Two Minute Sermon

By

THE ART OF LIVING: Not long ago I had the privilege of visiting in one of those homes, which, while its owner was able to buy anything he chose, was furnished very simply yet comfortably. It was in pleasing contrast to many that I have visited which seemed first of all to shout the fact that the owner was able to buy things. I found in this home a rare host, and culture of the highest type. There were rows of well chosen, well worn books, and everything about the place seemed to belong there and be a part of the fine people who called it home. Their conversation was both entertaining and enlightening. I thought as I sat there and reveled in the charm of their rare hospitality, and the flawless taste shown in the surroundings, here is a home whose possessors have really learned how to live. Instead of cluttering up the place with a motley array of things, none of which would give any expression of character or individuality, everything seemed to be selected with the most discriminating care.

There are lives like that. Instead of being a cluttered collection of petty things, none of which are worth while, they are filled with fine things worth while things. It is a delight to visit with such persons. They have time for good literature, and good music, and the beautiful things of life. They have time for God. When we visit them we come away with a feeling of satisfaction and enrichment. They have chosen wisely of good things. They have learned the art of living.

HOROSCOPE

JANUARY 1, 2—Although doubtful sometimes of the outcome of your undertakings, you like to take the lead in everything and really you are qualified as a leader. You like to make life easy for the members of your family, but do not always recognize the rights of others. As a housekeeper you are lax in some points. You have a fine sense of humor and in your lively moments are a good entertainer.

JANUARY 3, 4, 5—Affectionate in your nature you are pleased when others manifest an affection toward you. You are musically inclined and enjoy getting "the gang" together. You love to travel. You have the faculty of making the best of everything and creating your own happiness. You make an interesting and enjoyable companion.

JANUARY 6, 7—You will succeed in executive positions. Your nature is stubborn and you like to get even and are capable of resorting to trickery. You have a keen discerning mind and know what is right to do but do not always choose to do it. You are a good financier and would succeed as a banker or railway manager.

Egyptians Were Cookie Makers
Cookie making dates back to the ancient Egyptians who prepared them for religious ceremonies. Every country since then has fashioned its own cookies. Each seems to have its favorite kind—Germany is famous for Christmas cookies, Holland is proud of her Spritz cookies, Norway its Selskab and Denmark its Smor Kringler. American women, though, have originated the greatest variety of cookie recipes. The filled cookie jar on the pantry shelf has always been popular with the whole family in this country and the task of keeping it full has encouraged women to invent new recipes.

Finding Contentment

The fountain of content must spring up in a man's own mind; and he who has so little knowledge of human nature as to seek happiness by changing anything but his own disposition will waste his life in fruitless efforts, and multiply the griefs which he proposes to remove. —Samuel Johnson.

Claim Amber Saves Doctor Bills

Much of the amber which may be seen occasionally in Scottish homes was once regarded with superstitious awe, according to an authority who says that a piece of it was believed capable of protecting its owner from infectious diseases. Witches and fairies, an ancient belief held, had no power over the owner of amber, and strings of amber beads were often given daughters on the eve of marriage. Many declared that such a necklace made the bride the most beautiful of women to her husband and rendered her charms irresistible.

Births Not Uniformly Distributed

Births among the total population of the United States, and of other countries, too, are not uniformly distributed. The largest number takes place in this and most European countries, in the spring, and the next largest number in the fall. There is a drop in births during the summer and a relatively great deficiency in November and December.

Pikes Peak Not Tallest

Not the tallest, but most famous and scenic of Colorado's summits is Pikes Peak. Trees grow up 12,000 feet of the mountain; the remainder is snow-covered in winter, bald granite in summer. First seen by Lieut. Zebulon M. Pike in 1806, when he was looking over the Louisiana Purchase for President Thomas Jefferson, the peak wasn't scaled until 14 years later.

A Whited Sepulchre

The expression a whited sepulchre is from Matthew 23:27: "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness."

Dr. Urschel Installs Valuable Equipment

During the past week there has been installed in Dr. Urschel's office a new Westinghouse X-ray and Fluoroscope. This machine is the most modern type, embodying all the latest features. Despite the fact that it operates at a peak voltage of 88,000 volts it is completely shockproof, so that there is no danger to anyone operating the machine, or to anyone having pictures taken by it. It is powerful enough to take any type of x-ray picture, and is so flexible in operation that any unusual positions may be obtained, despite the total weight of over 1500 pounds.

The fluoroscope can be used in any position, vertical or horizontal, and is as powerful as any built today. Heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, and extremities can be studied through it.

All pictures are developed in a dark room in Dr. Urschel's office so that results can be obtained and interpreted within a few minutes.

The installation of this equipment calls attention to the fact that Dr. Urschel is endeavoring to have a diagnostic clinic equal to any. He has recently equipped a blood chemistry laboratory for doing blood sugars, urea nitrogens, and many other laboratory procedures for which it was formerly necessary to send blood specimens to distant places.

For some time he has had a basal metabolism testing machine, for accurate goiter diagnosis, another instrument not usually found in the private practitioners office. Blood sugar and hemoglobin (iron) determinations are done routinely.

PLAN NOW FOR DORMANT SPRAYING

By The Master Gardener

Now is the time to examine all trees and shrubs for the presence of scale insects, and, if you find any infestations, to make immediate plans to do some dormant spraying.

Dormant spraying is necessary for this type of insect because any spray strong enough to kill the soft insects or eggs beneath the scale would kill leaves or flower buds during the active growing period. Moreover, while trees and shrubs are bare of foliage, the insects are more easily reached on deciduous plants.

In addition to cleaning up scale infestations, dormant sprays also eradicate overwintering eggs, larvae and adults of many other destructive insects. So dormant spraying is, you might say, a general sanitation measure.

While lime-sulphur was formerly the dormant spray most generally used, miscible oils and oil emulsions have quite generally displaced lime-sulphur solutions. One disadvantage of lime-sulphur is that when used near buildings, it discolors paint. However, some plant pathologists advise lime-sulphur for use on maples, as they state oil, dripping to the ground, severely injures the roots. On the other hand, oil sprays must be used most cautiously on evergreens if injury is to be avoided; and they also remove the "bloom" from species such as blue spruce.

Oil sprays are manufactured under various trade names, and manufacturers' direction should be followed carefully.

Although dormant sprays may be applied any time during the dormant period of the plant (and plants must be completely dormant, otherwise severe injury will result), experience has shown that best results are secured if applied from a month to two weeks before the new growth starts in the spring. At that time the plants are less liable to injury; also, the insects are beginning to be active, and are more susceptible to the spray.

To avoid spray injury, keep these points in mind:

1. Spray on a clear, bright day, when snow or rain is not in prospect.
2. Be sure the temperature is above freezing, preferably about 45 degrees and not likely to go below freezing for at least 12 hours.

3. Follow the manufacturers' directions carefully.

4. See that all infested areas are covered thoroughly with the spray. Wet every portion of the tree, shrub or vine from the very top twig down to the ground around the base. Many scale insects are so small that they are hardly visible to the naked eye, but they must be hit to be killed.

5. Remember that oil sprays applied during severe weather or on cloudy days may cause severe injury.

In combatting scale insects, it is also advisable to spray again with a summer-strength spray in June, when the young hatch.

Plants commonly infested with oyster shell scale are lilac, dogwood, ash, poplar and willow. Maples are subject to various scales, and the elm tree and tulip tree are also quite subject to other types of scale.

Among the evergreens, the arborvitae, pines, juniper and spruce are often affected by scale, but extreme care must be used in spraying evergreens so as to avoid injury.

Elephant tusks from the African and Indian jungles are shipped to London, says Pearson's London Weekly. Here an age-old trade, the cutting and selling of ivory to buyers from all over the world, goes on unchanged, much as it has for years. It takes 1,200 elephants to provide the market with ivory for one year. Few elephants are killed for their tusks. Most of the ivory is collected by natives from dead elephants found in the jungles.

Mentone High School News To Appear Next Week

Mentone High School welcomes this opportunity to appear again in this column. We shall be glad to record the happenings in the everyday life of our school. We thank the Co-Op officials for this privilege.

Several new courses have been started this semester. The Seniors are taking Economics instead of Civics; the Juniors have Safety instead of Health; the Eighth Grade has Civics instead of Geography. In addition two other courses have been made available for Seniors—Bible and Advanced Algebra.

The first rehearsal for the Junior Band is scheduled for Friday afternoon, January 6th. There are twenty in this group. From time to time, these individuals will be added to the Senior Band. Many of them are in the Sixth or Seventh or Eighth Grades. This gives a promising outlook for the future of the High School Band.

Mentone High School Basket Ball Team has been quite successful this year. We congratulate the boys not only for their ability with the sphere, but also for their scholastic attainments. Seven of the first eight players made the Honor Roll last semester.

In checking the results of last semester, we find that twelve Seniors, seven Juniors, eight Sophomores, twelve Freshmen, fifteen Eighth Graders and fourteen Seventh Graders had perfect attendance. While this is a good record we feel that we can do better and shall make every effort to do so.

The Juniors have been working on the class play, "Special Delivery." The play will go into rehearsal soon.

The Seniors have entered upon the last semester of their High School work. Already they have turned their attention to plans for Commencement, Baccalaureate, Class Play, etc. Not much time left in high school.

We extend a cordial invitation to all patrons and friends of the school to visit us at any time. We think that you would be interested in the work we are doing and we know that we shall be glad to have you with us.

Next week we shall have our organization set up and shall be prepared to report more fully in these columns.

Eagles Look Downward

The eyes of eagles are especially designed to look downward and the bird can see upward only with great difficulty. This is nature's way of making it easier for the bird to see its prey below as it soars high in the air in search of food. Then, too, says the American Wildlife institute, the eagle's overhanging brow provides shade from the overhead sun.

The word "mope" originally meant "to stray aimlessly."

HOROSCOPE

JANUARY 8, 9, 10—You have a natural tendency to doubt and distrust and should practice living for others. Remember the old adage "the love that kills is the love of self, and the hand that smites thee is thine own." You are careful and look ahead.

JANUARY 11, 12—You have a well balanced mind and your judgment is dependable. Your chief aim in life is making money, thus you have a reputation of being shrewd and close. You have a quick temper and a caustic tongue. You are devoted to your family and are fond of recreation and sports.

JANUARY 13, 14, 15—Weakness or sentimentality have no place in your life. In business you are capable of running rough shod over your competitors. You like to make a lavish show of generosity but your gifts are always what you get out of others. Your nature is shrewd and cunning. You like to be secretive and mysterious.

RICH FOSSIL STORE IN SURFACE STRIP

Offers Interesting Study of Pliocene Era.

BERKELEY, CALIF.—One of the greatest fossil beds in the United States has been discovered in Contra Costa county, Calif., and is being worked by the University of California.

Secrecy of the discovery has been maintained to date owing to the fact that the bed is on private property, but it is now admitted that it ranks in importance with the famous Ranch La Brea in southern California.

The layer, in which the fossils of animals, birds and reptiles of the Lower Pliocene period of three to four million years ago, are imbedded, is about two feet thick, runs along near the surface of the earth for about 100 feet and then goes to a depth that has not been ascertained.

The great number of fossils in the bed is attributed to the fact that it represents an ancient water hole or valley water course to which the early creatures came to drink—and to die. No other reason can be supposed for the accumulation of so many specimens in one spot.

The fossils are much more ancient than those of the La Brea pits, but not nearly as well preserved.

One of the best specimens taken out is that of a dog of the most primitive type yet found. This is the short-jawed type, with bone-crunching teeth similar to those of the hyena. It is about the size of the German shepherd dog but more heavily built. It was a branch of the family tree of the dogs and later became...

CANADA TO RETAIN ANTICOSTI ISLAND

No Foreign Power Will Control Historic Spot.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—No foreign power will control the island of Anticosti, at the mouth of the St. Lawrence river, Prime Minister Mackenzie King recently assured the Canadian house of commons. The statement answered an inquiry concerning a reported option of sale given by the island's present holders after a visit from a German delegation of forestry experts, including military and naval officers.

"Anticosti, now an island appendage to Quebec, has changed hands many times in its career," points out a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Last leased in 1926 by the Anticosti Pulp and Paper company, it has served—in reverse order—as a pulpwood empire, a rich man's social experiment, a pirate's stronghold, and an explorer's reward.

A Dramatic Biography.

"Roughly in the shape of a great whale, its tail in the St. Lawrence river and its head in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Anticosti island is about 140 miles long and averages 35 miles across. It is a sportsman's paradise, with cool, brisk summers. Great forests of spruce bring green down to its very shores; game fish fill its streams, and flocks of ducks and geese stop off there regularly on flights north and south.

"So conspicuously placed and accessible is it that for the past 400 years this island has been the scene of man's activities and experiments.

"In 1534, Jacques Cartier, seeking that mythical short-cut to the East, first officially recorded the island and called it 'Ile de l'Assomption.' Already, however, Basque fishermen, familiar with this region from early fishing trips, had described it as 'Antecosta,' or island 'before the coast'—the name which still sticks, slightly changed in spelling.

"In 1630, a grateful king, Louis XIV of France, presented Anticosti to explorer-trader Louis Joliet. For a decade Joliet enjoyed fur and fish trade with nearby Indians, till he and his wife were made prisoners by Sir William Phipps' raiding party in the current French-English conflict.

"Finally, soon after the beginning of the Nineteenth century, Anticosti's oddest character came into the picture.

"Called a sorcerer and a pirate, Louis Olivier Gamache was also a Frenchman with a sense of humor. Natives believed that demons helped him rob passing craft, and told tales of brimstone smells and blue flames that followed his ship over the water.

Colonizing Fails.

"There was little humor connected with the enterprises that followed the death of the colorful Gamache.

"The island was almost barren of fish and game when Menier, a French chocolate manufacturer, bought it, taking possession in 1896. Interested in the possibilities of social experiment, Menier not only built himself a luxurious chateau and turned his domain into a valuable game preserve by importing deer, beaver, rabbits, elk; he also planned and developed farming communities, lobster factories, and a village equipped with hospital, school and church. He even built a railroad line and a canal.

"Later, realizing the potential industry in products from his forest land, he embarked on woodpulp production which, however, proved in time to be uneconomic and was finally abandoned.

"In 1926 the island was taken over by its present holder, reorganized as the Anticosti Consolidated Paper corporation, Menier retaining only his home and certain sporting rights. For a while Anticosti boomed, its population rising to more than 4,000 souls.

"But physical conditions here make lumbering operations hard. In winter months, ice is a problem; communications are uncertain. Records show that in the last three quarters of the Nineteenth century, more than 130 ships were wrecked on its treacherous reefs.

"Anticosti, however, with its long history of abandoned enterprises, is still a 'graveyard of hopes.' Its population has sunk to mere hundreds, mostly lighthouse keepers and their families, with a few fishermen, and attendants for fox and muskrat farms lately developed."

Pearling Industry Fast Losing Its Old Glories

JOLO, P. I.—The glories of the pearling industry in the Sulu sea are fast fading.

European rearmament and world depression have left little money in the pearl market, according to Jack Marco, who has been buying Sulu pearls for 16 years.

Eight fishing boats are carrying on a business that a few years ago occupied 70 vessels and 700 men. Pearls once valued at $10,000 are now worth a tenth as much.

Moros were the world's best pearl divers until the advent of diving suits, and Japanese are gradually replacing them, Marco said. Moro swimmers could plunge to the bottom of the sea and collect oysters for three minutes before returning to the surface for air. The Japanese have adapted themselves more readily to modern equipment.

Greatest Hunter in History

The marquess of Ripon (1827-1909), former British statesman, was probably the greatest hunter in history. Between 1867 and 1900, says Collier's Weekly, he killed 370,728 animals, ranging from rhinoceroses to rabbits.

Man Lives on Grass

In round figures there are 4,500 different kinds of grass growing in the soil of this planet. These include, wheat, maize, oats, barley, rice, and all the grains which man uses for bread or similar foods. More than that, they include also the grasses on which all grazing animals live. Without these grasses we should have no beef, mutton, pork or poultry. We should be without milk, butter and cheese, we should have no wool from which to make clothes, no leather to make shoes. Many of our fats and oils would be missing. First hand and second hand, man lives on grass.

What the Hand Reveals

The very short broad hand, with short, thick fingers and a heavy thumb which bears a top joint just like a small ball, betrays a criminal tendency. The man who forges counterfeit money or notes has a nicer hand. It has long, thin fingers. The sneak-thief has a hand that is broad, with slim fingers or else very knotted ones. Always the thumb is curiously supple and bends back away from the hand at an acute angle, according to a writer in Tit-Bits magazine. The surgeon has a long hand with long, slender, but nicely-shaped fingers. The artist has a short, broad hand, the outer edge of which, from the little finger to the wrist, shows a definite outward curving.

Inscription of Peace Bridge

The inscription on the bronze plaque at the Peace bridge between Buffalo, N. Y., and Fort Erie, Ontario, is as follows: "This plaque marks the crossing from the United States of America into the Dominion of Canada of a delegation from the Associated Country Women of the World, and is dedicated to the rural women of this continent and entrusted to their perpetual care." The bridge was unveiled July 29, 1936.

John Brown at Harpers Ferry

On the night of October 16, 1859, John Brown, with 18 or 20 men, attacked the federal arsenal at Harpers Ferry, taking about 60 citizens prisoners. He and his followers were overpowered on the eighteenth by a detachment of United States marines, under Col. Robert E. Lee. Committed to jail the following day at Charles Town, W. Va., his trial began on October 27. He was convicted of treason on October 31 and hanged on December 2.

As further evidence of the fact that given an inch some folks will take a mile—or try to—we cite the instance of the group in Kansas who are agitating old age pensions to begin at age 45. If the group were not actually sincere in their action it would not be so ridiculous. We shudder to think of old men tottering on the edge of the grave at the ripe old age of 35 having to wait ten long years for their old age pensions.

When a dog has all he should eat he buries the rest for another time. The human critter tries to eat it all and then has to take reducing exercises to get it off his waist line.

If we are ever called upon to select the man in whose memory a bronze statue should be erected in the public square we want to cast the deciding vote for the man who comes in promptly year after year and pays his subscription and tells us how he enjoys the paper. He is the salt of the earth and deserves to be preserved in memory.

A local critic is of the opinion that a surprisingly large number of the magazines these days are printed for morons.

F. Donald Coster is another example of the truth of the old adage, the wages of sin is death. Coster tried to build a career upon a foundation of wrong and just when success seemed within his grasp the whole structure came tumbling down bringing with it chaos and ruin to himself and his family.

"If we women had our way," a woman reader of this paper said in this office yesterday, "we would take care of the needy families of the town and put all the lazy, worthless men on the rock pile. We'd pay them so much a ton for the rock they cracked and they wouldn't eat unless they did crack it." It appears to be a good thing for some men around this town that the women aren't running things, since we happen to know that a lot of women feel about this just like our visitor felt.

There are few things quite so uncompromising as a hard working, industrious, thrifty man's contempt for a loafer and worthless parasite.

Two Minute Sermon

By
Thomas Hastwell

THEY HAVE NEVER SEARCHED FOR HIM: One of the many beautiful Christmas lessons that have their inspiration in the birth of Christ is the story of the three wise men who came to Judea searching for the Christ child. "We have seen His star" they said, "and have come to find him." The three wise men, according to the story, traveled a great distance and sought diligently for the Christ that they might see and know him. They came many weary miles and inquired of many people. They met with many discouragements, but persisted in their search and finally found the Christ. Many others living in that day saw the star but were heedless of its meaning to the world. Unlike the wise men they did not seek the Christ whose coming it foretold.

I have thought as I read this, how like many today. They hear the story of Christ yet never find Him because they do not search for Him. Because of their indifference their religion has never become a living, vital, usable thing in their lives. They have never been inspired by the wonder of it. It has never been a conviction, a faith to which they could turn in times of stress and uncertainty. They have heard of Christ but they have never sought Him and have never really found Him or known him.

WHAT WE THINK

(Frank Dixon)

There is a great deal said these days about what we choose to call our standard of living. The necessity of keeping it up, of never letting it fall below present levels, is urged by every writer and public speaker.

Comparisons are made with the standard of living today and the standard of living fifty and one hundred years ago and the present heights reached are hailed as a distinct achievement, upon the retention of which depends the continued happiness of the race.

I have lived in both periods, the period in which the standard of living was not so high and this later period in which it has reached such a high peak.

As I look back to the past, and consider the present, I am inclined to wonder if, after all, people today are any happier than they were before our high standard of living came into being.

My recollection extends back to the time when there were no automobiles, no airplanes, no motion pictures, no tractors, no combines, no electric washing machines, no electric sweepers or electric household equipment of any kind.

The home of the average person, outside of a few well-to-do, contained the simplest furniture, if the floors had carpets of any kind they were rag carpets, made from rags torn into strips, sewed together by the house wife and woven on the loom of the village weaver. There were no telephones in the town and no telephones in the country. Rural free delivery service had not yet come in being and parcel post was unknown.

As I look back it seems to me that there were just as many happy people in the proportion to the population then as there are today. There was less unemployment. It is true wages were lower, but wants were simpler and expenses less. Hundreds of homes were operated on less than it costs today to run even a moderate priced car.

Today the scene is completely changed. The whole scheme of living costs more and its tempo is much faster. The struggle to make ends meet in the average home and to keep up with the Jones' is just as keen as it was fifty and more years ago. In those days everyone desired more, the desired larger homes, better horses and carriages, better clothes, better furniture, more travel just as they do today.

Even though the lowliest home of today has things far beyond the dreams and desires of similar homes fifty years ago, there is still the desire for more, still the desire to keep up with the Jones', still the same struggle to balance the budget.

All of which prompts the question, to which I admit I have not yet found an answer, that, while we have the potential and the material things presumed to produce happiness, have they produced it. Are we, as a people, any happier today than we were fifty years ago? I do not know the answer. I feel that if we are not it is our own fault, but I have no conviction that we really are.

Rush Treaty With Canada

Richard Rush, in 1818, while minister to Great Britain, in association with Albert Gallatin, concluded with British plenipotentiaries the treaty which determined the boundary line between the United States and Canada from the Lake of the Woods to the Rocky mountains. It also provided for the joint occupation of Oregon for 10 years.

Why Bread Is 'Staff of Life'

There is a natural reason why wheat bread is called the "staff of life." Wheat has some elements which make it different from other grains. One of these is found in wheat flour protein. When wheat flour is mixed with water it forms a substance called gluten. This is gum-like and rubbery and is the best measure of quality in wheat.

HIGH SCHOOL ART

It has been the purpose of the Mentone School to give as an elective subject a general course in high school art. The subject has been approached in a general manner first, with work in pencil sketching illustrating light, shade, and form, then speed ball pen designing was introduced, helping the student to be more creative. Later the students make wood blocks designing, cutting, and printing their own blocks. Color was then introduced and all over designs were painted. Most students designed and painted their own Christmas cards. The subject was approached in a general manner, yet, in order to meet the demands of the students individually, each student has done, to some extent the thing he is particularly interested in, for instance several boys were interested in window decoration, so they have been given the job of decorating two interior windows, some students were interested in modeling, others in glorified glass and still others in making wall hangings.

It is hoped that before the end of the term each student will have studied some art appreciation, be able to print neatly and be able to appreciate good art and to use it in his everyday life. Art is no longer considered a fad or a fad but in reality a necessity to everyday living. Art with its beauty and also its horrors is all about us. We must become art conscious if we wish to be successful, for every product whether to wear or to use must be made beautiful to the eye if it is desired by the buying public. The objective to be reached in this course is not so much to make artists of each student any more than it is to make a statesman out of every student who takes history or a scientist of the student who takes science, but to instill in the student the desire for further study in art. If this can be accomplished the course will have served its purpose.

GRADE NEWS

The first grade girls gave a party for their dolls Tuesday. The boys are getting ready for a toy party soon.

The second grade, which has been studying about Eskimos in Social Studies, welcomed our recent snow.

The third grade pupils are making a very interesting study of the Chinese people. Literature offers many legends and Mother Goose rhymes. They have also found modern Chinese stories, poems and pictures, which give us a peep into Chinese life.

Dawn McIntyre is leaving the fourth grade here and is going to Burket.

The students in the Fifth Grade are striving to read faster and more comprehensively. They have a one minute reading test once a week to determine their speed and accuracy. According to the standard set by "My Weekly Reader," a child's newspaper, fifth graders should be able to read two hundred words per minute. It's lots of fun to try, and many can read more than that.

BEGIN PHYSICAL ED.

The seventh and eighth grade girls have just begun their work in physical education at the beginning of the second semester. There are about twenty-five girls who are enjoying their games and exercises.

Some days they can scarcely wait until the last period has started, for they are so eager to play. Some of the games they enjoy immensely are "Dodgeball" and "Spud." What do we do when we get three "Spuds" girls?

U. S. Goes Nutty

Peanuts won't be sold at the New York and San Francisco world fairs, according to recent announcements by the fair authorities. But evidently they are sold in plenty of other places. Delving into Government figures on the peanut industry brings to light some amazing facts. For instance, in 1938 there were 1,887,000 acres in the U. S. planted to peanuts, and a total of 1,424,825,000 pounds were produced, or 11 pounds for each man, woman and child in the country and the largest yield on record. Value of the crop to the farmer was over $50,000,000. With the aid of modern chemical research, the lowly peanut has proved its usefulness in insulating material, as a base for fine face powder and as breakfast food, in addition to its more common appearance at circuses and ball games.

Two Minute Sermon

Thomas Hastwell

By

THE LESSON OF THE LIFE OF PETER: The story of Peter is remarkably well told. It portrays a picture of a human life that modern writers are unable to paint of men today. In the story of Peter nothing is omitted. His weakness, his impetuosity, his doubts, his cowardice, his disloyalty, his love, his faith, his sacrifice, his devotion are all impartially revealed.

I like the story of Peter because it reveals not only the human side of Peter but it also reveals what God can do with a man. Peter was called from his fishing nets, a lowly laborer in a lowly profession, and, through his contact and association with the Christ was made over into a new man. The human frailties and weaknesses were one by one purged from his life until he finally became a tower of strength among men. What Christ did for Peter he can do and does do for men today. He can take them, weak and sinful, and make of them men of strength, and courage, and force, and conviction. I have seen many evidences of it. To me this is the greatest lesson in the life of Peter.

Death Takes Aged Resident

Albert Tucker, aged 89, one of our oldest residents, passed away early Wednesday, January 11 after a four weeks illness, due to apoplexy. Mr. Tucker had been in comparatively good health up until the time of his last illness.

He was born in Franklin township, September 13, 1845, the son of Horace and Eliza Johnson Tucker and lived in Kosciusko county all his life. He was a prominent stock buyer, but retired thirty years ago and started the Tucker Dairy. He was a member of the Mentone Baptist church.

Survivors include the widow, Lula, ten children, Mrs. Effie Summe, of Akron; Ivan Tucker, Frank C. Tucker, and Mrs. Ida Huffer, of Claypool; Roy Tucker of Dayton Washington; John Tucker of Chicago; Mrs. Millie Getty, Silber Lake; Una Tucker, of Rochester; and Darrel and Rex Tucker of Mentone; fifteen grandchildren and eighteen great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Baptist church. Interment was in the Mentone cemetery.

FLYERS DEFEAT OUR BULLDOGS

Mentone met their first defeat of the season Friday night in their battle with the Akron Flyers. The final score stood at 34-23 in Akron's favor. A former Mentone Bulldog tells us that it was the first time in twelve years that Mentone failed to defeat Akron on the Flyers floor.

Bulldog fans, however, feel that the defeat will be a boon rather than a detriment to the boys in the coming tourney and are planning to attend the contest in large numbers.

Guild Meets

The World Wide Guild of the Baptist Church met at the home of Miss Fern Rans Tuesday evening, Jan. 10. After a short business meeting and a lesson given very capably by Miss Helen Barnaby, the evening was spent socially. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Bulldogs Have Only Begun To Fight

The 22nd Annual Basketball tourney is history now, and the Bulldogs didn't bring home the trophy as the Mentone fans had hoped, but the boys say they've only begun to fight. They admit they hadn't counted on the Hawks putting up such a battle, but they're sure going to be prepared next time, and defy any team to stop them. We'll all be there rootin' for you boys and doing our part to put the Bulldogs back at the top of the list.

Mentone clashed with Claypool at 2:00 p. m. Friday in their first game of the tourney and piled up a 47 to 19 margin against the Knights. Secore led the attack with a total of 17 points. Claypool's Bernard Neff made a total of 11 points. All was going per schedule—Mentone was still the county's only undefeated team, and tourney favorites.

Mentone fans, justly proud of their team, crowded into the Armory Friday night to witness the Burket-Mentone game at 8:00 o'clock. The score was tied several times during the battle, but Burket gained a slight margin in the last few seconds of the game. When the gun sounded the score stood Hawks, 28, Bulldogs, 25. Both teams were unfortunate in having one of their players injured. Secore of Mentone, who incidentally was Mentone's high point man with a total of seven points. Hal Doran of Burket was also injured. Doran, tied with Davis and Brown for high-points, with a total of seven each.

Mentone also relinquished the Gerry Lambdin Victory Ball. The spheric emblem is now the property of Coach Hardy Songer's Hawks. Secore was picked as guard, for the All-County team, and Dean Shirey found a place among the "honorable mention."

Trees Used as Landmarks

MR. KERN LECTURES

Mr. Kern, Dean of the South Bend College of Commerce gave a lecture to the Senior Class on Wednesday. His lecture compared the lives of the students to a base ball game. The time spent in acquiring the position of first base is about the first six years of his life, then it requires about eight years to attain the second base position and another four years to reach the third base.

During the first six years if he was started by a good hit he reached first base quite easily. During the next eight years he was helped along with a bunt or a sacrifice and the following four some batter made a long fly across the field. This period at third base is compared with the Senior year of high school, already to make a score or success.

It requires about one to seven years of training from the time you reach the third base before you are able to make a score or a success of life.

Mr. Kern gave a few points in making a success. The first is to put yourself together. Henry Ford once said, "Finish what you start, then improve what you have." Theodore Roosevelt told one of his college friends, "I am determined to learn all I can even with my poor physical health." Think all the time because other people will not do it for you, so begin now.

Mr. Kern also gave four helps to success. One is to have a high spiritual standing, another to have a good physical health condition, a third to acquire a good training and the last to have a desire to be economically independent and also to know the value of a dollar.

NEW SAFETY COURSE

The new course in Safety will be taught a full semester. It will consist of studies of the hazards encountered in the process of modern life. Accidents, their cause and how to prevent them will claim much of the student's time. As many phases and activities will be studied as time permits. Safety in the home, on the farm, at school and during play will be studied first. First aid, industrial and occupational hazards will be considered later. A large part of the time will be used in learning means of safety on the public highways and in our transportation system.

The chief objective of the course will be to make the pupils of the school and members of the community safety conscious. An accidental death every seven minutes and a serious accident every three seconds show the need of such work in the schools and community.

You have listened to Amos and Andy for a number of years and know that all of the characters are played by the two men, yet do you recall one single instance in which there has been a mix up of voices in which the Kingfish's voice answered for Miss Blue or for Amos. When one considers the rapidity with which these conversations are sometimes carried on he cannot help but notice the agility and skill of adaption possessed by these entertainers.

It is reported that guests at the Lions banquet Wednesday night witnessed the finest array of Christmas neckties ever gathered together under one roof.

Basketball leads all American sports from the standpoint of attendance. Last year 80,000,000 paid admissions to the game were reported.

In the past twenty years Robert LeRoy Ripley, of "Believe It Or Not" fame, has visited over 200 countries. He claims to be the most widely traveled man who has ever lived.

We don't know where prosperity is, but with all the cleaning going on in business places in Mentone, we have reasonable assurance that spring is "just around the corner."

A banker in a certain town, noted for his conservativeness, was a little slow his customers thought, in putting out in his town the new Jefferson nickels. When asked the reason he replied: "We are waiting till we are absolutely sure they are going to be a success."

Another story is told about a banker who quit the banking business and got into the filling station business. The first customer who came in asked for ten gallons of gas and was surprised when the proprietor asked: "Can't you get along with five?"

Parking Simplified

For Madame Motorist (and Monsieur too), who frequently complain that they have difficulty in parking their car, the Chicago Motor club suggests the following three rules which make the task a simple maneuver even under crowded conditions:

1. Pull up alongside and parallel with the car ahead about two feet to the left.

2. Turn wheels to the right as far as possible and back slowly until your right front fender will just clear the left rear fender of the car ahead.

3. Then stop, cut the wheels to the left as far as possible, and back into place.

"This procedure will save a lot of jockeying back and forth into position," George Barton, head of the motor club engineering department explained, "and at the same time put you into the safest possible position as far as other traffic is concerned."

And furthermore, did you know that only one part of carbon monoxide in ten thousand parts of pure air will make you lose consciousness in fifteen minutes if your car windows are rolled up! Even though the winter has been mild so far, motorists are obliged to drive with their windows closed to keep warm, thus endangering their safety if there is a trace of carbon monoxide in the car. The poisonous gas need not prove fatal to menace safety and the welfare of others; even a very minute proportion may dull the driver's senses and make him sluggish enough to cause an accident.

To avoid being accident-prone because of carbon monoxide and stale air, keep one window rolled down a crack if the car isn't ventilated.

Two Minute Sermon

THE GREATEST MIRACLE: Nothing in the story of Christ's work and teachings is more interesting than the stories of the miracles He performed. There was the making of the lame to walk, the restoring of sight to the blind, the casting out of demons, the raising of the dead, and the healing of the lepers. All are remarkable stories of remarkable deeds. We are prone to think that the day of miracles is past, and that miracles are no longer performed. This is not true.

There are many miracles performed today, miracles greater than the healing of the leper, the causing of the blind to see, or the lame to walk. Such a miracle takes place when the redemptive power of Christ gets into the life of a sinful man, lifts him out of the gutter, cleans him up physically, and spiritually, and makes a man among men of him. It is all of the miracles gathered together into one. Whereas he was blind now he sees, whereas he was unclean and now he is clean, whereas he was broken now he is made whole whereas he was dead now he lives. Nowhere is there recorded a miracle greater than this.

Hoosier Egg & Fruit Farm
FORREST KESLER,MORE NEWS ON THE EXTENSION HOG SCHOOL

Why do hog markets discount heavy hogs at the present time? Is pork from heavy hogs not just as palatable as the lighter pork? What type of hog meets the popular consumer demand? What is the market prospect for hogs during 1939?

These are but a few of the many questions arising in the minds of Kosciusko County farmers this winter as they transform their good corn crop into pork and also make plans for the production and marketing of the 1939 crop of "porkers," says Joe Clark, county agricultural agent.

Full consideration of the many hog production and marketing problems will be discussed in detail at the Swine School to be held at Warsaw, in the Court Room on January 25th. John Schwab, Purdue hog specialist, will be present to discuss the feeding, care, and management of the swine breeding herd and growing pigs, while the marketing discussions will be conducted by Paul Mitchell, Purdue livestock marketing specialist.

Meaning of Name Lulu
The name Lulu is generally conceded to be a diminutive of the Teutonic Louise, which would make it mean "famous in battle" or "heroine of war," writes Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. But it may also be an independent name and other meanings are possible. For instance, the North American Indian name Lulu means "a rabbit," and the Persian Lu'lu' means "a jewel." Some think Lulu is a form of the Anglo-Saxon Lulie, "a soothing influence," which is probably related to Lulette (Teutonic), meaning "little comforter." So Lulu may take her choice of a variety of meanings.
