COUNTERPOINT

By The Editor's Wife

Our thanks to E. E. Wagner for the bouquet of pink, white and variegated climber roses (all from one bush, as a result of grafting.) The roses joined a bunch of Shasta daisies in a blue bowl in the living room, where they have been admired by the grandchildren, too.

Do some or you readers often long for the "good old days" at haying time? Haydn Pearson has this to say:

"What this country needs, among a few other things, is a return to the days when haying was a personal affair. A pair of big, friendly horses, a hayrake that a boy operated with his foot, and a tedder that jounced him more efficiently than these modern exercise machines, made a farm lad really appreciate the hay that he fed to the livestock during the winter. * * * If life continues to become automatic and mechanical, soon only a few will appreciate what a quart of milk and a pound of butter used to mean in terms of human muscle power."

And what sort of a machine is going to get your job? No, it's no joke, men are being replaced by machines in hundreds of industries. One writer says it's the story of the cotton gin all over again—another industrial revolution. So, you can begin to learn another skill, even though it is only a hobby. It might prove to be a life-saver.

Reports from the Go Cart tracks from time to time were verified in counterpart in an article in Kiplinger Changing Times:

"The addicts aren't kids except at heart. They are grown-ups with kids tagging along. That's because carts turned out to be very exciting to drive. Keep in mind that when driving you're only inches from the ground. In addition, a third of a turn of the steering wheel switches the front wheels from full right to full left or back. This, say the addicts, means that driving a cart at 30 miles an hour gives the same sensation as driving a Chevrolet at 200. No wonder Junior only gets to use his toy part time."

For Parents—Article 6:

How do you rate on the traditional virtues—kindness, loyalty. (Continued on back page)

Plan For Farm Tour

Plans are now being made for an area Farm Management Tour to be held in Northeastern Indiana. This announcement was made by the publicity committee, R. F. Taylor, Assistant County Agent, Allen County.

Mr. Taylor says that area farm tours are being planned in certain parts of the state to emphasize the type of farming most prevalent in that area.

This year's Northeastern Indiana Farm Management Tour will be held in Whitley and Kosciusko Counties, July 27. Three dairy farms will be visited during the day. Each farm uses a different system of hay and forage management. However, they each provide plenty of high quality forage for their dairy program. They are all highly mechanized one family operators employing a minimum of hired labor.

The tour will start at Gene Ringgenberg's farm two and one half miles south of Pierceton. The Ringgenbergs operate a 200 acre dairy farm and are milking about 60 cows at the present time. A minimum amount of pasture is used in their forage program. Most of the forage is fed in the form of green chop and haylage feed.

They operate this forage system by using three gas tight silos for this feed. They store corn and hay silage in two 20' x 50' silos. The smallest of the three silos is used to store ground concentrate for the cows.

The second tour stop will be at the farm of R. Lowell Yohe, one mile south of South Whitley in Whitley County. The Yohe's operate a 196 acre farm and are milking some 40 cows.

Mr. Yohe employs a good system of forage management—storing his early cut hay in a pole hay storage shed or in a bunker silo as grass silage. His winter feeding program is corn silage from a bunker silo and hay shed.

The noon stop will be at the South Whitley High School where lunch will be served followed by a speaker who will discuss important phases of dairy management.

After the noon program at the school, the group will move to the farm of A. H. Studebaker. The Studebakers operate a 240 acre farm two miles south of Columbia City. They are milking about 70 cows. They had a 14,900 pound herd average in DHIA last year.

The Studebakers use stored feed the year around with some ground chop in the spring. Grass and corn silage is stored in the three upright cement silos and dry hay in the pole shed.

A new 60' x 150' loafing shed is being constructed this year. All three farms are using loose housing for their cows. In-line milking is used by the Ringgenbergs and Yohe's. The Studebakers use a six stall double row parlor.

The committee feels that this tour will give all dairy farmers in the area a chance to see a new trend in dairy management and forage handling systems.

The tour planning committee for this year's tour is composed of Clay Cundiff, Elkhart County; D. Frantz, Kosciusko; E. J. Lesiuk, DeKalb and C. E. Garrard, Whitley.

How To Avoid Picnic Poisoning

"Avoid on unhappy aftermath of the picnic you are planning by making sure the food you take is completely safe," counsels Marcile Allen, Purdue University food specialist.

The simplest precaution for picnic poisoning is not to pack foods that favor growth of organisms causing food poisoning. These include custard-type pie fillings, cream fillings and cream sauces, and fish, egg and chicken salads.

Whether or not you include any of these dishes, Miss Allen urges you to follow this basic rule in transporting food: keep hot food hot and cold food cold.

Hot dishes should be kept at a temperature at least as high as 150 degrees and cold ones at 50 degrees or lower.

If hot food will be eaten soon after it is cooked, wrap containers in several thicknesses of paper. But, if the picnic is delayed unwrap the food and keep it very hot by a fire, or unwrap and cool it. Prepare cold food far enough in advance so you can chill it thoroughly, then wrap containers to insulate it.

It's a good idea, says Miss Allen, to make up picnic sandwiches early enough to freeze them, allowing them to thaw in time for eating.

One added warning: be sure all pork products are thoroughly cooked. And, if you like hamburgers rare or medium, be sure the meat is all beef, and not a beef and pork mixture.

Planning Party For Children

All too often children's birthday parties are ordeals which end with irritable youngsters and exhausted parents. To help you give the opposite kind, a successful party for pre-school children, Dorothy V. Mummery, Purdue University family life specialist, offers these suggestions:

"First, ask yourself why you are having a party," she advises. If it is for such reasons as providing a way to pay off your social debts or to impress the neighbors, it is bound to be a failure. If it is to give children a happy time, keep the occasion simple, informal and suited to the children's age group.

"Who's coming?" is worth serious thought. Dr. Mummery finds it wise to invite only as many children as the pre-school-age "birthday child" is years old. Limit the guests to the child's own familiar friends; this is no time to add strain of children's having to make new acquaintances. Have no more than one or two mothers to help you, the specialist counsels. If more must come, provide an activity for them in a separate room.

When will it be? Morning is the best time, for then the party refreshments can comprise the children's noon meal. If the party must take place later, limit refreshments to the kind of light snack children normally have in the afternoon.

As for "what to do?" remember that pre-schoolers are not ready for organized party games. Give them an opportunity and simple equipment for spontaneous play. They will be happiest if they can play in the same way they do every other day.

If you must plant a permanent lawn now, be sure to include ryegrass in the mixture, say Purdue University turf specialists. Ryegrass provides cover for the slower germinating bluegrass seed.

When buying a bureau, look for interchangeable drawers, partitioned drawers and rounded bottom edges for easy dusting, advise Purdue University furnishing specialists.

Your kitchen working counters should be at a height so you can work at them with a straight back, say Purdue University home management department.

alty, courage, fairness, honesty, truthfulness? Does your child hear you talk about fudging on your expense account, beating the tax system, cheating the department store out of an undercharge, fixing a traffic ticket, lying to a train conductor about the youngster's age? You do have to practice what you preach.

Note on Communism:

"No assignment is more important to Communists than the destruction of the Christian and other religions. In genuinely dedicated religious people, they recognize competition which perverted Red ideology cannot meet and cannot conquer. * * * Godlessness and Godliness cannot mix and the Church must forever stand as a bulwark against Communism—the religion of Satan. Any compromise is surrender."—Life Lines, June 3, 1961.

COUNTERPOINT

By The Editor's Wife

What makes a good grandmother? The answers will be many, naturally. Dr. Popenoe has a rating scale in the following list of items:

1. You try to help the younger generation, not by comment and criticism, but by setting a good example.
 2. You avoid showing any partiality among grandchildren.
 3. You are willing to take the children over the week end, even at some cost to your plans, in order to give the young parents a chance to be together alone.
 4. You recognize that times and methods change, and except, without comment, any policies of treatment that the parents are using.
 5. You bring the children, not too often, such gifts as toys, and books, rather than candy.
 6. You avoid reiterating and trying to reinforce any instructions the parents give in your presence.
 7. You avoid comparing a child with any others—in or out of the family.
 8. You help the youngsters to learn the family history and get a picture of themselves as links in a long chain.
 9. You avoid discussing the child in his presence.
 10. You are always ready to answer children's questions, explain things fully, and praise them for good behavior, rather than condemning misbehavior.
- Speaking as a grandmother, I am aware that some things which seemed vitally important when our children were at home seem less vital now. I seem to be too much concerned with the physical well-being and safety of our grandchildren, Tim and Lisa. One can lose proper perspective and cause tension in self, child, and neighborhood, which is not good.

Note on communism:

In some schools there is now being introduced courses on communism in all grades. So far, so good; the children ought to know. But there is agitated argument as to whether communism should be taught objectively (the "good" and the bad presented equally and the children allowed to make up their own minds on the subject, from the age of six on up); or whether it should be taught as, for instance, traffic safety is taught; that is, learn to steer clear of

Mrs. Nellie Julian was admitted to the Woodlawn hospital Tuesday for surgery on Wednesday.

G.F.W. President On Garroway Program

Mrs. E. Lee Ozbern, national president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs will be a guest on the Dave Garroway program on Friday morning, July 14. Club members are urged to watch and listen.

The editor and his wife and grandchildren are enjoying a vacation at Burt Lake, Michigan.

danger. This is an area in which parents have the clear right and duty to inform themselves and to make their convictions known to their school authorities.

Communism is a conspiracy against all that Americans hold dear. No guidance courses set up should treat it as anything but a terrible menace to be fought with all our merged strength and resolution. In this, time is a factor—and time is running out!

From Life Lines, May 15, 1961.

Note for parents, no. 7:

Helping a child learn right from wrong is the parents' job. From infancy he wants and needs you to protect, control and guide him. He expects you to make and interpret the rules. If you fail to set the limits he feels insecure. Kiplinger Changing Time Magazine.

Wheat Farmers Need

chel". Has a colloquial sound, doesn't it?

Switchel is the tangy satisfying drink which farmers of by-gone days kept cooling in an earthenware jug, to quench their thirst during harvest.

Hayden Pearson says his mother made switchel by combining a gallon of cold spring water, two and one half cups of sugar, one cup of oldtime molasses, one half cup vinegar, and two thirds teaspoons of ginger. (Webster says that rum is sometimes used.)

Does switchel strike a familiar chord with any of you older folks?

We enjoyed this:

"There, there, little man," said the kindly woman to the boy beside her in the surf, "you mustn't be afraid—why don't you just splash right in and swim?"

"I would," was the timid reply, "but you're standing on my flippers."

Summer Egg Handling

Summertime is danger time for egg quality. Because of the rush of other summertime chores, farmers often neglect careful egg handling practices.

Purdue University poultry scientist D. D. Jackson points out some conditions particular to summer which affect egg quality and suggests ways of maintaining grade A eggs.

Time, temperature and humidity remain the most important factors affecting summer egg quality. Jackson recommends that eggs be gathered more frequently during summer—at least four to five times daily. Cool them quickly in humid air. An egg room with 50-60 degree temperatures and 70-80 per cent humidity is about the optimum.

Broken egg material in nests causes trouble for poultrymen.
Broken eggs lower returns and present a problem for keeping other eggs clean. Keep nesting material clean and dry and provide enough nests, he advises.
Keep layers confined.

Summer range freedom for hens results in unnecessary egg soiling. Birds, if allowed outside when heavy dew is on the grass or after showers, track mud into the nests. Also, scavenger feeding causes lack of yolk color uniformity.

Egg shells of yearling hens are much thinner than pullet breakage and faster moisture evaporation.

Jackson advises poultrymen to clean only soiled eggs. Improper cleaning often results in more harm than good. Indiana poultrymen may obtain without charge a copy of mimeo P-75,
"Cleaning Egg Shells," from their county agent's office or by writing the Agricultural Publications Office, AEC Building, Purdue University, Lafayette.

THANK YOU

I am indebted to so many people in so many ways I hardly know where to begin.

I am very thankful that Doctor Urschel was in position to respond quickly when called, that the fire department was able to come so quickly.

In this conviction I feel that many of us do not fully appreciate the work of the men of the fire department. They are ready and willing to respond at all times to our needs, whether it be fire or sickness, they do this willingly without thought of remuneration.

Those who sent cards, letters and prayers in my behalf, I appreciated so much. I am especially thankful to the young people who sent me words of encouragement. It gives us older people quite a lift to be acknowledged by the young folks.

Insects Cause Rust Spots

Those tiny rust spots on the top of your car probably come from parking it under a tree infested with honeydew producing insects, according to Glen Lehker, Purdue University extension entomologist.

Honeydew is a sweet, syrup-like material produced by several species of aphids, leafhoppers and scale insects. A black fungus may also grow on honeydew, giving foliage a black sooty color. Honeydew also attracts ants, flies and other insects.

Lehker explains that the material dissolves certain types of automobile finishes unless removed with soap and water. However, honeydew is readily soluble and easy to wash from the surfaces.

Aphids and leafhoppers usually are found on the undersides of tree leaves; scale insects are more likely found on the wood. If honeydew is present a close examination of the leaves and branches will reveal the insects.

Some infestations, especially aphids, may disappear of their own accord as a result of a build up of ladybird beetles and other natural enemies. If control is desired, malathion will control most of the honeydew producing insects. The usual spray concentration is one-half pint of 57 per cent emulsifiable concentrate in each 25 gallons of water.

Ice Milk For Less Calories

For those Hoosiers who go for America's favorite dessert, but who are calorie conscious, comes good news—it's called ice milk.

Beginning July 1, state regulations will accord with federal standards of identity to allow the distribution of ice milk. This dish, new to Indiana, has a fat content of from two to seven per cent, as compared with the required ten per cent or more fat content of ice cream. Ice milk will also be welcomed by many for its lower price.

What does ice milk taste and look like? Prof. Dean R. Frazeur of the Purdue University dairy department describes it. "Its consistency is much like that of ice cream," he states, "but is a little cooler in the mouth, a bit courser and perhaps slightly more translucent."

Also as of July 1, state regulations will provide that frozen custard be made with egg yolks. This differentiates frozen custard from another dessert, soft-serve ice cream. Ice cream is the most popular, but Frazeur anticipates that ice milk will be in great demand by Hoosiers.

Ice milk will be packed and marketed like ice cream, he reports, and will probably be limited to the most popular flavors at first. These are vanilla, chocolate and strawberry in that order. Most people prefer single flavors to combinations, but the most popular combination is vanilla, strawberry and chocolate.

Start Home Grounds Project

An early start on major grading and construction projects on your home grounds is important since they should be completed by late summer, say Purdue University landscape architects. Then you can plant your lawn and shrubs at the proper time this autumn.

Careful planning should precede starting of any landscaping projects. Construction and plantings should be designed together so they will form useful and attractive areas for outdoor living.

Patios are a key part of most garden developments. Usually they are most advantageously situated next to the house near inside living areas. The landscape architects advise home owners to make sure there is good coordination between the patio and inside living areas such as the living room, family room or game room.

The family outdoor living area is often fenced. To provide maximum privacy this fence should be built at least seven feet tall.

Terraces, steps, walks and paths should be built to serve their intended use and also contribute to the total design of the area.

30 Years On The Farm

Purdue University agricultural economists, reviewing financial records of Indiana farmers who have kept accounts with the agricultural economics department, report startling changes over the past 30 years.

For instance, the size of farms has increased about 70 per cent (from 193 to 334 acres). Tillable land in corn has risen about 30 per cent to more than 50 per cent and corn yields have nearly doubled. Corn production per farm quadrupled from 1930 to 1960.

Livestock production also has changed. Dairy cattle numbers dropped about a third; there also are fewer sheep. Conversely, beef cow numbers have risen sharply and cattle feeding and swine production have about tripled.

As the number of dairy cattle declined, production per cow about doubled in the 30 year span. Laying flocks, from the standpoint of production, did even better as output per hen tripled.

Capital requirements have increased four times from 1930 to 1960. Average capital investment on commercial farms in 1930 was $24,144 compared to $123,934 in 1960. Output per acre averaged about four times as much then as it does now.

In 1930 most farms carried four or five kinds of livestock. By 1960 few farms reported more than two kinds of livestock. Specialization has been marked.

Most of the change took place during the last decade. The pace was moderate in the 1930's, slightly accelerated during the 1940's. Then, during the decade of the 50's changes came about two to four times more rapidly as in the 1940's.

Farm size increased about 90 acres; corn acres doubled; corn yields increased 50 per cent and corn production per farm tripled from 1930 to 1960. Cattle feeding increased three times and hog production nearly doubled. Average output per man more than doubled. Capital investment rose at an annual rate of about $8,000.

Improve Log Cutting

The value of a stand of timber, and how much money an owner can get for it, depend a lot on how it is cut, according to E. J. Lott, Purdue University extension forester.

Planning before cutting can raise returns considerably, Lott says. A study by the Central States Forest Experiment station reveals how much is lost in ordinary logging operations.

Logs from more than 200 black oak trees were measured and graded for quality as they were cut by woods workers. The results were compared with the volume and grade of material that could have been cut from the same trees.

The extension forester notes that 34 per cent of the volume of the sample trees could have been cut into high-quality logs, compared to 23 per cent so cut by the local woods workers. Board foot volume could have been increased four and one-half per cent by improved log cutting.

The unplanned cutting gave a volume of 53,768 feet compared to 26,242 feet that could have been obtained. The black oak was harvested yielded lumber worth about $4,100. The same trees cut for maximum volume could have been worth $4,600, an increase of $50.

The volume of lumber is increased, Lott says, when cuts are made for maximum volume and the log lengths varied to give maximum clear lengths in certain logs and to throw knots, holes and bad clusters into poorer logs.

Thus, careful planning before cutting can increase yields for the farm woods owner who is cutting logs for farm lumber or for sale.

Purdue University animal scientists point out that a sanitary wallow will accommodate 50 pigs per 100 square feet. An improperly managed wallow can become a disease and parasite hazard.

Apply wax in thin coats on linoleum and let each coat dry thoroughly before applying another, Purdue University home management specialists advise. This helps avoid slippery floors.

A series of high velocity fans in broiler and laying houses can help decidedly in extremely hot weather by creating a continuous movement of air through the length of the house. Purdue University poultry department says that fans should be set so they will blow in the same direction. They should be spaced about 20 to 25 feet apart and about three feet above the floor so as to blow just above the declined, production per cow about doubled in the 30 year span. Laying flocks, from the standpoint of production, did even better as output per hen tripled.

Capital requirements have increased four times from 1930 to 1960. Average capital investment on cooperator's farms in 1930 was $24.14 compared to $123.933 in 1960. Output per man averaged about four times more than a generation ago.

In 1930 most farms carried four or five kinds of livestock. By 1960 few farms reported more than two kinds of livestock. Specialization has been marked.

Most of the changes took place during the last decade—the pace was moderate in the 1930's, slightly accelerated during the 1940's. Then, during the decade of the 50's changes came about two to four times more rapidly as in the 1940's.

Farm size increased about 90 acres; corn acreage doubled, corn yields increased 50 per cent and corn production per farm tripled from 1950 to 1960. Cattle feeding increased three times and hog production nearly doubled. Average output per man more than doubled. Capital investment rose at an annual rate of about $6,000.

Local News

Sunday guests at the Mahlon Mentzer home were Mr. and Mrs. James Mentzer of Park Ridge, Illinois, Mr. and Mrs. John Shipley of Warren, Indiana, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cole and daughter of Elkhart and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cole of Plymouth.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Menzie and family of Warsaw, Mr. and Mrs. Merl Linn and Mrs. Gerald Romine and children were Sunday evening supper guests of Mrs. Bessie Robbins.

Miss Nena Wallis, who will be the editor of the Mentonite the coming year, is attending The Journalism Institute which is being held at Indiana University for the next two weeks.

Mrs. E. D. Anderson moved into her home last week on North Tucker Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Horn and family are vacationing in West Virginia with Donald's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Craddock.

Mrs. Ruby Hall spent Sunday afternoon with her brother and wife, Mrs. and Mrs. Wayne Heisler at Rochester.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Rush of Fort Wayne spent the holiday in Mentone with relatives.

Marketing Guide

The pick-up in general business seems likely to gain momentum in the coming months, according to Purdue University agricultural economists. Before the year is over most businesses will be operating near or above pre-recession levels.

Persons employed will probably reach a new high later in the year. However, unemployment as a per cent of the total labor force may continue for some time near current levels.

Farmers should plan to store wheat only if harvest time price is 15 cents or more below the loan rate and storage space is available which protects against moisture, insects and rodent damage.

Watch the July crop report, the economists warn, since both soybean and corn prices may respond to new crop estimates. Corn production estimate of 3.8 billion bushels or less might lend strength to corn prices, while an estimate of over 28 million acres of soybeans would probably result in further soybean price weakness.

Economists advise that it usually pays to store oats. If harvest time price goes below 55 cents, storage will probably pay this year.

Hog prices appear to be near peak levels and farmers should keep hogs topped out for the next two months.

Some reduction in market supplies of fed cattle is in prospect for July and August. This should result in some price improvement. Economists say there is also a strong possibility of larger marketings of non-grain fed cattle, with lower prices prevailing for these grades. Price spreads among grades are expected to widen.

Dairymen can expect modestly higher prices over last year, month by month, until at least April, 1962. April and May prices to Indiana farmers averaged about 20 cents higher than in 1960.

Broiler prices are expected to improve during July and August. However, prices will remain below the 17 cents at that time last year. Prices in September and October could decline substantially.

Prices for turkeys in August-September are likely to be about 19-20 cents, compared with the 24 cent levels of last year. Turkey supplies for the holiday season will be about 25 per cent greater than last year. Some slight price increase may occur as the marketing season progresses. No major price increase is expected from November to December.

Economists say Indiana farm land prices are expected to be about stable in the next few months. They declined approximately two per cent between November, 1960 and March, 1961.

Raspberries Need Care

If you have a home raspberry patch, you can grow excellent fruit by observing a few simple care rules, according to Jerome Hull, Jr., Purdue University extension pomologist.

Here they are:

Be certain not to let your purple or black raspberries grow too tall. Black raspberries should be trimmed at a height of two feet and purple raspberries at a height of two and one half feet. This diverts the growth into side branches and increases fruit yield. Also it prevents the canes from being unmanageable.

Canes will reach this height at different times of the year. Therefore, it is necessary to go over the plants several times and cut the tall shoots.

However, don't trim red raspberries.

Retain the hedge or hills of plants by removing suckers. These should be limited to a width of 12 to 15 inches. After harvest, cultivate once or twice to control weeds.

Cover crops may be sown between rows at the last cultivation. Or, instead of cultivating, you may add a two inch mulch of ground corn cobs or peat moss or a four inch mulch of straw.

For more information on raspberry care, ask your county agent for Purdue Mimeo HO 57-2, "Raspberry and Blackberry Culture in Indiana." It's free to Indiana residents.

"Warts" On Maple Leaves

Wart-like growths now appearing on leaves of soft maple trees are maple bladder galls, says Glen Lehker, Purdue University extension entomologist. However, they cause little or no damage.

Depending on the season and stage of growth, the galls are red, green or purple.

Homeowners can do nothing now to rid their trees of the galls. A delayed dormant spray next spring will prevent their recurrence another year.

Tiny mites which spend the winter beneath the loose bark and bud scales cause the maple bladder galls. As soon as growth starts in the spring the mites migrate to the developing leaves on which the galls are formed. Principally they attack young trees. Actually, the galls or "warts" are leaf tissue produced by the plant itself.

Just how the mites are able to stimulate the plants to form the galls is not entirely known. The galls serve as protection for the mites, one of which lives inside each gall.

Lehker says other mites and also many insects produce plant galls. Each gall is different, but always characteristic of the insect or mite which causes it.

Purdue University Mimeo E-56, "Galls on Shade Trees and Shrubs," contains illustrations of these galls and also tells how to use a delayed dormant spray in early spring to stop maple bladder gall. Indiana residents may obtain a copy without cost from county extension offices.

Weather -- Haymaking

Farmers should study weather forecasts when planning to make hay, says Purdue University agricultural climatologist James E. Newman.

Hoosier farmers lose a lot of early cut hay because of frequent rains, Newman adds. Normally, one or two "cold fronts" and accompanying "squall lines" pass over Indiana every week during late May and early June.

The Purdue climatologist advises that the best time to make hay is just after the passing of a major cold front.

Farmers can determine the passing of a cold front by these common weather changes:

A wind shift from a southwesterly to a northwesterly direction; the presence of fair weather cumulus clouds, generally moving in an easterly direction; a rapid rise in pressure and drops in temperature and humidity.

Newman says that squall lines normally precede cold fronts. Squall lines are unpredictable as to the number of storms that might form in them or how far ahead of the approaching cold front they might occur.

However, the wind shifts and pressure changes only hold for an hour or so, he asserts. After the passing of a main front, these shifts last for a day or more.

Purdue University agronomists advise taking soil samples from fields after wheat and oat harvest and sending them to the Purdue University Soil Testing laboratory, Lafayette, to determine 1962 lime and fertilizer needs. Get information on sampling, soil boxes and shipping cartons from county agricultural agents.

Back rubbers located in the shade are greatly appreciated by cattle on pasture or dry lot, say Purdue University animal scientists.

Purchase the high quality feed needed for dairy cattle at harvest time if possible, advise Purdue University dairy scientists. During harvest time, basic agricultural feedstuffs are more economical because of reduced handling and storage cost.

Abortions in cattle are most often infectious. Veterinary scientists at Purdue University say herdsmen should immediately present aborted calves to a veterinarian so that the cause of death can be determined.

COUNTERPOINT

By The Editor's Wife

Can you answer this riddle? "Why is cod liver oil like automobile safety belts?" The answer — "Everyone agrees that they are good for you, but few use them."

To induce people to use safety belts after installing them, one car manufacturer is placing an electric reminder on the instrument panel. A red light flashes until the seat belts have been fastened.

Are you a hash fancier? Do you prefer calico or red flannel? One authority says that chopped potatoes, cabbage, turnips, carrots, beets and onions go into the making of calico hash. Red flannel hash consists of chopped beets, cooked potatoes, raw onions and bacon pieces, "fried in an old iron spider."

Beef hash is our favorite. This uses left-over roast beef, cold boiled potatoes, beef gravy, onion and a bit of green pepper. All chopped in small pieces. Fry until crisp on the bottom, but moist on top (and I use an electric skillet sometimes, not a "spider.")

If your feet are giving you trouble you may be wearing hosiery which is too small. Buy socks or hose one-half inch longer than your longest toe for foot comfort.

Note for parents (Kiplinger Changing Times) 2:

Be realistic in what you expect of your child. Keep your expectations high, but base them on your understanding of his ability, interest, and personality.

What one person sees as virtue in you may be called a fault by another. If you are generous, you may be extravagant; if you are thrifty, you may seem selfish; your concern for others may be called possessiveness; a sense of responsibility may label you too serious or bossy; if you are casual about your home duties you may be a careless housekeeper, etc., etc.

We acknowledge with gratitude a letter and enclosure from a reader. The article is from Newsweek and is entitled, "We Take Our Text From Nikita Khrushchev." It begins:

FARM SAFETY WEEK JULY 23 - 29

By proclamation of President Kennedy and Governor Welsh, July 23-29 has been designated 18th annual National Farm Safety Week. The event, co-sponsored by the National Safety Council, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Indiana Farm Safety Council and farm safety specialists at Purdue University, will have as its theme, "Safety Is a Family Affair."

Purpose of the special observance, as described by Purdue farm safety specialists, is to emphasize accident prevention among farm families. "Safety is largely a matter of education," they say. "And Farm Safety Week is a golden opportunity to stress a few important lessons—lessons which can be put to practice the year 'round. Safety is an every day job, we must remember and not something we can think about for a week—then forget."

Selected for farm safety emphasis this year are two critical areas: rural highway and farm machinery safety.

Vehicle accidents claimed the lives of 5,300 farm residents in 1959—including 4,700 nonwork deaths.

Recent studies show that more than one out of 10 fatal accidents to rural residents involves farm machinery other than tractors and motor vehicles.

Many farm organizations are preparing special programs in observance of the week. First day of the week-long event, Sunday, July 23, emphasizes "Reverence for Life."

Be sure to use proper signals and warning devices when driving tractors and other farm equipment on roads, advise Purdue University farm safety specialists.

A TOUR TO SOUTHERN INDIANA

The Chicago Motor Club's touring department suggests a tour to Brown County State Park in south central Indiana, an ideal Midwest park perfectly suited for a week end outing or a longer vacation.

Early pioneer atmosphere situated in a rolling, rugged countryside gives the park a peaceful and timeless quality that does much to attract visitors. It is considered one of the most beautiful spots in the Midwest, and has facilities for meals and accommodations from April to October.

Largest of Indiana's parks with 15,343 acres of wooded hill land, it is famed as a gathering place for artists. Over the years they have been attracted by the picturesque rail fences, narrow winding roads, simple log cabins, and other reminders of an almost unspoiled past.

It is perhaps the natural, unspoiled character of the region that contributes most to its popularity. Park administrators wisely have not encroached on this quality, but have cultivated it for the pleasure of tourists.

A trip through the hills is recommended for anyone who wants to really see the charm and beauty of the region. Twenty-seven miles of smooth paved drives wind through the area. The outstanding vistas that appear around every bend make it advisable that you bring your camera. Hilltop lookouts also afford fine views.

A naturalist is stationed at the park conducting hikes for the study of bird and plant life. Trail maps are available, and the motorist, hiker, and horseback rider will find the roads, trails, and bridle paths well marked.

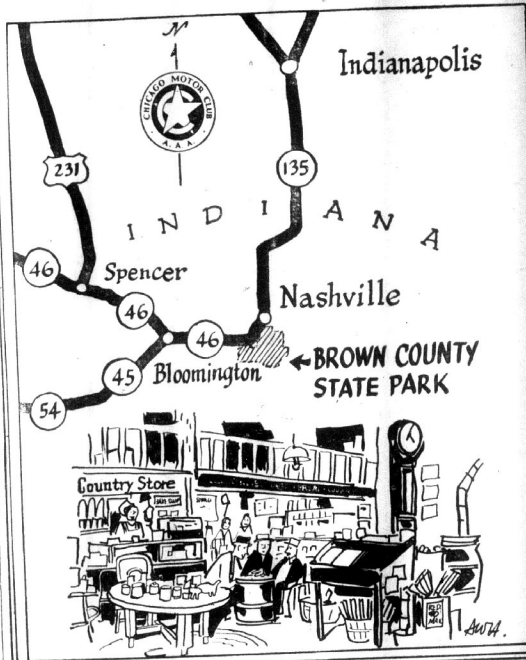

One of the main attractions in the park is the wildlife exhibit which usually holds great interest for the entire family. Within the exhibit are housed pheasant, quail, owls, and other birds; raccoon, fox, opossum are among the animals. Nearby are deer, buffalo, and elk.

Abe Martin Lodge in the park is named for the legendary character created by artist Kin Hubbard. The cabins surrounding the lodge are named "Tawney Apple," "Grandma Pash," "Tilford Moots," "Pinky Kerr," "Gabe Crose," "Squire Marsh Swallow," all famous Kin Hubbard characters.

Abe Martin Lodge is the only inn in the Indiana park system where the guests are housed outside in cabins and come to the lodge for meals. The dining room is provincial and hung with the works of Brown County artists. The lodge and cabins, the saddle barns and shelter houses all are artfully constructed to blend with the surroundings.

Brown County has two art associations with some 80 active members. Artists began coming to the area about 1900, and by

The Chicago Motor Club's Touring Department suggests a trip to BROWN COUNTY IN SOUTHERN INDIANA

1908, 25 artists were painting the large variety of trees, the ravines, and tiny streams.

One of the most famous of these artists, and the founder of the Brown County Art Colony, was T. C. Steele. His estate is maintained as a state memorial and part of it is open to the public. Located near the tiny village of Belmont, the estate covers 211 acres and includes the home and studios of the artist. Some 300 of his paintings are displayed here.

A modern swimming pool is located near the Abe Martin Lodge, and affords a welcome respite from summer heat. The pool is supervised by trained lifeguards at all times.

Among other activities that are available at the park are picnicking, camping, fishing, archery. Numerous picnic areas are set up, each equipped with tables, approved water supply, and stoves for cooking.

North of the park located in the picturesque Cumberland Hills region, is the interesting and quaint village of Nashville. The population numbers about 500 including 29 artists. There still are many homes and buildings in use which were built in the 1800's. The quaintness of the village and the scenic landscape of the hill country attracted many artists, and it now is recognized as one of the largest art colonies in the United States.

Curtis Creviston has spent the past two weeks at the Everett Welborn's.

'has no right to be a mere on-looker.'

"The free world may deplore the methods used in the U.S.S.R. to insure the participation of its citizens in the plans of the Kremlin. But no one can deny that Khrushchev, after all, has put his finger on one of the strengths of dictatorship—and one of the weaknesses of democracy."

The writer goes on to say that we have a moral obligation to be a participant rather than a spectator. It is not enough to pay taxes or have intentions of doing something. Action is the key word for each one.

"Participation is what counts—participation in the service of whatever cause is closest to your heart, whatever purpose appeals most strongly to your intelligence.

"Work to improve your local school or library or hospital. Collect to help conquer the diseases that now conquer men. Teach English to newcomers, read to the blind, join a church project. Run for public office—or work for someone else who is running. Further a cause you believe in by organizing a group to support it—or at least by taking pen in hand."

We enjoyed this:

A visitor at a golf club paid his green fees and fixed up a match. At the first tee he took a wild swing and completely missed the ball.

"By George," he exclaimed. "It's a good thing I found out right at the start. This course is at least two inches lower than the one I usually play on."

They plan to be married October 1 in the EUB church in Warsaw.

Mentone Voc. - Ag.
Rated First Class

The Vocational Agriculture department of the Harrison Twp. high school in Mentone, has been classified first class. It was announced by Superintendent Glen Whitehead and Trustee H. Earl Boggs. This rating is the highest possible achievement based on the total program offered by vocational agriculture.

H. B. Taylor, state supervisor of agriculture education, recently approved first class ratings for 56 departments in the state. This is an increase of five over last year. There are approximately 350 departments of vocational agriculture in Indiana.

To receive this rating, a department must have a satisfactory farming program for each high school student, have an approved farm shop and an active F.F.A. There must also be an approved evening class program for both adult and young farmers. Reference materials, course of study, classroom facilities and time schedules must meet certain high standards.

The teacher of vocational agriculture is Morris Bitzer, and John Fredericks is principal of the high school.

Attending H. S.
Journalism Institute

Sandra Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Miller, is spending two weeks at Indiana University attending the High School Journalism Institute.

Most of the annual editors of the state high schools attend this institute.

Miss Elener Norris, Mentone, is one of the instructors.

WITH THE SICK

Mrs. A. I. Nelson returned to her home the fore part of the week after a stay in the Murphy Medical Center at Warsaw.

Mrs. Richard Kindig returned to her home Thursday after undergoing surgery in Indianapolis.

Mrs. Kent Riner was taken to the Murphy Medical Center at Warsaw Sunday morning, for observation.

Mrs. Ora Tucker is confined to her home with illness.

Mrs. Rosa Kinsey is slowly improving at the Woodlawn hospital.

Verl Halterman was admitted to the Parkview hospital in Plymouth on Tuesday evening.

COUNTERPOINT

By The Editor's Wife

Have been reading everything available about the John Birch Society (both pro and anti). The attack on this organization by Communist newspapers in Russia and this country helped in our evaluation of this group of men.

The following excerpt from an editorial in the July 22 Fort Wayne News-Sentinel may give you something to think about:

"And what about the John Birch Society? It was founded by Robert H. W. Welch, Jr., a retired candy manufacturer who lives in Belmont, Mass., at a meeting in Indianapolis on Dec. 9, 1958, with a group of patriotic Americans who felt that the United States was steadily sinking into socialism and that the ultimate result would be total submergence of America into a one-world Socialist-Communist society controlled from the Kremlin.

"But these founders of the John Birch Society were confident that the republic could be saved if enough Americans were brought to realize what was happening to them, and what they could do to influence public opinion and governmental policies toward a restoration of the political system and ideals embodied in the Declaration of Independence, the United States Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

"This they have been doing in frank and open manner such as urging Senators not to repeal the Connally Amendment or other safeguards of American independence and freedom, and urging that the House of Representatives consider impeachment charges against Chief Justice Earl Warren because of the ultra-liberal tenor of some of his findings."

Why not develop two hobbies, one active and one intellectual? This suggestion comes from an oldster who was forced to give up gardening because of a heart condition. He then took up the study and collecting of rocks, insects, etc. Here is a wise man.

If you happen to be in the Markle vicinity you may enjoy visiting the Elva Sheets flower gardens near there. A display of over 4,000 ocean specimens is being made ready, also.

Action At The Auction

Going to auctions is part of the fun of summer, but how many things have you bought at one auction which you wish you could put up for sale at another? Buying wisely at auctions requires a combination of two opposite qualities, says Ezelle Johnson, Purdue University furnishing specialist. It requires both imagination and caution.

You need imagination, she explains, to see the possibilities in furniture pieces which could be beautiful if they were refinished or re-upholstered. If you can see beneath the surface, you can recognize good line and sound construction in a piece of furniture that may need some tender, loving care.

On the other hand, Miss Johnson continues, take all the caution you possess along with you to an auction. Go to the auction before selling begins so that you will have time to look carefully over all its offerings. Then, before you make even a first bid on something you find attractive, ask yourself these questions:

How long could I live with this without tiring of it? Is it useful as well as beautiful? Will it fit into the space I have in mind for it? Does it harmonize with the rest of the furnishings in that room? Are its parts suited to one another? Is there enough interest to make it beautiful? If some of the trim were left off, would it still be good looking? And how easy will it be to dust?

A satisfactory purchase can extend the fun of an auction over many years, comments Miss Johnson.

Pink Eye in Cattle

Summer and fall are the seasons for pink eye in cattle, reminds Dr. F. A. Hall, extension veterinarian at Purdue University. Although principally a warm weather condition, it can occur at any time of the year.

A watery discharge from the corners of the affected eyes with inflammation of the eye lids is the first visible sign of pink eye, according to Dr. Hall. Severe attacks may result in cloudiness followed by ulceration of the eye ball. The pain associated with the condition causes the animal to squint and the fever results in a decreased appetite.

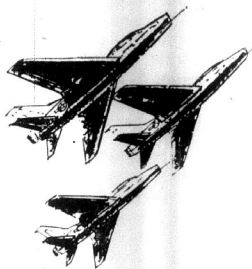

Pink eye is very contagious in cattle, Dr. Hall emphasizes. The germs of the disease can be spread by direct contact with affected animals or indirectly by way of flies, insects and dust. The disease usually appears on a farm after the introduction of feeder cattle or following newly purchased additions to the herd. The disease then spreads rapidly to any susceptible cattle.

Control depends upon the segregation of the newly acquired animals for 10 days or until the danger of infection has passed. If the disease appears in a herd, the affected cattle must be separated and placed in a darkened stable and allowed to graze only at night because light, dust, pollen and insects seem to aggravate the condition.

Chaff, beads of grain or foreign matter in an eye causes symptoms resembling pink eye; therefore, it is necessary to have an accurate diagnosis made to determine the exact condition, followed by proper local treatment under the supervision of a veterinarian.

Women drivers were involved in more than 18% of the personal injury accident in 1960.

Dairy Steers for Beef

A Purdue University dairy scientist says Indiana farmers feeding Holstein steers can expect returns above feed costs of at least $50 a steer at current beef prices. This does not, however, take into account labor costs and fixed charges.

Dr. Truman G. Martin, reporting at Purdue's first Agronomy - Dairy Forage Field Day, disclosed results of an unfinished trial in which eight Holstein steer calves were fed to an average weight of 527 pounds at nearly eight months of age.

He explained that farmers would have to feed the dairy steers milk or milk replacer until they were 40 to 60 days old and estimated this would cost from $12 to $24 per calf, depending on the farmer's system of feeding. This also requires considerable labor.

Steers in the trial averaged a daily gain of 2.35 pounds from 16 to 34 weeks of age. They received five pounds of grain, five pounds of corn silage and nine pounds of hay (free choice, so the nine pounds is average consumption) a day.

Cost of grain totaled $9.19 per hundredweight. Martin said this cost would rise as the steers were finished and he estimated feed costs from 16 weeks to slaughter to be $14 per hundredweight. The steers would be slaughtered when they weigh between 950 and 1,000 pounds.

Referring to a previous study with 140 dual purpose (dairy-beef) calves, Martin reported on carcass evaluation. He concluded:

Dairy and dual purpose steers would produce as high a proportion of lean cuts—chuck, rib, loin and round—as the packers expect from choice beef carcasses.

These animals would gain as rapidly as beef cattle.

The dairy steer carcasses do not grade as high as dual purpose animals or beef carcasses by present U. S. Department of Agriculture grading standards.

Don't stand brooms on their bristles in the closet, advise Purdue University home management specialists. Instead, attach a cup-hook at the end of the handle and hang it so the bristles don't touch the floor.

Make Lawn Mowing Easier

Do something about lawn areas which take extra time to cut and trim if you want to ease your lawn mowing job, advises Don Scheer, Purdue University extension horticulturist.

Don't cut up the central lawn area with shrubs, walls and walks. Power mowing is more difficult with objects in the way and grass around many of them must be clipped by hand.

Use of edging and curbing along fences and walls also reduces hand trimming. Mulch or plant ground covers around trees too. All paving should be flush with the ground so hand clipping isn't necessary.

Grass is not only difficult to establish on steep slopes, but is also hard to maintain and mow. Scheer recommends establishing ground cover on these slopes. Among the most popular ground covers are myrtle, which grows well in shade, and euonymus, which grows equally well in sun or shade.

To cut down yard maintenance time, he suggests eliminating from the lawn areas which are difficult to get at with the power mower. These areas — along the side of the house and between shrub plantings — also may be planted in ground cover.

Farm Facts . . .

When ordinary brushing won't remove spots on suede shoes or bags, try this tip from Purdue University clothing specialists. Rub the spots lightly with an emery board and then steam the material over a boiling kettle.

For a cook-out treat, Purdue University food specialists suggest broiled vegetables. Slice such vegetables as potatoes, carrots and string beans in small pieces and wrap in small packets of aluminum foil.

You can mix furniture styles to add variety and interest to rooms if the various pieces are all of good design, say Purdue University furnishing specialists.

MARRIED RECENTLY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Paul Mason (Maxine Lonergan) are at home in Etna Green, Indiana, after their recent wedding in the First Presbyterian Church in White Bear Lake. The Reverend Lyndon Schendel officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Lonergan, 602 Bald Eagle Ave., White Bear Lake, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ralph Mason and the late Mr. Mason of Etna Green, Indiana.

Roena Mason of Albuquerque, New Mexico, sister of the bridegroom, was the maid of honor and Thomas Huffman of Etna Green, Indiana, was the best man.

Others attendants were Margorie Sweezo, the bride's roommate at Macalester College; Seth and Lewis Mason, brothers of the bridegroom, and Susan and Robert Lonergan, sister and brother of the bride.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Miss Diane Kolanader, organist, and Mr. Edwin G. Amundson, soloist.

A reception was held in the church parlors immediately following the ceremony.

Mrs. Mason was honored at a pre-nuptial shower given by Mesdames Elgin Miller, Juel Peterson and Byron Trusler. She was also surprised by several of her former high school classmates at a miscellaneous shower given in her honor by Naomi and Judy Lineer and Lorna Johnson.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Mason plan to attend Indiana University at Bloomington, Indiana, this fall.

Mrs. Charles Mason will be remembered as Mr. and Mrs. Max Dunlap's granddaughter.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Romine, Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Romine and boys and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Smith enjoyed a picnic at Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Romine's.

We enjoyed this:

Three men were sitting on a park bench. The man in the middle was sitting quietly, as though asleep. The other two men were going through the motions of fishing. With deadly seriousness they would cast, jerk the lines gently and then swiftly wind their imaginary reels. This went on for some time, until a policeman sauntered over, shook the man in the middle and demanded:

"Are those two fools friends of yours?"

"Yes, officer," replied the man.

"Well, get them out of here, then."

"Right away, officer," said the man as he began to row vigorously.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our Dad, Vernon Jones, who passed away July 24, 1949.

They say time heals all sorrows and helps us forget, but time so far has only proved how much we miss him. God give us strength to face it but what it meant to lose him no one will know.

MRS. RHODA JONES
and Her Children.

SINCERE THANKS

I wish to thank all who remembered me with prayers, cards, flowers and visits while I was in the hospital and since returning home. A special word of thanks also to my neighbors for their help at the time I became ill.

MRS. SAMANTHA NORRIS.

The Harold Driskells entertained with an outdoor pot luck supper Tuesday evening. Those attended were the Alton Bruners, Rex Withams, Chet Smiths, Bud Wises and Donald Horns. The children were entertained with games by Harold Driskell and the men tried their luck with a set of golf clubs. The supper started about 6:00 and ended about 9:00. Everyone had a good time and went home full of good food.

Due to illness, Mrs. Agnes Rans returned to her home from Epworth Forest last week.
