COUNTERPOINT

By The Editor's Wife

These rainy days do seem gloomy, don't they? When one stops to remember that we need the moisture so much, and how much this means to our farmers, the 'gloom' begins to fade. We have had enough sunshine, this fall, to last for quite a while. So, let's enjoy the rain!

A card from the Don Bunnors in Leesburg, Florida reads: Dear Cullums,

You know in our rush to get started to Florida we forgot to tell you we would just have to have the Mentone News sent to us. It's the only way we have of checking up on the folks we love and keeping in touch with home. So, please send us the News so we can be informed. Love, Bunnors, Dan & Faye. The address has been changed, and the News will be on its way each week to Florida (along with several others for Mentone area folks).

Many people are unhappy because they constantly compare themselves with others, who may be wealthier, cleverer, handsomer, brainer.

The following paragraph, by Lt. Colonel Tripp of the Salvation Army, holds real meaning. He says:

"We use a 'seesaw system' of evaluation for ourselves and others. On this 'seesaw', we go up when someone else goes down, and we go down when someone else goes up. Our emotional position shifts in relationship to others. Having no true inner stability of our own, our estimation of our worth fluctuates according to the person we compare ourselves with. If they are inferior, we feel superior; if they are higher, we feel lower.

"Meeting a man who is cleverer than I am does not make me stupid. I am as able to think and act as I was before I met him. His talents do not diminish mine. It is only as I compare my ability with his greater ability that I arrive at an unfavorable estimation of my powers. Must I then find a man poorer than myself to feel rich, someone less proficient so that I can feel competent? Must they go down so that I can go up?"

"The truth is that each of us has his own essential value, his own rightful place, his own particular talents. Comparing myself with someone more gifted or less able neither increases nor decreases my actual worth to myself or others."

National Education Week makes us aware of several things. We are thankful for our local schools, where our children (and grandchildren) can be taught by fine upright teachers. We are thankful for the capable men who, under crowded conditions and many other problems, administer and guide each of the schools.

We are thankful for the parents who are concerned and interested in our schools, not for their own selfish interests, but for the "greatest good for the most."

Visit your school. Your principals welcome you, as do the teachers.

Several weeks ago the question was raised as to how long ago there had been a traffic fatality in our town. George Clark remembers that sometime in the years between 1930-1940, an out of town man was killed here on Saturday night after a free movie, as he stepped into the path of a car. Several years earlier there was a fatal accident at the railroad crossing when three men died as their car was hit by a train.

Election Outcome Discuss 4-H, 1st Grade Overload

Mentone Town Election

Tuesday's town election for three trustees and a clerk-treasurer who will serve on the Town Board resulted in the following: First Ward, Rep. William Rathbun, 151; Dem. Albert Hatfield, 49; Second Ward, Rep. James Gates, 129; Dem. Dean Meyer, 70; Third Ward, Loren Tridle, 111; Dem. Conda Walser, 91; Clerk-Treasurer, Rep. James Tibbets, 153; Dem. Merrill Peterson, 48. These men serve four year terms.

Burket Town Election

The outcome of the town election at Burket resulted as follows:

Trustee, First Ward, Rep. John Irwin, 62; Dem. Everett Warren, 21; Second Ward, Rep. Edward Napier, 55; Dem. Chester Shoemaker, 28; Third Ward, Rep. Guy Baker, 36; Dem. Homer McGinley, 48; Clerk-Treasurer, Rep. Ward Williamson, 28; Dem. Doris Phillips, 56.

Two Accidents In Mentone Monday

Two accidents, involving four cars, took place in Mentone Monday. The first, at 12:30 p.m., occurred when Ross Osborn of Syracuse, coming on 19 and concentrating on the railroad crossing, disregarded the stop sign at the intersection of 19 and 25. His car was hit broadside by William (Shiney) Blackburn, of R. K. Mentone. There were no injuries, but about 250 to 300 dollars damage to both cars.

Then at 3:30 in the afternoon, a car driven by Mrs. Ina Davis skidded on the wet pavement and dropped a wheel off the beam and angled across the highway, sideswiping the parked auto of Floyd Tucker. Mrs. Davis then crashed head-on into a tree. This accident took place in front of the Garie Rose home. Mrs. Davis was taken to the doctor's office and treated for a deep neck laceration. She also suffered three broken ribs. Town Marshal Gene Norton is still investigating.

The large cabbage in our window was grown by Claude Barkman. The editor took a picture which will appear in this issue.

Mary and Gib Griffis have some prize sweet potatoes, which weigh 2 lbs. or more each. Mary said she found blooms on the sweet potato vines which looked like morning glories.

Also added in our office window is a huge turnip grown out on Ed Meredith's farm. Seem Ed has only large turnips this year—You just can't find a small one!

It all adds up to this conclusion—it has been a strange autumn.

Mrs. Albert Hatfield is beginning her duties at the Mentone News. She will be calling you for news, and will be on hand to take your classified ads, subscriptions, job work, or just plain visit (as we now have room for a couple of chairs).

We enjoyed this:

A peasant in a Russian village went to the polls on election day and was handed a sealed envelope to drop in the ballot box. He began to tear the envelope open when a Soviet official shouted "What do you think you are doing?" The peasant said he wanted to see for whom he was voting. "Are you crazy?" exclaimed the official. "This is a secret ballot."

The Tippecanoe Valley School Corporation met in their regular session Monday night in the office of the school superintendent.

Mr. Ducher called the meeting to order and then asked if there was any one who wanted an audience with the school board.

Robert Jones, Franklin Township Trustee, reported that he had just returned from a township trustee's meeting, and in this meeting it was stated that the township could not support 4-H. The only funds available were through the school corporation.

There were several 4-H leaders in the audience also. Gerald Smalley of Beaver Dam reported that he hoped that the board would see fit to continue their support of 4-H. He said that 4-H is a youth work to try to create good work and study habits among young people and is just as important as band, or football, or any other summer project.

The school board went on record as saying that they would support 4-H for one more year (1964), but in the meantime, they were going to study the situation to see if it was their place to support 4-H or if some other means of support could be found. They are not clear in their own minds if 4-H is an educational problem that is under this jurisdiction.

Another audience was held at which time Max Johnson asked the question if additional help could be had for the Mentone 1st grade. The contention of the parents was that 38 pupils were too many for one teacher. They felt that the students were not progressing as rapidly as they should.

Mr. Forbes stated that 38 is not too many for one teacher, and it is not possible to get a qualified teacher now, and secondly, there is no money available for additional teachers.

Mr. Forbes stated that he, Mr. Meredith and the principal had visited the first grade to study and see if there was a problem and in their opinion no problem was in evidence.

However, Mrs. Richard Kindig stated that about six mothers visited school and their opinion there was a definite problem with an over load in the first grade.

Mrs. Joe Boggs said she had visited school and made the suggestion that a helper be utilized in the first grade.

Forbes went on to say later that since there was no money available for additional help it would be possible to switch a bus load of children, perhaps the bus load south of Mentone to road 600 or maybe some children in the northern end around the river. There was no further discussion on this and the board continued with the agenda of work before them.

Phil Pratt of Talma was named to head the Henry and Newcastle townships 4-H clubs. There will be about 45 young people involved in the two clubs.

The financial report was read by the superintendent, who then proceeded with the reading of specifications to purchase one or more 54-passenger school buses.

The board voted to change their board policy to read that the school board would meet in regular session on the first Monday night of each month and then have special meeting that can be called by the superintendent or president of the board.

Early Information On March of Dimes

Mrs. Hugh Parsons of Warsaw, campaign director of Kosciusko County, has appointed Mrs. Eugene Grimes as Mentone chairman. She will also cover Claypool and Silver Lake.

Since Mrs. Grimes will be moving to Warsaw Lake soon, she would like to appoint an assistant chairman, although she will still be helping out in Mentone.

It is planned to set out canisters in all the places of business and possibly have a couple of teen dances for persons of all ages. Also in January, at the basketball games, they will have a blanket throw.

Volunteers are needed to go out soliciting. At least four could be used to cover Mentone. If you are interested, please contact the News Office. There will be more information concerning this at a later date.

LUCKY MISS

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Long and Ricky spent the week end in Indianapolis with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Myers and family. Plans were all made to attend the 9 p.m. Saturday night ice show at the Coliseum. We feel very fortunate for the seats were only two sections over and a little higher from where the explosion actually occurred. Every one in the city is still shocked and while attending the Franklin Road Baptist Church the minister spoke many times of the disaster.

Mrs. Cecil Long, Mentone, and her sister, Mrs. Alva Motz, of Columbus, Ohio, left on Monday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Richard Motz and family at Guadalupe, California. Richard is the son of Mrs. Motz, and is stationed at Vandenberg Air Force Base.

Best Corn Harvesting Time

Harvest beginning when the corn moisture content is just under 30 per cent represents the best time from the standpoint of both profit and safety, points out Ray Lien, Purdue University agricultural engineer.

At this time corn usually is standing well; this reduces accident-induced clogging of the harvester. Too, field losses of ear corn increase sharply from the time corn reaches 22 per cent moisture. Thus, early harvesting is desirable regardless of the type machine used.

He says that harvest systems vary widely in field losses. For instance, picker hushers average 15 per cent corn left in the field; picker shellers eight per cent and corn combine five per cent.

Keeping the harvest machine in good operating condition means taking the maximum amount of corn from the field. As snapping rolls wear they should be replaced or their aggressiveness rebuilt by welding.

These snapping rolls should be adjusted close enough to gether to provide a smooth flow of material through the machine with a minimum of stalk breakage.

Ground speed relation to snapping roll speed must be controlled by the operator so he feeds the material through the machine without throwing ears to the ground or causing them to remain on the rolls so long they are shelled.

Take Soil Samples After Harvest

A worthwhile project for Indiana farmers after they have completed corn harvesting is to take soil samples and send them to the state soil testing laboratory at Purdue University.

Autumn is an ideal time to take these samples, points out Eldon Hood, who has charge of the soil testing laboratory. The laboratory, which tested some 39,000 samples last year, has been returning results to farmers within a week after receiving them.

Hood lists these steps: Obtain instruction sheet, sample boxes and information sheet from your county extension office.

Use a clean bucket and a sampling tool (spade or auger). One sample should contain at least 15 cores or subsamples from each soil type.

Keep light and dark soil separate.

Package samples in the pre-addressed cartons with required remittance and information sheets.

Soil scientists work continuously on fertility problems to determine the best use of fertilizer and lime. This information is used with the chemical soil test results to tell how to fertilize and lime your soil.

However, the responsibility for getting the soil samples to the laboratory rests with the farmer.

By testing his soil this fall, a farmer can plan his fertilizer and lime program for the 1964 crop year.

A Novel Silo For High-Moisture Corn

On a recent visit to Grant County, Wisconsin, and the farm of Wendell Case, he showed us a new device for storing and utilizing high-moisture corn. It was essentially a concrete tank in the shape and dimension of a tower silo, 14 x 45 feet.

Mr. Case used the novel silo much as one would use a gas-tight silo. There is just a steel ladder running up the side instead of a feed chute and doors, but there is a flat concrete roof containing a covered manhole, and an auger unloader at the bottom.

Wendell Case stated that he had successfully used this silo for high-moisture corn for the past three years. The corn is shelled in the field and immediately blown into this silo through the manhole.

Since the corn is removed at the bottom, the top portion caves in toward the center in the same way that grain in tall storage bins finds its way downward toward the bottom. This action of grain, we will remember, is dangerous to any workman who lets himself down on top of the grain in the large elevator bins.

An examination of this high-moisture corn as it came out of the auger conveyor at the bottom of the silo showed it to have the typical color and odor that we associate with a quality product of this sort. It was obviously palatable to the pigs and other livestock that Wendell was feeding, and he expressed himself as entirely pleased with the product and with the economy of his invention.

He further stated that he kept the silo unloading process going without any long continued interval during the course of the year except of course when the silo might run empty. The silo can be refilled when either completely or partially empty.

It would seem that one reason for the lack of spoilage on top of the corn is that in the absence of doors and their cracks up and down the height of the silo, there is no leakage of carbon dioxide gas. Very likely the moist corn is in a constant atmosphere of this self-generated, heavy gas remaining on top and throughout the corn, even though the manhole on top may not completely keep out the outside air.

The era of new things in agriculture certainly is not past.

Question: With pelleted complete sheep rations containing both concentrates and hay frequently one percent salt is included. Isn't this a rather high salt allowance?

Answer: Ordinarily one-half percent salt in complete rations is sufficient, but the sheep should have free access to salt at all times.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Jim Irwin and family, of Warsaw; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Barkman, George and Linda, Mrs. Bessie Wilson, and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Barkman. The highlight of the day was when the two great grandchildren, Craig Irwin and Lisa Long, sang Happy Birthday to Grandma Mary, and all wished her many more happy birthdays.

Indiana's production of tomatoes for processing is estimated at 273,000 tons, 20 per cent lower than the 1962 production, report state-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University.

Replacement dairy heifers should be vaccinated between four and eight months of age to help control brucellosis, say Purdue University dairy scientists.

NEWS NOTES from our

H. D. Agent
RUTH MCLEARY

Many of you will be getting ready for the Feather Hat lesson on November 20. If you are planning to make a hat of pheasant feathers, you should probably have instructions for curing the skin.

Lay the skin feather side down and cover it with ordinary household borax. When the moisture is drawn out and the borax becomes damp, it can be shaken off and replaced with dry or the borax can be dried in a warm oven. Sifted and used many times, salt can be substituted for borax. Feathers that have been plucked should be sorted as to color and pattern. If you dye your chicken or turkey feathers, this should be done in advance of the workshop. Remember to register in advance at the County Extension Office, Court House, Warsaw, and enclose $1.00.

There will be two classes if enrollment permits. The day class starts at 9 a.m. and the evening at 5 p.m. Those enrolled will receive further instructions as to other materials and supplies to bring.

Don't hesitate to de-beak a flock of laying pullets if cannibalism or "pick-outs" become a serious problem, advise Purdue University extension poultrymen.

Cows which drop calves in November and December need good feed this winter to keep them milking during cold weather, remind Purdue University animal scientists. This is a good time to creep feed the calves too.

Advertise! It Pays!

Newsprint Mills Sponsor Newspaper Ad Research

New York — The Newsprint Information Committee has announced sponsorship of a third major advertising research project on behalf of newspapers.

Designed to unearth information never before available on the relation between newspaper advertising readership and consumer buying habits, the study is now under way. The Bureau of Advertising, ANPA, proposed and designed the project.

A nation-wide sampling of newspaper readers, involving thousands of interviews and re-interviews, will be carried out over many weeks. Results are expected to be available next Spring and will be distributed to advertisers, their agencies, and newspapers.

Cost of the research will be approximately $80,000. This brings to nearly $200,000 the total expenditure of the Committee for research helpful to newspapers.

NEW EFFORT

The Newsprint Information Committee is made up of four reading Canadian newspaper companies: Attila Power & Paper Co., Anglo-Canadian Pulp & Paper Mills, Ltd., Dominion Newsprint, Ltd., and MacMillan, Bloedel & Powell River, Ltd.

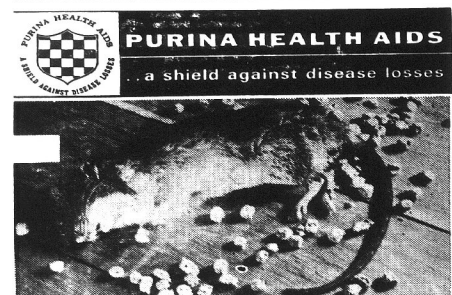

Charles T. Lipscomb, president of the Bureau of Advertising, said that the new effort of the Newsprint Information Committee would bring added advertising benefit to most newspapers in the country.

One previous NIC-financed readership study, "The Daily Newspaper and Its Reading Public," has been an especially effective selling tool for the Bureau, he added. That data was used in more than 200 target-account selling presentations to important national advertisers. Lipscomb said the data helped produce at least $27 million in advertising for newspapers.

ANSWERS FOR ALL

The new study will begin where the earlier one left off, according to Dr. Leo Bogart, vice president of the Bureau for marketing planning and research.

It is expected to provide the potential advertiser with answers to the following questions, among others: How many readers have the opportunity to see a given ad? Will the ad reach the right kinds of people? Those able to and inclined to buy? What are the readers' reactions to the kind, size and location (in the page and in the newspaper) of the advertising?

KILL RATS...use Purina Rat-Kill

Purina Rat-Kill is an entirely different kind of killer for rats and mice. It's a "carry-home" bait. Rats haul it back to the nest... distribute it themselves... feed Rat-Kill to the whole family till they're dead.

Rat-Kill has these extra advantages:

- Highly palatable and bulky
- Kills fast, in 5 to 15 days
- Low priced

CROP Foods Reach Destination

Beans, shortening, flour and rice from CROP were among the first foodstuffs to be distributed to people who were left homeless and destitute in the southeastern part of Haiti because of the relentless Hurricane Flora. John W. Barwick, Church World Service representative in Haiti, reported that he was able to transfer supplies, which had been sent by CROP for use in work projects, from a warehouse in Port au Prince to a coastal boat. From there, the foodstuffs were taken to the hard hit area around the coast to Jeremie, Les Cayes, Petit Goave, a section approximately 25 miles square.

On October 15 a U. S. Navy plane flew 40,000 pounds of supplies from Church World Service and CROP to the Haitian hurricane survivors. The shipment included CWS supplies of 55 bales of blankets, 200 pounds of clothing, water purification tablets, medicines, plus CROP's distribution of 20,000 pounds of TSP (toasted soy protein) a high protein food supplement valued at $1,500. The U.S. Navy also air lifted food and medical supplies for Catholic Relief Services and CARE at the same time.

Other commodities from CROP were among supplies which Church World Service has sent to Haiti. Enroute are 5,328 pounds of chopped beef and 46,665 pounds of corn syrup from CROP, and some 250,000 pounds of government donated foods such as flour, powdered milk, cheese, which were delivered from other CWS country programs. These foodstuffs are expected to arrive in time for the peak need in the disaster area.

Sections of the Dominican Republic, adjoining Haiti, were also devastated by Flora and the Church World Service has requested that CROP supply three carloads of dry beans for 20,000 victims. Michigan and Colorado CROP, now in the process of bean campaigns during the months of September and October, will provide the needed commodity. Other foods, blankets, clothing, drugs, vitamins have also been urgently requested by the CWS representative in the Dominican Republic. The military junta in that country is doing everything possible to cooperate with the voluntary agencies working there.

Indiana's late summer potato crop is estimated at 636,000 hundredweight. This is 14 per cent smaller than last year. The state's fall potato crop is expected to total 620,000 hundredweight, 20 per cent below the 1962 output. State-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University report the potatoes are of excellent quality.

Mentone School News

Mr. George Welch and Mr. Gaylord Toll will be attending the annual High School Junior Division Conference for principals and counselors at Indiana University on Thursday, November 7. They will be interviewing students who are now attending Indiana University as freshmen and who were seniors at Mentone this past school year. The purpose of the interviews is to try to determine ways in which the high school may better prepare their graduates for college and, in addition, to suggest to the college freshman ways in which they might be more successful in their studies.

A good part of the day is then spent in conference with university officials. Such conferences are helpful in bringing the high schools and colleges closer together and we believe that the result will be that students who are entering institutions of higher learning will be better prepared to succeed.

Students who will be interviewed by Mr. Toll and Mr. Welch are Chip Gast, Martie Nelson and Dennis Fisher.

Mentone Future Nurses Club Meet

At the last meeting of the Mentone F.N.C., there were eleven present. The following were elected to office: president, Renita Ring; vice president, Arbutus Konkle; secretary, Sherry Bryan; treasurer, Bea Walsh; reporter, Sandra Nelson.

An application is being made for a national charter for the chapter.

Girls' Athletic Association To Be Formed

An organization meeting of the G.A.A. will be held during the activity period on Wednesday, November 13. The purpose of this first meeting is to determine the number of girls who are interested in such an organization and to explain the activities and goals of a G.A.A. organization.

Girls who participate in the G.A.A. will benefit from the physical activities and from their association with the other participants.

Activities will likely be held in the evening after school, perhaps two or three times per month. In addition, a "play night" may be held one evening of each month.

Schools often offer many activities for boys and almost completely neglect to sponsor activities for girls. We sincerely hope that many girls will enjoy participating in the activities of the Mentone Girls' Athletic Association.

Food Sense Not Nonsense

All the Blocks a Child Can Use

Building blocks are more than playthings for Baby Jamie and fast-growing John-John. They can be the nutrients in food called amino acids. Readily at hand is a way to develop for infants and toddlers a new and economical food, custom-made from wheat, which contains all the building blocks a child needs to grow and develop—and nearly all the other nutrients to boot. The schematic for this food has been drawn up by research, at the American Institute of Baking in Chicago, on the amino acids in wheat's proteins.

Dr. William Bradley, scientific director of the Institute, has suggested that nutritionists can put into action this schematic for feeding infants and children. At a recent nutrition conference in California on the Role of Wheat in the World's Food Supply, he reported that the milling process sifts out certain wheat flours with an especially high nutritional value. Being concentrated, these flours contain a substantially higher amount of the building block, lysine—apt to be short in cereal grains—than does the wheat berry itself. With cooked cereals made from these flours, infants and toddlers would satisfy their higher protein and lysine requirements, he proposed.

That traditional wheat foods materially meet the nutrient requirements of older children and adults is history. As the major food of large population groups, grains made civilization possible. Wheat had all the building blocks man needed. In light of America's food export program to underdeveloped and hungry nations, the value of wheat takes on added significance. The contribution that bread and other cereal foods can make here and abroad is being studied, recognized, and appreciated.

The money is spent to weave a network of friendship among girls around the world. ## Word From Bernice Anderson

San Francisco, California November 3, 1963

Dear Mr. Cullum: Thank you for changing my address on the mailing list for Mentone News. Last Friday, November 1, I received the issue dated Oct. 9 with the correct address to G-4. Even though the news is late in reaching me, I still like to hear what is happening around Mentone.

I heard about the gas explosion at Indiana State Fairgrounds on the East Network at 11:00 p.m., Friday, Saturday, Nov. 2 issue of Stars and Stripes printed an article and center page of pictures taken in the Coliseum. But no list of dead or injured.

Present plans are for me to remain in Japan for another year.

Yours sincerely,
Bernice Anderson

Kos. Co. H.D. Clubs Meet

A pageant, "Our Ladder of Achievement," given by about 40 Home Demonstration club members, was the feature of the annual Kosciusko County Home Demonstration Clubs Association program held recently at the Boice Theater, Warsaw.

A new young club member was being introduced to the history of the organization by one of the first members. They were on the stage throughout the entire pageant and called for various episodes. On the opposite side of the stage sat "Two Pixies of Time" who placed signs to the rope ladder as it rose before them, each rung a year.

"What We Have Done," covered the outstanding beginnings and achievements as related by the past presidents. "Pennies For Friendship" depicted one home in a foreign land and some of the results from pennies America has sent. "Blue Ribbon Awards" followed next. The queen of the County Fair presented the best of the visible achievements with suitable rewards for each. The last episode, "What We Believe," presented the ideas centered in the Home Demonstration creed and collect.

The pageant was written and directed by Mrs. Glen Whitehead, Warsaw, who has been a member of the Tuesday Afternoon Club for several years. She is the wife of the County Superintendent of Schools and has written other plays and pageants for her church.

Another part of the program was installation of the 1964 county officers and recognition of members and clubs.

Those installed by Mrs. Jacob Tusing Jr., past county president, were: president, Mrs. Amer Koontz; 1st vice president, Mrs. Weldon Kincaide; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Richard Allen; secretary, Mrs. Don Boggs; assistant secretary, Mrs. John Kirkwood; treasurer, Mrs. Martin Stooke; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Dayton Fellows.

Recognition was given to the past county presidents for their continuing service to the county program by presenting them a copy of the booklet, "50 Years of Learning and Service."

Awards were presented to

Dangerous Driving Weather Ahead

Heavy fog always is a peril to motorists, warns the Chicago Motor Club, but it can be especially dangerous this time of year because it is unexpected. However, motorists should be prepared for the worst in October when snow, sleet and fog come without warning.

Fog usually varies in intensity in different stretches of highway. According to their safety and traffic engineering department, this variation in thickness lures motorists to speed up in stretches of good visibility, only to be caught suddenly by a blanket of fog lurking in low areas.

For this reason, it is best to maintain a moderate speed and remain alert throughout the fog area. Parking lights are not easily visible in fog, especially in daytime driving. Motorists should use their headlights, but keep them on low beam as the high beam only reflects back into the driver's eyes.

The motor club advised that if fog becomes so thick that driving becomes hazardous, motorists should find a safe place to wait it out, preferably in a gas station or roadside restaurant. Merely pulling off the road onto the shoulder could cause an accident if other motorists veer off the edge of the highway in low visibility areas.

Planting Of Fruit Trees

Of all the different kinds of fruit trees homeowners can plant, dwarfed apple trees are probably the best for home
planting, say Purdue University extension horticulturists.

Apples are harder than most fruit trees. And dwarfed ones are smaller than standard size
and thus easier to prune, spray and care for. They also bear fruit at a younger age.

Dwarfed apple trees are obtained by grafting the desired variety onto a special rootstock.

They recommend East Malling
IX or Malling Merton 106 rootstocks. They are designated EM IX or MM 106 in catalogs and should be ordered as such.

Plant trees in the late fall
in mild weather, since new root development will occur only when the soil temperature is above 45 degrees F. Or you can have them delivered for early spring planting. Plant at least two varieties for cross pollination.

A word of caution: Before you plant any fruit trees, even the easy to care for dwarfed
apple, think about and be prepared to care for them properly. You will have to spray and prune them regularly. Commercial growers often spray 12 to 15 times each growing season.

Silage For Sows In Winter

Corn silage or grass silage in brood sow rations makes a fair
winter substitute for pasture,
provided the silage is of good quality.

Since silage is a bulky, low-energy feed it needs to be properly supplemented. It would also seem to be somewhat better suited for older sows that have larger capacity than gilts.

Investigating the use of silage for sows the Iowa
and Indiana Experiment Stations daily
fed from 10 to 12 pounds of corn silage
or 7 to 10
pounds of grass silage

to sows and gilts.

While sows might consume more silage if the supplement is fed on top of the silage, this may result in some waste of supplement, so it is usually fed
at another time of day.

Corn silage on account of its corn grain is the higher in energy but is lower in protein,
minerals and vitamins.
The Indiana workers fed 1 1/2
pounds of a 38 percent protein hog supplement daily per sow with corn silage and just enough additional corn to keep the sows in a trim breeding condition. On such rations gilts should gain about a pound a day
and sows about three-quarters of a pound.

The Iowa sows were fed from 2 1/2 to 5 pounds of 20 percent protein supplement a day. Feeding 2 1/2 to 3 pounds a day the first half of the pregnancy and 4 to 5 pounds the last half was considered advisable so as to meet the needs of the sow when the unborn pigs are developing most rapidly. Without silage sows would need from 6 to 8 pounds of a balanced grain mixture daily.

Keep in mind that corn silage
on the air-dry basis has 7 percent total protein and grass silage about 12 percent, where the over-all ration for a sow should have 16 percent protein. It is necessary, therefore, to have a higher protein supplement for the corn silage.

Unless the supplement is well fortified with salt and trace minerals as well as calcium and phosphorus, it won't hurt to let the sows have free access to a divided mineral box with a feeding phosphate on one side and trace mineralized salt on the other. Even if the supplement is fortified, the divided salt-mineral feeding box is a good idea.

Question: How is milk fever
in sows prevented by the use of irradiated yeast?

Answer: According to Ohio and Maine research results, 30 million USP units of vitamin D are fed daily to a cow mixed in her grain beginning three to seven days before the expected
date of calving and one day after calving. Feed this mixture not longer than about eight days.

Indiana Rural Youth To Meet

A message from Indiana Farm Bureau president, George Doup, Columbus, will set the tone for the annual convention of Indiana Rural Youth. The meeting will be November 10-11 in the Murat Temple, Indianapolis.

Doup, who was the first state president of Indiana Rural Youth, will tell his audience, "The Accent Is On Youth." And the young people will add bright accents to the 45th Indiana Farm Bureau convention, which will be in session at the same time. Indiana Farm Bureau is co-sponsor with Purdue University, of the youth organization.

Highlights of the meeting will be a "Talk Meet," Sunday evening, November 10, in which a winner will be selected to represent Indiana in a national speaking contest at the American Farm Bureau convention in Chicago this December. The general subject of the "Talk Meet" is "This I Believe," with the participants speaking extemporaneously on various sub-topics.

Doris Holtsapple, R. 12, Indianapolis, state president, will conduct the business session on November 11 at which Doup will be the featured speaker. In the afternoon, amid colorful banners and slogans, new officers will be elected by the 120 voting delegates.

The annual banquet will be that evening, with Rev. George Taggart, of the First Presbyterian Church at Anderson, as speaker. Rural Youth will then join Indiana Farm Bureau members for an awards program and a reception and dance.

Red Cross Training Program

Classes for the training of volunteer workers will be conducted this month by the Kos-American Red Cross. November is the month set apart annually for the recruitment and training of volunteer workers. Classes will be conducted for volunteers in four Red Cross services, Gray Ladies, Staff Aids, Canteen workers and motor service.

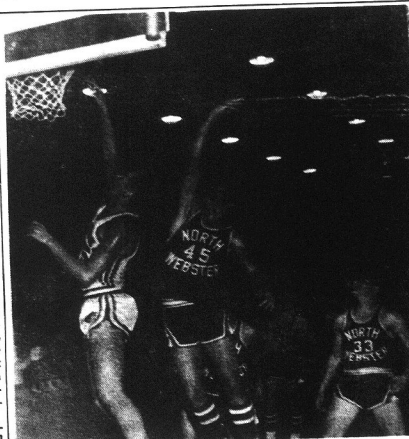

Mrs. Cecil Armstrong, Mrs. George Bowser and Mrs. George Schlemmer, of Warsaw, serve as the training and recruitment committee of the local Red Cross chapter.

On Monday, November 18, personal interview for placement in the various services will be held at the Chapter House, at the corner of Detroit and Market Streets from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. It is essential for any one taking the training course to have had an interview. This provides the volunteer worker the opportunity to ask questions and learn of the work done by each service. She may in turn tell of her special skills and interests.

Classes are scheduled for Monday, November 25, from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Chapter House. On Tuesday, November 26, a session will be held for all groups. There will also be additional on job training for Gray Ladies.

When the children in the family are of school age, perhaps the mother can now find time to serve our community as a volunteer. Dr. Albert Schweitzer, whose life has been lived in service to others, calls volunteering "your second job." "Helpfulness to others," he says, "every man and woman can find on their own doorstep adventures for the soul, our surest source of true peace and lifelong satisfaction."

COUNTERPOINT

By The Editor's Wife

We still find it easier to say "Armistice Day" than "Veterans Day." How well we remember the hysteria and rejoicing of November 7, 1918, when a premature report of peace set off a demonstration which was unmatched by the real thing on November 11, 1918. (I was a fifth grader and had learned to sing "Over There," "There's A Long, Long Trail," "Pack Up Your Troubles In Your Old Kit Bag," and had learned how to knit wash-cloth squares for the soldiers.)

On November 11, 1918, President Wilson told Congress: "Armed imperialism is an old and evil habit which we must seek to remove." The answer has come in the conflicts of World War II and the Korean War.

A portion of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address says that we are in our heart, but unexpressed.

"The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave their last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

When you stop in the News office, be sure to see our old hat rack (we hesitate to use the word antique). It came to us by way of the office in Bourbon, and we like it very much.

In looking through a small catalog sent out by Edith Chapman, Blauvelt, New York, I noticed a "Golden Costumer" which is described thus: "tall or regal to grace a hall, go into a dressing room, or dressing bath, room. Hand made in Italy, it is wrought into painted a soft antique gold. As useful as it is handsome. $15.00."

Well, our "costumer" is hand-made of mahogany, has 8 intricately forged brass hooks, and is, likewise, handsome, and there is no price tag attached.

Mrs. Ott Jeffries brought in a quart of luscious strawberries last Friday. Her vines have been producing since in June. She had turned the chickens loose in the patch, thinking the bearing-season over, when she discovered the ripe berries. (This is one sample which didn't go into the window display. Don't know when I've tasted better strawberries.)

Mrs. Jeffries reports a 21 lb. pumpkin and also a 15 lb. straight-neck squash from her garden.

Do you have a hearing aid which you are not using? Here is a place where it can be used. The following appeal was made in a letter to the local Psi Iota Xi Chapter, from the Indianapolis Speech and Hearing Center.

"There are hundreds of good usable hearing aids that are gathering dust in people's dressers and drawers. We propose to get these into circulation where they will do some good. Each year we get more requests for hearing aids than we can satisfy. The hearing aids we give are to adults over 60 who are not able to purchase their own aid, and to indigent children. We would like you to conduct a search in your community for these usable hearing aids,

Bulldogs Lose To North Caston

Mentone's Bulldogs watched a tall North Caston quintet go red hot in the third period to lose their first contest of the season by a 76-70 count last Friday night.

The Green and White turned a 14-17 first quarter deficit into a 29-27 half time lead, but the hosts tallied five straight times, mostly on Bulldog errand passes in the third quarter, to take a 53-42 lead at the buzzer, with Mentone managing to come back to within five points before the final gun sounded.

Mentone had its troubles snarling defensive rebounds and when John Zolman acquired his fourth foul with a minute gone in the third frame the problems were compounded.

Zolman led the Bulldog attack with 27 counters, but lost game scoring honors to North Caston's Wills with 28. Although Mentone outshot the hosts 31-29 from the free throw 18-8 deficit from the free throw stripe told the tale.

FIRE AT PALESTINE HOME

A fire of unknown origin destroyed the upper part of the Ned Witham home Tuesday afternoon. Burkett and Mentone firemen answered the call.

and send them to our Center."

I thought it was a fine idea when the Laundromat came to town, but the new plan where a busy, busy housewife (or a bachelor, even) can take their laundry in and have it done, is really tops.

An oil stove, being used temporarily at the Bill Lackey home, exploded one day last week. In speaking of the dreadful task of cleaning up the soot, Pearl said, "This is the first time I've ever heard of covering up the furniture to keep people clean when they sat on it."

We enjoyed this:
The teacher of a fourth grade science class asked the students to tell her the names of the four seasons. One little boy answered promptly: "Duck season, rabbit season, pheasant season, and deer season."

Bloodmobile In Etna Green

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Etna Green on Monday, November 18 at the Etna Green Church of Christ between the hours of 12:00 through 6:00 p.m.

The quota of blood to be collected for the day has been set at 125 bottles, which requires at least 170 donor appointments in advance to assure this collection.

This is the first time the Etna Green area has held a blood collection day and preparations are underway for a successful program.

The O.N.O. Club is sponsoring the visit, assisted by various other organizations of the community, who are making a door to door campaign as well as telephoning every eligible person in and around the community to enlist their blood appointment.

These volunteer recruiters, many of whom have given blood and many of whom have experienced the need for blood in their families are urging all persons between the ages of 18 and 59 to make an appointment now while health permits.

The importance of an adequate supply of blood for the county at all times cannot be overestimated. The ready availability of whole blood for immediate use might well save the life of a member of your family or a friend. Only human beings are able to manufacture blood for medical purposes, therefore, it is imperative that donors continue their generosity toward others in giving to keep a constant supply available.

There is never any charge for Red Cross blood itself, and it is available to any resident of this county regardless of where hospitalized in a participating hospital. Transportation will be furnished for any and all persons so requesting it. Blood giving is simple and takes about an hour. All donors are checked by authorized medical personnel for health conditions before being allowed to give. As more demands are placed on the stockpile of human blood, there is never any opportunity for surplus, therefore, it is vital that we each do our part by making an appointment and giving at the Etna Green visit.

The Etna Green recruitment chairman is Mrs. Tony Hight, assisted by Mrs. Lawrence Ulmer. Also Mrs. Joseph Boggs, Mrs. Rex Yazel and Dick Whittenberger are the Mentone recruiters. Mrs. Loren Hahn of Scott Township, the Etna Green and Atwood Lions Clubs, along with merchants and business places of both towns, are contributing their assistance and enlisting donors from their respective areas.

All 25 members of the O.N.O. Club and the Junior O.N.O. Club are furnishing and preparing the necessary food.

Appointments may be made at the Warsaw chapter office by calling 267-5244 or by contacting any of the above mentioned recruiters.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Thompson of Route 1, Mentone, are the parents of a 7 lb. 10 oz. daughter born at 1:07 a.m. Friday. The mother is the former Patricia Holloway. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Herman Holloway of Route 1, Mentone.

Taxpayers Assoc. Meets

Monday evening, November 11, the Tippecanoe Valley Taxpayers Association met at the Mentone School. Chairman, Al Orcutt, opened the meeting and the minutes from the previous meeting were read. There were not as many present as had been to the last meeting, and possibly this was due to the meeting falling on a holiday.

Nothing definite was decided as far as business was concerned. The group discussed several questions concerning the area by a school board, who hears from the public, and knows how the people feel. The policy of the taxpayers association is still the same—to handle all business in a mannerly way, whether in their own meetings or in appearing before the school board. Certainly no one can complain about this. This speaks well for an organization!

The next taxpayers meeting is scheduled for Monday evening, December 9 in Akron. The place will be announced at a later date.

This reporter would like to add that if school patrons and taxpayers are really interested in keeping abreast of T.V.S.C.'s affairs as they say they are, then these same folks will make a real effort to attend both the taxpayers association meetings and the school board meetings.

The idea that "nothing can be done" and that "my attendance won't change things" is ALL WRONG. If enough interested people will express themselves by their presence or by voice, then, and only then, will we actually have a corporation from their public, and know how the people feel. The policy of the taxpayers association is still the same—to handle all business in a mannerly way, whether in their own meetings or in appearing before the school board. Certainly no one can complain about this. This speaks well for an organization!

Letter To The Editor

In the column "Counterpoint," written by the editor's wife, for the Mentone News, dated Nov. 6, 1963, mention was made of but one fatal traffic accident on the streets in our city's history. Much comment was made upon this bit of news consisting mostly of wonder that this could be, and gratitude that our fatal accidents were so few. However, the man injured in this accident was not a native of our town. If he had been one of our citizens he would probably have been living yet today, or at least would have died from natural causes.

The answer to the above statement is perfectly obvious. The motor traffic in our city has been unsupervised and undirected. Cars screech around corners, run stop signs, back half way down a block in heavy traffic, and park at the intersection in No Parking zones. Main St. east, is one of the best motor speedways in the state. There is only one better, at Indianapolis. From Bill Lackey's home to the Methodist Church is one of the fastest stretches, it being a little downgrade.

Great good has come from the present situation. Past generations have handed down this inheritance: an instinctive alertness to scramble, dodge, or run, to escape injury by ramming motor cars and roaring, grinding trucks. This trait is as natural to the Mentone folks as it is for a squirrel to scamper up a tree, a bird to fly, or a gopher to duck into his burrow to escape danger.

Mrs. Price Dies Tuesday

Mrs. Alfred (Pearl) Haney Price, 86, of Route 1, Silver Lake, died of complications Tuesday at her home.

Mrs. Price, who had been in failing health for three months, was born at Silver Lake October 15, 1877 to Jacob and Mary (Gager) Haney. She was married July 13, 1896 to Alfred Price, who preceded her in death in 1961. A lifetime resident of the Silver Lake area, Mrs. Price was a member of the Center E.U.B. Church.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Ottilie Walburn, of Mentone, and Mrs. Juanita Crowell, of Detroit; two sons, Herbert Price, of Claypool, and Gallo Price, of Liberty Mills; one sister, Mrs. Maud Harold, of Tulsa, Oklahoma; one step-sister, Mrs. Zena Nagle, of Ventura, California; eight grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Final rites were held at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Center E.U.B. Church with Rev. I. E. Longenbaugh officiating. Burial was in the Lakeview cemetery.

With The Sick

Christine Hyde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hyde, underwent an emergency appendectomy Sunday at the Murphy Medical Center in Warsaw.

Mrs. Russell Eber was in the Rochester Woodlawn Hospital last week for tests and observation. She has been dismissed now and is feeling fine.

Miss Mary Norris underwent minor surgery Tuesday at the Murphy Medical Center in Warsaw.

Mrs. Ralph Warren had the misfortune of falling and breaking her arm in two places just above the wrist.

Ed Bowser is much better after suffering a blood clot in the leg several weeks ago. He has returned to his work.

Mrs. Ina Davis is recovering nicely from injuries received in a car accident last week.

Mike McFarland, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul McFarland, of Akron, has returned home from the Murphy Medical Center, where he underwent surgery for a ruptured spleen suffered when he and Stan Davis collided while practicing basketball at Akron school.

World War II Mothers Anniversary Meeting

The 20th anniversary and guest night of Mothers of World War II was held Monday at the Methodist Church with a carry-in supper at 6:30 p.m.

The program featured several selections by the girl's chorus of the school and the principle speaker was Rev. Glenn Campton, pastor of the church. He spoke on "Life And Its Meaning," which was greatly enjoyed by all.

During the business session, plans were made to pack Christmas boxes for the overseas veterans. A Christmas program and plans to attend the district meeting to be held at Walton on November 14 were planned.

Two articles, General McArthur's prayer and a Thanksgiving poem written by a war mother, were read by the acting president, Dora Whetstone.

Several short talks were given by each of the guests, which were from Rochester, Palestine and Mentone.

The unit closed by retiring the colors, prayer by the chaplain and singing "God Bless America."

The social time was enjoyed by all.

Miss Mary Craigmile of Knox, Indiana called on Mrs. Hazel Linn Wednesday forenoon. Miss Craigmile was on the way to speak at the Samuel Huntington D.A.R. chapter of Huntington. She is a close friend of Mrs. Hazel Linn and Mrs. Frank Smith.

NEWS NOTES from our County Agent DONALD E. FRANTZ

One of the best bargains in today's food market is locally produced apples. The color and quality is good and the prices are reasonable. You sure can't beat four or five cents a pound
as is about the price in bushel lots.

Maybe the kids would enjoy building a tile storage for apples. About all it takes is a big tile and a hole dug below the frost line and a little straw on leaves to insulate it and some hardware cloth. We have directions on building one if anyone should be interested.

Roses should be protected
above the crown before the soil freezes solid. The soil should be mounded up eight or ten inches.
Shrubs of other kinds can be protected from some winter injury by mulching. Leaves or peat moss or any other material can provide good material for this purpose. This should be done after the ground freezes.

Some of the pastures have been grazed down very closely this fall. This will cause a possibility of the legumes being crowded out of the digestive tract of the animals. A good fertilizer early next spring will help these fields that have been pushed pretty hard. A couple hundred pounds per acre should be a big help to them.

There may be more than a usual amount of feeder lambs in the county this fall. We have seen some very nice flocks. So far they have been running in corn fields and pasture and will go on full feed soon. This problem of "Overfeeding disease" is always with us and should be watched pretty closely.

It is named as it is because of the fact that the best doing lambs are affected usually. In reality it is a toxin produced by a germ in the digestive tract of the lambs and they are most susceptible when they go on a full feed of grain.

The best insurance is to vaccinate them before they go on full feed.

Quality eggs are spoiled
through improper washing more than by any other cause. To avoid losses, produce as few dirty eggs as possible and wash
only those that need washing.

Proper methods of washing eggs have been proved by research. If followed completely, washed eggs need not be a trouble source in egg marketing. The cause of the problem is bacteria, because bacteria,

hot washing, cause eggs to spoil.
Wash eggs soon after they are laid and in water which is warmer than the eggs. It should be about as warm as a person can stand with the hands, 110 to 120 degrees.

A recommended detergentsanitizer should be used in the egg washing water. Do not use a household laundry detergent
and attempt to add a sanitizer.

Nature provides a "bloom" or seal cover on the outside of the shell. Washing removes this protection, making it easier for bacteria from the shell surface

to enter the egg through the thousands of tiny pores in the shell. It is essential to replace
"nature's cover" with disinfectant (sanitizer) to prevent the bacteria from entering the egg.

After eggs are washed, the sanitizer must be allowed to dry on the shell surfaces as a protection against infections
which cause interior spoilage.
Like dairy equipment, the washer should be cleaned regularly to prevent a build-up of bacteria and fungus.

Change the wash water often and never hold from one washing period to the next.

Making A Connection

There's a telephone here on my desk in Washington. Every day it rings with calls from people back home in Indiana. There is a phone at your house, too,
but probably I have never been the voice at the other end of the line—there are a lot of Hoosiers! A lot of you are not in South Bend and Terre Haute and Indianapolis, either, but in places like Corydon and Batesville and Rensselaer.

But you read the papers—
papers like the Albany Chronicle and the Pike County Dispatch and all the other 229
Indiana weeklies as well as its 89 dailies. I can't call up each of you in your home town, much as I'd like to. There are many things we could talk about if I did, things that concern you and your family.

So that is why "Senator Hartke Speaking." Your editor is at the switchboard; he can plug us
in every week if he wants to,
or just once in a while when he thinks you may want to hear what I have to say. And I hope you will talk back to me—if you don't, it's not a conversation. And whenever possible,
we want to get to know you in person.

For instance, a man came in to see me in my office the other day, a truck driver. He owns his own rig, leases it to a trucking firm and drives it all over the country. He had just delivered a trailer to Richmond, Virginia, and said he "brought my Sunday suit along," as he put it, "to do a little lobbying."
He wanted to talk about Social Security. He is past retirement age, but he can draw only $53 a month, because his net income has been so low. As an "independent contractor" he is self-employed, but to get steady work for his truck he pays all his own gas, insurance, and other expenses out of the 19c a mile the firm allows. ("I eat a lot of hamburgers," he says.)

Lots of people, like this man, cannot live on Social Security payments, but if they keep on working their benefits are withheld from their earnings from wages go up. Yet you can have unlimited earnings from rents, dividends and interest. This is unfair; once you have earned Social Security benefits you should be entitled to them. I have twice been able to get favorable amendments, and am now for the third time trying to repeal entirely the earnings limitation for those on Social Security.

Like Mr. Roher, you will be welcome any time you can come in to see me. We have a guest book for you to sign, and we have special passes so that you can sit in the gallery of Congress as my guest, and maybe we can help some other way. In the meantime, I'll be chatting with you, courtesy of your editor, as every week I "pick up my phone" to talk with you in this way.

If you must plant a lawn in late fall, add rye grass to the mixture for quick cover, mulch
with peat, coars of straw and keep moist, recommend Purdue University turf specialists.

County Groups Honored In State Farm Bureau Awards

A gala awards program staged
as a disc jockey show was a highlight of Monday's program at the Indiana Farm Bureau convention. Several Farm Bureaus and Rural Youth clubs in this eight-county district won "Oscars" and "Emmys."

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau was honored as the first county in the district to exceed its 1962 membership. The winning membership chairman was Mrs. Edna Stahl of Auburn.
Other Farm Bureaus in the district which scored significant membership increases were Allen, Elkhart, Kosciusko, Noble, LaGrange, Steuben and Whitley counties.

In the Rural Youth awards, Kosciusko County club placed second in the state with its safety program. The chairman was James Eaton of Mentone.
The Noble County Rural Youth Club won a state title in the mixed league bowling division of the sports program.

During the evening, county commodity programs—aimed at improving marketing conditions and increasing use of farm products—were also cited for achievement during 1963.

In this district, Kosciusko County Farm Bureau won first place for its dairy program, with Don Boggs, R. 2, Leesburg, chairman; and first place for its livestock program, with Charles Decker, R. 2, Claypool, chairman.

Elkhart County Farm Bureau
also won two first place citations. One was for its field crops program, with Elvin Thornton, R. 5, Elkhart, chairman; the other for poultry program, with Harold Umbaugh, R. 1, New Paris, chairman. Allen County Farm Bureau won first place for its fruits and vegetables program with Don Emenhiser, R. 7, Fort Wayne, chairman.

The second place commodity
awards went to Elkhart County Farm Bureau for its dairy program which Glen Honderich, R.
1, Middlebury, headed; and for its livestock program, with Loyal Stuckman, R. 1, Nappanee, chairman.

Continue to mow your lawn

turf specialists. Continue the two inch cutting height maintained throughout the summer.

Purdue University horticulturists recommend watering evergreens around your home this fall and winter. Much so-called "winter injury" is a result of insufficient water in the fall and winter.

WASHINGTON AND

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

For a long time, the nation's independent business proprietors, voting through the National Federation of Independent Business, have requested Congress to take government out of private business.

Much has been accomplished, but inasmuch as government encroachment in private business to provide more and more jobs for more and more bureaucrats is many-headed by C. W. Harder, there are still many heads to be chopped before the final solution is reached.

A case at point is the practice of many federal agencies, and some states, to carry on their payrolls huge staffs of engineers. This has resulted in a decline in the use of private engineering firms, with a resultant heavy cost to the public.

At the present time the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Park Service, and many others have become "engineer happy."

No one so far can come up with the true figures on what this is costing the taxpayers.

Perhaps best insight into the appalling waste involved is the example of the mammoth California highway building programs, where figures and data do exist. Most of this is paid for, of course, by Federal grants.

In addition, the California highway department maintains a staff of engineers, using no private engineering firms. The engineering costs are startling.

The most recent year on which figures are available, 1957-58, $213,083,112 worth of highway work was done in California. The engineering costs were $41,082,749, or 23.95% of the total cost of the completed roads.

In the same period, using private engineering firms, the Texas Turnpike Authority built $36 million worth of roads with an engineering cost of only 8.43% Illinois Toll Highway Commission almost $250 million worth with engineering costing 9.62%, the Florida Turnpike Commission built $43 million worth with an engineering cost of 7.85%.

The average, where states do not maintain the luxury of huge engineering staffs, is about 9%. Thus, the taxpayers to the State of California, as well as all taxpayers who contribute to the federal grants to California roads, pay 15% more to help maintain a huge California bureaucracy. In one year this amounted to over $41 million.

Or to put it another way, for every 100 miles of highway built in Florida only 84 miles can be built in California.

With California finding this luxury so expensive, it causes shudders to even try to contemplate what the Federal government waste on engineering costs totals. But it all seems to follow a pattern. Socialize engineering, then take the next step. Eventually, everybody could be either on the government payroll, or relief, and the theme song in Washington will then be "I wonder where the taxpayer went!"

cause there were so many outstanding contenders.

The four girls who were judged the best by 14 members of the high school faculty are as follows: Becky Gast, Susan Yarian, Vicki Cox and Luanna Teel.

These four girls will lead the yells at all freshman games. They are practicing the yells and each girl has a new outfit.

Akron Flyers Invade Claypool
The Akron Flyers invaded Claypool last Friday night after their stinging defeat at the hands of a high powered South Whitley quintet (County and Sectional champs last year).

Akron played a good ball game the first half of the South Whitley game, but ran out of gas the second half. When Akron puts together two halves like the first half of last week's game, they will be hard to stop.

Claypool is looking for a victory after being defeated by Milford last week. However, Akron is showing a lot of promise and should be a hard team to beat.

American Education Week

November 10-16 is American Education Week. During this week, emphasis on education will be evident through television, radio and newspapers throughout the country.

Senior Scholarships

Senior students at Akron High School are eligible to apply for 400 four-year scholarships offered by General Motors for more than 200 colleges and universities. There is no restriction on course of study or career. Stipends range from an honorary award of $200 to a maximum of $2,000 per year, depending on demonstrated need.

Participating colleges have full discretion in the awarding of the scholarships. Their scholarship committees review the applicants' high school academic records, available entrance test scores, participation in extra-curricular activities and leadership traits. Interested students should see their high school counselors for details and write to the directors of admissions at any of the participating colleges.

Any secondary school senior or graduate who is a citizen of the United States is eligible for consideration. The initial awards are made to entering freshmen and may be renewed through the normal four undergraduate years for those with satisfactory records.

The participating institutions include 131 private and 76 public colleges and universities in 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

Poultry Industry
Big Business

The following note from the November issue of Poultry and Processing Magazine, submitted by one of our country's large poultry producers at Burket, gives us a little insight into the dollar value of the poultry industry.

The article follows:
Last year poultry and eggs accounted for $3.2 billion of farm income.

This was more than producers got from all other farm products except meat animals and dairy products.

Poultry and eggs provided more farm income than wheat ($2 billion)... more than cotton ($2.5 billion)... more than tobacco ($1.3 billion).

Tell that to your Congressman! Tell it to the businessmen up and down Main Street! Tell it... and tell it...

tell it again—until the public begins to get a picture of the BIGNESS of this industry and realize its IMPORTANCE as a source of the dollars that are spent in your community.

Granite grit makes good nest litter because it stays in the nest and holds dirty eggs to a minimum, point out Purdue University poultry scientists.

Indiana's 1963 peach crop, harvest of which has just been completed, is estimated at 10,000 bushels, 10 per cent of the 1962 production and two per cent of normal, say state-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University.

Cadette Girl Scout News

During the past few weeks we have been making plans for the first four challenges, the social dependability challenge. We are having some people come and talk to us about good grooming and hairstyles. The other three challenges we will be working on in the future are: emergency preparedness, active citizenship, and the Girl Scout promise.

We have also been planning on going to Chicago in the spring. We will need some new members to help make this project a success.

Our Beatnik Band has been playing quite often. We played twice for the Eastern Star and enjoyed it a lot. On November 9th we played at the Juliette Low program. We won a prize as the most entertaining skit. Towards the end of the month, we will be selling nuts and calories. December 7th we will have a bake sale and early in the spring we want to have a rummage sale.

Too Many Vitamins Spoil The Formula

Warning to vitamin happy Americans: you may be doing yourself more harm than good. Too many vitamins are dangerous, say dieticians at the University of Michigan Medical Center. Overnutrition can be as serious as malnutrition, causing irritability, skin disorders, and kidney and stomach ailments. Youngsters in particular are victimized by overfortified formulas; actually the healthy baby adolescent needs no vitamins to supplement balanced meals. Vitamins, the researchers say, are best taken in nature's "packages"—vegetables, fruits, milk, meats and whole grain or enriched bread and cereal.

Paint that looks like the ordinary thing yet has the unique ability to insulate against fire has been developed for outdoor use by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Exposed to flame, it develops a thick, carbon-containing layer that acts as a fire-retardant barrier. The experimental paint contains oil from tung nuts.

In this age of science we have come to expect a great deal from machines, but these words of caution are from a machine maker. L. L. Crawford, vice president of Allbright-Nell, Chicago, a leading manufacturer of machinery for the meat packing industry, has warned packers that new and better machines will not solve their profits problem. Crawford's advice: first improve sales and purchasing techniques and then look to machines.

Reflective license plates are urged by the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators to reduce night time traffic accidents. More than half of 1962's auto deaths—some 22,000 out of 49,000—happened after dark despite greatly reduced traffic volume.

Botulism toxin is the most deadly poison known to man. One one-hundred billionth (1/100,000,000,000) of a gram will kill a man.

Britain's puzzling (to non-Britons) pound, shilling and pence currency system is far from being abandoned though the government has made the basic decision to change to the decimal system. The problem is how to divide the pound, worth about $2.80, into 100 units. The changeover will cost at least $200 million over a two year period, mostly to replace cash registers, adding machines and vending machines.

Doup Says Sales Tax 'Will Stand'

Indianapolis, Nov. 11—George Doup, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau, today predicted "the sales tax law will stand." He said it seems unlikely that the U.S. Supreme Court will reverse the Indiana Supreme Court's unanimous decision upholding its constitutionality.

In his annual message to the 2,500 delegates attending the 45th convention of the state Farm Bureau, he called upon farmers and other property taxpayers to be ready to defend the sales tax at the next session of the General Assembly.

Speaking to a packed house in the Murat Temple here, Doup emphasized the importance of foreign trade to the farmers of Indiana and the nation. "Foreign trade is our best opportunity for market expansion," he said. "The . . . 'chicken war' between the common market countries of Europe and the United States dramatizes the necessity of keeping down the barriers to trade." He said it is an "illusion" to believe that setting of prices and dividing of markets is preferable to an "open door" trade policy. Lowering of trade barriers in recent years has been beneficial, the farm leader said. He pointed out that this has been accomplished by lessening, not increasing trade restrictions.

The Bureau president said that selling of wheat to Russia should not be part of any policy package softening our opposition to communism. "If such sales are interpreted as U. S. capitulation to communism, the price is far too great a payment for modestly reducing the grain surplus, slightly lessening the total tax cost, and affecting a minor improvement in the United States balance of payments. In the end, it will not promote our pursuit of peace."

In regard to national farm legislation, Doup interpreted the results of the May 21 Wheat Referendum as an undeniable indication that farmers want a change in the direction of farm programs. Farmers indicated by their vote that they preferred to cultivate crops rather than . . . Congressmen. Farmers did not necessarily vote against any government farm program. They did not . . . vote enthusiastically for the wheat program choice that prevailed. They really voted for a change in direction of farm programs.

"The wheat vote did, however, throw the forces backing a multi-price wheat program on to the horns of a dilemma," Doup claimed. The Secretary of Agriculture cannot risk another defeat, especially during an election year, "so it seems probable that (he) will not call for a Wheat Referendum next year and will justify this by juggling the wheat figures," the Farm Bureau president explained.

He spoke on other issues:

1. Called the establishment of "The Indiana Vocational-Technical College the most forward-looking development in improving our educational system of this half-century.

2. Applauded the efforts of fruit and vegetable growers to form cooperative marketing associations.

3. Reported on Farm Bureau sponsored research by Purdue to develop a new type of alfalfa that eliminates the problem of winter kill, caused by heaving.

4. Urged Farm Bureau members to take a more active part in local affairs to see that "increased tax funds from state revenue (not) be dissipated into spending programs that are not necessary."

Indiana's 1963 production of red clover seed is expected to total 6,300,000 pounds of clean seed, report state-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University. This is 10 per cent smaller than the 1962 crop.

To avoid foot rot in sheep, trim their feet every autumn and spring—often if necessary, say Purdue University animal scientists. Foot rot organisms spread in mud, so fill up holes around gates, barn lots and pastures.

If you noticed Indiana strawberries were hard to find last summer, you're right. State-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University report the 1963 crop was 3,910,000 pounds, nearly one-fourth smaller than in 1962.

Cooking Tips For Venison

If your hunter comes home with venison, don't despair, you can cook it in the same ways you cook beef.

Depending on its tenderness, cook venison by either of two general methods, advises Marjorie Allen, Purdue University food specialist.

For the tender cuts use dry heat methods, such as roasting, broiling and pan frying. For less tender cuts use moist heat methods, such as braising, stewing and pot roasting. Grind some of the less tender meat for deerburgers and meat loaf.

Because most venison has little fat, lay strips of bacon or beef suet across it when roasting, broiling or pan frying.

Loin and rib sections give the best roasts and steaks for broiling and pan-broiling. The chuck or rump are good for pot roasts and ground meat. The round will make good swiss steaks. Shank, neck and flanks can be used for stews and ground meat.

Enjoy the distinct flavor of venison, Miss Allen recommends. But if you think the game flavor will be too strong, trim away the excess fat. You might also use a highly seasoned sauce, made with garlic, onion, tomatoes, spices or herbs, to mask the "gamey" flavor.

Grow Beautiful African Violets

Would you like to grow beautiful African violets? Then grow them under fluorescent lights, advises Don Scheer, Purdue University extension horticulturist. Chances of having beautiful plants increase when you grow them under fluorescent lights, since you can control the amount of light exactly.

The only equipment you need to get started is a reflector and two 40-watt fluorescent tubes. Place your plants 12 inches from the tubes, and you will have an area four feet long by one and a half feet wide for plant growing. Or better still, place the plants so the top of the leaves is about six inches from the tubes, and grow them in a row six inches wide underneath the light. The closer spacing will give you a higher light intensity—and better flowering.

Keep your lights on from 16 to 18 hours a day. Lighting plants all day and all night is not as good as 16 to 18 hours. African violets thrive with fluorescent light. But remember, lights are an aid to good growing, not a substitute for proper violet care.

For further information, drop a post card to the Agricultural Publications Office, Purdue University, Lafayette, 47907. Request Mimeo HO-74-1, "House Plants Under Artificial Light." Single copies are free to Indiana residents. This publication is also available from County extension offices.

Sparkling Storm Windows

For sparkling storm windows, Elkin Minter, Purdue University home management specialist, recommends either spray on compounds or cleaning solutions. If you choose a spray on compound, apply and wipe it off with a lintless cloth or squeegee, then polish with a dry lintless cloth or chamois.

Homemade cleaning solutions are easy to mix, according to Miss Minter. Three solutions she recommends are made by adding two tablespoonsful household ammonia to two quarts of warm water, or two tablespoonsful vinegar to two quarts warm water, or one tablespoonful of borax to two quarts warm water.

When using any of these solutions apply and wipe them off with a lintless cloth. Then polish with a dry lintless cloth or chamois.

For hard-to-remove spots, use fine scouring powder. Remove this before it dries so it won't settle on the frames.

To clean very soiled glass, wipe it first with a damp cloth, crumpled newspapers, or paper towel before using one of the above cleaning methods.

To eliminate streaking, wash windows out of the sun and avoid using soap. Follow all safety precautions when putting up storm windows. Work with a partner and keep small children away from windows and ladders.

State-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University estimate the 1963 Indiana commercial apple crop at 1,085,000 bushels, 41 per cent smaller than last year.

White or green grapes are at their best when they begin to turn amber. Well colored grapes indicate optimum flavor and sweetness, says Purdue University's produce marketing specialist.

Because most venison has little fat, Purdue University food specialists recommend placing strips of bacon or beef suet across it when roasting, broiling or pan frying.

Stuffing A Child Into A Snowsuit

(From The Kiplinger Changing Times)

Some years ago a man invented a way to make a bed in three seconds flat. He could jump up in the morning, pull a handle that was attached to ropes that ran through a series of pulleys, and presto, the sheets, blankets and spread were pulled up, smoothed out and tucked in.

Unfortunately, the name of this man has been lost, but if he reads these words it is hoped that he will get in touch with the National Association for the Relief of Maternal Frustration. His services are needed to help cope with this year's snowsuit crisis, which is worse than usual due to the vast increase in the number of people under five years old, coupled with the normal winter epidemic of rubberleg.

As a result, woman-snowfall have sky rocketed and no one is benefiting except the manufacturers of before-dinner tranquilizers.

Rubberleg, of course, is the disease that afflicts small children when Mother is trying to draw on the arm or leg of a snowsuit. As she applies pressure, the limb inside suddenly turns to rubber. Instead of a foot or hand popping through the opening, the whole leg or arm collapses like a piece of damp macaroni causing the maternal frustration.

Efforts have, it is true, been made to ease the crisis. One man in Massachusetts is said a machine based on the principle by which aluminum is extruded into various shapes. There is a kind of grooved track. At one end is a set of hollow forms over which the legs of the snowsuit are pulled.

At the other end is a large compression screw operated by a wheel. After the child is inserted in the machine, a quick spin of the wheel forces him, or her, feet first into the suit.

One objection to this machine is that it cannot handle arms, but this may have been overcome by a lady in northern Wisconsin who has sent in drawing of a piece of equipment based on a different principle. The main part is a large bobbin-type threader similar to those used to re-thread the draw-cord in pajamas. The bobbin is attached to a short length of nylon cord, which is tied around the child's leg or arm. The bobbin is then threaded into the appropriate opening in the snowsuit and the leg or arm drawn neatly through.

Various devices have been developed to fight the epidemic of rubberleg. A typical one consists of a set of splints with a quick release attachment. The splints are clamped around each leg and arm in turn, which is then inserted in the suit. At the end of each operation a rip cord is pulled which collapses the splints and allows them to be with drawn through the zipper opening.

The snowsuit manufacturers who must accept a good deal of responsibility in this matter, also may be awakening to the crying need for improvement in their product. One experimental model being dummy-tested consists of an X-frame to which the child is strapped. The snowsuit itself comes in five pieces, two arms, two legs and a kind of vest affair that covers the body. After the child is attached to the frame, the left arm and right leg are put on and connected by an elastic clip-strap. Then the right arm and left leg are similarly attached. Finally the vest affair is zipped over all. Live testing in selected nursery schools will begin as soon as the engineers iron out the last bug in the equipment—how to get the child unstrapped from the frame.

Unfortunately, none of these models will be available commercially for use this winter. Mothers, nursery school teachers and others should remember, however, that there is an old-fashioned remedy to fall back on. It has been used by generations of women, occasionally with success: Pray for an early spring.

Ford Custom Car Caravan Slated For Area Appearance Nov. 7-10

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS—The Ford Custom Car Caravan—a display of customized and high performance vehicles manned by some of the nationally known experts who build or race them—will be a feature of the 1963 Annual International Rod & Custom Show to be held at the Navy Pier, November 7-10.

COUNTERPOINT

By The Editor's Wife

The "Siamese twins" potato in our display window was grown by O. R. Koser. He had some white potatoes which weighed two lbs. and better apiece, also.

The large friendly dog, who has made his home with Doctor Urschels for the past five years, is dead. Before that he had "participated" in space and pressure experiments at the medical school in Chicago.

He was a gentle fellow and had a fear of trucks. Ruth suggested that he was of such a non-violent disposition that he probably would help a burglar "buckle."

One of his clever tricks was the ability to push open the overhead garage door with his nose and slip underneath quickly before the door came closed again. Some instinct prompted him to be very stealthy about this, as he always waited until no one was watching (so he thought). Until his unique talent was discovered, it was quite a puzzle as to how the dog could have gotten inside the garage.

Our community is getting excited about the approaching 100th birthday anniversary of a long-time resident, Mrs. Emma Yocum. Plans are being made for a tea in her honor at the Methodist Church. Her birthday is on Sunday, December 1. We think it would be a fine idea for all of her friends to send a card of congratulations on this occasion which is of such special interest to all of us.

Did you know that President Lincoln was invited to speak at the dedication of Gettysburg on "second thought?"

Did you know that Lincoln's "silly remarks" followed a two-hour address by Edward Everett (one word of which is not recalled today)?

Did you know that Lincoln himself said of his speech, "It is a flat failure and the people are disappointed?"

Here are some of the negative comments which various newspapers made at the time:

In nearby Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, the Patriot and Union, remarked: "We paid for the silly remarks of the President. For the credit of the nation we are willing that the veil of oblivion shall be dropped over them, and that they shall be no more repeated or thought of."

Lincoln's home town paper, the Illinois State Register, protested: "Nothing could have been more inappropriate than to have invited that prince of jokers, Old Abe, to be present at the consecration of the Gettysburg Cemetery."

The Chicago Times added: "The cheek of every American must tingle with shame as he reads the silly, flat, and dishwater utterances of the man who has to be pointed out to intelligent foreigners as the President of the United States." And the London Times observed that the inauguration of the cemetery at Gettysburg was an imposing ceremony, but was rendered "ludicrous by the more luckless sallies of that poor President Lincoln." It said that anything "more dull and commonplace it would not be easy to produce."

Some favorable comments were made, also. The Philadelphia Daily Evening Bulletin commented: "The President's brief speech of dedication is most happily expressed. It is warm, earnest, unaffected and touching."

The Providence Daily Journal asked, "Could the most elaborate and studied oration be more beautiful, more touching, more inspiring than those few thrills

Report On P.T.A.
Penny Supper

The number of chicken pies sold this year at the annual P.T.A. penny supper surpassed all other years with a total of 114. Last year's high of 89 was the highest of any previous year, and this year proved to be even better.

Mrs. Agnes Rans just has a way with chicken pie that can't be duplicated. People from miles around came especially for a piece of the chicken pie.

The P.T.A. feels it was an especially good evening, with a steady flow of folks coming in to eat.

The Ways and Means committee appreciated all who helped in any way. A big thank you to all.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Miner are the parents of a new daughter born Tuesday evening at the Woodlawn Hospital in Rochester. She weighed 6 lbs. and has been named Sally.

With The Sick

Lester Rogers suffered a heart attack last Thursday and is now at home in bed under a doctor's care. He must remain quiet for awhile.

Mrs. Kenneth Wagner, secretary at Hales & Hunter, is confined to her home with quite a serious lung congestion.

Christine Hyde was dismissed from the Murphy Medical Center Saturday after undergoing an emergency appendectomy the Sunday before.

Mrs. Ruth Ayres was dismissed from the Whitley County hospital on Wednesday, however, she is still confined to her bed. She is at her home near Sidney. Mrs. Ayres is the mother of Mrs. Loren Tridle.

Mrs. Wayne Nellans has been admitted to the Murphy Medical Center in Warsaw.

Mrs. Oliver Teel is home now after being in South Bend Memorial Hospital for five days for tests and minor surgery.

ing words of the President?"

The Detroit Advertiser and Tribune said the speech caught "the unstudied pathos that animate a sincere but simple-hearted man."

Today, on the spot where he gave his immortal address, stands the only monument ever erected in our land of America to commemorate a speech.

Isn't it too bad that it takes the eroding forces of time to prove what is of enduring quality?

Our sturdy bird feeder is finally in place and "ready for customers." The editor fastened it to the TV antenna which is just outside the kitchen window. Now we have two feeders to watch (and keep filled).

We enjoyed this: An Eskimo won a trip to New York City as a prize for catching the most seals in a season. When he returned home, he brought with him a length of pipe, which he set up in his igloo so that it protruded through the roof.

His wife asked what it was for, and he replied: "That's a trick I learned in New York. When you want more heat you bang on this pipe."

P.T.A. Holds
Open House

Last Wednesday evening the P. T. A. held its annual open house during National Education Week. President, Lee Norris, welcomed the parents and teachers and then introduced John Claypool, minister of the Church of Christ. Mr. Claypool gave some timely thoughts on "Education Takes A Long Time."

The kindergarten class, Mrs. Florence McKinley as teacher, won the grade count for the evening.

A new instructor in the Mentone School, Mrs. Harker, was introduced. She is helping with the overload in the English department.

Mrs. Paul Rush, as guest speaker, told of the activities, aims and goals of that department. She quoted several famous celebrities who have made comments on the importance of learning to communicate when in school. This department of English teaches speech, literature, grammar and language.

A large number of parents, teachers, pupils and school patrons were present for this Open House. Following the short business meeting and program in the gymnasium, the group was dismissed to visit the various rooms and departments. Refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

Jim Whetstone showed rapid recovery from a previously injured ankle and pumped in 25 points, with 13 coming in the third period when the hosts broke into a 53-33 lead. Larry East and Lynn Parker also turned in good floor games with 15 assists between them.

Thieves broke into the Dickerhoff Trucking Company early Tuesday morning. The Farmers State Bank announced this week that it will make non-profit loans to college students under the national United Student Aid Funds program.

NEWS NOTES

County Agent DONALD E. FRANTZ

The first meeting of the new Better Farming-Better Living group will be held December 5th rather than November 19th.
These will be day time meetings
and the corn crop is not coming out as fast as had been expected
so the postponement was made to not interfere with the corn picking. Two other meetings with the group are scheduled for December 19th and the last one during the week of January 6th.

More than half the wheat acreage in the state harvested

in 1963 was on the Monon variety. This new variety that was just introduced about four years ago, has caught the interest of wheat producers better than nearly any variety ever has.
Rarely will half the acreage go to any one variety.

In 1961 the most popular wheat variety was Dual with 25 per cent of the total production. Knox held the spot light for a number of years with 36
per cent of the acreage in 1959,
with over 40 per cent in 1957,
and over 54 per cent in 1955.
Before that it was Vigo that was the top variety of wheat in Indiana for about three years. It had over 50 per cent of the acreage in 1954. Prior to that time Fairfield, Fultz and Thorne were the leading wheat varieties
in use in this state.

No one variety of oats had a wide margin of popularity in the state last year. Clintland 60 was most widely used but there were six different varieties each with over 10 per cent each with over 10 per cent of the acreage.

The results of chemical weed control in corn are not as consistent as in some years. We have been in many corn fields
where there is a perfect control of grasses and weeds, others have had trouble. This is clearly the pattern in test plots found by the experiment station personnel in about ten test fields
scattered over the state.

Atrazine 80W, or wettable powder applied as a spray was figured to be 85 per cent effective in weed and grass control,
but the range of effectiveness
was from 100 per cent down to 35 per cent. When it was applied in granular it was less effective and more erratic. The two factors that determined the effectiveness of these materials were the amount and time of rainfall
and the amount and strength of wind right after application.

Some of the materials were scattered or piled up in such a way that their best use was lost.

The most effective soybean pre-emergence chemical was Amben with a rating of 78 per cent. Most others rated about 50 per cent effective this year.

The 1964 winter course in agriculture will be held at Purdue
on January 6th to February 28th.
Two general programs are offered—animal science and general agriculture. These courses are designed for young men who are interested in getting more of the scientific information on agriculture, but do not desire to take a four year full college course. The short course gives them a chance to understand the sources and background of scientific information and research.

There are a number of scholarships available. The Indiana Starkers Association has recognized for a long time the value of maintaining the flow of agricultural knowledge into their communities. They have assisted many young men to attend and have several scholarships available in Kosciusko County. The Farm Bureau has a scholarship program as does Sears Roebuck and Company.

Catalogs on the 1964 short courses are available at the County Extension office and details on scholarships may be obtained from the County Agent.

The results of the Five-Acre Corn Contest should be ready in a few weeks. The yield calculations are not made here, but are determined by the secretary of the Indiana Corn Growers Association. We have found that our checking system has been pretty accurate when compared with actual harvest weights
when picker losses are considered. We do tend to get the lower yields a little higher than they should be, but the top yields have been close when we have checked back after the field is picked. My guess is that the top yields will go somewhere around 150 bushels this year.

Wayne Bouse of Silver Lake
and Mrs. Amer Eades of Silver Lake will be attending the Governor's Conference on Rural Youth in a Changing Environment to be held November 26th at Purdue University. They will be representing the 4-H Club
and Home Demonstration Councils of Kosciusko County. The conference is co-sponsored by the Indiana Youth Council and the Extension Service.

The problem of the corn with red stripes has been a puzzler.
Most of it is in the area north and east of here and has caused a dockage of a cent or two in price. It seems to have been the result of the extremely variable weather during the growing season and has no bearing on the feeding value. The discount in price is due to the standards by which not over five per cent can be off-color.

The County 4-H Grain Show is scheduled for December 5-7 at the Women's Building at the fairgrounds. Club members will bring in the gallon small grain
samples on Thursday afternoon before 5 p.m. Classes will be judged on Friday, December 6, and exhibits will be released
the next morning, on Saturday.

Corn exhibits will include 10
ear samples and one gallon shelled corn samples. All other grain exhibits will be one gallon samples. Many hours of hand picking and sorting goes into the preparation of a good grain sample. The grain show is the exhibit for completion of the 4-H members enrolled in corn, soybean, wheat, oats, barley, popcorn and hay.

Potatoes are also exhibited at this time, which will include a uniform sample of 20 potatoes.

Comment from the Capital —

ARE WE A NATION OF SHEEP?

by Vani Noff

Making a 100-year forecast is one thing. Having history prove it right is another.

Alexis de Tocqueville, world-famous commentator on American democracy, did both.

Well over a century ago, he warned how the growth of big government could put the skids
on our free enterprise system
and reduce us to "nothing more than a flock of timid and industrious animals, of which the government is the shepherd."

What's more, he was right.
That's exactly what's happening today.

The fact is that our government is mushrooming into a massive monster, with an insatiable appetite for power.

And as it grows bigger and bigger, it's crowding the priceless American traditions of rugged individualism, freedom and self-reliance, closer and closer to extinction.

Let's take a close hard look
at what's going on.

Fifteen years ago, there were 7.1 million workers on public payrolls. Now there are 12.3 million—a jump of 73 percent. And don't expect it to stay at that.

Let's take a close hard look at what's going on. Those on the receiving end of federal program funds, and their dependents, plus those on federal,
civilian and military payrolls,
and their families may well
add up to half the population of the United States.

Who says so? A highly respected Democratic congressman—Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia.

All this, of course, takes money, and in the end it's always the taxpayer who suffers. Federal, state and local taxes take away from us about 35 percent of our national income—more than third of what all people and business corporations earn.

Naturally, a big fat bank-roll like this commands a lot of deference in the nation's marketplace. And well it should.
One out of every five dollars spent on goods and services is spent by the government.

Now take a good look at those government dollars and you'll make an important discovery. They have strings attached to them—long strings that more often than not stretch all the way back to Washington.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Kosciusko County Fair Association will be the second week in December at the fairgrounds.

The new building on the grounds will be completed very

When the strings are pulled,
people and companies all over the country dance to whatever tune the Administration chooses to whistle. No dance, no dollars.
After all, does it make sense to bite the hand that feeds
you?

For the sake of example,
let's say that you head up a major steel corporation. To stay solvent, you need your share of United States defense contracts. Then suppose that

GOVT SUESION GOVT CONTROL

Suppose you are the head of a great university with a contract to train members of the Peace Corps. The government tells you not only what you will teach but insists on passing on the members of your faculty who will be allowed to teach. Do you surrender your academic freedom or give up the Government contract?

Suppose you are a farmer.
The Government offers you a subsidy with the one hand and with the other it compels you to grow or not to grow whatever the Government chooses
on acreage which the Government determines. With your product to be sold at a Government-established price. Will you snuggle under or forego
the subsidy?

It happens far more than you think, even though you don't read about it in your daily paper.

And there doesn't seem to be any end to it. The federal government keeps growing bigger, spending more money and acquiring more and more power.

As a result, there's practically nothing of any significance that hasn't been meddled
with, in one way or another,
by the administration.

For example, radio and TV stations can't operate without a license... who issues the license? The government, of course. But only if they decide you deserve one.

Railroads, electric-power companies, pipelines, interstate trucks and large lines aren't permitted to set their own rates. The government tells them what they can charge.

"Management of the news"
—a new polite term meaning
"distortion"—has apparently become a standard government procedure. (It's no secret that the White House virtually ostracized reporters from a famous New York newspaper
because the President resented something it printed.)

In labor-management relations, government meddling
has been downright disastrous.
It's all but hamstringing business and it's also deprived the American worker of his basic freedom to decide for himself
whether he joins a union and what he settles for.

Remember that the White House has issued directives to all government agencies, even the military, virtually inviting unions to move in and sign up civilian employees.

The administration's tolerance of monopolistic unions is obvious, and leads to an inescapable question: Why?
Could it be to curry favor
among unions for votes that would perpetuate an administration's existence?

All this just doesn't add up to the American way of doing things. The tragic fact is that within the past few decades
the government has spun a web of supports, subsidies, interventions and controls that threaten to extinguish the spirit of free enterprise.

It would be difficult to name
a basic American freedom that has escaped the long arm of government. Power breeds power, and the bigger the government grows, the more greedy its demands become.

I refuse to believe that self-reliance, thrift and freedom of the individual are obsolete and have no place in modern society.

How about you?

heating, a new well and parking facilities are financed by

Club is putting in the ceiling and lights and will furnish the

The Veteran in Your Block

In every small town, or city, in Indiana, veterans of military service are to be found in almost every block. And not just in Indiana. Some of us, including a certain well-known PT boat skipper, look back twenty years to the menace of Hitler in Europe and Japanese suicide divers in the Pacific. Younger men have memories of Korea only ten years ago. And there are still a lot of men proud of the "doughboy" name they earned in the trenches of France in their youth.

How many veterans are there? Would you guess ten million? Fifteen million? Or would it surprise you that the figure comes to about 22 million?

That's more than six times the number of farmers in the country. It's nearly double the number in factory production work. And it's almost a third as many as the nearly 69 million who voted in the last presidential election. Indiana alone has 545,000 ex-GI's, and a few of us are without veterans among our own relatives.

It's no wonder, then, that veterans' affairs are a big concern in this country, right down to the smallest hamlet. For the Federal Government, veterans are big business—a $6 billion business, in fact.

About 6 million veterans hold $40 billion in GI insurance. World War II and Korea veterans have borrowed $52 billion from the government to buy homes. Two million receive pensions for service-connected disabilities, a million more have non-service disability payments. The Veterans' Administration has 175,000 employees and runs 170 hospitals, where more than 700,000 ex-GI's are admitted every year—not to mention 18 homes and 93 outpatient clinics.

In the last Congress well over 400 bills affecting veterans were introduced. The House has a separate Veterans' Affairs Committee, but in the Senate, the overloaded Finance Committee and the Labor and Education Committee, with only their regular staffs, get all veterans' bills. A standing committee with its own staff could coordinate all veterans' affairs in the Senate, a measure recently introduced for the benefit of all veterans, not just in Indiana, but in the whole of this "land of the Free." Veterans are too important to be less than a full-time concern by the country. After all, the country was their full-time concern for quite a while.

AKRON SCHOOL NEWS

There are encouraging signs for the future prospects of basketball at Akron High School. Future Looks Bright

The "B" team and the Freshman team won their basketball games this past week. The "B" team defeated Claypool 46 to 34, and the Freshman team won over Mentone 49 to 40.

This is the first year that Akron has had a Freshman team, which is part of the long range athletic program established at Akron. This also includes special programs now being carried on at both the grade school and Beaver Dam. Coaches at all three schools are working together to provide a good training program at each school and a steady flow of athletes from one school to another. This program will certainly produce results in the years to come.

D.A.R. Meets With Mrs. Surguy

The Anthony Nigo Chapter, D.A.R., held their regular meeting November 12 at the home of Mrs. Fred Surguy, with Mrs. Dale Cook as hostess. Twenty-one members answered roll call with "What I Am Thankful For."

The business meeting was conducted by the regent, Mrs. Paul Shireman, during which the Ways and Means committee reported a profit of about $144.00 was realized from the recent fish fry.

Mrs. Tom Fugate's papers were accepted and she became a new junior member of the chapter.

The chapter voted to make the following contributions: Investment Trust Fund $5.00; Art Fund, $1.00; National Defense, $10.00; Indian Scholarship $5.00; Kate Duncan Smith Approved School $5.00; and the Library Expansion Project $5.00. The D.A.R. library is the finest of its kind in the world, but to better serve its capacity it is imperative that facilities be increased.

Mrs. Alvie T. Wallace, state regent, asks 100 per cent participation of Indiana chapters in garnering statistics as given in the Indiana D.A.R. Poll of Public Opinion. Indiana is one of the seven states in the U. S. chosen by the president general to serve as "spot check states" for a new D.A.R. Poll of Public Opinion carried out under the auspices of the national society during the month of November. Mrs. Glenn Clauss read the president general's message in which Mrs. Duncan stated that the NSDAR will provide the official ceremonial flag of the U. S. for the 1964-65 New York

Mrs. Duncan also said that 2,208 new member applications were passed, of which 28 per cent were junior members, and a total of 224 reinstatements confirmed. Two $500.00 medical and one $300.00 nursing scholarships were authorized for worthy young ladies from Louisiana, Wisconsin and North Carolina. Mrs. Cook gave the national defense report concerning National Education Week. The D.A.R. resolution on the immigration and nationality act of 1952 was given by Mrs. Frank Smith.

Mrs. Charles Tucker, program chairman, read a poem, "The Unknown Soldier," in honor of Veteran's Day, and also an interesting account of the origin of Thanksgiving.

Mrs. James Wells, Jr., gave a splendid report on the reservation Indian today. The Indian is a proud, independent being, fiercely loyal to his tribe. The Indian population, after decreasing from 846,000 to 243,000 in the latter part of the 19th century, has steadily increased since largely because of improvement in health and sanitation practices. The conditions under which many Indians live—crowded housing, unsafe water, lack of nutritious food, and adherence to practices hazardous to health—still leaves much room for improvement. The program was concluded by showing slides of Bacone College, Bacone, Oklahoma, a D.A.R. supported college. Bacone College was established so that Indian youth have a place to receive accredited college instruction at a minimum cost in a Christian atmosphere where their special needs and background are better understood. They normally make a more successful adjustment to later college life after two years of junior college at Bacone.

Christmas gifts for children attending D. A. R. supported schools were collected by Mrs. Cook.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Riner.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

This is a strange story. It is an unbelievable story. Yet, the facts are there.

While there are some in government who spend their waking hours assailing the "extreme right" of American political thought as the greatest danger to civilization since George Washington, the United States Post Office through hall, street, snow, and all delivers tons of communist propaganda originating in communist nations, for free.

When the so-called radical right makes a flamboyant statement, it usually gets sufficient headlines so that all America knows what this element is espousing. But few know about the insidious foreign language communist propaganda deposited in mail boxes.

Rep. James Utt, Calif., has introduced a bill to stop it. In a nationwide vote conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business, 82% of independent business proprietors support the bill.

At one time, before the infection of communism, nations entered into an agreement whereby they would deliver inside their national territories second class mail free of charge.

Under the Truman administration when it became known that millions of such pieces were being delivered by the U. S. Post Office, shipped to National Federation of Independent Business in Russia, with no charge whatsoever, an order was issued stopping this practice which continued through the Eisenhower administration.

Much of this material is printed in the native language of groups which immigrated to America. Some of it plays on the nostalgia which is natural to most people concerning things about the locale of their birth and childhood, larded with vicious attacks on America as "War mongers," "imperialistic," and all the other communist hate terms.

While none has been found to tell these new residents of America to start a revolution everything is done to create doubts in their minds about the American system.

At the start of the current administration, the long standing order was revoked on the basis it violated international courtesy.

Congress last year placed a restriction on this traffic in propaganda. It only got through because it was attached to a postal rate increase. Now post office managers ask the address if the material is wanted. If answer is yes, post office must deliver free.

But now Rep. Utt wants this completely stopped.

Photographic material is quite properly barred from the mails. Yet literature designed not only to destroy morals, but also the U. S. government as well as American lives, not only goes through the mails, but goes free as well. How far should "courtesy" go?

RUTH MCCLARY

A feather hat workshop will be held at the Women's Building in Warsaw on November 20 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 5 to 9 p.m. Those interested are asked to pre-register at the County Extension office. A $1.00 fee will be charged.

Any type feathers may be used. Frames, linings, millinery glue, feathers and ribbons can be purchased at the workshop. Each participant should bring a piece of outing flannel or square of old cotton blanket or old bath towel to use as a work pad so feathers will not fly, also sewing basket or box, which should include needles, thread and scissors. Anyone using pheasant feathers should have them properly cured.

This workshop is open to the public and is sponsored by the Kosciusko County Home Economics Extension Service under the direction of Mrs. Ruth McClary.

Mrs. Gertrude Thompson, an instructor of craft at the Fort Wayne parks, will be in charge of the lesson.

Curing Feathers
In order to take advantage of the pheasant feathers for a hat,

the following preparation is necessary:

You must skin the pheasant, although the skin itself is not used on the hat. This is necessary because you should put the feathers on the hat as they were on the bird, in sections, not in strips, or helter-skelter.

Remove the skin as soon as possible after killing the bird. You don't need to cure the skin immediately, but keep it in a cool place or in a refrigerator until you start to cure it.

To remove the skin, cut around the wings, legs and neck, and then take it off like a slip-over sweater. If the skin was damaged in hunting, cut away the damaged section and peel back the remainder—like a cardigan sweater.

Work from the flesh side. Scrape away all fatty tissues with a dull knife edge until the skin proper remains. Most pheasants have little fatty tissue, but you must remove it to prevent spoilage.

Apply borax to the flesh side. Rub it in well and put the skin in a cool place. In a day or so apply more borax, and continue this process until the skin won't absorb any borax. Three to five treatments usually are enough. You will know when the skin is thoroughly cured because it will crackle like dry leather.

Holiday Travel With Children

Holidays with small children are likely to be happier with some planning ahead, especially if you are traveling or visiting in other people's homes.

Keeping the child on his regular routines and comfortable while traveling helps insure pleasant trips and visits. Plan so usual eating and sleeping routines of the young child can be followed even while he is away from home, suggests Elaine T. Dolch, instructor in child development and family life at Purdue University.

Drastically upsetting a preschool child's routine and diet may upset him physically—taking some of the pleasure from the excursion.

If you must travel several hours to your destination, see that your child is dressed comfortably and has a place to lie down. Take along some snacks—preferably easy to handle, non-spillable foods—and some toys and car games.

When traveling, your child may not eat well in a restaurant. He may be over excited,

Looking Through The Needle's Eye

Doctors will really get under your skin with a new microscope developed at the Illinois Institute of Technology. A hypodermic needle attached to the unit makes it possible to look at blood vessels and tissue without making an incision. The needle is filled with two bundles of approximately 10,000 tiny glass fibers. One bundle carries light down to illuminate the tissue; the other transfers light reflected by the tissue back up the needle. The area viewed by the needle is 1/50th of an inch wide and 7/250th of an inch long.

A 'miniature factory' is at work developing new instant food products in Florida. The self-contained Votator laboratory unit, smaller than a ping-pong table, duplicates commercial vacuum dryer equipment on a scale that permits experiments with the inexpensive tablespoon instead of the costly gallon.

Fire fighting with jet engines gains fast control of large conflagrations, according to English scientists who mounted a jet on a six ton van and produced 50,000 cubic feet of inert gas a minute to smother flames. The gas stream can also be used with some detergents to produce a high-expansion foam for fires in basements and lower parts of buildings.

Two weeks in a public fallout shelter would work no undue hardship on Americans if an emergency occurred, tests conducted for the Office of Civil Defense by the University of Georgia indicate. In two successful experiments, two groups of 30 persons, including children, spent 14 days in a simulated fallout shelter. Each had eight square feet of floor space, a daily food ration of 1,000 calories and a quart and a half of water. They slept on thin sheets of corrugated cardboard placed on the concrete floor.

Car-crazy Americans are sure to read an article detailing one of those "revolutionary" engines of the future that will run on anything from buttermilk to hair oil. A major oil company takes the wet blanket view that buttermilk, hair oil and even distilled water cost more than gasoline's three cents a pound (not including tax) at the pump. To support its case, the company quotes the following gallon prices: milk, 79c; cooking oil, $1.99; vinegar, 69c; bleach, 59c; distilled water, 49c.

Noted Pianist At Winona Lake

Byron Janis, the noted American pianist who will play at Winona Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Monday, November 25, returned to the Soviet Union in May of 1962 and scored a triumph which surpassed his first record-breaking appearance of 1960. From now on whenever Janis returns to Moscow the only record he will be able to break will be his own!

He will be presented locally by the Lakeland Civic Music Association. A native of McKeesport, Pennsylvania, the pianist received his training in New York City. During his current North American tour under the aegis of S. Hurok, he will play a series of concerts with the leading U. S. orchestras and will also appear in recital in numerous American cities. Mr. Janis began his international season last spring with a concert tour of Mexico.

In mid-May he returned to the Soviet Union, where he managed to surpass his brilliant successes of 1960. His performance of the Prokofiev Concerto No. 3, one of three major concerti on his program, brought the composer's widow backstage to add her congratulations to those of the other Russian notables. After many concerts in western Europe and appearances at the major American festivals during the summer, the pianist played six weeks of concerts in Argentina and Chile this past September and October.

At a recent Dallas concert, Janis' playing of the Rachmaninoff Concerto No. 3 in D minor, Opus 30, caused critic John Rosenfield to expound, "Mr. Janis... practically set the pace, his own, and dazzled technically and seduced tonally in complete mastery of the concerto's range."

Prayer of Thanksgiving

Old Dutch Melody

Slowly, with fervent feeling

Voice

Piano or Organ

We gather to- day and thank thee, O Lord, for all thy mercy and goodness.

Most loving and forgiving Heavenly Father, we would first thank You for this day, set apart as the festival of thanksgiving for Your blessings. A day which causes us to pause, think and practice that most noble of virtues—humility; for only the humble attain true greatness.

We thank You for our fellowship and bodily food, and in addition for the food of life. We give thanks even for the disciplinary actions that You have seen fit to visit upon us; to make us turn to You after we have erred and have been ungrateful. Make of us strong children and remind us when we are prone to self pity, selfishness, resentments and fears. Help us also to purge ingratitude from our daily lives.

Finally we would thank You for, and ask Your blessing upon the churches we attend with thankful and contrite hearts, here to listen to that still small voice in which ever You speak to the souls of men. Amen.

COUNTERPOINT

By The Editor's Wife

In meditating upon the great tragedy which has touched each of our homes, the words of our hostess in Boston a year ago came to mind. Ruth Lane (Mrs. Joe) is a soft-spoken southern lady. Her comment to us was, "We here in Boston are very fond of the Kennedys." This seems to be the nearly universal sentiment at this time.

It is moving to see how graciously politics and times of disagreement and how the human spirits of all olended in sympathy and sorrow for this moment of need.

We were thinking of the past 100 years, in reference to Mrs. Yocum's 100th birthday this coming Sunday. In her lifetime she has experienced the national tragedy of four presidential assassinations, beginning with Lincoln in 1865, then Garfield in 1881, McKinley in 1901, and President Kennedy on last Friday.

We trust that you have not forgotten your gift for Mental Health.

The leaves on the willow trees, this fall, have looked like gold. One notices these large clumps of color dotting the landscape, which is beginning to look somewhat on the bleak side, otherwise.

Ed Creakbaum made this comment in defense of his liking for "certain foods" — "It seems that there is just this special vitamin in pancakes which I need."

(Out of the mouths of babes) As six-year-old Danny Kindig, Michael Dunnick, and Steve Fawley, both seven, were walking home from school last Friday, their excited talk was about President Kennedy's death from shooting.

The profound comment from one of these small wise men was, "Now the Indians are going to take over Washington!"

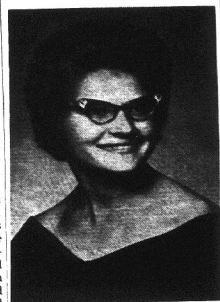

The Harman household was watching the TV presentation of the funeral services for the late president. In one spot former Vice President Nixon was shown. When Jody explained that Mr. Nixon had been defeated for the office of president by Mr. Kennedy, Lisa said, "I'll bet now he's glad he didn't win."

Sincere appreciation goes to Mrs. Pauline Riner for a lovely "last-of-the-garden" bouquet (which is going to have a special place on our Thanksgiving table). There are two carnations, one pink and one red; 1 large white mum, a white pansy (and a large strawberry, too, for a "conversation piece").

One of the great trials of newspaper work is having errors "get through" to the final printing (errors sometimes in spelling, sometimes in information). Another trial is the failure of a mat for a certain picture to come from the engraver in time for the Wednesday evening publication. (This happened last week with the engagement picture of Janice Mollenhour, and we are sorry.)

CHOSEN
"GOOD CITIZEN"

Eldonna Antonides was recently chosen as the Mentone School "Good Citizen," and will represent the Mentone School in the Kosciusko County contest.

A winner from Kosciusko County will then be chosen to represent the county in the state contest.

Eldonna was first nominated along with four other senior girls by the senior class officers. She was then selected by the high school faculty. "Good Citizens" are selected on the basis of dependability, service, leadership and patriotism.

Mrs. Dorothea Cullum of Franklin Park, Illinois has returned for another visit with Mr. and Mrs. Artley Cullum and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Harman and family.

We asked the following question of three Mentone citizens: "What impressions do you have of the recent tragedy of the president's death?"

Here are their answers: Mrs. Earl (Miriam) Shinn: "My impressions are both bad and good. First, it is bad that such a thing had to happen in our country. Second, it is good that our government is so set up that the transition from one man to another was accomplished so smoothly."

Mrs. Harold (Mary) Utter: "First I have a feeling of shame that such a thing could happen here, and then more shame for the second slaying. Third, I have a tremendous amount of respect for Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy. This should be a time of self-searching for all of us. We should examine our feelings and attitudes toward our fellowman, too. Also, I have a feeling of great compassion for the Oswald family, and the problems they will have to live with."

Darrell King: "I had many thoughts about the whole affair, but the one which comes to me, even though the Supreme Court may throw out the schools, at a time such as this, our God is first."

We enjoyed this: The teacher asked the class to name all the states. One small boy responded so quickly and accurately that she commended him for it.

"You did very well," she said, "much better than I could have done at your age."

"Yes," he replied, "And there were only 13 states then."

Mrs. Yocum to Celebrate 100th Birthday Sunday, December 1st

The News and the entire community of Mentone are planning to pay tribute to Mrs. Emma Yocum, who will celebrate her 100th birthday on Sunday, December 1.

Mrs. Yocum, in her extended years, is quite alert and keeps up with the world through the medium of television.

Last Friday morning, Mrs. Yocum and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Boardman, close neighbors and friends, boarded a TWA jet at O'Hare Field in Chicago and made the thrilling trip to Los Angeles, where they stayed overnight, coming home on Saturday. Mrs. Yocum was as excited as a girl about making the trip.

To pay tribute to Mrs. Yocum, who will celebrate her 100th birthday on Sunday, one needs to go back just that many years to the beginning.

The above picture of Mrs. Yocum was taken in her living room by the News just a few evenings before she and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Boardman flew by jet to Los Angeles, where they spent a short time viewing the city.

She was born Dec. 1, 1863 to William and Elizabeth Grube at Auburn Junction. She was one of seven children—six girls and one boy.

She attended Fort Wayne Literary College, Cincinnati Art School, and Valparaiso College. She taught at Butler Center, Five Points, Sugar Grove, and Laotto.

On August 30, 1887 she was married to Dr. Melvin G. Yocum, at her family home in Auburn. He was born Dec. 15, 1865 to Elmore and Amanda Yocum, south of Yellow Creek Lake.

They came to Mentone where Dr. Yocum was a practicing physician for 42 years, until his death on July 7, 1936.

One child of the couple died in infancy.

Mrs. Yocum's life was one of complete devotion to her husband.

A nephew, Maurice Dudley, lived with the Yocums for seventeen years. He died in 1946 at the age of sixty.

A sister of Mrs. Yocum's, Pearl Kutzner, lived with her for eleven years, until her passing last March. She was 94 years of age. She possessed a talent for composing poetry, and has written many fine ones, which are cherished by Mrs. Yocum and other friends.

Mrs. Yocum has lived alone during the past months. She is alert, mentally and physically, and keeps in touch with all that is new through television.

Mrs. Yocum is a member of the Eastern Star, and was the recipient of a 50-year membership pin. She also served as Worthy Matron in 1911.

She is a member of the WSCS of the Methodist Church. On Sunday this group of ladies is giving a tea for Mrs. Yocum in honor of her special anniversary.

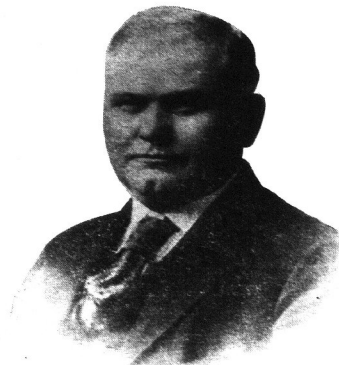

The Boy Scout room, at the Methodist Church, was a gift from Dr. and Mrs. Yocum at the time the church was remodeled.

Living relatives are the following nieces: Mrs. Sherman Baker, Mrs. Worth Fair, Mrs. Ech Custer, Mrs. Roy Baker, all of Auburn, and Mrs. Ira Huffman of Wooster, Ohio.

One hundred years of life is granted to few people. In view of the radical changes which have come in the past century, it is a staggering thought.

We extend sincere best wishes to Mrs. Yocum on her 100th birthday, and trust that the remainder of her life will bring continuing health and well being.

The two photos below were taken from a memorial book for Dr. Yocum printed following his death in 1936.

When buying a fresh turkey,
look for fresh, moist waxy skin
with almost no pin feathers, bruises or discoloration. Purdue University food specialists say
the bird should have a short body, broad breast, thick meated thighs and a well distributed layer of fat under the skin.

NEWS NOTES from our County Agent DONALD E. FRANTZ

The eight weeks winter course in agriculture will be held at Purdue, January 6 to February 28. This is not a new thing. It started in 1897 and there have been many thousand students over the years. The basic classes are management, power and machinery, soils and crops, commodity leadership and livestock feeding. In addition, other courses are selected.

The cost of attending the short course is about $250 to $300 and there are a number of scholarships available. The Indiana Bankers Association, the Farm Bureau, Sears and others have provided scholarships as incentives to enroll. Bulletins and details are available at the County Extension office.

The CROP goal in Kosciusko County has been set at 10,000 bushels of corn for the overseas rural relief program of the church-wide service. This would figure out about one bushel from each eight acres in corn throughout the county. The township committees are making the contacts within the next week or so.

The date for the Income Tax and Social Security meeting will be December 17th at the fairgrounds. This meeting was scheduled by the Home Demonstration Clubs, but it is open to others as well. The starting time is 1 p.m.

One of the disturbing problems in corn and soybean production has been the plant disease trouble in the Leesburg and Milford areas. Considerable field test work has been done, but the trouble has not been isolated as yet. The problem is a loss of stand due to a seedling blight. It may be only a few square rods or it may be many acres in size.

We are ready to make a few recommendations of a practical nature even though the trouble has not been identified. We believe there should be a delayed planting date in problem fields, possibly waiting around June 1. It has been found that anything that delays the emergence of the plants increases the trouble so we are recommending an extra good seed bed, adequate row fertilization and shallow planting in these spots. The trouble has been most severe in cold soils and deeper plantings.

The first meeting of the Better Farming - Better Living group will be held December 5th at the new Shrine Building at the fairgrounds. There could be a few more enroll. We had not set any quota and had hoped to enroll any who were interested and felt that they could benefit. We do need advance enrollment so that proper materials can be arranged. There will be three general meetings - December 5, 19, and January 9. After that all work will be scheduled at the convenience of the members.

Our appreciation goes to the Kosciusko County Farm Bureau Co-operative and the Production Credit Association for the fine banquet they sponsored for the 4-H club leaders last week. Over a hundred leaders, their husbands and wives, were in attendance at the Wagon Wheel Restaurant.

AKRON SCHOOL NEWS

Students Visit Court Session

Fifty-two students of Business Law and Government at Akron High School visited the court of Judge Rakestraw last week. The students had the opportunity to observe a trial that was conducted by Judge Rakestraw. Studies in the classroom can be made more realistic and more easily understood if the student is exposed to a real life situation. After a field trip to a point of interest that is related to the classroom studies, greater understanding and renewed interest in the subject is apparent.

Akron Freshmen Win Again

The Akron High School Freshmen continue undefeated as they chalked up another victory by defeating North Miami by a score of 49 to 42. Last week they won over Mentone by a score of 49 to 40. The Freshmen Flyers, affectionately known as the "Chinese Bandits," show a great deal of promise for the future of basketball at Akron. This team has demonstrated its ability to grasp the fundamentals of the game. The players respond well to coaching and have a great desire to win.

Avoid painful burns and spillage in the oven by pulling out the oven racks when you put foods in or take them out of the oven, recommend food specialists at Purdue University. Roast turkey at a low temperature for a longer cooking time to prevent drying and shrinking of the bird, say Purdue University food specialists.

DEAFNESS

DEAFNESS is the number one physical impairment. An estimated six million persons in the United States have some degree of hearing loss.

One out of five cases of deafness is due to the formation of spongy bone in the capsule of the labyrinth of the ear. This condition is known as otosclerosis. When this spongy bone immobilizes the stapes or stirrup, it limits its motion and a loss of hearing results. As long ago as fifty years surgeons invented techniques to bypass the fixed stapes, making a window in the horizontal semicircular canal to permit the conduction of sound to the inner ear. This operation was known as fenestration. The disadvantages however were that the procedure required more than one stage in its performance, and the window had a tendency to close.

Ten years ago a far more effective surgical procedure was perfected. Known as the stapes mobilization, it is a method of mobilizing or removing the fixed stapes.

Stapes mobilization requires only one or two days of hospitalization, little post-operative care, and the patient is able to return to daily activities when he leaves the hospital. There is no age limit for this procedure; in fact, patients as old as 75 years have successfully undergone the operation, which is rendered painless by the use of local anesthetic.

Preparing Wild Game
Rabbit and game birds are welcome on the family table—whenever hunters are lucky enough to bag them.

But how game tastes on the table depends partly on how it is cared for between the shot and cooking pot, says Marcell Allen, Purdue University food specialist.

Clean and cool game as soon as possible after killing. Keep it refrigerated. When cleaning wild rabbits wear rubber gloves to avoid the possibility of contracting rabbit fever.

If time permits, allow game to age in a cool place at least 24 hours before cooking.

Since both pheasant and wild duck have less fat and are usually less tender than domestic fowl, she advises cooking them by a moist tender heat method. Use a covered roaster or place strips of bacon or a fat soaked cheesecloth on the breasts.

You can pan fry or broil young rabbits. Stew older rabbits or cook in a covered pan. Cook rabbits until well done.

Fertilizing Shrubs Now

Since shrub roots continue to grow in winter, shrubs should be fertilized now. Fertilizer will stimulate this root growth and an abundance of rich green foliage next spring will result. Purdue University extension horticulturists recommend fertilizing shrubs before the ground freezes, but after the tops are dormant so top growth won't be stimulated. If top growth is stimulated, it is likely to be winter killed.

Many different kinds of fertilizers can be used. A 10-6-4 or 10-6-8 analysis will do a good job. One pound should be applied per 100 square feet of shrub bed. Spread the fertilizer on the soil surface and hoe gently so you don't disturb the root system. Then water.

Both evergreen and deciduous shrubs benefit from late fall fertilization. Be especially careful not to fertilize broadleaved evergreens, such as American holly, Japanese holly, magnolia and boxwood, too early. They are tender and more likely to winter-kill if top growth is stimulated than are many other shrubs.

Planting Trees

Choosing a tree variety is a long term decision, since even short lived trees live dozens of years. Therefore, it pays to plant recommended varieties, advise Purdue University extension horticulturists.

Planting recommended trees will pay dividends, since they survive Indiana winters and flourish. Also, recommended varieties are strong and have good growth habits.

They recommend the medium-hard, fast growing red maple or tulip tree. Two other trees which are harder, but slower growing include the sugar maple and the red oak.

Avoid selecting trees that are weak-kneed and easily destroyed by a wind storm, such as Ailanthus, the so-called Tree of Heaven; silver maple, willow, cottonwood and the Siberian or Chinese elm.

For further information on tree varieties secure Purdue Mimeo HO-81-1, "Some Woody Ornamental Plant Materials for Indiana." This publication is available from your County Extension office or the Agricultural Publications Office, AES Building, Purdue University, Lafayette, 47907. Single copies are free to Indiana residents.

Follow all safety precautions when putting up storm windows, urge Purdue University home management specialists. Work with a partner and keep small children away from windows and ladders.

Spice fall meals with cranberry relish for cold meats, cranberry sauces for fruit desert toppings, and even cranberry tarts and pies, suggest Purdue University food specialists.

Proper Use of Anti-Freeze

Key To Winter Tractoring

Most tractor manufacturers recommend "permanent type" anti-freeze because the operating temperatures at which modern tractor engines do a hard day's work will boil non-permanent anti-freeze. This causes steam pockets in the cooling passages that can result in cracked heads, crankcases and scored pistons or cylinder walls. Most permanent type anti-freeze products have a glycerine base. If engine gaskets should loosen sufficiently to let anti-freeze contaminate your engine oil, combustion of this mixture could cause real damage. Engineers at Champion Spark Plug Company advise a periodic check of all engine bolts for tightness as a precaution against poor gasket seal. It's also a good practice to use one of the anti-leak products in your tractor's cooling system to prevent both visible leaks in the radiator and those that might occur unseen in the engine block of other casting. Rust and corrosion are your cooling system's worst enemies. A very small amount of rust can clog narrow cooling passages, resulting in improper cooling and possible expensive repairs. Anti-freeze rust inhibitors lose effectiveness when an insufficient amount is used or if the anti-freeze remains in the cooling system longer than the recommended period. (Even the best inhibitors can lose efficiency and allow rust and corrosion to take place.) This fall, rust inhibiting products can be purchased in most areas at a price so low, it makes inexpensive insurance for your tractor.

If, after the installation of anti-freeze and other products, your tractor cooling system's efficiency is not up to par, check for loose fan belt, leaky hoses or radiator.

If you are planning heavy work for the winter that requires liquid weighting in your tractor tires, don't forget to add an anti-freeze solution to them, but remember: the more liquid added, the less bruise resistance. Add only what is needed and never more than 75 per cent.

Anti-freeze recommended for tractor tires is commercial (77-80 per cent) flake calcium chloride. Caution: Never pour water on calcium chloride! Add the flakes to the water, stirring until dissolved.

At winter's end, anti-freeze should be removed from your tractor engine cooling system, and the entire system cleaned out and flushed prior to summer operation. Water should be used as a coolant during warm weather because it cools more efficiently than anti-freeze; the valve temperatures are reduced as much as 50 to 60 degrees, and gasoline octane rating can be reduced by as much as eight points when water is used.

Store Your Garden Tools

Now that garden work has slowed, it's time to put your tools in good shape. Don Scheer, Purdue University extension horticulturist, says there is nothing better, when you have "garden fever" next spring, than to have your tools in order and ready to go. So, take a little time now and get ready for next spring.

First, check the handles of your tools. If they are rough, sand them to make them "blister proof."

Next, sharpen your tools. Proper sharpening can make a tremendous difference in how well tools work. Here is how to sharpen hoes and shovels: Flatten out one side so there are no burrs, then sharpen the other side. You can use a file, or better still, use an emery wheel. But be careful if you use a wheel and don't burn the metal. After tools are well sharpened, clean and grease them, or add a rust preventative. If a tool is rusty, clean up the rusty area with an emery cloth and apply grease or rust preventative. Then store in a dry place.

INDIANA TIME MAP—Time schedules being observed by Indiana communities this fall and winter are shown above, with the shaded sections indicating Central Standard Time areas. Areas observing year-round Eastern Standard Time have edged westward and now include 71 counties and parts of three other counties. The dotted line through the center of the state represents the western border of the official U.S. EST Zone. Areas just west of this line are observing EST unofficially. While there now is no state law on the subject, the entire state observes Central Daylight Time (or EST) during a six-month period beginning the last Sunday in April.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The fifth grade made candles in science, starting last Thursday of last week. The sixth grade made telegrams and later developed pictures in science. Several brought negatives and developed their own pictures.

On November 1, both the 5th and 6th grade chose yell leaders. In the sixth grade, the yell leaders are Susan Zent and Teresa Howard, with Vickie Norris as substitute. In the fifth grade, the yell leaders are Sheri Lloyd and Kay Foster, with Diana Melton as substitute. Our first ballgame will be December 11 at 2:30 p.m., here at Talma during school hours. We will play Burket.

We have been coloring pictures for Thanksgiving. Kathy Crissinger colored a large picture of Pilgrims for our windows, and Susan Zent, Vicki Morris, Teresa Howard, Kay Foster, Sheri Lloyd and Connie Alber are coloring turkeys. The rest of the classes are coloring small turkeys for the walls.

In geography, the fifth graders have been learning states and capitals, and the sixth graders have been learning countries and capitals. The fifth graders started with the northeastern states, and the sixth graders started with Europe.

In art, we drew dogs the first six weeks. We are drawing horses now. The week after Thanksgiving we will start making Christmas decorations.

Thanksgiving Program

A Thanksgiving program was presented Wednesday afternoon at Talma School by the chorus and eighth grade English classes. Featured in the program were original Thanksgiving poems written by several of the eighth graders, and read by Kathy Boggs. A one-act play, written by Janis Hoffer, portraying the meaning of Thanksgiving, was presented by a cast of Sandra Hollar, Janis Hoffer, Jack Keirn, Lee Ritchey and Greg Rogers. Greg's little sister, Chris, five years old, played the starring role.

Talma Basketball

The Talma seventh and eighth grade basketball teams will play two home games next week. On December 2 at 6:30 p.m. the opponents will be Kewanna. On December 4 at 4 p.m., the visitors will be Beaver Dam.

Coach Pratt's boys are working hard to make this a successful year, with 38 boys trying hard to win starting positions. Admission charge to the games will be 25c.

work before coming to Kosciusko County, having served as showman for the Red Bud Angus Farms at Tulsa, and also as Superintendent of the beef cattle farm at the University of Wisconsin.

Holiday Highway Safety

Even if she doesn't do the driving, a wife and mother can increase her family's safety during an auto trip, says Mrs. Martha Holst, Purdue University extension supervisor.

The physical and emotional condition in which drivers leave their homes may determine whether they will be able to avert traffic accidents.

Homemakers who will be traveling by car with their families during the holidays should realize the importance of driver attitudes. Emotional factors are one of the major reasons for the carelessness that causes most accidents. The driver who becomes excited, frustrated, impatient, angry and inconsiderate, is accident-prone.

Help insure a safe trip by making it a happy trip, suggests Mrs. Holst, representative of the Indiana Farm Safety Council. Try to see that the family begins and continues the drive in a cheerful frame of mind. Arrange to leave in ample time so there will be no temptation to speed. Road conditions may demand lower speeds than usual.
