BOOK PARADE

The summer vacation Reading Club of the Mentone Library started last week and fifty-three members have signed the membership roll and started reading and reporting on their books. We invite all children who were in grades one to six this past school year to come to the Library and join the Reading Club.

Children who will be in the second grade next year are given slips for their mother to sign after the child reads the book. Children above 2nd grade tell their stories to the Librarian or her Assistants. Children living in the country may tell their stories to their Mother instead of telling them at the Library if they will request a slip for their Mother to sign each time they check out a book.

Children receive one point for reading a book marked for the grade they will be in next year; two points for a book marked one grade higher and three points for a book two grades higher.

The first five points earn a Book Parade card. For each additional 3 points, the child will receive a jolly book face for their Book Parade card. Those will become American Explorers and the children who complete their United States map will become "Book Worms."

Buys Lots

The town board has completed the purchase of a plot of ground for the eventual construction of a new library in Mentone. The lot lies between the Bill Reed and Myrtle Whetstone properties, near the Baptist church and the Wilson Medical Building.

About fifty people showed up at a special called meeting on Monday night. The town board had called the meeting to gain local preference for the library location, but as they had already arrived at a conclusion, the meeting was of little effect.

During the heavy rain Saturday evening, lightning came in the Bert Holloway home, putting out three light bulbs. Mrs. Holloway was putting some of their clothing away in a clothes closet when the bolt struck, and she later felt the effects in her right arm. Club Members To Purdue

The Home Demonstration Club members in Kosciusko Co. are planning to attend Home-makers Conference at Purdue on June 10.

Indiana Motor buses will leave from the west side of the Court House in Warsaw at 6:30 and return at 7:00 p. m.

Name tags in the shape of a large egg will be furnished to any member who plans to attend any of the three day sessions. These are a gift from the Kosciusko County Poultry Association. Those not going by bus should pick their tags up at the County Extension Office.

The busses will stop at Pete's Restaurant in Mentone to accommodate those in that area. Tickets are available from Mrs. Richard Reece, 319 North Washington Street, Warsaw.

The Homemakers Conference is open to any homemaker in the state, even though not a member of a home demonstration club.

Purdue University dairy scientists advise dairymen to maintain a good water supply for their herd since water makes up 87 percent of the daily milk flow.

Control of Horn Flies

Horn flies are primarily pests of cattle and spend most of their lives on them. They feed by piercing the skin and sucking blood.

Ken McDonald, Purdue University animal scientist, says fighting the flies drains an animal's energy and interferes with feeding and resting. A beef steer may lose as much as half a pound a day during the fly season.

"From now until fall we can expect horn flies to be present," MacDonald says. Usually they attack the backs of cattle, out of reach of the tail and swing of the head. When the air is cool they often rest on the base of the horns; hence, the name horn flies.

Spraying cattle with an insecticide is the best means of control. For a large number of animals power sprayers that operate at 100 to 200 pounds of pressure per square inch are generally most suitable.

A few head of cattle may be sprayed with hand operated, air pressure sprayers of the knapsack or cylindrical type.

To control horn flies, spray the animal's shoulders, back and flanks until they are wet with a Methoxychlor solution. This solution is made by mixing 8 pounds of 50 percent wettable Methoxychlor powder or by using 2 gallons of 25 percent emulsified Methoxychlor concentrate in each 100 gallons of water. For making small amounts use 0.4 pounds of the 50 percent powder or four-fifths pint of the 25 percent concentrate in each 5 gallons of water.

Cattle can free themselves of horn flies if you provide an insecticide treated rubbing unit, MacDonald adds. Locate the unit near a salt lick or a water trough or near some other place where cattle loaf or rest. Five percent Methoxychlor in oil is the proper concentration of insecticide to use with a rubbing unit. This concentration is made by mixing one part of 25 percent emulsifiable concentrate with four parts of fuel oil.

Remember a back rubber will not work if it is not kept saturated with the insecticide solution. The home made burlap bag type of back rubber should be treated with one gallon of the oil solution every three or four weeks.

Hogs to Reach Peak Price Soon

Look for hog prices to reach their seasonal peak during the next six weeks, says Purdue University agricultural economist.

Though lower prices are expected during the later summer and fall, liquidation of hogs doesn't appear likely because the corn-hog ratios may remain near the long-time average for the rest of 1959.

The economists advise farmers to top out fed cattle as they become finished for their grade. More weakness than strength in the market for top grades is the prospect for the next month or so.

Less favorable feed conditions in the Western Range states this year may slow down herd expansion. Unless feed prospects improve, farmers can expect some drop in feeder prices this fall.

Store wheat only if you have first-class storage facilities and if the harvest price is more than 20 cents below the local support level, the economists warn.

Broiler prices will improve during the next two months and by July should be equal or better last year's 18-19 cent levels.

Egg production for the remainder of 1959 will continue above 1958 levels.

Dairy farmers should consider culling their herds earlier and more closely this summer. The reasons are a predicted decline in cull prices next fall and the prospect of only average seasonal milk prices.

Facts On A Planning Survey

Some time ago a representative of a community planning survey firm spoke to a number of Mentone citizens. In order to further acquaint our readers with a planning survey, we will quote from one of their book-lets:

Planning, as a function of democratic government, establishes a carefully developed blueprint to guide the growth of the city. It is a calculated and intelligent approach to the elimination and prevention of urban problems.

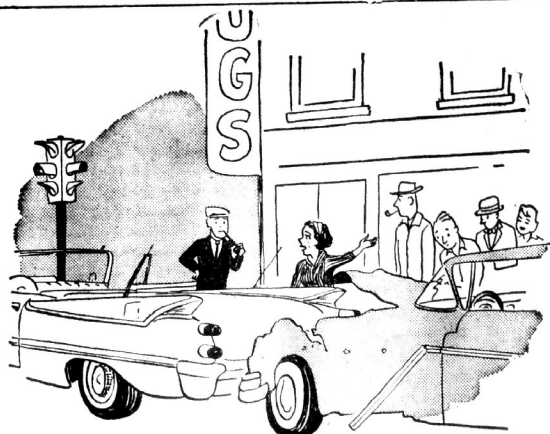

Forty years ago, in 1919, we had the street car, the horse and buggy, and the rural school. Cities were compact with small central business districts and we were not mobile. The automobile was experimental, air travel was not more than a dream . . . and we had 1919 law to govern 1919 cities and township areas and rural school districts.

Twenty years ago, in 1939, we had the beginnings of the auto and air age, FHA and long term loans, and large scale building. We built new highways and the city became less compact as the move to the suburbs began. The fringe problem began but . . . we still had 1919 laws to govern cities and township areas and rural school districts.

Today, in 1959, we have 1959 automobiles, 1959 planes, jet propulsion, our population is mobile and the city is no longer compact. Older neighborhoods decline as people move to far-flung scattered developments which then need costly services from the central city. Parking problems increase and downtown business declines. This is 1959 and 1919 laws and thinking cannot meet 1959 needs. If in 1959 we make a beginning . . . with a plan to guide homes and business and industry to right locations and recognize that a city can grow flexibly . . . we can start now to meet 1959 needs. New challenges will be met with newer laws and better tools. Changes will be made . . . Changes must be made.

Iris plantings should be sprayed or dusted with DDT to prevent an invasion of iris borers, according to Purdue University entomologists. The first treatment should be applied before the leaves are six inches tall and repeated every ten days.

Crop Costs, Returns Study

Hoesier farmers can increase profits from their cropping system by modernizing their rotation, using recommended amounts of fertilizer and improving cultural practices.

Purdue University agricultural economists Paul R. Robbins and M. E. Juillerat and agronomist A. J. Ohlrogge drew these conclusions from a study of Indiana crop costs and returns.

The Purdue staff members collected data from 313 better-than-average northern Indiana farms representing different soil types. They found the following cropping trends:

These better-than-average farmers are planting more corn; they are applying more commercial nitrogen; meadow intercrops are tending to replace standover meadows; oats are making up a smaller percentage of the rotation; wheat is being substituted for oats whenever possible, and corn is being substituted for some soybeans.

The research disclosed that land charge for taxes and interest was the largest single cost of raising crops. Fertilizer was the second most costly item.

Variation in crop yields necessary to break even depended on owner-operator arrangements, soil differences and cultural practices; however, the break even points for most operators cooperating in the study were—corn after legume sod 40-50 bushels per acre, corn not after legume sod 45-55 bushels, wheat 22-26 bushels, oats 60-68 bushels and alfalfa mixtures 3-3½ tons.

The study showed that corn was the most profitable of the major field crops on all soils studied. Meadow, feed value only considered, brought the lowest returns. Farmers recognize, however, that meadow makes a fertility contribution in addition to feed produced.

Anhydrous Ammonia Equipment Safety

C. L. Hill, Purdue University agricultural engineer, suggests these safety precautions to Hoesier farmers who plan to side-dress their corn with anhydrous ammonia this year:

Check thoroughly the metering device, automatic gauge and valve packing on the high pressure equipment. If replacement parts are needed, contact a representative of the equipment dealer or manufacturer. Only fittings, valves and gauges manufactured for ammonia are recommended.

Replace with fittings made of heavy steel, not of brass or bronze which might develop internal cracks invisible to the eye. Strain on damaged fittings could seriously injure the operator by allowing the release of liquid ammonia. For the same reason, don't use propane tanks for ammonia without replacing the fittings.

Other good rules to follow are always keep the liquid in the applicator tank and never leave the valves open during the off-season.

Indiana Extension Service Aids In Many Fields

Through its cooperative extension service in agriculture and home economics, Purdue University extends its teaching into all of Indiana's 92 counties, according to L. E. Hoffman, director of extension at Purdue.

Extension served 294,555 Indiana farm, non-farm rural and urban families last year.

Scientific developments are valuable only when people know about them and practice them, Hoffman says. Extension service disseminates practical and useful information to Indiana citizens and assists in its application. Research findings at the Purdue agricultural experiment station are included.

This type of teaching, Hoffman stresses, is informal, off-campus and out-of-school. It reaches all age levels and represents Purdue University and the United States Department of Agriculture in providing educational service on the county level.

Teaching methods include personal contacts, farm and home visits, meetings, demonstrations, tours and use of mass communications media.

Essential purpose of extension work is to promote learning among people which results in economic and social changes toward improved living, Hoffman adds. Extension's program is based on needs as expressed by the people themselves with the assistance of the professional staff. It is not limited to farm and rural people although the historic emphasis has been with this group.

Extension agents, subject matter specialists and administrators concentrate their efforts in nine major areas. These are efficiency in agricultural production; efficiency in marketing, distribution and utilization; conservation, development and use of natural resources; farm and home management; family living; youth development; leadership development; community improvement and resource development and public affairs.

More than 1,000 county committees and other advisory groups assist in planning and carrying out the extension program. Volunteer local leaders number 66,882, of which 10,350 adults serve as 4-H club advisors and 10,266 are 4-H junior leaders. Four-H clubwork, the youth phase of the extension program, has an enrollment of 87,569 boys and girls.

Through clubwork, Indiana boys and girls between 10 and 20 years of age learn practical skills and develop good work habits and attitudes which complement formal classroom instruction in Indiana schools and assist in the development of good citizenship, Hoffman explains.

The extension director says that more than 50 percent of the state staff and more than 20 percent of the county agents have advanced college degrees. Extension personnel are both faculty members of Purdue and employees of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Federal Extension Service. Funds to finance extension work are supplied cooperatively by federal, state and county governments.

Purdue University poultry scientists say now is the time to prepare to cool the broiler house with a fogger in front of a fan. Fogging nozzles that will spray a fine mist of water in front of a fan can be purchased. The evaporation has a helpful cooling effect during hot weather.

Watch out for maggots in sheep during the early part of the summer, advise Purdue University animal scientists. If they appear, shear the wool around the affected area, wash with soap and water and then use a maggot killer.

Purdue University entomologists suggest examining evergreen plantings in the spring for the presence of mites. A precautionary spray of a good miticide such as chlorobenzilate, Kethane, Ovotan or Dimite will prevent damage.

Strawberry plants set this spring should be allowed to set only four runner plants; all others should be cut off. Purdue University horticulturists say spacing the new plants about eight by eight inches will furnish adequate number of plants for the row.

Armyworms May Invade Indiana

Armyworms may be on the march again this spring, Dave Matthew, Purdue University extension entomologist, warns Indiana farmers.

Central and southern Indiana counties already have reported infestations. However, they were confined to individual fields and localized areas.

Matthew advises farmers to examine their field crops for presence of the armyworms.

The young worms are pale green with yellowish stripes along their sides. When nearly mature, they will be greenish brown with stripes down the middle of their back and about an inch and a half long.

They are most easily found in areas of dense, rank vegetation. Infestations first develop along ditch banks, fence rows, barley fields and dense grassy areas. When the developing worms run out of food or grasses are cut, they migrate like an army into fields of corn or other crops.

Armyworms sometimes greatly damage or destroy cereal crops before their presence is noticed. They also feed on and destroy newly emerged corn plants. Like some of the other cutworms, they feed at night, and hide under plant debris and soil during the day.

Weather conditions and parasites and predators normally hold armyworm populations in check; however, Matthew points out that the cool, wet spring has been ideal for armyworm infestations to develop.

When insecticide controls are required, apply dieldrin 15 per cent concentrate at the rate of one sixth gallon per acre, or toxaphene 60 per cent emulsion concentrate at the rate of one-third gallon per acre. These sprays may be applied either by airplanes or ground equipment.

Colorful Pageant At Friendship Gardens

The Rose Festival will be on through June at International Friendship Gardens, although many hybrid varieties will continue blooming until frost comes.

A gay, colorful pageant, resulting from a combination of annuals and perennials, is awaiting daily summer visitors who can find many restful hours in this "Hoosier Beauty Spot."

Roses will be blooming in most of the gardens and along the walks, but the chief places of interest will be the English and Persian gardens, the latter being an all rose garden. Rose trees are special feature of the Swedish Garden now, elsewhere there is a large bed of painted daisies. Oriental poppies and many varieties of iris add to the beauty of the Gardens. Friendship Gardens is a member of the American Rose Society and of the International Rose Society.

To reach the Gardens, visitors may come via the South Shore Railroad to Michigan City where there is a taxi service to the gardens. Motorists go east of Michigan City to the Coaling chute, turn right on Liberty Trail and follow signs to entrance and parking space.

HEAR THE MUSIC FESTIVAL ON RADIO

The Kosciusko County Home Demonstration Club women attended the music festival at Purdue Tuesday and gave a musical number of their own. Sixty-eight other counties also gave individual numbers. They also appeared with the entire group in the evening performance.

Kosciusko county was also one of three counties which presented their numbers in the evening program. This program was recorded and will be on the radio Saturday, June 13 at 10 a. m. 920 on your dial.

Indiana Hog Grading Facts

How are Indiana hogs grading? One of every four measured up to the United States Department of Agriculture No. 1 standard, Purdue University agricultural economists Jim Stevenson and Norton Smith report.

Through the cooperation of four major Indiana packers, Purdue livestock and meat specialists rail-graded 23,225 pork carcasses last January and February.

Of these carcasses, 23.5 per cent graded U. S. No. 1. Carcass weight or length were used with back fat thickness as a guide to grade. To qualify as U. S. No. 1 grade, a 210 pound or heavier hog, 33 inches or longer, must have back fat thickness of from 1.5 to 1.8 inches.

Thirty-five percent of the carcasses graded No. 2 and 40 percent graded No. 3. Underfinished hogs made up less than 4 per cent. The economists say this probably was a result of the favorable hog-corn ratio preceding and during the time of grading.

"In considering this information as an indication of the quality of Indiana hogs," remind the economist, "it must be remembered that the grading was performed only one season of the year."

Land Leveling Drag Plans

Land leveling can help Indiana farmers obtain more complete surface drainage.

Purdue University extension agricultural engineers C. L. Hill and D. R. Sisson explain land leveling and show how to build a leveling drag in Mimeo AE 51, "Plan for Land Leveling Drag."

Land smoothing helps to improve surface drainage by filling small pockets and dead furrows that collect and hold water. The practice is especially valuable on flat or gently sloping, poorly drained soils.

The illustrated mimeo tells the right time to drag, the soil condition best for operation, the proper way to drag and the pulling power requirements.

The Purdue staff members devote part of the mimeo to the construction of a leveler, including the materials needed.

Indiana residents can get a free copy of "Plan for Land Leveling Drag" by writing to the agricultural publications office at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

Condition Auto Before You Leave

More people than ever before will be vacationing by automobile this year, according to Chicago Motor Club estimates. It seems as if everybody has some "get-away-from-it-all" plan on their summer agenda.

However, the motor club points out that many of these car trips will be lengthy and will include drives over all types of terrain. This means cars must be in tip-top mechanical shape to stand up under the vacation grind.

The club advises that it is safer and less expensive to have the family car checked by a qualified mechanic before you leave on your trip. As a rule, repairs cost more on the road than at home.

It's a good idea to have your car serviced by the mechanic who does the job regularly. And in servicing the car don't forget about your tires. Good tires are essential for a safe, pleasurable trip. Quite often tires which appear sound on the outside have hidden cracks or breaks inside the casings.

Good brakes also are a must for proper safety. In addition to having your brakes adjusted, have your wheel alignment and balance checked. And while you are at it, have your master brake and wheel cylinders checked for leakage.

Some other important safety checks are as follows:

Check your car's cooling system; drain anti-freeze solutions—particularly those with an alcohol base.

Check the oil level of the automatic transmission and rear axle. On older cars, check tie rods in the steering mechanism.

Check the condition of your battery, voltage regulator, and generator. For mountain driving, a low-reading thermostat is recommended.

Have your headlights calibrated and make sure all your lights—head, tail, and rear—are in good working condition.

Remember: Trips have a much greater chance to be trouble free if your car is given a thorough bumper-to-bumper inspection before you leave for your vacation.

Independent experts and official facts and figures prove Chevrolet's ahead of its field in seven big ways.

BEST BRAKES . . . In direct competitive tests of repeated stops from highway speeds, conducted by NAS-CAR*, Chevy out-stopped both the other leading low-priced cars—and why not: Chevy brakes are far larger, built with bonded linings for up to 66% longer life. BEST TRADE-IN . . . Check the figures in any N.A.D.A.† Guide Book. You'll find that Chevy used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two." BEST STYLE . . . Popular Science magazine sums it up: "The fact is, in its price class the Chevy establishes a new high in daring styling . . ." It's the only car of the leading low-priced three that's unmistakably modern in every line.

BEST ECONOMY . . . No doubt about this: two Chevrolet Sixes won their class in the famous Mobilgas Economy Run, got the best mileage of any full-size car. BEST ROOM . . . Official dimensions reported to A.M.A.† make this clear. For example, Chevy front seat hip room is up to 5.9 inches wider than comparable cars. BEST

ENGINE . . . Every motor magazine has given Chevy's standard and Corvette V8's unstinted praise. As Sports Cars Illustrated puts it: "Indeed, this device is surely the most wonderfully responsive engine available today at any price." BEST RIDE . . . You'll be able to tell this yourself, instantly. But Motor Trend magazine expresses it this way: "... the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class."

Red Leaf Will Cut Oats Yields

Many Indiana farmers are noticing that something is wrong with their promising 1959 oat crop.

Purdue University plant pathologists diagnose the trouble as red leaf disease, source of tremendous losses throughout the central states in 1949.

Fields in the western part of Indiana examined by the Purdue scientists have stunted plants or patches of plants with red to grayish yellow leaves. Because of the nature of the disease and its manner of spread, it is presumed likely the disease has invaded all parts of the state.

Red leaf disease is caused by a virus carried to the oats by aphids or plant lice extremely abundant this spring. The disease is equally bad in both well and poorly fertilized fields.

The plant pathologists report that some fields show little damage yet; others have 50 percent loss with the disease still spreading.

All oat varieties are highly susceptible to the disease. There are no control measures that can be applied at this time because the virus-carrying aphids are widespread and have been abundant in oat fields for more than three weeks.

Red leaf disease has been known for many years; however, the cause and spread of the virus by aphids has been known for only about ten years. No control measures have yet been developed. Oat breeders and plant pathologists have been attempting for the past few years to breed resistant varieties.

Purdue plant pathologists and entomologists are investigating the possibility or cost of controlling the disease through destroying the virus-carrying aphids with insecticides.

Giant Foxtail Serious Threat

A weed that produces as many as 20,000 seeds per plant spreads rapidly. Such is the case of the giant foxtail, a plant threatening Indiana farms.

Oliver C. Lee, extension weed specialist at Purdue University, thinks giant foxtail is the most threatening annual weed to be introduced into this state. It thrives in competition with all crops, reduces yields and makes harvesting difficult. Giant foxtail is usually first found in a community in patches either in fence rows or along ditch banks. In some areas it has spread so that it covers entire fields.

Cleaning up fence rows and destroying patches of giant foxtail is imperative to prevent its spread. Spraying with dalapon or TCA is recommended. Five pounds of dalapon or 15 pounds of TCA in 100 gallons of water is a practical spray. This should be done before the plant matures to prevent seeding, Lee advises.

Extension Circular 457, entitled "Giant Foxtail Invades Indiana Farms," gives facts about giant foxtail. This new publication is available without charge to Indiana residents at county agent's offices or by writing the agricultural publications office, Purdue University, Lafayette.

Indiana Cows Produce More

Indiana milk production per cow last year totaled 7,200 lbs., 59 percent more than the 1941-45 average and the largest increase in the United States, reports the U. S. D. A. Agricultural Marketing Service.

G. A. Williams, Purdue University extension dairyman, attributes much of this increase to three factors:

Artificial breeding, Culling low producers, and Improved quality of forages fed dairy herds.

Milk production on Indiana farms in 1958 amounted to 3,701,000 pounds, compared with 2,692,000 pounds in 1925. This increase came despite the fact that last year only 514,000 dairy cows were reported in milk. This is one-third fewer than the number of dairy cows milked during 1941-45.

Williams foresees future changes which will tend to further increase Indiana's production per cow. The number of farms on which milk cows are kept will decrease, but herds will be larger. This will require more attention to cost of production per cow and greater efficiency in herd management, he asserts.

Kill Weeds With 2, 4-D On Corn

Use of 2, 4-D will insure a near perfect job of killing most broad-leaved weeds common to corn fields, says O. C. Lee, Purdue University extension botanist.

When morning glory, cocklebur, horse weeds, smart weed, ragweed and other weeds of the broad-leaf type threaten the crop, it's time to use the sprayer.

Corn is sufficiently tolerant to dosages of 2, 4-D required to kill these weeds, Lee explains.

Spraying is not intended to replace cultivation, but should be used in combination with the cultivator. For example, 2,4-D will not kill grassy weeds, so cultivation must be relied on to do that job. However, spraying may reduce the number of cultivations necessary to keep the corn field clean.

Growth of weeds determines the best time to spray, according to Lee. If weeds emerge early, while the corn is still small, 2,4-D may be applied then. When weeds make later "lay-by" time may be the most satisfactory.

A sprayer equipped with a straight boom is most practical for spraying corn which is less than 12 inches tall. When larger corn is sprayed, the boom should be equipped with drops in order to apply the 2,4-D at the base of the stalk and directly on the weeds.

Excessive dosages of 2,4-D are injurious to corn, so care must be taken to use the proper amount of the weed-killer, Lee emphasizes.

Two-thirds of a pint of a 40 percent 2,4-D in 10 gallons of water per acre is the proper dosage. Either the ester or amine types of 2,4-D may be used. The amines and the low volatile esters are preferred to the high volatile ester type. The high volatile materials may cause fumes that may drift some distance and cause injury to susceptible plants such as soybeans, tomatoes and garden crops.

Hay Crushing Speeds Drying

Farmers who own a hay crusher are relatively sure of harvesting hay free from rain damage by following the weather forecasts, says Lester H. Smith, Purdue University extension agronomist. The best time to cut hay is just after a cold front passes.

Hay crushers enable farmers to cure hay in half the time and obtain better quality because more of the leaves are saved. They can also harvest hay when it is in the best stage of growth for milk production.

Research by the U. S. Department of Agriculture shows that early cut alfalfa pays dividends in milk production. Alfalfa hay cut in the initial bloom stage produced 6,194 pounds of milk an acre; in the one-half bloom stage 5,145 pounds and in full bloom 3,814 pounds. Cattle like early cut hay, but prefer early cut hay that has been crushed.

Hay crushers make it possible to harvest the first crop in early June, which gives the second and third crops more time to grow. But often a shortage of phosphate, potash and borax slow up growth. For this reason alfalfa fields need a top-dressing immediately after the first crop is cut.

Smith says that four tons of a legume or a legume grass forage remove as much potash as is in 600-900 pounds of a 0-10-20 fertilizer. Boron in borax or fertilizer is necessary in southern Indiana or on sandy soils of northern Indiana to prevent terminal leaves of alfalfa from turning yellow. However, for best results, fertilize alfalfa according to soil tests.

Weather Forecasts And Haymaking

Farmers should study weather forecasts when planning to make hay says Purdue University agricultural climatologist James E. Newman.

Hoosier farmers lose a lot of early cut hay because of frequent rains, Newman adds. Normally, one or two "cold fronts" and accompanying "squall lines" pass over Indiana every week during late May and early June.

The Purdue climatologist advises that the best time to make hay is just after the passing of a major cold front.

Farmers can determine the passing of a front by these common weather changes.

A wind shift from a south-westerly to a northwesterly direction; the presence of heavy cumulus clouds, generally moving in an easterly direction; a rapid rise in pressure and drops in temperature and humidity.

Newman says that squall lines normally precede cold fronts. Squall lines are unpredictable as to how many or how far ahead of the approaching front.

However, the wind shifts and pressure changes they cause only hold for an hour or so, he asserts. After the passing of a main front, these shifts last for a day or more.

Ways to Avoid Swine Poisoning

By adjusting their management practices, hog raisers can prevent many poisonings of their swine, reminds Dr. T. M. Curtin, Purdue University extension veterinarian.

Cocklebur, while in the two-leaf stage, is very poisonous to hogs. Swine should be kept off pasture containing cocklebur plants until they are killed or until the poisonous stage is past. During dry seasons and in dry areas new growth may appear after each rain. Dr. Curtin points out.

Rape and occasionally alfalfa will cause increased sensitivity to sunlight, especially in white skinned pigs. Severe cases of sunburn may result. White pigs pastured on these plants should be closely observed for signs of sunburn on their ears and backs and removed from pasture as soon as the signs are noticed. Severely burned pigs should be treated and protected from sunlight.

Pitch poisoning is seen in pastures used for trap shooting. Clay pigeons have been known to remain in the soil and be poisonous to swine for as long as 20 to 25 years. Hogs seem to crave the portions of broken clay pigeons. Dr. Curtin says never allow trap shooting in the hog pasture and avoid establishing hog pastures on old trap shoot grounds. Numerous cases of pitch poisoning have also occurred when swine have had excess to discarded asphalt shingles or siding.

Arsenic poisoning may result from access to some insecticides and baits. Arsenic was formerly mixed with bran for insect baits. Unused portions of this mixture have been known to get into hog lots, or hogs have eaten the baits with disastrous results. Hogs have also been poisoned by failure to clean spray tanks of insecticides and using the unclean tank to spray weeds in pastures.

Lead poisoning results often from discarded paint pails or using such pails for feed and water before they have been carefully cleaned.

Some worm medicines are as poisonous to swine as to the worms if they are erroneously used in too large proportions. The manufacturers' recommendations should be exactly followed.

Salt is poisonous in large quantities and poisonings occur when ample fresh water is not available. Salt added to rations should be well mixed and used in moderation. Sacks of salt should not be left where hogs could get at them.

Rat poisons should be used with caution around swine. Reports have even been made of deaths from hogs eating rats poisoned with very toxic material.

Most cases of chemical poisonings in pigs can be prevented if these materials are carefully handled and directions are closely followed in the use of chemicals, sprays, wormers and other toxic materials, Dr. Curtin asserts.

S/Sgt. and Mrs. William C. Church of Rapid City, South Dakota and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barnmann and daughters of near Atwood were guests Sunday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bennett and sons.

Shade For Hogs

Hot, humid weather frequently becomes reality with shocking suddenness. This kills unprotected hogs, remind George Thrasher and Dick Hollandbeck, Purdue University animal scientists.

A 200-pound market hog requires about eight square feet of shade for free circulation of air. Mature sows and boars should be allowed 12 to 15 square feet of shade.

The animal scientists point out that in many cases additional shade area must be provided for confinement feeding set-ups. Most of these provide a maximum of six square feet of shade per hog. Corn crib picking may be extended over part of the feeding floor for additional shade.

bake three...serve one...freeze two

A food freezer saves time and money

Smart housewives know it's more economical and far more convenient to cook in larger batches (quantity buying, less waste) and freeze for the future. They bake several pies and freeze them... cook entire meals and freeze them... buy foods when they're low and freeze them. And while cutting food costs, they're saving hours of cooking time!

Food freezers cut your shopping time, too. In a single trip to the store you can shop for a week—your meats, fruits and vegetables will freeze at the peak of flavor.

NOTE: If space is a problem the new combination freezer-refrigerator will do an excellent freezing job in the space now occupied by your refrigerator.

WINTER RETURNED

One of the big questions most of us had to ponder over the fore part of the week was: Shall I put in my "summer's" supply of fuel oil or coal? Most of our homes needed a little heat to offset the 50-degree temperatures that prevailed.

School Survey Meeting Set

Lawrence Butts, Franklin township trustee who is chairman of the eight township school survey, announces that there will be a meeting of patrons scheduled to be held on Tuesday evening, June 23, at the Claypool school.

Dr. Pound of Purdue University, will explain the school survey that was recently completed in Ellettsburg, Harrison, Prairie, Clay, Jackson, Seward, and Lake townships.

The 1959 state legislature made it possible for school units to consolidate if it can be done to provide better school facilities for students.

The present proposals, as reported or suggested by those who made the survey, are to combine a number of the townships and erect more modern school facilities in places where the most students could be accommodated least expensively.

A similar meeting was to have been held for the northern townships last Tuesday evening, and many more meetings will likely be held before definite and workable plans can be formulated. There is no question that our school system must be made more up-to-date so that educational facilities can be provided for our rapidly-increasing population.

Pigloo System Installed By Local Farmers

Fred and Jim Beeson, Kosciusko county farmers, have completed installation of a Pigloo swine production system—a unique housing and management program for low-cost hog production—on their farm near Mentone.

The Beeson brothers' system, made up of 16 Pigloos—prefabricated individual birth units—is designed to produce 900 market hogs per year.

The system, developed by Nutrena Mills, Inc., is based on recently developed techniques of antibody protection, animal isolation, natural birth and physical protection of the young.

INTERESTING BOOKLET

The News recently received a booklet, "The Story of Man and His Work," that was real interesting.

It points out that in the past few decades the growth of industrial technology has dramatically upgraded the worker's skills, living standards, and social status. Relative to the cultural and economic changes that have transformed the nation, the booklet shows that the workman's future progress can best be assured by continuing a pattern of economic growth and evolving technology.

Published by DuPont of Wilmington, Delaware, it has many prints of working conditions of yester-years that should be seen.

When The Face Of America Began To Change

In mid-afternoon of June 1, 1909, five primitive motor cars started out from New York City Hall headed for Seattle, Wash., in what was officially called the "Ocean-to-Ocean Automobile Endurance Contest."

Two of the five were Model T Fords, designated No. 1 and No. 2. The others were a Shawmut, an Acme and an Itala—names now long since forgotten in the automotive industry.

Ford No. 2 reached Seattle at 12:55 p.m., June 23, nearly 17 hours ahead of its nearest competitor, the Shawmut, and was the first car ever to travel from New York to Seattle under its own power. Ford No. 1 came in third, the Acme fourth. The Itala broke down and was shipped in by freight.

The historic contest is being re-enacted this month by a Ford Motor Company caravan which, as nearly as possible, is following the same route and same day-to-day schedule as the original contestants.

Included in the caravan are a duplicate of the victorious No. 2 Ford; Ford Motor Company's 50 millionth vehicle, a Galaxie four-door sedan; a 1908 Model K Ford which paced the competitors from New York to St. Louis, Mo.; and an exhibit van, the displays of which show a look into the past and a glance at the future of the automotive industry.

STORED GRAIN INSECT BUILDUP

Now is the time to begin looking for insect build-ups in farm-stored grain, reminds Dave Matthew, Purdue University extension entomologist.

Farmers should examine their held-over grain for infestations of brown weevils or bran bugs. These insects cause hot spots in the grain when they are present in large numbers.

When infestations occur, fumigate with carbon tetrachloride-carbon bisulfide (80-20) or ethylene dichloride-carbon tetrachloride (72-25) mixtures. Matthew says fumigation should be done only when the grain temperature is above 35 degrees Fahrenheit.

This is also a good time to clean up old grain in bins, wagons and loaders, because they often serve as centers for reinfestation of relatively clean grain.

Guard Against Heat Exhaustion

Hot weather can seriously cut down growth rate of broilers and may even cause heavy losses from heat exhaustion unless broiler raisers guard against such happenings, says Joe W. Sicer, Purdue University extension poultryman.

The first hot spell of the season is especially dangerous, according to Sicer, since the chickens have had no chance to become acclimated to the heat.

An abundance of drinking water is the broiler's first necessity. Some of the most successful broiler raisers double the amount of drinking space during hot months. Waterers should be so placed that the chickens can never be more than about ten feet away from a drinking place.

Old, re-used litter is often the source of aggravating heat for the summer brood of broilers because of the composting action therein. Fresh litter should be used, and just deep enough to maintain dryness.

GETTING TO KNOW THE ARMY WAY

June 14, 1959

Dear Artley:

I have received the paper for the last two weeks and it is good to hear some news from home. I would like to thank you for sending it and also thank the people that sent me all of those birthday cards.

Army life isn't quite as nice as civilian life, at least in basic, but I guess we will survive it. It is a big change leaving all the people at home, but you soon make new friends in here, too.

I just finished a letter to my folks so I believe I will go watch the baseball game now. Thanks again for the paper.

Sincerely yours,

CHAMBER FAVORS PLANNING SURVEY

Considerable planning and discussion regarding a planning survey for Mentone took place at a meeting of the directors of the Mentone Chamber of Commerce held Tuesday evening.

A planning survey, as has previously been mentioned in the News, is a comprehensive survey of the town and its environs and evaluating all its potential so that a plan can be made for the area that will permit the complete utilization of all future growth possibilities. The survey, if made, will be made by a firm experienced in this work, and the final plan for the community will be submitted to the citizens for approval and adoption. The cost of a survey of this nature will be between one thousand and fifteen hundred dollars. The Chamber plans to provide about $300 of this sum and the balance will be budgeted by the Mentone town board.

Zoning of a city includes a portion of the area outside the corporation, and this distance is determined by the expected future needs.

One of the advantages of a planned city is that property values can be protected by indicating areas for business, for manufacturing, for homes, etc.

Water — Make It Automatic

How would you like to walk across 20 acres on a hot summer day and then wait in line to drink water that's been standing in the sun in a tank that hasn't been cleaned for a month?

This is the description of the livestock water supply on too many good livestock farms, says Bruce McKenzie, extension agricultural engineer at Purdue University. But, he says, it doesn't have to be so.

Use of plastic water pipe in conjunction with automatic fountains can completely change the picture. The pipe is a black plastic commonly known as polyethylene, which is light, durable and easy to install. Available in long coils, the pipe can be installed underground by all of the usual methods, but in addition can be fed into an underground slot made by a sub-soiler, or into a furrow of a field plow.

Installation at frost-free depth is not essential if the pipe is for summer use, provided the pressure is removed during the freezing weather. Plastic pipe should never be installed above ground, because sunlight causes rotting.

But who wants to drink water from an above ground pipe any way, asks McKenzie? Water temperatures may reach 120 degrees on a hot summer day. This is where the automatic fountain counts. It holds a small quantity of water. This water is replaced automatically as an animal drinks with cool water from the underground supply.

So, you can kill two birds with one stone by putting the water supply closer to the animal and supplying cooler water, adds McKenzie. The same fountain can be moved to drylot for winter use. Ask your county agent for Mimeo AH-129, "Water-Make it Automatic" for information on pipe sizes, installation, etc.

Potatoes need regular applications of insecticides to control leaf hoppers, according to Purdue University entomologists. They say DDT is the best; it should be applied at weekly intervals during June and July.

If you plan to hold over the strawberry bed for another year, thin the rows and plants in the row right after harvest, assert Purdue University horticulturists.

Married In Ceremony At Crete, Nebraska

The First Congregational Church of Crete, Nebraska, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Roberta Louise Burrus, of Crete, and Charles William Urschel, of Mentone, on Monday, June 15, at 3:00. The Rev. J. F. Balzer, assisted by the Rev. David P. Gosser, of Ligonier, Indiana, officiated at the double ring ceremony in Bethlehem Chapel.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Burrus, of Crete, and Dr. and Mrs. Dan L. Urschel of Mentone, Ind.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of rosepoint lace and nylon tulle over satin. The gown, fashioned by the bride, had a v-neckline and long tapered sleeves of the lace. Her bouffant skirt over ruffled tulle was trimmed with insets of the lace. Her fingertip veil of rosepoint lace was held in place by a band of satin and pearls. She carried a white Bible accented with yellow rose buds. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Miss Judith K. Besancon, of Rochester, N. Y., was maid of honor. She wore a street length scooped neckline dress of blue silk organza over taffeta. She carried a fan shaped bouquet of yellow carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Sarah K. Urschel, sister of the groom, wore a yellow dress identical in style to that of the maid of honor's and carried a fan shaped bouquet of blue carnations. They wore matching accessories.

The bridegroom was attended by Dennis Wentz of Napoleon, North Dakota, as best man, Roger Becklund, of Almont, North Dakota, ushered the guests to their seats.

Prenuptial music was played by Miss Nadean Kruse, of Crete, who also accompanied Rev. Gosser who sang, "Ich Liebe Dich," "Dedication," and "The Lord's Prayer."

A reception was held in the church parlors immediately following the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Urschel are both graduates of Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi. They will make their home in Chicago where Mr. Urschel is a third year medical student at the University of Chicago.

Dairy cows do very little grazing during mid-day when temperatures are high, Purdue University dairy scientists point out. They recommend that shade be provided in pastures or the cows removed to the barn until after the evening milking.

Hog cholera vaccination should not be neglected, according to Purdue University veterinarians. All swine on the farm should be immunized. Pigs should be vaccinated when they are between six and 10 weeks of age.

Blackleg Pasture Season Disease

Blackleg is a highly fatal disease of young cattle most prevalent during the pasture season, says Dr. T. M. Curtin, Purdue University extension veterinarian.

inarian. The disease occurs most often when pastures are short and close grazing is necessary. Young, unprotected animals are highly susceptible and many losses result.

Blackleg is caused by a very resistant bacteria which can form spores that remain dormant in the soil for very long periods of time. They have been known to remain infective in the soil for as long as 40 years.

When pastures must be closely grazed, the possibility of an animal picking up the infection is greatly increased, Dr. Curtin points out.

The disease is characterized by lameness and sudden death.

Usually, only a short time lapses between the time lameness is noticed and death occurs. Early attention by a veterinarian may result in preventing many losses.

Blackleg strikes chiefly animals below 18 months old. Animals dead of blackleg should be quickly removed from the premises or buried with lime to avoid contamination of the soil by blackleg spores.

Young cattle pastured where blackleg has occurred, or downstream from such areas should be protected. Dr. Curtin recommends annual vaccination of young animals with an approved vaccine.

More car than this Impala Sport Coupe is hard to find at any price.

clings to curves like a cat on a carpet!
the travel-lovin' Chevrolet

Nothing else but a dyed-in-the-wool sports car like the Corvette can take a turn with such solid assurance!

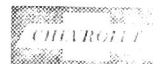

It's easy to see where Chevrolet gets its road sense. With big coil springs at every wheel, a firm, wider stance and all of its pounds distributed with a balancing care, Chevy's born with it.

The only thing that may be hard to understand is how it can offer the ride it does, along with so many other luxury-car virtues, and still compete in the low-price field.

We use the word compete only in the sense of price. For with a ride as special as Chevy's, real competitors are hard to come by. There's a world of difference between Chevrolet's coil springs at all four wheels and the leaf springs that most other cars still have. Push a Chevy down a shaky back road and you'll feel the difference in the sure way it holds through ruts and shoots over rough spots with hardly a ripple.

This one's really made to travel and loves every minute of it.

Stop by your local authorized Chevrolet dealer's and sample Chevy's road sense!

Seven Hurt In Two-Car Crash

Seven persons, four of them children ranging in age from 11 months to 12 years, received minor injuries Tuesday night in a two-car crash in Newcastle township.

One of the injured, Victor Grass, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Grass, R. R. 5, Rochester, suffered rib fractures and a fractured right arm. He is reported in "satisfactory" condition today at the Woodlawn hospital.

The other persons all received bruises and some face cuts. They are Donald Grass, 40; his wife, Margaret, 36; their children, Rhea, 12; Jane, 4, and Brenda, 11 months, and Dr. O. L. McFadden, 34, Mentone.

The Sheriff's office said Grass was driving a 1958 Mercury south and that Dr. McFadden was going east in a 1958 Ford when the cars collided at the intersection of the Claypool road at 8:30 p. m.

Officers said high brush, weeds and trees prevented the drivers from seeing each other. If they had they probably wouldn't have been able to avoid the accident because of loose gravel at the intersection, officers added.

Damage to the Grass car was estimated at $1,000 and to the McFadden auto at $900.

First Class For Vocational Unit

H. Earl Boggs, trustee of Harrison township, has received a letter of congratulations from Harold B. Taylor, State Supervisor of Agricultural Education notifying him that the Mentone vocational agriculture department has been classified "first class" for the 1958-59 fiscal year.

The letter further stated that there were 39 schools that merited this classification for their vocational agriculture program. This rating certainly should be heartening to Mr. Boggs, Mr. Hewlett, the instructor, and the patrons of the school.

Mrs. Emma Clutter and Mr. and Mrs. Abe Whetstone attended the funeral of Mrs. Glen Rockhill at Etna Green Sunday. Mrs. Rockhill and Mrs. Whetstone are cousins.

Prevent Stored Grain Loss

Each year insects destroy many millions of dollars of stored grain. Most of this loss could be prevented by the use of inexpensive, advance sanitation practices and insecticide treatments. J. J. Davis, professor emeritus of entomology at Purdue University, points out:

Insect infestations do not develop in the field; combined grain is not infested when harvested or stored in bins. Most infestations, says Davis, result after harvest and after grain is stored in bins.

These facts lead to the following suggestions which, if followed, will eliminate or materially reduce infestations and the resulting losses.

Delay harvest until grain is dry.

Combine should be adjusted to avoid, so far as possible, broken or cracked kernels, weed stems and other foreign material.

Store grain away from infested bins, grain residues, bags of feed, etc.

Before harvest and storage, clean out bins and spray thoroughly, inside and out, with a 2½ percent DDT. Use a 25 percent DDT emulsion concentrate at the rate of one part to nine parts of water, or use a 50 percent DDT wettable powder at the rate of two pounds in five gallons of water.

Other sprays that can be used are 1½ percent malathion, 2½ percent methoxychlor or ½ percent pyrethrins.

Most important is thorough sanitation in and about the storage bin and likewise thoroughness of the spray applications.

Dairy Heifers Often Neglected

Dairy heifers in many herds are neglected during the summer. G. A. Williams, Purdue University extension dairymen, points out.

They are turned on "the back 40" and receive little or no attention for several months. The result is they are returned to the herd in the fall in poor condition. This requires extra feed to get them ready for freshening.

Dairy heifers fed alfalfa hay will gain more weight, gain faster and consume more dry matter than heifers fed unsupplemented alfalfa silage or corn alfalfa silage, a recent USDA study shows.

This study of dietary requirements for dairy heifers from birth to calving at two years of age should help dairymen determine what forages to feed, Williams says.

Heifers at USDA's Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md., were raised successfully to calving time on 370 pounds of whole milk, 400 to 500 pounds of grain and all the good alfalfa hay they wanted.

Substituting silage for hay caused lower feed consumption, lower rate of gain, lower weight at calving and slightly lower milk and butterfat production during first lactation.

Production and body weight equalized as the cows became older. Production was the same during the second lactation for animals reared on silage and those reared on hay. Body weight was equalized by the fifth, sixth or seventh year of age.

Supplementing the silage with a pound of hay daily for every 100 pounds of animal weight or with two pounds of grain daily produced heifers only slightly smaller than those on hay alone.

Scientists who made the study believe that calves will grow normally if they get at least four pounds of grain daily in addition to all the hay-crop silage they want. In these tests, the wilted-alfalfa silage contained 30 percent dry matter. Silage with a higher moisture content would not give as good results.

The meeting was opened by the group singing. Following the business we did sewing for the missionaries.

Mrs. Yeiter served delicious refreshments to the nine members present.

The July meeting will be a picnic supper at the home of Mrs. Lee Norris.

Loretta Young and Brook Black Married

Miss Loretta Jane Young and Brook Lynn Black were united in marriage at eight o'clock Friday evening, June 19, by Rev. Harold Conrad at the Akron Church of God. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Young of Akron and parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Black, R. 1, Claypool. White carnations, gladioli, candelabras and palms graced the altar as Rev. Conrad performed the double-ring candle light ceremony before 500 guests.

Mrs. Maynard Summe presided at the organ and Mrs. Ralph Shafer at the piano. Mrs. Jan Pressnall sang "The Indian Love Call" and "The Lord's Prayer." Rev. Conrad sang "With These Rings I Thee Wed."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight satin, trimmed with chantilly lace. The gown was styled and made by Mrs. Houston Shaffer of Urbana. The bride wore a crown of rhinestones with a fingertip veil and she carried a corsage of white carnations and pink rosebuds.

The bride wore pearls belonging to her grandmother, Mrs.

Albert Young, and she wore pearl earrings, a gift of the groom.

Miss Judy Young, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids, Miss Nancy Shaffer of Urbana, Miss Carol Smith of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Miss Sandy Myers of Akron, appeared in pastel blue carrying bouquets of white and pink carnations. The flower girl was Kathy Miller and the ring bearer was David Miller, both of St. Joe, Indiana and cousins of the bride. Dean Damron and Bertie Young lighted the candles.

Charles Tucker, of Mentone, served as best man. Don Le-count of North Webster and Mike and Jerry Nelson of Burket were the ushers.

The bride's mother was dressed in beige sheath, made of lace, with light blue shoes and purse, with beige hat and gloves. The mother of the groom was dressed in beige silk organdy over matching taffeta, and she wore beige accessories.

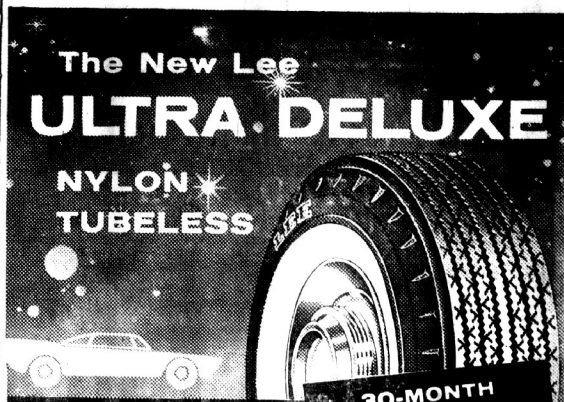

Miss Sue Le-count, sister of the groom, took care of the guest book.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the basement of the church. Those assisting were Mrs. Helen Miller, aunt of the bride, who served the beautiful three-tiered wedding cake from a table decorated by blue satin and nylon netting, plus punch, nuts and mints. Serving the punch were Miss Betty Dawald, Bonnie Gray, Judy Luckenbill, Donna Waligh, Karen Thompson and Sue Le-county.

Mrs. Black is a graduate of Akron High School and the Electronic Training College, Omaha, Nebr. The bridegroom is a graduate of Beaver Dam High School and is engaged in farming. Upon their return from a wedding trip in upper Michigan, they will reside on a farm four miles south of Mentone. Leaving on the wedding trip, the bride was wearing a white linen sheath dress with light blue accessories.

INDIANA APPLE, PEACH PROSPECTS

June 1 prospects for Indiana's 1959 commercial apple crop are quite favorable, but a sharp decline in this year's peach crop from 1958's 500,000 bushel yield is seen, report state-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University.

Virtually all apple varieties withstood the rugged winter. Bloom was satisfactory although local freezing temperatures in northern areas May 16 could cut down the crop somewhat, the statisticians add.

Apple prospects are fair to good in central and southern Indiana. The two and a half in. of rain during the middle of May, particularly in the southern sections, were especially beneficial to young trees. Spray schedules were maintained.
