represent an increase of $55,000,000 over March income tax payments in 1926. Complete reports from the internal revenue collection may bring the total up above $600,000,000.

ON MARCH 16 Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate, was found guilty of contempt of the United States senate by a jury in the District of Columbia Supreme court. The case grew out of the senate investigation of the Tea Pot dome scandal three years ago, when Sinclair refused to answer interrogations of the senate committee. Found guilty on all four counts of the indictments found on him, Sinclair faces a jail sentence of from one month to a year in the District Jail and a fine of from $100 to $1,000. The sentence has not been imposed, pending the disposition of the motion for a new trial made by Sinclair's counsel, and its execution will be further delayed by the appeal which will be taken to the District Court of Appeals, and ultimately to the United States Supreme court, according to defense attorneys, if the new trial is denied.

Sinclair, whose contempt trial is the first of the criminal proceedings growing out of the oil investigation to be decided, was indicted under Section 102 of the Revised Statutes, the same section which was invoked against Samuel Insull, the Chicago utility magnate; his attorney, Daniel Schuyler of Chicago, and other witnesses who refused to testify before the Reed slush-fund committee, if they are ever brought to book.

Sinclair, refusing to answer the committee's questions on the advice of his counsel, denied the pertinency of the queries, asserted that answer might jeopardize the outcome of litigation in which his company—the Mammoth Oil company—was engaged with the government and denied the authority of the committee to question him on matters which had become the subject of litigation.

Justice Hitz in his charge warned the jury that the pertinency of the questions had already been decided by the court as a matter of law and that neither the fact that Sinclair, in refusing to testify, acted on the advice of counsel nor may have believed he had a right to refuse if he wished, could be considered as a defense for the oil man.

THE first meeting of the new "Federal radio commission" was held at Washington on March 15. One of the first acts of the new commission was to announce dates, March 29 to April 1, for public hearings, the purpose of which will be to obtain methods of reducing radio interference. A tentative schedule of topics for discussion includes proposals for widening the broadcasting bands of wave lengths, a limitation of power, and reduction in frequency separation, simultaneous broadcasting with the same frequency, a division of time broadcasting stations, a consolidation of broadcasting service and a limitation of the number of stations. The hearings will not be open for individual claims or complaints.

BECAUSE he pushed an article in the Christian Enquirer declaring that the God of the Bible "preferred the savory smell of roast cutlets to the odor of boiled cabbage," Ernest V. Sierra at Toronto, Canada, was found guilty by a Canadian jury of blasphemous libel under an ancient British statute making it a crime to criticize the Christian God. Sierra's defense was that he was merely trying to liberalize public opinion and that the article would clear the controversy over the personality of the Deity.

A UNITED STATES Supreme court decision of considerable importance to many communities, especially in the southern states, was handed down on March 14. The court held as unconstitutional the Louisiana state and New Orleans municipal segregation codes under which negroes are barred from residence in predominantly white communities. A majority of the white residents have not given their consent in writing.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI has undertaken to organize a vast insurance organization to guarantee long-time credits extended by Italian manufacturers to foreign purchasers of Italian-made merchandise. It is estimated that before the plans can be fully carried out the new credit insurance institute must have a fully paid up capital of $100,000,000 lire—nearly $400,000,000.

THE field of operation is so large it is thought this money will be easily found. Fascist circles insist that all the money invested in this organization should be Italian, thus freeing it from any foreign influence whatever.

IN connection with the credit insurance business men abroad to keep in closest touch with market conditions throughout the world and to assist in placing large accounts for Italian firms. These "observation posts" would maintain constant touch with service and other agencies.

Italian industry is in a serious condition. Many factories are closed or running on short time or with limited crews. It is estimated that 250,000 people are out of work, or five times as many as could find employment a few months ago. It is to remedy this condition and to insure an increase in Italian markets that the Mussolini government is making strenuous efforts to find foreign markets.

THE completion of the Moffat road tunnel through the Rocky mountains near Denver may bring about a new grouping of railroads and produce one of the most gigantic road combinations in this country. The tunnel is now nearing completion. When it is ready for use it will mean the shortening of the distance between Denver and Salt Lake City by approximately 300 miles, and will also eliminate much of the heavy grades. The tunnel, built by the state of Colorado, is under lease to the Moffat road, a road that of itself is of no importance except that it controls this new way to the West. A fairly well-founded story current in Denver is to the effect that lines are being laid for the linking up by control of traffic arrangements of the Burlington, the Denver & Rio Grande Western and the Western Pacific with the Moffat road. If such combination of interests should be effected, it would constitute a part of the rail system of the West. In addition to this federation of northern and central transcontinental routes, there is a plan in the works of the Burlington inspiration behind a grand linking up of short lines from the Ohio river to New Orleans and the Gulf, there would be in prospect a rail system of a magnitude never imagined before in America.

UNITED STATES SENATOR William H. King of Utah, on a visit to Porto Rico and other Caribbean islands, proposed to visit the republic of Haiti, but the Haitian government refused him permission to enter. A Haitian government held it was free to Mr. King, as he was making the visit as a private citizen, not as a senator. Senator King has been outspoken in his criticism of the present regime in Haiti headed by President Luis Borno. The Haitian administration is regarded by the American government, represented by a force of marines. The State department made an effort, through Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, American military commissioner in Haiti, to exert its influence in an effort to have the order changed, but without success. The President's refusal to permit the presence of Senator King would be a menace to the peace and prosperity of the people because of the feeling of the public in relation to his efforts to recall the American troops from Haiti. Senator King visited Santo Domingo, but did not make any effort to land at Puerto Prince. The President said he abandoned his plans to visit Haiti as he feared his visit there might cause a clash between the American military forces and the people.

THE libel suit of Aaron Spiro against Henry Ford for $100,000 because of time magazines it is claimed were made in the Dearborn Independent, owned by Mr. Ford, that Spiro was the head of a Jewish conspiracy organized for the purpose of defrauding the American farmers, opened at Detroit on March 14, and it is expected to continue for approximately 60 days. The arguments for Spiro started in their opening arguments that testimony covering 141 points would be introduced.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has indicated that the United States government will not consider the establishment of a protectorate over the government of Nicaragua as requested by President Diaz. The President is desirous of encouraging peaceful conditions in Central America, but feels that to take on a permanent obligation to maintain order in Nicaragua would be too much.

The proposed alliance is described as somewhat similar to that entered into between the United States and Haiti in 1915. It would allow this government to intervene in case of revolution in this case is expected with the United States limited supervision over Nicaraguan conditions. Another condition of the Diaz proposal is that a big loan should be made to Nicaragua.

THE Mexican government is trying to induce the American government to await the decision of the Mexican Supreme court on the question of the constitutionality of the Mexican bargo. The American oil men have asked for injunctions against the enforcement of the law that would deprive them of the petroleum interests, and a decision in this case is expected within a short time. It is intimated that President Calles may find this decision an easy way out of the difficulty, as the court may decide that the laws creating the difficulties are unconstitutional.

A QUICKER WAY TO END COLDS!
To quickly break up a cough or cold, it is necessary to do two things: 1.—Get rid of the mucus. 2.—Heat irritation in lining of throat, chest and bronchial tubes. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral accomplishes this by its powerful double action. It sweeps away phlegm because its medication penetrates through and through the lining of throat, chest and bronchial tubes. You feel almost instant relief all the way down. Then it is absorbed into the irritated membranes, just as ink soaks into a blotter. As its soothing, healing properties are absorbed, the membranes themselves, it stops the cough, breaks up the cold and brings prompt, lasting relief.

SCHOOL DAYS

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

HEAT AND PRESSURE

WHEN subjected to intense heat and great pressure, pure carbon is converted into a beautiful diamond, the gem prized by all the world for its mystic charm and brilliant beauty.

This would seem to show that in man, as in carbon, heat and pressure are necessary to bring out his finer qualities, frequently concealed by a rough exterior.

It is a common answer to say that many of our greatest painters, writers, musicians, merchants and statesmen have risen to illustrious distinction through heat of strife and pressure of endeavor.

The heat and pressure were needed to develop their worth. As to their internal ability, their penetrating judgment and their innate will-power, they, themselves, possibly were in doubt, until pressure of responsibility and the heat of friction started the flame.

In the stern turmoil they found themselves. Then came the awakening, and in a way of their own they marched heavily to achievement before a gaping world.

Their own individuality, their own force, their strict adherence to duties, obligations to one another and the faith they had within, carried them through.

To make it plainer, they avoided clichés, were frank with friends or enemy, shunned tricks and vanities and held steadfastly to their course. You may have many talents hidden in a napkin, but if they be not brought out and used under heat and pressure, they will never be of any value.

Whatever makes for finished accomplishment, makes for energy, activity, fervor, sweat of the brow and peace of the spirit. No man or woman, however gifted, can attain distinction without the hard rub and strain of conflict.

"In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," is a divine decree, just as true at this hour as it was "in the cool of the day," when it was pronounced by Jehovah in the garden of Eden.

To your work in gladness. Put into it all your heat and pressure, and you will find that you are happier and better for the exertion, at peace with yourself and with your neighbors.

Spring Will Have Its Violets

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

MAN has questions, earth has answers. Man is always doubting things. Man the crone among the dancers—Would he had the faith of spring! Man beholds the blossoms perish. Things we love and things we cherish—Mourning rises, he forgets. Spring will have its violets.

We who weep because of crosses, Would that we could understand; Has not Mother Earth her losses? When November suaves the land? Not too long she gives to grieving; Mother Earth goes on believing; Though her heart the rose regrets, Spring will have its violets.

Mother Earth in chill October Hears the thunders in the sky, Sees the woods turn sour and sober, Sees the blossoms fade and die. But, when winter brings December, Though the roses she remembers, Forward now her face she sets—Spring will have its violets.

You who lose some lovely treasure, Think not then that all is lost; Life has many a quiet pleasure. There are meadows yet uncrossed. Loving yet, yet keep on living; Loving, learn the joy of giving; Though the day so darkly sets, Spring will have its violets! (By McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It is as much a duty we owe to the world to be ornamental as to be useful.

Give to your friends a cordial welcome, as well as a hearty and tasty; lacking the welcome the food is tasteless.

ECONOMICAL DISHES

MEAT may be made to go twice as far and the dish still be as valuable from a nutritive standpoint, if combined with cereals and vegetables.

Serbian Rice

Wipe with a damp cloth a small piece of the shoulder of lamb. Cut it into small pieces and brown in a little hot fat. Add one small onion and a carrot finely diced, season with salt and paprika and cayenne. Cover with water and simmer for an hour with lid on. Add three tablespoons each of barley and rice, adding more water as needed. Season if needed and serve hot.

Mutton Stew

Take a piece of mutton from the neck, cut into serving-sized pieces, put to soak with a sprig of parsley, a bay leaf, two cloves, two peppercorns and cover with water. Let simmer for two hours, then add a carrot or two; add six potatoes cut into thick slices, one cupful of potato and simmer until the meat and vegetables are tender. Remove the bay leaf and the parsley and serve. Remove the skin from the mutton and it will also remove the woolly flavor which is so objectionable.

Ham Balls

Take one cupful of finely minced cooked ham, one cupful of bread crumbs, two cupfuls potatoes cooked, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two eggs and a dash of cayenne. Melt the butter and beat all together very light. Shape into flat cakes, dip into egg and crumbs and fry brown.

Sheep's Kidneys en Brochette

Take six sheep's kidneys, cut through the center, remove the fat and white veins. Wash well, cover with boiling water and let stand five minutes, then wipe dry. Cut a fourth of a pound of bacon into slices half the size of the kidney, place on a skewer a piece of kidney, then of bacon, two pieces of kidney to each skewer. Place on a broiler, baste with fat and cook over a hot fire five minutes.

LACE TRIM NOW IS POPULAR; INLAYS USED FOR ORNAMENT

A "LACE SEASON" such as reigns throughout all fashionable dress, but especially in the simple black dress. Hand bending and embroidery on lace are the "last word" in the lace program. Because of their style importance, one is led to begin with pockets in telling the story of the season's sports coats. Decorative as well as useful pockets are an outstanding factor in modern styling.

Now that the pocket is depended upon to individualize the coat, designers are bending every effort to devise unique and interesting effects. One of the most successful is that of the this instance, cream lace is cunningly positioned to help form a belt sleeve, also to embellish the skirt hemline, and to add a unique touch to the garment. For this "sweetly feminine" frock choose almond green georgette with cream lace for the color scheme, although any of the new colors will be just as effective, such as pink, beige, bold de rose, valenchi blue, greenish rose, meadow pink, monkey-skin or navy.

Fluffy lace dyed to match the chiffon as well as heavy cream lace, comes the style message from many leading ateliers of Paris. A fascinating feature of the new lace program is that it abounds in such delightful revelations of ingenuity.

contrasting cloth inlay. It seems as if a patch of solid-colored fabric or leather serves to make the novelty worsted of which the sports coat is made look all the more novel by way of contrast.

A tweed and a homespun novelty mixture coat are shown in this picture, each accented with pockets with inlays, the model to the left using valenchi blue, while the other employs bright-colored suede.

Pelts, too, play an interesting part in the fashioning of coats. Sometimes they unite with the pocket in achieving chic. In the model to the right a tiny suede belt, matching the inlays on collar, cuffs and pocket, slips under a buttoned contrivance—such is ous design. Refreshingly "different" is a new lace blouse paired over an accordion-plaited chiffon skirt, the latter styled with inset lace drapes. A below-the-elbow puff of the chiffon for the sleeve, with a bow of this material at the neck and for the tie giraffe, interrelates this gown.

Lace yokes and sleeves are an outstanding style element in spring dress fashioning. This applies not only to

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Frank Beeson, from Albany, N. Y., reaches Benton, Wyoming, then—1888—western terminus of the Pacific Railroad. He had been ordered by physicians to seek a climate "high and dry." He is robbed of most of his money in his hotel and loses his last twenty dollars at monte in "The Big Tent," a dance hall and gambling resort in the "roaring" town of Benton.

Edna Montoya, companion of a gambler, is believed by Frank to have coaxed him purposely into the game. Broke, disconsolate over his discovery that "the lady of the blue eyes," as he calls her, is what she is, and finally humiliated over his glaring "greenness," Frank repulses Edna when she begs him to go away with her, sobbingly telling him that she had made a mistake in letting him lose his money. He goes to take a job with

George Jenks, a teamster in a wagon train about to leave for Salt Lake City.

Capt. Adams, a Mormon, is in charge of the wagon train. Rachael Adams, an attractive young woman, one of his wives is in the train, as is

David Adams, his loutish son. When Edna, who has shot, but not killed the gambler, Montoya, comes a fugitive in "hitchhikes" to join the train, Daniel tells his father that she is seeking Jenks and Beeson. Capt. Adams shouts, "No hussy in men's garments shall go with the train."

Daniel, by a spectacular gun play foils Montoya's attempt to take Edna back with him.

Under Jenks' and Edna's instruction Frank practices shooting—is told to "aim for his feet to hit his heart." This follows a clever exhibition of shooting by young Daniel, who is angered by Edna's interest in Beeson.

INTO THE NIGHT
CHAPTER X.

A meeting between My Lady and me brought on, not long after, the expected crisis. As we talked, suddenly I saw Daniel soaring, striding rapidly, straight for us, a figure portentous in the fading glow, bringing the storm with him.

She saw, too. Her eyes widened, startled, surveying not him, but me. "Please go. I'll keep him."

"It is too late now," I asserted, in a voice not mine. "I am here first and I'll go when I get ready." "You mean to face him? I knew it. You will play the man! Watch him close! He'll give you little grace this time. But remember this: I'll never, never marry him. Rather than be bound to him, I'll deal with him myself!"

"It won't be necessary, madam," said I—a catch in my throat; for while I was all jetness and clamminess, my hands cold and my tongue dry, I felt that I was going to kill him.

Daniel charged in for us. I did not touch revolver butt; he did not. He barked first at her. "Go what you belong, you Jerebell! Then I'll tend to this!" The rabid epithet levelled at me I shall not repeat.

"Be careful what you say, Daniel. No man on this earth can speak to me like that."

All his face flushed livid with a sneer, merged together yellow freckles and tanned skin. "Can't, can't he? I kin and I do. Now you got. I've stood yore fast-enough plenty. I mean business. Git! Whar yu'll be safe. I'll not hold off much longer."

"No more of that, you brute," I roared. "If you have anything to say, say it to me."

He whirled. "Yu! Why, yu leetle piece o' nothin'—yu shut up!" By sudden reach he gripped her arm; to her sharp, short scream he thrust her about.

"Git. I'm beset hyar," and at me. "What yu goin' to do?" She promised to me. Git herself, or I'll stomp on yu like a louse!"

I forgot instructions. I disregarded every movement preliminary to the onset! Bullets were to slow and easy! I did not see his revolver; I saw but the bulk of him and the intolerable sneer of him and that his flesh was ready to my fingers.

And quicker than his hand I was upon him, into him, clenching him, clinging to him, arms binding him, legs twining around him, each ounce of me greedy to crush him down and master him.

The shock drove him backward. We swayed and staggered, grappling bitter and bitter. I had his arms pinned to, bend him. He spat into my face; and shifting, set his teeth into my shoulder so that they clamped like the teeth of a horse, through shirt and hide to the flesh.

We toppled together, came to the ground with a thump. Here we churned, while he flung me and still I stuck.

The acrid dust of the alkali enveloped us. Again he spat, fetid—sprawled upon him, smothering his snarling, tossed and upheaved, dimly saw that as by a miracle we were surrounded by a ring of people, men and women, their countenances pale, alarmed, intent. Voices sounded in a dull roar.

Presently I had him crucified: his one outstretched arm under my knees his other arm cethered by my two hands, my body across his chest, while his legs threshed vainly.

I looked down into his bulging eyes.

"'Nuff. Cry 'Nuff!' I commanded. "'Nuff! Cry 'Nuff!' echoed the crowd.

He strained again, convulsive; and relaxed.

"'Nuff!" he panted through bared teeth. "Lemme up, Mister."

"That settles it!"

"I said 'Nuff,' he growled.

With a quick movement I sprang clear of him, to my feet. He lay for a moment, baleful, and slowly scrambled up.

On a sudden, as he faced me, his hand shot downward—I heard the surge and shout of men and women, to the stunning report of his revolver ducked aside, felt my left arm jerk and sting—felt my own sun explode in my hand, and how it came there I did not know—beheld him spin around and collapse; and astonished sight.

So there I stood, amidst silence, gaping foolishly, breathing hard, my revolver smoking in my fingers and my enemy in a shockingly prone posture at my feet, gradually reddening the whiteness of the torn soil.

He was upon his face, his revolver hand outflung. He was harmless. The moment had arrived and passed. I was standing here alive. I had killed him!

Figures rushed in between. Hands grasped me, impelled me away, through a haze; voices spoke in my ear while I feebly resisted a worm salty taste in my throat.

"I killed him," I didn't want to kill him. He made me do it. He shot first."

"Yes, yes," they said, soothing gruffly. "Shore he did; shore you didn't. It's all right. Come along, come along."

They would have carried me. "Pick Beeson up. He's bad hurt, himself. See that blood? No, 'taint his arm, is it? He's bleedin' internal. Whar's the hole? Wait—he's busted something."

They would have carried me. "No," I cried, while their bearded faces swam. "He said 'Nuff'—he shot me afterward. Not bad, is it? I can walk."

As they hustled me onward the world had grown curiously darkened. The odor of whiskey fumed into my nostrils. I obediently swallowed. Hands were rummaging at my left arm, a bandage being wound about.

"Did I kill him?" I besought. "Not that! I didn't aim—I don't know how I shot—but I had to. Didn't I?" "You did! He'll not bother you agin. She's yourn."

That hurt.

"But it wasn't about her! He bullied me—dared me. We were used to man, boys. He made me fight him."

"Yes, shore," they agreed—and they were not believing. They still linked me with a woman, whereas she had figured only as a transient occasion.

Then she herself, My Lady, appeared, running in breathless and appealing.

She knelt beside me, her hand grasped mine, she gazed wide-eyed and imploring.

"No, he's alright, ma'am."

"I'm all right, I assure you," I mumbled thickly, and helpless as a babe to the clinging of her cold fingers.

The group about me dissolved. Jenks seated himself close beside us.

"Your arm won't trouble you," he said. "Jest a flesh wound. You two can eat and rest bit, and if you set out 'fore moon-up you can easy get clear. We'll furnish mounts and grub and anything else you need."

"Mounts!" I blurted. "Set out, you say? You mean that I—we—should run away? I'll not leave the train and neither shall she, until the proper time. Or do I understand that you disown us?"

"Hold on," Jenks bade. "Tain't a question of disownin' you. But you've killed one o' the Mormons, the wagon boss's son; and when he comes in the mornin' demandin' of you for trial by his Mormons, what can we do? We'll take the chance on sneaking you both away, and facin' the old man."

"I think we'd best go," I agreed.

"It's the only way."

And it was. We were twain in men's to the outfit, and to each other, but inseparable. We were yoked.

The fact appalled. It gripped me coldly. I seemed to have bargained for her with fist and bullet, and won her; now I should appear to carry her off as my booty, a wife and a gambler's wife. Yet such must be! "Moon'll be a pin a couple o' hours," Jenks said. "I'd advise you to take an hour's start of it, so as to get away easier. If you travel straight southward you'll strike the stage road in the mornin'. When you reach a station you'll have ch'ice either way."

"I have money," she said; and sat erect.

For the first half mile we rode it without a word.

What her thoughts were I might have seen in Montone Sunday's.

not know, but they sat heavy upon her, closing her throat with the torture of vain, self-reproach. That much I sensed. But could not reassure her. My own thoughts were so grievous as to crush me with aching woe.

This, then, was I: somebody who had just killed a man, had broken from the open trail and was riding, he knew not where, through darkness worse than night, himself an outlaw with an outlawed woman—at the best a chance woman, an adventuring woman—now the spoil of killing!

Your Speedometer Talks --

And Tells You How to Apply the SINCLAIR LAW of LUBRICATION To Your Own Car

It's Commonsense! The more miles your car is driven, the more wear there is in the cylinders. That space between the piston and cylinder wall gradually wears larger as the piston travels up and down, mile after mile! Your motor oil should FILL AND SEAL THAT SPACE! And is stands to reason that as this space increases, the body of the oil must be increased, to seal the compression and prevent the power from blowing by.

The conclusion is obvious—and sound. When you buy motor oil, look first at your speedometer—LET IT INDICATE, BY THE MILEAGE THE DEGREE OF WEAR IN YOUR CYLINDERS—and how heavy must be the oil to fit that degree of wear and seal the pistons.

That is the way the Sinclair Law of Lubrication operates. That is the principle on which Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil is made, sold and applied. When you buy Opaline, you get not merely an oil of the finest quality—you get correct lubrication!

Two factors assure you absolutely correct lubrication from Opaline Motor Oil.

One is its unvarying high quality, uniformly sustained because Sinclair produces, transports, manufactures and distributes, from the crude oil in the well to products of quality in your car.

The other factor is the exacting care with which its different grades, from lightest to heaviest, are made, sold and applied—in this exclusive manner—TO FIT THE DEGREE OF WEAR IN YOUR ENGINE AS INDICATED BY YOUR MILEAGE!

Ask any Authorized Sinclair Dealer—he will be pleased to tell you how your car can be made to produce ALL the power and ALL the smoothness in its engine.
