

DON'T FORGET IN KILLING HIM HE HAD AMBITION TOO MUCH MUSCLE CHOOSE HIS WARS

"There is no life save in proteins." Wise chemists, gathered at Richmond, Virginia, say it and add, "environment and chemical agency are the dominant factors of life."

That may be true, and still you need not accept "the chemical concept of the origin and development of life."

If inhabitants of another world where machinery is unknown, should study an automobile supplied with gas and electricity and running, they would say, "No life in this machine without gas, iron, gas and electricity are all of that automobile."

They would overlook just one little thing, namely, the INTELLIGENCE that put the gas, electricity and steel together, mounted them on pneumatic tires and set them going. So it is with life. Explain it as you please, but don't forget the INTELLIGENCE back of it.

We are proud of our national prosperity and high wages. Bootleggers are even prouder of their prosperity and high wages. This is shown by Norman Klein, an investigator. One run-running syndicate could afford to invest $10,000,000 and to pay men on their run-running crews $50 a night for a good deal less than eight hours' work. One man tells how he used to get only $30 to $37 a week, "but I was ambitious," says he, "so they put me on a runner, and I got $50 a night."

He worked on the "converted sub chaser SC-217." Uncle Sam thus supplying the run-running boat at bargain prices. There is nothing like ambition.

Hay will be cheap this year on the farms, for crops will be heavy. After the farmer sells and the jobber gets the hay, prices will change. Late plowing will be delayed and heavy growers worry about a too heavy "top growth."

Wheat grown suddenly too tall falls before high winds or heavy rains, and athletic young gentlemen please notice: When the wheat stalk is over-developed, the head of the wheat containing the grain is feeble. Too much straw means too little wheat.

And too much muscle means too little brain.

Unless inhabitants are misinformed, the Western mind runs to peace philosophy. The Joplin News-Herald says, "As to street signs, read 'em and leap." And the Richmond Missourian quotes a philosophical lady as follows: "Kissing is about to be carried so far that every lady is likely to get so tired of it that it may go utterly out of fashion."

The St. Joseph (Mo.) News-Press says: "The girls have responded nobly to the appeal for the observance of paint-up week."

A negro applying for admission to a Government training camp is told by the War Department that rules make it impossible to admit him. Regulations say colored men must enlist in colored regiments. Camps for colored young men will be established, which may solve the problem.

However, if whites have the right to decide in what regiments and camps colored young men may enroll, it would seem only fair to let the colored young men decide in what particular wars they would be enrolled.

Jacob Wassermann, able Gorman novelist, author of "The World's Illusion," can "find no happiness in this country." He calls Chicago's industrial life "intensely depressing." Chicago industrial workers might call Mr. Wassermann's life intensely depressing. It is hard to judge. The prairie dog in his little village may be as happy as Napoleon looking up at the pyramids. The prairie dog doesn't have to go to St. Helena.

Napoleon crossed the Alps in Winter and told those that complimented him on the "great achievement": "Winter is the best time to cross; the snow does not slip. I deserve credit only for not believing fools who said it COULD NOT BE DONE."

A NEWSPAPER FOR THE PEOPLE OF MENTONE AND VICINITY

VOLUME 44.

AKRON, INDIANA, WEDNESDAY MAY 4, 1927.

NUMBER 25.

EARL DENNY MAY BE HELD FOR TWELVE YEARS

Earl Denney, arrested Friday afternoon following a murderous attack on George and Thomas Allen, rival truck dealers of Packerton, was returned to the state reformatory at Pendleton, Ind., on Sunday, his parole having been revoked. Denney was sentenced several years ago to serve a term of from 2 to 14 years for shooting Officer Earl Burwell during a raid on a liquor still. After serving two years he was released on parole.

When Denney was arrested Friday a new charge of assault and battery with intent to kill was filed against him. This charge, however, was not pushed. Authorities of the state reformatory were notified of Denney's new escapade and a field man from the institution came to Warsaw and Denney was taken back to the reformatory to continue serving his sentence. He now faces the possibility of imprisonment for twelve years. The trip to Pendleton was made by auto. Sheriff McNeill and Officer Earl Burwell accompanied the prisoner.

Mrs. Denney was brought before Judge L. W. Royce in circuit court on Saturday afternoon on a similar charge, pleaded guilty and her sentence of from 2 to 14 years was suspended.

Mr. Denney was arrested after firing about 15 shots at George and Thomas Allen, the final attack being made on the King's Highway just east of Winona Lake. Mrs. Denney accompanied her husband and threatened officers when they visited her home later to arrest Mr. Denney.

TWO BUCKET WOMEN

STAGE FREE-FOR-ALL
Sheriff Frank McKrill today went to Burkett armed with a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Minnie Fletcher, charged in an affidavit with assault and battery on Mrs. Isaac Asht, a neighbor. Bond was fixed at $500.

The arrest was the outgrowth of a fistic encounter between the two women several days ago. The conflict, which is described as "red hot" while it lasted, is said to have been entering the premises of Mrs. Asht, caused by Mrs. Fletcher's cow.

PLAY TO BE PRESENTED AT COMMUNITY HOUSE

Friday evening, May 6th, seventeen members of the "Christian Endeavor" of the Christian Church at Warsaw will give the play "The Betrothal of Mai Teung" (My Son) at the Mentone Community House.

The play is given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the M. E. Church. Music will be furnished by the troupe.

ACTS OF 1927 SOON TO BE DISTRIBUTED

Copies of the new 1927 laws are expected to be completed about May 10, it was learned yesterday following a meeting of the state printing board. The new acts will then be sent to each county of the state and following the recording of a receipt of each county, formal proclamation by Governor Ed. Jackson will be made, declaring the new laws in force.

C. OF C. TO MEET AT LIBRARY WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The Chamber of Commerce will meet at the Public Library, Wednesday night at 8:00 at which time it will be decided whether there shall be band concerts this summer, as in past years.

If it is decided that there shall be concerts it is necessary to find a way of financing the band and other problems to solve. All members are urged to be present.

MARSHALL COUNTY TEACHER

IS FINED FOR WHIPPING
R. C. Kirk, a young but old-fashioned schoolmaster who whipped more than twenty pupils, including girls, of the fifth grade in the Washington school at Plymouth with a garden hose for their failure to memorize "The Village Blacksmith," was fined $5 and costs by Justice Monroe Stiner Monday. He was charged with assault and battery. Individual cases filed against the 21-year old teacher by several parents have been venued to another court.

S. WHEATSTONE PASSES AWAY

Simon Wheatstone, prominent farmer and well known all over this county, passed away at his home, a mile east of here Tuesday evening, some time near nine o'clock.

Mr. Wheatstone had suffered from the ravages of cancer for some time. Surviving the deceased are the widow, two daughters, Mrs. Mary Butler of near here, and Mrs. Edith Rose of Mentone, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist Church, Thursday afternoon. Rev. Daniel Slaysbaugh, pastor of the Saints Church at Akron had charge of the services. Mr. Wheatstone was a member of the Saints Church. Internment was made in the Mentone cemetery.

SPENCER—OTT

The wedding of Mabel Ott, of Palestine, and Dale Spencer, of Pomeroy, O., took place Saturday afternoon at the Baptist parsonage in Warsaw. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William Fox. The newlyweds will reside at Winona Lake for sometime. Mr. Spencer is employed by the sewer construction company now engaged at Winona Lake.

EASTERN STAR LEADER IS DEAD AT COLUMBIA CITY

Mrs. Augusta V. Hunter, 78, pioneer resident of Columbia City and prominent in both state and national organizations of the Eastern Star, died at her home in Columbia City Sunday morning after an illness of several years. She served as grand worthy matron of the state organization of the Eastern Star during 1890 and 1897.

Miss Thais Grenulich left Sunday evening for Indianapolis to attend Teachers Training College. Miss Grenulich will graduate from this college June 10.

FIND SKELETON ON NEWTON FARM

While digging on the old Newton farm north of Burkett, Friday, Leslie Laird of this place, and one of Newton's sons unearthed part of a skeleton. The skeleton was not complete, the jaw and head, and a few bones of the body only being found.

The teeth in the back part of the jaw were somewhat worn, giving rise to the belief that the bones were of a person fairly well up in years, and probably a man. The jaw was also of such shape as to cause some reflection as to whether the skeleton could have been that of an Indian.

The land was once swampy, and one solution of the mysterious presence of the skeleton has it that the person might have met death while going through a part of the swamp which they thought safe, but which was miry, and that they might have drowned, as cries could not be heard from the depth of the swamp.

Another, and more popular story that has been going the rounds has it that many years ago an old man had his cabin on this ground. The fellow was having some kind of trouble with a certain Indian who lived near. One day the white man told neighbors that he was going out to "get" the red man, and after that the tale runs, the Indian was seen no more. The bones may be those of the Indian, buried in that spot by the white man who "got" him.

SURVEYOR REPORTS BOOZE FOUND IN HOLLOW TREE

Booze can easily be found in the rural districts of Kosciusko county, according to Don H. Lessig, county surveyor. This is especially true in Turkey Creek township in the vicinity of the new Warner road, he said. When Lessig and his men were surveying for this road he said they would find bottles of moonshine in the bushes, some of which were not empty.

In one instance he found a full quart hidden in a hollow tree when the tree was felled by the engineers. He said the owner came running down a hill and got the bottle.

The county surveyor said, however that he or his force had not as yet in their work stumbled onto a still.

DINNER PROGRAM AT ALUMNI BANQUET

Members of the Warsaw Conservatory orchestra, under the direction of Maude Snyder put on a dinner program, for the Alumni banquet at Claypool, Saturday evening, April 30.

MORE ARRESTS IN TUCKER CASE

Several arrests have been made in the past week by Kosciusko County officers which will probably be a great aid in the unraveling of the web of mystery surrounding the disappearance of Frank Tucker, clerk in a Warsaw cigar store. Tucker disappeared on the night of January 28.

On Friday, May 6, the Grand jury will meet to investigate the case, and it is thought very probable that the case will be cleared up, and the guilty parties sentenced.

Constable B. O. Mable, who has been working on the case, states that he has 24 witnesses ready to testify at the investigation Friday.

Four people who are thought to know something of the mystery have been arrested. Noble Peffly, 26, of Elkhart was arrested Saturday night and placed in the Kosciusko county jail. Sunday morning brought the arrest of Martin Ross, 24, of Howe, Ind., Ross was also jailed. Verne Martin, 24 of Elkhart, and Mrs. Bessie Grant were taken by officers Sunday evening, and were held in Elkhart until Constable Mable went there from Warsaw. Mrs. Grant said to be Martin's sweetheart, was taken to the jail at Warsaw, while Martin was lodged in the Elkhart jail. The arrests were made on charges issued by Justice Cain of Warsaw charging conspiracy to rob Tucker.

Similar to Original Charges
The charges, although similar to the ones in the original case, fixes a date nearer to the date of the disappearance. Martin pleaded guilty to the original charges, and was given suspended sentence. Sherman Jones, Willard Clark, and Robert Sharp were sentenced and are now serving time. Mable visited these men and obtained new statements which led to the four arrests.

Ross is alleged to have bought gas for the trip to Warsaw, although he is said to have established an alibi by asserting that after buying the gas for the trip, he was left behind and did not go to Warsaw on the night of January 28.

It is now rumored in Warsaw that statements in the hands of the investigators point out definitely who Tuckers slayers were.

HEMLINES TAKE ON IMPORTANCE; SUITABLE FOR BOUDOIR OR BEACH

SPRING that the charm of the "sweety feminine" is fashion's favorite theme, chiffons and kindred diaphanous fabrics have assumed a position of foremost importance for the making of afternoon and evening frocks. What a summer of airy fairy dresses these lovely sheer materials promise! In regard to the exquisite dainty gowns in prospect for the days to come here is a gentle hint—watch the hemlines! Indeed, hemlines are one of the surprising discoveries of this day and age in the garments of this nature are playing just such a dual role this season. Quite a charming effect, this gorgeously printed coat in the picture, worn with pajamas of black satin! For those whose taste runs to hand-blocked modernistic patternings rather than printed scenic views, the new collections contain many three-quarter length boudoir coats of this type, whose colors are most vivid. Better still, why not "do as others do" and hand-paint your own house robe? There is no danger of coloring hem of fashion. We are being educated to a point of appreciation in regard to hemlines—now in themselves they have the power to take away or give youth to the silhouette. So it is that the stylist is manipulating these delightful lightweight sheer fabrics with every artifice, that their fluttering swaying hemlines may achieve enchanting grace.

Mildly especially delights to dine and dance in filmy black touched with a fluttering shade of pink. From the studio of a leading member of the Fashion Art League of America comes the alluring evening dress of black chiffon here pictured. Its intriguing hemline is wide-eyed with lovely rose-pink chiffon, embellished with an exquisite hand-embroidered done in silver, crystal and rhinestone. See to it that the coat is styled after the model in this picture—that is, if you plan to let it also do duty for a beach robe, in which event it would be clever to order a parasol made out of the identical printed silk, for matching sets of parasol and three-quarter length costumes are very popular for the beach, if not in silk, then of cretonne.

In regard to negligees, some there are who prefer the fully feminine versions, and of these there are lovely styles being shown made of printed or dyed in perfect match to the fabric it trims.

A modern miracle—scene beauty of National park, Grand canyon and other points of interest brought into one's own boudoir. If sleepless on the subject, just order sent to your home the very latest in lounging robes and see what happens. To your very door, posthaste, a parcel will be delivered amongst whose inner tissue wrappings reposes a gorgeous robe printed in realistic mountains, skies, trees and rivulets. Just like the model in this picture. Yes, the coolie coat made of scenic printed silk crepe or satin is the "last word" for lounging robes and also for beach wear, for chiffon lined with chiffon in a solid tone.

A fascinating play on color is possible with tinted chiffon by placing one pastel color over another, suggesting a lovely rainbow effect. Quantities of filmy lace trims many of the chiffon negligees, with long wing-like sleeves, adding enchantment to their appearance. Contrasting these aesthetic-trailing tea-gown effects are the sprightly youthful models now so much in vogue, which usually have a deep wide hem of scenic printed silk or printed chiffon or flowered cotton. ## YOUNG WOMEN MAY KEEP WELL

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Here is Proof

St. Paul, Minn.—"Here is a little advice I would like to have you put in the papers," Mrs. Jack Lorberer of 704 Dellwood Place wrote to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company. "If young women want to keep their health and strength for the next thirty years of their lives, it is best to start in right now and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have tried the Compound myself and received fine results from its use. In describing her condition before taking the Compound, she writes, 'I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight I used to lock the doors and pull down the shades so that nobody could see me.' One day a booklet advertising the Vegetable Compound was left on her porch and she read it through. In so doing, she found a letter from a woman whose condition was similar to her own. 'I bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,' Mrs. Lorberer continued, 'and have had fine results. My condition made me a burden to my husband. Now I ask him, 'How is housekeeping?' and he says, 'It is just like being in Heaven.' Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health?'"

Worth-While Writing

Never an Easy Task

Writing is a long labor, in one mode or in another; some authors work physically, writing and rewriting, polishing and repolishing, casting and recasting; others sit down, doing nothing for months at a time save call themselves lazy devils, slack-backed good-for-nothings, self-indulgent blitherers and similar pretty names, until the stuff that has been fermenting below the surface all the time bursts forth and seems to write itself.

It doesn't matter which mode is used, they are equally hard; nothing is born without pain. And there is more pain in this business of writing than most the eye, especially the eye of the poor folk who think authorship is an affair of an adventure, pen, ink and a correspondence course. For, while a story may take a month, a year, ten years to write, and block all other activity while it is being written, the author's stomach demands his tribute at the usual times.

He must finance himself, for his stock in trade cannot be inventoried by a banker; obviously, while so doing, he must manufacture his product, for if he fails no one else can do it; and at least he must go forth and be his own salesman.—Adventure Magazine.

Veteran Opera Goers

Startled by Tamagno

Caruso, in his prime, possessed the most powerful voice most people ever heard, but there lived before him the great tenor Tamagno, whose voice possessed even greater volume. On his first appearance in Moscow he was announced to sing "Otello." When he appeared on the stage his tremendous height and breadth astonished the audience, but it did not prepare them for the thunder of his deep notes. Its strength so astonished them that it is said they started backward as though they were warring off an assault. The seventh note was more powerful still, and by the time he had sung his fourth note his voice had such colossal volume that the people lost their self-control. Leaping from their seats, they rushed about commenting to each other on the most extraordinary voice they had ever heard in their lives, while the orchestra stopped playing and the stage became a scene of confusion. A few moments later, the realization had come to them that not only had Tamagno a glorious voice, but that he knew how to use it as an artist, and then their applause shook the theater.—Montreal Family Herald.

Relics of Waterloo

Every year in June as the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo comes around, a Waterloo banquet is held at Apley house in London, the magnificent home of the Wellingtons, which was presented to the first duke by the nation in 1830. Many priceless relics, trophies presented to the great soldier-statesman, are always brought out for the Waterloo banquet. Perhaps the most interesting of these relics are some artificial flowers, now rather faded, which were among the decorations at the historic ball at Brussels the night before the battle.

Grocers Long Established

The early history of the wholesale grocery business is confined principally to England. The immediate forerunner of the grocer was the pepper-er or spicer, whose trade was well established in London by 1339. The earliest use of the word "grocer" occurs in 1310 in the city record register of London. During the Middle Ages all trades were formed into guilds, and therefore the Grocers' company of London was founded in 1335. From this time the growth of the trade was rapid.

Taking Temperature

A fever thermometer registers the highest temperature to which it has been exposed after its last setting. Hence if taken from the mouth of a patient whose actual blood temperature is 100 degrees F., and then exposed for some minutes to air at 103 degrees F. before reading, the record will falsely indicate 103 degrees and not 100 degrees as the temperature of the patient. Of course, the possibility of such an error is well known and guarded against by hospitals and competent physicians.

The Objector

At a recent conference, held on high Olympus, it was decided to organize a thrift campaign among the immortal gods. The vote was overwhelmingly in favor of the measure, only one deity standing out in opposition.

The solitary objector, known to Olympus as Jupiter Pluvius, was later interviewed by the reporters. "Personally," he explained, "I never could see the sense of putting anything aside for a rainy day."—Kansas City Times.

Geometrical Idea

The fourth dimension is a type of geometry, which conceives a hyper-space of "N" dimensions, in which space is conceived not of points, but of lines. Under such division, space has four dimensions, since four determinations are necessary to fix a line in space. Mathematicians agree as to the practical value of this idea, as it leads to important simplifications of the mathematical language and gives greater clearness to the concepts of real geometry.

TRAITS OF THE SCANDINAVIAN

Writer Sees Sweetness in Their Nature, But It Is Seldom Visible on the Surface.

There is sweetness in the Scandinavian nature, but you reach it deep down past flint. The late Governor Johnson of Minnesota drew people because he had imagination and tenderness—traits none too common among his people. They are undemonstrative in the family, and it is not surprising that their youth on the farms are restless from heart hunger. Besides, there is dearth of recreation. The Norwegian has his violin, but the Swedish folk dances we hear so much about were not brought in by the immigrants. They lack the German Maennerchor, Turnverein and Schuetzenfest. It is unusual to find them organizing athletic sports. Their social gatherings center in the church, which, of course, acts as a damper on the spirits of the young. They love fun, to be sure, but have not the knack of making it. Shut up within themselves, hard to reach, slow to kindly and dominated by an austere self-reliance, they have too often the prey of somber moods and victims of suicide and insanity.

An experienced social worker finds sadness in the beating air of the Scandinavians he deals with. If a settlement class gets a room or a camp it objects to any other using it. In any undertaking they have in common with other nationalities they try to get the best for themselves. They withhold aid from the distressed of another nationality, while the Irish will respond generously to the same appeal. A labor leader notices that the Scandinavian workmen are "hard given."

SEEMED A LITTLE SUSPICIOUS

Might Have Been Nothing in Remark Mother Made, But Mr. Nextdoor Understood It.

"It is a wise plan, when there is any necessity for keeping a thing secret, to say nothing bearing upon it before the children," said a gentleman who is not now on the best terms with his neighbor.

"I had a bed of very choice geraniums for which the cat from next door evinced a liking. It admired them, not from the path, but from various positions in much closer proximity, which was not exactly good for the geraniums."

"My advice to the owner of the animal to keep the cat at home was received in none too friendly a spirit, but I bore with the nuisance for some time, till my patience gave way, and one day the cat vanished."

"Next door did not charge me with any crime. He was far too astute a gentleman. Instead, he lured my youngest boy around to his garden with some cherries."

"Your father hasn't any chance been saying anything about cats, at home lately, has he, George?" he asked.

"George shook his head.

"Nor your mother, eh?"

"Not a word," replied George. "Only when father was cleaning his gun last night, she said she thought we could risk leaving the milk-guns on the steps this morning."

Wing Shun's Note.

A woman going away for the summer received the following note from her Chinese laundryman, to whom she had sent word that he need not call at her house for laundry work until her return in the autumn:

"Dear Lady: Wing Shun sends sorry regrets on you go away. Hope you have happy good time and need some more washing and you get home. Glad to wash you some more then. All business dull in summer time some more for so many like you to go off and stay one, two, three some four months. Had for Chinaman; good for lady. I hope you write me later or say on tellyphone when you return back all dirty clothes in trunk and I come some more."

"With love,

"Wing Shun."

Vera Cruz in the Sixteenth Century.

Robert Thomson, merchant, visited Vera Cruz in 1585. It had then not more than three hundred households. "This town," he wrote, "is subject to great sickness, and in my time many of the Mariner and officers of the ships died with those diseases, there accustomed, and especially those that were not used to the country, nor know the climate thereof, but would commonly go in the sun in the heat of the day, and did eat fruit of the country with much disorder. Whereupon they were cast into a burning ague, of the which few escaped."

Ancient English Trees.

Undoubtedly the most remarkable and interesting group of trees in England is that which is known as Burnham beeches, near Windsor. It is probably a fragment of the ancient forests of Britain, and many of the trees, hollow to the core, must be very old. It is a matter of history that these trees were pollarded—that is, they had their heads cut off—by Cromwell's Ironsides, who wanted wood for gunstocks, so they must have been remarkably well grown even then.

Work on Odd Railroad

Cured His Dyspepsia

Sylvester Marsh, son of a New Hampshire farmer, was made the butt of many a joke when he proposed the idea of building a railroad to the summit of Mount Washington, but he accomplished the project and it has been called the most astonishing engineering feat of the Boston & Maine system.

The inventor was called "Crazy Marsh" and his proposed feat was derided "a railroad to the moon." But despite the public ridicule and opposition he built the first railway of his kind in the world. The formal opening of the road to a point known as "Crazy Marsh" took place August 11, 1883, and on July 3, 1892, the road was completed to the summit, with trains running.

Marsh once testified before a senate committee that he built the road to cure a case of dyspepsia. He had retired, and after a few years of idleness dyspepsia forced him to do something of association, famous and well-known. He got the unique railroad idea and worked it out. It cured his illness.

Old Tower Once Home

of Distinguished Men

At Islington in the Canbury tower. It has the double attraction of a great age and of association with famous and well-loved people. Francis Bacon lived here for nine years in the early part of the Seventeenth century, when it was called "Canbury house." One of the upper rooms has his name and a Latin inscription over the doors. Charles Lamb, who lived near by at 41, Duncan terrace, and Washington Irving, before he went for his three years' visit to Spain, rambled over the old tower.

Most interesting thing about this old tower is that Oliver Goldsmith wrote "The Vicar of Wakefield" here when he had taken refuge from his creditors in the lodgings of his friend, Newberry, the bookseller, but any small boy who inspects the tower will decide in favor of the Compton room, where he will ignore the lovely paneling to inspect the very bullet, embedded in the wall, that was aimed at Sir Walter Raleigh.

All Food to Ostrich

A ostrich nearly lost its life in an effort to swallow five yards of stout rope. When the keeper made the discovery more than half the rope, which had been inadvertently left in the cage by a painter, had disappeared down the bird's throat. The keeper, seeing that the bird was in difficulties, decided to relieve it of its five-yard meal. Owing, however, to the efforts of the ostrich to kick him away, the task was difficult. By long and steady pulling, however, the keeper eventually recovered the rope. Ostriches are not at all particular what they devour. One at the zoo recently swallowed a boy scout's hat without any ill effects.—London Tit-Bits.

Keys to Ancient Cities

When the mayor of a city today pretends to "key to the city" to a distinguished visitor, it means nothing more than an expression of good will, but there was a time when it meant actual access to a city. That was in the days when European cities were surrounded by walls. When such a city was surrendered the keys of the gates were turned over to the conquerors. Gates usually were closed at nightfall and if a distinguished visitor wanted to go and come as he pleased he was entrusted with the key. It is upon this ancient custom that the modern ceremony is based.—Pittsburgh Magazine.

Famous Eastern City

Hippus was one of the cities of the Decapolis in Palestine, its precise location being uncertain. In the Talmud it occurs under the name of Susita, and the Greek name Hippus is probably simply a translation. It was the rival of Tiberias, and the two towns stood opposite each other on the sea of Galilee.

Hippus is spoken of as an example of a heathen city in the midst of the land of Israel, but it seems to have been an important place, for the whole region around it was called after it, Hippene.

Cashmere Shawls Best

The most beautiful of the Indian or cashmere shawls come from the looms and handcraft of Cashmere (Kashmir), a little country of Asia situated just north of the Punjab, among the Himalaya mountains. Among the heights of this range are found the sheep and goats which produce the fine wool used in the manufacture of these shawls. Shawl manufacturing is the most important industry of the Punjab, and the best shawls are made at Unizitpur, but none can compare with those of Cashmere.

Perhaps He Was

Dora was interviewing the man of her heart in the privacy of the drawing room.

On the previous evening her fiancé had asked permission to marry her. The father agreed immediately, but his wife was not so cordial and did not approve.

"And what mother is going to be a bit awkward, Dick, dear," began Dora. "She thinks that because you are an actor you're effeminate."

"Well," he confessed, "compared with her, I suppose I am."

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Flood Loss Tremendous—Hoover in Command—Beveridge Dies.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

THREE hundred lives lost, two thousand men, women and children driven from their homes, material damage running up into the hundreds of millions. That, roughly is the price paid by the Mississippi valley this time for the failure to establish flood control.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, at the instance of President Coolidge, took personal charge of the situation at the beginning of the week, going to Memphis, thence down the river to New Orleans. On Thursday, he thought, the worst was over for the region north of Vicksburg, but conditions south of there were growing more serious as the crest of the flood passed on south. The return waters from the levee breaks in Arkansas, northern Mississippi and southern Louisiana were getting back into the river and the peril of New Orleans with its 400,000 inhabitants was so great that Mr. Hoover and Major General Jadin, chief of army engineers, also on the ground, recommended that the levee be cut near Paducah, ten miles south of the Crescent city, to relieve the pressure. The War department gave its consent to this radical action and the break was made. The immediate consequence was the flooding of St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes by the waters rushing across to Lake Borgne, an inlet from the Gulf of Mexico. The hundreds of farmers in those parishes had been ordered to move out with their families and live stock, but of course their property loss is immense. The entire National Guard of Louisiana was ordered out to help in the evacuation of the region and to suppress the threatened resistance of the inhabitants. Mr. Hoover appointed Col. John M. Parker director of the flood situation in Louisiana, with dictatorial powers. Both the secretary and General Jadin were greatly concerned by conditions along the west bank of the Mississippi between Vicksburg and Natchez, where immense losses were expected. The work of strengthening the levee could avert them.

Urged on by President Coolidge, measures for the relief of the flood sufferers were carried out efficiently and swiftly by the national and state governments and by innumerable organizations. All contributions were made to and the work done by the Red Cross, and the federal and state troops gave efficient aid. Steamers and other boats plied up and down the river removing refugees from the levees and high spots and concentrating them in camps and towns. Steps were taken to check the threatened spread of malaria, pellagra and other maladies, and vast quantities of clothing, food and other supplies were received by train and boat. President Coolidge had called on the nation to raise a fund of $5,000,000, and by the close of the week almost the entire sum had been collected and turned over to the Red Cross.

Secretary Hoover valued the opinion of all thinking persons when he feared the nation should take a lesson from this disaster. "The flood of the Mississippi river and its tributaries can be controlled if adequate engineering works are installed," he said. These would cost a minor part of this single loss. Thirty states have contributed water to this flood, but of more positive interest is the fact that no part of the nation can suffer a loss without that loss reflecting upon every other part. The people in this vast region who contribute so much to national wealth and prosperity should be relieved of this anxiety and terror. It is a national problem and must be solved nationally and vigorously.

SPEAKING in New York at the anniversary dinner of the United Press, President Coolidge outlined the attitude of the government toward Mexico, Nicaragua and China and made an appeal for pure Americanism. He declared there is no trace of imperialism in the foreign policies of the administration and said those policies deserve the undivided support of American publishers. Concerning Mexico, he said our government stands squarely on the understanding with Obregon, but he does not expect any armed conflict since Mexico indicates that the confiscation of American property is not intended. The presence of American forces in Nicaragua was explained and justified, and the President then took up the Chinese question. He said final disposition of the Nanking incident rests in further consideration of the matter by the American government. The United States reiterated that the United States is ready to negotiate a treaty giving China complete tariff autonomy and releasing extraterritorial rights as Chiang Kai-shek, moderate leader, was advancing his troops toward Hankow, and the Communist faction there was "digging in" to resist them. Meanwhile the Nationalists at Canton had declared their independence from both Peking and the northern forces at Peking. Yangtze were reported to have made an attempt to cross the river near Nanking and to have been repulsed with heavy loss. The battle of the Yangtze at Nanking sank every boat of the northmen. From both banks of the river American and British warships were subjected to gunfire and several Americans were wounded on the gunboat Penguin. Reports were received of the movement of several armies in various parts of China, but their exact affiliations and destinations were unknown.

President Coolidge's seeming reluctance to join the British in taking drastic action against those responsible for the Nanking outrages has enraged the British residents and press in China. They are demanding that the British and American governments should ignore the reports and advice of American consular officials there. Dispatches from Peking said Marshal Chang was seeking alignment with certain elements of the south Chinese Nationalists, and that he might assume a dictatorship under the title of provisional president and call a constitutional convention. He is forming a new army to combat the advance of Peng Yuchang, the Christian general, down the Yellow river.

Secretary Hoover valued the opinion of all thinking persons when he feared the nation should take a lesson from this disaster. "The flood of the Mississippi river and its tributaries can be controlled if adequate engineering works are installed," he said. These would cost a minor part of this single loss. Thirty states have contributed water to this flood, but of more positive interest is the fact that no part of the nation can suffer a loss without that loss reflecting upon every other part. The people in this vast region who contribute so much to national wealth and prosperity should be relieved of this anxiety and terror. It is a national problem and must be solved nationally and vigorously.

Count von Bernstorff, the German delegate, in a private statement, said: "The value of the conference was in showing clearly the different opinions. Disarmament is the true role of the League, but the instructions of the various nations to their delegates show a little desire for actual disarmament. The public certainly is disillusioned."

WORTH REMEMBERING

THERE is nothing more important to a household than the health of the mother. When giving upstairs, place the whole foot on the state, keeping the body erect; this manner of climbing stairs will not strain any muscle unduly.

When it is necessary to clean upholstered furniture in the house, cover with a dampened cloth and beat, unless you are fortunate enough to have a vacuum cleaner.

When raisins and prunes stick to the paper or carton, steam slightly with a cup of water.

An infant, no matter how young, should be given frequent drinks of pure water. A bottle is the best way to drink from a cup or spoon.

Orange and tomato juice (strained) for babies is a most wholesome and refreshing drink; begin when the child is three months old to serve it every day. For an older child who needs a laxative the following is one that any mother need not fear to administer and the child will enjoy taking it: Grind through a meat grinder one pound each of—prunes (softened), figs, dates and raisins, and keep in a cool place. For a child place the size of a peach will be sufficient for an adult, a larger piece. This is a good laxative to take with one on a journey; it is agreeable and easy to take.

Citron mellow if grated then preserved may be used for many dishes which call for the dried citron. It is especially good for garnishes, for ice cream and puddings; dried slightly and sugared, may be used for confections and cake decorations. In the place of a great addition, its delicate flavor adding much to the taste of the time-honored pie filling. May be boiled in a double boiler, saving time and trouble. Line the upper part of the double boiler with oil paper and turn in the pudding to steam. When done it will come out in good form.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

YOUR CHIEF CONCERNS

ALl the happiness you have in the world is the happiness you carry with you.

The flowers may be waking up and smiling after their winter's sleep; the birds may be making love, singing and building nests; the carpet on the hills may be strewn with violets; the children may be romping and laughing in the sunlit parks and along the roadways, but if there is a grain of discontent, or a grain of anger in your heart, you are not carrying with you your share of the world's joys.

To be every whit happy, you must stretch out your heart's hands and press to your breast all the happiness that belongs to you.

It is everywhere around you, waiting for your embrace.

Don't overlook it in the morning when you open your eyes to the new day, for it is then you need it most to lighten your feet and to sweeten your voice.

A soft word at the breakfast table bids joy a welcome for the whole day. A certain sort of qualification is necessary to enable you to pick the roses of cheer that grow along your path without pricking your fingers with thorns, but a little practice in the right spirit will soon lupart to your heart's hand wonderful proficiency.

This talent, like the roses, must be cultivated to bring out the delectable colors, the exquisite form and the delicious odors.

No one can do it for you. You must dig and rake in all kinds of weather, and especially when clouds of ill-humor darken the cheery blue and threaten with storm.

The world is what you make it. Bright with sunshine or somber with scurrying frowns.

And so is your disposition, and to go a little deeper, so is your spirit which casts its potent spell on others and comes back to you bearing with it the scowls or the smiles with which you sent it out.

Pack your soul with good cheer. Offer it with liberal hands to the weary and worn, to the discontented and the trouble mongers.

Begin today, and observe the change that comes over your enemies, the gladness with which they greet you, and the divine love that permeates your whole being, and fits you for the good things of life and the better things of eternity, which ought always to be your chief concern.

How It Started
By JEAN NEWTON

"TOXIC"—Frequently we hear infections or other ills of the body referred to as "toxic" conditions, and we know the word to mean "poisonous." Most of us, however, do not know that the syllables are no mere etymological combinations originating in deliberate word coining, but a relic of an illuminating practice of an ancient people. In its origin the word bears no relation to the sick room or the medical laboratory.

Toxic comes to us from the Latin "portentum" which was originally a special substance used for the tips in making poisoned arrows. It is from this ancient arrow poisoning also that we have the modern word "toxicine" which is used to describe various poisonous substances in the body, and to the same source, too, we must credit "toxicology," the science of poisons!

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

BODIES ON SHIPBOARD

REAL deep-water sailors who go across the sea in "wind-jammers" are as uneasy today and as confidently expect trouble when a dead body is on board as they did in the days when Shakespeare's sailor in "Pericles" insists that the body of the queen be thrown overboard as "the sea works high, the wind is loud and will lift it all the while." And long before the age of Shakespeare or the "Prince of Tyne" the superstition existed.

Old Fuller says of the body of the transportation of the body of St. Louis: "His body was carried back to France, there to be buried, and was most miserably treated, it being observed that the sea cannot digest the crudity of a dead corpse, being a due debt to be interred where it dieth, and a ship cannot abide to be made a bier of."

Then there is the story of the Currier in Ireland, when the "sea" work high, and drove back the ship upon the English shore.

And there are any number of ancient stories of the same sort. Should new and modern ones to like effect be required they can be picked up along the waterfront of any great seaport.

This superstition had its origin in the association of ideas, and Capt. Basil Hall, in his book of "Travel" in the early part of the last century, gives an excellent explanation of its genesis. He says: "This superstition is easily accounted for among men whose entire lives are passed, as it were, on the very verge of the grave, and who have quite enough, as they suppose, to remind them of their mortality without the actual presence of its effects." The knowledge of the silent passenger down below gets on the sailor's nerves, makes him apprehensive; and if a storm does come, what more natural than to ascribe it to the presence of the corpse?

WHO'S WHO

Jeanne Bonfort, beautiful daughter of a Virginia tobacco planter, brave and daring, lost her father and two brothers in the Civil War. She swears to get revenge. At the time she is living with her Aunt. Mrs. W. Moore, in the South. Jeanne lays her plans and goes to her Aunt Deloris in Richmond, Va. She manages to meet the President and she is assigned duties as a spy. Her first mission is to go to Washington and find a man by the name of Parson Kennedy and bring him into the Southern lines. Jeanne, disguised as a boy, has had a horrible adventure. She has a document with code names on it.

John Kennedy, D. D.
C-W-G-L H-RED-M
A-N-K-S P-P-A-G
G-R-U-A J-N-K-F
J-W-G-A P-H-N-S
P-W-G-S W-RE-H

The organization is composed of young men with the exception of one, and they are spies who work for the North.

There are eleven in number. For weeks they have been in Virginia. Jeanne has sworn to track them down, one by one.

He eyed her exquisite beauty. "Do you expect to go through life with out loving?"

"I don't know," she answered frankly. "But I hope that I may. I want revenge. My father, my brothers, whom I loved have given their lives freely. I wish to add mine."

So young and so terribly serious! "Jeanne Bonfort, you shall have your revenge. Come! I will take you to the President himself. We need women, need their arts and guile. Tomorrow you shall start for Washington. You shall become a member of some family there we trust. Choose some name, and always in Washington be known by it. And find a man by the name of Parson Kennedy. Bring him into our lines, and you will have served the cause to a far greater extent than your father or brothers. Tomorrow I shall give you all your instructions, codes and so forth."

An officer came into the room. He looked like a Crole, Spanish in color and French in gracefulness. He paused, undecidedly.

"Ah, Morgan," said the Secretary. "This is Miss Bonfort. Just a moment, until I see if the President is disengaged."

Henry Morgan fell in love with Jeanne on the spot. Jeanne, on her side, saw a handsome young officer in betterment. She forgot all about him the moment he was gone.

Later she learned something definite regarding Henry Morgan. He gave to the world the impression that he was a rattlepate; vain, but really was; but beneath this vanity was a matchless valor. This discovery rather interested her; for no woman is left untouched in the presence of a brave man.

Soon she reconstructed her opinion of him as a whole. His grace was due to muscles as strong and highly tempered as watch-springs; and his rattlepatedness cloaked a mind as sinister and flexible as Machiavelli's. In the frequent encounters in Richmond he fascinated and repelled her at the same time.

He was always about to join his regiment at the front, but somehow he never did; and yet for weeks he would disappear completely. When he returned he was always a little thinner, a little hard-er, a little less effervescent.

When he began to make love to her, she was at first amused. But when she realized that he was in earnest, she broke up his dream somewhat rudely.

That was the last of it, apparently. He disappeared again, and her duties compelled her to return to Washington.

CHOOSE CHAPTER II

This time the game she was playing began to bring forth results. She applied herself to the practical arts of war—telegraphy, signaling, anything that she could perfect herself in swimming and running and shooting; she even went so far as to learn herself to privations.

She became as sound and hard as a win-stair to the street, searched a maple sapling. It became more and more difficult to get through those blue lines, but she always succeeded, and often as a boy in the uniform she hated.

Sometimes she would spend three or four days at the plantation. And oddly enough it was during one of these visits that she stumbled upon the secret which was seriously wounding the Confederate leaders. Richmond always knew what was going on in Washington, but Washington was now getting some truths about Richmond.

No one will deny that there exists such a thing as servants now. Beaufort, some days before the war, had given freedom to one of his slaves. The youth had gone to Richmond, and once a year he would return to his people.

The story he told came to Jeanne through the garrulity of her old darkey mammy. A loft in a deserted warehouse, meetings held late at night, men in full mask, who came singly and departed singly; this was sufficient to rouse something more than idle curiosity in Jeanne.

She instructed the old mammy to get the name and locality of this warehouse of mystery. When she returned these two facts, she returned to Richmond.

The Clephorn warehouse occupied a third of a block and was flanked by two buildings whose ground floors were tenanted. It was unguarded. The lightning was bad; here and there a dim beacon told one which way the street ran.

The big warehouse was one story higher than its neighbors. The east side was blank; three windows faced the west, looking out upon the roof of the adjoining building; the panes of glass were cobwebby, dust-and-rain splashed, and all them cracked or broken.

In the center of the loft, which included the whole floor, stood an ordinary deal table. It was night out. A single bayonet, in the lock of this was stuck a lighted candle, which flickered or burned steadily as the night draughts waxed or waned.

Seated about this table, on empty crates and boxes, were eleven men. The night was hot, and most of them had thrown aside their coats. They wore masks—the kind that hide chin and mouth under a limp curtain.

This not only concealed the face effectually but disguised the voice as well.

The man seated at the table was evidently the chief; he was also the oldest. His head was peppered with gray.

"Our business in Richmond is done. You have all been of great assistance to me; but I have this day myself discovered the things we sought. I know the number of men, arms, rounds of ammunition, and food supplies. In other words, we now have our fingers on the pulse of the enemy; we can feel it growing feebler and feebler. I shall no longer be your chief after tonight. We shall each of us go on our own again. We leave tonight. The horses are ready at Moriarty's stables, three blocks away. We ride west first. Then we turn toward Maryland. No main pickets until we are near the boundary. In the sealed envelope I have just given each of you are facts and information. Some of us will reach Washington. And gentlemen, we all leave together, eleven of us, all of these words. Any man who falters, hesitates, offers excuses—Well, I'm a tough soldier; you are all familiar with my ways. The man who hesitates—dies."

One of their number sprang to his feet and dashed toward the window. The gray man's revolver flashed in the candlelight.

"Quick!" cried the man who had caused this agitation. "Some one on the roof!"

They followed him pell-mell through the window. Crouched close to the wall was a form. They pounced upon it roughly, hustled it to the window, and those yet inside hauled the offender into the loft.

"I saw a hand flash across the window-space, in the act of throwing something. A boy!"

"Good Lord, a woman!" cried some one.

"Hold her!" said the chief. He ran ries me?" All this meant time.

"Oh," said her tormentor, "he shall call it a sacrifice to the altar of war. You will serve the South, but by the Lord Harry, you'll belong to the North. We'll punish you with doubt, doubt and fear; always you'll be wondering who and what this man is who marries you. Of course, we are still ready to take your oath."

"I have declined to give it."

"Very well. Line up, comrades, and she shall choose among us,—woman's ancient prerogative,—so it can never be said that we forced ourselves upon her. Death or marriage—mass or the Bastille!"

"I consent," she said. "I am young I do not want to die."

Already a quarter of an hour had been consumed. If only she could hold them long enough! She stared speculatively at the circle of flashing eyes.

"There is, then, a minister of the gospel among you?" she asked, incredulously.

"Yes, I am he." The gray man laughed.

Each hair at the base of her neck stirred at the sound of that laughter. "Come, comrades!"

But these comrades demurred. It was one thing to risk one's life, for one might risk it and still save it; but it was another thing to marry an unknown woman whom they might never see again.

The gray man took up his revolver. "I will shoot her. It is war; it is thousands of lives against hers."

"I'll marry her." The man who spoke was he who had a little while earlier given the start of surprise.

"I thought I was to choose," she said, looking at the stern-visaged man angling the revolver. More time—closer and closer the net was drawing.

"And choose you shall. Trust me; your marriage shall be as legal as though performed in a cathedral."

Albert J. Beveridge died last week, sixty-four years old, of heart disease. An automobile stops when the engine stops; a man, when his heart stops. One hundred men understand a motor engine for one that knows his own heart.

There is no "resale" price on a second-hand heart, and heart disease is increasing as consumption diminishes. Doctors can cure many diseases but you must cure your own heart, once you have been warned.

Beveridge and David Graham Phillips were schoolmates in Indiana and represented their State well. Phillips in Literature, Beveridge in national politics. Both are gone. Is it "entirely illogical," as some say to hope that they have met again or is it, as others say, "a perfectly reasonable hope?"

A Young Women's Christian Association committee says: "The modern wife who works after marriage and continues to bring money into the home is the best type of young wife, better than the young wife who sits at home twiddling her thumbs."

Real wives can testify that there is little time at home for twiddling thumbs, especially after the first baby begins to twiddle its toes. Every young man ought to be able to support one woman, and proud to do it, while she takes care of the children. Working wives are respectable and admirable, should not be necessary.

This country treats the Mississippi problem as a poor man treats his farm, never spending enough to get it in good shape. Scores of millions have been spent on patch work against flood danger. Now comes a flood causing five hundred million dollars damage. That sum, properly spent, under one comprehensive plan would have prevented this flood and future floods.

Railroad men, doing their best to help stockholders, as they are bound to do have concentrated on getting increased passenger fares and freight rates from the public authorities, and that has seemed good business. The time is not far off when good business will consist in finding a way to carry passengers for LESS and thus making more money.

The danger to the railroads is a small ridiculous looking thing on four wheels running along the highway on a "right-of-way" that costs the motor omnibus and motor truck nothing but the price of their license. Every day four motor buses leave Los Angeles carrying passengers to Chicago. That doesn't amount to much. But they can carry twice as many passengers as there are on this magnificent Santa Fe "Chief" Express and the bus overhead is one man driving and another man to relieve him.

Omnibus travel is uncomfortable and travel will never compete with the express train. But WHAT ABOUT THE FLYING MACHINE that will soon be here.

And what about freight hauling by omnibus? On the Mojave desert farmers buying agricultural machinery from Los Angeles do not ask the railroads to carry it.

The farmer calls up the truck line at Victorville. The freight motor truck delivers the moving machine, plow, or seed drill right into the farmers barnyard. The freight cost a little more per hundred than the freight train. But what you order today you get tomorrow and it is delivered at your door.

COMPTON BUYS LOCAL STORE

A business transaction took place in Mentone Friday when the C. G. Bumgartner Variety Store was sold to C. W. Compton of Warsaw. Mr. Compton is well known in the surrounding community having owned a store in Rochester recently and at the present time owning a store in Warsaw. He states that at the present time he does not know exactly the manner in which the store will be operated.

Mr. Bumgartner came to Mentone about a year and a half ago from Ft. Wayne. He has been one of the wide awake citizens of Mentone and states that at the present he has no plans for the future.

The store will be known as Compton's Variety Store.

MOTHERS' DAY SERVICES AT METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL. Mothers' Day was fittingly and beautifully observed in the Methodist Sunday School Sunday morning. The Assembly room was prettily decorated with flowers the work of the "Be Natural Class."

The special numbers were: Violin Solo, "The Holy City," Hugh Anglin; taught; Vocal Solo, "Oh, Mother of Mine," Ileen Mollenhour. Solo, "Mother," Jean Burns. These numbers were given in a very impressive and inspiring manner. A beautiful bouquet of white carnations was given in memory of Mrs. Henry Rockhill by her children. By request the Supt. of the Sunday School read a very lovely selection "The Tendency of Mother."

Little Jack Arnsberger gave his first reading which was greatly enjoyed.

The Star of Christian spirit was illuminated in the hearts of all present, realizing that Christian workers should be filled with inspiration and zeal to work with renewed energy, and an ambition to render service to the full measure of their ability and to exercise one's self in any form of Christian work with the assurance that the reward will be a happier and better world.

APPOINTED TO UNIVERSITY INTERESTS COMMITTEE

Miss Estelle Lynch, of Warsaw and George Clark, of Mentone, students at Indiana University, have been appointed to the University Interests Committee at the state school for the second semester, as the men's and women's chairmen of the Kosciusko county delegation.

District chairmen have appointed men and women chairmen for every county in the state in the big reorganization movement of the interests committee. This organization functions for the purpose of acquainting the public with the University's services, of attracting high grade high school seniors to the institution, and in the promotion of the University's welfare in many ways.

WITNESSES WANTED

DEAD MANY YEARS. Sheriff Frank McKill has been asked to summon Ike Hire, the Anderson Sol Shans, Mary Vandemark, Tyrl Brown and John D. Wideman as witnesses in a state case against James E. Wright, formerly a resident of near Warsaw. The first four are dead, several having been dead for 25 years. Evidently the person named the Kosciusko county witnesses is no longer well acquainted with the affairs of this county.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

BIDS TO BE OPENED MAY 24

On the afternoon of Tuesday, May 24, the bids will be opened for the new paving to be done. Advertising is being done now for the bids. The paving will begin at Franklin Street on the south corporate line and run north to the north line of Harrison Street. A spur running parallel with the railroad to the pavement on Main Street will also be paved. Pavement will start at the east line of the intersection of Harrison and Franklin Streets, and run on Harrison Street to Broadway, also to begin at the south line of the intersection of Harrison and Broadway, and south on Broadway to the railroad.

With these several new streets paved Mentone, will possess as much or more pavement as any town its size in this section of the state.

BAD EPIDEMIO OF RABIES IN ROCHESTER

The populace of Rochester is very much concerned over the epidemic of Rabies which has broken out there. Last week a collie dog went mad and was seen to bite nine other dogs. The dog was finally shot and the head was sent to the State Health Department.

A letter was immediately received from that department stating that an examination of the head showed a positive case of rabies.

The mayor of Rochester immediately issued an order to the effect that all the nine dogs which were known to have been bitten by the collie were to be shot, and all other dogs which were acting strangely, and all dogs not kept tied up by the owners.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

Bible School 9:30; Morning Worship 10:45; Evening Service 7:30. Mid week service on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock is for YOU! A true worship service where everyone can have a part.

"There is that scattereth and yet increaseth; there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty." Prov. 11:24.

SAILS FOR EUROPE

George Clark sails for Geneva Switzerland June 4th to attend the Y. M. C. A. Convention to be held there. He will then visit many places of interest in the European countries and expects to be gone about three months.

Kenneth Mollenhour is working at the Lausenhier restaurant at North Manchester.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION COUNCIL TO MEET IN PIERCESTON MAY 20-27

The Kosciusko County Council of Religious Education will hold its annual Convention in Pierceston May 20 and 21.

A splendid program is being arranged and a good attendance of Sunday School workers from all over the County is expected.

The leading speakers of the convention will be Mr. Albertson of Indianapolis, Secretary for the State Council; Miss Nellie Young of Indianapolis, State Children's division Superintendent; Prof. Lawrence Shultz of North Manchester, an expert in Religious Education work; and Dr. Richardson of Ft. Wayne. There will be helpful conferences on all departments of Sunday School work.

It is hoped that every school in the county will be well represented at this convention.

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPALS ANNOUNCED

Announcements have been made by several township trustees who recently met in Warsaw with the Kosciusko County board of education, as to the principals of their schools for the year 1927-28.

AGED PIERCESTON WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN BED

Mrs. Rachael Fashbaugh, aged about 83 years was found dead in bed at her home in Pierceston about 6:30 o'clock Monday morning. She had been ill for the past five years with cancer and had not been outside her home for about three years. Her home illness was given excellent care by her niece, Mrs. Ida Seihorn. Her husband, Elias Fashbaugh died about five years ago. Mrs. Fashbaugh had been a resident of Kosciusko county practically all of her lifetime and for a time lived in Warsaw.

STORK SPECIALS

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis of Warsaw welcomed a baby girl, weighing 5 lbs. Sunday evening. Mrs. Lewis was formerly Mary Clark of north of Palestine.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sarker, May 2, a baby girl.

R. W. Gebora and family of Syracuse and Sunday evening guests of the Claysboro Goodwin and wife.

SHARP ISSUES 2ND STATEMENT

In his second statement issued since the beginning of his confinement in the State reformatory at Pontiac, to Special Investigator, B. O. Mable, Robert Sharp, Thursday made the statement that he thought that Vernie Martin and Mike Ross killed Frank Tucker on the night of the 28th of January and did away with the body. It is said that Sharp's second statement is more specific than the first, laying the blame directly upon Martin and Ross.

When visited at the State prison on Friday, Sherman Jones and Willard Clark, serving time for conspiracy to rob Tucker, declared that Sharp's new statement was the truth. "We heard Martin and Sharp talk this over in jail at Warsaw," the men asserted.

In his statement given to Mr. Mable, Sharp says that after the disappearance of Tucker, Martin was at ways flush with money, at one time showing him a handful of $5's, $10's and $20's. The statement declares that Martin and Ross talked freely of the Tucker job before the night of the disappearance, but never after that, except one evening when he (Sharp) asked Martin where he got his money. Martin replied by asking him if he had forgotten the Tucker job, that was to be pulled at Warsaw. Sharp says he thinks Tucker's body was thrown in the lake.

Officer Mable went before the Kosciusko County Grand Jury Saturday and furnished them with all the evidence he has so far collected.

THOMAS B. EVANS DIED SUNDAY AT SILVER LAKE

Death came to Thomas B. Evans, well known man of Silver Lake, Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. S. Spiggs, of Silver Lake. His death was due to infirmities of advanced age. The deceased was 85 years of age. Mr. Evans had been retired from active life for sometime. He was a member of the Methodist church.

He leaves three daughters, Mrs. A. S. Spiggs, Mrs. Nora McKill, of Silver Lake, Mrs. Etta Chapman, of Bloomington, and one son, Bert Evans, of Washington. Roy Spriggs of this city is a grandson.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Spiggs residence. Burial will take place at the Silver Lake cemetery.

$150 RAISED FOR FLOOD FUND

About $150.00 has been raised in Mentone and vicinity for relief of sufferers in the flood stricken area. We are informed by the Farmers State Bank who are collecting the money in this district. The quota set for Mentone was $100 but last week word was received from the County Chairman of the Red Cross that this quota would have to be more than doubled.

Mentone is doing well, but there should be no let up in the giving. The call for $5,000.000 issued by President Coolidge, has been doubled since a survey of the actual conditions of need have become more apparent.

Don't forget to leave your money for the flood sufferers at the Farmers State Bank.

SERVICE INTERRUPTED ON WINONA LINES

Collapse of a 20-foot bridge between Chubb and Para, about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning, blocked traffic over the lines of the Winona Service Company. The bridge piling failed to withstand the weight of two heavily laden gondolas and gave way. The gondolas which were loaded with pig iron, were being pulled by an interurban freight car. This freight car crossed the bridge safely. None were injured. Repair of the bridge was started immediately and the line was opened at 4 o'clock Monday. Sunday and Monday the cars were run south only to Akron.

BOURBON MAN ROBBED OF LITTLE OVER $100

While on his way to Bourbon, Wednesday night, carrying a sum of little over $100, Buddie Miller of near Summit Chapel was held up and robbed by two masked men. Miller was taking the money to Bourbon to pay for some tankage.

SODALES CLUB

Mrs. T. J. Clutter, assisted by Mrs. W. A. Warren were pleasant hostesses to the Sodales Club, Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clutter on North Tucker Street.

Members responded to roll call by giving a good household hint and the discussions that followed proved very interesting.

Ruby Smith read a well prepared and interesting paper on "Soap" giving a splendid recipe for home made soap. Bessie Clutter had as her subject "Tea and Coffee" which she handled in a very capable manner. "To a Shylark" by Wordsworth was read in a very pleasing manner by Fern Carter.

Ruth Ernsberger whistled and Bessie Manwaring sang two beautiful duets.

The hostess provided three contests, a rose contest, flower contest and each one wrote a May romance; in these Cora Van Gilder won first prize, Edna Burns second and Emma Jones the consolation.

The home was decorated with apple blossoms. Tulips and trilliums adorned the tables where dainty refreshments were served.

SICK LIST

Lloyd Shoemaker and children are sick with Scarlet Fever.

Mrs. Eva Black has been confined to her bed for several days from an attack of the flu.

Lon Blue Jr. is confined to his bed again.

Mrs. L. L. Mollenhour who has been in the Hospital at Rochester is getting along nicely.

C. D. Meredith is suffering from a fluid knee. He is getting around on crutches.

Mrs. William, who has been in poor-health for some time is slowly improving.

O. E. S. NOTICE

A BETTER NATIONAL TUNE.

WHEN BABIES TWIDDLE TOES.
RAILROADS AND BUSESSES.

Some one not satisfied with the "Star Spangled Banner" offered $1,500 for a better national tune. Nine hundred and fifty-one composers tried and failed. The "Star Spangled Banner" will continue to make Americans stand up. To do a thing well you must get excited about it. Socrates, greatest Greek teacher of oratory, said "To convince others, be yourself convinced." There will be no improved "Star Spangled Banner" until real danger inspires somebody to produce the right song.

Albert J. Beveridge died last week, sixty-four years old, of heart disease. An automobile stops when the engine stops; a man, when his heart stops. One hundred men understand a motor engine for one that knows his own heart.

Mayor Walker and a Bunch of Admirals

Mayor James J. Walker of New York surrounded on the steps of the city hall by the admirals and aides who arrived there with the fleet. The largest array of battle cruisers in history entered the Hudson river. The warships in the fleet numbered 110, and they carried more than 30,000 sailors and 2,227 officers. The men had a blue time ashore for some days. They and their vessels were fresh from the war maneuvers in the Caribbean sea.

Dynamiting the Levee Below New Orleans

This photograph, made at the instant of the explosion, shows the actual dynamiting of the Mississippi levee in St. Bernard parish when that and adjoining parishes were sacrificed to the flood waters of the Mississippi river to save the city of New Orleans. Afterward it was necessary to blast other openings in the dike and the operation was successful so far as New Orleans was concerned, but, of course, the arm and trapping lands between there and Lake Borgne were inundated and the loss there was considerable. All the inhabitants had been evacuated.

PETER AT PENTECOST

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2. GOLDEN TEXT—Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.—Acts 2:38. PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Preaches About Jesus. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Gift of Power. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Peter at Pentecost. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of Spiritual Power.

1. The Day of Pentecost Fully Come (vv. 1-13).

Pentecost is from a Greek word meaning "fifty." It was the feast held fifty days after the wave sheaf offering (Lev. 23:16). The wave sheaf typifies the resurrection of Christ (1 Cor. 15:20-28).

On this day the Holy Spirit descended upon the disciples. From that time forth He would work on a new basis, having the crucified, risen and ascended Christ to present to the world.

3. Upon whom the Spirit came (v. 1; cf. 1:13-15).

The twelve and others, both men and women to the number of one hundred and twenty, showing that the gift of the Holy Spirit was for all believers, not merely the apostles.

4. The marks of the Spirit (vv. 2-4). These marks were external and internal.

(1) External.

(a) The sound of a mighty wind (v. 2). This is suggestive of the mysterious, pervasive and powerful energy of the Spirit.

(b) The tongues of flame (v. 3). Each of the one hundred and twenty was crowned with such a tongue. Tongues show the special purpose of the Spirit's gift—witnessing.

(c) Speaking in foreign tongues (v. 4). This was a temporary endowment for a special purpose.

(2) Internal.

This is seen in the transformation wrought in the disciples. Peter, who shortly before the ascension before a Jewish maid, now with his boldness stands before the chief rulers and declares that they had murdered their King, therefore guilty before God.

5. The effects (vv. 5-13).

(1) The multitude were filled with amazement and wonder. The gift of the Spirit transforms common men into men of power and influence.

(2) Some mocked and foolishly attempted to account for this remarkable occurrence. They accused the disciples of being intoxicated.

11. Peter's Sermon (vv. 14-47).

Peter's sermon is as wonderful as the gift of tongues. His analysis is perfect.

1. The introduction (vv. 14-21).

(1) Defense of the disciples against the charge of being drunk (v. 15). This he does by citing Jewish custom, showing that they would not be drunk at such an early hour of the day.

(2) A scriptural explanation. He showed that this was a partial fulfillment of that which Joel predicted would come to pass (vv. 16-21; cf. Joel 2:28-32) before the messianic judgment, viz., an outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the salvation of all who call upon the name of the Lord.

2. The proposition, or theme (v. 36). This was the messianic work of Jesus.

3. The argument (vv. 22-36). It was threefold.

(1) From Christ's works (v. 22). He was approved of God among the Jews by His miracles, wonders and signs which God did by Him in their midst with which they were familiar.

(2) From His resurrection (vv. 23-32). The Old Testament Scriptures had foretold the death and resurrection of Christ (Ps. 16:3-10). The disciples were living witnesses of Christ's resurrection for they had seen and talked with Him, and handled Him since the resurrection (v. 22).

(3) From His ascension to be on the right hand of God (v. 32). The proof that He had ascended on high Spirit's operation in their midst. He had said that upon His ascension into heaven He would send forth the Spirit.

4. The effect of the sermon (vv. 37-42).

Many people were convicted of their sins, some three thousand of whom repented and were baptized. The daily life of these believers was proof of the Spirit's gift.

(1) They continued steadfastly in the apostolic teaching (v. 42).

(2) They continued in fellowship with the apostles (v. 42).

Trusting God

An undivided heart which worships God alone, and trusts Him as it should, is raised above all anxiety for earthly wants.

Hand and Heart of God

In creation we see the hand of God, and in Calvary we see the heart of God.—Echols.

Spiritual Happiness

Spiritual happiness is possible under all circumstances.—Echols.

POULTRY FACTS

COCCIDIOSIS IS CAUSING LOSSES

Coccidiosis is a parasitic disease of chicks over two weeks old and is causing unnecessarily large losses to poultrymen, states J. J. Buck, assistant poultry pathologist, New Jersey agricultural experiment station.

The disease is picked up from contaminated soil or from brooder houses that have not been properly cleaned. The parasite that causes it may be carried on the feet of attendants or on feeding vessels.

Coccidiosis may be prevented by raising chicks in confinement, using a concrete slab for a run in front of the house, advises Doctor Black. Only new equipment or that which has been disinfected by a high degree of heat should be used. When a person is entering the poultry house, he should slip on a pair of rubbers kept for that purpose or clean and disinfect his shoes in a box of wood shavings saturated with a pure, coal tar disinfectant.

It has been found that losses from coccidiosis may be checked by cleaning the brooder as soon as disease makes its appearance. A small amount of litter should be used and the brooder cleaned every day for three days and then every third day until losses stop. All visibly affected chicks must be removed and the carcasses of those that die should be burned. It is of great value to keep the floor of the brooder house warm and dry. This prevents the development of the parasite.

California milk mash is advised for feeding. It consists of dry skim milk or dry buttermilk, 40 pounds; wheat bran, 10 pounds; yellow corn meal, 30 pounds; ground barley or rolled oats, 20 pounds.

This mash should be furnished as soon as disease appears. Grain is fed twice daily, but is restricted to one-third the amount of mash consumed. This system of mash and grain feeding is continued as long as there is any indication of the disease. The grain is supplied in the usual manner. The change back to the regular ration is made gradually. All mash—liquid contains 2 per cent of cod-liver oil.

Where liquid milk is used, all mash and water are sterilized, and grain is fed sparingly—a little in the morning and more at night. It is often difficult to get the chicks to consume enough liquid milk, especially if it is not of good quality.

Habits of Guineaes

For some reason the mother guinea does not seem to realize that her little ones are frail creatures, unable to withstand extremes of heat and cold, moisture and long tramps afield.

Their habits seem to be about as sensible as their noise, which probably accounts in a large measure for their culture having been neglected. They make their nests in remote places, under hedges, bushes, brush heaps or wheat shocks, and if their nests are disturbed they will move to another place.

Poultry Items

Wood shavings make better poultry nests than hay or straw.

The first off the roosts in the morning and the last to roost at night are the best layers.

This is the season when mites and lice multiply so fast that one of 'em becomes a granddaddy of hundreds in just a few days.

Poultry should always be fattened before killing. This means better quality, more weight, and a considerably higher price per pound.

For fattening broilers a good ration is made up of seven parts of corn meal by weight, three parts wheat middlings, and one part bran. Wet with milk until it will pour like batter, and feed to the birds in shaded pens.

Mold is one of the commonest troubles in sprouting oats, and moldy feed is dangerous.

Follow directions and handle the incubator correctly if the best hatch of viable chicks is to be secured, say poultry workers.

Hens must eat plenty of mash, if they are to lay their best. Have you made enough hopper room so that every hen can get their fill? There should be a foot of space for every five or six hens.

Keep the chicks that are raised in a brooder pretty close to the heat during the first three days.

High-priced seeds that produce high yields are cheaper than low-priced seeds that produce low yields.

It takes 21 days for a hen egg to hatch, about 28 days for ducks, from 80 to 84 days for a goose egg, and 28 days for turkey eggs. The time may vary somewhat according to conditions.

Bathers "Conservative"

You can introduce a bath into a village, but you cannot make the villagers bathe in it. It is about the conclusion drawn by Rev. Gordon Smythe, rector in the village of Stow St. Mary, England. The community of four farmers and their hundred workers raised $1,000 for a new schoolhouse, and the enterprising rector collected a sufficient amount in addition to install two modern baths. Tubs have been the only bathing places of the villagers, and they were "conservative," as the rector explained about using the new tubs. He, however, has hopes of inducing some of the leaders to encourage their children to take a bath at the schoolhouse and thus start the fashion.

NEW FISHING LAWS GO

INTO EFFECT SOON
Indianapolis, Ind., May 10.—Constant inquiries coming to the conservation department regarding changes and additions to fish and game laws passed by the last legislature caused George N. Mansfield, superintendent of the fish and game division today to again summarize those of outstanding character that effect thousands of fishermen at this time.

For the information of those possessing unexpired licenses and are buying new licenses before the new acts go into effect, the law is constructed to mean that old licenses will be good for the term for which they are issued, namely a year from date of issue. New licenses will only be good for the calendar year. However, after the new Acts become effective, the wives of men holding either the new license or the old will no longer be allowed to fish on such license. Any person may fish in his own county without a license. Children under 18 years old, as heretofore, need no license to fish anywhere in this state.

Licenses to fish with seines, nets and traps in the Wabash river in Indiana where it forms the boundary between this state and Illinois, will be issued only from the office of the Division of Fish and Game, at Indianapolis. The price is $10.00 for each 100 yards of seine, gill net or trammel net, and $5.00 for each cast net or other kind of net or trap.

Non-residents of the state will be required to pay four times the fee. Mussel licenses will cost $2.00 for residents, and $15.00 for non-residents. Either of these licenses may be secured after May 10, by sending in postoffice order in the proper amount, direct to fish and game office. There is no closed season on muskies in any streams during the present year.

The closed season on both species of black bass and on bluegills, commenced May 1, and remains closed to June 16th. As soon as the new acts go into effect, it will then also be unlawful to fish for crappie, rock bass or goggle-eye, yellow-perch red-eared sunfish, silver bass, pike or pickrel, or wall-eyed pike during this closed season. The season was closed on all aforementioned species to better protect the bass, bluegills, crappie and rock bass when they are nesting. Pickrel and walleyed pike and yellow perch spawn early, and the dates of the closed season do not especially cover their reproduction period. Under the new acts a person fishing with fly, artificial or live bait during the closed season, is very apt to catch some protected species; therefore should be very careful not to use above kind of bait.

Inquiries are received for a description of the silver bass and red-eared sunfish, both protected by closed season between May 1 and June 16 along with the other species. These species are rare in Indiana waters, but recently the silver bass has shown a decided increase in waters connected with Tippecanoe Lake and especially Shafer Lake above Monticello. The scientific name of this fish is Morone americana. It is occasionally caught in the Wabash and east fork of White rivers. It is more generally known as the yellow bass. It is easily identified by seven distinct stripes on the side. The two lower stripes are broken or interrupted, hence its name.

The red-eared sunfish does not resemble the ordinary or common sunfish. It is highly colored and has no bars or waves on the cheek. It frequently takes more than streams. This fish, frequently attaining a length of ten inches or more, is described by Jordan and Everman as: "Color dark, greenish above, gradually becoming brassy towards the belly, which is light brassy; opercular spot greenish black; the flap with a broad, blood-red border on the male, plain in the female; no dark spot on the dorsal or anal fins."

The length and bag limits on fish are as follows: Large and small mouth black bass and silver bass, 6 per day on all species combined. Length on black bass 11 inches; silver bass, 10 inches; Bluegills, rock bass and red-eared sunfish, crappies 25 per day on all species combined. Length limit 5 inches on bluegills and rock bass. Crappie 6 inches; yellow perch 7 inches. No bag limit on yellow perch, Pike or pickrel, length 15 inches. No bag limit on pike or pickrel. On pike perch, (wall-eye or Jack salmon,) 15 inches; limit 6 per day. All other species no closed season, length, or bag limit. Common sunfish not protected.

Horsehide—Double Tanned That Always Stays Soft

Here is a Wolverine shoe for year 'round wear. The tops are high enough to keep out the mud and dirt of the spring and fall, low enough for coolness in the summer and are ideal in the winter to wear under an overshoe. Because of its general utility this Wolverine is one of our largest sellers. Made of Cordovan horsehide, there is almost no wear-out to the upper; our experience has been this upper will wear out on an average of two pairs of half soles. A light weight work shoe that is soft when you buy it, and stays that way.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Trustees of the Incorporated town of Mentone, Kosciusko County, Indiana, has adopted a final resolution for the improvement by paving with one of the kinds of modern City pavements the following described public streets in said Town, to-wit:

Beginning on Franklin Street at the South corporate line of the Town of Mentone, Kosciusko County, Indiana, and running thence North to the North line of Harrison Street, excepting that part of the Main and Harrison Street intersection already paved.

Also a spur, the center line of which is 104.7 feet South of the Northeast corner of Section 2, Township 31 North, Range 4 East, and running thence Northwest parallel with the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad to the concrete pavement on Main Street.

Also beginning at the East line of the intersection of Franklin and Harrison Streets and running thence East on Harrison Street to the East line of Broadway Street.

Also beginning at the South line of the intersection of Harrison and Broadway Streets and running thence South on Broadway Street to the North track of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad, excepting that part of the Main and Broadway Street intersection already paved.

The Board of Trustees of said Town will meet at the Town Hall in said Town at 2:00 o'clock P. M. of Tuesday May 24th, 1927, at which time and place Board will receive, open and publicly read and consider bids for the construction of said improvements in accordance with the complete plans and specifications therefore heretofore adopted by said Board and now on file with the Town Clerk of said Town. The kind of City pavement adopted by said Board are, one course concrete, creosoted wooden block, vitrified brick and sheet asphalt, together with curb and gutters and foundations.

Each bid must be accompanied by a non-collusion affidavit, and a certified check for an amount not less than two and one-half (2 1/2%) percent of the engineers estimate of the cost of said improvements, which checks will be returned to the unsuccessful bidders and to the successful bidder when he shall have entered into a contract for said work and given a bond for its faithful execution and a three year maintenance bond conditioned as provided by law.

The cost of said improvements will be levied as special assessments upon the real estate benefited thereby, except that the cost of the spur described in said specifications and the cost of the street and alley intersections will be paid by said Town out of its general fund.

After said bids are received said Board will make its preliminary award designating the kind of pavement to be constructed, and after the expiration of a ten day period will award the contract to the lowest and best bidder for the kind of improvement finally determined upon, but the said Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Witness our hands and the seal of said Town this 4th day of May, 1927.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

ART OF RECUPERATION

THE idea prevails that when one is inclined to lag a bit in one's field of routine duty one needs a measure of absolute idleness, as if loafing were the open sesame to perfect rest and the fairyland of youthful dreams.

Generally speaking, no thought can be more erroneous and misleading. There is nothing quite so befogging and injurious to the active mind as a sudden cessation of its energy or curtailment of its habitual effort.

Rest is not to be found in idleness but in a change of activity, where both body and mind perform a new form of work.

When the thinker becomes tired and feels that he cannot proceed another step in the direction he has been so long pursuing, he is in need of change in his mental environment, where he will encounter new thoughts in new settings.

The brain requires a new diet, a savory dish of some sort which will be easily digested and leave a pleasant taste.

Frequently a radical change in reading will work this transformation in a day or two, and rekindle the slumbering fire from live embers hidden in the ashes.

If you are worn out in the tiresome chase of letters, turn awhile to figures, where you are compelled by the mere novelty of the change to conjure up some long-forgotten rule in algebra.

Should that fail to satisfy, take a peep into the body of your old Latin reader, or dip into astronomy, where you are forced to think in new dimensions and move out into the immeasurable vastness of which our own little globe is but a speck no larger than a grain of mustard seed.

In a little while you will find that this novel operation of the mind gives rest to your thinking faculties, broadens your vision, refreshes and strengthens your whole being.

Life assumes a new meaning. The dull skies become golden and glad. Smiling faces wear winsome smiles, and in the very joy of your new existence you go back to your old drum work, which in some way realizes that you are the master to whom it must yield in the future with utmost complacency.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY

The young lady across the way says it must be awful when a flapper must decide whether to show her new-style hair or wear her new hat.

Mother's Cook Book

In a sense, love is everything. It is the key to life, and its influences are in the thought of love for all and you will draw love to you from all. Live in that thought of malice and hatred and malice and hatred will come back to you—True.

MILK DISHES

Milk, the best of all foods for children, is always a good foundation for any number of desserts, wholesome alike for old and young, and for those of weakened digestion.

A smooth, good custard is made by using a pint of milk with two eggs, adding a pinch of salt and such flavoring as suits the taste. If one wishes a custard thick enough to mold, add three to four eggs to a pint of milk. The more egg the more nutritious, and it is a dish to be recommended for those who would be built up.

Baked Custard.

Beat four eggs slightly, add a half cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, a half teaspoonful of grated nutmeg or cinnamon, and one quart of milk. Set into the oven in a pan of water and bake until firm enough to cut with a knife, and the knife comes out clean. Overcooking will curdle or coarsen the custard, making it less digestible and far less attractive in appearance. A perfect custard should be as smooth and even grained as cream. Remember to remove the custards from the water pan when taken from the oven, or they will continue to cook in the hot water. Set into cold water to chill and serve well chilled.

Ginger Custard.

Line buttered custard cups with strips of Canton ginger, then pour in carefully a thick custard, using four eggs, a pint of milk, one-third of a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt and two teaspoonfuls of the ginger sirup. Lacking the sirup, flavor to taste with orange or lemon. Beat the eggs very slightly, add sugar, salt, milk and flavoring, then strain into molds. Set into hot water and bake until firm. Serve with a spoonful of the sirup over the top of each.

Caramel Custard. This is a custard which is particularly well liked. It may be made by adding the caramel (melted sugar) to the custard, prepared as above or the sugar may be browned and poured into the molds; have them hot and turn until the bottom and sides are well coated with the caramel, then turn in the custard and bake as usual. As it is well to remember that caramelizing sugar destroys some of its sweetness, more sugar should be used than is usual.

Do You Know

That:--??--

THE expression "A little bird told me" is based on the popular idea that the bird from its point of vantage in the upper air found out all sorts of strange and mystical things and then revealed them to those who understood. This is a very old idea and we even read of it in the Bible, Ecc. 10:20—"Curse not the King, no not in thy thought; and curse not the rich in thy bedchamber; for a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter."—Anna S. ## SUCCESS

By SIDNEY J. BURGOWNE

"AS A man thinketh, he is," my friend said.
So if you would win Success,
You must THINK and WORK to that very end.
And you'll have Success—no less.

When you are ready, you'll find it there
Waiting outside your door,
And you can take just as big a share
As you deserve—but no more.

Success doesn't come to those who shrink,
It's not at your beck and call—
You must add to your "thinking" some darn good work
And EARN Success—that's all.

So THINK Success—But don't stop there,
Pitch in and work for it, too;
There's nothing too great to do and dare
To help you "put it through."

If you'll "use your dome" to THINK Success,
And your hands and heart and soul
To tackle the job and WORK for Success—
You're going to reach your goal!

But don't let a thought of failure in,
And shut every fear-thought out;
For there's one thing sure—no man can win
Success through distrust and doubt.

You've got to KNOW you can and will,
And your brains as well as your hands,
Whatever the job you have to fill:
AS YOU THINK AND WORK—YOU ARE.

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

THE MEASURING WORM

IF YOU are sitting on the piazza of a farmhouse and see one of those little creatures known as the measuring worm looping its way over your clothing, brush it off right away. If you don't you are likely to die before your time—as any country-bred person can tell you. They will probably laugh at the superstition as they recount it, but, nevertheless, watch how quickly they brush off a measuring worm if one gets on them.

This old superstition arises from that association of ideas with things, so common with our prehistoric ancestors and so natural to the human mind in all ages—not by any means excepting this age.

The little larva of the geometrid moth has feet only at bow and stern, so when he moves he draws up his hind feet, places them close to his front feet and then sends his front feet ahead for a fresh foothold; apparently measuring off the person upon whom he crawls in slow and solemn manner.

Why is he making this peculiar motion, so different from the method of locomotion of other worms? The subterranean, primitive mind arises from the "unconscious" and answers "He is measuring out the life of man." It is useless to argue that he may be measuring you for a new suit of clothes; for the primitive mind's natural tendency is to look on the dark side of things and regard the unusual as the threatening. The writer has heard children cry with awe: "Brush off that measuring worm! If you don't, when he takes his last measure you die."

Safe Parachute

A new type of parachute has been developed in Switzerland that works by machinery. It is so controlled that after it is launched from a balloon or airplane it automatically stops falling within a few feet of the ground, thereby preventing the contents of the basket from being damaged.

NUMEROUS KINDS OF SALAD FOUNDATIONS

Springtime Salad With French Dressing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Salads at this time of the year appeal most when the ingredients are chiefly crisp, uncooked vegetables, bright with red slices of tomato, or whole radishes, set off by glistening bits of green pepper or watercress, which contrast well with the paler shades of lettuce, endive, sliced cucumbers, or celery. Winter salads must often be made partly of canned vegetables and fruit, and with them the tendency is to serve a rich mayonnaise dressing. There is a feeling of delightful freshness and daintiness about spring salads, with their gay colors, crisp texture, and the zest of a plain French dressing.

Numerous Foundations.

No rules for combining these salads can be given. Put together a little of this, a little of that—whatever you can get. There are numerous kinds of salad foundations available in city markets, such as escarole, romaine, or lettuce, in addition to lettuce. Use some of these from time to time, with watercress for its peppery tang, chopped celery for its flavor and crisp texture, and now and then a few very thin slices of cucumber. Those who like onion may include it in the form of large shaved rings, or as whole spring onions with two or three inches of stem. Or, lacking onion, rub the salad bowl with a clove of garlic—

Just to give a "suspicion" or suggestion of garlic flavor. Sorrel and other wild greens usually eaten raw may be put in the salad.

Tomatoes are generally scalded a minute and peeled before slicing for salad. Radishes are often cut in such a way that the red skin turns back in points, suggesting petals. If you can't get fresh tomatoes or radishes, use a slice or two of pickled beet or some canned pimiento for red color—but don't use both reds in the same salad! Grated raw carrot brightens up a green salad, and adds to the supply of vitamins for which the dish is especially valuable. Rutabaga turnip may be used in the same way.

Make French Dressing.

The barefoot of house economists tells how to make French dressing. Use the following proportions and make any amount you need: Half-teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of cayenne, paprika if desired, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, six tablespoonfuls of oil. Add vinegar sparingly and beat the ingredients together until they are well blended. If you have a cruet, or other bottle with a tight stopper, you can keep French dressing on hand all the time, simply shaking the bottle vigorously when ready to use it. Many people like a tablespoonful of chopped pickle added to French dressing for a salad of this type. If you use it, add it just at serving time.

CANNED RHUBARB FOR WINTER USE

Fine Flavor Developed by Baking, Then Canning.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sometimes a slight variation in the detail of method in preserving a given food makes considerable difference in the flavor and quality of the product. This is especially true with respect to canning certain fruits and vegetables at home. While there are general rules to be observed in connection with all canning, it is worth while to know what particular treatment will bring out the best flavor in the product with which one is working.

Rhubarb may be mentioned as an example. While it is entirely possible to stew rhubarb and then can it, it has been found that a much finer flavor is developed if the rhubarb is first baked and then canned. The stalks are washed and cut into half-inch lengths. One-fourth as much sugar as rhubarb, by measure, is added and the rhubarb is baked until tender, in a covered dish. No water is added. The cooked rhubarb is then packed hot into hot jars, and processed for five minutes in a hot-water bath. By a hot-water bath is understood any covered vessel of sufficient depth for the jars or cans, when set on a rack or false bottom, to be completely immersed while processing.

What is called the "hot pack" is now considered by the United States Department of Agriculture to be the best method of canning for all vegetables and a number of fruits. Certain fruits may be packed cold if boiling sirup is poured over them in the canisters and the processing is continued for 20 minutes or more, according to the product. Rhubarb may also be canned in this way, if processed 20 minutes, but the other method, in which the rhubarb is baked without water and packed with only the sirup developed by the baking, is better flavored.

Farmers' Bulletin 1471-F, "Canning Fruits and Vegetables at Home," gives the full details of the canning of the products commonly canned at home. It may be obtained, while the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C.

To wage war against the greenfly and so protect foodstuffs the British ministry of agriculture has granted money for an experimental station to provide winter homes for ladybugs. ### Slowing Up?

OVERWORK, worry and lack of rest, all put extra burdens on the kidneys. When the kidneys slow up, waste poisons build up in the blood and are apt to make one languid, tired and aching, with dull headaches, dizziness and even a nagging back-ache.

A common warning of imperfect kidney action is a burning or stinging secretion. Doan's Pills assist the kidneys in their eliminative work. Are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

WHO'S WHO

Jeanne Beaufort, beautiful daughter of a Virginia planter, has lost her father and two brothers in the Civil War. (The year 1864.) She swears to Mrs. Wetmore, her aunt, that she will carry out the Biblical injunction for vengeance—"an eye for an eye!" While at Richmond she meets Henry Morgan, a debonaire young officer, who falls in love with her. She repels his advances. She is engaged as a spy for the Confederate government and urged to use all the wiles and power of her sex to find one

Parson Kennedy, and bring him within the Southern lines. It is planned to have her make headquarters with a family of southern sympathists in Washington. Jeanne learns telegraphy and other technical branches of her new calling. And clad as a boy often in the Blue of the North, she makes her way through the lines. She hears of an organization of clever Union spies, and of their meeting place in a Richmond loft. As she overhears the leaders address the masked men seated about a table, Jeanne is discovered and dragged into the room. The leader unmask as he threatens her with death, but is dissuaded from shooting her by the suggestion from one of the men that one of their number marry her. She consents and when one of the masked men volunteers to marry she refuses and claims the right to choose.

CHAPTER III MYSTERY VISITOR

The speaker paused and then went on solemnly:
"But this I promise you, on the word of Parson John Kennedy, that no man shall follow you—no man shall touch you."
Parson John Kennedy! The man for whom they had laid and sprung a thousand futile traps. Who had beaten them at every turn! And this formidable man was playing into her hands!
"Now, then, choose," said Irony for so the girl had mentally named her tormentor. (Would she ever be able to recognize his voice in case he did get away?) "I can certify that we are all unmarried, young and brave."
She did not look toward the man who had offered to sacrifice his liberty to save her life. She looked at Irony.

"I will marry you, sir," she said, "and you shall share the misery you thrust so wantonly upon me."
"I see that I am hoist on my own petard." He had the courage to laugh. And few of them realized what fine-grained courage it was. He was saving this girl's life at the expense of his future; for nothing except an inhuman jest like this would have exorcised Parson Kennedy. "So be it. Miss, about to become Madam Who—I haven't even asked you to wipe the grime from your face so that I might recognize you in the future. I am satisfied."

Half an hour's thought.
Doubtless no stranger marriage ceremony ever took place than that which joined Jeanne Beaufort to this mad banterer, unknown to her either by face or name. When it was done, Parson Kennedy offered the quill to the girl. She hesitated for a moment, straining her ears. Forty minutes, forty minutes—they were on the way to her. She wrote "Mary Smith" on the hastily drawn-up certificate. Irony seized the pen from her trembling fingers and signed "John Jones." Then he stopped back—just in time. Her hand had flown to the curtain of his mask.
"Not quite," he laughed. "Mary Smith is not your real name; no more in Jones mine. But you will write your real name there when you are alone. You have told us that you believe in oaths. I'll add my real name among those who witness the transaction. Find it if you can!"

A-N-K-S P-A-G
G-R-D-A J-N-K-F
J-W-G-S W-B-E-H

He folded his bare arms across his chest, and upon the left forearm she saw a bit of tattooing, a blue circle with a curious little device in the center. The glance was sufficient to print it indelibly in her mind.
Fifty minutes! Dear God, why did they not come?

"All over!" said Parson Kennedy, putting on his mask. He pulled out the drawer and tossed upon the table some stout twine. "Blind her, Benedict, and tie a handkerchief over her mouth. Then set her in my chair."

Coats and hats were picked up in furious haste, papers stuffed into pockets. And then, like so many falling rockets, they leaped down the rickety stairs, close-pressed and jostling.

"Curse you, you have wrecked three lives this night!" whispered a voice in Irony's ear. But as he turned, the speaker disappeared.

Up in the loft the girl struggled and strained futilely. Beaten, dishonored, humiliated. It was intolerable. It was all some hellish nightmare; it could not possibly be fact reality. And yet, that dreaded man, Parson Kennedy—he had been real enough.

A marriage certificate, crudely done but none the less genuine! started at the varied scraps of old heavenly, married! To what, to whom? She suddenly became limp, awayed, and sank face downward upon the table—where her belated troopers in butternut found her.

Madam Who?
When Jeanne Beaufort started out on her self-imposed mission that night, she had been something of an adventurous girl! She left that loft wholly a woman—broken, bewildered and terrified, it is true, but a woman her brains seething with unimaginable reprisals.

Her troopers had come to arrest a band of conspirators; instead they loosed a tigress who reviled them and taunted them for their slowness. Each and every one of those eleven men should pay; and more than his comrades, the man she had named Irony.

Parson Kennedy had had the hardihood to disclose his saturnal face to her. She could watch him in Washington, move against him in direct and open warfare.

None of them would recognize her again; of this she was assured.

Within three weeks' time Jeanne was able to pick up her natural role. She was always meeting Morgan, and he was always sighing for some favor, always metaphorically at her feet. One day she liked him; another she disliked him.
Perhaps this was accountable to the fact that she knew there was a strong and vital man deep down under all this tupperry.
"But I do not love you, and I have no intention of loving you," she protested.
"Well since you intend not to love me, I see hope. Come, Jeanne Beaufort, let us understand each other."

"I understand myself perfectly," she countered.

"You laugh, joke, dance, play—and all the while that brilliant mind of yours is scheming, scheming."

"In mercy's name for what?"
"The Cause!" His face grew serious.

So did hers. "What do you mean by that?" She felt vaguely alarmed. Did he know?

"I mean that what you are, I am; that I search for Death even as you do; that hazard is breath to us both. To stab the enemy in the back, that is your work and mine. To a soldier who falls into the enemy's hands—who fills him the honors of war! But to you and me—short shrift, as they say. We shall be in Washington together shortly; and from time to time I shall be under your orders. Not a word; your aunt is approaching. I shall see you at the ball tonight. I expect to join my regiment tomorrow. Good day!"

She felt her aunt's arm steal around her. "Your ball-dress has come. Better try it on and see if it is alright."

"You will break hearts," said her aunt, reflectively.

"I hope to," replied Jeanne enthusiastically. She slipped off the gown.

"You're a strange girl. If you weren't flesh and blood, if I didn't know you as I do, I should say you had no heart."

"Sometimes I wonder. Perhaps I should have been a boy; they don't have to have hearts."

"There are times, however, when I believe that you are a boy."

"That's an odd remark," Jeanne

DON'T DIE OF CANCER.
LADIES—14078 B. C.
GOVERNMENT SHOULD PAY.
NEED NON-EXPLOSIVE FUEL.

A. W. Pond, scientific gentleman, back from Africa, says ladies of 150,000 years ago used cosmetics "extravagant ornaments" and painted their cheeks red.

They went to extremes, wore necklaces made of ostrich eggs, and some of them painted their faces yellow and black, as well as red.

Still earlier, 500,000 years ago when men used "fish hatchets," long sharp stones shaped like pickaxes, the ladies, then covered from head to foot with reddish hair, were probably pulling the hair from their cheeks, noticing that gentlemen preferred smooth skin. It has been a long painful climb to the flapper of today, but worth it.

Don't die of cancer—it isn't necessary. At the age of forty, one out of every ten persons has a cancer 100,000 die of cancer in the United States every year. At least 75,000 die unnecessarily. Autopsies show that thousands, dead of old age, take cancers to the grave with them.

Pay attention to any strange growth on the body. A few seconds work will often prevent a cancer spreading. Above all, keep in good condition, with regular sleep, moderate exercise, much fresh air and your blood will take care of the cancer.

The Government wonders what to do with surplus taxes. It might use the first few hundred millions to indemnify victims of the Mississippi flood. If the Government had done its duty in years past, the flood would not have occurred.

Those that realize the importance of soil fertility will be interested in Colonel Ewing's casual remark that men digging for artesian wells in lower Louisiana, went through fifteen hundred feet of the richest soil, deposited by the great river, a soil far richer and deeper than that of Egypt.

The company doesn't need that trifle, but will let employees of the company buy the stock to increase interest in their work. They had already bought ten millions of the stock.

Udine Utley, fifteen year old evangelist arrived to save souls in New York at an unfortunate moment, with the Snyder case in full blast. Not even a New Yorker can attend to everything at once. Still, she saved forty-five souls on her opening night—not bad, in New York. But some will need to be saved several times. New York's night life is exciting.

In Baltimore Jules Askin, artist painted from nature on the Sabbath. You are not supposed to work on Sunday in Baltimore. They locked him up. He asked, "who paints the beautiful sunrise and sunset on Sunday, and what do you do to Him?"

FATHER OF FORMER MENTONE RESIDENTS

Charles Redinger of near Argos, father of William and Mark Redinger, former residents of Mentone, passed away at his home Saturday evening. Mr. Redinger was an old settler of Marshall County, having resided 53 years at one place in that county. Funeral services were held yesterday morning at ten o'clock.

HIGH VOLTAGE KILLS MAN

After the failure of the horn-gas to function properly, Thomas Holbrook, lineman for the Interstate Public Service Co., was killed instantly, Friday night while changing a fuse on the Company's lines at Leesburg. Holbrook came in contact with a line carrying 33,000 volts. The accident happened at about 9:30.

When the town of North Webster was thrown in complete, and Leesburg in partial darkness, because of the burning out of a fuse on the 33,000 volt line, Holbrook was called to remedy the trouble. He immediately rushed to Leesburg, accompanied by Walter Belinger, a Warsaw Lineman. Upon their arrival at Leesburg they were joined by D. C. Cunningham a lineman from North Webster. After examining, they all agreed that the air-break switch was working properly, so Holbrook wanted to the top of the tower. Upon reaching to pull the fuse, the full 33,000 volts flashed through his body, and he fell to the ground.

Efforts to revive him were frantically carried on by his fellow workmen and physicians who were called, but after several efforts in vain, hopes were relinquished of reviving him and the body was taken to the Landis Funeral Home in Warsaw.

Mr. Holbrook was superintendent of electrical Distribution for the Service Company, a position to which he had advanced during his 11 years of employment with the Company.

Mr. Holbrook, was 34 years of age. He had served in the American Army on the Mexican border at the time of the trouble with that country, and as Top Sergeant of the Headquarters Company of the 137th Regiment during the World War. He was a member of the Warsaw Post of American Legion.

Surviving are the wife, three small daughters, Barbara Ann, S. Robert Jann, and Betty Jean, twins about two years of age, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Holbrook, a brother Clark, two sisters, Mrs. Earl Loy and Mrs. Dewitt Harris, all residents of Warsaw.

Funeral ceremonies were held yesterday afternoon, Dr. Palmer of the Presbyterian Church officiating. Burial was made in the Oakwood cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Nelson and daughter, Miss Kathryn went to Indianapolis Tuesday where they will be the guests of friends for a week or longer.

LOCAL BAND UNDER WAY

With a total membership of twenty good musicians, all of whom know music from A to Z, the local Citizens Band is well under way to a very successful season. Practices have been held in the hall for the past several weeks. The conductor and manager of the organization have reported very favorably about the progress of the band, and the coming concert season is being looked forward to by the people of Mentone.

Harry Brosing has been selected as leader of the Band, and L. C. Borton as business manager. Mr. Brosing is a musician and leader of proven and well known ability.

New Uniforms Ordered
New suits have been ordered from a maker of uniforms. The new outfits will consist of blue coats, trousers and caps for the men, and coats, skirts, and caps for the ladies. The material is a dark blue. The coat will be high-cut, with wide black braid around the bottom and the bottom of the sleeve. The trousers will have a stripe of the same braid down the side. The band members, dressed in the new outfits, will present an appearance of which we all can be proud.

First Concert June 1
As far as is known at the present the first concert will be played on the street, in the evening of the second of June, Thursday. A wide selection of pieces to please everyone will be played. Definite announcement as to the date of the first concert will be made later.

The band will furnish the music for the Memorial Day ceremonies, to be held Monday, May 30. This will be their first public appearance of the season.

Following are the names of the twenty members:—Harry Brosing, Edson Vandemark, Ira Anderson, Cornets; Arthur Brown, Orval Guy, Clarinets; Helen Weirick, Charles Manwaring, Saxophones; Russell Fleck, Mrs. Edson Vandemark, Alva Mendel, Alto; Allen Dille, Seward Bittling, Ralph Borton, Trombones; Harry Shaw, L. C. Borton, Bass; Sherman Bybee, Freeman Flasher, Drums, Raymond Weirick, Artie Coar Battered.

ESTER CHANGED HER MIND

(By D. J. Walsh.)

ESTER BOONE made a final stroke with her brush and stood back to view the effect of her work. Upon a large white board she had printed beautifully these words: "For Sale." No one could overlook the message. She put her hand to her throat to press back a painful lump. "For Sale!" She never dreamed it would come to that.

Yet she had done the best she could, the utmost that was in her. Ever since Stephen died she had fought her way with every bit of strength and ingenuity she possessed. For eight years she had coaxed the soil to yield what it would not, and had experimented with chickens and turkeys. She had hung on with fine valor until there no longer was anything to hang to. There was no "let-up" in Ester's nature, no succumbing resource had ever failed. Now, even if herself beaten, she had mustered such grace as she could summon and had printed her sign. It was the symbol of much more than selling the old farm.

The sign having been finished, nothing remained but to put it in place. She found the hammer and nails and went out of the house and down to the big maple that stood like a sentinel in that corner of the yard where the new highway ever along. With steady fingers she held the sign and drove it to its place.

Down the road came a smart car driven by a man who first cringed as he saw Ester, then drew up to speak to her.

"What is coming to it, I see, he remarked. 'I knew you would.'"

Ester dropped a nail and pounded her thumb at the same instant. But not until her sign was firmly in place did she turn and look at the man. In her face was indignation, restraint and defiance, but she said not a word.

"Look here, Ester," Merton Finch went on, ignoring her attitude. "I'll buy your place and give you a good price for it. That's straight. I'll draw you a check now." He reached into a pocket.

Ester's chin lifted in superb scorn. "Yes—if I'll marry you, that is," she said in a throaty voice. "I understand you, Merton."

He had produced the checkbook and a pen.

"Come now," he said. "A bargain is a bargain. You want to sell, I want to buy. Name your price."

Ester gasped.

"Do you think I'd marry you even if I hadn't a penny or a cent?" she said. "I know how you used your first wife and what you did to your second. I—"

Suddenly she turned, plucked the sign from the tree and slapped it against the tree trunk, splitting the thin board into kindling.

"There!" she said. "You can drive on. This place isn't for sale now. Drive on, I say." She lifted, perhaps unconsciously, the hammer high in the air and with a laugh Merton Finch drove on. But his small face as his long neck was crimson with defeat.

Ester went back to the house, round to the kitchen steps and sat down. She wiped the cold sweat from her forehead.

"Marry him," she repeated. "Let him have Stephen's farm!" She dropped her face in her hands.

"Ester! Ester! Ester!" It was a familiar woman's voice calling her name. She looked up and saw her nearest neighbor, Mrs. Gurnsey, running cross-lots. What could have happened? Ester's first thought was to sit. She sprang up and went to meet the woman.

"Ester!" Mrs. Gurnsey panted. "There's three men over on your farm prowling around, getting awful queer. They've got instruments. I've been watching them an hour. I wondered if you'd seen 'em or knew what they were up to."

"No, I can't see them from here. I'll have to go upstairs and look out of the west chamber window. Come along, Mrs. Gurnsey."

From the west chamber window the two women observed the three men, without in the least understanding what their action seemed to be.

"Seems like they're looking for something," Mrs. Gurnsey said. "There! They are coming this way. Now likely we'll find out."

Presently there came a knock at the front door and Ester and Mrs. Gurnsey went down. Ester opened the door.

"Does Mrs. Ester Boone live here?" asked the oldest of the three men. "I am Mrs. Boone," Ester answered with her quiet dignity.

"I should like to speak to you for a few minutes, Mrs. Boone. The man held out a card. Ester glanced at the name—"Rufus J. Bramley, attorney-at-law." She had heard of him.

"Come in, Mr. Bramley," she said, and opened the door to her parlor, the room where Stephen had lain those last three days he was in his house, the room where his pictures looked down from the wall. She lifted the shades and placed chairs.

Mr. Bramley came to the point at once. He had strong reason to believe that there was all on Ester's farm and other places in that locality. He was buying up the land; he wanted to buy hers. Would she take—and he named a sum so much in excess of any that Ester had ever dreamed of getting that she turned deadly white and shook like a leaf.

At that instant she met Mrs. Gurnsey's eyes fixed upon her in a compelling stare. Those blue eyes of Mrs. Gurnsey's usually so mild had grown fierce. Added to this she was shaking her head.

A flush, partly of surprise, partly of joy, chased away the pallor of Ester's face.

"But I don't care to sell," she said. Nor could she be made to alter her decision. In the end Mr. Bramley was forced to compromise. If she would not sell her land would she sell her rights? Ester glanced at Mrs. Gurnsey, faltered and then spoke:

"I'll see my lawyer and let you know," she said.

Two months later Ester at the wheel of her new roadster, with Mrs. Gurnsey beside her, was motoring home from town when she saw Merton Finch stalled in the road ahead of her. She slowed down out of courtesy.

"Bad luck?" she called.

He glanced up, but did not answer.

"Dear man! I don't blame him for being mad," Mrs. Gurnsey said. "He didn't get you or the farm, either. And you have made good, more than good."

Ester radiantly returned the laugh. She looked ten years younger in her stylish hat and coat. The oil well was flowing tremendously and had fair to make her a rich woman. She could afford to be generous even with Merton Finch.

Woman of Resource Just "Outsat" Senator

She says she is not a lobbyist. She says that she merely takes an interest in politics. She says she likes to get things done. It's lots of fun.

"One day I outsat Senator Topical," she told.

He's hard boiled, is Senator Topical. He does not commit himself easily. Men come to him, all flushed and steaming, with projects on which the fate of the nation hangs. Senator Topical sits and listens. Says nothing. By and by the lobbyists gather their forces again and charge home. The senator sits and says nothing.

In forty minutes' time he can wear out the best man," she says. "They blow up. They stamp out of the office acting like fire signals. No man has ever yet outsat Senator Topical."

But she did.

The members of the misallied weaker sex are currently reported to be flighty, irritable and petulant in politics. They are apt to try charm on granite statues, who have had charm used on them for years. Like their male rivals, they lose their tempers when confronted by a silent, sitting senator.

She did not.

She sat. And sat. And sat. And sat. It was the senator who cured. Which seems to prove that an immovable post is sometimes proved by an irresistible force.—Kansas City Star.

Communitarian Experiment

Brook Farm was a communitarian experiment founded in 1841 at West Roxbury, Mass. The Brook Farm Association of Education and Agriculture, as it was officially styled, was an attempt to solve the social problem through the institution of equality in rewards and the adaptation of tasks to individual capacities. It grew out of the social and philosophical movement represented by the Transcendental club, of which Ripley, Channing, Emerson, Thoreau, Hawthorne, Dwight and Margaret Fuller were leading members. Not all of these accepted the Brook Farm plan of economic organization, but all were in sympathy with its ideals. The leading spirit in the Brook Farm association was George Ripley.

Rude Suggestion

Bonehead Muir, whose paintings of the World War are renowned, is the subject of a Washington anecdote.

A rich Washington couple quavered a great deal. But at a dinner party the other night they were on good terms for once, and they talked about having their portrait painted—a portrait group of two.

"But we didn't know," said his wife. "What painter to get to paint us."

An aged diplomat suggested in a solemn voice:

"Why not Bonehead Muir, madam? He does excellent battle pictures."

Air Hunt for Minerals

Alplanes and seaplanes are being employed in a three-year geological survey of Saskatchewan. It is known that the province, particularly to the north, contains vast undeveloped mineral wealth, and research will be concentrated upon that region. The machines draw supplies of gasoline and oil from convenient centers, and the airmen, as a preliminary, make maps of little known or unknown territory. These maps are handed over to geologists, working in consultation with the airmen, and in turn the geologists are followed by expert prospectors.

Differences in Feet

The French foot is narrow and long. The Spanish foot is small and elegantly curved. The Arab's foot is proverbial for its high arch. The foot of the Scottish is high and thick; that of the Irish flat and square; the English short and fleshy. Swedes, Norwegians and Germans have the largest feet, Americans the smallest. Russian toes are "webbed" to the first joint.

Bird Has Long Life

How long can a bird live? A new official record for long life among the feathered tribe has been set by a twelve-year-old bird captured near Brawley, Calif., according to Popular Science Monthly. A dated band attached to the bird's leg more than twelve years ago at Bear River, Utah, by a member of the United States biological survey, proves the record authentic.

6 things to understand about used car allowances

- 1 When you trade-in your used car for a new car, you are after all making a purchase, not a sale. You are simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of the new car.
- 2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
- 3 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
- 4 The largest allowance is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.
- 5 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
- 6 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.

CANNED CHERRIES FOR WINTER PIES

Surplus Fruit Easily Put Away for Future Use.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.
The cherry season is short. As a rule, the family cannot use all the fresh cherries from even a single tree, so it becomes necessary, if one would have the benefit of the entire crop, to can the surplus for later use. This is not at all difficult, particularly if you arm yourself before beginning any canning, with a copy of Farmers' Bulletin 1473-F, "Canning Fruits and Vegetables at Home," obtainable from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Pack the cherries into hot jars, and cover them with boiling syrup. Use thick syrup for sour cherries—that is, one part sugar to one part water—and a medium syrup for sweet cherries—one part sugar to two parts water. Process pint and quart jars for 25 minutes in a hot-water bath, counting the time from the moment the surrounding water is actively boiling. If you use No. 2 or No. 3 tin cans process for 20 minutes.

If you wish cherry jelly in winter that have the fresh-fruit taste, can them without syrup to dilute the flavor. Remove the pits from the cherries, add sugar as desired and bring the cherries to the boiling point. Then pack hot in hot jars and process for five minutes. These packed with the pits will be useful for cherry sauce, cherry beverages and many other good things.

If you plan to make cherry jelly you will need to use pectin, as cherries are one of the fruits somewhat lacking in this ingredient requisite for jelling. Department Circular 234 will tell you not only how to make the jelly with pectin but how to make the pectin also.

Strawberry Fruit Punch Is Ambrosial Beverage

Strawberry fruit punch is an ambrosial beverage to serve at festivities when strawberries are available and all sorts of parties are in the air. The amounts given in the recipe below, which has been tried out by the bureau of home economics, makes about five gallons of punch and should be sufficient to serve between 50 and 75 people liberally. Chill all the ingredients to be used for some time before mixing the punch. Add water that has been level or chilled ice.

Fruit Punch.
3 dozen lemons made strong tea
1½ dozen oranges 5 cups sugar
6 quarts strawberries 6 cups water
6 quarts raspberries 2 quarts apple
2 No. 2 cans shredded pineapple ½ teaspoonful of 3 quarts freshly salt

Boil the sugar and water together to make a heavy syrup. Cut the large berries in thirds or halves and crush the remainder. Strain the oranges and lemons, and after the juice is extracted, cover the skins with water, let them stand an hour or longer, and then pour off this liquid and add it to the fruit juice. Combine all the ingredients and add chopped ice until thoroughly cold. Just before serving add the apple, raisins, and if the punch is too strong add ice water in small quantities until it is the flavor desired. This makes about five gallons of punch.

CUSTARD WITH FRUIT AND ANGEL FOOD

A Delicious Dish With Fruit and Cake.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Springtime, when eggs are plentiful, is the season to indulge the family with cakes of the sponge-cake group. The ingredients in all of these cakes are similar, since all contain a large proportion of eggs and no butter or other fat. Eggs supply the liquid and inclose air for leavening. Plain sponge cake requires the use of whole eggs. In sponges cake twice as many whites as yolks are used. Angel food calls for the whites only. As there are always yolks left over when an angel food cake is baked, a good many people use them to make a soft custard to serve on fruit with the cake for dessert. Silken custard or banana cake, or almost any canned fruit may be used.

The bureau of home economics gives the following directions for making both angel food and custard.

Angel Food.
1 cupful soft-wheat flour
1½ cupfuls of sugar
1 teaspoonful of cream of tartar
1 cupful egg whites (8 fairly fresh eggs)
½ teaspoonful of salt
1 teaspoonful of cream of tartar

Angel food is not mixed in quite the same way as sponges cake. The sugar, flour, and salt are sifted together several times. The egg whites are beaten with the other

Variety and Contrast in Flavor of Foods Served

The matter of variety and contrast in the texture and flavor of the foods combined in one meal is not always given sufficient thought. One finds occasionally that everything served is soft and lacking in "chewy" food—as, for example, a combination consisting of a creamed dish, mashed vegetables, and a milk pudding. Each of these foods would probably be excellent alone, but they do not go well together. Again, when a milk flavor predominates throughout a menu, the food lacks zest. Contrast in texture can be secured by serving something crunchy like toast, or browned crumbs on a scalloped dish, something soft, as a white sauce or custard, something crisp and fresh, like lettuce or cold slaw. For variety in flavor some of the foods chosen should be milk or bland, like potatoes or bread; some should have a pronounced flavor, as in the case of milk toast, roast lamb, ham or cheese, or some of the vegetables such as cauliflower, cabbage and onions; there should also be something sour in itself, like tomatoes or pickles, or like spinach or beets—something that is ordinarily served dressing, or a salad with French dressing. Sweet favor is usually provided in the dessert, or it may be introduced elsewhere in the menu as in candied sweet potatoes, or in the form of jelly with meat.

In addition to these requirements in the foods chosen for a menu, it is necessary, of course, to see that each of the five food groups is given by the United States Department of Agriculture is represented—vegetables and fruits, cereal or starchy foods, animal-protein foods, fats and sugars. Some thought must be given also to the relative proportions of foods chosen from these groups in order to supply sufficient protein of the right kind, calories, minerals and vitamins. These are sometimes called the "four points of food value."

Drinking Orange Juice for Breakfast Favored

Sometimes the orange that is cut in half and placed on the breakfast table is not eaten because the various members of the family simply do not have time before hurrying off to school or work to dig out the pulp with a spoon. For the same reason, the whole orange, intended to be peeled and eaten in sections is left. The family gets into the habit of disposing with oranges, which is not a good thing, for oranges are one of the best sources of vitamins we have and are classed among the extremely important foods for children, the United States Department of Agriculture says.

Why not serve orange juice in glasses or sherbet cups to the members of the family who must hurry off in the morning? The habit of drinking orange juice grown up and the child will drink it several times a day in the p.m. He may have it at lunch, perhaps, and again when first home from school hungry looking around for "something to eat," with mother equally anxious that he shall not spoil his appetite for dinner. Orange juice is suitable as a beverage for children's noon lunch and appeals to them because they cannot have the fruit or coffee which they see older persons drinking.

W. H. Stearn Gains 15 lbs. Appetite Keen As Razor

Respected Indianapolis carpenter suffered agony for six years. Could not eat or sleep. Weak, worn out and discouraged. Now, at 67, enjoys good health, exudes good cheer, enthusiasm and energy. Gives full credit to Tanlac

Mr. W. H. Stearn lives at 1211 No. Oakland Avenue, Indianapolis. At 67 years he works steadily as a journeyman carpenter, meeting the competition of men half his age, and holding his own with the best. But for six years he had a different story to tell. Here it is, in his own words: "I was so rundown from indigestion that my appetite was completely shattered. When a big contract obliged me to speed up and work overtime, my day's work almost killed me. Sometimes I was actually too weak to raise my hammer or pull over my head and I was too weak to stand on my feet. Constipation and sluggish liver bothered me and my head troubled me in nervousness. At night I tossed and rolled in bed. Though my work demands plenty of food, my appetite was shut to pieces and I hardly ate enough to keep body and soul together. "I was so weak that I had to now eat and sleep normally again. I'm as energetic as a man of 35 or 40 and don't have to ask odds of younger men. My appetite is like the keen edge of a freshly honed razor, and I digest my food like a boy back from the skating pond. The old dizziness, weakness, aches and pains never rack me now. I give all credit to Tanlac for my present fine health, and recommend all other sufferers to try it."

You can profit from Mr. Stearn's experience. If overwork or neglect has left its mark on you, get a trial bottle of Tanlac. It is nature's own tonic and body builder, made from herbs, roots and bark. Your drug-gest has it; start in on Tanlac today. Over 52 million bottles already sold.

"What's that about Opportunity?" "I say he knocks at my door every day. But I can't go into all of his schemes."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Leave it to Mother what's Best

"WHEN I received a sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Syrup I gave it to my two-months-old baby without hesitation, as I had often heard of it as the very best medicine for children. It stopped crying right away, began sleeping good and growing fast. For myself it has been the very best stomach and laxative medicine and I can't praise it too much. (Name and address will be furnished upon request.)"

WARSAW AVIATOR, WHO WAS KILLED ON DUTY

BURIED SUN. AFTERNOON
The body of Lieut. George W. Lehman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Lehman, of Warsaw, was laid in its last resting place, Sunday afternoon, when it was interred in the Warsaw cemetery, after being sent to Mr. Lehman's home from the east coast. Geo. Lehman was killed April, 20 while he and three other airmen were in flight above the Atlantic Ocean. Their plane was struck by lightning and burst into flames falling into the ocean. The bodies were not found after several days searching, but a fisherman found the body of Lehman floating on the surface near New Point Comfort last Tuesday.

PIERCETON LADY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY TRAIN

AT LARWILL CROSSING
A car driven by Mrs. Allen English of Piercetion and on which the brakes failed to work was struck by a fast passenger train at Larwill Friday afternoon. Examination revealed Mrs. English's injuries as a broken left arm and bruised heel.

BRACKMAN ON NICKLE PLATE SUFFERS LOSS OF LEGS

G. W. Nicholson, Brackman for the Nickle Plate R. R. Suffered the loss of both legs while the train he was working on was switching in the yards of that railroad, in Arcos, Thursday afternoon. Nicholson was making a coupling between two freight cars. In some manner he fell between the rails while the train was moving. He fell so that his body rested between the rails and his legs extended across one of the rails. The cars completely severed both legs the left just below the knee, and the right halfway between the knee and the ankle. Nicholson was rushed to a Peru Hospital immediately where at last report he was resting easily and convalescing nicely.

MAN SOUGHT FOR BOMBING BOURBON HOME

Stuart Guort, 40, of Lapaz is being sought by authorities for the bombing of the James H. Machette home at Bourbon. The Machette residence was bombed about a week ago. County officials claim they have unearthed a blackmail plot which has been hatching for nearly a year. Matchette is said to be afraid of Guort and to have testified against him reluctantly. Matchette testified that on September 24, 1926, Guort kidnapped him taking him to a farm that Guort had recently purchased of Matchette. There he bound and gagged him and demanded money. Matchette refused to admit that he had given the money to Guort.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Trustees of the Incorporated town of Mentone, Kosciusko County, Indiana, has adopted a final resolution for the improvement by paving with one of the kinds of modern City pavements the following described public streets in said Town, to-wit:

Beginning on Franklin Street at the South corporate line of the Town of Mentone, Kosciusko County, Indiana, and running thence North to the North line of Harrison Street, excepting that part of the Main and Harrison Street intersection already paved.

Also a spur, the center line of which is 104.7 feet South of the Northeast corner of Section 2, Township 31 North, Range 4 East, and running thence Northwest parallel with the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad to the concrete pavement on Main Street.

Also beginning at the East line of the intersection of Franklin and Harrison Streets and running thence East on Harrison Street to the East line of Broadway Street.

Also beginning at the South line of the intersection of Harrison and Broadway Streets and running thence South on Broadway Street to the North track of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad, excepting that part of the Main and Broadway Street intersection already paved.

The Board of Trustees of said Town will meet at the Town Hall in said Town at 2:00 o'clock P. M. of Tuesday May 24th, 1927, at which time and place Board will receive open and publicly read and consider bids for the construction of said improvements in accordance with the complete plans and specifications heretofore adopted by said Board and now on file with the Town Clerk of said Town. The kinds of City pavement adopted by said Board are, one course concrete, creosoted wooden block, vitrified brick and sheet asphalt, together with curb and gutters and foundations.

Each bid must be accompanied by a non-collusion affidavit, and a certified check for an amount not less than two and one-half (2 1/2%) percent of the engineers estimate of the cost of said improvements, which checks will be returned to the unsuccessful bidders and to the successful bidder when he shall have entered into a contract for said work and given a bond for its faithful execution and a three year maintenance on the cost of said improvements will be levied as special assessments upon the real estate benefited thereby, except that the cost of the spur described in said specifications and the rest of the street and alley intersections will be paid by said Town out of its general fund.

After said bids are received said Board will make its preliminary award designating the kind of pavement to be constructed, and after the expiration of a ten day period will award the contract to the lowest and best bidder for the kind of improvement finally determined upon, but the said Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Witness our hands and the seal of said Town this 4th day of May, 1927.

E. D. ANDERSON
President, Board of Trustees
Incorporated Town of Mentone

There's a joker in the "cheap" paint can!

"Cheap" paint looks like paint and smells like paint—and the low price seems to be attractive. But here is the two-sided "joker."

A gallon covers only about half the area covered by SWP House Paint—a strictly quality paint. Nearly twice as many gallons are needed. Figure that out and the low price isn't low at all.

Then it lasts only about half as long on the house—needs to be renewed oftener—costs over twice as much per year as SWP.

Come in. Let us tell you the whole story about real paint economy. We will save you money.

GUARANTEED!

SWP House Paint is guaranteed to look better, last longer, cost less per job and less per year than any house paint on the market.

That Always Stays Soft

Here is a Wolverine shoe for year 'round wear. The tops are high enough to keep out the mud and dirt of the spring and fall, low enough for coolness in the summer and are ideal in the winter to wear under an overshoe. Because of its general utility this Wolverine is one of our largest sellers. Made of Cordovan horsehide, there is almost no wear-out to the upper; our experience has been this upper will wear out on an average of two pairs of half soles. A light weight work shoe that is soft when you buy it, and stays that way.

Cold Facts Must Be Faced In Business

If a man smashed the thermometer because it said 20 below zero, it wouldn't make him any warmer. The thermometer was simply an humble instrument keeping him informed with the facts.

It isn't always pleasant to face facts because the facts are not always what we would like to have them. But isn't it a good deal better to form the habit of dealing with actual facts than to attempt to side step them? You can turn your head away or you can shut your eyes, but the reality continues just the same, whether you see it or not.

Here in the bank we have to deal with facts. If we owe you money you expect to be paid in actual coin, and not in hope or in cheerful words or expectations. We must penetrate the confusing side issues, and find what the realities are in every situation. Perhaps we could help you to look over some of your problems, and see them from an unsentimental point of view. We are friendly to your undertakings, but we know that it doesn't pay you or anybody else to let himself be fooled about the facts of his business situation.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Nungesser Lost in Paris-to-New York Flight—Midwest Storm Swept

By EDWARD J. PICKARD

FIRST to attempt the nonstop flight from Paris to New York for the Orteig prize, and first to fall, Capt. Charles Nungesser, famous French ace, and Maj. Francois Coll, and believed at this writing to have been lost somewhere in the North Atlantic. Their plane, "White Bird," was last seen off the southern coast of Ireland. It vanished in the ocean mists and intensive search by French, American and English vessels failed to reveal its fate. Near the week's end there still those who believed the unfortunate aviators might be found in some cove of the Newfoundland or Nova Scotia coast, or on some small vessel that had no wireless. But the hope was exceedingly slender.

At first the blame for the failure of Nungesser's flight was placed by the Paris press on the United States weather bureau, the assertion being made that the flyers were duped by incorrect weather reports from America, and the French people were so aroused by this that Ambassador Hericke cabled advising American entrants in the contest to delay their start. The story was followed by the French weather bureau, assumed full responsibility for the advice on weather conditions given to Nungesser and Coll before they took off. Clarence Chamberlin and Lloyd Berland, seeing no further reason for delay, made all preparations to start their flight from New York in the big Wright-Bellanca plane; and Capt. Louis Lindbergh, veteran air-mil pilot, flew his entry, the Ryan plane, from San Diego to New York with the intention of hopping off for Paris in a few days. Lindbergh flies alone.

FOR three days eight states of the Middle West were subjected to the fury of the weather. Tornadoes, torrential rains and, in the higher altitudes, severe blizzards prevailed, and reports from the widely scattered regions that suffered showed that nearly 250 persons had lost their lives and about one thousand had been injured. The property losses were very heavy. First destruction was wrought in Kansas, where a twister roared in from the southwest. There followed tornadoes that lashed Texas, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana and Illinois, flattening farmhouses and buildings in rural sections and laying towns and villages in waste.

Twice the storms struck at Missouri, in a dozen communities in the central part of the state and at Poplar Bluff. In the southeastern section, The known dead at Poplar Bluff stood at 101, with scores injured and the heart of the city devastated. Ten persons were killed in central Missouri, three by high wind at St. Louis and two by twisters near Springfield.

Arkansas was swept from the southern section to the northeastern counties by a series of twisters. Latest reports placed the dead at 70 and the injured at more than one hundred. The death list in Texas, where tornadoes struck at two points, reached 35.

MORE money is needed for the relief of the Mississippi valley flood victims. The $100,000,000 fund was oversubscribed, but the Red Cross officials announced that the amount raised was insufficient to care for the work in hand. All Red Cross chapters were urged to exceed their original quotas. The latest serious development in the breaking of smallpox among the refugees of the flood-riven section of Louisiana, where an epidemic was feared, Large supplies of vaccine and of typhoid prophylaxis were hurried to that region. Desperate efforts were made to build up the levees along south central Louisiana, at which the flood waters were hammering. The state levee board officials believed the embankment would hold, but naval aviators who flew over the region said they thought the fight to save the Kingdom des Glaises levee was practically lost.

REAR ADMIRAL LATIMER issued a warning to all armed forces in Nicaragua that they would have to surrender their arms peacefully to the American troops there or submit to disarmament by force. This order applied to the Conservatives as well as the Liberal rebels, and the latter are to receive from the Diaz government payment of $10 for each rifle or machine gun surrendered. The possibility that force might be required to persuade some of the belligerents led Admiral Latimer to ask that 800 more marines be sent him. Four hundred were started at once from Quantico, and 400 were embarked at Charleston, S. C., and Port-au-Prince, Haiti. An aviation detachment and six airplanes were sent from Quantico, and another aviation detail with three planes was ready to proceed from San Diego by commercial transportation as they were.

To assist General Moncada, Liberal commander in chief, in persuading his troops to lay down their arms, Henry L. Stimson, personal representative of President Coolidge, wrote the general this letter after their conference at Tipitapa:

"Continuing our conversation of this morning, I have the honor to inform you that I am authorized to say that the President of the United States intends to accept the request of the Nicaraguan government to supervise the elections of 1928; that the retention of President Diaz during the remainder of his term is regarded as essential to that plan and will be insisted upon; that a general disarmament of the country is also regarded as necessary for the proper and successful conduct of such elections, and that the forces of the United States will be authorized to accept the custody of the arms of those willing to lay them down, including the government, and to disarm forcibly those who will not do so."

AMERICAN foreign policy scored heavily when Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, announced in the house of commons that Great Britain had acceded to the view of the United States and would not send further notices to China or apply sanctions for the Nanking outrages. After the review of the facts the British decided the application of force would be inexpedient, however justified, and Great Britain has formed all the other interested powers of this fact, Sir Austen said. He announced, however, that Great Britain will hold whatever government emerges from the chaos of the present Nanking split responsible for the Nanking acts, demanding reparations and compensations.

The British government notified Washington it was ready to co-operate in abrogating extraterritorial rights in China, and our State department announced that this government stands prepared to enter into negotiations for the abrogation of extraterritoriality with any government of China or delegates who can speak for China.

Dr. C. C. Wu, upon assuming the office of foreign minister of the Nanjing government, declared that government has no intention of using force against the Shanghai foreign settlement. When the proper time arrived, the Nationalists will take up the question of the international settlement diplomatically, as well as the entire treaty situation.

The Nationalists of Nanking and Hankow have dropped their quarrel for a time to form a united front against Marshal Chang Tso-lin. General Feng is reported moving eastward to drive the Manchurians from Peking.

IN ACCORDANCE with a decision by Supreme Court Justice Peters of New York, $2,000,000 raised in the United States for the "Irish Republic" does not belong to either the Irish Free State or Eamon de Valera, former President of the republic, but to the trustee for the bondholders. Instead, the sum is to be returned to the subscribers after the heavy expenses of the long litigation are deducted. The immediate return to the subscribers will be made still smaller by another factor. The republic campaigners raised $6,000,000 in the United States. Of this all but the $2,500,000 affected by this decision was sent to Ireland during the struggle to establish in the island a sovereign and single nation. The $2,500,000, therefore, must be spread over a wide field by pro rata distribution.

The outstanding detail of the decision is that Justice Peters finds the Irish republic never existed. He holds the republican movement never got beyond the revolt stage.

MRS. RUTH SNYDER and Henry Judd Gray, convicted in the sensational New York trial of the murder of Albert Snyder, the woman's husband, were sentenced to death in the electric chair. The treatment of this case by the press was notable for the lack of the familiar and disgusting "sob stories" and the verdict of the jury has been received with general approval. Even Gray says it was "wise and sensible."

In a somewhat similar case in Newton, N. J., a jury, five members of which were women, brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree against Frank Van Sickle, who slew the husband of his paramour and sought to blame the woman for his crime. He goes to prison for life.

AN AMAZING scheme to blow up the Illinois penitentiary at Joliet and rescue one or more of the prisoners was devised by an escaped murderer and was foiled only by the alertness of the guards and keepers, who would not let him drive his automobile through the gates. After a fight he arrested him and easily obtained a full confession. Dressed in the black suit and Roman collar of a Catholic priest and with a supply of mustard gas the escaped convict, William Evans, made his daring attempt in order to rescue the man who helped him escape from the Missouri penitentiary at Jefferson City in 1923. That man, he says, is Harry Funk, who is serving a ten-year term at Stateville for bank swindle.

FOLLOWING a recent ruling of the Philippines Supreme court that the governor general has full power over government controlled institutions, Governor General Wood announced that the government is going out of business in the islands and that its holdings in commercial enterprises, involving about $50,000,000, will be sold to the highest responsible bidder. Immediately afterward he handed control of the Manila Railroad company, one of the corporations in which the government owns the majority of the stock, over to Filipinos, by giving the natives a majority on the board of directors of the company. Management of the company also was left in native hands.

JUDGE PURDY of the United States District court in Shanghai sentenced Leonard Husar, former United States district attorney for China, to serve two years in the United States penitentiary at McNeil's Island, Washington, and a fine of $5,000 in gold for accepting a bribe of $34,000 from an opium ring. Judge Purdy also sentenced Neil McKay Hurdle of Georgia, Husar's accomplice, to 18 months' imprisonment and a $1,000 fine.

MONDAY was a great day for Australia, for the new federal capital, Canberra, was formally opened when the temporary parliament buildings were opened by the duke of York. Fifty thousand persons attended the ceremonies and every one of the British dominions was represented. The city of Canberra, which is about 20 miles from Sydney, has an area of 12 square miles. It was designed by a Chicago architect, Walter Burley Griffin, who won first prize in a plan competition. The entire federal district comprises 912 square miles, and strict prohibition prevails there by law.

THE Treasury department has called the $1,700,000,000 outstanding of the second Liberty loan, the bonds to be paid on November 15, the tenth anniversary of their issuance. Opportunity may be offered by the treasury to exchange these bonds for other government securities if cash is not desired. Notice of the call was advertised in every daily, weekly and semi-weekly newspaper in the United States printed in English, by plane, in all post offices and banks and by radio.

BLOUSE AND SKIRT IN CONTRAST: MATCHED ACCESSORIES IN VOGUE

THE two-piece frock which contrasts fancy patterned fabric for the blouse with solid color for the skirt or vice versa is a popular theme of the mode. The combination does not necessarily involve two kinds of material, for one of the outstanding successes of this season is the dress of either silk or wool crepe, the blouse of which is all-over metal embroidered in tiny design. The frock in the picture is typical of this mode. It is styled of hunter's green wool crepe with tiny silver flowerets embroidered on the blouse. Dresses on this order are developed in every fashionable shade. Those in black with gold or silver are exceedingly dressy, while white with touches of metal on the waist is very winsome.

Not only diminutive embroidery effects, the little silk prints are distinctively a product of this season. Especially does the costume of tiny-flowers, which do not trellis the background but rather accent each flower separately or in little individual bouquets, will be a popular theme. Now is the season of day-dreams, when one visions a program of pretty clothes, the possession of which means so much of pleasure and satisfaction for the not-far-distant summer vacation time. A profusion of charming accessories here is a bit of news to bring a flutter of joy to the feminine heart—gay parasols will contribute their picturesque charm to the summer picture.

This revived interest in sunshades is proving an incentive to the stylist to include matching parasols in the fancy scarf, hat and bag sets, which bespeak for themselves such a wide-spread vogue.

Striped taffeta brings a modish aspect to the trio of hat, bag and parasol to the right in the picture, for both need silk carry with it the conviction of being the latest. Quite a pretty fashion is just in at its beginning—that of the skirt of tiny silk print, worn with a knit jumper or sweater. Sometimes the skirt is very finely printed.

Speaking of this finely printed and plaid silk, a new vogue is to use the smooth silk for the top part of the dress, with the accordion or knifed-plaid silk for the skirt portion.

In fact unique treatment is an added note of interest to these charming miniature prints. Very running ensembles are made entirely of these silks. Sometimes they are in three pieces, a blouse, a skirt and a long loose coat or a below-the-waist cape.

In nearly every instance the print is bordered with a solid color. Three stripes and taffeta are important items in the season's styling.

Scene silk, that novelty which has so captured the fancy of women of fashion for frock, for blouse, for beach coat, neglected and what not, is the medium selected for the other hat and parasol in this illustration. Hand-some floral motifs are embroidered with colorful raffia straw, one on the hat and one on the parasol.

Novelty is outstanding in the new parasol sets. In addition to luminous silk prints, taffeta and georgette, cretonnes, ginghams and other cotton weaves are employed most intriguingly in the creating of these accessory sets.

Nothing is smarter, according to latest advice from Paris, than polka dots—these are especially contributing is a disposition to accent the combination of red and navy in the plainest printed dress.

Not only is the small silk print used for the fashioning of the one, two or three-piece costume, but it appears in parasol, scarf and hat sets time and time again. There is this to be said for these little prints, their charm grows upon one. They were not at first accepted with any unusual degree of enthusiasm, but their favor has increased right along until at this moment they are one of the big style items.

Speaking of prints, the mode has shown a sudden favor for those of vivid color on black backgrounds. These are especially attractive in floral patterns, each separate flower standing out in startling relief against its jet blackness. Also for midsummer, white grounds with gay to the interest of parasols, bags, hats and scarves made to match.

Gorgeous Japanese paper sunshades have also entered the vogue. Perhaps it is more accurate to say that they initiated the parasol fashion, for their popularity was notable during the last month at midwinter resorts in the Sunny South. Some of these paper parasols have amusing short handles, which disappear from view when the shade is closed, only the loop, which goes through the top showing.

Now that novel figures and scenes are set forth on parasol tops, there is much opportunity for the amateur artist to decorate her own parasol with cunning hand-painting.

Teaching, golf and tennis scenes, dancing figures and flower patterns, any interesting idea may be painted on one's sunshade.

FOOD SUGGESTIONS

IF THE family like all kinds of foods and are all well, the planning of a meal is not such a problem. With fussy, finicky people who are neither ill nor normal, it is a trying problem to prepare a meal to suit everybody. If there are those in your family who enjoy kidneys the following dish will be enjoyed:

Beefsteak and Kidney Pie.
For an ordinary pie use one pound of round steak and four or five lamb's kidneys. Cut the kidneys through the center, drop into cold water, salt slightly and bring slowly to the boiling point. As soon as the boiling point is reached drain and add cold water with salt and boil again. Then drain and add to the steak. Roll the steak in seasoned flour and brown in a frying pan. Cover with water, add a pinch of marjoram, summer savory, and a few grains of nutmeg. Simmer until the meat is tender. Add any further seasoning needed. Thicken the gravy with flour and add butter. Pour the meat and gravy into a deep dish, cover with a pastry top and bake. Serve either hot or cold.

Chicken a la King.
Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter. In it cook one-fourth of a pound of fresh mushroom caps, peeled and broken in pieces, one-half of a green pepper cut into shreds; stir until some of the moisture is evaporated. In another saucpan melt two tablespoonfuls of butter; in it cook three tablespoonfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika; add one cupful of this cream and one cupful of chicken broth, stir until boiling; beat in one egg yolk, mixed with a teaspoonful of lemon juice and continue heating until the egg is cooked. Do not boil; add the mushrooms and pepper and three cupfuls of inch-square pieces of cooked chicken breast. Serve hot.

Raisin Pie.
Mix two cupfuls of steamed seeded raisins slightly cut or chopped with one lemon (grated rind and juice), one cupful of cold water, one-third of a cupful of sugar and one well-beaten egg. A tablespoonful of flour mixed with a little water may be added, or another egg. Fill the crust and cover with dots of butter, then with latticed crust and bake.

BE A FRIENDLY FELLOW

By SYDNEY J. BURGOWNE

WHEN you wake up in the morning and find that the sort of blue, there's a happy little something that you can always do.

Just pull yourself together and resolve that all the day, you'll be a FRIENDLY FELLOW in all you do and say.

Put on a happy feeling. As you put on your clothes, a FRIENDLY FELLOW feeling that turns the blue to rose.

So with a smile-a-minute and a cheery word or two, you'll be a FRIENDLY FELLOW—that's all you have to do.

And you'll be spreading sunshine about you all the day. By making others happy in that FRIENDLY FELLOW way.

While a mighty lot of goodness will be coming back to you—for if you're a FRIENDLY FELLOW, you find FRIENDLY FELLOWS, too.

Then start the day a-smiling. And keep it up right through—for a truly FRIENDLY FELLOW ends it that way, too.

So be a FRIENDLY FELLOW. For when life's tide is low, "HE WAS A FRIENDLY FELLOW" is worth far more than gold.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

By JOSEPH KAYE

At Twenty-one Edwin Franks Goldman was a Cornetist at the Metropolitan Opera.

"AT THE age of twenty-one I played the cornet in the orchestra of the Metropolitan Opera house, New York. I started there when I was seventeen and did not leave until I was thirty-two, fifteen years in the pit from where I heard wonderful singing, but rarely saw the singers—Edwin Franks Goldman."

TODAY—Edwin Franks Goldman, next to Sousa, is the greatest bandmaster in America. His symphonic band plays every summer a season of three months in New York, concerts which are subsidized by wealthy people to the extent of over a hundred thousand dollars a season. The concerts are attended by as many as twenty thousand people in an evening and have achieved nation-wide fame. Mr. Goldman also is a celebrated record artist.

The steps by which Mr. Goldman worked his way to present standing have been steep and arduous. His career as a bandmaster began when he led the police band of New York, a small local organization, and that was only a few years ago.

Lesson for May 22

PETER HEALS THE LAME MAN

LESSON TEXT—Acts 3:1-4:1. GOLDEN TEXT—Matthew 9:35, "there was no other name under heaven given to men whereby we must be saved—Acts 4:12."

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Heals a Lame Man. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Giving of Miracles. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Gifts That Are Better Than Money.

1. Peter Healing the Lame Man (Acts 3:1-10).

1. The place (vv. 1, 2). Peter and John were on their way to the house of worship. This man had been placed at the entrance of the place of worship where he might receive the sympathetic attention of worshippers.

2. The man (v. 2). This beggar was lame from his birth. He was now more than forty years old (4:22) and had brought his alms with him into the world. When he saw Peter and John he asked alms.

3. The method (vv. 3-5). (1) The man's attention gained (v. 4). Peter and John commanded him to look and hear (vv. 6, 7).

(2) Peter commanded him in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth to rise and walk (v. 6).

(3) Peter took him by the right hand (v. 7). This meant to give impetus to his faith—not strength to his ankles.

4. The effect (vv. 11, 12). Strength came to his feet and ankles at once. He stood, he walked, he leaped and shouted praises to God.

5. The people were so filled with wonder and amazement that they ran together to behold this wonderful thing. Note:

(1) This helpless beggar had to be carried to the temple gate. Men and women who are helpless and helpless that they need to be brought where the light of God can be applied to them.

(2) Peter taking the man by the hand shows the manner of helping the blind.

6. Peter Witnessing Before the Sanhedrin (4:13-18).

1. The leaders—priests and Sadducees—in this persecution (v. 1, 2). The priests were intolerant because these new teachers were encroaching upon their functions.

2. The result (vv. 3, 4). "Though they were held in bondage by chains, Christ continued to work. The number of believers had greatly increased."

3. Peter Witnessing Before the Sanhedrin (4:13-18).

1. The inquiry (vv. 5-7). This inquiry admitted the reality of the miracle they wanted to know what it signified.

2. Peter's answer (vv. 8-12). Being filled with the Holy Spirit, Peter calmly answered. He showed them that they were not on trial as evil-doers but for doing good to the hungry and needy man. Since they could not deny the miracle he boldly declared that it had been done in the name of Jesus Christ whom they had crucified and God had raised from the dead.

3. The impression upon the Sanhedrin (vv. 13-15).

(1) They were amazed (vv. 13-15). They saw that Peter's behavior and words were as unusual as the miracle.

(2) They took knowledge that Peter and John had been with Jesus (v. 13).

(3) They forbade them to speak in Christ's name (v. 15).

(4) Peter and John's reply (vv. 16-19). They expressed their determination to obey God rather than men.

(5) Their release (v. 21). Seeing the people were on their side, there was no way to punish them.

V. The Church at Prayer (vv. 23-31). As soon as Peter and John were set free, they hastened away to the fold, low disciples and told them their experience. They praised God for deliverance and prayed for boldness to speak the Word of God.

HIGH MORTALITY LOWERS PROFITS

High mortality and low egg production go hand in hand in the farm poultry flock and if the death rate of hens is high the results from the flock will be only mediocre, regardless of how well the hens are bred and fed, says H. A. Lip, poultry extension specialist of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

"Records which 234 farm flock owners kept in co-operation with the college show a mortality rate of 1 per cent annually. If this rate is figured for the entire state there would be an approximate loss of 3,000,000 birds annually.

"A 12 per cent mortality on first thought may not seem very high, but it must be remembered that along with a mortality as high as this there goes a general low production throughout the flock. It is not so much the loss of a bird dying that counts as the loss caused by low production through sickness.

"While the causes for mortality may vary to a certain extent, the chief and most common will be the lack of sanitation and personal attention. Very little credit for the mortality being no higher than 12 per cent can be given to improved conditions in and around poultry houses. Conditions probably have not improved a great deal with regard to sanitation. Diseases have increased and have given more trouble every year. The chief factor in protecting the flock is one of preventive measures.

"Hen mortality is spread fairly well over the whole year. The spring months quite often show an increased death rate due to increased production, but the loss of birds which are forced for production. There is a certain mortality that might be termed normal mortality. This is where death results from causes beyond the control of the operator and is not due to a disease and should cause no worry.

The bulk of the mortality, though, can be influenced by the personal ability of the operator. The determining factor with mortality is health and vigor and health and vigor come only from good stock, sanitation and feeding.

"All that is necessary to say as a warning to poultrymen in regard to mortality is to remember that vigor can be defined as a hen's ability to live and thrive under ordinary conditions and it is essential to have this vigor exhibited in selecting layers and breeders.

"Poultry drugs and medicines should not be trusted to keep the flock free from mortality. Prevention and sanitation should be practiced instead and an abundance of common sense used in handling the flock."

Ventilators Should Be Regulated in Incubator

In hatching eggs in incubators it is frequently difficult to provide enough fresh air or give proper ventilation to the incubator and at the same time to keep the eggs from losing too much moisture.

The poultry department at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y., says the ventilators should be kept closed during the first ten days of incubation, because the chick inside the egg requires very little oxygen. After the tenth day the chick needs more oxygen and the amount increases gradually until the nest is largest during the last three days.

After the tenth day of incubation the ventilators may be opened more and more until they are wide open at the eighteenth day. The moisture pans should not be allowed to get dry at any time.

Eggs should lose about 15 per cent of their original weight, and not more, during the three weeks of incubation. If they lose more moisture than this it is impossible to replace it. Sprinkling the eggs with warm water several times daily during the last three days is often recommended, but while this can do no harm, it can do little good.

Narragansett Turkeys

The Narragansett turkeys are almost the same weight as the Bourbon Red turkey or about six pounds lighter than the Bronze. They are similar to the Bronze in habits. They are good runners and dress out nicely.

They are somewhat lighter than the Bronze, but they are not as popular a breed as the Bronze, White Holland or Bourbon Red, and as a result it will be difficult to get new stock of this breed than of any of the other breeds mentioned.

Charcoal for Turkeys

Powdered charcoal in the feed is an aid to digestion and in case of indigestion is caused by irregular feeding as often as by wrong feeding. The turkey is a creature of habit; it likes the meals that are given to come at regular intervals. In the wild state it feeds often and little, working up its appetite by its own activities. If it gets fed at irregular intervals, it is restless and either "goes past its feed," as an Irish friend used to say, or overeats.

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Keeps Them Well

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught in a school, some did housework, some a found work to do at home and a few took up nursing.

Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in factories with hundreds of other women and girls.

There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, engineers, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Universal factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Mounth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

Parson Kennedy, and bring him within the Southern lines. It is planned to have her make headquarters with a family of southern sympathists in Washington. Jeanne learns telegraphy and other technical branches of her new calling. And clad as a boy often in the Blue of the North, she makes her way through the lines. She learns of an organization of eleven Union spies and of their meeting place in a Richmond loft. As she overhears the leaders address the masked men seated about a table, Jeanne is discovered and dragged into the room. The leader unmasks as he threatens her with death, but is dissuaded from shooting her by the suggestion from one of the men that one of their number marry her. She consents and when one of the masked men volunteers to marry she refuses and claims the right to choose.

CHAPTER IV

In the little station at Fair Oaks some ten miles out of Richmond, a telegraph operator sat before his instrument.

At midnight he became galvanized into action. He ran outside to the station platform, glanced right and left, to make sure that no one was in sight; then he returned to the office and put out the light. A moment later he was in the collar piled up the gunnysacks once more and returned to his office, relieved the lamp and slouched into his chair.

He had cleared the track for the coast-bound, and when that passed through, he was done for the night. All at once he assumed the attitude of a tense listener—running horses—he was certain he heard them. He reached for his receiver and carefully examined it.

Running horses were not unusual in the night, but one never knew or could force what they might bring. Louder and louder grew the hoofbeats, nearer and nearer. The sound ceased abruptly.

The operator waited, his revolver ready. Then came the sound of running human feet.

The door opened. The revolver flashed in the light—then dropped. "George?" cried the operator.

"Yes, John, old boy."

"What's up?"

"The whole business. The game at Fair Oaks is done for. The marvel is that it has lasted as long as it has. Did you send that message?"

"Yes."

"Thank God! Fogarty will get away. Come! I lent the train to you

Five minutes—look alive!"

The operator blew out the light and the two hurried out to the station platform. "Must be steamers here."

"There she comes!" cried the newcomer, waving his hand down the track toward the point of light which grew larger as they looked. "A troop of Johnnies, old boy, all prepared to put your back to the station claspboards and sail you out, Mount!"

They rode in silence for half an hour, cross-country at first. They had mapped out a route against such a crisis as this. They walked a shallow stream toward an unused road, whence they might make their way northward without worrying over pickets.

"Tell me what's happened," said the late operator at Fair Oaks.

Do you remember when the Parson made us all ride north, threatening to shoot any man who lagged?"

"Well, that's all I'm at liberty to tell you just now. I came back because this is my post. You were sent down here to give me a lift at the secret wire. But for quick and lucky work to-night, you'd have gone over."

"Who is it?"

"I know; and that is sufficient for the present; You're not built for this kind of work, John, and that is why I'm not telling you anything. You still have some illusions. But to hoodwink the Parson!"

"Parson Kennedy is a Hun."

"Yes, poor devil, he's a Hun. But in this kind of game we need Huns. We are going to let this double-spy go back to Washington."

"And why?"

"There's a woman we want, Brother John."

"A woman!"

"You're an old soft-soap, Jack; you can't get the idea out of your head that women are holy."

"But to hunt a woman!"

"Whose name we don't know, whose face we haven't seen—h'mph! Fine chance we have of catching her except in one way. This isn't the kind of woman you and I know; it's a female riddlemaker. Whenever she strikes, it's death. Do you know what I think? Well, that young woman we all married a few weeks ago may be the very woman we've been after."

"When we reach the road, you'll have to go it alone. I must get back to Richmond. Turn to your right three times, then go straight ahead. You'll strike our outposts by noon. Here we are. And good luck to you!"

Then J-W-G-A climbed the bank of the road. His friend wheeled his horse midstream and went splashing down it. J-W-G-A and G-R-D-A had gone their separate ways forever.

Meantime Jeanne had ordered her carriage. She was tired, and she knew that her aunt was struggling more, for that was her first destination. A deep tan lay upon her face, and to this she added a semi-permanent stain.

Only her eyes were Jeanne Beaufort's. She would call herself Alice Trent. The name came into her mind, quite innocent of calculation. She had never heard of anyone by that name; she could not even recall having read it in a book.

It was one of those incomprehensible tricks of fate, this idle selection; and later it came very near proving fatal to her.

How could she possibly know that Alice Trent was a living being, her own age, a resident of the very city she had chosen as her base?

Hereafter, she had gone by the name of Susan Warren. She had lived quietly with a middle-class family whose sympathies inclined toward the South. Now she must go out in the high world; she must gather her information from military and diplomatic sources.

So, one morning there arrived on the Baltimore train, among other passengers, a handsome young woman in sober gray. She glanced about indelicately.

A regiment was entraining. Until the soldiers had passed, it was impossible to make the exit from the station. Company by company the coaches swallowed up the troopers.

An intoxicated man watched her speculatively. He approached doffing his cap amiably and asked if she would like a gentleman to see her home.

Jeanne had no time to reply. A lean brown hand seized the offender by the collar and flung him roughly to one side. A pleasant-faced young officer saluted Jeanne and offered to see her to the carriage.

"It was very kind of you," she said as she took her seat in a rickety old phaeton.

"The pleasure was mine. I am Captain Armistead."

"My name is Alice Trent." All young officers were useful.

He raised his hat, and she was driven off. A very agreeable face, she thought. But he was a hated Yankee; and so she dismissed him with a shrug.

Political influence, unmerited promotion, jealousy, inefficiency, cheating army-contractors, these prolonged the Civil War two years. It was only when the iron ring began to tighten about Richmond that the Government awoke to the fact that Lincoln and Grant could end the war if let be, and that there were as dangerous enemies within the gates as there were outside of them.

About this time the Secret Service bureau became a real arm of the Government. It began to be what it has since become, second to no other in the world.

Certain families, known to be in sympathy with the South were watched. Jeanne knew this and arranged her plans accordingly. The family to which she was assigned as a guest from Baltimore had borne the closest scrutiny, cheerfully, urbanely and successfully.

They were Northerners who had the bulk of their fortune invested in the South. Aside from the rest of the intrigue, they were delighted to have Jeanne. Her dark beauty, the splendor of her eyes and dark brown hair, her low musical voice—this captivated them from the start.

That her skin was artificially darkened, that her hair, while her own, was yet a wig, was quite unsuspected by her hosts. They vaguely understood that her presence in Washington had political significance, but beyond this they did not bother their heads. They had been asked to harbor her so long as a harborage was necessary; they needed no more than that.

LOW RATES for time payments on these cars

ANY FAMILY entitled to credit may buy a General Motors car and pay for it while using it, under the GMAC Plan.

When time payments first became an accepted form of car purchase, General Motors organized its own finance company, the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, to make sure that the sale of its cars on time would be in the buyer's interest and that the finance charges would be fair.

GMAC rates have always been low; and the last reduction has saved General Motors' customers more than $12,000,000.

The General Motors line includes "a car for every purse and purpose"—a suitable model for every income. You can buy it out of income, paying no more than the cash delivered price, plus only the low GMAC financing charge. And the whole transaction is so conducted as to keep your goodwill and satisfaction.

CLIP THE COUPON

USE THE GMAC PLAN to enjoy a new car now. Use it to get a better car for what you plan to spend. Have General Motors quality. Share in the economies of volume production. Look over the list of General Motors cars below. See which car suits your purse. Then check and mail the coupon. We will send you full information about that car and about the fair, low-cost GMAC Plan of paying for it out of income. Don't wait. Clip the coupon and mail it TODAY.

MICHIGAN, CIVILIZED STATE. MR. MELLON HOUSEKEEPING. THE IDEAL CHILD. HERE—REAL NEWS.

The State of Michigan is still trying to reach a decision on capital punishment. Certain legislators appear to think that discourage murder the State must imitate the murder and in inflict death.

It is proposed to restore capital punishment in Michigan, where it has long been unknown.

Michigan is a civilized State, an example to others in many ways. It is to be hoped the Legislature will not decide that civilization in Michigan needs the help of a hangman, or a man to throw the switch on an electric chair.

What is the ideal child, in your opinion? Secretary Hoover, president of the American Child Health Association, says the normal child, "is not superlatively happy or deeply discouraged, is robust, vociferous, not ruled by emotions." That is a good definition of a child destined to develop into a go-getter.

On the other hand, Napoleon, who told all the adult children of Europe what they should do, was not vociferous or robust. He was sickly, sallow, sulked in a corner because his school mates laughed at his Corsican accent, and was entirely ruled by his own emotion, AMBITION.

The industry commission of the League of Nations reports 20,000,000 out of work in Europe and blames the United States, of course. Europe should also blame itself for allowing 20,000,000 pairs of hands to remain idle.

A good farmer keeps his horses and oxen working, a good industrialist keeps his machines busy. Europe needs canals, roads, houses, and it should be possible to find work for all. That would be easy if men could get away from the idea that the only sound reason for putting a man to work is to let somebody else make a profit out of his labor.

What is the real wealth of this country? Nobody could guess within a thousand fissions.

For instance, Mr. Bonfils, through his Denver Post, announces discovery in Colorado of a bed of manganese, by far the richest in the world, six million tons of ore in sight.

How many more billions are hidden away in the mountains that stretch across and up down this country, feebly tapped here and there by prospectors, but never really prospected.

Great Britain receives the right reply to her note concerning Mr. Mellon's letter to college professors about international debts. Secretary Kellogg tells Britain that what Secretary Mellon writes to American professors is our business. That covers the ground.

Incidentally, the British admit that beginning in 1932 they will be getting from their European debtors, recently called "gallant Allies," more than enough to cover all payments to the United States. Mr. Mellon's statement was strictly accurate barring one clerical error, and it enlightened his fellow citizens.

This is news. A tractor and plow with no driver, all by themselves, guided by electricity, ploughed a twenty-acre field on the farm of the Nebraska Agricultural College yesterday, farmers professors and business men looking on. The first furrow only was ploughed under human guidance. That furrow acted as guide and the machine did the rest.

There you have the ultimate solution of the farm question and proof that "back to the farm" is not necessary.

The farmer will sit, apyrazas in hand, on a tower in the middle of his acres, watching extra farm hands, spraying potatoes, another cultivating corn a third cutting green oats for hay, and not a farm hand on the place.

In Kansas alone this year additional "combination" machines for harvesting wheat will do away with 25,000 itinerant extra farm hands.

Brains, money and machinery will solve the farm problem as they have solved other industrial problems.

SLOGAN CONTEST IS EXTENDED

The judges officiating in the slogan contest which closed last week have considered all the slogans submitted and found that none exactly touched the sentiment that they wish to express, so it has been decided to extend the contest, until June 15, and as an added incentive to raise the award to $10 instead of the original $5.00.

Many good slogans were submitted but as one of the judges expressed it, "None exactly touched the spot." A short snappy slogan, easy to read and something which you can quickly catch the meaning of, is wanted. Send a slogan, or as many as you wish. Yours may win the $10.

Here are the slogans which have been sent in.

Mentone, with Fraternity to loan, Mentone, with might and tone.

Mentone, the best place to trade after all.

Mentone, with peer unknown.

You'll find a way or make it.

Mentone, a good town to call your own.

You'll like Mentone.

"I will" goquers, while "I may" falls.

Up to the line, let the chips fall where they may.

The Beauty Spot of Indiana.

Mentone, never outshone.

You need Mentone.

Higher and Higher.

Make Mentone Mighty.

Mentone, a fine spot to call home.

Mentone, first, last and always.

Help Mentone to help you.

Mentone, fit for a throne.

Mentone Broadcast Greetings.

It's right, we go ahead and do it.

Onward and Upward.

Mentone, never been outshone.

The spotless town.

Mentone is no place for a drone.

Mentone, with tone and backbone.

Mentone, the wonder city; look her over, she's beautiful.

Mentone, with equal unknown.

We'll live to make the (way or world) less difficult for others.

Mentone, next to Heaven's Throne.

We love many, trust few, but always paddle our own canoe.

Mentone, all meat, no bone.

You'll find our business policies as white as our all American, all-white population.

Mentone welcomes you, How are you?

Your satisfaction is our success.

Mentone, the same to native or stranger.

Mentone, the town with a welcome for everybody.

Home center of the world.

Mentone, in a class of its own.

Mentone, the same from all angles of the world.

KOSCIUSKO COUNTY

VETERINARIAN LEAVING

According to a report recently received from the office of Frank H. Brown at Indianapolis, State Veterinarian Dr. Floyd H. Hopper, veterinary for Kosciusko County, has been transferred to a larger field.

Dr. Hopper has been carrying on the work of testing cattle in this county for tuberculosis for over a year, and has completed the initial test, with the exception of one or two townships.

It has not yet been ascertained whether a new veterinary for the county will be appointed, or not, as there is a possibility that this county will be without a county veterinarian, they have been without a county agricultural agent, since the retirement of Tom Parker.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

9:30, Bible School, 10:45 Morning worship, 7:30 Evening service.

Have you prayed about the weather suffering and deprivations of others? There is a reason for all things; have you sought to find out the "why" of these things? Come to the Prayer Meeting On Thursday Evening At 7:30.

In our observance of Memorial day would it not be well to remember the God who gave us our loved ones, and to whom we shall have to give account in the judgement?

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Taylor of Bourbon were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Burns and daughter Jean.

INFANT SON OF MR. AND MRS. ELMER WOODS PASSES AWAY SUNDAY

Little William Wayne Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Woods, passed away sometime early Sunday morning.

Mrs. Woods had cared for the babe all night, at which time the infant seemed to be in usual health. Upon awakening in the morning Mrs. Woods found that the soul of the little one had gone. The attending physician thinks death was due to indigestion.

William Wayne was born in Mentone, March 20th, 1927, and lived only until May 22nd, 1927. The parents and a brother and sister, and grandparents survive.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the M. E. Church. Rev. H. L. Liddle officiating.

William Wayne Woods, son of Elmer Glen and Hattie Marie Woods was born in Mentone Indiana, March 20, 1927 and quietly passed into the great beyond, Sunday morning, May 22, 1927, age 2 months and 2 days.

He leaves, father, mother a brother and sister, four grand-parents and other relatives and friends whose names have been touched by his smile and innocent life.

While sadness comes from his early and sudden departure, through God's word, we have the assurance that he is safe in the Masters keeping and that through God's grace we can meet him again in that land where sin, sorrow and death are unknown.

VICTIM OF SCARLET FEVER

Scarlet fever, a victim of scarlet fever. The deceased had been ill for several weeks, but the illness was thought to not be of serious nature.

Mrs. Doran is a sister to A. I. Nelson, cashier of the Farmers State Bank.

Surviving the deceased are the husband, LeRoy Doran; four children; the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Riley Nelson of South Bend, a sister, Mrs. Nora Teal, of near here, and three brothers, A. I. Nelson, and Willis and Virgil of South Bend.

Funeral services were held at the Church of Christ here, Friday afternoon, Rev. J. S. Johns in charge. The remains were interred in the cemetery at Palestine.

Hazel Fern Nelson was born August 5th, 1889 and departed this life May 18th, 1927, aged 37 years 9 months and 13 days.

Early in life she united with the Church of Christ at Syracuse Chapel. She was united in marriage with LeRoy Doran, October 6, 1910. To this union were born five children, two sons and three daughters. One infant daughter preceded her in death.

She leaves to mourn their loss, the husband, four children, father and mother, three brothers and one sister besides many other relatives and friends.

She was of a kind and loving disposition, winning friends wherever she went and no matter how dark were the clouds of life Hazel was always found with her cheering smile.

WARSAW ACCOUNTANT, WELL KNOWN HERE, DEAD

The sudden death of John A. Moon, Warsaw on May 17th, was due to heart trouble and not paralysis. While working in the Phillips store, where he had been engaged as an accountant for many years, he had just finished a long report for the company when he was seized with a heart attack. Dr. Siders was called and administered treatment. In a few minutes Mr. Moon rallied sufficiently to walk to an auto with assistance, and was conveyed to his home shortly after noon. At about 2:30 he sustained another attack from which he failed to rally, his death occurring at 3:30 o'clock.

Mr. Moon is survived by his widow, Noble a stepson; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Charles Bailey; Mrs. Agnes Warner, an adopted daughter, now residing at McKeesport, Pa.; and former Sheriff Charles B. Moon, a half-brother. He was very well known by many people in and around Mentone. The funeral service was held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Christian church. Rev. R. C. Birge will conduct the service.

CASNER-RINER NEPTUNALS

Curtis Riser, son of Ray Riser of near Mentone, and Miss Pauline Hill, Laura Bowman, and Merle Long, which were parked in Buffalo Street, were left complete wrecks.

The Warsaw Grain Co., building was left minus a roof, part of the of the Warsaw Fruit Company, and roof from there falling on the roof damaging that building to a considerable extent. The roof was blown off of the Army.

The court house clock also suffered extensive damages. The Grandstand at the Hilley Ball Park was completely demolished, and all the fence torn away.

Traffic on the Winona was tied up till the 5:50 car went through here. No cars ran south from 11:50 till 5:50. Many poles were blown down and trees wrecked along the right-of-way.

Considerable damage was felt by the Pennay lines, also. Poles and trees were left sterna along the tracks.

The eastbound limited smashed into several trees lying on the track, and the engine was so badly damaged that the train was forced to proceed on its way under the power from an engine from a freight train.

The downfall of rain before and during the tornado is given credit for the absence of casualties which for a storm of this kind usually leaves in its wake. The rain kept the people off the streets and out of the way of the debris which was being catapulted about the streets.

The storm could be seen going towards the northeast from here, large black clouds traveling fast and low. About 12:40 the wind started to blow and the rain seemed to fall in sheets, but as far as could be learned no damage was done in this vicinity.

SMALL FIRE AT

E. J. CARTER HOME

Some excitement was caused here Sunday noon when the barn on the E. J. Carter lot caught fire. The local fire department responded and soon had the fire extinguished. There was only a small loss.

SODALES CLUB

Mrs. Wanda Davison, assisted by Mrs. Ruth Ernberger entertained the Sodales Club Thursday afternoon at the home of the former.

Sixteen members responded to the roll call by voicing their opinion of the Club's program for the year.

Little Miss Jean Burns sang two beautiful solos, accompanied on the piano by her mother, Mrs. F. R. Burns.

Much merriment was caused by the unique costumes of the guests, as well as those worn by the hostesses.

The home was beautifully decorated with baskets of tulips, others of mixed flowers, and a wonderful orchid May Pole.

The prize in playing rook was given to Mrs. Stanford.

The entire afternoon was a most enjoyable occasion and much appreciation was expressed of the untiring efforts put forth by the hostesses.

LADIES AID MEETING

The Ladies Aid of the First Baptist Church will meet in the church parlors, Wednesday afternoon, June first for the fourth quarterly meeting.

All the ladies of the church are requested to be present as there are important matters to be discussed at this meeting.

$25,000 DAMAGE IN WARSAW

Considerable damage was done in Warsaw Monday afternoon when a tornado struck there. The total amount of the damage was about $25,000. Buildings were unroofed, trees uprooted and blown over, and automobiles damaged.

This is said to be the first wind storm of a cyclonic nature to ever hit Warsaw. But one person was hurt, and that happened when John LeHew of W. Center St. was struck by a falling brick.

The storm seemed to be content to confine itself to a narrow area, and lasted less than five minutes.

The greatest damage was done in the district of the Pennsylvania R. R. Station and from Union Street East to Detroit St.

The entire Phoenix block was unroofed, and Buffalo Street was completely blocked by the fallen timbers.

The fronts of the Ringle store, Valentine tire shop, and Smythe tire shop were smashed, and four automobiles belonging to Harold Smythe, Ernest Hill, Laura Bowman, and Merle Long, which were parked in Buffalo Street, were left complete wrecks.

The Warsaw Grain Co., building was left minus a roof, part of the of the Warsaw Fruit Company, and roof from there falling on the roof damaging that building to a considerable extent. The roof was blown off of the Army.

The Doughboys Who Never Came Home: American Cemetery at Sureres, Outside Paris, Where 1,497 Soldiers of the A. E. F. Lie Buried. Always Decorated on Memorial Day.

Fields of Honor in Fair France

Crosses Row on Row Mark Graves of Our Boys in Honored Rest.

Ten years after the declaration of war by the United States against Germany in the year 1917 there remain in Europe few traces of the American Expeditionary forces which proved the deciding factors in the conflict.

For the most part, the battlefields have grown up with weeds, or have been restored to cultivation by the plow. The hotels, the barracks, the hospitals we used have been returned long since to peace time duty. A few unofficial monuments mark certain battle scenes, but the official battle monuments are yet in the preliminary stages. The American Legionnaires who return to Europe for their recreation at Paris next September will miss a great many sights which were familiar in 1917 and 1918.

But there are eight permanent, plain and prominent monuments of the Legionnaires of ten years ago—the eight American military cemeteries overseas.

These cemeteries, the final resting places of more than 30,000 of those who followed Pershing overseas, are now handsome, well-kept, solemn fields of honor. At dawn the flag is raised over each of them. Each sunset it is lowered. In each the crosses stand in steady rows, white against a background of green sod, and a first budding of young trees gives promise of greater beauty as the years roll by. Here are the lasting records of the A. E. F.

Six Mark Battlefields.

Six of the American cemeteries are on the battlefields, on ground taken from the enemy by the power of American arms, on ground rescued to France and to Belgium by our delivering sword. The other two are near the great cities of London and Paris. Here is the list of them and the number of those who lie therein:

Official Name	Location Near	Number
Flinders Field	Waziersham, Belgium	355
Bonne cemetery	Bony, France	1,836
Musee-Arsonne cemetery	Reims	1,497
Magnus-Montfaucon	France	1,417
St. Mihiel cemetery	Tilancourt	4,141
Diez-Alone cemetery	France	1,846
Tardouville	France	1,846
Alone-Maine cemetery	Bellus	1,812
Brookwood cemetery	London	4,917
Bag	France	4,917
Buresme cemetery	Paris, France	1,504

More than half of our soldier dead overseas were brought home to the States for burial.

Of the dead not brought back to America, those which were in 1919 already resting at Sureres or Brookwood, or at the sites selected for the battlefields, remained undisturbed. The others, from scattering, temporary battlefields, were reverently moved to their permanent resting places. This task, carefully and thoroughly performed by the graves registration service of the army, resulted in an almost complete identification of our soldier dead.

Monument Problem.

The cemeteries remain in charge of the graves registration service, which maintains rest houses at each, has caretakers in charge, keeps complete records for the use of visitors and maintains the grounds, landscape gardening and improvements. Further beautifying of the cemeteries has been placed in charge of the American Battle Monuments commission, a body created by congress to take charge of the whole plan and problem of American memorials in Europe.

A similar question is no simple one, as anyone who ever visited the battlefield at Gettysburg, Pa., will bear witness. States, cities, divisions, brigades, companies and private citizens, not to mention memorial associations and societies, are already vying for the privilege of placing a monument at this point, a memorial offered a problem. Should individuals be allowed to place special headstones or monuments for their loved ones? Shall churches or societies be allowed to erect chapels at the cemeteries? And so forth.

The chairman of the Battle Monuments commission is Gen. John J. Pershing. Its membership, appointed by President Coolidge and serving without salary, includes Robert G. Woodside, of Pittsburgh, vice chairman; Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania; Representative John Philip Hill; Representative Flinck J. Garrett; Col. D. John Markey of Maryland, and Major Frederic W. Bentley, Maj. X. H. Price, a regular army officer on duty at Washington, is secretary.

After careful studies, this commission outlined a complete plan for official battle monuments in the zones occupied by American forces in offensive operations, and a corresponding plan for the improvement of American cemeteries.

The most expensive phase of the cemetery work to be done is the erection of chapels. These will be suitable for sacred purposes, but nonsectarian. The larger ones will probably have a room that will be something as the chapel room. Another matter now well in hand is completing masonry walls around the cemeteries, a work only delayed in places

OUR BOYS IN FRANCE

After the gruesome sound has died Of the last shrieking shell, We pause and ponder, dewy-eyed, Over the ones who fall.

They sleep. The world goes marching on. Soft let the requiem be. Thinking of those but lately gone Resting so far away.

Solemn yet grand the hero's fate. Soft let the requiem be. Whistler tender fingers decorate Those graves across the sea.

while waiting for the determination of definite plans for the chapels, as these in many cemeteries will have an effect on the location of the walls.

How Graves Are Marked.

In so far as personal monuments in the cemeteries are concerned, the commission adopted an iron-clad, final rule that there will be no special personal monuments. Over each grave will be a headstone, and there will be the same for officers and privates, the same for young and old. The name, rank, organization and home will be engraved on each stone. And they will lie side by side, as they fell, equal in glory and sacrifice.

The plans for battle monuments are another and even larger task of the commission. They are well under way, and form a project which should be completed in about two years.

The first of the American cemeteries to be so designated, and to receive American dead, was that called Sureres, both in name and location, on Mont Valerien, overlooking Paris and the Seine valley, and called Sureres. Everyone from America goes to Sureres, both in name and location, on Mont Valerien, overlooking Paris and the Seine valley, and called Sureres. Everyone from America goes to Sureres, both in name and location, on Mont Valerien, overlooking Paris and the Seine valley, and called Sureres.

At Sureres are buried many who died in Paris hospitals from wounds sustained in battle, and others who fell victims of disease and accidents. It is most complete of all the American cemeteries in France, in so far as time has completed it by growing over the trees larger, the shrubbery thicker and finer. Sureres already belongs to the ages, a fit resting place for heroes, far up above the towers of Notre Dame and the Arc de Triomphe, commanding forever what is perhaps the loveliest of the famous valleys of the world.

Ours to Keep the Faith

Memorial day is best celebrated by that deep appreciation of the loyalty, devotion and heroism which made this a united nation and which should inspire us with our own responsibility for keeping it united for generations that are to follow us.—Grit.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Demented Michigan Farmer Dynamites a School, Killing Forty-Four.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ONE of the most extraordinary and shocking crimes of recent years was committed at the little town of Lansing, Mich., resulting in the death of 44 persons, 37 of whom were children, and the injury of some forty others.

Andrew Kehoe, farmer and school district treasurer, his mind unbalanced by financial troubles, which he laid to the necessity of paying school taxes, planted a big dynamite mine in the basement of the community school, wired it carefully, and another load of explosive to the building in his automobile and set both off. The north wing of the school was destroyed and the ruins were left in the shattered bodies of the little pupils. The principal and one teacher also were killed, as were two men who were passing the building. Kehoe himself was among the dead. Before blowing up the school he had killed his invalid wife and burned his own house and farm buildings. State troopers from Lansing, who took charge of the situation, found in the basement of the undestroyed wing of the school dynamite planted in eight places. Had this been exploded the death toll would have been doubled. Hundreds of pounds of the explosive had been stolen recently from a contractor's store house, presumably by Kehoe, and the plot had been worked out carefully during a number of days by the insane farmer, who was carried to a mental hospital.

PROTECTION for the Mississippi valley from future floods will be demanded and planned at a great conference of representatives of the 12 states, called by Mayors Thompson of Chicago, Miller of St. Louis and O'Brien of New Orleans. The meeting will open in Chicago, June 2, and will be attended by senators, congressmen, army engineers, bankers, lumbermen and other business leaders. Secretary of Labor Davis will represent President Coolidge. Secretary of Commerce Hoover has been named to preside. A special session of congress is not necessary to deal with the flood situation, as the Red Cross will be able to care for the refugees. The relief fund is still growing, and the continuance of contributions is urged. Last week the most serious development was the inundation of the town of Melville, La., on the west bank of the Atchafalaya river. The waters broke through the levees during the night and about ten feet of the inhabitants were drowned. The rest took refuge on the levees, where they soon were isolated. The Bayou des Glaises levees gave way, as was expected, and hundreds of persons in that section north of New Orleans, were driven from their homes.

The Mississippi fell slowly along the lower river, the weather bureau at New Orleans declared that half of the water from the Tennessee basin had been diverted into the Atchafalaya basin through the crevasses. The crest of the flood still was in the Tennessee basin, far above Bayou des Glaises.

VIOLENT storms in Iowa, Illinois and Indiana in the middle of the week caused some loss of life and the injury of many persons, especially in Peoria and Indianapolis. Rain, hail and wind resulted in severe property losses.

Eight lives were lost when a wall of water from what is known as the "slide" dam in the Gros Ventre river swept over the Little town of Kelly, 25 miles from Wilson, Wyo. The dam, created when Sheep Mountain shifted several feet two years ago, had collapsed.

SEVERAL thousand members of the American Medical association attended the seventy-eighth annual meeting of the organization in Washington, and were welcomed by President Coolidge. The house of delegates of the association directed that the trustees of the organization to co-operate with the internal revenue department in the preparation of a bill to be submitted to congress in December, modifying the "unfortunate" Volstead act provision which now limits the amount of whiskey which may be prescribed to one pint in ten days.

Among the important announcements made before sectional meetings was that of Hideo Noguchi of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, that he had at last succeeded in isolating the micro-organism responsible for trachoma, an eye disease that has baffled physicians. Dr. William S. Thayer of Baltimore, Md., was elected president of the association.

ILLINOIS lawmakers took another swat at prohibition when the house of representatives voted, 79 to 64, to submit the repeal of the state prohibition act and the state search and seizure act to a referendum of the people. The expressed view of some of the members who voted for the referendum was that prohibition has been worse than a failure, a sumptuary regulation that has brought more harm than good to society, to the nation, and to the state. The days put up a strong fight and argued well, but were outvoted. Several weeks ago the Illinois house adopted a resolution calling upon congress to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of revising the eighteenth amendment. Vacating a disbarment order against a Nebraska lawyer, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Kansas City held in effect that the manufacture and possession of liquor for personal use in the home is not a felony and cannot serve as ground for disbarment of an attorney. The decision said that "a court has no regulatory power over the private life of a member of the bar."

DISARMING the warring Nicaraguans is turning out to be not all play for the American marines who have the job in hand. At La Paz Centro, near Leon, a guerrilla band of Liberals attacked a small detachment of the marines and a battle ensued in which Capt. Richard R. Buchanan and Private Marvin A. Jackson were killed and several other leathernecks wounded. About four hundred Liberals were killed. Brig. Gen. Logan Peland said: "I am glad to state this marine detachment, under most difficult circumstances and although outnumbered ten to one, has upheld the reputation of the marine corps. Captain Buchanan and his detachment showed bravery of the highest order."

GREAT BRITAIN and Russia were on the verge of a break last week, and the rupture of relations was expected almost any day. The Soviet government made a formal and indignant protest against the raid on the Soviet trade headquarters in London, declaring continuance of commercial relations with Great Britain was possible only on the condition of exact fulfillment of the provisions of the commercial treaty of 1921, free from violations growing out of "interference maneuvers and the fantastic beliefs of one minister or another." Furthermore, Moscow declared it reserved the right to make claim for violation of the agreement by the British government, for the insult offered thereby and for material losses growing out of the raid. The note concluded: "The absolutely uncalled for raid on a government institution of another state, apart from which another treaty rights belonging to it, is a most serious and hostile act, without doubt jeopardizing the further preservation of relations between the interested states, with all the ensuing consequences. The fact that the trade delegation by its activity gave no justification for such a raid can be proved even by the circumstance that the British government has not made a single representation or complaint about this activity."

The official version of the raid was given in the house of commons by Sir William Jonsson-Hicks, home secretary, and a debate on the question involving relations with Russia began. The documents found by the police have not been made public, but there was reason to believe they were decidedly incriminating. The government officials prepared three notes as replies to the Russian protest, the choice depending on the decision of the cabinet and the parliamentary debate. One of them denounces the trade agreement on the ground of its flagrant violations by the Russians. The second says a final break of diplomatic relations between Britain and Russia must come if the Soviets do not amend their conduct. The third announces a direct break of diplomatic relations immediately, laying the whole blame on Moscow.

The Russian government already has played a strong card in the quarrel by announcing the grant of special trade privileges to Germany, Latvia and Lithuania, which states have signed or initiated neutrality treaties with Moscow. In the Soviet capital there were carefully staged demonstrations against the English trade mission, the members of which were so closely guarded by political police that they were virtual prisoners.

BRITISH officials were very busy entertaining President Dumergue of France and Foreign Minister Briand, who made a state visit to London. There were banquets, parades and other colorful functions, and Briand and Chamberlain took the opportunity to hold an important conference concerning immediate evacuation of the Rhineland.

NAVAL experts of England say their government has decided to propose, in the Coolidge naval conference, the reduction of capital ships from 35,000 to 20,000 tons and cruisers from 10,000 to 6,000 tons, apportioning a tonnage of 100,000 tons each to the United States and Great Britain and 50,000 tons to Japan. According to the Daily News export, Japan has decided to back this proposal.

TWO editorialists in Osservatore Romano, organ of the Vatican, express the pope's opposition to Mussolini's charter of labor and the Fascist doctrine which places the right of the state above the right of the individual and practically denies the individual rights exist when important necessities of the state are involved. The relations between capital and labor, according to the doctrine expounded in the editorials, are ethical problems and as such must be approached, discussed and solved on the basis of ethical principles which "the centuries old experience of the church and its superhuman knowledge dictate."

Mussolini sought to demonstrate his readiness to the church by having placed in the Colosseum, the ancient cross, which was unveiled by Queen Elena at an impressive ceremony. This cross replaces the one torn down by Mayor Nitti of 35 years ago, and its dedication completes the Fascist plan to return this Christian symbol to the schools, courts, and public buildings, from which they were removed during the anti-Catholic days following the unification of Italy.

TWO well-known figures in the annals of the world died last week. San Bernado, a dialect comedian, who was on his way to Carlsbad, succumbed to apoplexy on board the liner Columbia. Maurice Mouvet, known the world over as "Maurice le bon," noted ballroom dancer, died of tuberculosis in Lausanne, Switzerland. He had been ill for several years but did not quit his work until two months ago.

GOVERNOR GENERAL WOOD has dealt successfully with another dangerous affair in the Philippines. Entranced, an insane fanatic, started a revolutionary movement on Panay Island and was dethroned by a large number of followers. Wood went there himself and persuaded the excited natives to disperse, and their crazy leader was sent to an asylum in Manila.

EXPOSURE of the alleged corruption of Indiana politics by the Ku Klux Klan was furthered by the arrest of Mayor Duval and Controller Burdick of Indianapolis on charges of conspiracy to commit a felony. Duval is accused in six counts of violating the corrupt practices act, perjury, and other offenses.

Beautiful spot in Arlington National Cemetery, forever dedicated to the heroic dead.

FAT NEEDED FOR QUALITY BUTTER

Two things hampering profits for creameries and patrons are the low grade of butterfat sent to the creameries and small amount per patron.

These two things prevent the creameries from paying about five cents per pound more than they do pay for butterfat," says W. L. Cleveland, specialist in dairy manufacturing at the North Carolina State college. "There are a large number of patrons who sell less than 200 pounds of butterfat annually. It costs just as much to collect, weigh, test and otherwise handle a small quantity of cream as it does to handle a larger amount. It is a general rule that the smaller the amount of cream produced on a farm each day, the poorer the quality, because of the longer period between deliveries and the less care and attention given the cream while it is on the farm."

Those creameries which are now making the best grade of butter, manufacturing it at the lowest cost per pound and selling the product for the highest market price, are the ones who get an average of 1,000 pounds of fat per farm, states Mr. Cleveland. This means that the product from five cows, each producing as much as 200 pounds of fat per year, is being sold. Under such conditions, the creameries can operate most profitably and the patrons also get a profit from their dairying. The average return is about five to ten dollars per cow per month.

Mr. Cleveland states that the creameries of North Carolina are producing an excellent product, but it could be made still better. There are some farmers who are making cream by shipping cream, but more are needed. There are too many farmers supplying cream who keep only one or two cows. If the unprofitable cows were weeded out and the whole matter put on a business basis, cream production would soon become a source of real wealth in the state.

Replace Whole Milk in Manufactured Products

Milk powder and condensed milk are replacing whole milk and evaporated milk in the manufacture of confectionery, ice cream and bakery products, the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States Department of Agriculture has announced. The reason for the shift is that the concentrated products are easier to transport and store.

Figures collected by the bureau show that 86 manufacturers of chocolate used 171,542,708 pounds of whole milk last year as against 238,821,543 pounds used by 61 manufacturers in 1925. The quantity of evaporated milk used in the manufacture of chocolate last year was 2,912,630 pounds against 3,037,039 pounds in 1925, and of skim milk 26,639 pounds against 3,038,287 pounds. Consumption of milk powders, on the other hand, shows an increase. The 45 manufacturers used 6,652,127 pounds of whole milk powder last year, as against 4,262,231 pounds used by 61 firms in 1925; of condensed milk there was used 5,406,095 pounds against 4,390,769 pounds, and skim milk powder 3,270,577 pounds against 1,437,610 pounds.

The consumption of all products reduced to the condensed milk equivalent of whole milk used in the manufacture of milk chocolate last year shows a decrease of about 10 per cent under 1925.

Keep Calves Young

It is best to keep young calves just a little hungry rather than to overfeed them. This applies while they are under four months of age. Legume hay such as red clover, alfalfa, or mixed hay with more than 60 per cent clover are all good. Quality is important in hay for calves. A calf one month old should get 10 to 12 pounds of skim milk. This amount should gradually be increased until calves four months old are getting 18 to 19 pounds daily.

Dairy Notes

Oats and wheat are commonly grown for succotash for feeding dairy cows.

Feeding boarder cows is worse than throwing away money, for it is also throwing away labor.

Care must be exercised to prevent farm cream from freezing prior to delivery to the creamery.

"A pure-bred sire makes milk checks higher." How about this for a pure-bred sire campaign slogan?

Keeping feed records and weighing and testing milk regularly make it possible to determine the production of your cows with a high degree of accuracy.

In raising the dairy calf, leave the calf with the cow for one or two days and then take it away and feed from eight to ten pounds of warm milk per day for about two weeks.

Lesson for May 29

PETER UNDAUNTED BY PERSECUTION

LESSON TEXT—Acts 5:17-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—A servant to obey God rather than men.—Acts 5:29.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Shows His Courage.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter Speaks Bravely for His Lord.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Standing Firm Under Persecution.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of Courage.

The vindication of the house of God against the hypocritical sect of Ananias and Sapphira had a salutary effect upon the people. The hypocrites were deterred from joining the church, but true-hearted men and women were more attracted to it, even identifying themselves with it. So great was the stir in Jerusalem that even the sick folk were brought where but the shadow of Peter might fall upon them.

1. The Apostles in Prison (vv. 17-18).

The marvelous success which accompanied the teaching of the apostles was too much for the Sadducees to endure. Their jealous wrath was aroused to such an extent that they laid the cruel hand of persecution upon these witnesses for Christ. Cain was jealous of Abel; Joseph's brothers sold him in slavery because he was the favorite of Jacob. Saul was jealous of David when the women ascribed greater glory to him.

2. The Apostles Miraculous Delivery (vv. 19-21).

1. The Lord sent an angel to open the prison and let the prisoners free (vv. 19-20).
2. There are no doors, nor bolts capable of shutting out God's angel.

3. They were commanded to go at once and speak to the people (v. 20).
4. The message they were to deliver was the "Words of this life." Most likely this means eternal life through the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

3. Their prompt obedience (v. 21).
By daybreak they were teaching in the temple.

4. The Apostles Tried (vv. 21-32).

1. The meeting of the council (v. 21).
In the early morning the Jewish council was convened by the high priest.

2. Their perplexity (vv. 22-24).
The officers were perplexed as to what to do with the apostles. They were brought before the council, but to what end?

3. The council's decision (v. 24).
The council decided to let the apostles go, but to warn them not to teach in the name of Jesus. This was a serious threat, for the council had the power to punish or even execute.

4. The apostles questioned (vv. 25, 26).

The council demanded of them the reason for not heeding the charge which they had previously given that they should not teach any more in the name of Jesus. This persistent testimony the officers interpreted as an effort to bring the guilt of Jesus' blood upon themselves.

5. The apostles' answer.
Peter boldly replied that they were under obligation to obey God rather than men. He further told them that they were guilty of the murder of Jesus Christ and that God had raised him to life and exalted him to be a Prince and a Savior to give repentance and remission of sins to Israel, and also that He had made him a witness with the Holy Spirit, witnesses of these things.

6. The Result (vv. 33-42).

1. They determined to kill the apostles (v. 33).
Peter's stinging words cut to the quick, but their desperate wickedness filled them with murderous hatred instead of moving them to repentance. They could not answer the message, so the only way was to kill their accusers.

2. Gamaliel's counsel (vv. 34-39).
He advised neutrality, assuring them that if it be a work of men it would come to nought, but if it be of God they could not overthrow it because they would be engaged in the hopeless task of fighting against God.

3. The apostles beaten (v. 40).
While Gamaliel's advice, they vented their rage by beating the apostles and charging them not to speak in Christ's name.

4. The behavior of the apostles (vv. 41, 42).
They departed with hearts full of joy that they were counted worthy to suffer for the name of Christ. They continued to preach Jesus Christ in public and in private.

5. An Undivided Heart
An undivided heart which worships God alone, and trusts Him as it should, is raised above all anxiety for earthly wants.

6. Salvation
Salvation has cost too much for God to give it to a person when he is not hungry for it.—Ephesians 2:8.

7. The Lie
A lie should be recognized, extinguished wherever found.—Carlyle.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE GREATEST MAN

LORD BRYCE—better known to us as James Bryce, author of "The American Commonwealth"—started something at Williamstown, Mass., when he dropped the remark that Mazzini, the President of the Czechoslovak republic, was one of the three really great men to come to the front during the war.

The experts from all over the world attending the meetings of the Institute of Politics, began speculating as to who were the other two.

Then, to the surprise of a great many persons, he mentioned Venizelos, the former prime minister of Greece, and Jan Smuts, the clever premier of South Africa.

An American citizen born in Athens, said recently that the Greeks drove Venizelos out of power "because he was too able."

A former Africaner, now an American, says that the best way to gain the respect of Britons is to fight them.

"The biggest man in the empire" is well, it is significant that all of Bryce's "Big Three" belong to small nations and that, though the greatest war of all time had just come to an end, he did not mention a single soldier or sailor.

"Take the case of France," said he. "The biggest man in the empire" is well, it is significant that all of Bryce's "Big Three" belong to small nations and that, though the greatest war of all time had just come to an end, he did not mention a single soldier or sailor.

All the world knew at once who was the greatest man produced by the American War of Independence. Everybody knew at once who was the greatest man produced in the American Civil War. Nobody has any doubt as to who was the biggest man in the Napoleonic wars.

Are we in a period of small men in big figures?

Right on top of Lord Bryce's expression of opinion Mazzini—coward, traitor, and yet the most lovable of men. He is more real to us than Lloyd George or Clemenceau or others we might name. And when these striving figures have sunk into the mists of history, future generations will be reading with delight how Falstaff, as a young man, used to hear the chimes at midnight.

Never was a greater compliment paid to anybody than that of Baruch to Sir John when he said: "I was never with him whosoever he is, whether in heaven or h—l."

That a character, not at all reputable, but invented by the greatest English-speaking world in history, shows the triumph of mind over matter and experience.

A THOUGHT TO THE BUYER

By SYDNEY J. BURGOWNE

THERE are rules on how to treat the man who buys—but this one tells of just a splendid little plan to help the chap who sells.

Jump right into the Salesman's shoes. For just a little while—And then I'm sure you won't refuse to greet him with a smile.

He may have traveled all night through. In a stuffy upper berth. Just so that he could bring to you "THE FINEST GOODS ON EARTH!"

His hands are always "in and out"—"in" his pockets for a tip. Then "out" again for just about Each breath he takes on his trip.

The comforts of the snug home-nest That you enjoy so much. He had to leave with all the rest—And then maybe "gets in Dutch."

And though hotels are often fine, I'm sure if you would try To jump around along the line You'd pity the Poor Guy.

But pullman berths won't seem so small. Nor hotel clerks so pert. And he won't mind such things at all—The tips he gives won't hurt.

If you just hand a welcome out—Then he'll go on, without a doubt, Happier—by a lot.

So stop awhile and think a bit. And you'll see the common sense Of trying just to look at it From his side of the fence.

Then greet him with the friendly hand. He needs the "dough" and YOU; But don't forget to understand—YOU NEED THE SALESMAN, TOO!

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

WART CURES

NO DEPARTMENT of folk medicine as practiced in this country appears to be so popular as that which deals with the cure of warts.

One of the publications of the American Folk-Lore society gives nearly four pages to a list of magical cures now in vogue for these annoying excrescences.

Mythology and sympathetic magic lend old forms of primitive religions are the bases of the "cure." Here are two which are based upon tree worship. Draw a knife across the wart and they draw it (the knife) across an apple tree. Cut your finger nails and place the cuttings in a hole in a tree. Then stop up the hole and "wish the warts onto somebody else."

In both cases the tree spirit is appealed to for a cure. In the first process the transference of the evil spirit residing in the wart to the keeping of the tree god is accomplished by means of the knife, and in the second cure by means of the cuttings of the finger nails. The knife is an iron instrument and, as has been shown, iron is something possessing power over witches and evil spirits. And the finger nails were regarded by the ancients, even when severed from the body, as retaining the "wart" of the man. To transfer finger-nail cuttings was tantamount to transferring the whole man to the keeping of the tree god.

The wishing the wart onto another after the ceremony of the nail cuttings is in the nature of a prayer to the tree god to dispose of the evil wart-spirit by handing it over to another home so that it may be kept quiet and not seek to return to its former habitat. In the days when all Europe was covered with a dense forest, tree worship was the most extensive and most popular cult, and it is not surprising that we find among our current superstitions of today so many vestiges of it.

"NEST-EGG" is an allusion to the custom of placing an egg in the hen's nest to induce her to lay her eggs there. Similarly if a person has saved a little money it serves as an inducement to him to add to his store.

Cold-Water Dyeing

There are lots of "prepared tints" for home dyeing of your dainty lingerie, but did you ever try real dyeing with a real dye? You get glorious effects when you begin with the true tones that only real dyes can impart to fabrics!

An envelope of the actual dye powder is only fifteen cents at any drug store, sits a bit in cold water—dye the garment—and it's done. Only you'll have a smooth, even tone just exactly like materials have when bought; none of that streaky look; never weak or "washy," no matter how much you dilute or lighten the color. Furthermore, you can "set" the tint if you wish, by merely having the water boil.

Every drug store has Diamond Dyes, color cards and suggestions for exquisite tinting or regular, permanent dyeing of anything. Or, write for Color-Craft—a marvelous book of ideas in full colors; free from DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N.S.S., Burlington, Vermont.

Feel Stiff and Achy?

To feel constantly lame and achy is too often a sign of sluggish kidneys.

A sluggish action permits waste poisons to remain in the blood and is apt to make one languid, tired and achy, with dull backache, dizziness and other nagging backache. A common warning that the kidneys are not acting right is scanty or burning urination.

Inside the kidneys at such times with Doan's Pills. Since 1885 Doan's have been winning friends the country over. Ask your neighbor!

80,000 Users Endorse Doan's!

George F. Williams, 21 Orange St., Boston, Mass., writes: "I have used Doan's Pills for many years and have found them to be the best remedy for all kidney troubles. I have never had a day's relief since I began using them. I have a great many friends who have used them and all of them are satisfied. I have a great many friends who have used them and all of them are satisfied. I have a great many friends who have used them and all of them are satisfied."

The Scanty Exceptions
"The Oriental Gaze really won't be open tonight," said the landlord of the Torpidity tavern, in reply to the inquiry of a guest concerning the local temple of flicker. "You see, this is prayer meeting night and it's always closed on such nights, and when the Rebecca lodge meets or the ladies aid gives an oyster supper or the Lyceum is going on and the nights once in a while when the young folks are tripping the light fantastic toe and on the rare occasions when the Stock and Bond Coterie presents a drama."

"Well, for goodness sake, when is it open?"

"On every other night except them I've mentioned, besides, of course, Sunday and when it storms."—Kansas City Star.

Thawed by Electricity
Frozen water mains frequently are thawed out by electricity. In the dead of winter when all the houses in a section of the city find they cannot draw water at any of the fountains, the water department hears about it and appeals to the electric light and power company, which sends out an emergency crew. Electric power connections are made on hydrants at the two ends of the frozen section. The heat generated by the passage of the electricity through the pipes soon has water flowing freely again.

Gold Found in Iceland
What might be called a small "Klondike rush" has occurred in Iceland near Reikjavik, where an important deposit of gold has been discovered. Iceland was discovered more than a thousand years ago, but until recently it was not known that the island contained any gold deposits large enough to warrant development. There are 30,000 Icelanders and heretofore they have imported all their metals.

Leaves From Queen's Coffin
Among the gifts left to his son by Mr. Theodore Hall Hall, barrister-at-law, are "the flowers and leaves which fell from Queen Victoria's coffin at Paddington station, and were picked up by me after the departure of the funeral train, and were mounted by me, with their frame and the brass casket in which they are kept."—London Tit-Bits.

NO FLAPPER TEACHERS

IN TIPPECANOE TOWNSHIP
Flappers are barred as teachers in the schools of Tippecanoe township, Kosciusko county. Trustee Milo Strombeck Saturday published a statement declaring that no woman teacher who wears her dresses higher than six inches below the knee or who uses rouge of lip stick and no man or woman teacher who dances, smokes cigarettes or uses intoxicating liquor need apply. He says that teachers need an uplifting example before their children.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

The members of Class number five of the Palestine Christian church delightedly surprised Mr. Lewis Eaton when they gathered at his home on Friday evening. May the 20th to help him celebrate his birthday. The evening was spent in a social way. Light refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Russell Huffer. The birthday cake was a large angel food cake beautifully decorated with pink candles.

All departed at a late hour after wishing Mr. Eaton many more happy birthdays.

Those present were—Mr. and Mrs. John Minear, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Bowser, Mr. and Mrs. Omar Morrison and family, Mr. and Mrs. Carles, Mr. Rueben Kibler, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Huffer and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Eaton. Mr. and Mrs. Ott Jefferies, daughter Miss Lucille, and son Royal were guests of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Minear also celebrated their wedding anniversary on this occasion.

AUTOMOBILE PER FAMILY

IN KOSCIUSKO COUNTY

Does your family, or any person in your family own an automobile? If they don't, the autos are not evenly distributed. Because the County Assessor's records show that there are 5,900 autos listed for taxation in this county. Figuring 5 people to a family, the 30,000 inhabitants of this county compose 6,000 families, or an average of nearly one auto to each family.

PLANT A TREE

The season of tree planting is at hand. Arbor day is being celebrated in the various states of the country. For the past few years things agricultural have been a little below par, but this is no reason why our tree life should be neglected. Volumes have been written about the subject, and it would seem that there is little left to be said. But be that as it may, we can all take time during this season of the year to plant at least one tree. Try it and watch the tree grow. It will add to your interest in life. This is the time of year. Show your confidence in the future and your love of country by planting a tree this year.

SUNDAY GRASS INSURES FARMERS AGAINST SUN-BAKED PASTURES
Insurance against sun-baked pastures during mid-summer need no longer worry Indiana farmers, according to the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. A field seeded down in drought resisting Sudan grass between corn planting time and June 15th can be depended upon to produce abundantly when native grasses are least productive.

The average Indiana farm with 29 acres in pasture has 14 plowable acres, part of which can be utilized to produce a supplementary pasture crop of Sudan, because it can be grown easily and cheaply in almost any fairly rich soil. It makes good pasture in about 30 days, and being an annual there is no danger in it becoming obnoxious as a weed. The crop is best planted with an ordinary grain drill at the rate of 15 to 20 pounds to the acre. Farmers planting a few acres this spring need have little worry about pasturage, regardless of rainfall and many other adverse conditions that usually affect native-grass pastures in July and August.

Nothing is gained by sowing Sudan grass before the soil is warm because the seed will likely rot unless it is planted after corn planting time. The ground should be plowed deep, thoroughly pulverized and made compact. An acre will furnish abundant pasturage for a cow for at least two months.

The Institute urges dairy farmers, especially to give Sudan grass a trial. If pastured down and the cows taken off for a short time, it grows again very rapidly. In case there is no need for sodas for pastures, it can always be made into good hay. Used with alfalfa it makes a good combination for winter feeding. When cured it is nearly as nourishing as timothy and is relished more, probably because of its sweetish taste. As hay the yield is from one and one-half to three tons per acre, according to season conditions. For 14 years it has made a satisfactory stand at the Iowa Experiment Station. The Kansas and Wisconsin Stations report trials showing that planting an acre per cow provided abundant pasturage for a dairy herd through dry summers, including the especially dry summer of 1919.

There's a joker in the "cheap" paint can!

"Cheap" paint looks like paint and smells like paint—and the low price seems to be attractive. But here is the two-sided "joker." A gallon covers only about half the area covered by SWP House Paint—a strictly quality paint. Nearly twice as many gallons are needed. Figure that out and the low price isn't low at all.

Then it lasts only about half as long on the house—needs to be renewed often—costs over twice as much per year as SWP.

Come in. Let us tell you the whole story about real paint economy. We will save you money.

GUARANTEED!

SWP House Paint is guaranteed to look better, last longer, cost less per job and less per year than any house paint on the market.

LAVISH LACE ON THE BRIDE; CHIC GOING-AWAY COSTUME

WEDDING bells! What visions of transcendent loveliness are they destined to ring in, with the coming of summer, for bridal processions with such succeeding seasons seem to be taking on an ever increasing picture-queeness.

If lace were not to contribute a major share of beauty to the bride's costume, it would be surprising indeed, for this is pre-eminently a lace season. To such an extent has lace smart short-jacket tailored suit, or a three-piece ensemble of beige crepe, faille silk or fine worsted, or a stunning long coat posed over a simple little crepe frock. Which shall it be?

Considering the tremendous vogue now on for the two-piece tulle, one is tempted to make it first choice, especially if the bride-to-be is possessed of a youthful slender figure. If one has the happy faculty of wearing a suit attractively, then select the suit, captured the fancy of the mode, that not only is the bride swathed in lace, but the apparel of the guests presents a galaxy of frocks and wraps styled of lace. For these, preference is shown Chantilly either colorfully dyed or in black or ecru and even the tulle laces retain their share of style prestige.

For the bride, be her gown of satin, georgette, crepe or supple velvet, lace elaboration marks its styling. The picture presents a winsome exponent of the lace-garmented bridal robe as exploited among present-day modes. In addition to insets of rare lace there are innumerable frilly lace edgings running hither and thither in pretty confusion. The hemline takes on a graceful deep scalloping which adds yet another charm to this frock. Nor is this penchant for lace confined to

For the bride's honeymoon trip such a suit as here pictured is of assured appeal. It is tailored of finest navy twill, being braided most exquisitely at the front coutee edges, which are so designed as to reveal a clever satin waistcoat in burnt toast coloring. The molded-to-the-head hat is of navy grosgrain ribbon. Note especially the handsome pointed for neckpiece thrown over the arm. The last word to fashionables is the separate fur of either pointed, platinum or beige fox.

If not a suit, then perhaps the bride may decide upon a three-piece ensemble. The latest is the beige jumper or one-piece frock of crepe or faille or tucking, accompanied by a full-length coat of velveteen in perfectly matched coloring. If one prefers the coat may be of the same material as the dress, for its mission to beautify and adorn extends to the veil which it borders most daintily.

Independent of any suggestion of trimming are the smart and very new tulle bridal gowns. For the young and slender bride a bouffant tulle frock is exquisite. For the stately bride gleaming white satin of simple silhouette, as ever, ranks as a classic.

Your choice, June bride-elect—for your going-away costume either a

The de luxe bride can also well afford to take with her one of the new chenille woven coats as shown to the left in the picture. It is delightfully colorful, yet in no way transgresses the laws of good taste.

WHO'S WHO

Jeanne Beaufort, beautiful daughter of a Virginia planter, has lost her father and two brothers in the Civil War. (The year 1864.) She swears to

Mrs. Wetmore, her aunt, that she will carry out the Biblical injunction for vengeance "an eye for an eye." While at Richmond she meets

Henry Morgan, a debonaire young officer, who falls in love with her. She repels his advances. She is engaged as a spy for the Confederate government and urged to use all the wiles and power of her sex to find one

Parson Kennedy, and bring him within the Southern lines. It is planned to have her make headquarters with a family of southern sympathizers in Washington. Jeanne learns telegraphy and other technical branches of her new calling. And clad as a boy often in the Blue of the North, she makes her way through the lines. She learns of an organization of eleven Union spies and of their meeting place in a Richmond loft. As she overhears the leaders address the masked men seated about a table, Jeanne is discovered and dragged into the room. The leader unmasks as he threatens her with death, but is dissuaded from shooting her by the suggestion from one of the men that one of the number marry her. She consents and when one of the masked men volunteers to marry she refuses and claims the right to choose.

She rejects the volunteer and selects the one who suggested the marriage (him she names "Irony"). To her surprise the leader is no other than Parson John Kennedy. He performs the ceremony. "Irony" says his name is among those who sign as witnesses. (Just before they leave her bound.) In the following code form:

John Kennedy, D. D.
C-W-G-L H-R-D-M
A-N-K-S P-P-A-G
G-R-D-A J-N-K-F
J-W-G-A F-B-N-S
F-W-G-S W-B-E-H

Later Jeanne learns that Morgan is a spy.

To her surprise she receives a letter bearing the curious device she had seen tattooed on her husband's arm. "The letter, ironical in its tone, shows that her unknown husband is still in Richmond and knows the name and identity of his wife! She cuts her hair, stains her face and going to Baltimore, assumes the name of

Alice Trent, not knowing such a person lived in Baltimore.

An intoxicated man accosts Jeanne and she is rescued by Captain John Armitage, a young Union officer whom she tells her assumed name.

She resides with a family who is in sympathy with the south.

They began to take her everywhere, and within a fortnight's time she became a bright new star in the political and military firmament of Washington life. Morgan took particular pains to keep out of her orbit until September.

On the other hand, wherever she went she found that young captain John Armitage. He attached himself to her immediately. He was just enough different from the ordinary average man to interest her. He was really unusual, being of that type of youth which has surrendered half of its illusions and tenaciously clings, blindly we might say, to the other half.

He was bold one day and diffident the next.

Her interest in him deepened quickly as she wanted to get to the bottom of this peculiarity. He was still a Yankee, but she no longer qualified the word.

She had forewarned romance. As if red-blooded twenty could forsake its dreams by the mere willing of it!

CHAPTER X Washington

Jeanne's hostess gave a reception in September to one of the South American ministers; and it was at this affair that Morgan was presented to "Alice Trent" while she was engaged in animated debate with Captain Armitage. She made room for the new arrival, and for a while divided her attention and attractions between the two men. She was called away presently.

"Charming young woman," was Morgan's comment. "Where is she from?"

"Baltimore, I believe," Armitage turned an inquiring eye upon Morgan. "Where do you keep yourself?" "Under the Senator's thumb. I am beginning to weary of the position."

"Going"—as Armitage rose. "Work." With a curt nod Armitage departed.

When he was sure that Armitage had left the house, Morgan went in search of Jeanne.

"I haven't been to see you because I dared not. I fancy I'm being watched—for what purpose I don't know as yet. I am mailing you a diagram of a certain house. There will be a secret passage to the attic. You will find a table once a week—preferably Thursdays—whatever important facts you pick up. I'll attend to the rest of it." "If you will be at the Capitol at nine to-morrow morning, I'll give you something to do for me personally."

"I am always and ever at your service. Good-bye, then, until to-morrow."

He went away with the old enigmatical smile on his lips; and Jeanne fell to comparing the two men. When a young woman begins to compare two men of her acquaintance it is a danger signal for one of them; she is about to place in her permanent record one above the other.

Promptly at nine the next morning Jeanne stopped her carriage before the Capitol. Morgan was strolling along, apparently engaged in studying the cracks in the sidewalk. "Mr. Morgan!" she called.

He looked up, paused and raised his hat.

"Good morning, Miss Trent."

"Step in and I'll drop you wherever you say."

"That is very good of you. I was going to one of the recruiting stations. The work is slow."

All this was of course for the benefit of the driver. When they were on the way, when the noise drowned their voices, she handed him a note. He opened it.

"What's this?"

"I want you to find out who these men are. They belong to the Secret Service, or an arm of it. One of them will have a tattooed mark on his left forearm. Have you ever run across a man named Parson Kennedy?"

"The Parson? Frequently."

"I want that man where I can talk to him without being disturbed. He can tell me what those letters mean."

"Would an abduction serve?"

"It would."

"Then everything falls out nicely. And the reward?"

"We'll talk of that later."

"Well, you shall see Parson Kennedy twice to-night—once at Summer's and again in a certain hut by the Potomac. I'll give you the directions. But what's in the air?" "That is my affair," Bue she softened the retort with a smile.

"You are wearing a wig; you have dyed your skin. If I did not know you with the eyes of love, I'd have some difficulty in recognizing you. Please pardon my asking you a question: your arms and shoulders?"

"I have not neglected them. You saw that last night. But if you think this a good opportunity, make love to me; you are mistaken. In this game of espionage we are partners; but beyond that, nothing."

"Who can say? Do you think I will ever give you up?"

"Here is your recruiting station. I had best drop you. What is that soldier taking up? 'Dead or Alive!'"

He came back, smiling with his lips but covertly warning her with his eyes.

"It is a dodger for the apprehension of Jeanne Beaufort dead or alive—medium height, slender, handsome, dark eyes, very pale, dull copper-colored hair; wears boy's clothes successfully."

"A woman spy? How interesting."

"Before God, you are a gallant woman!" he whispered. Aloud he said: "Thanks for the lift, Miss Trent."

She smiled back at him as she drove off.

Dead or alive. But she went shopping. Jeanne Beaufort, dead or alive!

How small she was, how helpless—and how long that arm suddenly reaching out for her! So, after all these months, they had found out who she was? Slender, handsome, very pale. Immediately everything became eyes.

Dead or alive! She was a coward. She wanted to run away and hide; she wanted the strong comforting arms of her Aunt Della; she wanted her room at home.

Dead or alive! The wheels clattered; the hoofs of the horses beat time to it.

But her indomitable spirit did not long remain crushed.

She traced this catastrophe to the man who had entered her room. She knew now that he had been hunting for her photograph. Well, he hadn't found it. She possessed but one, and that was at home. After all, she had been expecting this. She had known that she could not go on forever, indefinitely, without leaving some positive trace of her individuality. Let them catch her if they could; forewarned and forearmed.

She reached home at noon, at the precise moment Parson John Kennedy entered the private office of the chief of the Secret Service bureau.

"Kennedy, we've found the name of your scoundrel, as you call her. We've sent out doggers, 'dead or alive' stuff. The description is meager because G-R-D-A is a bumpkin where women are concerned. A paper found on a dead man and signed opened up the way for G-R-D-A. He has seen her, and again in a certain hut by the Potomac. I'll give you the di-

"The name!"

"Wait a moment. You told me a remarkable tale the other night, or part of one. I have every reason to believe that that young woman and you scoundrel are one and the same. Her name is Jeanne Beaufort; and she is particularly good in assuming boy and young men roles."

"He has set out to find a photograph of her, and if there is one, he'll get it."

"Jeanne Beaufort—if we find her, it will be in Washington, mark my words."

"The man you suspect goes no where."

"Smells a rat likely."

"They have hanged poor Fogarty."

Kennedy bent his head. "He was a brave young man. I came to ask for Armitage. I want him to follow me for the next twelve hours and never get me slip out of his sight. I've been threatened again."

"You shall have Armitage. I'm glad you spoke as you did. He was about to rejoin his regiment."

There were several arms to the Secret Service in those days, and the most important was of course the military.

The War Office and Secret Service bureau had authority to draw a man from his regiment in all cases except when he was under fire. A good spy had to be a ready thinker, of flash impulses, of swift invention—and above all, young. It was the middle-aged who carefully weighed everything and then started forward just a little too late. Parson Kennedy was the exception.

When he left the Summer place that night, he dismissed his hired carriage. He bribed coachman drove of nutting into his board, while the men covering inside swore softly in chagrin.

But they in turn had for once looked farther ahead than Parson Kennedy; and before he had walked two blocks, three men fell afoul of him. Strong as he was, he was not superhuman. They forced some pungent liquid through his teeth, and a cloth was held over his nose.

When he came out of his stupor he found himself securely bound to a chair. Near by was a common table, and on this single candle burned.

A cabin—but where? How far was he from the city? Where was Armitage?

When the last phase of dizziness left his eyes he dimly saw two shadowy forms by the cabin door. The smaller spoke in a half-whisper.

"Send the men away, and you guard the door from the outside."

"He is a dangerous man."

"Not at this moment. Do as I say."

The taller man went out reluctantly to obey orders. A boyish figure approached Parson Kennedy and stood with folded arms. Kennedy could not see the face, for the hat was drawn down too far; but he wondered where he had seen that figure before, that attitude.

"Parson Kennedy, look at this carefully." The speaker drew out a folded sheet of paper, opened it and held it out for his inspection. The Parson strained at his bonds his eyes protruding.

"You remember that, them? asked the boyish one."

"Aye!"—in a half roar.

"Tell me the names of each of these men, and you shall go free. Refuse and you shall be carried to Richmond, where they will hang you by the neck."

"Hanged by the neck!" Kennedy laughed—laughter that had the infection of a baited tiger snarling at his irons. "Yes, I know you, little viper! Carry me away, and hang me, but never a word will you get out of me. That's final. You'll suffer, wonder always who the man was. I know. But think you to dig it out of my lips?"

A face appeared at the side window and vanished hastily.

"I will say ythis much, Jeanne Beaufort—ah, you start? I regret that I did not shoot you out of hand when I had the opportunity."

Jeanne returned the paper to her pocket. She turned toward the door only to pause in alarm. She heard a curse, some muffled blows—a body charred against the rotting boards. A moment later a revolver cracked: two shots followed; then came tramping of feet and then silence. The door opened and a man entered swiftly. He wore a handkerchief over the lower part of his face.

"Don't move," he warned Jeanne. He passed around her to the Parson. With one hand holding a steady weapon, he worked with the other at the confusion of knots.

The revolver wavered, Jeanne swept the candle from the table, overturned that and flew to the door unerring, banging it after her.

"Armitage?" he bellowed Kennedy. "Quick! The others will be coming back."

They groped hurriedly for the door, stumbled out and ran toward the grove, throwing themselves down into the thicket.

"Do you know who that was?" whispered Kennedy.

"God knows. I shall never cease to remember that night!"

"Pah!"

"She got away."

"You speak as if you were glad of it?"

"I am."

"Milkop! That woman is Jeanne Beaufort; and you have let her go!"

"Jeanne Beaufort!"

"Aye! And through your maudlin sentiments you have freed her!"

In the small hours of that morning, in a mean room, a man sat wearily at a table, his bare left arm stretched across it. At the other side was a tattooer. He was putting on the finishing touches of a circle with the Greek-like letters in the center.

Looking Into The Future

When you spend a dollar for advertising, do you look into the future to see what far reaching results, what wonderful possibilities are opened up in the future. We want our advertisers to get immediate results, of course, but immediate results from advertising are never so satisfying as are the results obtained through the use of consistent advertising over a long period.

It is the constant growth of good will that makes advertising a good investment in your business.

Cold Facts Must Be Faced In Business

If a man smashed the thermometer because it said 20 below zero, it wouldn't make him any warmer. The thermometer was simply an humble instrument keeping him informed with the facts.

It isn't always pleasant to face facts because the facts are not always what we would like to have them. But isn't it a good deal better to form the habit of dealing with actual facts than to attempt to side step them? You can turn your head away or you can shut your eyes, but the reality continues just the same, whether you see it or not.

Here in the bank we have to deal with facts. If we owe you money you expect to be paid in actual coin, and not in hope or in cheerful words or expectations. We must penetrate the confusing side issues and find what the realities are in every situation. Perhaps we could help you to look over some of your problems, and see them from an unsentimental point of view. We are friendly to your undertakings, but we know that it doesn't pay you or anybody else to let himself be fooled about the facts of his business situation.
