COUNTERPOINT

By the Editor's Wife

The writer of this column wishes to extend congratulations to the editor for having been able to "stay afloat on the sea of matrimony" for 35 years (as of July 4.) That's quite a long swim! (And I do feel qualified to offer an opinion in this particular instance.)

Grandson Timmy has shown quite an interest in plants, being able to identify several by their leaves. What has him puzzled (along with some other males I know) is why one violet should not be disturbed, and another is expendable; why one maple seedling is protected and nurtured, and many others discarded. The answer—purely a woman's reason—"Because."

Have you seen your wrens this summer? One of our readers called to say that their wrens haven't yet shown up in the neighborhood, and wondered if others might have noticed the same thing. I have heard some wrens, but haven't seen them. Perhaps they missed the clothesline poles, which had been their home in former years.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wagner had an unusual climbing rose this season—a pink and white variety. A couple of years ago they planted a root from a white rose and a root from a pink rose together, and the result is a blossom one-half distinctly white and one-half distinctly pink.

Trying to decide which politician is right causes us to remember the line from Aesop which says—"A liar will not be believed, even when he speaks the truth."

We enjoyed this:

A banker went to his doctor for a checkup.

After a thorough examination the doctor said, "You're as sound as a dollar."

"As bad as that!" exclaimed the banker, and fainted dead away.

FLY TO CALIFORNIA

Richard and Frank Manwaring of the Manwaring Hatchery, and Ed Swartzendruber and Ed Miller, pullet growers of New Paris, flew to San Francisco on Tuesday where they are attending a Kimber franchise meeting.

DIED SUNDAY

Services were held at Rochester Wednesday at two p. m. for George W. Nuell, 81, who died at his home Sunday after an illness of one year. Rev. James Rhoads of the First Baptist church officiated.

Mr. Nuell was born in Mentone Oct. 14, 1878 to Alvin and Martha (Holloway) Nuell. He married Nora Bell Hall Jan. 7, 1903 in Fulton county. She preceded him in death in 1956. He was a retired farmer.

Surviving are four sons, Albert C. and Floyd Kenneth of Warsaw, Alvin D. of Rochester and George C. at home; one daughter (Glenrose) Bunn of Rochester; nine grandchildren; 12 great-grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Meda Wright of Rochester and Mrs. Martha Hunter of Bluffton. One daughter, Geraldine, preceded him in death in 1925.

Married At Akron

Miss Barbara Ann Waechter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Waechter, Akron, became the bride of Neil B. McKinney, son of Mrs. Hubert Figel, of Fort Wayne, in a wedding in the Akron Methodist church recently. Rev. Harold Leininger, pastor of the Middlebury Methodist church, performed the double ring service in the presence of 250 guests.

A reception was held in the parlors of the church.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Ball State Teachers' college, Muncie, and will teach this fall in the Muncie City schools. They will make their home at 3402½ South Talley street, Muncie.

The tempera paintings were painted by Reed Riner. We wish to express our thanks to everyone who is cooperating in these displays. We feel it is a privilege to be able to enjoy the work of the talented people of our community. We hope to have a new display for you every month.

The Vacation Reading Club has 84 members and the circulation of books in June reached a record high of 2938 books. A new book for Eberhart mystery fans has arrived. It is "Jury of One."

Patrons who watch "People are Funny" on television may remember the appearance on that program of Dr. Banik whose journey to Hunza—that fountain of youth kingdom in the Himalayas—was sponsored by Art Linkletter. Dr. Banik has returned to the United States and has written his story of this land where men live to be 120 years of age and women of 80 look no older than our women of 40. Be sure to read Dr. Banik's revelation of the secrets of this fountain of youth kingdom in "Hunza Land" at your Library.

ADS ARE IMPORTANT TO FOOD SHOPPERS

A U. S. Department of Agriculture study on the food buying habits of American consumers shows that the medium most preferred for information on food buying is the newspaper.

The study, conducted in Raleigh, N. C., shows the following rating of various media as sources of information for food shoppers: newspapers, 59.9%; pamphlets, 17.7%; television, 14.6% and radio, 8.7%.

The survey was conducted for the Federal Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture by National Analysts, Inc. The American Lamb Council advertising program depends almost entirely on newspaper advertising.

The survey further shows that shoppers in search of specific information on food shopping look to newspaper advertisements 82.3% of the time. Food store displays are the next most important source, 41.4%. Magazine advertisements are looked to for information 28.1% of the time, television advertisements 27.3% and radio, 26.8%.

WEED CORN WITH 2,4-D

Should broad leaved weeds—horseweed, smartweed, ragweed, cocklebur or morning glory—threaten your corn crop, spraying with 2,4-D may be the answer, observes Oliver C. Lee, Purdue University extension botanist. Corn is sufficiently tolerant to 2,4-D so dosages that will kill many weeds won't hurt the corn.

Spraying is not intended to replace cultivation, but to be used in combination therewith. Often spraying will reduce the number of cultivations necessary and also clean up the weeds in the row where the cultivator cannot reach.

The stage of weed growth rather than the size of the corn should be the guide in timing applications of 2,4-D in corn, Lee says. When early-growing weeds are a problem, spraying may be done while the corn is small. When late growing weeds are a problem, spraying should be delayed until these weeds have emerged. When spraying large corn (12 inches or higher) drops should be used on the sprayer so as not to apply the spray over the top of the corn plants.

Two thirds of a pint of a 40 percent 2,4-D in 10 gallons of water per acre is considered the proper dosage. Either the amine or ester forms of 2,4-D may be used. When ester forms are used, the "low volatile" type is preferred. It is not as volatile as the regular esters and is safer to use near susceptible crops as soybeans, tomatoes and clovers. Do not overdose as there is danger of damaging corn with 2,4-D, Lee emphasizes.

To fully enjoy your vacation, the Chicago Motor Club urges that you drive carefully—coming and going. And remember—make certain your automobile is in perfect mechanical condition before setting out on your vacation trip.

INDIANA FARM PRICES DROP

Ending a four-month rise, the Indiana farm price index dropped three percent from mid-April to mid-May, Purdue University agricultural economists and state-federal agricultural statisticians report.

All major commodity prices dropped, except corn, wheat, wool and lambs, which remained unchanged.

Purchasing power of Hoosier farmers slipped three percent, while U.S. farm purchasing power was unchanged.

Major commodity price declines:

Whole milk, five percent; eggs 10 percent; turkeys four percent; broilers and chickens three percent; cattle and hay two percent; and hogs, soybeans, calves and oats one percent.

Feed-price ratios also registered general declines during the mid-April to mid-May period. The egg-feed ratio, down nine percent, showed the greatest drop. Other declines, broiler-feed, five percent; chicken-feed and whole milk-feed four percent; turkey-feed two percent and hog-corn one percent.

Feed Inspection A Safeguard

State inspection of commercial feeds safeguard Indiana farmers.

Hoosier farmers last year bought about 1½ million tons, representing a retail value of about $130,000,000. If feeds were not registered, labeled, and inspected farmers could suffer huge financial losses.

The Indiana Feed law requires all feed manufacturers to register their feeds with the State Chemist and label them. These labels set out chemical guarantees and ingredients. The law also provides for inspection to check guarantees at any time.

In 1959 the State Chemist's office sampled 3,900 lots of feed from 763 manufacturers. About 90 percent of the samples were labeled correctly.

The increased use of medicated feeds make it necessary for farmers to follow feeding directions closely. The State Chemist's office recommends that farmers buy feeds made by reputable manufacturers.

If a farmer suspects a feed he has purchased was misrepresented, he can request the State Chemist's office at Purdue University to make an inspection. Samples of the feed should not, however, be sent to the Chemist's office.

If you have an electric fence controller, dispose of it, recommend Purdue University agricultural engineers. It is deadly to humans and animals.

Free Egg Cleaning Mimeo

Consumers object to buying dirty eggs even if the amount of dirt is small; but washing, if not done properly, can spoil the quality of the egg.

These are the observations of David D. Jackson and Frank E. Wells, Purdue University poultry scientists, authors of Poultry Mimeo 75, "Cleaning Shell Eggs," published by the Agricultural Extension Service.

The poultry scientists point out that it is best if eggs are gathered before they become soiled. Sort the clean eggs from the dirty ones, cleaning the soiled eggs only.

Both dry cleaning and washing of eggs are described in Mimeo P-75. Hand buffing, machine buffing and sandblasting are dry cleaning techniques for slightly soiled eggs.

Washing should be done with water warmer than the eggs to avoid spoilage. Cold water causes bacteria to penetrate the shell. The shell should be dried soon after washing as wet eggs are also conducive to bacteria penetration.

Mimeo P-75, "Cleaning Shell Eggs," is free to Indiana residents who request from the Agricultural Publications Office, AES Building, Purdue University, Lafayette, or from their county extension office. A postal card is sufficient.

New Hardy Winter Oats

A new hardy winter oat variety "Norline" will be released to Indiana certified seed growers for fall seeding in 1960.

This variety possesses excellent high yielding ability, stiff straw and is more resistant to the yellow-dwarf (red leaf) virus disease than any hardy varieties suitable for production in Indiana.

Probably the most outstanding characteristic of Norline is its winter hardiness. Norline was superior to all available varieties in winter survival in both 1959 and 1960.

The new variety was bred by Ralph M. Caldwell, L. E. Compton, Fred L. Patterson and J. F. Shafer in a cooperative breeding project of Purdue University and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Seed will be made available to winter oat seed producers in August, 1960. Norline has made an outstanding record in New Jersey where seed has also been increased and will be distributed to growers this fall.

"Where Our Customers Send Their Friends"

A HISTORY OF MENTONE

By M. O. MENTZER,

Secretary Mentone Chamber of Commerce

On Wednesday evenings during the summer we would have band concerts, a dentist, Frank Lane was the director, a band stand was erected on the south west corner of the main square. We had a very fine band at this time. (we had had many bands before in fact our first band called the Sevastapool band moved here in the early history.) They all filled a place in our lives and made it a more interesting place to live; however, the Lane band as it was called held these concerts and it was like a fair on Wednesday evenings. This was horse and buggy days, however, a few autos were beginning to appear, but the merchants had no idea that the auto would be very popular and that there would be an average of 1½ cars per family, so they persuaded the town board to build concrete aprons with concrete hitch posts for the visiting farmers, these proved quite popular. A farmer could drive up to the hitch rack, tie his horse and get into the stores without wading mud. These remained until main street was paved. A few were still standing in the late 1920's, in fact you can see one of these aprons was built on the east side of the post office, this was built by the property owner and was considered so good that it was not torn up. The pavement was laid up to this.

We began to feel that it was time to consider the drainage problem. There was a small drain from a point back of Lemlers store to the creek. It was not large enough to carry the water so when we had much rain we would have cellars flooded. There used to be a pond in the low spot north of Valentines elevator. This was like a lake after a big rain, boys will always find a raft or something we found an old mortar box. This made an excellent boat until it was overloaded then there would be a spill. Everyone got wet but what did we care we were having fun. Amos T. Mollenhour was president of the town board at this time, he felt as did others that a ditch large enough to drain and take care of septic tanks, be constructed. This, as usually happens, met with opposition, however, the board went ahead hired a surveyor and started the work. This sewer starts at the creek south west of Peter Blues home and takes care of most of the ditch takes care of the west section and a drain north supplies the need in that section, then there is a sewer taking the water from the east passing through the sub-way across Mrs. McClanes property, this covers the drainage and sewer problem.

When the first sewer was constructed, Ed Mollenhour was marshall, the town purchased the equipment to build concrete tile, the marshall assisted by Ed Hickman would make several tile and let them cure. While the tile would harden they would be digging the ditch, this work was all pick and shovel. There was no modern machinery and the work was hard, some places the sewer is quite deep and it was necessary to curb the sides to keep it from caving. For their work these men were paid $1.25 per day. Mrs. Mollenhour also received a small salary from the town as marshall. We owe these men for the very fine job they did under difficult conditions, in fact quite a few men in the early part of Mentone did work for which we now benefit.

We began to hear talk of a railroad to be called the Gold-spike. It was supposed to start at Detroit and go to St. Louis. It would come near Mentone so of course we were interested, a few surveys were made but the project was dropped.

Now the Interurbans using electric motors were beginning to spread out over the country. There had been a line connecting So. Bend and Elkhart for some time. Now there was talk of extending the line south, possibly this line went to Goshen at this time but no farther. The Winona Interurban R. R. was formed, each township which it passed through was asked to grant a subsidy to assist in the building, the line between Warsaw and Goshen was built first and was in operation quite a while. Then the question of a subsidy was voted on in Harrison and Franklin townships, the vote was favorable in Franklin township but lost in Harrison. I think there was some few individuals who made contributions in Harrison so it was decided to build. Work was started about 1908, the grading was done by wheelbarrows, mules and horses. It took a long time just to build the grade. The contractors were Butterfield on the north end and Lidgard on the south, finally the grade was finished and the track was laid to Mentone. The first car came as far as Claud Barkmans. We then had trolley service to Warsaw, cars run every hour and were well patronized, now the effort was made to connect the lines south. There was a lot of difficulty in getting through under the Nickel Plate R. R. the ground was springy there and the work trains being quite heavy would get off the track, but they finally got through. An old railroad known as the Ell River from Peru to Chili was purchased and cars were soon running between Peru and Chili. Now to connect the two ends. Finally in 1910 this was accomplished and we had Interurban Service as far south as Louisville Kentucky.

During this period Interurbans covered most of Indiana. They filled a need at that time but with the popularity of the auto was to recond with and the Interurbans went the way of canals and the horse and buggy.

To Vote on Wheat Referendum

Indiana farmers will vote in a national wheat referendum July 21 to decide on marketing quotas for the 1961 wheat crop. Wheat producers in all 39 states in the designated commercial wheat producing area will be eligible to vote.

Two-thirds or more of the wheat producers voting must favor marketing quotas before they are put into effect, explains W. S. Farris, Purdue University agricultural economists. The approval of marketing quotas will make wheat produced under the national acreage allotment of 55 million acres eligible for price support at 75 percent of parity. This minimum support rate will be about $1.77 per bushel, national average, or the same as the support rate for the 1960 crop.

Marketing quotas have been approved for the last seven wheat crops. Indiana voters have not always been in favor of the quotas, but the national vote determines whether the quotas are approved.

Approval of the quotas means that marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1961 wheat crop in the 39 commercial wheat producing states, that farmers who exceed their wheat acreage allotments will be subject to penalties on their "excess" wheat (does not apply to wheat farmers with 15 acres or less) and wheat producers who comply with the acreage allotments for their farms will be eligible for price support at the announced rate (probably about $1.77 per bushel national average, $1.81 per bushel, Indiana average).

The program affects about 13 million acres of wheat grown in Indiana.

If quotas are not approved then marketing quotas will not be put into effect for the 1961 wheat crop, acreage allotments will remain in effect, wheat grown in compliance with the acreage allotments will be eligible for price support at 50 percent of parity (about $1.19 per bushel) and there will be no penalties for wheat produced in excess of acreage allotments.

The Secretary of Agriculture under present legislation must proclaim marketing quotas when the wheat supply is 20 percent or more above normal. The supply is now about 90 percent above normal.

SUMMER IS PINKEYE SEASON

A watering from the eyes of cattle at the summer season may be a warning of pinkeye, Dr. F. A. Hall, Purdue University extension veterinarian, reminds Hoosier farmers.

The disease is most prevalent during the summer and causes production losses. Most cases are brought to the farm by way of purchase of infested animals. The disease is spread by flies or direct contact. The face fly has been incriminated as a potential spreader of pinkeye.

Dr. Hall points out that the first symptom usually observed is watering of the eyes. The affected eye turns a milky color as the disease progresses. The cattle may squint from severe pain. Sunlight, wind, pollen and dust tend to irritate the condition. Sometimes temporary blindness results.

As a result, cows reduce their feed intake and lower milk production, lose weight and often sustain injuries from their inability to see.

Dr. Hall says there are no specific vaccines, bacterins or serums to prevent the disease. Veterinarians treat pinkeye medically. The Purdue veterinarian recommends also that affected animals be kept in a darkened shelter during the day and that feed and water be placed so that the cattle do not have to search for them.

SORORITY HEARS CONVENTION REPORT

Barbara King and Mrs. Mervin Jones were delegates from the Psi Iota Xi Sorority at the 57th national convention held June 17 and 18 in Louisville, Ky. Jean Pritchard and Mrs. Dale Cook were also in attendance.

Delegates approved the continuation of the following philanthropic projects: Support of the Indianapolis Symphony, the Hoosier Art Salon and Indianapolis Kindergarten. The Ball State Teachers' College Boarding Clinic and the Purdue University Pre-College Institute, sponsored by the sorority, both were voted a two-year extension. Scholarships for students in speech and hearing therapy at Ohio State University and Indiana State Teachers College were also renewed for a two-year period.

New philanthropic projects to be initiated by the national organization during the coming year are: The establishing of a graduate study grant to a teacher working for a master's degree in the field of education of deaf children. An additional new proposal was approved by the delegates. This was the initiating of an accredited course scholarship at Indiana U. With this program, 30 high school graduates, interested in the field of speech and hearing therapy, will attend a two-week course at Indiana University.

One hundred and three Psi Ote chapters contributed over $96,000 to community projects.

The convention report was given at the July 5 business meeting held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Simcoe.

The door prize was awarded to Mrs. Ralph Ward, and Mrs. Simcoe served delicious refreshments to the following members:

The Mesdames Paul Quinn, Cecil Long, Mervin Jones, Dale Cook, Wm. Hudson, Richard Dickerhoff, Ralph Ward, Arthur Kendall, Harold Utter, Don Ernsberger and Curtis Riner, Miss Barbara King and Mrs. Iris Anderson.

At the convention pictures purchased from the Hoosier Art Salon by the national sorority were given to these Psi Ote chapters to use as they desire in their community: Northern Province, Zeta Theta, Niles, Michigan; Central Province, Delta Chi, Washington, D. C., and Southern Province, Beta Beta, Sullivan.

In 1946 our chapter was awarded "Toshia" by Joel W. Reichard. "Toshia" was a blue ribbon winner, being awarded the Katherine Keene Langdon first prize of $100 for the best figure character study. Our picture was placed in the Manchester College art room for ten years and is now hung on the south wall of the Bell Memorial Library.

July 19 the members and guests will attend the Wagon Wheel playhouse at Warsaw.

Mrs. Simcoe, left above, retiring president, is shown as she hands the gavel to Mrs. Paul Quinn, the new president. Others in the group are Mrs. Mervin Jones, conductress; Mrs. Richard Dickerhoff, treasurer; Mrs. Ralph Ward, secretary; Mrs. Dale Cook, vice president, and Miss Barbara King, corresponding secretary. The new officers assumed their duties Tuesday evening.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS MEETING

The U-Name-It Sunday school class of the Burket EUB church met July 3 at the home of Neva Mattix. All enjoyed a bounteous pot luck dinner, group singing and visiting.

Mr. Kuhn read Psalms 34 for devotions.

During the business session officers for the following year were elected and the flower committee named.

Several were absent due to illness or holiday guests. The teacher, also, was absent.

The next meeting will be held with the Shoemakers in September.

NEWCASTLE LIONS CLUB MEETING

The members of the Newcastle Township Lions Club of Talma will hold a special called meeting Monday evening, July 11 at 8 p. m. in the old Talma gym. All members are requested to attend the meeting as plans will be completed at this time for the second annual pony pull to be held July 17, 1:00 p.m.

ENJOY CANADA FISHING

Charles and Richard Manwaring, Gerald Ballenger, and Wallace Anglin, Atwood, joined a group of nine as guests at Dawes Company lodge at Nestor Falls, Ontario, Canada this past week for a week of fishing.

They report weather and fishing was excellent. While there they had a visit with Lionel and Anna Green who have guided so many parties from here at various times. They send regards to all their Mentone friends. They now have 36 husky dogs which they raise and sell.

Use an approved fly spray on your dairy cattle to help reduce loss in milk production, advise Purdue University dairy scientists.

Dandelions in lawns can usually be killed by one application of 2,4-D applied when soil moisture is sufficient to provide weed growth, Purdue University agronomists assert.

Safe Farm Gasoline Storage

Farmers can save money by proper storage of gasoline, C. L. Hill, Purdue University agricultural engineer, points out.

Hill suggests these simple storage rules:

Locate the tank where it will be shaded during as much of the day as possible. Erection of a shade of sheet metal which will permit air circulation will be profitable in reducing the evaporation loss in both summer and winter.

The best gasoline storage plan, where overhead tanks are used, is to provide shade, paint the tank white and use a pressure vent on the tank. The pressure vent is of value by itself. These vents maintain a low vapor pressure on the fuel in storage during the heat of the day and reduce evaporation loss.

White paint which will chalk off and keep its surface clear is the most effective in reducing the temperature reached by the fuel.

Hill says tests at Purdue indicate that a saving in gasoline of one-half cent a gallon all year will result if these practices are followed.

Unnecessary horn honking by impatient motorists adds stress and strain to the problems of everyday driving, says the Chicago Motor Club. The automobile horn is a safety device put on your car for use in emergency situations, not a means for emotional outlet.

The Chicago Motor Club offers this tip to motorists: Always drive with the flow of traffic; if you're passing too many cars, you're probably going too fast; if too many cars are passing you, you're probably traveling at too slow a pace for existing conditions.

Always signal, well ahead, your intention to change lanes or to slow down for turning or stopping, says the Chicago Motor Club. This will enable other drivers to anticipate your move and maneuver accordingly.

The Chicago Motor Club cautions drivers planning a long motoring vacation not to try to cover too many miles in one day. Never over extend yourself behind the wheel of your car. Stop for the night as soon as driver fatigue or drowsiness begins to overtake you.

ATTEND BAPTIST CHURCH CONFERENCE

The 29th annual conference of the General Association of Regular Baptist Churches meeting in the Municipal Auditorium, Long Beach, California, came to a close on Friday, June 24. Pastor and Mrs. Irwin L. Olson and Dr. and Mrs. Jon Rouch, who were official delegates from the First Baptist Church, Mentone, attended the conference.

Seven hundred and twenty-four official delegates from every compass point in the United States made their way to share in the inspiration and information given by the speakers on the theme, "So Great Salvation." Dr. R. T. Ketcham, who has been the national representative for eleven years, resigned because of limitations placed upon him by a damaged heart. Dr. Paul Jackson, who recently resigned as president of Baptist Bible Seminary, Johnson City, New York, was given a unanimous call to the office of national representative to which he responded in the affirmative.

Dr. Getcham will serve the Association in the capacity of national consultant.

The General Association of Regular Baptist Churches is a group of churches united in a fellowship to perpetuate the historic Baptist principles which were set aside by the infiltration of Unitarianism and convention control in the American Baptist Convention. The Association believes that the Bible is the only rule for faith and practice. It also believes that the local church is autonomous and in no way should be connected to the state.

In traveling to and from the conference Pastor and Mrs. Olson visited friends and relatives in Minnesota and in San Diego, California. They returned to Mentone on Friday, July 1st. Dr. and Mrs. Rouch, who are missionaries on furlough from French Equatorial Africa, are on an extensive deputation tour of the west and southwest. They plan to return to Mentone the latter part of July.

Do you want a book on basic photography? Need a vegetable planting guide for town or city? Want help in judging the best eggs? Could you use tables of computed altitude and azimuth?

Literally everything from altitude to azimuth (has to do with navigational triangles) is available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C.

Every two weeks the Government Printing Office issues a folder of about 70 pamphlets, studies and books that have been developed by various departments of our federal government. They are priced from 5 cents to $5 (with most 10 and 15 cents). Some of the items are highly specialized, but many are of practical value to the husband or wife who wants to learn more about budgeting, educating children or doing home repairs.

Write to the Superintendent of Documents to get on the mailing list for the bi-weekly catalogs.

COUNTERPOINT

By the Editor's Wife

Mrs. Ora Tucker, my neighbor, called last Thursday after reading the column, to say that she thought that she had our wrens at her house. Mrs. Hill says that their wrens are back, but that they came later than usual. So, Harry, keep your eyes and ears open—your wrens may yet appear.

Your politics may or may not agree with the Democrats, but if you are honest, you will have to agree that young Senator Frank Church, from Idaho, has a most unusual ability to "choose and use" words.

Couldn't believe my own eyes last Saturday afternoon when I saw a beautiful Siamese cat walking across our south lawn. Tried to make friends, while formulating a delaying plan of action until the owner might be located. The cat soon headed north in a most assured manner, and I presumed he was going home. Later, Mrs. Harold Smythe, the owner, came looking for him. His name is Maverick, and he seems to be an explorer by nature, as he "takes off" quite often. He has been found as far south as the Wayne Shunks and the Kellys. So, if you see Maverick, remember, he's not lost—he's just on another expedition.

This is my favorite apple-pie season, and I want to tell our school-marm friend in Elkhart that her Dutch-Apple pie recipe is getting its annual "work-out." (I know, I know—extra calories, but worth it!)

We enjoyed this:

Fond mother (watching her two-year-old:) "He's been walking for a year!"

Bored visitor: "Amazing! Can't you make him sit down?"

FOR ATWOOD

Northern Indiana Public Service Company's construction crew has started the installation of the four-inch transmission main that will bring natural gas service to the people of Atwood, Stanley W. Evans, NIPSCO's Warsaw district manager, announced today. The main will be built along the Crystal Lake Road and under the Tippecanoe River south of Atwood.

Following the completion of the transmission main, Evans said, the NIPSCO construction crew will begin the installation of the distribution system serving the community. A recently completed survey showed that Atwood residents are eagerly awaiting the arrival of natural gas.

Gas service should be available to the people of Atwood about the middle of August, Evans said, unless NIPSCO crews are delayed by rainy weather.

Conducting Farm Cardiac Project

Some 400 central Indiana farmers are presently being interviewed and medically examined in connection with Purdue University's farm cardiac project.

W. H. M. Morris, agricultural economists, and R. L. Eichhorn, sociologist, both of Purdue, are cooperating with the Indiana State Board of Health and county medical societies in conducting follow-up research with the farmers who were examined in 1956-57. They want to learn what changes have taken place in the farmers' health, farm operations and general activities.

Information gained from this research will be used by physicians in advising farmers with heart disease and by farm machinery designers and farm managers, Morris reports.

A mobile medical unit staffed by physicians from the Robert Moore Heart Clinic, Marion County General Hospital, and Purdue farm cardiac project interviewers is now located near the new 4-H building south of Lebanon. Dr. Robert Chevalier, department of medicine, Indiana University medical school, is in charge of the unit.

Upon completion of survey work in Boone County, the mobile unit will move to Frankfort, Logansport, Delphi and Lafayette.

Tours of swine experiments at the farm will start at regular intervals from 8 a.m. until 10:30 a.m., CDT, according to J. H.
Conrad, swine nutrition specialist, and W. M. Beeson, head of animal nutrition work at Purdue, who are in charge of the all-day program.

Featured on the morning prosults on high-moisture corn preserved with an antibiotic, levelus of protein with and without an

Season For Hay Mow Fires

Spontaneous combustion in a hay mow can be a threat as long as 10 weeks after harvest, Purdue University farm safety specialists admonish in Farm Safety Mimeo—36, "Hay Mow Fires," published by the Agricultural Extension Service.

The probability of fire depends upon the amount of hay and depth in the mow, how tight
it is packed, outdoor temperature and humidity, and most important, the percent age of moisture in the hay itself. Baled hay should not be stored with over 20 percent moisture, while chopped hay should not exceed 22 percent and unchopped loose hay 25. Salt helps by absorbing some moisture, but the mimeo reveals that enough salt to secure hay from fire makes it unfit for feed.

Combustion danger is detected through odors, temperature, vapors and smoke. Mimeo FS-36 tells how to make a probe with which to insert a thermometer.
Readings as high as 140° F. are considered safe. Temperatures of 160° are dangerous and call for frequent temperature checks. If the reading reaches 180°, it's time to call the fire department and contemplate removing the hay.

The mimeo has a page outlining fire fighting procedures with emphasis on personnel safety. It stresses the use of planks to walk on in the mow to avoid stepping into burned out pockets in the hay.

A copy of Mimeo FS-36,
"Hay Mow Fires" will be sent free to Indiana residents who request it by writing to the Office of Agricultural Publications, AES Building, Purdue University, Lafayette. A postal card is sufficient. The leaflet can also be obtained at county extension offices.

TRACTOR TALK

From: J. Walter Thompson Co.
Michigan.

TESTS PROVE TRACTOR CARE SAVES YOU MONEY

Here's some information that can save you money. It comes from Kansas State University of Agriculture and Applied Science, where a performance study on 50 typical farm tractors was completed recently.

Failure to maintain an engine properly can cost the owner more fuel to produce less power. The average tractor in the Kansas State test was producing only seventy-five percent of its maximum power and it took one-third more fuel than normal to do it. Improper preventive maintenance is the primary culprit, with the following four points topping the list:

(1) AIR CLEANER

Of the tractors tested, one out of ten had air cleaners that were choked with dirt and chaff. Servicing their cleaners resulted in an average power gain of 7.6% and an 11.4% decrease in fuel consumption.

(2) CARBURETORS

Adjustments were needed in almost 75% of the cases. On 23 engines found running "rich", proper adjustment decreased fuel consumption 9.5%. (In some cases, however, excessive leaning of the carburetor may actually increase fuel consumption at full load.)

(3) IGNITION TIMING.

Over half the tractors were found to need timing adjustment. This produced an average gain in maximum power of 5.3% with fuel consumption decreasing by the same percentage.

(4) SPARK PLUGS.

New spark plugs were installed in 90% of the tractors for an average power gain of 5.3% and a 6.1% decrease in fuel consumption. In seven of the test tractors, plugs were found to be in such bad condition they caused misfiring under load. In these engines new plugs increased power 21.5% and decreased consumption 14.2%. Governors on 80% of the tractors were off.

Adjustments or repairs increased horsepower 9% and cut fuel consumption by 5%.

COOL HOGS, MORE PROFIT

An excited hog in a poorly ventilated truck, plus hot weather, equals less profit for the farmer, reminds Dick Hollandbeck, Purdue University extension swine specialist.

Hundreds of market hogs die each summer because some raisers don't understand how swine react to hot weather. Since hogs lack sweat glands, they depend on respiration and vaporization to keep cool, Hollandbeck explains. Any situation which restricts breathing—overfeeding before loading or poor ventilation—makes cooling impossible and the hogs suffocate.

Farmers can avoid such losses, Hollandbeck says, if they will:

Sort hogs early in the day and let them quiet down before the trip to market begins;

Provide ventilation in the truck, spread wet sand on the truck floor and, if possible, provide a shade for the hogs while they are being transported.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Stiffler spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Stiffler of Indianapolis.

Poison Ivy Control Methods

"The best way to prevent ivy poison is to avoid poison ivy," says O. C. Lee, Purdue University plant pathologist.

"It's easier to avoid poison ivy if you know what it looks like," he adds. Identification of ivy is not difficult. Leaves grow in clusters of three and have a glossy, waxy appearance. They are dark green except in the fall when they turn red and yellow.

"If you can't avoid ivy, get rid of it," Lee recommends. Poison ivy can be killed easily with chemicals, he points out.

During the growing season, brush killer sprayed on the plant leaves will kill the ivy. Brush killer is composed of equal parts of 2,4-D, and 2,4,5-T. The chemical should be mixed at the rate of one gallon in 100 gallons of water and sprayed to thoroughly moisten the foliage.

Lee suggests applying a dormant spray of 2,4,5-T in oil during the winter months to kill poison ivy. This is safer method, since at that time no garden or crop plants are growing. These plants can be damaged by spray drift.

One gallon of 2,4,5-T in 25 gallons of fuel oil is a satisfactory mixture. The spray should be applied directly on the vines, especially around the base of the plant.

Further information on control of poison ivy can be obtained from county extension agents or the Botany and Plant Pathology department at Purdue University, Lafayette.

Prevent Stored Grain Losses

Indiana grown wheat rarely infested in the field by insects which attack stored grain, such as weevils, grain beetles and meal moth, points out David Matthew, Purdue University extension entomologist.

As a result, Matthew recommends a pre-harvest sanitation program and spraying. For instance, newly harvested grain may become infested enroute to storage if transported in trucks and wagons containing insect infested crop residues. So, clean out the wagons and trucks.

This goes, too, for combines and storage bins and surrounding areas. Then spray the inside percent methoxychlor spray, or of the bins with either 2½ or 1½ percent malathion spray.

As the grain is being elevated into the bin, apply either 40 to 60 pounds of a 1 percent premium grade malathion wheat flour dust per 1,000 bushels or a mixture of pyrethrum and pip-eronyl butoxide according to label directions.

If a liquid protectant is desired, use 1 pint of 57 percent premium grade malathion emulsion concentrate in three to five gallons of water for each 1,000 bushels of wheat.

Matthew says additional protection against Indian meal moth may be obtained by adding an application of malathion to the surface of the wheat in the bin.

SWEET POTATO CARE

The success of a sweet potato crop depends on several practices, according to Leslie Hafen, Purdue University horticulturist.

The maintenance of a large leaf area is necessary for high yields, the horticulturist says.

Carbohydrates necessary for root enlargement are manufactured in the leaves. Eventually these food materials move into the roots.

Unlike Irish potatoes, few insects and diseases damage sweet potato plants under Indiana conditions. Sweet potatoes are raised in various parts of Indiana by both commercial growers and home gardeners.

Sweet potato vines should not be pruned or cut in case they make a heavy growth, Hafen advises. Removing the vines will reduce yields.

NO ROOM FOR SEDIMENT

If you have trouble with engine surging and power loss when operating your tractor, you'll probably think of carburetion as the cause of the trouble. Check the fuel filter and sediment bowl before tearing into the carburetor. You might save yourself a lot of time and temper. Your best bet, of course, is to check them before you experience trouble; in fact, the fuel filter and sediment bowl should be examined daily . . . cleaned weekly. This is especially important after a sudden change in outside temperature, which can cause condensation in the gas tank. If you find water and dirt in the sediment bowl, clean it out and wash the filter with solvent. If it has a throw-away element, replace it. When reinstalling the glass bowl, be sure the gasket surfaces are in good condition, to prevent leaks.

The U. S. Census Bureau tells us that a college diploma is worth $103,000 more in a lifetime than a high school diploma.

The average college graduate can expect to earn $268,000 during his lifetime compared to the high school graduate's $165,000.

A college education isn't a matter of more money alone—its becoming a necessity.

Our working life is becoming increasingly specialized and complex; so that the best jobs in the future will require more education and training—a broad liberal arts background coupled with specialized knowledge.

Right now, for example, the best starting pay goes to engineers, physicists, chemists, accountants and business administrators. In the long run, the people who make the largest incomes are doctors, dentists, architects, lawyers, salesmen, T V production experts and administrators.

Now—get your children to plan for a liberal arts education combined with a specialty that will be needed in the coming decades.

PARK SAFELY

If your picnic area is near a highway or well traveled street, says the Chicago Motor Club, make certain your automobile is parked a safe distance from speeding traffic. When parking for roadside picnics always make certain your car is pulled completely off the highway. Autos parked on the shoulder of the road can be a mental hazard to oncoming drivers whose tendency is to swerve over the center line when passing a vehicle parked close to the highway.

Indiana Farm Income Drop

Average 1959 net income of 135 farmers in the northern fourth of the state who keep records with Purdue University's agricultural economics department dropped 48 percent below their 1958 income. This average income—$4,661—was the lowest of any year since 1955. Average net income of 131 similar farms in 1958 was $9,039.

Net farm income is defined as net cash income, plus (or minus) inventory changes, minus a value for any unpaid family labor.

The average returns for labor and management totaled $151, the lowest of any year since 1932. The 1959 labor income averaged $4,961. This is computed by deducting a five percent interest charge on the capital investment from the net farm income. The capital investment on these 135 farms averaged $90,210 last year.

The rate earned on investment for these farms averaged six tenths of one percent, compared to the 5.9 percent earned in 1959. Rate earned represents net farm income, less operator wage and management charges and management charge for the landlord, divided by the total capital invested.

The 135 farms are larger than average—their average total acreage being 253 acres, of which 212 were tillable. Cash receipts averaged $25,941, while Net inventory changes averaged a minus $157, compared to a cash expenses averaged $20,678, plus $4,137 in 1958.

Total cash receipts, expenses and net cash income were about the same last year as in 1958. However, because of lower yields of all crops and lower commodity prices, particularly hog prices, inventory values of feed, grain and livestock dropped substantially last year. In 1958 inventory value of these items showed a large increase over the previous year.

"The 1959 data on these farms show a continuation of a trend units and larger capitalization," toward the operation of larger observe the Purdue agricultural economists.

"While the total capital investment per farm increased $69,290 since 1940, about $47,000 of this increase was in real estate investments. This was largely due to increased farm land prices, since the average acreage of cooperating farms increased only 48 acres during the period."

"Other capital investments increased over $22,000, due to a substantial increase in amounts, in addition to value, of machinery, equipment and livestock in 1959 as compared to 1940."

The economists point out that the farms covered in the report "are larger and are operated more efficiently than the average for all farms. Therefore, average incomes shown in this report should not be considered as representative of all farms in this area."

ANOTHER WOODEN ROW DOWN AND OUT

Five Buildings Including The Fair Store On The Corner Of Main And Broadway, East To Ellsworth's Shoe-Shop In Ashes

INCIDENTS OF THE FIRE

Next summer will see the burnt district covered with new buildings.

The Gazette was printed a few hours too soon last week to contain the most exciting event of the week. Last Thursday morning at about 5:15 the editor of this paper was awakened by the smell of smoke, and immediately began an investigation. Not finding the cause about the printing establishment, we prepared to make an out-door search, but before leaving our rooms we observed from our west window a tongue of fire and smoke-making its escape from the top of the Kime building, occupied by Ben Sell's meat market, four doors west of us. In passing the building on our way to the engine house to turn on the fire alarm, we observed no fire in the front, but as we returned a few minutes later the entire front was out and the whole two stories were a mass of flames. It is evident that the smoldering fire had been a long time burning and so completely filled the building with dense smoke and hot air that an explosion from this cause occurred. All departments of the fire company were soon on hand and as effective work as could be expected under such conditions were done. The people turned their attention to removing the goods from the adjoining buildings. Nothing was saved from the meat market, and but little from Mr. Lewis' branch store on the east. Most of the goods in Auginbaugh's harness shop, Jenkin's fair store, Doddridge's jewelry store and Byer Brother's packing rooms, were carried out and scattered about the streets. Only a part of the goods were taken from David Ellsworth's shop. L. D. Manwaring lost considerable amount of his household goods which were stored in the rooms over the harness shop. Issac Sarber, the tailor, over the Fair Store, lost considerable in the way of stock and fixtures. Miss Alice Jennings and Miss Lash who had rooms in the same buildings had considerable of their furnishings burned. The following is perhaps as fair a general estimate of the losses as can be made:

L. D. Manwaring, building, stored goods, $2,500; W. W. Kime, building, $1,000; W. D. Garrison, building, $400; Ben Sell, outfit and stock, $650; F. M. Jenkins, damages, 1,500; J. W. Auginbaugh, stock, $30; D. W. Lewis & Son, stock, 600; D. Ellsworth, tools and goods, $30; I. H. Sarber, stock, $40; Misses Jennings and Lash, $35; total $6,815.00.

The only insurance carried was $1,000 by Mr. Jenkins and $500 by Ben Sell. The fire leveled everything from Broadway east on the south side of Main street to the alleys west of the Gazette office and north of J. A. Wilson's except Mrs. Mollenhour's millinery store, Harve Kesler's residence, an old ice house and the little shop on the south end of Manwaring's lot. The Gazette office was warned up some but was well fortified against the devouring element.

NOTES

Several persons who felt their appreciation of the kindness and help of their neighbors and friends wanted to publish 'cards of thanks' to that effect, but we persuaded them that it was not necessary. Everybody knows they were thankful. Besides those who did their duty by as they would wish and expect rendering assistance acted only others to do for them if conditions should be reversed.

As the people were taking down the goods in the Fair Store, a section of the shelving fell and several persons narrowly escaped serious injury. As it was Mrs. Sheffield received some bad bruises about her head and face. Del Hall tried to carry out one woman whom he thought was killed, but she got away from him and he couldn't catch her again.

Just because somebody failed to get Central when an effort was being made to answer seventeen calls at once, the story was started that the telephone building was burned and the 'hello' girl with singed locks made a heroic escape, carrying the switch-board under her arm across the street where she set it down in new quarters and proceeded with business immediately.

The following from the Peru Journal last Thursday is a sample of what was sent out from Warsaw all over the country:

"The business portion of Mentone, this county, was destroyed this morning by fire. At last report the fire was beyond control."

Strange how people see things differently. Some people heard an explosion which sent the flames and a section of the roof of the Kime building 150 feet into the air. Others standing by heard no sound but the frying of fat in the meat market.

It is acknowledged now that the story that a charge of dynamite under the floor in the harness shop blew Abe Mollenhour up through the ceiling and that he came down without a scratch, was slightly exaggerated. He never got through the ceiling.

ver got through the ceiling.

The cause of that explosion has been attributed to every conceivable source from the leaking of a gas main in the basement to the bursting of one of Ben's bologna sausages.

Mrs. Mollenhour's millinery goods were moved out, also the household goods from Harvey residences, then moved back when danger was over.

The wires out of town were the hottest on account of the red hot stories that went over them in all directions.

David Ellsworth moved his repair shop into the room formerly occupied by the telephone office, south of the burnt corner.

The Goshen News in its report of the fire includes Mrs. Jennings' fine residence, two harness shop and one large shoe store.

The Gazette office and Methodist church were burned by the hot writeups of some of the young 'American' reporters.

Lewis Foor moved the Byer Brother's produce repository into the rear part of the building now occupied by Jenkins.

There is but little doubt but that at least two substantial buildings will go up on the burnt district in the early spring.

The old maxum of it being 'cheaper' to move than to pay rent, doesn't apply in this case.

A purse of $18.00 was made up for David Ellsworth, for which he is especially appreciative.

Miss R. C. Cretcher and her niece, Miss Lizzie Bodey, have taken rooms in the Forst Building.

W. B. Doddridge, with his jewelry store, will be found in the post office.

I. H. Sarber moved his tailor shop up the west stairway in the Banner building.

Several parties were seen laying in a supply from the goods piled upon the streets. Some of them were known.

The school girls secured rooms at Dr. Heffley's residence, on Franklin Street.

W. B. Doddridge claims that his loss by the fire was practically nothing.

The ruins are still smoking. This was taking from the Tri-County Gazette, Thursday, February 8, 1906.

Sgt. Melvin B. Stiffler and two children of Biloxi, Mississippi, called recently at the Hobart Stiffler home, also at Dale Stiffler's in Mentone.

Bert Ritter of Warsaw, spent Sunday afternoon with C. O. Herendeen.

COUNTERPOINT

By the Editor's Wife

(While the Editor and his wife are vacationing in Michigan their daughter will share a few thoughts with the readers this week.)

I've been thinking lately about the many hours we neighborhood children spent climbing trees—several years ago! Living now in a home where the yard is without any eligible climbing trees has made me realize more the wealth of pleasure we knew in growing up among the numerous trees and bushes.

Two lovely tree-houses, made only of wooden boxes, anchored securely in the lofty branches of an old apple tree, were constantly being played in. The little amount of time and effort by the Editor in building those houses was repaid over and over again by the enjoyment derived from them by his two children and many other boys and girls.

Our own children are always anxious to visit Grandpa Harman's farm because of the large roaming area and especially the trees and fences to be climbed. (Grandpa Harman wonders, why, with the gates so handy, Tim and Lisa prefer going over the fences.)

I've confessed to my family the urge I often have to climb a tree, so they're not to be too surprised if one of these days I give vent to that urge!

Joyce Kilmer, the poet who wrote the words to the song, "Trees", has so beautifully summed up our appreciation by his closing line—"Poems are made by fools like me, but only God can make a tree."

My aunt has come up with an idea to help relieve the monotony of dishwashing. Being very much interested in poetry, she has decided to put the seemingly wasted time spent over the sink to a good use. She now props her poetry book on the window sill and enjoys a few moments of refreshing reading while at the same time she does a necessary household task. She is currently enjoying a collection of works by Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

We enjoyed this:

A recent comment made by a visitor upon being greeted by our friendly, squirming little Dachshund puppy, "Oh, how nice, a dog you can pet on both sides of the street!"

Classified First Class

The Vocational Agriculture Department of the Mentone-Harrison township High School has been classified First Class, according to a recent announcement received by Mr. H. Earl Boggs, Trustee.

This rating is the highest possible achievement based on the total program offered by vocational agriculture. H. B. Taylor, State Supervisor of Agricultural Education, recently approved "First Class" ratings for 51 departments in the state. This is an increase of 12 over last year. There are approximately 350 departments of vocational agriculture in Indiana.

To receive this rating a department must have a satisfactory farming program for each high school student, have an approved farm shop and an active Future Farmers chapter. There must also be an approved evening class program for both young and adult farmers. Reference materials, course of study, classroom facilities and time schedules must meet certain high standards.

The teacher of vocational agriculture is Morris T. Bitzer and Mr. John Frederick is principal of the high school.

The township will be reimbursed by the state for this classification to the amount of approximately $21.00.

Mr. Robert Hewlett was the vocational agriculture teacher this past year.

AUSTIN BORTON IN WOODLAWN HOSPITAL

His room number is 205-B. Mrs. Jacob said her father suffered a stroke June 28 which paralyzed the left side of his body. He may have visitors, but calls should be brief.

MAGAZINE CALLS PHONY HEALTH ADS 1960'S MOST DANGEROUS RACKET

Deceptive drug, device and cosmetic advertising leads the parade of 1960's most dangerous phony deals, according to Changing Times, the Kiplinger Magazine.

The current issue of the magazine lists the ten top frauds of the year, and describes various other schemes in which the public is bilked of its money.

Following the health rackets, the other nine, in order of the number of complaints received by the National Better Business Bureau, are: questionable franchise deals, especially in vending machines; mail-order sale of dubious gadgets and garden supplies; unsound earn-money-at-home schemes; high-pressure home-improvement schemes; fictitious list and comparative prices; bait ads; unordered-merchandise schemes, especially in charitable appeals; telephone sales of doubtful securities; photography schemes.

Among the health rackets, the article lists the following as some of the worst offenders:

Weight reducers—falsely advertised pills and gadgets which promise everything from paring off pounds to selective reshaping of specific body areas.

Baldness preventives—liquids, drugs, massages and costly "treatments."

Cancer cures—powders and pastes that can be dangerous, dietary treatments that play on people's superstitions, "hospitals" run by quacks.

Arthritis and rheumatism aids—phony nostrums and ineffective treatment centers and devices, such as vibrating machines, which have been used to victimize five million sufferers, and "glorified aspirin" medications whose beneficial effects are questionable.

The editors advise home owners to be on guard against promotion of undersized bulbs or "astonishing new strains and varieties" of flowers labelled with pseudo-scientific names meaning absolutely nothing. A classic example, they state, is the "Ailanthus Tree" or "Tree of Heaven," advertised as "the most incredible shade tree on this planet" but actually, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, a "relatively short-lived" tree that "provides little shade from its thin, loose crown."

A currently thriving racket, the article notes, derives from the get-rich-quick lure of the vending machines. A good vending machine route can net 3% or 4% profit out of gross take, according to the editors. An exceptionally well run and profitable route can net as much as 10%, but that's rare. The vultures in the business ignore these figures, and in extravagant prose promise that "the net profit may be 200% or 300%." They dupe the elderly and the people of limited savings with assurances that they can't lose, that an $800 dollar investment may produce $200 a month, and that only a few hours of work a week are required to enjoy such rich pickings. This, according to the article, is an empty promise.

In warning of these and other rackets and frauds, the magazine points out that legal steps have been and are being taken to curb such practices.

But these steps, the editors point out, come to naught without the assistance of one irreplaceable cog in enforcement machinery—the public. Unless the people take the time to ask questions and investigate, the fraud artists will have another big year, at the expense of the public and the great majority of businessmen who are honest.

DISEASES LOSSES IN TIMBER

Plants, as well as people, suffer from disease. And in forests, as well as factories, illness is a major enemy of productivity, according to E. J. Lott, Purdue University extension forester.

An exhaustive study recently published by the Forest Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, entitled "Timber Resources for America's Future," says diseases far outrank all other destructive agents in reducing forest productivity. It is estimated that about 45 percent of the total losses in growth and mortality of saw-timber (mature trees) and growing stock is caused by tree diseases.

Most diseases that affect American forest trees are native. Occasionally, and for a variety of causes, these become epidemic, greatly increasing their normal destructive effects. Some of the most destructive diseases, such as white pine blister rust, chestnut blight, and the Dutch Elm disease have been introduced from other continents.

Though insects are responsible for the greatest percentage of actual mortality of trees, when growth losses and mortality are added together, insects are only about half as damaging as disease and about on a par with fire as a destroying agent. Tremendous strides in forest fire prevention and control have reduced the damaging effects of this threat to forest production, but so great is its potential menace that any relaxation of effort could make fire once again the number one destroyer. Weather and animals are other significant robbers of the forests' wealth.

Some reduction in losses from all causes can be expected in the future, Lott and the Forest Service predict, because timber owners are gradually becoming aware of the basic principle that many losses can be reduced by improved forest management. Measures that improve the thrift and vigor of the trees help to control insects and diseases, and better management practices reduce losses due to fire, animals and weather.

Help in managing private forestland for greater profit is available to landowners through their county agricultural agents or district foresters.

The Chicago Motor Club warns that eye fatigue on long motor trips can be a threat to traffic safety. Contrary to popular opinion, it is not a good practice to keep your eyes focused on the road steadily. Give them a rest from time to time by glancing briefly at the passing scenery.

BOVINE "LEPTO" SHOWING UP

New outbreaks of leptospirosis in cattle appear on the increase in several southern Indiana counties, reports Dr. T. M. Curtin, Purdue University extension veterinarian.

Abortions, followed by difficult breeding problems, are reported in the area. Many farmers are unaware of the disease until repeat breeding indicates trouble, says Dr. Curtin.

"Lepto" can infect various classes of animals, cattle, swine, dogs, and even man. In cattle the disease may vary from a mild infection producing only sudden abortions, to an acute, highly fatal disease. High fevers, abortions, depression, anemia and yellowish skin and milk are common signs.

These signs are also common to many other diseases, and veterinary consultations should be immediately sought should any of these symptoms appear. It requires a professional diagnosis to differentiate between lepto and other possible diseases, Dr. Curtin adds.

The disease may be introduced to a herd by "carrier" animals. Animals which have recovered will shed causative bacteria in their urine for variable lengths of time. Recovered cattle and other carriers such as swine, dogs, and wild animals may introduce the disease to susceptible herds.

Control of lepto centers around vaccination, testing and isolation. Vaccination produces a high degree of immunity for a short duration. Herds that are known to have been infected should enter into a vaccination program under the supervision of a veterinarian. Whenever this or any infectious disease appears, the herd should be divided into smaller groups to avoid the entire herd from being involved.

New additions to any herd should be kept separate for at least 30 days before being placed in the herd. Both new additions and aborting animals should be tested immediately after being placed in isolation and again 30 days later.

The potential for new outbreaks of leptospirosis exists throughout the state. Cattle and swine raisers should be constantly alert for signs of the disease and seek veterinary service whenever an indication of the disease appears, Dr. Curtin emphasizes.

Cattle-Hog Farm On Tour

The Willard Jones-Ralph Morgan farm, three miles north of Middletown or 12 miles southwest of Terre Haute on Indiana 63, will be viewed on the State Farm Management tour Tuesday, July 26, at 12:45 p. m., according to Purdue University agricultural economists.

This farm features a 4500-ton trench silo with a concrete floor and dirt sides from which 675 feeder cattle are fed from the time they are purchased in October and November until marketed the following spring and summer.

Silage is made from early and late maturing corn with a power take-off chopper at the rate of 25 to 30 tons per hour. This silage is mixed with grain, Purdue Supplement A and molasses and fed once a day in concrete fence-linked feed bunks.

The farm also features a continuous corn program with some fields in their fourteenth year of corn. There are 230 acres of the corn crop used for silage with the balance of the 707-acre farm in corn for grain, hog pasture and rye. Fertilization per acre includes, 100 pounds of nitrogen for market corn, 150 pounds of nitrogen for corn silage and 60 pounds of 8-32-0 in the row. Bulk phosphate and potash are applied according to soil test. Soil is tested each year. Corn yields for grain average 90 bushels per acre.

One hundred Poland China and Berkshire sows farrow one litter per year starting in December and continuing until April from a central farrowing house which includes 16 portable crates. Sows are placed in the farrowing house three days before farrowing and moved with the pigs to pull-together hog houses, housing eight sows and litters, when the pigs are 11 days old where they remain for five weeks. Pigs are weaned when seven weeks old.

Hogs are fed out on pasture. Silage, mixed with supplement and molasses, is fed to sows in a 150-foot long feed trough. Litters have averaged 9.4 with 8.4 pigs raised over the past few years.

Corn is stored in cribs with a capacity of 21,000 bushels. A truck with a mounted trench silo unloader is an important item of equipment on the farm. Other equipment includes a self unloading ear corn feed grinding truck with a 300 bushel capacity, a feed mixing and self unloading truck, five tractors, plus other planting tillage and harvesting equipment.

Morgan, who attended Purdue in 1942, and his wife Hilda, own 180 acres of the 707-acre farm, operate the farm in partnership with Willard Jones, and his wife Ethel, with the help of four full-time men and one part-time man. Two of the four full-time men have been on the farm for 20 years and the other two six years. The farm help shares in the earnings on a salary, house, meat and bonus basis. The annual outlook banquet in connection with the tour will be held on Monday, July 25, at the Honey Creek school southwest of Terre Haute at 7 p. m. Dr. John B. Peterson, head of Purdue's agronomy department, will discuss "New Frontiers in Crop Production" and Ronald Bauman, Purdue agricultural economist, will have "Outlook Highlights" as his topic.

Tickets for the banquet Monday evening, July 25, and the luncheon Tuesday noon, July 26, may be purchased from your county agent's office or from the agricultural economics department at Purdue. Overnight facilities for the evening of July 25 can be arranged through Guy Harris, county agent, Federal Building, Terre Haute.

May Livestock Slaughter Record

Commercial livestock slaughter in Indiana during May established a record for that month in the 13 years records have been kept, report state-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University.

Livestock of all commercially slaughtered livestock totaled 166,301,000 pounds, five percent larger than April and 20 percent above the May, 1959, total.

The May total liveweight of hogs also established a new record for the month. Slaughter of hogs amounted to 106,821,000 pounds liveweight, three percent larger than April and 20 percent larger than May, 1959. The May, 1959, total was the second highest since records began in 1947.

Liveweight of the 55,500 cattle slaughtered totaled 55,778,000 pounds. This was eight percent larger than April and 21 percent above May of last year. Calf slaughter amounted to 2,202,000 pounds liveweight, 11 percent more than the April total and 10 percent more than May, 1959.

Sheep and lamb slaughter amounted to 1,500,000 pounds liveweight, 13 percent higher than April and 12 percent more than May a year ago.

Commercial slaughter includes that of packing plants and local butchers, but excludes farm slaughter. Totals indicate the marketings of livestock by farmers and the availability of meat.

Output of red meat by commercial slaughter plants throughout the nation totaled 2,240 million pounds in May—11 percent more than May, 1959.

PALESTINE HOMEMAKERS CLUB MEETS

Members of the Palestine Homemakers Club met recently at the home of Mrs. Isaac Horn in Warsaw. It being the annual picnic dinner, no business or lesson was given.

At noon a delicious potluck dinner was served to members present which were: Mrs. Edwin Shirey, Mrs. George Hipsher, Mrs. Jesse Jones, Mrs. Fred Sur-guy, Mrs. Mont Laker, Mrs. Wilbur Perry and daughter, Dawn, Mrs. Albert Tucker and the hostess, Mrs. Horn.

Notice to change of date of club meeting to August 11th.

Good drivers, says the Chicago Motor Club, reduce their rate of speed well before having to negotiate a curve. Then they accelerate gradually to normal while coming out of the curve. Braking on a curve results in many problems—it makes steering more difficult, it lurches passengers about, and it increases the possibilities of skidding or rolling over.

FAMILY PUTS 2,000 MILES A MONTH ON CORVAIR THINKS IT'S MARVELOUS GAS MILEAGE "OUT OF THIS WORLD"

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kahelin of Plant City, Florida, couldn't be happier with the way their new Corvair has worked out as a combination family and business car. On their newspaper distribution route alone they travel more than 400 miles a week over all kinds of roads. Little wonder they're so pleased with the gas mileage they've been getting — "at least twenty-three miles to the gallon with an automatic transmission . . . and we've had no trouble with our Corvair." The Kahelins have equally good things to say about Corvair's easy-going comfort and unique convenience features. They especially like the way the fold-down seat doubles as a built-in baby sitter.

Tornadoes Threat To Hoosiers

"Killer" tornadoes have taken the lives of 279 Indiana residents since the turn of the 20th century.

This is disclosed in a study of frequency and effect of tornadoes in Indiana just completed by Lawrence A. Schaal, Weather Bureau state climatologist at Purdue University.

Schaal defines a tornado as a funnel cloud which touches the ground, leaving evidence of winds rotating at high velocity.

The most recent "killer" tornado was May 6, 1956, at Marion. One person died and 31 other persons were injured.

Two tornadoes accounted for 116 of the 279 deaths recorded from this cause since 1900. Seventy persons were killed in a tornado March 18, 1925, in Posey, Gibson and Pike counties. The village of Griffin in Posey county was wiped out. A tornado March 23, 1917, took 46 lives in New Albany, Floyd county.

Other tornadoes which took a heavy toll in lives and property damage:

March 23, 1913, 21 lives, Terre Haute to Indianapolis.

March 11, 1917, 21 lives, New Castle, Henry and Wayne counties.

March 28, 1920, 39 lives, Union City, Wells, Adams, Allen, Jay, Wayne and Randolph counties.

April 18, 1922, 14 lives, Warren, Fountain, Madison and Delaware counties.

March 26, 1948, 20 lives, Coatesville.

May 21, 1949, 14 lives, Sullivan and Clay counties.

Sixteen other tornadoes took the lives of 34 other people.

Evidently the most severe tornadoes strike in March as indicated by the higher fatalities, Schaal points out. Only once has a fatal tornado hit in the last six months of the year. That was October 11, 1954, near Franklin, where two lives were lost.

Schaal found that one-fourth of the Indiana tornadoes occur in May. (May, 1960 had only three reported tornadoes.) The greatest number occur in the afternoon and early evenings, with 20 percent of them between 5 and 6 p. m.

Counties with the highest number of tornadoes from 1916 through 1959 were Posey and Marion, 14 each; St. Joseph 13 and Delaware 12. With the exception of Posey county, the remaining counties are thickly populated. However, Posey is the Indiana county nearest of tornado activity in the central United States, Schaal explains.

Theme of the 17th annual National Farm Safety Week, July 24-30, is "Enjoy Farm Life —Practice Safety."

CLOSE ESTATE

The Walter Barkman estate has been declared fully administered and the administratrix, Mrs. Letha Barkman Menzie of Mentone, dismissed. Final distribution was to Mrs. Menzie, widow of the decedent and her daughter, Sue Ann Barkman Grass. Both received $1,777.92. The estate was opened in April, 1953.

The Chicago Motor Club points out that following the car ahead too closely is a major cause of traffic accidents. A sudden stop by the car ahead means trouble unless you are driving at an extremely slow speed. A good rule of thumb is to allow one car length of distance for every 10 miles an hour of speed.

THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Mentone, Indiana

In this message Pastor Olson will present documented quotations from Roman Catholic writers showing the powers, principles and aspirations of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy which make the election of a Roman Catholic to office of President of the United States unthinkable to any informed and patriotic protestant. The grave and inevitable dangers which Roman Catholic supremacy poses for the liberties and freedoms of our country will be pointed out without bigotry or political prejudice. People of all faiths and political preferences are invited to attend.

A HISTORY OF MENTONE

By M. O. MENTZER,
Secretary Mentone Chamber of Commerce

After completion of the main part of the sewer system there began to be a move and sentiment for a water system. As in most cases, it resolved itself into a controversy. However, in the summer of 1912 a meeting was called and the citizens responded with a very large group. As a result of this meeting, a committee was appointed to investigate the possibilities, cost and all things that might be of interest to the community.

This committee went to several towns near Mentone, Etna Green, Bourbon, Culver and Plymouth to name a few. On their return the report was favorable. It was felt that a system such as Etna Green had, could be installed here with a minimum expense, that would supply our needs for years.

The National Company of So. Bend found out through the brother of Mr. J. F. Cole, the president of the company, that we were interested in installing a water system. He came to Mentone and met with the town board and explained the method of operation. A survey was first made by the National Company engineers who were employed by the town board for a fee of $50. After this survey, the costs were estimated at $12,000. However, under the laws of Indiana at that time, Mentone could bond itself for only $7,000, thus short $5,000.

Mr. Cole informed the board that under a law, the town could purchase stock in a company organized for the purpose of supplying the town with water.

The town board at that time was made up of the following citizens: Irvin Snyder, Bert Van-Gilder and James Giffin, who notified the citizens of the plan. A meeting was held and it was decided to go ahead and organize a corporation to be known as the Mentone Water Co.

Charles Shafer, William Clark and Marion Mentzer were selected as organizers of the Mentone Water Co. Each having purchased one share of common stock at $50. per share in order to qualify as directors. The town of Mentone purchased $7,000. of common stock and an issue of $5,000. preferred stock was ordered. We were able to sell 4,750. of preferred stock. (At 6% interest.) In order for the town to purchase $7,000. of common stock it was necessary to issue bonds which bore a small rate of interest. (I think these were 4½% bonds.) With this money we were then able to go ahead. We now had $11,900. with which to build a water plant. (We now are in the process of remodeling our plant and I understand that the paper work before anything can be done, will cost more than the original plant. This will give you an idea of the difference in costs, then and now.)

The board of directors of the Mentone Water Co. elected Charles Shafer, president; M. O. Mentzer, vice president and William Clark, secretary-treasurer. We entered into a contract with the National Company to supervise the construction of the system on a cost plus basis. They received 10% for their fees.

Work started in the fall of 1912 and materials were purchased and began arriving.

A crew of men were working on the cement base, made for the tank which had to be installed before the brick work could be finished.

About this time a dissension arose. A whispering campaign started rumors of tall tales about graft, misspent money, etc. Always there are those who will listen to the bad things that are told, and quite often a few people follow the leader, who under other circumstances would not have been believed.

A law suit was brought, trying to set aside the purchase of the $7,000. of common stock that the town board had purchased. This suit was held in Warsaw. Those who were opposed objected to our county judge and asked for a change of judges. This was granted and a judge from Whitley County presided at the trial. When the evidence was in, the judge ruled that the town board had not exceeded their authority and that the law gave them the privilege of purchasing the stock, and found for the defendants throwing the costs on the plaintiffs. This ended the legal effort to stop the construction of the water plant, but it did not stop vicious tales about those who were spending their time and effort to provide this plant for our citizens. Since I was in this from the first, I wish to say that to my knowledge and belief, there was not one cent misspent. The members of the town board and members of the water company were all out of pocket, but we felt that it was for a good cause and cheerfully made this sacrifice.

In order that the Water Company would have income to pay for the operating expense and interest, on the preferred stock, the town board passed an ordinance appropriating funds for hydrant rental. This called for $55. per year per hydrant. The company was also given a franchise for the sale of water to consumers at 25 cents per 1000 gallons, with minimum charge of $2.50 for six months.

The law suit caused a little delay in completing the plant and winter was here before we were ready. However, the mains were laid and the construction of the building was almost completed. I remember we had nice weather about Christmas time and with a few bricks to lay, the masons were asked if they would please work on Christmas day in order to finish. I told them they could have groundhog day off. They worked and finished the brick work on Christmas. (I received a post card from one of the men, a Mr. Hammond, telling me he was taking groundhog day off.) The roof was put on and we had water in the mains January 1st, 1913.

After the completion of the plant, the insurance company adjusted the rates and it was found that in most cases the savings in insurance more than paid the taxes for this improvement.

The opponents of the water plant were not through. At the next town election their group nominated men who said that if elected, they would refuse to make appropriation for funds with which to pay the interest on the bonds. The other side nominated men who were the opposite. We had one of the hottest town elections that was ever held in Mentone. I don't think there was a voter who did not vote. The opponents were defeated and that finished the water fight. It was a good fight while it lasted.

I was in this fight from start to finish, and I'm proud to have had a part in the work of making Mentone a better town in which to live. If the opportunity should present itself again, where I can serve my town and community in any way, though it may be a sacrifice on my part, I shall be pleased to have a part in the betterment of the town and community in which I live.

TRACTOR TALK

From: J. Walter Thompson Co.
Michigan.

AIR CLEANER SERVICE IMPORTANT

Are you servicing your tractor air cleaner as often as you should? If not, you'd better heed this warning from Champion Spark Plug Company on the importance of keeping air cleaners working at peak efficiency.

Champion engineers tell us a clogged filter may cut down on the flow of air entering the carburetor, resulting in an overly rich fuel mixture in the combustion chamber. This may cause excessive carbon build-up, fouled spark plugs, varnish and gum deposits, oil dilution, sludge, and loss of power.

Even more important is the fact that as the filter becomes clogged, small particles of dust and dirt will enter the carburetor and mix with the lubricating oil to form an effective grinding compound. This compound has the same effect on cylinder walls, rings and valves as rubbing them with sandpaper.

The result—excessive wear and shorter engine life.

Just in case you haven't considered how much dirt gets into the air cleaner, keep in mind there are one-million particles of dust in one cubic foot of air. Add to this the fact that it takes approximately 20 tons of air to burn a gallon of gas, and you have an idea just how much dirt enters that air cleaner.

And, remember, when the cleaner has absorbed its limit, the dirt and dust may move right through it into the engine. Don't take a chance on damaging your tractor engine. Always follow the manufacturer's recommendations on air cleaner servicing.

Greatest number of accidents by tractors overturning occur while the tractors are being operated on level ground, says F. R. Willsey, Purdue University farm safety specialist.

Age group having the greatest number of fatalities from accidents on farmland and farm buildings is 5-14 years, according to F. R. Willsey, Purdue University farm safety specialist.

BROTHER DIES EARLY TODAY

Oscar Smith, aged 55, died following surgery in a Fort Wayne hospital early Wednesday. "Butch" or "Doc" as he was known when he lived at Mentone, lived at Harlan, Indiana and was a brother to Mervel A. Smith of Mentone. Mr. Smith underwent surgery for a heart condition, and as the first operation was not successful, a second operation became necessary. Death followed the second operation.

The deceased was born in Mentone, the son of Irvin K. and Viola (Eckman) Smith.

In addition to his widow and three married daughters in the Fort Wayne area, he is survived by three brothers, Paul of Peru, Guy of Bremen and Mervel of Mentone; one sister, Mrs. John Shireman of Mishawaka and 12 grandchildren. M. O. Smith of Mentone is one of the surviving cousins.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

FLYING CLUB MEMBERS FLY TO MICHIGAN

Sunday three planes from the Mentone Flying Club flew to Pelston, Michigan where the flyers had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Artley Cullum at Burt Lake.

Dr. and Mrs. Dan L. Urschel and Mr. and Mrs. Orville McFadden and three week old son made the trip in the Abbey-McFadden plane, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Herendeen and Denton Abbey were in Herendeen's Bellanca while Junior Jones enjoyed a solo flight in the Flying Club Tri-Traveler.

After a delicious dinner, swimming and boating were enjoyed until 4:30 when the three planes took off for the trip back to Mentone. The Cessna made the 300-mile trip in 2:45, the Bellanca in 2:15 and Junior just took his royal time. The return trip was about the same except Junior flew north over the Sioux and then took his time coming home. It was such a nice night for flying that he just kept coming, arriving at the Mentone airport about 10:30 after the Herendeens were in bed. Chick galloped out in his barefeet to turn on that 100-watt bulb at the airport office so Junior could find the runway. Junior and Larry Creakbaum have been enjoying night flying of late, so let's hope they never run out of gas along about midnight some night.

COUNTERPOINT

By the Editor's Wife

Original plans for this column, while on vacation last week, were to mail the copy from Burt Lake (Michigan) in time for the issue. This plan missed the schedule, so it was suggested (via telephone) to place a line in the column saying "On vacation." "Gone to the North Woods," or some such idea. It was truly a pleasant surprise to pick up the Mentone News Monday evening after our return home, and read a very refreshing nostalgic column by "home" talent. Now that I have a "stand-in" there need be no worries about future columns. Thanks, Mrs. Harman.

Grandson Timmy was with us the dock on sunny mornings. It on our vacation last week. He and I had a walk to the end of was a slow leisurely walk filled with small talk about—how much sand the waves had brought in during the night; how many minnows we could see; how hazardous the old wooden planks were for bare feet; why the gulls would choose to rest on our neighbor's dock; how cool the water might be for swimming; the small garter snakes that lived near the dock; why that lived near the dock; why our neighbors anchored their cruiser off shore instead of at the dock; (the list could go on and on.)

Needless to say, these walks stand out as the cherished part of my vacation.

Here is an item which might be called a footnote to remarks made in a previous column about the danger involved in running a power mower. The American Mutual Liability Co. has released figures which state that in 10,000 mower accidents during the past year, 18,000 fingers and 50,000 toes have been lost.

When you make a long automobile trip, do you find yourself critical of small towns you pass through? Do you find yourself saying, "I wonder why they allow this or that?" Then do you suddenly think, "How do tourists see our town?"

That's a good question for all of us to think about. What can we do to make tourists remember Mentone as a lovely little town which they would like to re-visit? Let's think about it,

We enjoyed this: A policeman stopped a somewhat inebriated motorist going the wrong way on a one-way street.

"Didn't you see the arrows?" he asked the confused driver. "Arrows!" exclaimed the motorist, "I didn't even see the Indians."

ENJOY FARM LIFE

Most of us balk when we see or hear any kind of list of do's and don'ts regarding our daily lives. We consider our beliefs about living our personal property, and we resent outsiders telling us how to live. "It's none of their business!" we complain.

Yet consider for a moment the number of strangers whose advice we listen to each day: bankers, doctors, machinery experts, newspaper columnists, lawyers, radio announcers—the list could go on forever. We're bombarded by advice all day long from a variety of experts.

According to President Eisenhower, who proclaimed July 24-

30 as National Farm Safety Week, accidents, in addition to draining our nation's financial resources, "bring death, disability, suffering and hardship to thousands of farm people annually." Safety habits, therefore, are vitally needed if there are to be fewer deaths and injuries, less expense, grief and suffering on the farm and a prosperous national economy.

Experts from the National Safety Council, which is co-sponsoring Farm Safety Week with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, tell us we can enjoy life by practicing safety each day. They ask us to check our home electric and heating systems, to check and repair equipment, to keep our children away from machinery and livestock. They warn against falls resulting from hurry and unsafe ladders. They remind us that courtesy is the key to highway safety, and they suggest we do our best to improve roadway visibility. They tell us to make sure all farm equipment is operating safely and to stop machines before unclogging, oiling or adjusting them. They urge us to be careful using potentially dangerous chemicals and to keep them out of reach of children.

"These experts don't understand us," we say. "Besides, it's none of their business!" Maybe we're partially right.

But we do have a moral responsibility—we, our family and the people we deal with daily—to stay to enjoy life.

Not a bad thought to keep in mind during National Farm Safety Week—and the rest of the year—is it?

TRACTOR TALK

From: J. Walter Thompson Co.
Michigan.

CORRECT ENGINE TEMPERATURE IMPORTANT

Maintaining correct operating temperature on a tractor engine is very important. Too cool an engine (often indicated by continually fouling spark plugs) may reduce fuel economy, decrease available horsepower, and shorten engine life.

On the other hand, too hot an engine (sometimes indicated by spark plug electrode burning) can result in poor performance and excessive wear of engine components.

Of the two conditions, most farm problems center on engines which operate too cool. This is due mainly to the fact that tractor engines are designed with excess cooling capacity so they can handle heavy loads in hot weather without overheating. However, because of this design characteristic, when the tractor is operated under light loads or in relatively cold weather, engine operating temperatures become too low unless precautions are taken to make the engine run hotter.

Usually, this is accomplished by covering the lower part of the radiator, which in effect, increases the temperature of the water flowing from the bottom of the radiator into the cooler lower part of the engine.

It's the effect of this cold water entering the engine which can cause too low an operating temperature, hence the reason for covering the radiator to increase cooling water temperature.

You may think that too cool an engine operating temperature has much effect on engine performance, but according to engineers at Champion Spark Plug Company, an engine running too cool greatly can increase cylinder wear far beyond normal limits and have a tendency to foul spark plugs.

"Berry" Plants Need Topping

Canes of blackberries and black and purple raspberries should be "topped" when new growth reaches 26 to 30 inches in height, according to Jerome Hull, Purdue University extension horticulturist.

When shoots are permitted to grow unchecked during the entire growing season, they become tall, spindly and difficult to handle. They also are less productive during the fruiting season the following year.

Hull says the growing point on the shoot of blackberries and black and purple raspberries should be cut off at the terminal tip, which causes development of lateral or side growth. When they have reached the proper height, lateral growth should be left to grow the balance of the season and should not be cut back until next spring. Since not all canes reach 2½ feet in height at the same time, it is necessary to go over the planting several times during the summer.

Red raspberry canes should not be topped, Hull stresses.

Additional information on pruning berries is contained in Purdue extension Mimeo HO 57-2, "Raspberry and Blackberry Culture in Indiana", available without charge to Indiana residents at the agricultural publications office, Purdue University, Lafayette.

SEWARD HOME D. CLUB MEETS

The Seward Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday, July 13th at 1:30 p.m. with Mrs. Lester Bruner, southeast of Burket, with Mrs. William Valentine assisting.

President, Mrs. Raymond Longbue opened the meeting. History of song of the month, "Battle Hymn of the Republic" was given by Mrs. Frank Nelson and the group sang the song, led by Mrs. Roy Goshert. Vice president, Mrs. Earl Lowman led the group in pledge to the flag and club creed. Meditation prepared by Mrs. Clarence Tinkey was read by Mrs. Valentine. Health and safety remarks were given by Mrs. Wilbur Latimer, who gave a survey on, "Home and Farm Accidents." Roll call "A Short Cut" was answered by the members. Mrs. Carl Thomas gave the secretary and treasurer's report. Mrs. Lowman gave lesson "Choosing Furniture." She stressed on checking good construction and comfort in furniture you buy, and to buy from reliable dealers. Plans were completed for cooking at the Conservation Camp. The president urged all members to exhibit at the County Fair. Meeting closed with group singing club prayer song. An auction was conducted by Mrs. Harold Eaton. Refreshments served to 21 members, and two guests and 10 children. August meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Earl Lowman in Burket.

A National Safety Council survey shows machinery, drowning, firearms and falls are the leading causes of death on farmland and around farm buildings, according to F. R. Willsey, Purdue University farm safety specialist.

Not a single cracked egg since Chevy took over the route

That '60 Fleetside pickup you see takes whatever kind of road comes along, and makes about 250 stops a day delivering eggs house to house for Mr. Harry Hansen of Missoula, Montana. "With my previous truck," Mr. Hansen writes, "I always had some cracked eggs. Cargo damage always cut into my profits. But the new Chevy eliminated that problem completely. I haven't had one cracked egg with my new truck and I've had up to a ton of eggs in it without any difficulty. . . . I didn't know a truck could ride so nice."

Chevy rides nice, all right: takes good care of fragile cargoes. But that's not even the half of it. Torsion-spring suspension also means longer life for the truck, extra thousands of working miles, because the sheet metal and body components take less of a beating. You can run off-the-road or over back trails at faster safe speeds, too; get in more trips a day, make more money. Those facts are as true of the big Chevrolet heavyweights as they are of the pickups. Any model you name. Get one on your job and you've got the world's most efficient, most economical way to haul any load over any road. Your dealer will be happy to prove that statement any day you say.

◀ "I'm getting close to 20 miles to the gallon," Mr. Hansen states, "and that's on stop-and-go delivery."

Rhinitis Prevention In Swine

One of the best precautions against atrophic rhinitis, a respiratory disease of young pigs, is to purchase breeding stock only from disease-free herds, says Dr. F. A. Hall, Purdue University extension veterinarian.

This sneezing disease of pigs causes heavy economic losses. The exact cause has not been discovered and there is no known cure. Veterinarians have developed programs to keep the disease from getting a start and to bring it under control if it gains a foothold.

If a sow's pigs have symptoms of rhinitis, the sow should be separated from the herd and sold at weaning time. This litter should also be sold as soon as the pigs are ready for market. By eliminating affected animals, the disease may be kept under control.

In extreme cases it may become necessary to sell the complete herd and start with new, clean breeding stock. Hall advises keeping only sows which produce healthy litters and practicing good sanitation.

Atrophic rhinitis usually infects very young pigs, but the disease may not become evident until they become adults. Symptoms include sneezing, stunted growth and extremely poor gains, shaking the head, bleeding from the nose and distortion of the face.

Remove Heavy Combined Wheat Straw

Indiana farmers should clip and remove heavy combined wheat or rye straw from young clover and alfalfa stands, says Harry Galloway, Purdue University extension agronomist.

Leaving the young legumes under a blanket or bunches of combined wheat or rye straw severely damages them, he points out. These young plants need sunlight and air.

Purdue trials have shown that the best practice to protect the legume stand is to mow the stubble soon after combining, rake up all loose material and remove it. Pasturing with cattle also helps by their breaking up masses of straw and trampling it down.

Field mice sometimes damage the new seedlings under heavy mulch before or at the time of clipping for weed control.

Sweet is likely to be damaged by clipping, Galloway adds. This crop withstands straw cover and competes with weeds better than the hay-type legumes.

WEED CONTROL ON ALFALFA

Farmers who plan fall seedings of alfalfa are advised of the possibility of using pre-emergence weed control in fields where weeds are a problem.

D. E. Frantz, county agricultural agent reports two new chemicals that may have at least experimental value for fall use. They are 2 4 D B, a broad-leaf control chemical and Dalapon for control of grasses.

Further information is needed on these practices but in limited trials the results have been good. The county agent's office is desirous of getting additional data on use of chemicals in this way and farmers who may be interested are invited to contact Frantz or Frank Miller, BF-BL, assistant agent.

Chemical Safety

Are you careless with pesticides?

The consequences of a negligent moment may result in a death and a lifetime of sadness, remind F. R. Willsey, Purdue University farm safety specialist.

Agricultural chemicals are becoming more widely used in agriculture and about the farm home, he adds. He lists these simple rules for using pesticides safely:

Read the label on each pesticide container and follow the instructions heeding all cautions and warnings.

Store agricultural chemicals in original labeled containers, keeping them out of reach of children, pets and irresponsible persons.

Apply agricultural chemicals as directed.

Dispose of empty containers safely.

Know the basic active ingredients in each material you use. In case of accident you thus will be able to tell the doctor which chemical was ingested so he can counteract it quickly.

Always call a physician or get the person involved to a hospital immediately.

HOSTESS TO MISSIONARY GROUP

Mrs. Kermit Zent was hostess to the Be-About Missionary group of the First Baptist Church, on Monday evening.

For devotions, Mrs. Raymond Lewis told the very interesting life of John Newton, who wrote the song, "Amazing Grace."

After a short business meeting and circle prayer, the group rolled bandages for the Ippy hospital in Africa.

The hostess served delicious refreshments to Mesdames Raymond Lewis, Everett Beeson, Wayne Bowser, Ed Bach Lee Norris, Charles Hunter, Kenneth Romine.

WHEAT YIELDS ARE HIGHER

The wheat harvest in Kosciusko county has moved well along toward completion with yields at a very high level, according to D. E. Frantz, county agricultural agent.

The total production of soft red wheat produced in the county is estimated to be about 750,000 bushels. This estimate is well above last year but below the 1958 crop.

There is very little surplus if any of the kind of wheat produced in this area. The quality of Indiana wheat is very high and is in big demand. It is used primarily in cake flour and pastry production. While the wheat carry-over is large, less than three-tenths of one percent of it is of the kind produced here.

Family Finances

Do you give contributions to charities that use "professionals" to solicit donations over the phone?

The cause itself may be worthy, but how much of your money will actually go to the charity itself.

According to a Chamber of Commerce estimate, the usual break-down of every $10 raised by telephone solicitation is $3 commission to the canvasser, $2 to the crew manager; $1.50 for rent and overhead; $1 for telephone service; $0.30 for the pick-up man; $2.20 to the charity.

Contribute directly to your charity, or check the fund-raising method used to insure that the major portion of your donations will be used for the charity's purpose.

If you have questions about your family finances write to me in care of your editor. No letter can be answered directly or returned; however, as many questions as possible will be covered in future columns.

Car brakes in top working condition are a must for traffic safety. But so is the ability to use your brakes properly. The Chicago Motor Club advises that you can stop more safely and effectively by pumping brakes rather than by jamming them hard. This technique not only assures safer, smoother stops, but the flashing of your brake lights gives a timely warning to the driver behind you.

Your Pets & Trips

Are you wondering what to do with Fido when your family's on vacation?

Thousands of Americans will take their pets with them, notes Dr. T. M. Curtin, Purdue University extension veterinarian. He points out that all animals and pets transported across state lines must be accompanied by an official health certificate issued by a local, licensed, accredited veterinarian.

Failure to obtain this certificate may inconvenience owners and waste time. Pets without health certificates can be impounded by disease control officials in any state and held in quarantine at the owners' expense until necessary certificates are received.

If a dog has not been vaccinated for rabies within the previous year, he should be immunized two or three weeks before the vacation trip, Curtin says. He also recommends destroying old dog bedding before starting on a trip. Otherwise a large crop of fleas may be waiting for Fido when he gets back.

ADVERTISE! IT PAYS!

AN EDITORIAL

This newspaper has received an unsigned communication from a reader for publication. The communication was signed: "A Reader." A signature of this type is sufficient when published, but the actual name of the writer must be on the original manuscript even though the publishers hold the writer's identity in confidence.

The letter was referring to an advertisement in our last issue relative to a sermon of a local minister.

The publishers would again like to remind our readers, that the only thing a newspaper has to sell is advertising space, and all citizens have an equal right and opportunity to buy this space. Advertising space is a commodity the same as sugar at a grocery, gasoline at a filling station or repair service at a garage.

The fact that an advertising message appears in a newspaper does not mean that the publishers are in full accord with that message. It has always been our policy to give the best assistance and knowledge we can to every customer regardless of political or religious beliefs, nationality, etc.

In America each citizen has the privilege of agreeing or disagreeing without fear of illegal punishment, and as citizens we shall likely continue to exercise that privilege. Voltaire stated it so completely when he said: "I wholly disagree with what you say, but will fight to the death your right to say it."

ARGOS RESERVE UNIT RATED EXCELLENT

Twenty-seven members, including five Mentone boys, of the second Platoon, 244th Chemical Company (Smoke Generator) completed two weeks' summer training with the 472nd Chemical Battalion at Camp McCoy, Wisconsin on Sunday. Members of the Argos unit joined their parent unit, the 224th Chemical Company from Marion, Indiana, during the maneuvers.

The mission of a smoke generator company is to provide concealment for friendly forces against enemy observation. This is done by producing a smoke or fog blanket of vaporized oil. A unit such as the 224th can completely blanket an area two miles by four miles in size.

While at McCoy, the unit trained in the field each day, spending the last week in bivouac. Simulated combat conditions were maintained at all times. The unit acted in support of infantry units by concealing convoy moves and providing concealment for river crossings and moves into forward assembly areas.

Sgt. James Miller, of Mentone, who is the unit first sergeant, was promoted to Sgt.

(E-6) while at Camp McCoy. Other key non-commissioned personnel attending from the Argos unit were section leaders Sgt. Robert Winterrowd of Rochester and Sgt. Ora Carmean from Mentone. Chief of the unit's administrative section is Sgt. Kenneth Steining of R. R. 5, Plymouth.

While the summer training was in progress, Major General Busch, Sixth U. S. Army Corps commander, visited the 472nd Battalion. Sp 4 Carl Lahman of Rochester and member of the Argos unit was selected as the general's driver.

about one-third of all farm activity injuries to Indiana farm people last year, reports F. R. safety specialist.

An emergency vehicle approaching with a siren blasting always should receive the right of way, says the Chicago Motor Club. When a driver becomes aware such a vehicle is approaching, he should pull over to the curb and come to a complete stop. If there is no room along the curb, the motorist should then pull as closely to the right curbing as possible.

Small Car Safety Rules

Drivers of small automobiles must observe a special set of driving rules, cautioned Matthew C. Sielski, director of the Chicago Motor Club's safety and traffic engineering department.

Sielski pointed out that little cars can mingle in traffic with bigger automobiles in relative safety if their drivers have due regard for the size, weight, and speed limitations of their autos, and obey all the rules of the road.

He offered the following safety suggestions to small car drivers:

Don't follow a bigger car or truck too closely or pass on the right; the low silhouettes of small cars make them more difficult for the drivers of large cars to see.

For the same reason, be careful when pulling away from the curb into traffic.

Never pass another car unless you are sure you have the pickup to make it safely. Many smaller cars have little reserve power left above 50 miles per hour.

Make allowances for the more limited visibility of many small cars.

Make certain your car is readily visible at night.

Avoid sudden or continual lane changes. Do not cut into the safe car length distance between two automobiles.

Sielski stressed that the small automobiles have one thing in common with the bigger cars. "In the long run, it's the driver's skill that keeps them out of accidents," he said.

ADVERTISE! IT PAYS!

FARM PRICES DROP AGAIN

For the second consecutive month, Indiana farm prices dropped again, report Purdue University agricultural economists and state-federal agricultural statisticians. The decline from mid-May to mid-June was two percent.

U. S. farm prices also dropped two percent.

Purchasing power of Hoosier farmers and all farmers in the country slipped one percent. Prices paid by Indiana farmers declined one percent, while prices paid by all farmers declined two percent.

The Indiana grain price index registered the greatest decrease—four percent. The livestock index dropped one percent.

Major commodity price declines:

Wheat, 11 percent; calves, ten percent; cattle, three percent; baled hay, 12 percent; oats, five percent; broilers, three percent; wool, two percent; soybeans, one percent; turkeys, 15 percent and eggs, six percent.

Price of hogs, corn, whole milk, lambs and chickens remained unchanged.

Since corn and hog prices did not change, the hog-corn ratio remained constant at 14.6. The "normal" Indiana hog-corn ratio is 13.7.

Feed-price ratios increasing: Whole milk-feed, nine percent; butter fat-feed, seven percent and chicken-feed, two percent. Those decreasing were turkey-feed, 13 percent; egg-feed, four percent and broiler-feed, two percent.
