Millers Honored

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Miller were visited by some forty or fifty friends Sunday afternoon, all offering their congratulations to the couple upon the completion of fifty years of wedded life. Their anniversary was actually on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller were treated to a delicious meal at the Steer Inn by their son, John, and family.

Estimate On Holiday Traffic

Good weather is expected to lure more than a half million automobiles out of the Chicago area over the three-day July 4th holiday for trips within a 350-mile radius, according to Motor Club estimates.

J. J. Cavanagh, president of the Motor Club, urges all motorists to "be courteous and considerate of their fellow drivers." He said this was the best way to keep traffic accidents to a minimum.

Cavanagh suggested that motorists observe four basic rules for a safe and happy holiday on the highway:

1. Allow ample time for your trip.
2. Stay alert for traffic signs and signals.
3. Observe all speed limits.
4. Give the other driver the same break you expect from him.

The Club's touring department expects approximately 530,000 cars to leave the area sometime over the holiday period. These cars will carry approximately 1,590,000 persons.

Estimates are that 240,000 cars will leave the Chicago area on Thursday, July 3, between 4 p. m. and 9 p. m. One hundred thousand cars are expected to leave on Friday, July 4. And an additional 190,000 cars will be leaving for trips on Saturday, July 5.

Adding to the heavy traffic load will be 250,000 cars moving about in the Chicago area proper on each of the three days.

All estimates are based on good weather conditions prevailing for the three-day weekend.

The Motor Club expects the heaviest congestion to occur Sunday, July 6, between 4 p. m. and 11 p. m., when 375,000 cars will be returning to the city. The additional 155,000 cars are expected to return either before or after this 4 p. m. to 11 p. m. period.

For the 10th consecutive year, the Motor Club will provide a holiday air observation service for Chicago radio and TV stations. From 3 p. m. until 10 p. m. on Sunday, July 6, the club's plane will be in the air to report on traffic conditions. Air spotters will send information on congested areas to the club offices. These reports then will be phoned to radio and TV newsrooms for broadcast.

Ware - Ross

Potted palms decorated the altar in the Methodist Church, Saturday as Miss Shariene Ware became the bride of Gerald Lee Ross.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ware, 410 N. Broadway, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Masa Warren, Route 1, Mentone.

Rev. Ralph Hoffman, of Loganport, read the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Maude Snyder was the organist.

Mrs. Howard Swinehart, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor and Mrs. William Owens, Mrs. Charles Walton, and Mrs. Eldon Senff, also sisters of the bride, were attendants. They wore pastel shades of pink, blue green and yellow and carried bouquets of carnations which matched their dresses.

Eldon Senff was best man for Gerald Ross. The ushers were Howard Swinehart, Raymond Ross, LeRoy Markley, Charles Walton and William Owens.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white satin, and with an overskirt of tulle, with a fitted bodice, scooped neckline and long sleeves, a finger tip veil with orange blossom head piece. She also wore a two strand string of pearls. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade of white pom poms and carnations on a white Bible.

The bride's mother wore a street length green dress, a corsage of yellow roses and white accessories.

A reception followed immediately in the dining room of Pete's Restaurant.

The couple left for a short wedding trip through Indiana and central Illinois.

Out of town guests were from South Bend, Warsaw, Huntertown, Burket, Atwood, Silver Lake, Claypool, Kokomo and Plymouth.

The couple are home to their friends at 307 N. Franklin St., Mentone.

Floods And Fertilizer Loss

Loss of commercial fertilizer from the soil during flooding varies widely, according to Cliff Spies, Purdue University extension agronomist.

Many factors, such as the amount of sedimentation, erosion, soil texture and water movement,
are involved.

Leaching losses are influenced by soil texture and water movement. The extent of leaching is determined by the quantity of water moving down through the soil rather than over the surface, Spies explains. Loss will be greater where the water is trapped and must drain down through the soil. Loss will also be greater from light textured sandy soils than from heavier clay soils.

There will be greater losses of nitrogen in the nitrate form and also possibly from potash on sandy soils. Phosphorus will not be lost unless scoured away by erosion or buried under sediment, the agronomist asserts.

Where corn must be replanted these advantages of using row fertilizer and supplemental nitrogen and potash are listed by Spies:

Increased yield.
Advanced maturity.
Improved quality.

Where the corn crop is to be harvested as silage an extra 40 to 60 pounds of nitrogen per acre would be profitable, Spies suggests.

The agronomist terms "more questionable" the advantage of fertilizing late planted soybeans.

"Time and finances will likely be the most important factors in determining whether or not late planted crops will be fertilized," says Spies.

Lower Dairy Feed Costs

One of the smallest tools used on Indiana dairy farms may be the biggest money loser, G. A. Williams, Purdue University extension dairyman, asserts. It is the can, bucket, or scoop used in feeding grain to the dairy herd.

DHIA yearly feed records of 22 herds on test in 1957 in northern Indiana association show what wide variations may exist in the amount of grain fed per cow and the amounts of milk produced for each pound of grain fed.

Feed costs, Williams points out, make up approximately half of total production costs. When a liberal, well-managed feeding program is practiced, silage, hay, and pasture should provide 60-70 percent of the feed nutrients of 35-50 percent of the feed cost. Roughages supply nutrients at a lower cost rate than grain.

Many successful dairymen produce four to five pounds of milk for each pound of grain fed. Fifty percent of the herds in the association referred to produce less than 3.5 pounds of milk per pound of grain and only 18 percent of the herds gave five lbs. of milk for each pound of grain consumed.

A comparison of the three heaviest grain consuming herds and the three herds fed the lowest grain allowances shows even wider differences. The two groups of three herds each differed little in number of cows and production per cow. The heavily grained cows averaged less than one pound of milk per cow daily more than the cows receiving less than half as much grain.

Feed cost per cow was $104 per year in the herds fed less grain and more roughage. It took $146 per cow to pay the feed cost when heavier grain feeding was practiced. This resulted in a $42 difference in income above cost of feed per cow in favor of the herds fed less grain.

A comparison of the amounts of silage, hay and grain fed the two groups bears out the greater economy of roughages compared with concentrates. The yearly average per cow was 6,785 pounds of silage, 3,533 pounds of hay and 1,360 pounds of grain for the first group. The other cows consumed only 3,998 pounds of silage, 3,297 pounds of hay and 3,516 pounds of grain. The combined average grain per cow in the economy herds was 4,081 pounds of grain in contrast to the 10,547 pounds in the other herds. Each pound of grain produced 6-8 pounds of milk in one first group compared with 2-7 pounds in the second.

When the daily production of milk produced by each cow is known it is possible to adjust the daily grain allowance with greater accuracy and secure the greatest possible efficiency in relation to milk and feed prices, Williams says.

Dairymen who fail to realize the importance of quality roughage as a grain saver are missing one of the essentials in efficient production of dairy production of dairy products, he adds.

Dairy Days At Purdue July 18th

Dr. C. F. Huffman, widely-known Michigan State University dairy scientist, will present the feature address at Purdue University's Dairy Day, July 18.

The day-long program, starting at 10 a. m. (DST); will be held at the Purdue dairy center on Cherry Lane, West Lafayette. Lunch will be available in the dairy pavilion.

Exhibits, demonstrations and discussions of research and extension work at Purdue constitute the morning program, according to Norman Lundquist, Purdue dairy specialist in charge of the annual event.

The exhibits, demonstrations and discussions will include pasture for dairy calves, milk re-placers for dairy calves, methods of fly control in dairy barns, results of silage research, mastitis studies, crossbreeding experiments, broom grass management and hoof trimming and clipping.

Huffman, a member of the dairy husbandry staff at Michigan State University since 1922, is the immediate past president of the American Dairy Science Association. He is a teacher and research leader. Huffman's talk will be directed toward the more modern developments which make present day dairying more profitable. Huffman will speak during the afternoon session.

Other speakers will be Merle Stillions, C. H. Noller, D. L. Hill, T. G. Martin, B. W. Crowl, N. J. Moeller, Nelson Butcher and C. E. Parmelee, all of the Purdue dairy department; G. E. Lehnker, Purdue entomologist; F. A. Hall, extension veterinarian at Purdue, and M. R. Teel, Purdue agronomist.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Helvey were Saturday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Davis and family. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Vanlue and family all of Akron called in the evening.

Acclaim Freight Tax Repeal

"Congressional repeal of the three percent freight transportation tax is music to the ears of Indiana farmers," said George Doup, president of the state Farm Bureau, Tuesday. The bill became law with the President's signature yesterday.

Doup estimates that the repeal of this freight excise will save shippers of the nation, and among them thousands of Indiana farmers, an approximate half billion dollars per year. The school milk program, extended by Congressional action the same day, attacks dairy surpluses while it gives children milk at a reduced price, the Bureau president commented.

Doup is watching with interest developments in the proposed extension of Public Law 480 which expands agricultural markets in needy, foreign countries. Farm Bureau's program, which strives to reduce the farmers' costs, reduce farm surpluses and find new markets, has been given a substantial boost in recent action on Capitol Hill.

The Motor Club reports that eight per cent of all drivers involved in traffic accidents were following the car ahead too closely. A good rule of thumb for motorists to follow is to allow one car length stopping distance for every 10 miles per hour of speed.

The issuance of international driving licenses has jumped 70 per cent this year according to the Motor Club's International Travel Department. There were some 30,000 requests for international driving licenses during the first four months of 1958.

Respect the cleanliness of our roads and streets, says the Motor Club. Litter tossed from moving cars mars the natural beauty of the countryside as well as increasing the cost of highway maintenance.

The Motor Club suggests that you do your open highway driving this summer a little before—or a little after—the peak traffic hours. You'll enjoy the trip more and you'll feel safer when there are fewer cars on the road.

To help your car run smoothly during the hot summer weather, says the Motor Club, be sure that both the fan belt and water cooling system are working at peak efficiency. Rust inhibitors added to the radiator during the summer will retard rust formation and cool the motor effectively.

The Motor Club advises you not to overload the trunk of your car when packing for a vacation. Too much weight in the rear of the automobile affects the balance of the car and tends to point the headlights off the road.

"Oh, him! It was quite a coincidence — my patience and his bank account were both exhausted at the same time!"

Purdue University dairy scientists say one of the most common causes for poor quality grass silage is too much moisture in the crop when it is ensiled. Dry matter losses will be lowest if the crop is ensiled at moisture content of from 70 to 75 percent.

Purdue University poultry scientists advise having extra pans and troughs of water ready for use by layers and broilers when hot weather comes. Additional drinking space is essential if all chickens are to get as much water as they need.

Grain bins should be cleaned out and sprayed with either methoxychlor or DDT before the new crop is stored, remind Purdue University entomologists. Surrounding areas that may harbor grain-infesting insects should also be cleared and sprayed.

High Moisture Stored Hay

Unfavorable haymaking weather brings from Purdue University agricultural engineers a warning that storing higher-than-usual moisture content hay can result in costly farm fires.

Loose hay should not be placed in the mow at more than 25 percent moisture, according to the engineers.

Chopped or baled hay needs to be even drier because less air can circulate to cool and dry these types. Twenty percent moisture is safe for storage of baled or chopped hay.

Farmers having hay already stored can easily check its temperature with a perforated pipe probe containing a thermometer.

Temperatures of 160 degrees F. are a definite danger signal. Hourly temperature readings should be taken, the engineers emphasize. If the hay temperature readings reach 180 degrees, removal of the hay from the barn should begin immediately.

The engineers recommend that the fire department be called and asked to stand by since from 180 degrees the temperature can rise very rapidly.

Farm Drainage Systems

Lafayette, Ind.—Much of the crop loss in central Indiana from flooding on uplands during the second week of June could have been prevented with properly installed farm drainage systems, says Don Sisson, Purdue University agricultural engineer.

Crop losses were of two types—losses from backwater on bottom lands along rivers and streams and losses on upland from impounded surface water in depressions. A farm drainage system would not have saved a crop from flooding on bottom lands. However, on the uplands a good farm drainage system would have helped to dispose of the water quickly enough to prevent severe crop damage. This is true even with the intense rains that occurred.

According to S. B. Pershing, Tippecanoe county agricultural agent, about as much crop acreage was lost from flooding on uplands as on river and creek bottoms in Tippecanoe county. If this can be projected to other central Indiana areas, then proper farm drainage systems could have prevented up to half of the total crop loss.

Each of the drainage problems on the uplands must be considered individually. Value of the land, potential crop yields and frequency of flooding are some of the factors to consider in determining how much investment is justified for a drainage system. Changes in land values and developments in drainage excavating machinery may make drainage projects feasible today that were not considered feasible a few years ago. In many cases community cooperation will be required to arrive at a satisfactory solution.

Some methods of drainage that may be used are open ditches, shallow surface ditches, diversion terraces and tile drainage. Using shallow surface ditches is one of the best ways of draining off floodwater quickly, Sisson says. In some areas, diversion terraces may be used to prevent surface water flowing into depressions. Tile drainage should be relied on mainly to drain soil water. Tiling will keep the soil in a condition to absorb water. Pumping may be required if a gravity outlet is not available. Here are some suggestions to improve existing drainage systems. Clean trash and debris from open ditches. Clear large willows and brush from ditch banks and then initiate a chemical spray program for future control. In some cases ponded surface water can be drained from depressions by constructing a shallow ditch to the existing open ditch outlet. Sometimes a pipe through a soil bank is all that is needed to enable ponded surface water to drain, Sisson asserts.

Kos. Co. Soil Conservation Field Day

Plans are being completed for the first Kosciusko County Soil Conservation Field Day to be held July 24 on the Sam Rhoades farm in Washington township. The farm is located on road 900E a half mile south of old road 30. Mr. Rhoades is a member of the board of supervisors of the Soil Conservation District.

Implement dealers throughout the county are cooperating with the supervisors in furnishing machinery for display and to demonstrate the soil conservation practices that will be shown.

Wagon train tours of the demonstration plots will begin at 10 A. M. The Headquarters area will have a machinery display and a trench silo of 400 ton capacity. Discussion leaders will be located at each of the stops to explain conservation procedures and to answer questions.

The first demonstration plot will be a water way construction

They will show the best procedure for marketing farm timber. An oats variety plot will also be exhibited on the tour with all the recommended varieties on display. Keller Beeson, Purdue agronomist will explain the merits of each variety.

A newly constructed farm pond will be seen along with a display of gully stabilization. The methods of pond building will be explained by Cal Dunifon, SCS technician. Also at this stop a discussion of fish production will be led by E. J. Leedy, biologist and Bob Wilson, wild-life refugee specialist from the state conservation department. Dick Higgins and Bill Davis, local conservation officers also will be present for consultation.

One pasture field on the farm will be renovated during the day and Oscar Ackerson, SCS agronomist will demonstrate renovation methods.

The final demonstration will be at the Yoder farm just north of the conservation area and many kinds of balers, choppers, hay conditioners and other equipment will be used.

The day's program has been arranged by the supervisors of the Kosciusko County Soil Conservation District.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Mollenhour and daughter spent a few days last week in Southern Indiana.

Mrs. Robert Barker and daughters Connie and Grace of Pittsburgh, Pa., visited her uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ware and family.

July is a good time to seed alfalfa on sandy soils where the seedbed has been well prepared, packed and moisture conditions are good, say Purdue University agronomists. Such an early seeding gives the plants time to develop strong root and top growth before winter.

Purdue University agricultural engineers suggest that July is a good time to inspect the farm for needed grass waterways. The seedbed should be prepared and grasses sown late in August or early in September.

Hot weather causes milk to test lower in butterfat, remind Purdue University dairy scientists. Tests show that for each 10-degree temperature drop between the limits of 30 and 70 degrees fat increased almost two-tenths of one percent.

Plantings of nasturtiums should be sprayed with nicotine sulphate, malathion or lindane to control the black aphids which infest them, according to Purdue University entomologists.

Fire At Etna Green

Fire destroyed about one-third of the roof on the Etna Lumber Company plant in Etna Green Saturday morning but fast working firemen brought the blaze under control before major damage could result.

Lon Klinefelter, an employee, discovered the blaze shortly after 9 o'clock and summoned the Etna Green fire department. Assistance soon came from Mentone, Atwood, and Bourbon departments.

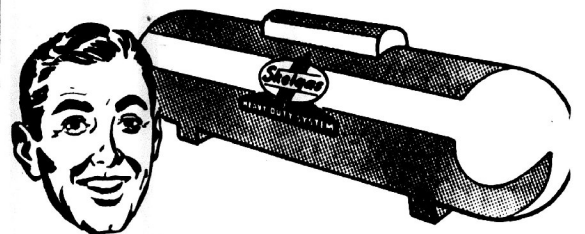

The fire, of undetermined origin, burned over about one-third of the entire roof section of the building but was doused by firemen before it spread to the remainder of the structure.

Lawrence Anglin, manager of the company in Etna Green, said no damage estimate could be made until a more complete inventory was made.

Etna Green Fire Chief Pete Thomas said the quick response of local and nearby firemen saved the building from total destruction.

The Mentone Department responded to the call for help.

LIST FEATURES OF COUNTY FAIR

The catalog published in preparation for the 42nd annual Kosciusko county fair, to be held this year from August 4 to 9 inclusive, was released today by William A. Orr, of near Warsaw, president of the fair association.

It lists the officials and committee heads in charge of the various departments and also contains a summary of cash prizes, ribbons and special awards to be made during the fair.

The program calls for the official opening of the fair at 7 p.m. Monday, August 4. The fair will close on Saturday night, August 9, with the crowning of the Kosciusko County Queen and the many merchandise awards, including a new car by the Warsaw American Legion post.

The program highlights, each day, are as follows:

Monday Night—Opening of the fair at 7 p.m.; 4-H revue and 4-H dress revue at 8 p.m.

Those are the day-by-day highlights of the fair. In addition there will be free acts each afternoon at 2 and 4 o'clock and each night at 8 and 10 o'clock.

The World of Pleasure shows and rides will fill the midway.

The Fair Queen contest will be sponsored by the Alpha Beta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority, in cooperation with the fair board, for the purpose of raising money to provide a speech and hearing therapist for the county schools. The sorority will have a stand with money containers and voting for the queen contestants will again be on a "penny-a-vote" basis.

Officers of the county fair association this year, in addition to President Orr, are Robert Hall, vice president; Henry Butler, secretary and general manager; and Pauline Holderman, treasurer. All reside in Warsaw.

Dig up iris plants in July, advise Purdue University horticulturists. Roots should be examined for iris borer. The plants should be reset in fertile soil and their tops can be cut back one-half to two-thirds when transplanted.

Mrs. Ethel Carter and son Gary of Green Bay, Wisconsin, are visiting relatives in this community.

Berry Plants Need Topping

Canes of blackberries and black and purple raspberries should be "topped" when new growth reaches 26 to 30 inches in height, according to W. B. Ward, Purdue University extension horticulturist.

When shoots are permitted to grow unchecked during the entire growing season, they become tall, spindly and difficult to handle and unproductive during the fruiting season the following year.

Ward says the growing point on the shoot of blackberries and black and purple raspberries should be cut off at the terminal tip, which causes development of lateral or side growth.

When they have reached the proper height, lateral growth should be left to grow the balance of the season and should not be cut back until next spring.

Red raspberry canes should not be topped, Ward says.

Additional information on pruning berries is contained in Purdue extension bulletin 191, "Raspberries and Blackberries," available from county agricultural agents and the office of agricultural publications at Purdue.

Preventing Brown Rot

Peach and plum trees should be sprayed before harvest to prevent brown rot disease.

This year's wet, humid spring has increased the danger from brown rot, according to Purdue University plant pathologists.

The disease causes plums and peaches to rot and dry up as they ripen. Brown rot first shows up as a browning and wilting of blossoms just before the petals fall. Two weeks after the blossoms fall twigs begin to wither, and young terminal shoots die.

Three weeks before harvest the fruit becomes susceptible to the brown rot, and wounds in the fruit greatly increase the dangers of infestation. Spores infecting the fruit at this time are carried by wind, rain and insects. Once brown rot starts on mature fruit, it spreads quickly.

To prevent the disease, tree owners should spray with water-soluble sulfur or Captan—two tablespoonfuls in one gallon of water—three weeks before the fruit is ripe, respraying with the same material ten days before ripening is advised also.

For more detailed information on the control of brown rot disease the following publications are free to Indiana residents and can be obtained at county extension offices or by writing to agricultural publications office, Purdue University, Lafayette.

Extension Circular 430, "How to Control Insects and Diseases in the Home Fruit Garden."

Extension leaflet 352, "Plum Brown Rot and Its Control."

Soybeans Best July Planting

The 4th of July is too late to plant corn in Indiana unless the farmer wants it for silage or has wet storage facilities or drying equipment.

That's the word from Keller E. Beeson, Purdue University extension agronomist, who adds:

"Generally, soybeans are a much safer cash crop for July planting in Indiana."

Beeson points out that last year, early 200 series hybrid corn planted near Greencastle on June 27 carried almost 30 percent water at Thanksgiving. Full-season hybrids planted that late carried 35-40 percent moisture.

Similar demonstration plots, planted during the last week of June, 1957, in southwestern Indiana showed 26-29 percent moisture for the short-season hybrids in early November. At the same time, full-season hybrids carried about 35 percent water.

About 20 percent is the moisture content for safe cribbing of corn, Beeson explains.

The only hybrid planted late in June that was dry enough to crib was the very early Michigan 250, which has about 70 percent of the yield ability of the later varieties. Acre yields of delayed planting corn were surprisingly good, but were favored by ideal weather conditions in August and September of last year.

Marketing Guides

Indiana farmers face the prospect of "moderately declining prices" for their products in the next few months because of increased marketings.

This is the forecast of Purdue University agricultural economists, who add that the demand for food "likely will be maintained near current levels."

Of the overall economic situation, the economists observe:

"There is little basis for believing an economic upturn is imminent or even that the economy is leveling out, even though progress is being made in inventory adjustment and there are other signs the rate of business decline is moderating."

Corn prices are expected to increase seasonally for the next two months.

Hog prices likely will "decline substantially" during the next two months as a result of increased marketings. The economists say the decline will continue through the autumn. November-December hog prices will probably average $15-17 a hundred.

Currently declining values for the better grades of fed cattle can be expected to continue through the summer. This decline may extend into the fall and winter months.

Milk cow prices are expected to increase for the next few months as a result of favorable prospects for dairy compared with other livestock enterprises.

Fall egg prices may peak seasonally at lower levels and earlier than in 1957. Highest prices probably will occur in September and October and average three to four cents below the 42-cent average Indiana prices received last November.

Broiler prices during July and August will average one to two cents below the 21-22 cent levels of last year.

Farm real estate prices appear to be leveling off.

Lyndes Latimer
To Show Collection

An old glass paper-weight, acquired by his father in 1890, started Lyndes Latimer, 75, Burket farmer, on the collection he will exhibit in the Senior Citizen's Hobby Show at Kline's department store during Pioneer Days, July 25 and 26.

Latimer now has more than 100 paper-weights of various types and can explain how each is made. Some contain delicately colored glass flowers and other bright designs.

From his reading on the subject Latimer concludes that the paper-weights he collects were never made commercially. Instead glassmakers in the Gas City and Jonesboro areas created them out of scraps left at the end of the day's work. Mostly they were gifts for friends or mementos of special occasions.

At any rate they are certainly hard to find now though once in a while Latimer runs across one in an antique shop or auction sale. There isn't much information on them in the hobby magazines.

"Have a hobby and ride it hard," is Latimer's advice. He also collects cast iron toys, mechanical banks and firearms. His oldest gun was made in 1828 at Harper's Ferry, Va.

Shapes of Progress

FAT HANDS—Like aces, back to back, two members of the Navy's famed Blue Angels flying team, show their skill with a pair of new Gruman supersonic jet fighters, FIIF-1 Tigers. United Press Photos FLYING SAUCER?—This strange looking aircraft, flying on one engine, is actually an early-warning airplane designed for Navy carriers. Long-range detection equipment housed in the saucer-like radome gives early warning of impending enemy attack.

PIGGY-BACK SCHOONER

Although this three-masted square rigger appears to be stealing a ride on the deck of a new U.S. sub, it actually was some distance away when photographed. The Norwegian old-timer has a feature role in a current movie called "Windjammer."

DESTRUCTION FOR NEW CONSTRUCTION—With just one steady pull on the cable, this International Drott TD-9 Skid-Shovel topples a shack that stood in the way of progress for the new Atlanta, Ga., expressway. After the tractor had pulled over the shack, it returned and loaded out the debris.

EMERGENCY HAY AND PASTURE PLANTINGS

Lafayette, Ind. Loss of silage and hay crops from heavy rains during June in many parts of Indiana may make emergency seedlings necessary. One way to use drowned-out areas of crops is to make seedlings that can be harvested for hay. Purdue University agronomists say. Best emergency hay crops include soybeans, where a legume is desired, or Sudangrass, where grass hay is the objective.

Farmers can use the commonly grown soybean variety available locally for hay purposes. Drilled solid at one and one half bu per acre on a seedbed that has been given reasonable preparation, at least a ton of hay may be expected for September harvest. The art of handling soybeans for hay is almost lost in Indiana. They can be handled much like alfalfa except that a longer drying period is necessary.

Sudangrass can be drilled on a prepared seedbed at about 25 pounds per acre and will reach the hay stage about the same time as soybeans. Occasionally a mixture of the two is used, drilling about one bushel of soybeans and 15 pounds of Sudangrass. Whichever gets underway first will dominate the mixture at hay harvest. While many other crops will be proposed for emergency purposes, none equals these two in their adaptation to the state, the agronomists assert.

The abundant supply has been stimulating to the growth of clover and alfalfa sown in oats this spring. Following oat harvest farmers, clipping their stubble fields, may find that the residue is rich in legume growth and may be baled for fair quality forage. In other cases they may find that this year's growth following small grain harvest is adequate for a hay harvest in late August or September. Mowing at this time will not damage the stand for the succeeding year, but late September and October cutting is punishing.

Heavy wheat straw masses and stubble from combining are hard on young clover and alfalfa plants, remind Purdue University agronomists. They recommend clipping and removing both after combining.

Eunonymous, pine, junipers, red swing dogwood and hybrid lilac should be sprayed the last of July with malathion to control the second generation of scale insects which attack these plants, according to Purdue University entomologists.

DRIVERS LOSING LICENSES MUST TAKE NEW EXAMS

Beginning last Tuesday, Hoosier motorists whose driving licenses have been suspended will have to take a series of new tests before regaining their permits.

Robert McMahan, commissioner of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, said Thursday the new policy will affect about 42,000 drivers a year.

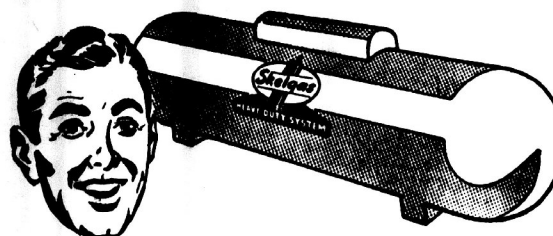

In the past, the driver permits have been returned automatically at the end of the suspension period.

McMahan said he is considering asking the 1959 General Assembly for authority to require drivers' photographs on their licenses.

bake three...serve one...freeze two

A food freezer saves time and money

Smart housewives know it's more economical and far more convenient to cook in larger batches (quantity buying, less waste) and freeze for the future. They bake several pies and freeze them... cook entire meals and freeze them... buy foods when they're low and freeze them. And while cutting food costs, they're saving hours of cooking time!

Food freezers cut your shopping time, too. In a single trip to the store you can shop for a week—your meats, fruits and vegetables will freeze at the peak of flavor.

NOTE: If space is a problem the new combination freezer-refrigerator will do an excellent freezing job in the space now occupied by your refrigerator.

Your appliance dealer is showing the new models.

Safety Week Proclaimed

Governor Harold W. Handley has proclaimed July 20-26 as Farm Safety Week in Indiana in line with the national observance.

In the proclamation, Governor Handley asked all farm residents to consider the significance of the theme "When you work for safety—safety works for you." He pointed out that most accidents to farm people could be prevented with reasonable care.

F. R. Willsey, Purdue University farm safety specialist, says accidents kill an average of one farm resident each day in Indiana. In fact, more farm workers died by accident in the state last year than workers of any other major industry.

Records for Indiana show that the motor vehicle is the principal killer of Hoosier farm people. Over 30 percent of all deaths occur in motor vehicle accidents, most of which happen off the farm.

According to Willsey, about 25 Indiana farm people lose their lives in tractor accidents every year. One study showed that one sixth of the tractor fatalities occurred in highway accidents. Another study revealed that 12 percent of the victims were children under 14 years of age.

On the average, falls alone kill 60 farm residents a year. A high percent of these deaths from falls occur to persons in the older age groups.

Helps For Hay Fever Sufferers

When August comes, can the hay fever season be far behind?

Unfortunately for hay fever sufferers the answer is "no."

The Motor Club's touring department advises that the best relief areas for the hay fever victim are in the Pacific Northwest, California, the southern tip of Florida, and the wooded areas of northern Minnesota, Michigan, New Hampshire, and Maine.

O. C. Durham, Chicago, retired secretary of the American Academy of Allergy, devised the pollen index for use in determining the length and severity of the hay fever season. A high index number in an area indicates a long season and a high pollen count.

An area with an index count below one provides the best relief, while one to five is considered good, and five to ten fair. Anything over the ten mark means nothing but woe for the hay fever brigade.

Hay fever victims probably were among the happiest to see Alaska admitted to the Union. Our 49th state-to-be has a pollen count of zero in its major cities of Fairbanks, Juneau and Nome.

The heaviest concentration of pollen is in the central states, with the intensively tilled portion of the Mississippi Valley being the worst for the "watery eyes and burning nose" set.

The Motor Club's touring department points out that only Western Oregon and Puget Sound Region are completely free of rag weed and other related sneeze makers.

For the most part, wooded, mountain, and seashore areas provide the best relief from the pollen plight.

Although ragweed pollen distribution in most areas is confined to August and September, weeds still are active in October along the Gulf Coast.

In Central Florida near Tampa, the season lasts from June to November. The southern tip of Texas, in the Brownville area, also has a prolonged hay fever season.

Low pollen count areas recommended by the Motor Club as excellent retreats for the hay fever sufferer include West Yellowstone and Yellowstone National Park, Wyo.; Reno, Nev.; Seattle and Spokane, Wash.; Portland, Ore.; Sun Valley, Idaho; San Francisco, Calif.; Isle Royale, Mich.; and Miami Beach, Fla.

In Illinois, the ragweed pollen count runs from 62 at Chicago to 122 at Peoria. In Indiana the index varies from 6 at East Chicago to 136 at Evansville.

When taking that hay fever holiday, the Motor Club warns that sufferers tire easily while driving. The club recommends that hay fever victims who are taking a long motor trip during the hay fever season plan to switch drivers as frequently as possible.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Holloway want to thank their many friends who helped them celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary, Sunday, July the 20th at their home. Tips On Farm Safety

FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

A colorful character called "Tractor Tim" has come to television to tell how to keep farm youngsters safe. His tips on tractor safety are a part of a campaign by the National Child Labor Committee to help and protect America's children and youth.

Local television stations in this country will begin showing Tim in public service spot announcements in June. The series of thirteen monthly slides dramatize everyday rules to prevent typical tractor hazards that have killed or injured thousands of farm youngsters in the past.

To keep farm youngsters safe this year, the National Child Labor Committee advises, follow Tractor Tim's Ten Tips for Tractor Safety:

1. Keep young children out of the driver's seat.
2. Give older kids a long period of supervised instruction on the tractor's operation.
3. Don't let any children play on or near the tractor.
4. Prevent youngsters from joy riding on tractors—especially on draw bar or sides of machine.
5. Turn off motor before refueling or attaching parts.
6. Shield the power take-off.
7. Use plenty of light for night driving.
8. Turn off the motor and pull brake on before you get off the tractor or repair it.

9. Don't wear loose clothing when operating a tractor.

10. Avoid hitching onto the axle.

A planting of frost-tender vegetables, especially sweet corn, green or yellow snap beans and cucumber, can be made by early July and be ready for harvest in 50 to 80 days, say Purdue University horticulturists.

Cull the laying flock closely during the summer months, advise Purdue University poultrymen. Tell-tale characteristics of non-laying hens are shriveling combs and yellow beaks.

As the insect season approaches, horses should be vaccinated against sleeping sickness, say Purdue University veterinarians. Since people are susceptible to the disease, vaccination as a preventative in horses is a human health measure.

To Hold Purdue Swine Day

Lafayette, Ind.—Purdue University's 38th annual Swine Day, sponsored by the department of animal science, will be held Friday, August 22, at the livestock experimental farm, three miles north of West Lafayette on the County Farm road, and the Hall of Music on the campus.

Tours of swine experiments at the farm will start at regular intervals from 8 until 10:30 a. m.,

DST, according to J. H. Conrad, Purdue animal scientist, and W. M. Beeson, head of animal nutrition work at Purdue, who are in charge of the day-long program.

Visitors will see experimental results on effect of pellet, meal and free-choice feeding of growing-finishing swine, high moisture corn for hogs, hygromycin and a combination of antibiotics for swine, effects of tranquilizers on growing-finishing swine, effects of arsenicals, combinations of antibiotics and piperazine for growing-finishing swine, response of swine cooled with sprinklers to two levels of energy in the diet and an exhibit on an intensified system of producing swine in confinement.

Later visitors will tour the Indiana Swine Evaluation Station on the experimental farm.

Lunch will be served at the farm, and the afternoon session, beginning at 1 o'clock, will be held in the Hall of Music. L. L. Stewart, Frankfort, president of the Indiana Swine Breeders' Association, will be chairman.

J. A. Whatley, department of animal husbandry, Oklahoma State University, will discuss "Breeding Hogs for More Efficient Production of Quality Pork." M. P. Plumlee, Purdue animal scientist, will give a paper on "Zinc Deficiency and Requirement for Swine." Conrad will outline results of experiments with "Iron Injections for Prevention of Anemia." Beeson will discuss "Swine Nutrition, Past, Present and Future."

More than 2,200 swine producers from half a dozen Corn Belt states attended the 1957 Swine Day.

THE MOTOR CLUB SAYS:

NO MATTER WHERE YOU'RE DRIVING FOR YOUR VACATION

TO ENJOY A SAFE, PLEASANT TRIP—DO THIS BEFORE YOU START:

1. Check the route so you aren't retarded by detours.
2. Inspect the mechanical condition of your car.
3. Provide your children with means to amuse themselves.
4. Allow enough time to reach your destination despite emergencies.

A FOUR POINT SUGGESTION FOR MOTORISTS

H. D. M. C.

THESE WOMEN!

By d'Alessio

"Not yet, not yet! We gotta hook it up first!"

The Toy Scout

Summer toy fare designed for physical development; hand-eye coordination.

Whiz-z-z... wham... whe-e-e! Click, clack, plunk!

These are the echoes of summertime playtime—a baseball hit by a bat... a golf ball sliced by an iron... a croquet ball struck by a mallet... an arrow sprung from a bow.

The world of sport has suddenly crept into the back yard of every family, with every youngster in training to become a champ.

Smart parents encourage sports activities because they have learned that by waiting their turn in group play, naturally aggressive children are taught patience, discipline and good sportsmanship. More important, action toys help develop muscles and hand-eye coordination.

While scouting around, I found dozens of well made sports toys in price ranges from fifty cents to three dollars, some that even a pee wee could play solo such as the Donald Duck or Popeye Ring Toss Games! For bigger folk, there's a floatable "4-Star Ring Toss Game" for water or ground play, made of smooth soft plastic.

I remember when people complained about plastic toys but nowadays plastics are considered better than metals—particularly toys made of polyethylene which is safe, durable, washable, cheaper and more colorful than metals.

I saw one plastic game called "Junior Champ Golf" packaged with two balls, a 26-inch driver, putter and a three-hole cup. Its low cost gives every youngster an opportunity to practice form, stance and teeing off at an early age. Another one the whole family can practice indoors or out is a "Golf Putting Game" with an 18" putter and fascinating automatic ball-return device.

A set that delighted me was a complete 22-piece Mickey Mouse Miniature Club Golf Game with 2 plastic balls, two 26½" putters and nine Disney character obstacles.

If you'd rather play "little Indian", there's a good plastic bow and arrow set called "Chief Cochise Archery"—with safe suction cup arrows.

Little fishermen would love the new fiberglass-rod fishing outfit, and for less money there's "Fishin' Fun" or "Pop-eye Fishin'."

If it's too hot for running around—try "Krokay"—a nice easy going game for four people, made in real hardwood for lazy lawn play.

Another good value is a teen-age size "Championship Shuffleboard Game". And for target practice, you have a choice of "Spin Wheel Dart Game" or the new "Put 'n' Take Dart Game"—with safe, harmless suction cup darts.

Toy-variety is the spice of a child's life, and sports toys can help develop children into all-around athletes.

If you cannot find the toys described here at your favorite toy counter, write to "The Toy Scout", 200 Fifth Avenue, New York 10, N. Y.

Cultivate Tomatoes Carefully

Lafayette, Ind.—Weather conditions in vegetable growing areas of Indiana varied during the planting season. Some growers had to contend with heavy rains in planting tomatoes and packed soil may have resulted. Others had relatively dry weather.

Growers should be particularly careful in cultivating tomatoes, says Roscoe Fraser, Purdue University extension horticulturist. If soil was packed during planting, he says, cultivating five to six inches deep while plants are still young may be advisable. However, if deep cultivation is necessary, he suggests growers do it early in the life of the plant and be sure to stay at least five inches away from the plant.

Fraser suggests shallow cultivation, just deep enough to loosen surface soil. Usually this will be one or even less. Various studies have shown that a high percent of tomato roots are in the top six inches of soil layer. To minimize injury to these important roots, sweeps should be used rather than pointed shovels.

Cultivators should be adjusted to pull some soil toward the plants. This helps surface drainage and also will smother germinating weeds.

Experienced growers will examine shovels and roots of plants after starting to cultivate to see how much damage they are doing. They will adjust depth accordingly. This is important during the latter part of cultivating season, as many yields are reduced by improper cultivation. Frazer points out.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Blue and family of Woodland and Mr. and Mrs. Arlo Friesner visited their father Sunday at Defiance, Ohio. Tuesday Mrs. Elizabeth Kellogg, Mrs. Jane Johnson and Mrs. Chloe Griffith spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Jake Yantiss and Johnny.

Writes From Germany

(Jon Cullum, who is working in a youth camp in Germany this summer, sends this letter to all.)

In unfortunate obscurity, but with marvelous results, there is at work today one of the greatest tools for amicable international relations. This is the International Workcamp. From all nations of the world young people are spending their summers in groups of ten or twelve doing hard manual labor—digging ditches, laying foundations for orphanages, repairing bombed buildings, constructing roads. All this combined with a growing fellowship in which ideas are shared representing Europe, Asia, South America, Africa, the Near East and their most important problems.

Young people are spending from 300 to 1000 dollars of their own money to work with underprivileged people in other nations. They live with them, eat the same food, sleep in the same conditions, work in the same dirt. And as they travel across each nation they stand as the greatest witness to their respective nations that man can develop today. Nothing is stronger than the personal contact between young people, nothing is more advantageous to better understanding between their nations.

I have been privileged to participate in such a workcamp in northern Germany, in the heart of the Luneberger Heide, just south of Hamburg. Eight of us make up the group, all of us, unfortunately, American. But, in spite of this narrowness of international representation, our personality diversity has created a flexibility and adaptability quite surprising.

Our project is working in a camp of boys from the ages 13 to 18. Each morning we work with them landscaping a home for the counselors in the camp. For three days I have been digging a water ditch. The others are involved in similar work, with even the girls swinging sod-axes and shoveling dirt. Our afternoons are spent preparing for the evening activities of the fellows.

As a whole the fellows are rough and harsh. Their back-grounds run from parents who don't want them through trouble

Falling Limb

Dale Wallace, timber cutter for the Mollenhour Lumber Co., suffered serious injury to his nose and mouth Thursday morning when he was struck by a falling limb. Pinkeye Season

A watering from the eyes of cattle at the summer season may be a warning of pinkeye, Dr. F. A. Hall, Purdue University extension veterinarian, reminds Hoosier farmers.

The disease is most prevalent during the summer and causes production losses. Most cases are brought to the farm by way of purchase of infected animals. The disease is spread by flies and direct contact.

Dr. Hall points out that the first symptom usually observed is the watering of the eyes, which turn a milky color as the disease progresses. The cattle squint from tremendous pain. Sunlight, wind, pollen and dust tend to irritate the condition. Sometimes temporary blindness results.

As a result, cows reduce their feed intake and lower milk production, lose weight, and often sustain injuries from their inability to see.

Dr. Hall says there are no specific vaccines, bacterins or serums to prevent the disease. Veterinarians treat pinkeye medically. The Purdue veterinarian recommends also that affected animals be kept in a darkened shelter during the day and that feed and water be placed so that the cattle do not have to search for them.

Beef Herds For Profit

A beef cow herd offers an excellent method of selling a wide variety of forages and pasture for profit, asserts Henry Mayo, Purdue University Animal scientist.

A beef herd, says Mayo, is a good start for a young farmer. Three beef cows with calves can be expected to develop into 30 females in ten years if all the heifers are kept. The farm operator will also get practical experience in steer feeding.

Mayo contends that the well-managed herd will yield a profit because:

Cows utilize pasture and roughages; cows require a minimum of buildings and equipment; a herd requires a minimum of labor and attention—especially during the busy summer months, and cost of operation and overhead can be held to a minimum.

Purdue University Mimeo AH 234, "Producing Beef Calves in Indiana," by Henry Mayo, gives detailed information on breeding, feeding and managing beef cow herds. The publication is free to Indiana residents by writing to the agricultural publications office, Purdue University, Lafayette.

Summer Seeding Alfalfa

Indiana's June and July floods may revive an old practice of sowing alfalfa in August.

James Morrow, Purdue University extension agronomist, reminds farmers that water-ruined spots in fields of small grain sown to alfalfa, clover and grass can be resown to alfalfa yet this summer.

Once these areas dry out, a well-disced and compact seed-bed supplied with adequate lime and fertility, is necessary. After plowing, the cultipacker is the important tool to use in seed-bed preparation. Morrow says, "You can not cultipack too much."

If rains come again before the seeding is done, disc the soil as shallow as possible and cultipack again and even again to firm up the seed-bed. Broadcast inoculated seedings should be given shallow covering with a cultipacker. Best stands are obtained by band seedings. Starter fertilizer will help too. About eight pounds of alfalfa, plus four to six pounds of grass seed are good seeding rates.

Ladino, timothy and brome grass may also be sown in the late summer or early fall, alone or in a mixture with alfalfa.

Ranger alfalfa seed is extensively available and because of winter hardiness and wilt resistance, it and Vernal are excellent varieties to use throughout Indiana. Buffalo is good for southern Indiana. Such seedings give promise of hay and pasture next year.

Red Clover and alsike rarely do well with a late summer seeding. A share of the sweet clover sown in August will grow in the fall and produce seed in 1959. Growth is much less than when spring-sown. The sweet clover seed that does not germinate till next spring will make normal growth in the following two years.

On hopelessly wet areas Reed Canary grass or tall fescue may be sown since they tolerate "wetter feet" than the preceding recommendations. Farmers can obtain more detailed recommendations from their county agricultural agents.

Fewer Cattle On Feed

The number of cattle and calves on feed in Indiana July 1st is estimated at 186,000 head, eight percent fewer than a year earlier and seasonally smaller than the April 1 total, according to state-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University.

Of the number on feed July 1, 56,000 weighed 900 pounds or more, compared with 57,000 head in this weight group a year ago.

WE HAVE A GOOD OUTLET FOR ALL POULTRY Interested in Fowl, Cox and Fryers. NELLANS POULTRY PLANT Ph. Mentone ELmwood 3-3711

Cattle weighing less than 900 lbs. numbered 130,000, compared with 145,000 last year.

The statisticians said that a smaller number than last year had been on feed more than three months; 143,000 this year compared with 154,000 last year. There were 3,000 on feed less than three months this year, while last year there were 48,000. Steers comprised 63 percent of the total number, same as a year ago.

Farmers intentions to market indicated that 134,000 head, or 72 percent of the total, will be marketed during the next three months. This represents a slightly higher rate than a year ago when 70 percent of the July 1 inventory was intended for marketing during the July-September period.

High Moisture Grain

Lafayette, Ind. High moisture content in small grain is a No. 1 problem for many Indiana farmers at harvest time, particularly this year due to an excessive amount of rain.

There are two possible solutions, says G. W. Isaacs, Purdue University agricultural engineer. Farmers may let the grain stand in the field until the moisture drops to 14 percent or lower, or they may harvest at higher moisture levels and then dry the grain artificially.

Letting the grain stand in the field until the moisture is 14 percent or lower has some disadvantages, Isaacs points out. It means the grain must stand in the field for a week or 10 days after it is mature. Each day the crop stands after maturity means loss from shattering, more trouble with weeds and legume growth and greater risks of lodging due to storms.

Tests at Ohio State University have shown that shattering and machine losses are lowest when moisture content of the grain is around 18 to 20 percent. At this high moisture level, the grain must be dried artificially to insure against spoilage.

The grain can be dried either with heated or unheated air. Systems using unheated air are less expensive and require less supervision, Isaacs explains. They also are slower in drying the grain and are dependent on weather conditions. Heated air systems have a higher drying capacity per fan horsepower.

Special bins or structures are not needed for drying small grain, the engineer points out, as long as their is an even flow of air through the grain. The amount of air needed depends on the moisture content. Minimum recommendations for wheat are three cubic feet per minute per bushel for grain with 18 to 20 percent moisture, two cubic feet for grain with 16 to 18 percent and one cubic foot for grain under 16 percent.

Drying costs vary widely, Isaacs says, depending on equipment and moisture content. For small grain they may range from less than two cents a bushel to more than 10 cents.

Indiana produced a commercial apple crop of 1,610,000 bushels in 1957, down eight percent from the 1956 crop, according to state-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University. Value of the 1957 crop was $3,220,000. The season average price per bushel was $2, compared with $1.95 for the 1956 crop.

Winning Team Touring Orient

The sixth Venture for Victory basketball team, currently on tour in the Orient has now won 42 games against one loss, Taylor University Athletic Director, Don J. Odle, Coach of the team, has announced.

The squad of Christian all-stars lost only their first game, played in Hawaii en route to the Orient. At that time the group included only five players. Three additional athletes, now missionaries, joined the team when it arrived in Korea.

"The experiences that we are having off the basketball court are making such an indelible impression upon each of our lives that we cannot return to America the same," reported Odle, from Formosa.

Crowds totaling approximately 100,000 witnessed the American team in action during ten days in Formosa. The squad conducts religious services during half-time of each contest and at the close of the games. The Taylor Athletic Director reported that about 3,000 persons have expressed their desire to become Christians.

Earlier this month the team was entertained for dinner at the home of the famous Chinese aviator, General "Tiger" Wong, who is head of the armed forces of Free China.

In his report, Odle stated that he had seen thousands of refugees from communist-held countries living in such poverty, "that one would believe that existence was almost impossible."

The Venture for Victory program was begun in 1952 when missionaries in the Orient envisioned the possibilities of an evangelistic basketball team. The

with the police to an oversensitive nature. It is amazing, however, to notice the tenderness and sensitivity that comes out when you began to form friendships. For the conditions that have given them birth and molded their personalities, these are surprising characteristics to discover.

Perhaps our greatest barrier in knowing the fellows is the incapacity of language. Although four of us have had German in college, we find ourselves totally removed at times from the feeling behind a certain statement or phrase. Sullenness and misunderstanding are difficult to overcome in a similar language, let alone when the verbal communication is so chained.

Many situations have revealed a few things to me on this trip. Perhaps I will be able to write my thoughts on them. It is my hope that high school and college students in the Kosciusko area will become more and more aware of their responsibility and opportunity to better understand themselves, their own nation, and the world situation by participation in an international work-camp. It is also my hope that the pictures taken on this trip can be so prepared that I can share my experience with you when I return.

Sincerely yours,
