"For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness: but unto us which are saved it is the power of God."

I Corinthians 1:18

A SOLDIER BECOMES A CHRISTIAN

Cornelius and his kinsmen and friends were the first Gentiles to become Christians. The story of their conversion is told in Acts 10:1 to 11:18.

become Christians. The story of their conversion is told in Acts 10:1 to 11:18. Cornelius was a devout and prayerful man and it may seem strange that he should need conversion, yet it was necessary for him to hear words whereby he might be saved. (11:14). Though an angel had spoken to him, and though God had heard his prayers, he must yet hear words from a man's lips before he will be saved. Peter the apostle, is chosen by God to be the first to preach the gospel to the Gentiles although it was necessary to persuade him through means of a vision (see 10:9-20, 34, 35). Upon entering the house of Cor-nelius, Peter and the Jewish Christians with him were greeted with res-pect and rapt attention. As usual, the heart of the sermon was 'preach-ing peace by Jesus Christ; (he is Lord of all:)" (10;36 (Note: these were then baptized with the Holy Ghost, 11:15-17; but this was extraordinary circumstance and only for the purpose of con-vincing the Jews that Gentiles also were to be received, 11:18.) All who believed were promise is to be made effective. These very persons were a little later commanded to be baptized "in the name of the Lord" (48); and all are baptized "in the name of the Father, and of the Son' (Matt. 28:19). This perfectly harmonizes with Peter's command in his first sermon "repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins," (Acts 2:38).

MECHANICS ENTER POLLENIZATION FIELD

The machine age is catching up with the busy bees. Steel equipment before long will take over their job of crosspollenizing apple trees, according to STEELWAYS Magazine.

That forecast of things to come was made by Jonathan Davis, who bought 80 acres of sickly orchard near Worcester, Massachusetts, in 1932 and, with mechanized assistance, built it into a multi-thousand-dollar business.

"Matter of fact, we're experimenting with that right now." he told STEELways. "There's some work being done now on prepared pollen. The stuff will cost $5 an ounce. Mix one ounce of pollen with 100 gallons of water, pour it in a tank and spray it over the trees, and the job is done

The helicopter probably will be the next machine to invade noreast apple country, where steel equipment already has taken over the orchard from January pruning to October storage, Davis said. He pointed out that with a heliconter, it is possible to dust 200 acres of apple orchard an hour in hill country. Such spraving covers all the trees, and ground spraving doesn't.

Machinery may eventually take enough of the gamble out of the eastern orchard to guarantee a steady income," Davis added, pointing out that the bulldozers, trucks, manure spreaders, buckrakes, field balers and spraying equipment-and many smaller pieces, already have contributed importantly.

There is another "almighty important thing steel and apples can do for New England." according to Davis, 'and that is a soil conservation job. An or-

Knitwear for Children

Knitwear deserves greater use in children's clothing, say clothing specialists. Its elasticity, making it fit closely yet allowing for plenty of freedom of action, and its lack of bulkiness, are advantages. Its insulating properties provide extra warmth in winter. Yet cotton knitwear, because of its porousness, is comfortable in summer, too.

Electric Block System Thomas S. Hall in 1867 invented the automatic electric block system. First installation was made on the New York and Harlem railroad. The wheels of the locomotive strike a lever pivoted to the rail and this in turn sets the signal at danger until the train is out of the block.

During the past five years, more than 2000 outdoor fires occurred in this state. The Indiana Department of Conservation's Division of Forestry reports that these fires burned 84,232 acres and caused almost $342,000 worth of damage. The severity of these losses is accentuated by the fact that Indiana needs one new acre of forests for every five we now have. Also, Indiana, is cutting five board feet to every three board feet being grown.

TO OUR VALUED CUSTOMERS:

The prospect of a continuing tight supply of ALL FUELS clearly indicates the wisdom of early coal stocking. It is the only way we know to prevent a fuel emergency next winter. A full fuel bin is the best assurance of a warm home then.

Millions of tons of high-grade domestic coal have already been lost because of the mine shut-downs. Further drain upon available supply comes from tremendous demand by utilities, industries and the foreign export market. For these reasons, we advise you to place your order NOW for your annual requirements. Then let us deliver all we can during the next six months, as the type of coal you prefer becomes available.

Thanks again for your patronage. We sincerely appreciate your patience and understanding of the difficulties which have kept us from rendering the class of service we would really like to give.

HEALTH CONFERENCES

Preschool Roundups and Well Child Health conferences for children are being planned in many Indiana communities in observance of Child Health day, which has been designated in a special Child Health Day proclamation by President Harry S. Truman as the day to begin a nation-wide effort to improve the health of children of school age.

"An ideal approach for providing health guidance is through the establishment of the Well Child Conference for all infants and preschool children in the community," Dr. Robert E. Jewett. director, Division of Maternal and Child Health, Indiana State Board of Health, said in asking more communities to sponsor these programs. "At the Well Child conference the child can have regular and continuous advice as to vision, immunization status, dental and physical disabilities. Families of any child attending one of our 22 Well Child conferences in Indiana are also guided in obtaining needed corrections before children are eligiblefor the primary grades.

"P. T. A., and other civic groups that sponsor the conferences are aware that the advantage of the Well Child conference is that it offers continuous supervision. Thus, we do not have to fall back on mass examination and immunization programs which do not give much attention to the individual child."

The 1948 State Junior Leader Training Conference will be held at Indiana Central College, Indianapolis, June 9-12, according to an announcement of the state 4-H club office at Purdue University.

If farm prices should experience some further cut-back by late 1948 or 1949, it is probable that farm land prices will also level off or start declining soon thereafter, Dr. E. L. Butz, head of the department of agricultural economics, Purdue University, declares. It is not expected that the decline in land prices will be as serious or as abrupt as occurred following 1920. However, they may decline moderately for several years.

A fountain for watering pigs should be provided as soon as pigs start eating grain, John Schwab advises. Suck ling cows, too, should have all the good water they want to drink as their milk is more than 80 percent water.

4-H CLUB MEETS

The Mentone Merrymakers 4-H Club met on May 3 at the school building. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Roll call was answered by ten persons. After roll call the project books were given out. The demonstration for the coming meeting was decided upon. A demonstration on How to Bake Cookies was given by Carolyn Jonhson, Bonita Miner, Madeline Holt.

The next meeting will be held on May

The members present were Judy Clutter, Marjorie Mollenhour, Virginia Rush, Elaine Dunnuck, Martha Sullivan, Martha Fitzgerald, Madeline Holt, Carolyn Johnson, Bonita Miner, Edna Quier.

THE NORTHERN INDIANA CO-OP. NEWS

A wintering ground's inventory of waterfowl, made in January but only recently made public, showed that the mallard ranks first in numbers in the United States, with the pintail runnerup. The count disclosed that slightly less than a third of the ducks counted were mallards. A fifth of the waterfowl included in the inventory were pin tails

Other ducks, in the order they ranked in numbers, were the baldpate or widgeon, scaup, green-wing teal, black duck, redhead, shoveller and canvasback. Also tabulated, but in much smaller numbers, were the blue-winged teal, ring-necked ducks, wood ducks and the golden-eye.

Practically all the mallards were found wintering in the Mississippi flyway states and to the west. Pintails on the other hand, were most umerous in the states west of the Rocky Mountains. The balpate was most numerous west of the Rockies, also the snow goose, shoveller, ruddy duck, whitefronted goose and white checked goose. A foot note to the report indicated that the winter populations of all water fowl were approximately the same as a year ago. That strengthens the argument we presented a few weeks back that next season's bag limits and number of shooting days will remain the same as last season, and we'll still bet that duck call we're right in the prediction.

Here's a tip that will pay off in pleasure-don't wait until your first spring fishing trip to inspect your outboard motor. It may cause you trouble, so take the necessary precautions to assure its working to perfection before going fishing.

Most outboards will operate after a winter's storage with no more than fresh fuel in the tank, but to add years of easy starting performance to the life of any outboard it is best not to neglect the routine spring conditioning. First, flush out the fuel system and clean the carburetor. If any old oil or sediment has started a gum de-

Then take out the spark plugs, clean and adjust them, or buy new plugs. Remember it's always wise to carry an extra set of plugs. Next on the conditioning schedule is to remove the drain plugs in the lower gear case and flush with a mixture of oil and kerosene. Then put in new waterproof grease of the type recommended by the manufacturer.

And don't forget to tighten all the bolts and studs that might work loose during the season, especially the flywheel nut, propellor nut and the fuel lines. The propellor should be checked for dents and uneven places, and, if extremely bad, take it to a shop for fixing, or get replacement at your dealer. Also, if there was any indication of trouble with the magneto last season, let your dealer's repair shop check it over. Breaker points can be clean-

ROUND AND ROUND WE GO - AGAIN

Many Indiana waters are "underfished, according to the May issue of Outdoor Indiana, the state's official Conservation magazine, which was mailed this week.

Dr. W. E. Ricker, eminent marine biologist, I. U. professor and director of the Indiana Lake and Stream survey, flatly states some facts which will come as a solid surprise to many veteran fishermen. In the article "Questions and Answers Concerning Fishing Seasons" Dr. Ricker contends that Hoosier waters are not only underfished but it is also not harmful to catch spawning panfish 'off the beds."

"There seems to be always far more spawning bluegills present in a lake than are actually needed." according to Ricker. Pointing out that theories on pan fish do not necessarily apply to large game fishes, he added, "Good information on the available populations of fish like bass and pike is hard to get. Such indications as we have suggest that in some places largemouth bass may be more heavily exploited than bluegills. Furthermore, since the male bass guards its young for some time after they hatch, a closed season on fishing at that time may be of more value than in the case of bluegills. Accordingly, no change in the closed seasons on the larger game fish is being proposed at the present time."

The Department of Conservation recently announced there will be no closed season on pan fish during 1948, following extensive scientific investigations through the last several years. Among the Department's conclusions are

Indiana lakes and streams are neither overpopulated nor underpopulated. quantity depends upon the basic fertility of the water and the weed beds. The current heavy fishing pressure fish in a lake. Increased fishing increases the total catch of fish from a lake or streamit doesn't simply distribute the catch more widely.

OUTLOOK FOR HOGS IS SEEN FAVORABLE

In view of the smaller total meat supplies in prospect for the summer and with a relatively strong demand. hog prices are expected to average well above the late February and early March levels for the period April 15 to October 1, according to J. Carrol Bottum, Purdue University agricultural economist.

Recently, there has been a tendency to reduce all classes of livestock in the United States relative to probable grain production. This would seem to justify maintaining the number of sows for fall farrowing on Indiana farms at normal levels. Feeding ratios are likely to be favorable in the latter half of 1948 if average or better than average crop yields are in prospect or obtained.

Indiana farmers are urged to cooperate with the sixth annual nationwide Forest Fire Prevention campaign. Dr. E. R. Martell, head of the department of forestry, Purdue University, says that nine out of ten forest fires are man-caused and the number of persons using the nation's forests has increased 31 percent over 1941.

SPRING MANUFACTURING PLANT NOW IN PRODUCTION

Robert Riewoldt, manager of the local branch of the Mid-West Spring Manufacturing company, announces that the plant now has four full-time employees and production orders are being shipped regularly. The plant now has six punch presses and three hand spring curlers in addition to the tool making and hardening equipment. Additional equipment will be moved here as time progresses and the plant can be made ready for the machines.

The Mid-West company has been manufacturing many types of springs for over 20 years and they have regular customers in many parts of the nation.

Simple Range Shelter

MORE and more poultrymen are discovering the importance of range shelters in rearing strong, healthy pullets. Such shelters enable flocks to range on clean ground, and protect them from the crowding and overheating to which they often are subjected if kest in colony houses throughout the summer. As a result flocks develop more evenly, with fewer culls.

There are other advantages, too. Many farmers find range shelters useful for housing an early brood of pullets while a second brood occupies the colony house. In some areas shelters are even utilized for late season brooding. This saves the cost of conventional brooder houses.

At little expense you can build a serviceable shelter that will last many years. The type illustrated above, on a scale of 10 x 10 ft., will house about 125 pullets. Structurally, it consists merely of simple framing and a pitch roof. Practically the only other requirements are roosts and some welded mesh wiring for the floor. The wood framing though he

The wood framing should be painted, but the roof can be made of asbestos cement board, which requires no preservative treatment. Five sheets of 4 x 8 asbestos board will suffice, with one piece cut in half to form the middle section of each side. If a solid floor is desired. it also may be built of asbestos board. Mr. Riewoldt states that he is attempting to secure relatively unskilled labor locally and train them in the various technical phases of spring manufacture.

lot for the money. Miss Lois Oberhelman, Purdue extension nutrition specialist, tells homemakers that a pound of dried fruit equals four pounds of fresh or canned fruit in food value.

Dried fruits of all kinds, peaches, figs and prunes, are listed by the U. S. D. A. as being "plentiful". This might be the cue for some homemakers and schools serving hot lunches to include these dried fruits in future meal planning work.

Miss Oberhelman has some advice on how to store these dried fruits. The first step is to check the condition of the fruit when one is buying. Most of the dried fruit on the market is fumigated before packing and generally reaches the wholesaler in good condition.

Dried fruit should be stored in a cool place. This should keep it safe for a long time.

In case some infestation should occur the food should be removed immediately. The simplest way to get rid of insects is to heat the oven to a temperature of 135 degrees. Then spread fruit out on a shallow pan and heat until heat has thoroughly penetrated the material.

The new tenderized dried fruits on the market do not require soaking. This saves food value and flavor, cook quicker, and do not require additional sugar.

It's best to quick cook the fruit. Cover the fruit with water allowing some extra for evaporation. If sugar is to be added, do it during last five minutes of cooking.

LYDIA'S HOUSEHOLD

One more instance of New Testament salvation is given in Acts 16: 12-15. Lydia, along with other women were meeting for prayer when Paul spoke to them. Lydia's heart was opened and she "attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul". She and her household were baptized.

The statement that her household were baptized has often been urged as evidence that infant baptism was the practice of the apostolic age. However, this is to read a great deal between the lines. The apostles were working under the commission: "preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved;" (Mk. 16:15, 16). Surely that believed and is bapuzed shall be saved;" (MR. 16:15, 16). Surely they didn't go beyond the authority given by Christ! There are only 4 whole households mentioned as being baptized, and there is positive proof in 3 of these there was not an infant! In that of Cornelius there was none, for they all spoke in tongues and believed (Acts 10:46; 15:9); none in that of Stephanus, for 'they set themselves to minister to the saints' (I Cor. 1:16; 16:15).

Notice the fact that Lydia was of "the city of Thyatira", and con-sequently she was a long way from home, and that even if she was a married woman, and even if she was a mother, and even if any one or more of her children were infants, she would not likely have them with her. There are too many IFs to get infant baptism from this passage.

Slowly official reports on the last waterfowl season are creeping into releases by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service. The most recent one disclosed that the drastic regulations last year short season and small bag—substantially reduced the kill of ducks and geese.

From incomplete returns these facts are highligted: the average season's kill amounted to a little more than seven birds per hunter; the average daily kill was 1.8 birds, and each hunter averaged four trips.

The Pacific flyway had 19 percent of the hunters and 25 percent of the kill; the central flyway had 25 percent of the hunters with anly 19 percent of the kill. The heaviest was the Mississippi flyway with 44 percent of the hunters and 46 percent of the kill, and the Atlantic flyway had 11 percent of the hunters and 10 percent of the kill.

The Pacific flyway was about the same as the previous year, and the central flyway fell off about 10 percent in the kill with an equal number of hunters. The Mississippi flyway had a reduction of two percent in the number of hunters, but an increase of nine percent in the kill. There were three percent fewer hunters on the Atlantic and a one percent drop in the kill.

THE CATFISH: Thousands and thousands of fishermen annually get real sport from catching catfish, yet this fish rarely comes in for its deserved share of angling glory. Consequently we are glad to learn that, at long last, biologists are making a study of "Mr. Whiskers" in the Mississippi River. Many thousands of channel catfish are being marked with metal tags and released. Where they travel and where they are caught should provide interesting information.

FRUIT BROWN ROT

Brown rot disease of stone fruits destroyed most of the plums, peaches and fruit growers in 1947. Most amateur fruit growers contemplated promising bumper crops of peaches and plums, only to have these visions shattered at harvest time. As the fruit started to ripen, it rotted on the trees and fell. Dr. Eric Sharvelle, Purdue University plant pathologist, explained that brown rot disease appears just as the plums and peaches are getting ripe. Under ordinary conditions, plums and peaches do not get brown rot when they are green. However, these fruits will have brown rot before they are ripe if the insect, known as the curculio punctures the fruit just after the shucks fall.

Brown rot of peaches and plums cannot be prevented at harvest time unless this insect is controlled in late April or early May. Arsenate of lead or the new "One Package" spray should be used to stop curculio just after the plum or peach petals fall and again after the shucks fall. Amateur fruit growers are urged to contact the department of entomoligy at Purdue University for information on stopping plum and peach curculio. Unless this insect is controlled now, brown rot will take the fruit at harvest time, the pathologist warned.

Measures for the prevention of curculio and the control of brown rot are outlined in the Agricultural Extension Service Leaflet, No. 290, "Spray and Dust Schedules for Indiana Home Fruit." The leaflet may be obtained free from the office of the county agent or Purdue University.

MAY ROTO SECTION SHOWS CONTROL OF FARM PESTS

More healthful living and increased production on the farm through insect and weed control is demonstrated pictorially in the May Rural Gravure, an exclusive feature each month in the Co-Op News.

Nearly every phase of insect and weed control is shown and the information contained therein has been obtained from scientists engaged in the development of 2,4-D and DDT. Readers of the Co-Op News are also offered a free packet of information on the subject sending their request to the office of this newspaper.

An interesting photo story of three sisters-in-law, all with the same name, who live within four blocks of each other in a town of 650 is related in the Rural America section. This is but one of a dozen or more photo stories-of the-month found regularly in Rural Gravure.

COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY ADOPTS NEW FEE SCHEDULE

At the regular meeting of the Kosciusko County Medical Society the minimum fee schedule, published in another part of this paper, was adopted. This represents some advance over the previous minimum fee schedule used in this county, and was adopted only after a thorough study of the charges made for medical services in all adjoining counties.

It was the opinion of the members of the Society that the minimum fee schedule adopted was in agreement with neighboring counties and was necessary in view of the recent marked increase in cost of drugs, medications and medical supplies.

SEE ME TODAY!

IS YOUR CORN SPOILING?

Mr. Farmer, this applies to your crop of 1947. You have been reading this in your farm papers along with a lot of advice as to what you should do to take care of this corn.

Have you thought about your crop of 1948? Are you again going to plant late-maturing hybrids and have them ask you the same questions over in 1949?

We still have early-maturing seed corn of good quality that you can use with very good satisfaction, if proper plate sizes are used.

That is our business . . . regardless of what your need might be, we will do our best to take care of them for you.

The success of our many battle engagements in the air and on the seas during World War Two was credited almost entirely to the eyes of the radar. It was considered by our military strategists and leaders to be one of the great advantages we had over the enemy that enabled the United States to stay in the war during the early days when our sea and air forces were de-

RETURNS VARY FROM HOOSIER HOG FARMS

Why do some farmers earn much higher returns from their hog enterprises than their neighbors?

Some of the answers to this question were found in a survey of livestock production costs on 40 farms in Indiana by Francis H. Lacy, Jr., department of agricultural economics at Purdue University.

Size of the enterprise is usually a key factor. In sections where hogs are well adapted, the size of the hog enterprise should be as large as possible, and be consistent with the over-all livestock program and ability of the farmer. On farms studied, as the size of the hog enterprise increased, labor per hog fell. Farms raising around 100 hogs each used about 3.6 hours of direct labor per 100 pounds of pork produced. Farmers with larger enterprises producing almost 400 hogs used only 1.6 hours of man labor per cwt. of pork produced. As a result, farmers with the larger herds, earned on an everage about eight times as much per hour of hog labor as farmers with smaller herds, the work simplification specialist said.

Cost of producing pork which included feed, building and equipment, labor and interest was about the same for farmers producing an average of approximately 200 or 400 hogs, but pork produced from the small herds cost about one-third more. The small herds took more feed, partly due to less complete use of pasture acreage charged to them, and labor, than did the medium sized or large herds. The lower costs on the large enterprises were not due to size alone. Good management practices are essential, regarcless of the size.

Writing in "Florida Wildlife" John Dequine says: "Studies made by fisheries biologists in southeastern United States have convinced them that, like the 1903 model automobile, closed seasons for bass, bream and crappie are obsolete. Furthermore, they are unanimous in their opinion that closed seasons in warm climates are as unnecessary as 'four thumbs.'

We'd like to add our endorsement to Mr. DeQuine's statement. Some states have abolished the closed season and others are in process of erasing this outdated idea. Most states, however, are still clinging to the idea that seasons must be closed during the spawning periods. Possibly in the northern states it is necessary to close the bass season to allow sufficient numbers to spawn, and for such species as trout it probably is a good idea to give them a "rest period" during certain seasons of the year. So far experiments have not been carried far enough to answer the question in the north.

But extensive tests conducted by the Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station and the Tennessee Valley Authority have proved conclusively that closed seasons in no way add to the numbers of the warm water species. First, it has been proved that all adult fish need not spawn, for one successful bass nest will produce sufficient young to stock adequately from 60 to 600 acres of unfertilized water. A bluegill nest will produce fingerlings for 10 to 170 acres of unfertilized water. This adds up to the fact that if all fish spawned the waters would not be able to support all the young. And overstocking is as disastrous, at least in fishing results, as understocking.

The Alabama Experimental Station also has uncovered evidence which tends to outmode the laws requiring that the "little ones" be tossed back. The number of fish hooked, then returned to the water, that dies has been the center of a heated argument for years. No doubt, there are reasons for both sides, but this fact would tend to discard the "legal minimum limits." The Station biologists learned through long observations that 75 to 95 percent of the bass and bluegills sufficiently injured by hooks to draw blood died when returned to the water-even if handled with the greatest of care. For our money, that settles the argument.

chicks, although they are by no means a substitute for sanitation. This was the word from the poultry department of Purdue University which has just issued a new leaflet on this subject for Indiana producers.

The two most common sulfas shown to be of practical value with chickens against coccidiosis are sulfaguanadine and sufamethazine, with the latter proving more effective in experiments and field tests, especially after the disease has some start. But, they assert regardless of what drug is used, the socalled intermittent treatment is recommended when the disease is recognized in the early stages. Sulfa quinoxalin has proved to be quite successful experimentally and will be on the market in the fall.

INSECT CONTROL GUIDE FOUND IN NEW LEAFLET

A key to controlling garden insects is available to gardeners in the Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station mimeograph, "Home Garden Insecticides," prepared by the department of entomology. Descriptions of a number of new insecticides, of their effect on various insects, and brief directions for application are given in the one-page guide.

ADDED FACILITIES OFFERED VISITORS AT POKAGON

New facilities at Pokagon State Park near Angola-both a summer and winter playground-were announced by the Indiana Department of Conservation. Instruction in archery and bait casting now is available at Potawatomi Inn from Don Allen, who gave skiing lessons at Pokagon during the winter. It is the first time that instruction in these popular sports has been offered there.

Contract for a new modern comfort station at Pokagon recently was awarded to Lawrence L. Street of Indianapolis on a bid of $22,300. The successful bidder let sub-contracts to the Gentry Plumbing Company of Anderson and the Butler Company of Angola.

Holiday traffic will exceed that of any previous Memorial Day if weather is favorable, Mr. Hayes said.

To reduce the hazards of holiday traffic, Mr. Hayes recommened the following program to motorists:

1. Schedule holiday activities to eliminate driving when fatigued or after consumption of alcohol;

2. Schedule trips to reduce or eliminate night driving, producer of twothirds of all traffic fatalities:

3. Increase margins of safety, especially passing and following distances, and speed controls at intersections, railroad crossings, and on curves. Motorists entering the congested Calumet region in Lake County, Indiana, are urged to use especial care at railroad crossings which honeycomb the region. Fifty percent of fatalities are at railroad crossings, compared to only 13.4 percent in the rest of the state. Many crossings are poorly protected and have poor visibility.

TREE OUTPUT AT NURSERIES HAS SET A NEW RECORD

Approximately six million seedlings an all-time high figure-were shipped from the three state nurseries to Hoosier tree planters this spring, it was announced by John H. Nigh, director of the Indiana Department of Conservation.

This year's number topped that 1947 output by nearly two million, and the Division of Forestry expects to have nearly eight million trees available for sale next spring.

Pointing out that the 1948 spring tree-planting season is now closed, State Forester Ralph F. Wilcox said no more forest tree seedlings are available at the state nurseries.

Wilcox added that all persons plannig to purchase trees for next spring's planting should secure a tree application blank this fall from their county agent, district forester or State Forester's office at 413 State Library Bldg. Indianapolis.

This fact also was tressed: It is extremely important for the State Division of Forestry to know that all seedlings it sells are to be planted only for erosion control, windbreaks, reforestation purposes or Christmas tree plantings. No trees are sold for ornamental purposes.

STATE WILL AID NEW EXCAVATIONS AT MOUNDS

Previously unexplored areas in Angel Mounds State Park Memorial, major archeological site near Evansville, will be excavated by a university group this summer through the cooperation of the Indiana Department of Conservation, the Indiana Historical Society and Indiana University.

Although this area is now maintained as a State Memorial by the Department of Conservation, is is not yet available for public use.

"We will welcome the public to Angel Mounds after this interesting state memorial has been developed completely for their accomodation," said John H. Nigh, director of the Conservation Department, and Kenneth Cougill, head of state parks. "There can be no general admittance, however, until basic facilities for public use are completed at Angel Mounds."

Scientific archeological exploration has been carried on for some time at these mounds by the Indiana Historical Society and Indiana University.

Cooperating with these two groups, the Department of Conservation is arranging to accomodate approximately The 1948 nursery output consisted forty I. U. students who will explore portions of the Angel Mounds site from Many valuable and interesting prehistoric relics and data have been discovered in the 421-acre memorial area Large numbers of the items are stored in two buildings there and in order to protect them and the mounds them selves, the Conservation Department recently completed a chain-link fence around the entire area.

"But God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world." Galatians 6:14

WHAT MUST I DO TO BE SAVED?

This question was asked by the jailor who had imprisoned Paul and Silas. Acts 16:19-34 tells the whole story. At midnight an earthquake had opened the prison doors. The jailor became frightened but finding all the prisoners still there, he fell down at the feet of Paul and Silas and asked, what must I do to be saved?" Of course Paul gave him the cor-rect answer—however, "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved, and thy house," are but the beginning of it. Those who draw the conclusion that salvation is by faith alone, leave the jail too soon. They should remain till they hear all—till they hear Paul tell the man to repent and be baptized; till the design of baptism is explained to him; till he is is baptized; till the is found rejoicing greatly after his baptism. It would not require a long delay for it was all done "the same hour of the night." night.'

If we compare Paul's answer with those given by Peter and Ananias when the same question was asked, we find that Ananias said, "Arise and be baptized; and wash away thy sins;" for the questioner in that case had already believed and repented; that Peter said, "Repent and be bap-tized;" for his questioners had already believed; while Paul says to this man (who had done neither of the three) "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." Then he added the other two commands. Thus we see the three inspired men perfectly agree and the steps to salvation, forgiveness of sins and entrance into the New Testament Church were and always have been: Faith, Repentance, Baptism. been: Faith, Repentance, Baptism.

MEMORIAL POPPIES ARRIVE FROM VETERANS HOSPITAL

Memorial poppies which the people of Mentone will wear in honor of the war dead on Poppy Day, Saturday, May 29, have been received by Mentone Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary. The shipment came from Marion hospital at Marion, Indiana, where the little red flowers were made by disabled vetterans of both world wars working under supervision of the Indiana Department of the Auxiliary.

the hospital all during the winter and grew on the battlefields and cemespring months," explained Mrs. T. J. Clutter, Poppy chairman of the Auxiliary Unit. "It has helped keep their hands and minds busy, relieving them of long hours of tedium and contributing its occupational therapy value toward their recovery.

"Poppy making has given these veterans the encouraging experience of being able to earn money again, often after many months of idleness. They are paid by the Auxiliary for each poppy they make and are able to earn helpful amounts during the poppymaking season.

'Much of the money is sent home by the veterans to help support their wives and children, who often have a difficult time when the veterans require hospitalization and are unable to work for long periods. It gives the veterans a decided lift in morale when they are able to send something to their families. Those without dependents use the money to create a nest egg for themselves against the day when they leave the hospitals and endeavor to re-establish themselves in life.

"The poppies are fashioned by hand, veterans working in their beds, in wheel chairs or in occupational therapy shops. Materials are provided by the Auxiliary and the finished products collected regularly by Auxiliary workers. The flowers are made of crepe "Making these flowers has provided paper in replica of the little wild pop-

2,4-D SPRAY EFFECTS

Many woody plants, including willows, are partially killed by 2,4-D spray. Killing of large shrubs or trees cannot be expected. It may be used, however, to prevent resprouting of susceptible species by applying as a concentrated spray to resprouts after the trees and shrubs have been cut. Repeated applications will be necessary to prevent further growth, Oliver C. Lee, Purdue University weed specialist, asserts.

Wild cherry, poison ivy, wild grape, Japanese honeysuckle, willows, elderberry and locust are susceptible to the 2,4-D. Wild blackberry, bittersweet, osage orange, ash, oak and evergreens are considered resistant, Lee says.

A well known fishing authority once remarked to us that "most any lure will catch fish, but it must be presented right-and thrown where the fish are!"

That, in a nutshell, explains why some fishermen almost always return to the boat dock with limit catches, while others, who work at fishing equally hard, return empty handed. The best lure in the world (if there is such a lure) will not take fish if used in shallow water when all the bass, for instance, are sulking in the depths. And tossing your favorite plug or spoon in the deep, cool holes, when the bass ar feeding in the shallows, will fail to produce.

ther, the bass move into deeper water. Early in the morning or late in the evening, probably, the bass will move into the shallows looking for a frog or minnow or some other tidbit, but during the heat of the day, they'll hide in deep, cool water. So fish the deep holes during the day, the shallows early and late.

We use that as an example, but the principle applies to about all species of fish and most all fishing waters. Naturally, where springs trickle in or other unnatural elements change water temperatures, you have to use a different set of rules. That's where the ability to "think like a fish" will pay off in catches.

Then after finding where the fish are feeding, select a lure that conforms to what they are feeding on-a frog, maybe, or a crab or a minnow. There are many artificial lures resembling the natural foods, so pick the one that comes closest. Then, above all, make your lure act in the water like the bug or animal it is supposed to be. High Psychiatric Loss In active theaters of World War II, the rate of psychiatric casualties was two or three times that of World War I. Chief cause of the increase appeared to lie in the fact that warfare was more terrifying in World War II than ever before and the mental hazards were considerably greater than those encountered in the trench warfare of 1918.

Motorists were cautioned to start early to avoid driving dangers heightened by heavy travel. Pleasure seekers at lake and river resorts were warned against water accidents, and private plane pilots were urged to observe safe flying practices.

Memorial day marks the start of the varm weather driving season, Col. Rossow said, and drivers will have to be more alert to compensate for crowded at the Palestine Christian streets and highways. KILL DANDELIONS EASY BY USING THE 2,4-D WAY

Dandelions and other broadleaf lawn weeds are so easily killed by application of 2,4-D that there is no excuse for old fashioned digging or any other means of getting rid of such lawn weeds.

The best time to spray weeds is largely determined by the stage of growth of the weed, Oliver C. Lee, Purdue University weed specialist says. As plants mature, they become more resistant to 2,4-D. To obtain the best kill of deep rooted perennial weeds, spraying should be delayed until considerable top growth has developed. The early bud stage is preferred.

The spray should not be applied immediately before a rain or when temperatures are extremely high (95 degrees or above) as this may result in a poor kill of weeds. Spraying when the soll is too dry to promote active growth of weeds may have the same effect, especially for plants that are difficult to kill.

Dandelion, common plantain, buckhorn and several other broadleaved lawn weeds can be killed without damage to bluegrass by spraying with 2,4-D. The chemical, however, will injure bent grasses and white clover. It will not kill crabgrass, a common pest of lawns.

One ounce of the chemical per 3000 square feet is sufficient to kill susceptible weeds common to lawns. Best results have been obtained when the sray is applied in May and September. Sufficient water should be used to cause even distribution of the material. Five gallons of solution per acre is sufficient for closely cut areas.

Care should be taken, the weed specialist warns, not to allow the spray to drift onto or come into contact with susceptible crops or ornamental plants.

MUCH OIL BEING SOLD FROM WELLS IN THIS STATE

More than two million barrels of oil were sold from Hoosier wells during the first four months of this year, according to figures of the Indiana Department of Conservation.

Figures announced by John H. Nigh, director of the department, showed a total of 219 oil and gas well completions in Indiana from January 1 to May 1. Of this number, 142 were oil wells, 19 gas wells and 58 were dry. Sixteen of the dry holes were wildcat wells.

Pipelines runs (the amount sold) approximated 2,279,918 barrels of oil for this four-month period. Drilling permits totalled 296.

Drilling activity for the remainder of the year is dependent upon the operators' ability to obtain pipe, according to A. C. Colby, head of the Conservation Department's Oil and Gas Division. Created by the 1947 state legistlature, this new division began operations on April 1 of that year.

PLAN HOUSE COMPLETELY BEFORE STARTING TO BUILD

Houses are primarily meant to be lived in, not just looked at. For that reason, Miss Ruth Hutcheson, extension home management specialist at Purdue University, advises families who are building or remodeling to work out a complete plan for the living area, sleep and rest area and work area of the house. Furniture for each room should be considered before actual construction starts.

This is particularly true in the kitchen where a window or door, which looks "just right" on the outside of the house, might mean disrupting a beautiful and convenient U-shaped kitchen arrangement. "Workable and convenient interiors and balanced exteriors don't just happen," Miss Hutcheson says. "They are well planned and carefully related to each other."

When drawing up kitchen plans the needs of the family, the equipment on hand and the equipment to be purchased later should be taken into consideration. Windows are very attractive, but, if they cause the home maker to walk many more feet each day, those same windows may lose their attractiveness to the home maker.

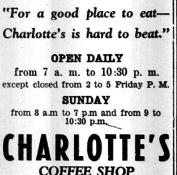

Kitchen wall space should be carefully planned so there will be room for that new stove or cabinet grouping as well as all the equipment already in use. Doors should be grouped together or placed near the corners of the room to keep wall spaces free.

In some remodeling cases convenient interiors may be achieved only with some loss of balance on the outside but in a new house, convenience of the interior and beauty should be combined with an attractive, nicely balanced exterior.

The chemist explained that if unlabeled fertilizer is found, it is removed from sale by the State Chemist inspectors, and the manufacturer notified. When the fertilizer has been properly registered and labeled by the Indiana State Chemist, it may again be placed on sale.

Farmers who have purchased fertilizers, neither stamped or labeled and who wish an analysis, should notify the State Chemist, Purdue University, Agricultural Experiment Station. A report of the fertilizer on hand should included and a request made for be an inspector to be sent to obtain an official sample. Samples of fertilizer should not be sent to the State Chemist, Ford advised.

He reported that many farmers have met the fertilizer shortage by buying whatever analysis is available and have then fortified the grade with raw materials such as treble superphosphate, potash salt and ammonium nitrate, in order to get the desired analysis.

SODIUM FLUORIDE PROVES A GOOD VERMIFUGE

Indiana farmers are learning this spring that a well known chemical, sodium fluoride, has been found experimentally to be a good vermifuge for hogs. John Schwab, Purdue University extension hogman, says that this treatment, reported by the U.S.D.A. Bureau of Animal Husbandry, consists of feeding pigs for one day, a mixture of one pound of sodium Fluoride and 99 lbs. of ground dry feed.

He warns that Sodium fluoride is a poison and some cases are reported where hogs died even though directions were followed

The methods as outlined by Schwab begins with slightly underfeeding the pigs the day before they are to be treated. On the day of treatment the medicated feed is given in the morning in such amounts as the pig has been fed in one day. If any medicated feed is left over, it should be removed, to guard against an overdose of poison. It is considered that one treatment may eliminate up to 95 percent of the first three months as compared to round worms.

Schwab said that Indiana hog growers know that protecting the young pointed out. "The mild outbreak of inpigs by having them farrowed on clean ground is the best practice. When a pig becomes wormy, it must be remembered that these parasites have done some damage to the liver and the lungs.

The technical grade, ordinarily available, is tinted to avoid possible confusion with salt, sugar or other foods. Containers of sodium fluoride should be plainly labeled and stored where only those familiar with the chemical will have access to it.

HEALTH FACTS FROM YOUR STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

A fifteen percent reduction in deaths from motor vehicle accidents and a decline of 7 percent in other forms of accidental deaths contributed to a lower death rate in Indiana for the first quarter of 1948, as compared to the same period in 1947, according to figures released by Dr. Robert Serfling, director, Division of Public Health Statistics, Indiana State Board of Health.

"The greater prevalence of measles this year resulted in 15 deaths during only two measles deaths recorded in the first quarter of 1947," Dr. Serfling fluenza in the early part of 1948 was not reflected in increased deaths as occurred in 1947 when a widespread occurrence of upper respiratory infections was associated with a marked rise It is generally believed that when para-4 in deaths from pneumonia, influenza
