AILING EXPLORER ASKS QUICK DEATH

Incurable, W. J. A. Grant Has His Coffin Ready.

London.—Feeling that he has outlived his earthly usefulness, William J. A. Grant, famed explorer, wants to die quickly without any fuss.

Grant is eighty-three years old, and an invalid. He wants somebody to administer to him a fatal sleeping draught. He believes that his life has exceeded its allotted span.

Feeling that he was about to die he bought his tombstone and coffin. They now lie in a barn 500 yards from his house.

The gardener goes regularly every day to the barn and polishes them.

"It is my job to keep them in good order," the gardener said.

"We get a steady flow of visitors from all parts, who, having heard of Mr. Grant's preparations for death, are anxious to see the coffin and the tombstone."

Last January, believing he had not much longer to live, Grant gave a "swan dance" to 500 guests at a local hotel. He called it a "farewell to life party."

"I am in constant pain, following an operation six years ago, but apart from that I am as fit as a fiddle," Grant said.

"A few weeks ago I injured my eyes at the Elton-Harrow cricket match and at present I cannot read, but my eyes will soon be all right again."

"When I ask doctors for a double dose of sleeping draught they just laugh at me and won't do it. They say I must wait until my time comes."

"I believe that doctors should be authorized to take the life from any patient suffering from an incurable disease."

Braying Donkeys Rout Three Lions

Cape Town, South Africa.—Ambling happily along the road in his donkey cart, a native of Orkney, southwest Africa, found three lions blocking the way.

Man, donkeys and lions stopped and looked at each other for a minute.

Then with a fighting bray the donkeys charged. The lions stampeded in a panic.

There was no holding the donkeys, who charged just as long as there was any breath left in them. Then they ambled off again as they had been doing before.

Moose "Shoots" High Dam Sitting Down and Lives

Winnipeg.—The story of a moose's thrilling plunge over a dam which discharges 40,000 cubic feet of water a second and its emergence unhurt but startled was related here by R. W. Davis, engineer in charge of the Island Falls hydroelectric plant on the Churchill river.

The moose was swimming upstream toward an island when it was frightened by Indians along the shore. It turned about, was caught by the current and precipitated over the spillway. The animal was turned upside down by the water and then as it went over the dam was knocked into a sitting position. It took the plunge in that position with its forelegs in the air like a human being waving its arms. It disappeared from view on striking the surging whirlpool below the falls but bobbed up again in the rapids, swam ashore, shook the water from its sides and trotted away into the bushes.

Sentenced to Die; Says "Thank You" to Court

McAlester, Okla.—"Thank you," Thus Bunn Riley, triple slayer, expressed his doubtful appreciation when a jury returned a verdict of guilty and sentenced him to the electric chair. Riley killed three companions, Bill Gann, Robert Watkins, and Homer Beasley, June 23, after luring them into a ravine near Canadian, Okla.

MAPLE WOOD HELD IN HIGH REVERENCE

"Through the centuries furniture craftsmen have appreciated maple and their loving hands have wrought such miracles of beautiful maple furniture that their historic consequence dwells with us today in our homes where they enjoy enduring welcome," says the Educational Institute of the Furniture World.

"Particularly in the original American colonies, settled by our Pilgrim and Puritan forefathers, was this wood specially favored. Here in this humble beginning maple played a large part in the origin of the great colonial period in furniture design. During the Seventeenth century the Swedish influence in maple furniture design began to make itself felt.

"With crude tools, but great genius, skillful hands carved out of maple great furniture masterpieces that are today priceless treasures. Their splendid rugged character, fine and simple design serve to emphasize the cheerful warmth of this historic wood.

"Present day designers hold maple in high reverence and respect the traditions of its background. And factories, too, busily engaged in the mass reproduction of maple furniture pieces, are faithful to the centuries-old legend of maple."

NEW ZEALAND FIRST IN LIFE EXPECTANCY

New Zealanders have a longer life expectancy than the people of any other country in the world, according to statisticians of a prominent life insurance company.

The average male infant born in New Zealand can expect to live to the age of sixty-five, while the average female infant can look forward to living within six weeks of sixty-eight years, says the Statistical Bulletin of the life insurance company.

The corresponding figures for white babies of the United States are 59.31 for boys and 62.83 for girls.

An exceedingly low mortality for New Zealand babies during the first year is reported in the Bulletin. It is only 28.35 per 1,000 for males and 25.48 for females. The corresponding figures for the United States in 1933 were 60.86 and 48.21.

Japanese Make Dog Symbol

Hachiko, a dog, has been made a symbol of faithfulness in Tokyo, and little bronze images of him have been presented to the emperor and empress of Japan. For years Hachiko went with his master to the railway station each morning and each evening was waiting when the train came in. The master was killed in a railway accident several years ago, but the dog still goes to the station twice every day. Struck by his faithfulness, a committee was appointed to have made and distributed the little bronze Hachikos.

Fire Bell for Village Phone

To make the only telephone in a Derbyshire village of England efficient, a fire bell has been installed outside the post office, home of the instrument.

Whenever a call comes from the outside world the fire bell gives the alarm. At least half a dozen villagers rush to the phone and either take the call themselves or find the individual for whom it was intended. Every child in the village has been instructed how to use the telephone.

Ancient Medal Portrays Christ

A medal struck from what is believed to be the oldest representation of Christ has been discovered in Trieste, according to a message from that town. Up to the present only five of these medals, which were struck during the reign of the Emperor Tiberius (42 B. C. to A. D. 37) were known and bear on the one side the head of the Messiah and on the other the words "The Messiah has come in peace; the Light has shone upon men."

Murderer Insists He Was Hypnotized

Warsaw, Poland.—The Warsaw Supreme court has been called on to decide the case of Peter Flinta whose counsel claimed he was hypnotized to kill a policeman in eastern Galicia.

The low court condemned Flinta to death after a trial in which the accused maintained he had no recollection of the crime.

In an appeal to the Supreme court his counsel submitted doctors' affidavits purporting to show that Flinta was particularly susceptible to hypnotic suggestion.

"LOVE BIRD MURDERS" BALK MAN MADE LAW

Punch and Jill, Slayers, Are Living Happily Now.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Two parakeets have perpetrated a crime here, but seem likely "to live happily ever after," as the old story books used to say. Their deeds might be called "The Love Bird Murders."

Mrs. Samuel Lewis Shank, widow of a former Indianapolis mayor, had two pairs of love birds. Punch and Judy were cage neighbors of Jack and Jill. Each pair seemed happy—as love birds.

Recently a shaft of sunlight shot through a doorway. Mrs. Shank set the two cages side by side on the floor. Punch saw Jill in a new light. Jill was not indifferent.

Thereafter "Punch" could crowd over on his perch to the bars of his cage. Jill came as close to him as she could. Their mates sat forsaken in opposite ends of the cages.

Then one day "Punch" escaped from his cage. He flew out of the window and was gone all night. Next morning he flew in a door and back into his cage.

After that he paid even less attention to Judy. Jill's plumage was blue; Judy's, to which he was accustomed, was green like his own. Perhaps Judy did not understand him.

Mrs. Shank was accustomed to covering the cages at night. A morning or two later when Mrs. Shank lifted the cover from the cage there lay little Judy dead, her green feathers ruffled, bloodstained, her throat cut.

Still later, in the same way, it was found that Jill had killed Jack.

There seemed no law under which Mrs. Shank could inflict punishment. If separated the birds might die. So Mrs. Shank put Punch and Jill into one cage and blue love bird and green love bird appear to be congenial and happy.

Guest Awakened by Water; Finds Hotel Is on Fire

Salt Lake City.—Ray Wattis, Salt Lake contractor, was asleep in a Nevada hotel when he awoke to find water dripping down on his bed from the ceiling.

He grabbed the telephone. "Say," he shouted to the hotel operator, "the fellow in the room above me has let his bathtub overflow. The water's running over my bed and onto the floor."

"My gosh," exclaimed the operator, "you aren't still in your room, are you?"

"Certainly," Wattis answered. "Where do you think I am?"

"Well, the two top floors of the hotel just burned off and they're trying to save your floor."

Woman Slayer in Prison Writes Note in Blood

Belgrade, Yugoslavia.—A woman is in prison at Bjelovar on a charge of having poisoned fifteen people, of whom seven died. Milka Pavlovitch of Partijana is accused of having poisoned two whole families who stood between her and a rich inheritance.

Milka's brother visited her in prison. As he was leaving, a police agent saw Milka slip something into his pocket. He was searched and a letter written in blood on a piece of old packing paper was found.

Milka had written the letter with a tooth from a comb. She had obtained the blood by cutting her leg. In the letter, Milka is alleged to have begged her family to arrange that their testimony tallied with her own.

This Trick a Real One; the Rifle Was Loaded

Sydney, N. S. W.—What proved to be a real shooting in which a real bullet was used gave an unexpected thrill to an audience in a local theater recently. The man on the stage who called himself the "human target," had promised to catch in his teeth a bullet fired by an assistant from a rifle 10 paces away. A shot rang out. The "human target" was seen to stagger. He ran from the stage with blood pouring from a wound in the right shoulder. Officials at the theater denied afterwards that the wound was serious. The trick had been successfully performed before.

$5 Was Good Investment

Nampa, Idaho.—J. C. Wilson, a farmer near here, didn't see why he should contribute to the fund for a new city fire truck. Anyway, he gave $5. The other day his barn, with 27 tons of highly prized hay in a drouth section, caught fire. The truck arrived in record time and saved his feed.

Owner Tosses Hammer, Saves Dog From Eagle

Danville, Ill.—Walter Lamb's prowess as a hammer hurler saved his pet bulldog from death at the talons and beak of an eagle.

The dog spied the eagle perched on the stump of a tree near the barnyard and advanced with growls and barks. The eagle swooped into action and the fray raged furiously for several minutes. The dog tried to get in the death-lock bite for which bulldogs are famous, but failed because of the tactics of the eagle, which at every dart wielded its sharp claws and bill.

The eagle had fastened his talons into the dog's back and was trying to get it off of the ground, when Lamb arrived carrying a hammer. He let fly and the eagle dropped. It had a wing spread of several feet.

Color of Negro Babies

All infants, whether born of white or colored parents, have skin of a pinkish beet-red hue within the first 12 hours following birth, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. Babies of the Negroid type are of only slightly darker color during this period of infancy, but immediately thereafter a rapid darkening of the skin occurs. Not, however, until they are one month old does the skin register the normal dark pigmentation characteristic of adult negroes.

Where Belladonna Is Found

This liquid, often used by oculists for dilating the pupil of the eye, is extracted from a plant known scientifically as the belladonna, or, more popularly, by the name of deadly nightshade, notes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. The plant, which is native to Southern Asia, is readily identified by its reddish bell-shaped flowers and shining black berries. Not only does it give forth a most disagreeable odor, but in addition it is highly poisonous, causing it to be shunned in much the same manner as is poison ivy in our own country.

Radiations and Injury

Various radiations can cause pain without injury and injury without pain. For example, heat waves easily excite pain without injury, as is shown in the sensitiveness of the eye to the radiation of a dull red fire. On the other hand, ultra-violet and X-rays cause no sensation whatsoever when they are seriously damaging the skin.—Collier's Weekly.

Peculiarities

The Chinese usually tell fortunes by reading the lines of the feet as well as those of the hands; the Swedes seldom fail to shake hands with one another after they have finished a meal either at home or in a restaurant; and many negroes in our southern states still leave the price tags on new suits of clothes to show that they were not made at home.

Originated in Australia

Among various innovations originating in Australia are a mechanical device for starting horses in a race; the sliding seat used in rowing; the left hook used in boxing; and the totalisator system of betting.

Treatment of Slaves

Slaves belonging to primitive peoples are often treated better than those in civilized countries, writes A. W. Robertson, London, England, in Collier's Weekly. In various parts of Africa, many dusky owners not only allow their slaves to own all kinds of real and personal property but even permit them to have slaves of their own.

Deterioration of Pearls

It is not necessary to have real pearls worn in order to keep them from deteriorating. In fact, the acid in some persons' skins may have a deleterious effect upon pearls. Light or lack of it and temperature seem to have no effect. The only requisite for keeping pearls is to have them perfectly dry.

More than 3,000 amendments to the Federal Constitution have been proposed in Congress since 1789.

Birds' Nesting Habits

Some birds are curiously persistent in returning to the same nesting spot every year. House martins usually rebuild the same mud nest for seasons in succession, while waterhens, though they move about a lot, come back to the same pond or pool for nesting each spring.

Home of Scott

Travelers in Edinburgh can see the house where Walter Scott met Robert Burns in 1787. Scott was a boy of fifteen, and he little realized that his name would be linked with Burns' as a great native genius of Scotland. Burns' house was at 477 Baxter's Close.

"Tinker's Dam"

The phrase, "I don't care a tinker's dam" goes back to days when traveling tinkers mended pots and pans, and stuck a lump of clay over holes to prevent the solder running through—the tinker's dam—to drop out, worthless, when the job was done.

Flit, Flu, Flut

The second and third settlements on Ohio soil were where Cincinnati now stands, but neither was known by that name.

Air Contains Moisture

The air always contains some moisture, even though one is not conscious of it. Sun and wind are always taking up water from any source exposed to their action. Lakes and streams, moist land, and even animals and plants may be sources of atmospheric moisture, but the greatest sources are the oceans of salt water.

"JEWEL QUEEN" IS ALL SET AGAINST ANOTHER HOLDUP

$115,000 Lost in Two Raids by Former New York Fashionable Modiste.

New York.—If Edith Bobe, the "Jewel queen," makes her next appearance in the night club belt attired in a bullet-proof gown with her diamond bracelets handcuffed to her slim wrist and padlocks on her emerald earrings, Broadway and Park avenue will not be very much surprised.

For Miss Bobe, ex-modiste of Fashion row and divorced wife of Robert L. Hague, millionaire oil king of New Jersey, has been robbed twice.

Only a short time ago Miss Bobe returned from a tour of the New York "hot spots" to her apartment house at 3.55 a. m. to find herself looking into the business end of a revolver. She quickly handed over to the robbers gems worth $15,000.

Ten years before, almost to the day, Miss Bobe was robbed of $100,000 worth of jewelry in almost precisely the same manner. Besides the large financial loss the modiste had two teeth knocked out. But she also acquired the title of being the "wisest, smartest-cracking woman in the world."

Shop Becomes Mecca.

Before the robbery her gown shop had been a fashion mecca for the "400." Miss Bobe feared "newspaper talk" about the robbery and about the gems Mr. Hague had showered on her would hurt her business.

Her surprise and delight knew no bounds when she discovered that her receipts had skyrocketed following her accident.

Some time later she was quoted as saying:

"I never got the necessary advertising for my business before. Now I intend to make New York pay me about half a million each for those two teeth. They hurt me, but made me famous—the yeggs and the reporters."

Four men had entered the Bobe mansion while the modiste and Mr. Hague were at a movie. When Hague and Miss Bobe came in they demanded her gems. Resistance resulted in the couple being beaten up.

Lloyd's announced the robbery had taken place about ten days after some of the jewelry had been insured and fought against paying damages in the court, but finally made a settlement.

Makes no Resistance.

Miss Bobe and Mr. Hague were married shortly afterwards and divorced in 1927. Mr. Hague subsequently married Mary Lewis, the opera singer. Today, he is president of the Standard Shipping company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil companies.

Investigation of the recent robbery disclosed that the lone stickup man had been in Miss Bobe's apartment for hours.

When the ex-modiste and her escort, a Mr. Pratt, entered the apartment, the gunman said softly:

"Do you remember the 1924 job, Miss Bobe? Let's not have any fuss this time."

Without uttering one of the wise cracks for which she is so justly famous, the divorcee slipped off a $10,000 diamond bracelet, a diamond ring, a platinum ring and handed them over.

The intruder tied her and Pratt then, hands and feet, with picture wire and shoved them into a closet.

He asked:

"Now, is there any more stuff?"

Miss Bobe told him where he could find a jewel box. Mr. Pratt was not robbed.

The cool and audacious gunman then walked out whistling, "Thank You for a Lovely Evening." As soon as he left, Miss Bobe managed to open the door of the closet. She hopped to a chair where a sewing basket lay, found a scissors, cut her bonds, released her friend and called up headquarters.

all dressed as kids Little girls with their hair ribbons and little boys with their sailor hats. The Akron troop are lovely hostesses and entertained us with kid games such as drop the handkerchief, London Bridge and several other games that brought the lively events of our childhood. We celebrated by having suckers also but other refreshments were served consisting of popcorn, cider etc. What fun a gang of young people can have when they get together. In Scouting we manage to have great fun out of the simplest of affairs. If scouting does nothing else it is at least worth while in this way, for our young people need to be shown the simplicity of the best fun.

Limerick, Ireland

Limerick, Ireland, the city through which the River Shannon flows, is one of the chief ports of the island and combines the associations of a historic town with modern improvements. One of the chief points of interest in the locality is the Treaty Stone, where Irish patriots long ago forced William and Mary to sign a document which protected the privileges of the Roman Catholics in the country. Along the Shannon also are located the remains of several castles, now falling into ivy-clad ruins, where in days gone by the Irish barons defied the might of England.

BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

"Fools rush in," but there are plenty left.

Man lives first and thinks afterwards.

In attributing motives a man studies his own.

The World war seemingly only began when it ended.

The quick to promise are usually quick to forget.

The people like criticism because everything needs it.

If one gets the habit of smiling, it can be done without being artificial.

One can outgrow making practical jokes. It is usually a defect of youth.

Remember, people do not change seats in a canoe. It simply isn't done.

What is civilization? Well, it begins with the public schools. That's the first step.

Few people are familiar enough with money to call $1.00 a "grand" in that offhand way.

Make the taxes low enough and maybe the taxpayers would volunteer to pay them like patriots.

Books of etiquette are usually too complex and particularizing. A few simple rules can guide most men.

A wife can make her husband wear rubbers, but can a husband make his wife wear rubbers if she doesn't want to?

Nice people are people who are polite and pleasant to you; and it is next to impossible to make you believe otherwise.

The German Mark

The German mark as a unit was established by the German Federation of States following the Franco-Prussian war in 1873, with a nominal value of $23.80 for 100 marks. After the World war an inflation of currency set in, which reached its peak in 1923, to such an extent that the paper mark was practically worthless. For instance, it cost 2,000,000,000 paper marks to carry a letter from Germany to the United States. Under the Dawes plan Germany stabilized her monetary system, going back to the gold standard. The new currency now in use is called the reichsmark, which has a nominal value, like the former mark, of $23.80 for 100. The old paper mark notes issued before 1923 are worthless. The reichsmark notes issued by the Reichsbank in Germany are today purchased by banks at current rates.

Fifty Centuries Old Tomb

What is described as a "beautifully-painted tomb nearly fifty centuries old" has been discovered. The tomb belonged to Tissen, presumably a member of the Council of Ten comprising the executive of the then Egyptian government. The paintings, depicting high personages, birds and flowers, are in colors so fresh that they look nearly new.

Mystery Bird Studied

Hundreds of naturalists in England have started a two-year investigation into the secrets of the woodcock. They will count the nests and try to watch one of the deepest of the bird's secrets—how it carries its clicks from the wood where they are born to the open fields where they feed.

New Shell Varieties Found

Fantastic new varieties of the "living church steeples" of the ocean depth have been discovered in the masses of shells dredged from the bottom of the Atlantic by an expedition. These creatures are mollusks with whorled shells of delicate architecture.

WHY

Why New Gun-Firing Test May Not Prove Who Fired

A simple test, restricted until months ago to industrial uses, may become an effective device for solving murders and determining whether a person meeting a violent death has been slain or has committed suicide, says the United States News. Department of Justice experts are now studying the possibilities of the test, which makes it possible to tell whether a suspected murderer or assailant has fired a gun within 48 hours prior to the test.

Discharge of a firearm leaves specks of nitrate in the skin of the trigger hand of the person doing the shooting. These specks are revealed by the test. It is made by making a mold of paraffin or wax on the trigger hand of the suspect. After the mold is removed, it is explained by department officials, diphenylamine solution in concentrated sulphuric acid is poured upon the paraffin. If nitrate specks are present a deep blue color appears.

Department officials point out that although presence of nitrate specks is strong circumstantial evidence against a suspect, yet it is not conclusive, and the specks may have been gathered from some other source than gunpowder.

Why Compasses Do Not Point the Same Direction

Compasses do not always point the same direction. The deviation may be determined by this arrangement on the new part of the Kansas City Airport's taxiway, says the Kansas City Star. Its purpose is to enable airplane pilots to check accurately the compasses of their planes in order that they may make proper allowances in flight for the deviation. The airplane is placed within the circle formed on the concrete and in line with the arrow. The plane's compass reading then is checked against the indicating arrow and the deviation, if any, is noted accordingly. The operation then is repeated in comparison with the other points of the compass as laid out in this permanent diagram. If the pilot finds that his compass is not accurate, he also finds out how much allowance should be made in determining directions.

Why Oklahoma Changed Capitals

Oklahoma City was more centrally located, and had other advantages. It was long planned to make it the capital when Oklahoma should become a state, but as a concession to Guthrie it was written into the enabling act of 1906 and the first state Constitution that Guthrie should remain the capital until 1913. Nevertheless, an election was held in 1910, at which the people voted to make Oklahoma City the capital. A series of court contests ensued, in which both the state and federal Supreme courts were called upon to rule on the matter. The election was held invalid, but a special session of the state legislature passed a law accomplishing what the vote had failed to do, and since 1910 Oklahoma City has been the capital.

Slayer Asks 3 Bullets in His Head, 3 in Heart

Wetaskiwin, Alta.—Convicted of murder, Julius Kassal, thirty, banged on the dock rail in rage here and, glaring defiantly at the judge, demanded to be shot.

"Six policemen you should order to me," Kassal declared in his broken English, "and I should be shot with three bullets in my head and three in my heart."

Justice Boyle, however, refused to accede to the prisoner's demand. He sentenced Kassal to be hanged at the Fort Saskatchewan jail. This proved satisfactory.

"Thank you very much," the prisoner said.

Cat and Crow Fraternize; Even Eat From Same Dish

Westfield, Mass.—A cat and crow are inseparable companions at the home of Clarence Axlerod.

A neighbor saw the crow in a cornfield and wounded it with a rifle. He took the crow home, nursed it, and it recovered eventually from the wound. Later he gave it to Axlerod.

Now the crow, named Pete, plays in friendly fashion with the Axlerod family cat, Teddy. They eat from the same dish. Pete has been taught to catch coins tossed into the air. The crow hides them as a dog would hide bones.

Pet Feline Eats Potato Chips and Watermelon

Boston.—An unusual cat is Marmaduke Shillyshanks, a Dorchester feline who eats watermelon and potato chips and drinks from the goldfish bowl with out disturbing the goldfish. Marmaduke, the property of Joseph Gannon, was born in a baby carriage and slept in it until he was old enough to leap to the top of the radio cabinet. There he naps daily, undisturbed by crooners or jazz bands, occasionally rising to take a little water from the nearby goldfish bowl.

Town Uses Castor Oil to Enforce Curfew Law

Edwardsville, Pa.—Children of this mining town don't fear the bogey man—it's the medicine police they fear. There is a nine o'clock curfew law, but children have paid little attention to it. Authorities decided on "drastic action." Three-ounce bottles have been filled with castor oil, and every child less than fourteen years old found on the streets after 9 p. m. will get a dose. The police "medicine men" have been instructed "how to give the oil without losing any of it," Chief Art Jones said.

Many Years to Write Dictionary

In 1783, Noah Webster published "A Grammatical Institute of the English Language." It was written in three parts: a spelling-book, a grammar and a reader. Webster's royalty, though less than one cent a volume, still must have been pretty handsome, for the book was the first of the American best sellers, says a writer in Cosmopolitan Magazine. Before the beginning of the Civil war it was selling at the rate of more than a million copies a year. Webster began work on his famous dictionary in 1807; it was published in 1828, and contained 12,000 words, and about 30,000 definitions that had not appeared in any other dictionary.

LOSES RICH HOME, YOUTH NOW HAPPY WITH HIS OWN KIN

Brothers Take Charge of Lad Who Didn't Fit Into Wealthy Family.

Chicago.—Peter Christopoulos, fourteen years old, does not have to achieve romance and adventure; life pours these upon him simply because he is Peter Christopoulos.

In a little more than a year Peter has had three homes. One was Father Flanagan's Boys' home in Omaha, Neb. The second was the palatial residence of Jean Strongs, wealthy silk manufacturer of Paterson, N. J. The third is a house at 3519 West Ohio street. He likes the last one best because in it dwell his two brothers and his sister, long lost and now restored to him.

Orphaned by Tragedy.

Peter is the youngest of four children whose parents were killed in a train wreck when he was just a year old. All the young Christopouloses went to Omaha orphanages, the two little ones to St. James in Omaha and the two older ones to Father Flanagan's. In due time Peter graduated to Father Flanagan's, but when that happened his older brothers were fairly well grown and had left the orphanage, coming to Chicago.

Father Flanagan, something more than a year ago, printed Peter's picture in his own paper. He is a handsome lad and Millionaire Strongs, viewing the picture in the little paper, became imited with the idea that Peter looked like his own son, who had drowned at the age of sixteen.

Mr. Strongs decided to adopt Peter and Father Flanagan sent the boy east. Mr. Strongs was to keep him for three months and then if he was satisfied with the trial adopt him permanently.

Sent Back to Orphanage.

But, alas! Peter did not fit in the Strongs home. The family said he was not affectionate, that his head was turned, and when six weeks had passed they quietly sent him back to Father Flanagan. That fact, too, was recounted in the newspapers.

Among those who read the story were Michael Christopoulos, twenty-four years old, and John Christopoulos, twenty-six years old.

"That's our brother," said Mike to John.

"Guess it is," said John. "Too bad he couldn't have shared rich. But we'll take care of him ourselves."

So Michael went back to Father Flanagan's home to claim his brother and bring him to Chicago. Peter is now a student in Teley high school and happy.

"Why, sure, this is the best place," he said last night. "They were good to me at Father Flanagan's. The millionaire let me drive his motorboat, but he was a hard man to get along with. Here it's all O. K. I like these folks. They're my own people."

Girl Scout News

By Amos Skeeta

Court of Awards is over and our work is done this fall. We are delighted with the interest our fellow townspeople take in the Girl Scouts. We have hope to merit the confidence they have in us. A big crowd was present at the court.

The play "Alice in Girl Scout Land" was the story of Alice of Wonderland in Girl Scout Land. The play opens with a beautiful Alice gazing curiously about her. Suddenly a very strangely attired girl appears at her side. "Who are you?" demands Alice, and the girl in green is very much surprised. "Everyone should know a Girl Scout", she thought but she calmly told Alice about the wonders of Scout Land. That marvelous land where work is fun and play is more fun. Alice was introduced to Tenderfoot, the first class, and the second class Scouts, the Canner, Home Nurse, Child, and various other interesting people whom she promptly adopted as her friends. The hostess invited Alice to a tea party which was much more interesting than the one the Hatter gave Alice in Wonderland. The Cook gave Alice a sample of her famous cooking the laundress displayed her beautifully laundered lunch cloth, the Housekeeper couldn't be out done as she received well deserved praise for her polished silverware and the Needlewoman presented Alice with a napkin sewed by her own hand with lovely even stitches in it.

As Alice and the Girl Scout walked on, they heard the gay music of those happy and beloved Minstrels in the distance. They paused to listen to the music and suddenly those graceful dancers appeared upon the scene. The rhythm and beauty of their lithe swaying forms in the even popular folk-dance lent enchantment to the spell cast over Alice.

Alice concluded that Scout land was a jolly good place to be and she was determined to come and live among these joyous young people, who were happy and content in that good combination of work and play.

The characters of the play were:
Alice Judy Busenburg
Girl Scout Betty Lyon
Tenderfoot Betty Jean Janke
Second Class Geraldine Nellans
First Class Charlene Latham
First Aid Marjorie Long
Home Nurses, Lova Bush and Marcella Leininger

Canner Mary Myers
Hostess Mary Mollenhour
Child Nurse Mary Rush
Cook Lena Rush
Housekeeper Louise Paulus
Laundress Pauline Swick

Porcupine Teeth More Damaging Than Quills

Because of their quills, porcupines have always attracted much interest. To the farmer or timber owner, however, the teeth of these animals are far more important than the quills.

In late summer, fall, and winter, porcupines in their efforts to get at the inner layer of bark of young trees often girdle them, causing serious injury, sometimes killing the trees. Porcupines also sometimes damage cultivated crops, chiefly during the spring and summer. At this time they may destroy young fruit trees or feed upon alfalfa and truck crops.

Contrary to popular notion, porcupine quills are not shot by the animal. They are, however, sharp and finely barbed, and occasionally live stock and game animals are injured by them.

In areas where these animals increase greatly they may become injurious, in which case control measures are necessary. This is true particularly in the West, where the yellow-haired porcupine often does considerable damage to pine trees. Where porcupines occur in small numbers and are not seriously destructive naturalists of the bureau of biological survey say they should not be molested.

Scottish Goddess Unearthed
That the ancient inhabitants of Scotland worshiped a mother divinity or "fertility goddess" has long been suspected, but now proof has been found. Scottish place-names of twin peaks, such as Dumbarton and Dumgoyne, were held to be indications of this worship. The proof has been supplied by Ludovic Mann. When examining the deep-seated gravels at Kirkin Tolloch, where mammoth and rhinoceros relics have been discovered, he unearthed a large pebble of hard reddish rock skillfully carved into the shape of a female torso.

Bees as Messengers
A German beekeeper has found new use for bees. They are no longer to be mere honey-gatherers and wax-builders, but messengers! He has written messages on scraps of paper and fastened them to the backs of bees. The bees have quickly brought them back to the hive, and never has a bee failed to deliver the goods. The beekeeper says bees are less likely than pigeons to fall into the wrong hands.

Royal Relations
King Edward VII of England was married to Alexandra, a daughter of King Christian IX of Denmark. Her sister Dagmar was the wife of Alexander III of Russia. Their son, the murdered Czar Nicholas II, was a second cousin to the present English King George V. The family resemblance between the two cousins was remarkable.

"Do you enjoy politics?"
"Not as much as I used to," admitted Miss Cayenne. "Women insist on being serious. When men played the game we could laugh at them."
